Last week an incident of violence and racism occurred in Northampton. The case involves the stabbing of a Puerto Rican outside of Sheehan's Bar. The police have denied that there was any such stabbing. Earlier in the evening there had been a fight at Sheehan's between the same white person who did the stabbing and another Puerto Rican who was a friend of the one who got stabbed. The Puerto Rican is being charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon. The white person is only charged with assault and battery. The hearing on the whole case takes place at the County District Courthouse on Friday, April 1st at 9:00 a.m. As of now there has been a problem with witnesses coming forward. Last week there were two responses to the report who said they had seen what had happened in the bar. And if necessary would come forward and act as witnesses. Therefore the Puerto Rican Committee for Human Rights is uring that all witnesses either call the lawyer, Bill Neuman at 584-7331. or the Committee at 586-5537. Please help. In addition we are asking that all people come to the hearing on April 1st and demonstrate that there are still plenty of folks who are concerned about, ready to defend and struggle for people's rights.

Community Notes

Student Activities and the PROGRAM Co

Student Activities and the Program Council Music Committee is proud to present the 5th Annual Black Musicians concert. This year on Friday, April 1, Charles Tolliver, Music Inc. and Strata East All Stars, will present an extended performance from their repertorie of Strata East recordings at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

On Saturday, April 1, Charles Tolliver, Music Inc. and strata East All Stars, will present an extended performance from their repertorie of Strata East recordings at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

On Saturday, April 2, there will be workshops all day at Hampshire College featuring some of the most noted scholars and musicians in the field of Black music.

Saturday night, Frank Foster and the Lous Minority, a 23 piece band will present an extended concert. Andy Bey will be the vocalist.

This event will take place in the Student Union Ballroom at 8 p.m. on the campus of the University. All events will be free and open to the public. For further information, contact Bill Hasson in the Student Activities Office, 545-3600.

The Center for Racial Understanding cordially invites the Five-College Community and general public to a SPECIAL TOPICS WORKSHOP.

Speakers and topics for the event include, from Communication Studies, JON S. CRANE "Ethnic Images and Television", Afro-American Studies Professors JULIUS LESTER "Mechanics of Racism" and ARCHIE SHEPP "Black Music", and Professor RALPH WHITEHEAD of the Journalistic Studies Program.

The two hour workshop will begin at 7:30, March 30th and be conducted in the Center's office located in Moore House, Southwest Residential College-UMASS. An informal session, with refreshments, will follow.

Information may be obtained from Peter at 253-2858.

OPEN GET-TOGETHER — BENEFIT MARCH 26, 7:30 PM

New Unity Workers Alliance will sponsor a benefit for the Fountain Plating strikers on Saturday, March 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the Holyoke Hill Community Building, 360½ Tokeneke Road, Holyoke. (see map below). There will be a film, "Union Maids", about organizing in the 1930's, speakers from Local 1596, reports from other ongoing local labor struggles, beer, refreshments, more! No admission; the hat will be passed for the strike fund.

The New Unity Workers' Alliance was recently formed together with the New Unity newspaper and Western Massachusetts Strike Support Committee and intends to focus on activities such as strike support work, health and safety work, the movement for union democracy, and organizing the unorganized. More information on the work of the Alliance will be available at the benefit.

SUPPORT FOUNTAIN STRIKERS

UAW Local 1596 has been on strike since October at Fountain Plating, West Springfield for salary raises, Health coverage, better working conditions, and other issues. The strike has been marred by police harassment, scabs crossing the picket line, and a Union complaint that Fountain refused to negotiate in good faith. Fountain has spent over $10,000 during the strike to hire off-duty cops, much more than the settlement requested by the strikers. The workers are prepared to continue the strike and need wide labor and community support. Everyone is welcome at the meeting!

POSITION AVAILABLE
UMASS STUDENT FEDERAL CREDIT UNION

Job Description: Manager, 40 hour-week — Internship — 15 credits

Supervises: Assistant Manager, Supervisors, tellers and all other operational personnel

AN INTERVIEW IS REQUIRED

Deadline for applications is April 8, 1977

CONTACT: Linda Cote, or Anne Smith at: 545-2800.

The Venceremos Brigade is sponsoring a cultural-educational three-day program on "The Elimination of Racism in Cuba and its Significance For Peoples Living in the United States" which will take place on the evenings of March 30-April 1st at the Hampden Student Center, in the South West Residential College at the University of Mass. On Wed. night there will be workshops on Poetry and Cuban music. Both workshops are designed to encourage active and creative participation.

Assata Shakur

ASSATA SHAKUR

On Friday, March 25, black activist Assata Shakur was convicted of murdering a New Jersey State Trooper by an all-white jury. New Jersey superior court judge Theodore Applyby then sentenced Shakur to life imprisonment.

Assata Shakur had long been the subject of FBI counter-intelligence harrassment and had been charged and acquitted on several counts before the state obtained conviction this week.

On May 2, 1973, Shakur and two companions were stopped by state trooper James Harper on the N.J. Turnpike. It is well known that police frequently stop and harrass black people on the turnpike, but Harper's testimony was that he stopped Shakur's vehicle for faulty tail lights. The state's case charged that Shakur provoked a shootout in which one of her companions and a state trooper were killed.

Harper contended that Shakur started the shooting and that he shot her as she was firing at him from a crouching position outside of the vehicle.

But Shakur testified that she had been shot once as she was in the passenger seat of the vehicle and once again as she attempted to get out of the vehicle. Two doctors supported her testimony, saying that the location of the bullet wounds were totally unexplainable from Harper's testimony.

Defense attorneys stated during the trial "We don't deny that Shakur was in that car, but she did not participate in any shooting, and she did not provoke the incident." Defense attorneys noted that after the killings "the state police fingerprinted every weapon and did not find any of Shakur's fingerprints." Nor could the state police after dusting her fingers, find any evidence that she had fired any weapon.

Despite the conflicting testimony by Harper and the clearly racist jury selection procedure and conduct of the trial, Shakur now faces life imprisonment for a crime that in all likelihood she did not commit. Shakur has already been imprisoned for four years awaiting this trial. Most of that time in solitary confinement. The first three trials on these charges ended in hung juries.

For more information on the case of Assata Shakur, and her continued deense: Contact: Assata Shakur Defense Committee; 339 Lafayette Street; New York, New York 10012.

1-212-673-4177.

America's Secret Police Network

Some might say that such attitudes are typical of the point of view of the police, but there is little about police intelligence officers that is typical of most policemen. Within a police department the intelligence squad is almost as alien as it is within society as a whole. In Baltimore many veteran officers were completely unaware of the existence of the Inspectional Services Division. Fewer than forty officers in the department had any idea of the unit's function, and only a small percentage of those who did had been fully briefed on its operation. In fact the Baltimore cops were themselves targets of ISD spying when they went out on strike in 1974; undercover officers from the unit photographed policemen as they walked picket lines outside their station houses.

In Chicago, too, the Red Squad's activities were shrouded from the rest of the police department. Recruits selected to serve in the unit bypassed training in the police academy so that former classmates couldn't identify them later. Senior Chicago police officials claimed to a grand jury that they were ignorant of the Red Squad's activities. But the most bizarre example of the chasm between Red Squad officers and the cop on the beat is the case of one undercover officer who infiltrated a Chicago group and eventually became its president. He admitted to the Cook County Grand Jury probing police-spying activities that he had specifically urged other members of the most strategic way to place snipers in downtown Chicago so that they could blow away the greatest number of his fellow officers.

Conspiracy to commit first-degree murder is the worst, but by no means the only, case of lawbreaking by police intelligence squads perpetrated by the LEIU. The Chicago Red Squad, for example, carried out a six-year program of burglary, vandalism, and assault in collaboration with a hoodlum gang masquerading as a patriotic group and calling itself the "Legion of Justice." The legion was the brainchild of the late right-wing Chicago attorney S. Thomas Sutton, who recruited an unsavory assortment of local thugs with patriotic pretensions to harass peace groups and serve as the unofficial shock troops of the Chicago Red Squad. From 1967 to 1973 the Legion of Justice carried out a series of break-ins, trashings, and assaults on antiwar groups, often under the approving gaze of Chicago police officers parked nearby in their squad cars. In some of the break-ins, especially those in which illegal bugging devices were planted, members of the Red Squad served as lookouts while the legion hoods did the actual burglary.

The most common type of criminality among LEIU intelligence squads is illegal wiretapping, which is almost always done with some degree of cooperation from the local telephone company. A former Baltimore vice-squad officer told the Maryland Senate investigating committee that the intelligence squad routinely installed illegal telephone taps with the aid of an ex-cop who worked for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. A phone company spokesman denied the charge. In Houston some of the officers who admitted taking part in illegal wiretapping said that the taps had been placed with the full cooperation of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and named some 200 phone-company employees as having helped in the illicit eavesdropping. Southwestern Bell denied the charge, although a Bell spokesman said that he chould not rule out the possibility that some of the company's 14,000 employees might have violated company policy and taken part in the wiretapping.

Ties between Southwestern Bell and the Houston law-enforcement establishment are very close. The phone company employs about seventy Houston policemen to moonlight as security guards. Eight company officials held commissions as Special Texas Rangers, with the full arrest and weapons powers of state police officers. And fourteen or fifteen of the company's forty-four-man security force are former special agents of the FBI. The lines separating Southwestern Bell from local, state, and federal law enforcement have become extremely thin.

Where phone-company cooperation cannot be obtained through the police old-boy network, other means are employed. Chicago Red Squad officers reportedly obtained the help of four Illinois Bell linemen in placing illegal taps after the men were caught by the police in "compromising positions." The "compromising positions" included drunkenness and sexual misconduct, and the linemen were threatened with arrest and exposure if they refused to cooperate.

Telephone companies are by no means the only part of the private sector that aids LEIU intelligence squads. A police textbook on the subject advises intelligence officers to cultivate contacts in utility companies, airlines, banks, newspapers, bonding companies, private detective agencies, and credit bureaus. The federal Privacy Protection Study Commission recently heard testimony from such companies as American Express and Sheraton Hotels, in which they admitted that they routinely surrendered information about their clients and guests to law-enforcement officers on a simple oral request, without requiring a court order. However, passage of the 1970 Fair Credit Reporting Act severely restricts the information that a credit agency can release without a subpoena.

Until the April 1971 effectiveness of the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the Baltimore intelligence squad had received the total cooperation of the Credit Bureau of Baltimore, Inc., a local consumer credit agency, in obtaining full access to the personal information in its files. After passage of the federal credit law, however, the Baltimore cops found that an important source of information had suddenly dried up. Several months after the law had gone into effect, Officer Terry Josephson of the intelligence squad left his $9,000-a-year job with the police department and became vice-president of United Credit Bureaus of America, Inc., one of the largest independent consumer credit agencies in the country, which more than doubled his old salary.

United Credit Bureaus of America has files on most citizens of Maryland, and Josephson had unlimited access to this information. An intelligence-squad officer told the Maryland Senate investigating committee that Josephson supplied some of this knowledge to the police without benefit of court order. Josephson denied that he was serving as an undercover informant for the Baltimore intelligence squad; but shortly after his role was publicized, he resigned his $20,000-plus-a-year job with United Credit Bureaus of America and returned to the police department at his old salary.

In fairness to the LEIU, it should be pointed out that the number of member intelligence squads that recently have actually been caught breaking the law or spying on noncriminal citizens represents less than 5 percent of its membership. Nevertheless, in the opinion of one Houston police official, such practices are much more widespread and the recent revelations are only the tip of the iceberg. In one sense, it is remarkable that any of the intelligence squads at all were caught, given the inherent difficulty of investigating the police, who are also in a unique position to cover up their transgressions. In fact, the probes of the intelligence squads in Houston, Baltimore, and Chicago all encountered the same pattern of police resistance and obstruction.

Baltimore Police Commissioner Pomerleau tried unsuccessfully to halt a State Senate investigation of his department by slapping every member of the investigating committee with a lawsuit. Through a variety of delaying tactics, former Chicago Police Supt. James B. Conlisk hamstrung a Cook County Special Grand Jury investigating his department. Conlisk insisted on consulting with his lawyer in an adjoining room whenever the grand jury asked him a question, including such queries as, "When did you become superintendent of the Chicago Police Department?" and, "Did you take an oath to serve and protect the interest of the citizens of the city of Chicago?" During one tiresome three-hour grand-jury session, Conlisk made thirty-one trips between the hearing room and the anteroom, where his lawyer waited. The grand jury recommended that Conlisk be cited for contempt.

In Houston the Police Officers Association ran a full-page newspaper advertisement to complain about their new chief, Carroll M. Lynn, who had made the initial probe into the intelligence squad's illegal wiretapping. Enough pressure was brought to bear upon Chief Lynn to force his resignation, although the investigation, which had been taken over by a federal grand jury, continued.

Police resistance to the probes also went beyond such legal and public-relations maneuvers. In Chicago a state's attorney investigating the police received a report that his own phone had been tapped. A Baltimore newspaper reporter critical of the police was the target of surveillance and other harassment; on three occasions when he returned to his car parked in the police department's parking lot, he found that the tire lugs had been loosened. Police officers called to testify by the State Senate committee investigating the Baltimore intelligence squad said they feared that they had cooperated with the committee. In Chicago many officers who were called in the grand-jury investigation of the Red Squad received the same anonymous telephone message: "We know you have seen the state's attorney. If you want to stay healthy, you'd better not talk before the grand jury."

During the probe a mysterious fire broke out on the eighth floor of Chicago police headquarters. It seems to have started in one of the filing cabinets containing the Red Squad's files. Other records subpoenaed by the grand jury, such as the Red Squad's electronic-surveillance log, had been "routinely destroyed." The Baltimore intelligence squad "routinely destroyed" many of its files on political dissidents sometime in 1973. According to Houston police intelligence officer Lt. J.O. Brannon, other LEIU members destroyed their files when it seemed as though their political-surveillance activities might be investigated.

"After the government seized our files," he said, "Guess what Los Angeles did? They burned almost every goddamn thing they had. Some of the other cities did the same thing. They called it 'purging the files.' We should have done the same thing, but we didn't know that's what you're supposed to call it."

You might also call it destroying evidence of a felony, unless you were merely grateful that such a collection of scurrilous gossip had been consigned once and for all to the flames. But such a celebration of the destruction of police dossiers could be premature. An intelligence officer might be able to state under oath to a grand jury or senate committee that the police department no longer has a dossier on John Doe, but such testimony is no insurance that a copy of John Doe's dossier isn't locked away in the file cabinet of another LEIU-member intelliegence squad in a city 3,000 miles away, or, for that matter, that some 225 copies of the dossier haven't been distributed to every LEIU member agency. And there is also no guarantee that, after the investigators have completed their probe of the intelligence squad and have turned their attention elsewhere, the squad will not reconstruct its destroyed files from duplicate copies stored elsewhere in the LEIU network. Investigators who look at police intelligence-squad lawlessness as a local problem are victims of a shell game. They have never heard of the LEIU, or, if they have, they don't understand what it is.

America's Secret Police Network

This clandestine web of police spies links almost every major city in the United States and Canada. But it is so secret that few people even know it exists and so powerful that it does as it please while answering to no one.

In today's society blackmail has replaced physical force as the currency of political power brokerage. J. Edgard Hoover knew that power lies between the manila covers of a personal dossier, and he used that knowledge to build and maintain his empire for almost half a century. The FBI, the CIA, and virtually every other agency given the authority to spy to defend us from foreign or domestic enemies have sooner or later gone off the reservation and used their power to steal our liberties.

In contrast to the CIA and the FBI, the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit is a little-known organization; in fact, almost no one has ever heard of it. But its power is considerable, and its potential threat to our freedom is enormous.

The LEIU links the intelligence squads of almost every major police force in the United States and Canada. Although its members are sworn police officers who work for state and city governments, it is a private club, not answerable to voters, taxpayers, or elected officials. It cuts across the vertical lines of authority of local government, for its members hold certain allegiances to the group that cannot be countermanded by a mayor, a county manager, or even a state governor.

The organization forms a vast network of intelligence units that exchange dossiers and conduct investigations on a reciprocal basis. Several of the police departments belonging to the group have recently been caught in illegal wiretapping, burglary, and spying on the private lives of ordinary citizens. The LEIU is, in effect, a huge, private domestic-intelligence agency.

"The LEIU is not a secret organization," says Lt. Ray Henry, chief of intelligence for the Long Beach, Calif., Police Department and the organization's national chairman. "The LEIU is so secret that, until recently, even its existence was usually denied," says Douglass Durham, a former Des Moines police officer who claims to have worked as an undercover investigator for the group. If the LEIU is not a secret society, it may as well be. Several Washington, D.C., lawyers who specialize in personal privacy and civil-liberties cases told me that they had never heard of the organization. Even among many police officers, the LEIU is something of a mystery. One former California cop thought the name referred to the Los Angeles Police Department's intelligence squad. And an investigator for a California district attorney's office described the LEIU as "extremely hush-hush, extremely low-profile."

The LEIU's low profile has succeeded in keeping the organization out of public view for twenty years. The group was founded in March 1956 at a secret meeting called by Capt. James E. Hamilton, then commander of the Los Angeles Police Department's intelligence squad, and by several other senior California police officials. Representatives from twenty-six police and sheriff's departments in seven western states attended the meeting and became charter members. By 1967 the organization had grown to include seventy police forces across the United States, and by 1975 more than 225 law-enforcement agencies were involved, including six in Canada.

"The thing is a monster network," says Lake Headley, a former Las Vegas deputy sheriff who belonged to the LEIU in the late 1950s. "It was Captain Hamilton's brain-child. He wanted to take police intelligence away from the FBI. Police departments do the street-level work to collect information, and Hamilton didn't like the idea of turning it over to the FBI and making them the monitor; so he formed the LEIU to circumvent the FBI's network. It was established to form an intelligence network independent of any federal agency. The LEIU is a combination fraternal organization and functioning intelligence agency."

The LEIU is divided into four geographic zones: eastern, central, northwestern, and southwestern. Each zone is governed by a chairman and a vice-chairman. Nationally, there are also a general chairman, a general vice-chairman, a secretary, and a treasurer. The national and zone officers comprise a twelve-member executive board, which governs the organization. The LEIU holds national and regional conventions every year. Lake Headley describes the conventions as "big club meetings."

It's not easy to join the LEIU. When applying for membership, a police force must be sponsored by another agency already in the LEIU and must be endorsed by three others. All members are notified of the application, and the LEIU carries out a thorough investigation of the applicant agency and the officers who work for it and will take part in LEIU activities. Finally, the executive board votes on the application.

"It's a very selective, very elitist sort of thing," says former member Lake Headley. "In a local intelligence squad you kind of look to the LEIU man to jump into a phone booth and come dashing out in a Superman suit."

The protective cloak of obscurity shielding the LEIU from public view was briefly lifted last year when the Houston, Tex., Police Department left the organization. Houston police officials announced that their department was resigning from the LEIU after it had received requests from other member agencies for information on the private lives of people with absolutely no criminal connections. In one instance cited by the Houston officials, a California police department asked for a full-scale investigation of a highly respected Houston businessman who had requested a liquor license to sell beer in a chain of grocery stores in California. The inquiry reportedly included a request for information about the man's investments, business associates, family life, and even his sex habits.

LEIU national chairman Ray Henry denies the allegation, describing it as "a bunch of sour grapes." The Houston Police Department didn't quit the LEIU, according to Lieutenant Henry.

"They were kicked out by me because they had something like 200 officers indicted for illegal wiretapping. We're not going to put up with that kind of crap." Lieutenant Henry said that he had a postal-registration receipt to prove the Houston Police Department was expelled from the LEIU prior to its announced resignation, and he added that the present Houston chief of police had denied the earlier charges by his subordinates that the LEIU spied on noncriminal subjects.

The self-proclaimed sensitivity of the Houston cops to the privacy of ordinary citizens does seem a bit implausible in view of the department's own record, which has recently come to light. Houston has been the scene of one of the major police-spying scandals of recent years, involving the department's Criminal Intelligence Division, the FBI, and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. The affair probably was the cause of Houston's expulsion from the LEIU, although Lieutenant Henry's pious condemnation of the department's illegal wiretapping serves to mask what is probably the LEIU's true reason for expelling the Texas cops.

In 1973 Houston elected liberal Democrat Fred Hofheinz as mayor. Hofheinz promptly made good his campaign promise to replace Houston's hard-line, law-and-order

CON'T. NEXT WEEK

Admission Standards Proposal Sparks Controversy

By SALIM MUWAKKIL

There is a battle developing here that may decide the future direction of university education in this country.

The University of Illinois-Chicago Circle is proposing to raise academic admission standards — by a Selected Index process — for the urban school and the proposal has unleashed a torrent of criticism.

Those who oppose the proposal contend it is part of a long-surpressed plan to transform the university into an "elitist" situation.

Such a controversy has already polarized advocates for both sides in cities such as New York, N.Y.; Newark, N.J.; Wilmington, Del.; Philadelphis, Penn.; San Jose and Oakland, Calif.

The Pendulum Swings

In the view of many Bilalian educators the movement toward stricter admission standards indicates the social pendulum is swinging back to the notion that a university should, in fact, be an elitist institution.

"It represents the fact that white people are beginning to 'reclaim' their institutions from what they perceived were the hostile forces that were insidiously lowering the standards of the institutions," explained Professor Anderson Thompson of Northeastern University. "It's racist, plain and simple.

"The university is attempting to break the commitment it made to serve the inner-city. It kicked many residents out of their homes on that commitment it allegedly made to serve them educationally. Now it wants to renege," said Roy Walker, an official of the school's educational assistance program.

Walker said his involvement was as a "concerned community member" rather than as an official of the assistance program. He also said that a rise in standards would disproportionately affect the "minority populations."

The plan's supporters contend it will upgrade the quality of the school.

The school presently accepts any student who has graduated in the top half of any Chicago high school, or who has attained a satisfactory score on ACT college entrance examinations.

Chicago's high school, however, are notorious for the ill-prepared students they produce, and university officials at Circle claim many of these students drop out; but, not before the university has paid enormous costs.

Circle's Chancellor Donald H. Riddle said the drop-out rate has been steadily increasing despite a wide vareity of remedial efforts.

"This school has become a 'revolving door' for many students," Riddle said.

He noted that these students find admission easy, but once inside the institution, they find the work too difficult.

"About one in every three students actually gets a degree at Circle," Vice-Chancellor Michael B. Goldstein, tole Bilalian News.

College "Non-Readers"

"Sometimes students sit down and a professor writes something on the board and the student can't even read it," Goldstein noted. "Now, you tell me, what good is it doing that kind of student to be here? What's more, the other students in the class, who may be seeking university level instruction are slowed up because some students may not able to read."

He said under the new selected index, the school would make an expanded "effort to attract students to campus who have a better chance of getting a degree."

Goldstein explained that the University of Illinois' system does not receive state funds in sufficient amounts to allow it to develop an adequate remedail program for ill-prepared students, so the less prepared students are, the more money is extracted from the school's total budget.

In the first quarter of 1976, Circle's student body was 16.1 per cent Bilalian, 6.2 per cent Latino and 62.2 per cent Caucasian. "We have far and away the highest proportion of minority enrollment of any 'Big 10' institution," Goldstein reminded B.N.

For Their Own Good

The new standards would require students to attain a certain score on the ACT college entrance examination as well as maintain a certain standing in their high school class.

The national mean for ACT tests is 11.7 and the mean of Circle's 1976 entering students was 16.2 The mean at the University of Illinois' main campus in downstate Illinois was 25.5 for 1976 freshmen.

According to Riddle, "294 of 717 blacks, 93 of 202 Latinos and 187 of 1,931 whites" admitted under present admission criteria would not have been admitted under the proposed standards. That means, non-Caucasian admissions would have been cut by 40 per cent had the proposed selected index been in effect.

"What happens to those students the university kicks out?" asked Steve Jackson, a leader in the Student Staff Association.

"They'll have nowhere to go but out to the street corners. They have no marketable skills, so they'll most likely be unemployable. It'll be a situation where a whole lot of young people will be out on the streets with no jobs and no place to go."

"But," according to Rebecca Larsen, vice-president of the campus senate, "the city has YMCA Community College and the City Colleges of Chicago to meet the needs of those students who aren't prepared for university education."

Jackson contends, however, that the City College system is already overcrowded.

"The City Colleges can hardly accommodate the students they now have," he declared.

Room For 100,000 More

"That's a lie!" City College spokesman Sy Friedman told B.N. "We have about 100,000 students currently attending our school and we can use 100,000 more.

"The students who claimed we were overcrowded simply didn't know what they were talking about," Friedman said. "We have a competent two-year college system here, and after students graduate they are accepted at any four-year school in the state."

Goldstein noted that Circle and the City Colleges were "developing a closer relationship." He said that relationship would allow the City Colleges to help prepare poorly prepared students, and that after they graduated from the two-year institution those students would then get preferred admissions at Circle.

"The City Colleges receive millions of dollars for remedial education. They boast they can deliver a high school education in one year; and they have proven that they can," Goldstein said.

Julio Cortez, a Latino recruiter-adviser, emphasized that the protests against the new standards are a "total community effort — a coalition of Latinos, blacks and poor whites."

Cortez revealed that "the selected index proposal was first submitted in 1969, but at that time, student activism was so high they couldn't get anywhere with it."

He hinted that the proposal may be linked to the elaborate "Chicago 21" plan, which, in essence, proposes to bring Caucasians back into a rejuvenated inner-city.

---

con't from page 6

Such bold examples pave the way for others to do likewise.

Today, in solidarity, we give tribute to Brother Rema and all freedom fighters like him who waged fierce struggle against great odds. They have proven time and again that nothing can stop a prarie fire that has been ignited for a purpose. Despite the number of warriors killed, wounded, maimed, captured, and brutalized, the Black Liberation Army continues as a mobile, invisible, growing threat to the racist imperialist power structure, its apparatuses and its lackeys. Revolutionaries may die, but the seeds of revolution multiply in the wake of their passing.

The Carter Devolution On The C.I. A.

A CHRONOLOGY

Prepared by the American Civil Liberties
Union and the Center for National

Prepared by the American Civil Liberties Union and the Center for National Security Studies, March 4, 1977

On February 14, 1977, President Carter learned that the Washington Post planned to reveal a secret CIA operation involving the payment of millions of dollars to King Hussein of Jordan. Last summer, CIA officials who viewed the payments as "bribes" reported the program to the Intelligence Oversight Board established by President Ford to review the legality and propriety of CIA operations. The Board determined that the payments, amounting to $750,000 in 1976, were "improper" and reported the matter to President Ford. The President took no action.

Apparently this was the first President Carter had heard of the twenty-year secret program. According to informed sources, the President was "distressed." His response to the revelation offers the first concrete indication—outside of the aborted Sorensen nomination — of the new Administration's views on matters of secrecy, "leaks", and the use of the CIA as an instrument of secret foreign policy.

During his presidential campaign, candidate Jimmy Carter spoke often about the "shocking revelations" concerning the CIA and the need for concrete reforms. Here is some of what candidates Carter and Mondale said:

On Secrecy: If elected, Carter promised to curtail "excessive secrecy" in government. His running mate, Walter Mondale, underscored the point. "Abuse thrives on secrecy," he said. "Knowledge is the key to control." In a campaign position paper, "Jimmy Carter on the CIA," Carter warned that:

> "We must never again keep secret the evolution of our foreign policy from the Congress and the American people. They should never again be misled about our options, commitments, our progress or our failures."

"We will not," he said in his Inaugural Address,

> "behave in foreign places so as to violate our rules and standards here at home, for we know that this trust which our nation earns is essential to our strength."

On Candor: If these standards were violated or the laws broken, Jimmy Carter promised to bring the matter before the American public:

> "If the CIA ever makes a mistake, I'll be the one, as President, to call a press conference, and I'll tell you and the American people, this is what happened, these are the people who violated the law, this is the punishment I recommend, this is the corrective action that needs to be taken, and I promise you it won't happen again."

On Accountability: Carter promised that he would accept "personal responsibility" for CIA operations to insure that the agency "obeyed the law." His running mate stated that the Administration would:

> "press for a specific legislative charter to spell out the powers of the FBI, CIA and other intelligence agencies, and the precise limitations on those powers."

Here, by comparison, is how Jimmy Carter, the President, has dealt with the revelation of the secret payments to King Hussein.

February 16: Carter summons Washington Post Executive Editor, Ben Bradlee and reporter Bob Woodward to the White House. While not stating that the revelation of the Hussein payments would affect "national security", Carter makes it clear that he is "distressed" about the impact of the story on on-going Middle East negotiations and that he prefers that the story be delayed or not published. He also indicates that the payments have been stopped. The President wants to be notified prior to publication. Several hours after the meting, the Post informs the President that the story will appear on Friday.

February 18: The Post prints the story. White House Press Secretary Jody Powell states that it is Administration policy not to confirm or deny the story but that an intensive review is underway.

> "It is the Administration's policy not to comment on — either to confirm or deny — any stories concerning alleged covert activities. By definition any comment would be a contradiction in terms since the operation in question would no longer be covert or secret.
>
> "You should know, however, that almost from the first day of the Administration, senior officials... have been engaged through the National Security Council in an intensive and comprehensive review of all sensitive foreign intelligence activities.
>
> "This review is nearly completed, and, on the basis of its findings, the President will make basic decisions concerning the future of such activities, the purpose of which is to protect the security of our country and its people. The objective of the review is to make certain that activities are proper, to insure full compliance with oversight procedures by law, and that what can be done openly is not done secretly."

The Press Secretary sees no inconsistency between this policy and the Administration promise to reveal "mistakes" to the public. Privately Administration sources indicate that the payments have been stopped.

February 22: President Carter meets with Congressional leaders over the Hussein matter. Reportedly, he tells them that the action by the Washington Post was "irresponsible." He voices grave concern over the number of persons in the Administration and in Congress with access to intelligence secrets. He reveals that he has cut the number of White House officials with access from 40 to 5 and requests the leadership to work with him to cut down the number of congressional committees with access to sensitive information from 7 to 1. Senator Daniel Inouye, Chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, tries to assuage the President's fear of "leaks" by indicating that members of his Committee are being monitored by the FBI.

On this same day, Admiral Stansfield Turner, Carter's designate for Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testifies at his confirmation hearing. While assuring the Senate Intelligence Committee that the CIA would conduct operations within the law and inconformity with American values, Turner streeses the need for a tighter reign on security. "Covert operations must be handled discreetly," he wars, "people's lives are at stake." He states that he favors one committee in each house to have access to intelligence secrets. Turning to the issue of reform, he indicates that President Carter is satisfied that no laws are necessary to govern the CIA. "The President," says Turner,

February 24: Appearing at the State Department, Carter returns to the subject of access to secret information:

> "I was shocked when I took office to learn about the number of different people who had access to highly secret, sensitive information on which the security of the nation depends. There are 75 people on Capitol Hill who have access to this very sensitive material."

Now the President favors the creation of a joint committee in the Congress.

> "I have hopes... that we can have one joint congressional committee with a limited membership to whom we can reveal what is going on in its entirety.... So, we will have a key group in Congres — very small — myself, the Intelligence Oversight Board,III The Attorney General, and let that be it.... We are now in the position where some of our key intelligence are becoming reluctant to continue their relationship with us because of the danger of their being exposed in the future."

Asked to comment on the Freedom of Information Act, Carter says that while he favors such laws, he admits that the volume of requests by citizens for information is "a problem" and "a burden." He hopes that citizens can be persuaded to keep their requests to a minimum; that supporters of the legislation will not bring frivolous test cases just to see that the act works; and that fewer requests will be made if people trust the government again.

February 27: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance appears on Face the Nation and defends the secret payments as "appropriate."

> "The purposes are common purposes. The actions taken are in the interests of the country involved as well as the United States. In these cases that have been referred to the best of my knowledge, there was nothing improper or illegal, as the President has pointed out. These kinds of things can not be done in the glare of public publicity and therefore my answer to your question is yes, I do believe it appropriate."

The Seeds Of Revolution Multiply

By National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners
Historical Analysis

The purpose of European imperialist invasions into Africa during the 15th, 16th, 17, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries was to colonize African people and to remove valuable natural resources — gold, diamonds, ivory, oil, timber, etc.; and of course, Africa's most valuable natural resources — living human beings, African people, for enslavement in other parts of the world.

Everywhere and in every way, we Black people resisted the encroachment of the enemy. We used spears, rocks and captured weapons. Trudging, chained and barefoot to waiting coastal ships, we broke our chains and used them as weapons against our enemy. We fought for and seized slave ships. We continued to resist after we landed on alien shores. We fought in union with Native Americans such as the Seminole Nation, and resisted. We rebelled with Denmark Vesey, Nat Turner and Sojourner Truth. We organized and conducted escapes with Harriet Truman.

Back home on the continent, Tchaka Zulu and the Zulu warriors resisted the Dutch invasion of South Africa, the Ashanti fought the British in West Africa, the Ethiopians fought the Italians, and the Mau Mau's fought the British in East Africa. Always Black resistance continued against European imperialist aggression.

In amerikkka, resistance continued for oppression and violent brutal repression continued. Blacks formed the Deacons for Justice to resist lynchings in the South. The hundreds of murders and viscious maimings of Black people in the sixties saw the advent of revolutionary organizations such as the Black Panther Party that were geared to organizing Black people to defend themselves against the violence of their oppressors.

We restate these clear facts to show the historical and centuries-old resistance of Black people to the violence and oppression perpetrated by amerikkkan fascists.

The state has always been, since 1776, a tool for carrying out the orders of the amerikkkan ruling class. In this way, persons, institutions of the state have always been used to maintain maximum security on all those who have resisted their oppression. These maximum security flesh pits are in fact, according to amerikkkan constituted law, legal slavery.

Article 13, Section I of the 13th amendment of the constitution states: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction." Maximum security penitentiaries are therefore clearly slave institutions that had been tried and tested in 300 years of Black chattel slavery. It is no wonder 75 per cent to 85 per cent of all inmates in prison are Black. For us, slavery is still a very cold reality of our oppression.

A modern slave system has built roads and railroads throughout this country. Industries in prisons make uniforms, clothing, shoes, furniture and fixtures of all sorts. There are large farms cared for totally by convicts. There is not a major forest fire in California that convicts do not fight, at the risk of their lives. New drugs are experimented on and the countless victims barely make it outside the walls. Slaves — inmates are expendable. Convict labor-slave labor, has been a major work force in amerikkka; it must be emphatically noted that private companies put their labels on goods produced by convicts and then sell them to the public.

Slavery in prisons has been brought to public attention by a long line of brave and courageous warriors from Nat Turner, Denmark Vessey, Cabriel Prosser to George Jackson, Ruchell Magee, Martin Sostre and countless others. Events at Attikkka (just one example out of many) has shown the world how cruel and inhuman the overseers are and throughout the country, and in fact, the world's people are struggling to alleviate these intolerable conditions by whatever means that will be successful. In the 35 year history of the U.S. federal prison system, they have grossed in excess of 896 million dollars in profits from these multi-million dollar slave industries of exploitation, oppression and genocide. In 1970 the state of Michigan accrued 14 million in profits from their slave plantations.

We recognize for these reasons and others that all Black and Third World people who are incarcerated in maximum security penitentiaries are Political Prisoners — victims who have responded to the racist dehumanization and political and economic oppression of their daily lives. Any time oppressed people move to destroy this reality of their daily lives, the fascist state defines it as "crime." We must see that any act against our oppressor can never be a crime but are clearly legitimate attempts to free ourselves; in essence they are political acts. They are political acts because they are diametrically opposed to the interest of the racist amerikkkan ruling class (fords, mellons, rockefellers, morgans, hughes, etc.) Based on this understanding we estimate there are at least one to one and a half million political prisoners in amerikkka.

Prisoners-of-war as we see them in this country are revolutionaries who have taken direct action against the monopoly capitalist ruling class and all their lackeys and running dogs in the bourgeois "democratic" state. Prisoners-of-War are genuine freedom fighters who pose a direct and clear and present danger to ruling class interest; and their incarceration in maximum security is a necessary step by the fascist to snuff this danger out.

The number of Prisoners of War is a direct correlation to the intensity and form of armed struggle in amerikkka. We have stated that violent repression of Black and Third World people has been a historical reality. Too many of our people here and abroad think the existence of revolutionaries involved in armed struggle is non-existent or either "isolated acts by frustrated, misguided adventurists." Their position is that armed struggle on any level is premature and thus has no legitimacy. We clearly disagree with this position for many reasons. As our late revolutionary comrade, Amilcar Cabral once said: "We believe that each people and each leadership should be free to choose the road of struggle that best suits it, but we also expect each people and each leadership to know how to recognize when the real moment of struggle has arrived because the enemy always fights with every means at its disposal. There will be disputes over whether or not to carry our armed struggle. Within the framework of the national liberation of the peoples, there is no problem of armed or unarmed struggle. There are two kinds of armed struggle; the armed struggle in which the people fight empty-handed, unarmed, while the imperialists or colonialists are armed and kill our people; and the armed struggle in which we prove we are not crazy by taking up arms to fight against the criminal arms of the imperialists."

From this concrete statement on armed struggle we look at our own situation and see that those conditions for armed struggle have always been present in the Black community, contrary to the belief our brothers and sisters here and abroad who say these conditions are not present. To our comrades abroad we believe that those of you who do not outwardly support our struggle, we feel it may be because of pressure forced on you by amerikkkan imperialism or your incorrect analysis of our conditions. To our comrades we say that the ability for monopoly capitalism to pollute revolutionary ideas has been its most potent weapon. We are all effected by this cancer although many of us refuse to admit it. Usually it is manifested as social passivism.

This passivism has 2 aspects; one that is totally non-violent and the other that says any form of armed struggle is premature. They say urban guerilla activities will bring overt repression down on the peoples; as if the 50-75 million Africans who were murdered during the slave trade and the tens of thousands murdered, lynched and raped in the late 19th and early 20th centuries in amerikkka, and the thousands of us who are being murdered, brutalized and harassed in our communities and in maximum security prisons 24 hours a day; as if this isn't overt repression! Clearly you would have to be politically unconscious or someone who is using their political rhetoric to mask their cowardice, to say we should not be about inflicting a military consequence on our oppressors. We believe sincerely that our brothers and sisters around the world who have fought revolutionary war against imperialism, fascist dictatorship and who are fighting revolutionary war against neo-colonialism and neo-fascism are deserving of our support and comradeship. Clearly they, like all living organisms in the universe, have a strategy for self-preservation, a strategy that must entail the physical elimination of those forces opposing their survival. We ask ourselves can we as a people expect these comrades to truly respect and support us if we do not have a similar strategy, a strategy of building a Black Peoples' Army through a protracted process, that is a long hard road to liberation, a road that must surely end in the destruction of our enemy.

This brings us to the question of why we support the B.L.A., but more importantly what they represent. As we have said, we do not believe that the phenomena of a Black Liberation Army is without historical justification and necessity. We do not believe that revolutionary action as long as it takes a military form has the quasi miraculous capacity of unleashing a great revolutionary process. But in capital letters: WE ADHERE TO THIS PRINCIPLE THAT REVOLUTIONARY WAR IS THE CONTINUATION OF POLITICS BY VIOLENT MEANS; THAT STRATEGY MUST BE SUBORDINATED TO POLITICS; OR BETTER SAID, THAT POLITICS AND STRATEGY ARE CONJOINED IN REVOLUTIONARY AND GUERILLA WARFARE.

As another revolutionary comrade, Abraham Guillen once wrote: "Strategy is not created by geniuses or by generals, but by the development of the productive forces, the logic of events and the weight of history. If the urban masses find themselves without work and are discontent, it is not a question of encouraging them to demonstrate in the streets just to be trampled on by the horses of the police. They should be placed in guerilla units which unexpectedly, here armed or unarmed struggle. There are two kinds of armed struggle; the armed struggle in which the people fight empty-handed, unarmed, while the imperialists or colonialists are armed and kill our people; and the armed struggle in which we prove we are not crazy by taking up arms to fight against the criminal arms of the imperialists."

From this concrete statement on armed struggle we look at our own situation and see that those conditions for armed struggle have always been present in the Black community, contrary to the belief our brothers and sisters here and abroad who say these conditions are not present. To our comrades abroad we believe that those of you who do not outwardly support our struggle, we feel it may be because of pressure forced on you by amerikkkan imperialism or your incorrect analysis of our conditions. To our comrades we say that the ability for monopoly capitalism to pollute revolutionary ideas has been its most potent weapon. We are all affected by this cancer although many of us refuse to admit it. Usually it is manifested as social passivism

This passivism has 2 aspects; one that is totally non-violent and the other that says any form of armed struggle is premature. They say urban guerilla activities will bring overt repression down on the people; as if the 50-75 million Africans and there, with superiority of arms and numbers disarm the agents of authority who have been dispersed. In this way the liberation army grows as the repressive army diminishes."
DELETE ABOVE+ + + + + +

Our freedom fighters who are incarcerated in maximum security must have our support. Comrades like Sundiata Acoli, Assata Shakur, Timothy Adams, Herman Bell, Albert Washington, Gabriel Torres, Francisco Torres, Anthony Bottom, Pedro Monges, Melvin Kearney, Henry Sha Sha Brown, Victor Cumberbatch, Robert Hayes, Richard Dhoruba Moore, Robert Vickers, John Thomas, Michael Ashanti Alston, Harold Hodari Simmons, James Gunnie Haskins, Fred Kamau Hilton, Elmer Geronimo Pratt, and all other Prisoners of War who have shown their examples — their dedication and deep love for Black, 'Third World, and all oppressed peoples.

These comrades must be supported continually, overtly, on the streets, on our jobs, and in our homes. Without the support of Black People, a Black Liberation Army, no matter how many tactical victories it achieves, will not be able to prevent the enemy from defeating it strategically. It must be clear that the Black Liberation Army must enjoy the support of the people! Political organizing in work places, schools, and communities must also have the support of the people.

To our brothers and sisters in the International community; to our revolutionary comrades who represent their nations: we say that you will continue to receive our wholehearted support, but clearly this must be reciprocated. We urge you not to treat the struggle of Black, Third World and oppressed people in amerikkka as if this is an internal affair of this government. You comrades who are fighting reaction and neo-colonialism, and comrades who have fought and won national liberation in Indochina, your struggle has given us tremendous belief that we will be victorious too against the racist amerikkkan ruling class. We say, comrades, that you have a duty to uphold all the points of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the Geneva Accords on the treatment of Prisoners of War.

Some of these rights are: (From the Declaration of Human Rights) — Article 4 — No one shall be held in slavery or servitude; Article 5 — No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment; Article 9 — No one shall be subjected to arbitrary arrest, detention or exile; Article 10 — Everyone charged with a penal offense has the right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty according to law in a public trial at which he has had all the guarantees necessary for his defense; Article 14 — Everyone has the right to seek and to enjoy in other countries asylum from persecution; Article 15 — Everyone has a right to a nationality. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his nationality, nor denied the right to change his nationality.

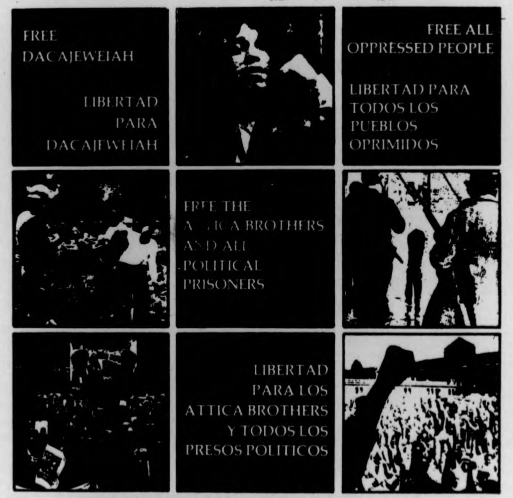
What else can be done by our comrades in Africa, Asia, and Latin America?

1. Political asylum to our imprisoned freedom fighters when this asylum is asked. We understand fully that since oppression is a worldwide phenomena that any freedom fighters who are granted asylum have the obligation to work with the nation who is offering this asylum.
2. U.N. Committee to bring to General Assembly the question of oppressed Black people in amerikkka.
3. Exchange of information on plight of revolutionary Black P.O.W.s wherever they are struggling against oppression.
4. Bring up to the floor of the General Assembly by an Ad Hoc Committee of revolutionary and progressive nations, the condition of B.L.A. P.O.W.s and all political prisoners — especially the murders, brutality, and "behavior control" experiments on our comrades.

In the spirit of: Ronald Carter; William Christmas; Mark Clark; Mark Essex; Frank Fields; Woodie Chango Olugbala Green; Fred Hampton; Bobby Hutton; George Jackson; Jonathon Jackson; Melvin Kearney; James McClain; Twyman Myers; Harold Russell; Zayd Malik Shakur; Anthony Kimu White; Al Kombozi Butler. Long live the B.L.A. A luta continua!

Post-script: The most recent of Black warriors to be killed was Melvin Rema Kearny who fell sevel floors from the Brooklyn House of Detention on the nite of May 25th, (last Sunday) while trying to free himself. An escape from maximum security by a Prisoner of War is one of the most daring of revolutionary acts. Pedro Chango Monges made it 'beyond the wall' but was recaptured.

con't on page 5



DEMONSTRATE APRIL 2nd 1:00 P.M.
Meet at U.N. Dag Hammersjold Plaza.
March to Governor Carey's office.

MANIFIESTE EL 2 DE ABRIL 1:00 P.M.
U.N. Dag Hammersjold Plaza.
Marche a la oficina de Governor Carey.

Scenes From
TOMORROW HAS BEEN HERE AND GONE

CENTER FOR RACIAL UNDERSTANDING

SPECIAL TOPIC WORKSHOP

Jon S. Crane Communication Studies
"Ethnic Images and Television"

Julias Lester Afro-American Studies
"Mechanics of Racism"

Archie Shepp Afro-American Studies
"Black Music"

Ralph Whitehead Journalistic Studies
"Media Power and Political Power"

MARCH 30, 1977 7:30

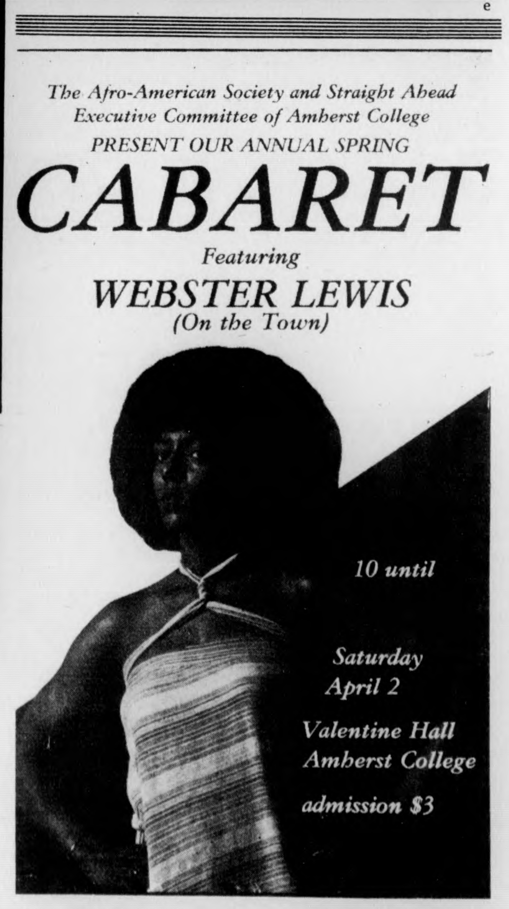
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE CENTER FOR RACIAL UNDERSTANDING
MOORE HOUSE / SOUTHWEST

ATTICA IS FASCISMO

Press Release
Demonstration in New York City

On Saturday, April 2, a demonstration to call for amnesty for Dacajeweiah, who is the last remaining Attica brother to be behind bars for an Attica related indictment.

Earlier this spring, Gov. Cary of New York gave an across the board pardon to all persons currently under indictment for issues stemming from the Attica rebellion in 1971. However, this pardon did not include Dacajeweiah, whose case was turned over to parole commissioner Edward Hammock and consequently Dacajeweiah was denied parole for another two years. Buses will be leaving at 7:30AM- 8:00AM from the Campus Center Circle on the morning of April 2nd. Bus tickets, which are still available, are five dollars. For more information, stop by the Vets Coalition office, 411 Student Union, or call 545-0712.



The Afro-American Society and Straight Ahead Executive Committee of Amherst College PRESENT OUR ANNUAL SPRING

CABARET

Featuring
WEBSTER LEWIS
(On the Town)

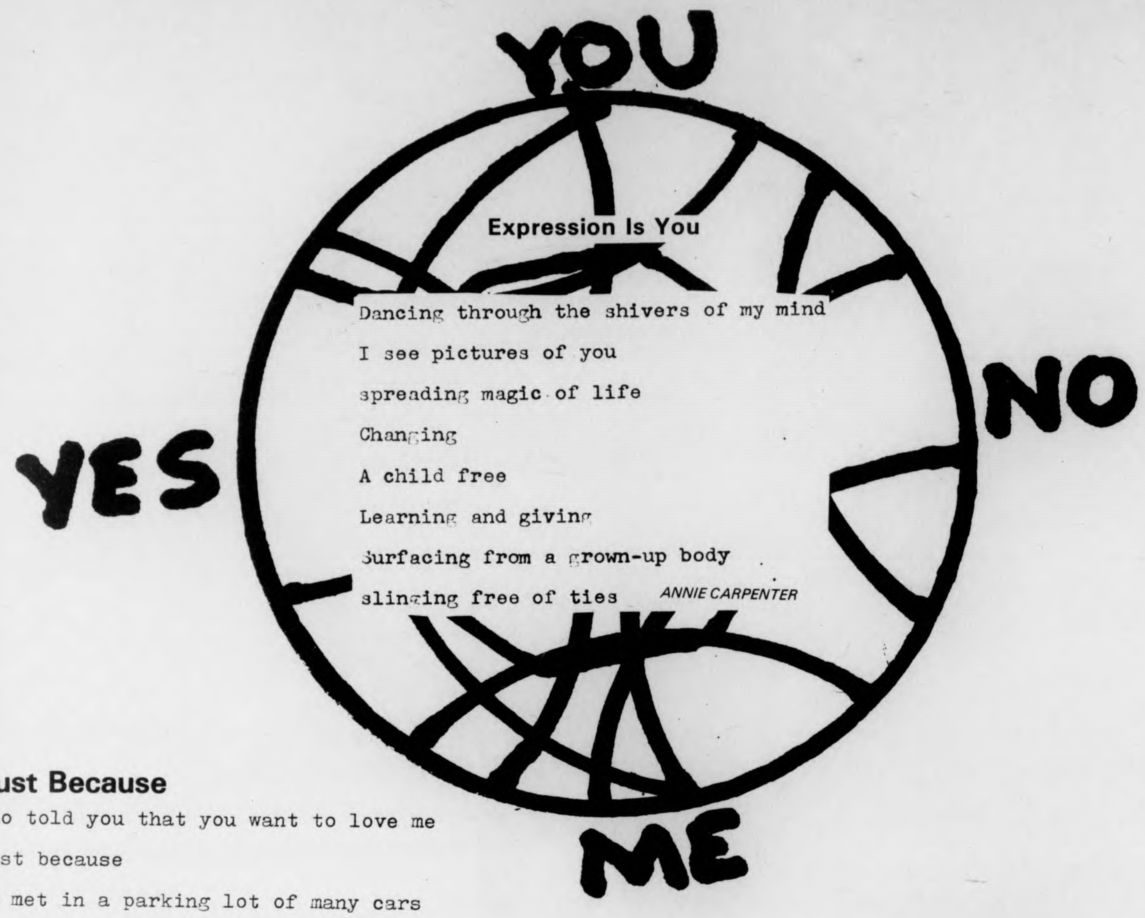
10 until

Saturday
April 2

Valentine Hall
Amherst College

admission $3

Where Are You In The Circle?



Expression Is You

Dancing through the shivers of my mind
I see pictures of you spreading magic of life Changing
A child free
Learning and giving Surfacing from a grown-up body slinging free of ties

ANNIE CARPENTER

Just Because

Who told you that you want to love me
Just because we met in a parking lot of many cars
Just because we ran through the empty spaces where cars were absent
Just because
I fantasized you as a God and me as a Godess running from world to world
Just because
at the break of day
I found my yesterday sitting on a shelf in the back of my mind and can't tell if we were a dream
Just because
I have shouted my love for you to every heavenly star and they shouted love back to me
Just because
I wished you to be a star
so I could then shout my love for you
Just because
[illegible]
Just because
You have told yourself

Annie Carpenter

Zimbabwe

Rivers and lakes,
Large and small
Abound deep and wide;
Distant mountains stretching Far and high, embrace
Lofty, drifting
Heavenly clouds,
With faithful and fervid
Affection. Minerals
And substances embedded
In affluent, fathomless
Depths, in arable,
Fertile soil, the Effusive growth of Abundant yields
Vary with alternating Seasons. Of various Sizes and Kinds,
Fauna ramble in Untamed forests: the Song of countless birds
Breaks the intangible
Silence in delightful,
Melodious tunes.
Zimbabwe, land of hot
Summers and snowless
Winters to its sons and
[illegible]
Splendid marvellous self.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 110 TUESDAY, MARCH 29, 1977

Collegian

Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA. 01003 (413) 545-3500

Suspended April 12—15

Poor Richard's license pulled

By BRAD GOVERMAN
Collegian Staff

Poor Richard's Discotheque on Rte. 9 in Amherst, had its liquor license suspended for April 12-15 last night by a vote of the Amherst Board of Selectmen.

Hampshire County Court recently found the discotheque guilty of serving alcoholic beverages to two minors on the night of Jan. 19, 1977.

The penalty decided upon by the Selectmen was a reduction of the suggested two week suspension by Amherst Police Chief Donald N. Maia.

Steve Monson, attorney for the H. L. Hand Co. which owns the discotheque, cited extenuating circumstances in his plea for just a verbal reprimand by the board.

According to Monson, the two minors in question admitted in court that they used evasive tactics to get past the I.D. checking system used by Poor Richard's.

"If any reprimand is given it should be by the parents of the two violators," said Monson.

Monson informed the Board that this was the first offense involving Poor Richard's and that they had already paid up to $400 in court fees.

"Poor Richard's has enough business so they don't have to cater to the underaged," Monson added.

Selectman William Atkins, who proposed the four day suspension said that violations of this sort had to be dealt with strictly.

In response to the Board's action, Selectman Nancy Eddy said, "The board recognizes that it is a severe penalty and a severe violation. The Board hasn't treated such a situation lately and we hope that we never will again."

The vote on the suspension was 3-1.

Poor Richard's was unavailable for comment.

Vince O'Connor representing the Amherst Tenants Association presented the Board with a documented report on the tax-paying status of Amherst tenants.

The report is a reaction to advertisements that appeared during the rent control referendum which implied that Amherst tenants do not pay taxes.

The report also indicated that tenants have not been fairly represented in appointments to influential town boards.

Tenants comprise at least half of the non-dormitory residents in Amherst and pay one-third to one-fourth of the towns property taxes, the report showed.

The report also revealed that tenants contribute proportionally fewer children to the Amherst schools than do homeowners.

According to O'Connor, the report indicates the genuine interest of the tenants in pursuing their rights as town residents with a "true financial stake" in the town.

The Amherst Tenants Association is presenting several petitions to the town meeting next May to ask for more services which they feel tenants are entitled to. Among these services are rent control, inspection of rental units every two years and the study of a possible recycling center.

The Board went into a work session to discuss the upcoming budget for fiscal year 1978 and to make line item suggestions to the Finance Committee.

The Board felt that cuts should be made wherever possible with the Council on Aging being placed at the bottom of the list, so that it would be the last to be cut.

The general consensus of the Board's recommendation was summed up by Selectman Atkins. "We must consider the tax rates. That's the headline item. A $45 tax rate is unacceptable. The Finance Committee has got to cut."

In other business the Board decided not to take a stand on a resolution presented by a spokesperson from the Hampshire County Planning Department which asked the Board "to go on record as being opposed to diversion of Connecticut River water at Northfield until adequate diversion studies are completed and until a competent river management system is established reflecting Valley interests."

The resolution is in opposition to a proposal by the Massachusetts Metropolitan Commission to divert part of the Connecticut River into the Quabbin Reservoir to meet increasing water demand in the Boston area.

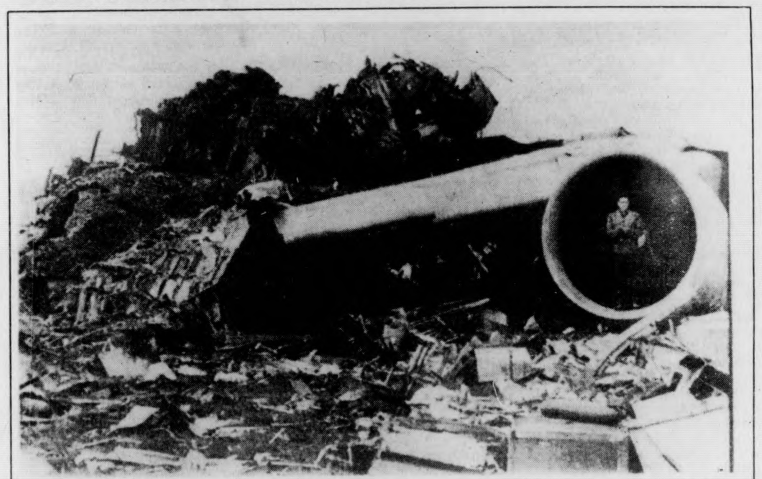
Selectman Eddy said that she opposed the river diversion but she could not endorse the resolution because of conflicts she had with some of the whereas's in the resolution calling them "inflamatory and inaccurate."

"You can oppose it on good sound economical reasons," said Eddy, "but not on some of the conditions stated in your resolution."

Chairman Eddy was referring to a "whereas" in the resolution which states, "WHEREAS, present and future water needs of Connecticut Valley communities have not been determined..."

Eddy pointed out that several documentary studies had been done.

The board decided that they were not prepared to take a stand on the resolution.



An unidentified man, standing inside an engine, surveys the wreckage of two 747 jets that collided yesterday, killing nearly 600 people. See story on Page 5. (UPI Photo)

University to collect rent

By ARNOLD WARSHAW
Collegian Staff

The University is beginning to take a firmer stand, including possible eviction, in dealing with tenants living in married student housing apartments who do not pay their rent on time.

"We won't stand for it any more," said Robert Campbell, acting director of Residential Resource Management (RRM).

At the present time, approximately 137 of the 391 tenants living in the three apartment complexes (Lincoln, North Village and University) are behind in their rent payments.

This could lead to an eventual rent increase Campbell said, but "there is absolutely none planned for next year."

Some of the delinquent payments go back four months, according to Campbell and the money owed comes to $57,000.

Under the law, no state money can be used to construct, maintain or operate the complexes. With the absence of this money, the University has been unable to make some needed repairs on the buildings.

The University can no longer afford to let the practice of overdue rents continue, Campbell said.

"We've got to all pull together or there's going to be some uncomfortable consequences that none of us want," said Campbell.

The consequences for tenants who are unable to meet their financial obligations could be an administrative withdrawal (the student is temporarily suspended from the University until the bill is paid) or if necessary, eviction from the apartment.

Campbell stressed that neither he nor anybody else connected with the situation wants to take any "drastic measures." Settlements that are agreeable to both sides are desired, he said.

"It's hard for people to believe that we care that they don't get thrown out. We are advocates for the tenants," said Campbell.

Since many of the tenants living in married student housing are receiving some kind of financial assistance, they may be unable to pay their rent on time because of a delay in receiving that assistance.

"I'm not saying that people are doing this deliberately. Some of the folks can't help it when the state bureaucracy bogs down. Maybe they have legitimate financial crises. We want to work out an accommodation," Campbell said.

RRM wants tenants to explain their reasons for not paying their rent on time, according to Campbell, so that a solution can be worked out.

"We're offering people the chance to come in and work out an arrangement," Campbell said.

A letter explaining the University's view of the problem and what plans there are to cope with it is now being sent out by RRM to all 391 tenants in married student housing.

Besides explaining how the University plans to deal with the overdue rents, the letter also mentions some new procedures that are planned.

"A system of financial pre-screening will be developed and implemented to assure that prospective tenants can meet their financial obligations within the married student housing program," the letter stated.

Also suggested in the letter is the formation of a tenants advisory committee, which will help tenants "have a major impact into the future programs within the married student housing program."

Campbell feels one of the reasons the problem of overdue rents hasn't been dealt with effectively in the past is that a number of different offices have overseen married student housing in previous years. RRM came into being only this last summer.

"There's been a lack of continuity in the past," said Campbell.

"I'm really upset about the abysmal lack of communications between our office and the tenants," Campbell said.

inside

While the UMice are away, the cat-burglars will play. See Mike McHugh's Police Beat on Page 2.

Carole Brennan and five other people attended a Title IX hearing last night. For the 19,994 of you who missed this, Carole's story is on Page 3.

More details on the worst air crash in history come out as experts survey the site. See story Page 5.

The United States Senate opposes President Carter's $50 rebate. See story Page 7.

James Earl Ray has new information pertaining to Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination. See story Page 7.

weather

Clearing today with possible highs in the upper 60's in the afternoon. It will be a good day for cutting classes.

7x7+77=7?

Must be that new UMass 26 story calculator. (Staff photo by David Olken)

Occurred over vacation

UMass student arrested in break-in

By MICHAEL McHUGH
Collegian Staff

James B. Eade, a 20-year-old UMass student who lives at 1607 John Adams Dormitory, was arrested on the morning of March 24 for breaking and entering in John Adams, possession and cultivation of marijuana, and malicious injury to state property.

Chief Robert Joyce of the UMass Department of Public Safety reports that the Department received a complaint from janitors that a number of people were milling around the 16th floor on the morning of March 24. The officer that appeared on the scene found room 1611 broken open and also found Eade standing outside room 1607. Upon questioning, Eade said that he broke into 1611 so that his friends would have a place to sleep. The officer also noticed ten marijuana plants in Eade's room during the questioning period.

The Department of Public Safety added that three other UMass students and three non-students were removed from John Adams and advised that criminal complaints might be brought against them. The incident is still under investigation.

The Department reports that on March 21, around noon, John Hultslander, 17, of 24 Fern Leaf Ave., Longmeadow, was arrested at the Campus Center loading dock for possession of controlled substances, cocaine and marijuana. He was arraigned in Hampshire County Court.

The Campus Center Concourse was the scene of a self inflicted knife wound on March 26. The individual was brought to the infirmary and was kept for observation.

A janitor in Morrill Science Center, discovered 17 people sleeping in the seminar rooms on the morning of March 22. The 17 people turned out to be students from Stockton State College, who had been invited to UMass by a professor in the Geology Department, who had failed to notify the Department of Public Safety of the student's visit. Joyce emphasized that this was dangerous because "there might have been a fire."

A Panasonic receiver and two speakers valued at $620 were stolen from room 807 in Kennedy Tower between March 18 and 27. A Texas Instruments calculator was stolen out of room 806 between the same dates. The Department estimated the calculator's value at $22.

Between March 18 and 27 the master key was stolen from the Head of Residence in Chadbourne House. Also stolen were a wrist watch valued at $45 in one room and $60 cash and $110 swim warm-up suit in another.

An amplifier, turntable, and speakers valued at $575 were stolen from room 2214 in John Adams on March 27 around 9 p.m. The Department of Public Safety reports that entry was gained by kicking in the door.

The 14th floor of George Washington Tower was the scene of a theft on March 28. A turntable, receiver, and speakers valued at $400 were stolen by an individual who gained entrance by a master key, according to the UMass Department of Public Safety.

A hit and run accident occured in the parking lot at Lincoln Apartments on March 24 around 1 a.m. The left side of a 1975 Chevrolet was dented from the fender to the back door. Damage is estimated at $250.

Between March 12 and 13 a $159 typewriter was stolen from the 22nd floor lounge of Coolidge Tower.

The Amherst Fire Department responded to a fire alarm in Patterson House on March 24 around 4:15 p.m. The Department reports that a pan left on the stove in the head of resident's apartment had caught fire. Damage is estimated at $150.

Frederick M. Lewis, 23, of 124 Wellington St., Springfield was arrested on the first floor lobby of Leach Dormitory. Lewis was wanted on a warrant issued from Springfield, according to the UMass Department of Public Safety.

On March 21, at 9 a.m., the Department assisted the Health Services at UMass with the transfer of an emotionally disturbed person to Worcester State Hospital.

Two doors were kicked in on March 27, one in 227 Cance, the other on the 9th floor of JQA. The Department reports that nothing was removed from the rooms but the damage to each door amounted to $50.

A person visiting the Women's Center in Southwest on March 27 left a pocket book on the steps and upon the person's return to the steps, found the pocket book stolen around 3:15 p.m. The person gave a description of two persons, who fled the scene. The UMass Department of Public Safety said the pocketbook and its contents were worth approximately $30.

A wallet containing $28 was stolen from the main lobby of Coolidge Tower on March 27 around midnight.

A side window on a 1974 Fiat was broken at 10:15 p.m. in the Campus Center Garage on March 22. Damage is estimated at $25.

Between March 18 and 21 there was a reported vandalism at the UMass Dental Clinic. The UMass Department of Public Safety reports that a door was jammed and there was an attempt to open a file drawer. Damage is estimated at $20.

The Department reports that a foot patrolman discovered and confiscated 13 marijuana plants from a 2nd floor lounge in Cance Dormitory on March 25. The plants were destroyed.

Central election delayed

By JOE QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

The election of Central Area Council (CAC) officers, originally scheduled for last night, was postponed by CAC until mid-April due to a March 22 constitutional opinion rendered by Student Attorney General Paul Yanowitch.

Yanowitch told the Collegian last night his interpretation of the area government section of the Student Government Association (SGA) constitution — chapter two — means the executive officers of area governments must be elected at large by all area residents.

Letters expressing Yanowitch's opinion and advising corrective actions were mailed to the area governments concerned yesterday.

"If these area governments do not decide to comply with my opinion," said Yanowitch, "someone would have good grounds for a law suit against past and future actions of these councils."

CAC officials, as well as officers of the Southwest Assembly, Greek Council, and Commuter Collective, are not elected directly by their constituents.

Only members of the CAC have been choosing their presidents, vice president, secretary, and treasurer annually at a March council meeting in accordance with article four, section two, paragraph one, of its own constitution, ratified in 1976.

Last night CAC president Janice Perry reluctantly advised her colleagues to draft a revision of the CAC election procedures.

Article 19 of the CAC constitution states any proposed amendment or change to the constitution must be approved by at least three quarters of Central's ten dormitory governments. The CAC representatives will be introducing two such proposals to their respective house governments this week for ratification.

The proposed article replacing the former CAC election procedures would still schedule annual elections for the third week in March, but would allow each council to organize and hold elections in democratic fashion as it sees fit. The responsibilities would include election funding regulations.

The other amendment deals with this year's election. It would allow CAC to hold a ten day nomination period for prospective candidates, and to open the polls in a central location for the area residences for an eight hour period, eleven a.m. to seven p.m.

Following the decision to change the CAC constitution, treasurer Rob Cannon criticized Yanowitch's timing.

"In my estimation," said Cannon, "Mr. Yanowitch's delay in advising Central Area to change its election procedures just prior to election night is completely irresponsible."

Perry aired similar views. "I feel we should have been informed earlier," complained Perry. "With only six weeks left in this semester, this action leaves us shorthanded since three weeks will now be needed to reorganize the election. The newly elected officers will then have only a few weeks to become acquainted with CAC. This short time is not sufficient."

Yanowitch said his opinion was not an intentional effort to cause confusion. "As a matter of fact", added Yanowitch, "I was just thumbing through the SGA chapters when I found the election regulations."

Perry, who was not planning to seek re-election, said during recent weeks she had thought about mentioning election revisions to her successor.

Advocate Program looking for Grad Senate support

By D. PETERSON
Collegian Staff

A representative from the Advocate Program, Rebecca Buck, appeared before the Graduate Student Senate (GSS) last night to ask for the support of the body for the program that is being offered locally for "troubled" teenagers.

Buck discussed the program's offerings, stating that it may be possible to obtain academic credit for the work within the program through the Juvenile Justice academic program.

Buck said that a weekly salary is given to people who consent to be an advocate, and this would be used for the support of the teenager who would be living in the advocate's home.

People interested in joining the advocate program of getting more information should contact Rebecca Buck at 383 Hills South.

The senate voted to open nominations for the senate offices of president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, and to set the date for the elections for April 20.

The first of two open meetings of the graduate student body will be held on April 20, with election of officers and presentation of constitutional amendments to the general body.

The second general meeting will be held on April 27 with the amendments to the senate constitution up for vote.

Meeting places for these meetings will be advertised at a later date.

Secretary Barbara Stack announced the existence of an opening for one graduate student to serve on the ad hoc committee to study the Communication Skills Center. Any graduate student interested in serving is asked to contact the Graduate Senate.

The Senate confirmed the appointment of John Foley to fill the vacant seat on the Campus Center Board of Governers, to represent the GSS in that body.

The next meeting of the GSS will be held April 11 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center and is open to all interested graduate students.

TODAY'S STAFF
Issue Editor Tom Crowley

Editorial Layout	Debbie Alliegro
Sports Layout	Fran Sypek
Head Darkroom Tech	Dave Olken
Photo Staff	Denise Stewart
Head Graphics Tech	Dan Schindler
Ad Layout	Leith Illinith
Copy Desk	Ann Murphy
Wiseass Remark	Don't ever believe Joe Coner! Never!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Wood not amused by MSP

UMass President Robert C. Wood stated yesterday he is not "amused" by the activities of the faculty union as reported in Monday's Collegian, but is, rather, bemused.

Wood, in a statement released to the Collegian yesterday, maintains he was misquoted.

His comments on the faculty union came during a long distance telephone conversation with the Collegian Sunday night concerning the University Board of Trustees' recent vote to challenge the composition of the new union.

Title IX vacation plagued

By CAROLE BRENNAN
Collegian Staff

The first of two Title IX hearings scheduled between a federally appointed Title IX Committee and faculty and students of the School of Health Sciences attracted an audience of five people last night in the Campus Center.

The poor attendance was attributed by the committee, which is made up of three faculty members, three graduate students, a staff member and a member of the Provost's Review Committee, to the close-to-vacation date.

During the course of the hearing the committee was not confronted with any complaints of discrimination on the basis of sex.

The Title IX federal ruling prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in all educational institutions receiving federal monies. The committee has been mandated by the federal government to hear complaints of such discrimination.

One graduate student in the Public Health Program stated he believed where there was no need for affirmative action there was a need for remedial measures in the School of Health Sciences.

He said he was in favor of positive advertisement for more male graduate students in the traditionally women attended School of Health Sciences.

Gail Gotschak, a graduate student in nursing, said that only three per cent of nurses go on to receive their masters. She offered this as an explanation to why there are so few males in the nursing graduate program.

Committee Chairperson Denise Gibbs of the nursing program faculty ended the meeting by explaining that the committee was, at any time, willing to take input from faculty recruitment, hiring policies, personnel actions,and discussion of sexism.

Dr. Gerald Kupperman, Communications Disorder faculty member, and Denise Gibbs, School of Health Sciences Title IX committee chairperson and Nursing Faculty member listen to a speaker at last night's meeting. (Staff photo by Denise Stewart)

Could be 'unfulfilled dream'

SCER reports decline in UMass education

By CHRIS BOURNE
Collegian Staff

The Student Center for Educational Research (SCER) released a report yesterday, that says that public higher education "could become an unfulfilled dream."

The report, entitled "Level Funding: The Decline of Quality Education at UMass-Amherst", details some of the effects of budget cuts and level funding that are and would be experienced by various departments on campus.

SCER director Larry Magid said that Massachusetts is one of the worst states in the country in terms of spending on public higher education. "This state ranks 50th in terms of percentage of money spent on public higher education."

Included in the report are figures which show that there are presently 560 vacant staff positions including 230 faculty positions. An estimated 300 to 600 further employes would be laid off if the budget isn't increased. The report states that $4 million is needed for cost of living increases.

Faculty and staff aren't the only areas that would be hurt by the level funding proposal, according to the report. Student Services such as Financial Aid, the Registrar's Office, and Admissions would be forced to cut back.

Special programs such as Project 10, Global Survival, and BDIC would be cut back or eliminated says the report.

The budget increases which the University is asking for average about 11 to 12 per cent, which is well below inflation rate since 1975, the last time the budget was increased, says the report.

While the University budget would remain the same as last year, several other state agencies are to receive increases as much as 20 per cent according to the report.

SCER also examined the proposed state budget and says that there would be a surplus of about $170 million under the Governor's proposed budget.

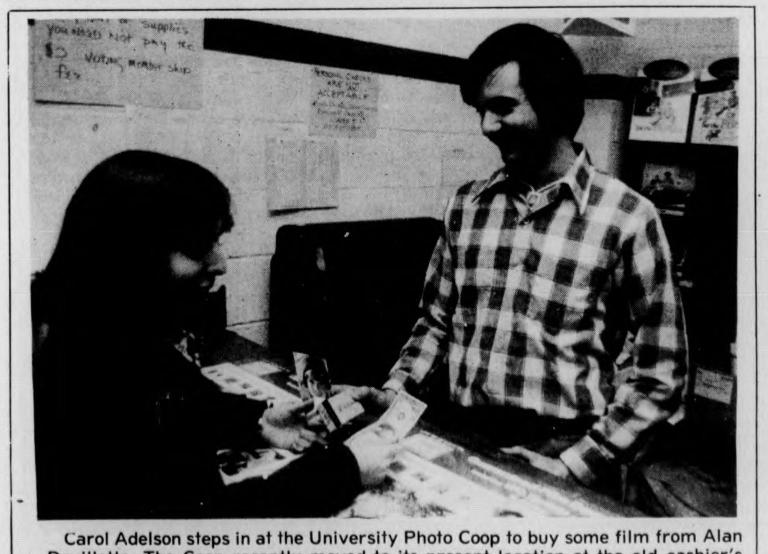
Magid said that the Senate would possibly add some to the UMass budget; but the big problem would be the House. "Senate president Kevin Harrington told a rally that the Senate would add to the budget, but only if students work for the increase."

"It is essential that students write their legislators and get their parents to write," said Magid. "They can also write letters to their home town newspapers; that can be effective sometimes."

Asked about reasons for the cuts in public higher education, Magid said that there were two reasons: decrease in students and changes in higher education across the country. "I was part of the 'baby boom' which went to college in the sixties. That's over now," Magid said.

"There also has been a shift in the type of higher education away from liberal arts to technical-vocational education. More money is being spent on small community colleges than on large, liberal arts universities," Magid added, "During the Kennedy era, we had lots of money poured into universities because of the so-called "Sputnik effect". This produced more trained people than jobs in many cases and led to the shift towards vocational education," Magid said.

Copies of the report will be mailed to all faculty and staff members. Any student who wants a copy can get one at the SCER office, People's Newsstand, or the Campus Center Assistance Desk.



Carol Adelson steps in at the University Photo Coop to buy some film from Alan Douillette. The Coop recently moved to its present location at the old cashier's window. (Staff photo by David Olken)

Improvisions set, starts tomorrow

By PAUL LOGUE JR.
Collegian Staff

Improvisions, a new series produced by the Student Video Project, will have its debut Wednesday, March 30, at 7:30 p.m. on local cable television, channel 8.

The show is scheduled to present a documentary on Penny Worman, the woman in the Crafts Shop, a story on MassPIRG, the art of maple sugar processing in Sunderland, Easyrider — a computerized rideboard, tips on Mental Health, stereo equipment and public reactions to certain issues.

Improvisions is designed "to flow like a magazine with a quick pace and nice transitions," said Win Baker, one of the producers of the show. "The stories are meant to be something of interest for everybody watching the show," Baker explained. "It is a very unique show since we are the only college in America to produce this type of format."

Improvisions uses on-location sets of stories throughout the Valley. Some of the upcoming material includes; The Exotic Fish and Pet store, The Grass-Roots School in Amherst and public reaction to it, the man who is selling Gary Gilmore T-shirts and how he has cornered the market.

Improvisions will also be shown on the Video-Sidewalk in the Campus Center Concourse and at the back of the Hatch on Tuesday and Weds., beginning at 11:30 a.m.

The show is a group effort of about 25 people working collectively for the Student Video Project. The equipment used to produce the show is owned by the Project and financed by the Student Activity Tax Fund.

The Strife of Life, a soap opera depicting a satirical view of UMass can also be seen this week at the Video-Sidewalk on the C.C. concourse and the back of the Hatch. The show is directed by Fran Devesto and produced by Mark Gunning and begins with the first day of dormitory living and the problems which arise. All the material is written by students, the sets are built by the Project crew.

The Strife of Life runs for 30 minutes and can be seen on cable television biweekly on Tuesday nights at 7:30.

New OHAG meets

Other new officers, elected the week before spring break were, vice-president Mark Hergenrother, treasurer Jeff Cohen, and secretary Sue Curt.

In the first meeting for Orchard Hill Area Government's new officers, Scott Wieler took over as OHAG president Sunday night.

These officers replace president Gary Shuster, secretary Shari Levitan, and treasurer Scott Wieler.

Eighteen people attended Sunday's meeting. Changing the meeting time was discussed, but nothing was decided. The meeting was adjourned at 9:45.

Why fly fishing

K C TURCOTTE

By BOB MORRISSETTE
Collegian Staff

You can be sure that every fanatical fly fisherman in the northern hemisphere is eagerly getting his gear ready now that the streams and rivers are bursting with the spring thaw. What is this mystique about fly fishing, you say? What makes it so fascinating? Well then, you've obviously never fly fished, not seriously anyhow. I'd like to describe my early fly fishing experience. It may give you a sense of the unique pleasures involved.

Dry-fly fishing is the pure form of the sport. All other forms are offshoots, for there are times and situations when another method, such as wet-fly, nymph, or streamer, is more likely to be successful. I began my fly fishing career with dry-flies. It is the most difficult form to master since the fly must float high and dry, in exact imitation of an insect lightly astride the water surface.

I was living along the edge of a small river in Vermont which was sparsely populated with small Brook Trout. The woodcutting season was finished and I had some spare time on my hands, so I decided to take up the sport. I bought a few books on the subject, invested about $75 in equipment, and was ready to try my luck.

The water behind my house flowed swiftly and my technique and practical knowledge were not refined enough. I fished for about a week without getting a single trout, heck, not even a strike! Well I was getting discouraged. The following week I visited a friend in Scituate, Rhode Island. There my luck changed.

His house was tucked into the woods about a quarter-mile from the beginning of the Pawtuxet River, which flows out of the Scituate Reservoir. Downriver, one morning, I rented a small fifteen foot canoe and set out in search of my first trout.

The upper Pawtuxet is 30 or 40 yards wide and only three to five feet deep. The water moves lazily, leaving the surface flat and undisturbed.

I paddled upriver through a light mist which hung suspended a few feet above the calmness. The shores were thickly bunched with vegetation, mostly pine trees with an occasional beech or willow, all interspersed with a jumble of laurel and berry bushes.

The canoe knifed silently upstream, the river narrowing slightly and the mist fading as I went. I nosed the canoe between two large rocks protruding in midstream and surprised a black duck with her brood of a half-dozen ducklings. She let out a fearful, stillness shattering squawk, and hustled the little ones quickly out of sight.

Ahead the river turned to the right. Along the inside bend, overhung with drooping bushes extending from the bank, the current ran dark and probably deep, a textbook trout hole! and I surely knew my textbooks if little else. I guided the canoe to the opposite shore and beached the leading end upon a narrow strip of sand. I put my rod together, rolled my pant legs to the knee and stepped as noiselessly as possible into the river.

The water was cool, the sandy bottom a soft cushion to each step. I maneuvered slightly downstream from the bend where I could cast up and across the river, allowing the fly to drift downstream and, hopefully, beneath the overhanging branches where I suspected a trout might be lurking.

I made a few false casts, keeping the fly in the air, while I played out about twenty-five feet of line. Then I attempted a test cast, well out from the shore so as not to disturb any trout along the bank. It landed with a small plop, too loud but that was usual for an inexperienced caster, about eight or nine feet beyond the bend, just the distance I wanted.

The fly on the Pawtuxet however, floated naturally along a continuous path, due to the smooth flow of the water.

I tried another cast at the same distance, but closer to the bank. It landed again with a slight splash and floated down a foot or so from the hanging branches, but no strike. I let it glide quietly past then jerked it high for another try. This one landed in nearly the same spot as the last and the results were the same, no strike. I would have to cast closer yet to the bushes so the fly could drift along the shaded part of the current.

I aimed the next cast as close as possible to the bushes. It sailed forward and as it fell it caught the tip of a branch, hooking itself firmly two feet above the river. Oh no! Now what? My leader was a mere two pound test. If I yanked too hard to free the fly it was bound to break. I gave it a short tug, nothing, another jerk and lo! the fly fell casually to the water and swept slowly downstream, directly underneath the bushes! I coiled the incoming slack line in my left hand as it floated through the dark shade. Suddenly — kerplash! the fly disappeared in a small white swirl.

The line tightened and I raised the rod tip lightly but firmly, to set the hook. The tip bent downwards. I reeled the coiled slack in, then felt and heard the pleasant ZNNNNG of the drag unwinding. The line began to move out from the bank. It reached midstream and the tension eased for a moment. I kept the rod tip raised, for I sensed what was about to happen from my many years of bass fishing.

Sure enough, a medium-sized Rainbow Trout broke the surface, a whirling mass of flashing color and sparkling water. He skittered sideways on his tail for a few feet and fell back beneath the churning foam. I directed him towards the shallows near the canoe where he could barely swim. He struggled to and fro but was tiring quickly.

Finally I reached down and laid hold of his squiggling form. The fly was neatly hooked in his lower lip and came loose with no trouble.

It's tea time

By JON WALTERS
Collegian Staff

Photo by Steve Hershberg

The Japanese Tea Ceremony, as demonstrated by Daniel Kane and Linda Lanton, is a Zen discipline coordinating a variety of utensils with precise body movements in a sequence of symbolic gestures.

For the 16 persons or so who witnessed it, it was a demonstration of "an aesthetic experience and a meditation in movement."

"The ceremony should be symbolic of other things happening outside or going on elsewhere at that time," said Kane, "everything in it is symbolic."

The ceremony was developed by Zen monks in China in the seventh century. The tea served served as stimulation so that monks could continue meditating. The ceremony was passed to the Japanese and is now performed on special occasions.

"It is a very intimate personal means of expression," said Kane, "done because you really care for the people you are doing it for."

Kane demonstrated the Tray Ceremony. It is one out of many different types of tea ceremonies and incorporates all the fundamental movements that occur during them.

The ceremony itself consists of preparing and serving tea to a guest or guests. It begins with the host bringing "sweets" to the guest; in this case small cookies to be eaten with the tea. The host then goes through a series of precise, ritualized movements as he cleanses a bowl, scoop and beater placing each in special places on the floor. He then measures the tea into a bowl, mixes it with the beater and serves it to the guest. All movements, including those of the guest, are set and traditional.

The tea itself is made of a dried, ground herb. The utensils usually are of clay and wood. During the close of the ceremony the utensils are all ceremoniously cleansed and put away.

"In Japan the ceremony is becoming more popular," said Kane, "more equipment and teachers are available and women are also now allowed to participate."

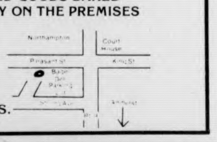
The demonstration was part of a series of presentations being put on by BDIC students. Kane, as part of his Comparative Religion and the Arts major, has been studying the tea ceremony for the past two semesters. "I am mainly interested in how the arts are used as forms of religious expression," he said.

The Bagel Deli
"Everything on a bagel"

- N.Y. STYLE DELI
- SMOKED FISH
- CHEESE CAKE
- EGG CREAM
- DAIRY PRODUCTS

BAGELS & OTHER
BAKED GOODS BAKED
DAILY ON THE PREMISES

OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
HOURS 7 A.M. - 2 A.M. FRI. & SAT.
7 A.M. - 9 P.M. SUN. - THURS.
28 Pleasant St. Northampton



Civil liberties important to new leader

NEW DELHI, India [UPI] — India's new leader yesterday promised a constitutional amendment to restore civil liberties and press freedom curbed by former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi during a 21-month state of emergency.

Prime Minister Morarji Desai spelled out his government's policies in an address read to a joint session of Parliament by acting President B.D. Jatti.

"The traumatic experience of the last two years, during which many atrocities were committed on the people and they had to undergo untold sufferings and some have even died, has brought home the relevance of the government keeping its word with the people," Desai said.

"The most urgent task is to remove.... curbs on the fundamental freedoms and civil rights of the people, to restore the rule of law and the right of free expression to the press."

New Parliament members from the ruling Janata party alliance cheered the speech. The defeated Congress party's members listened in silence to Desai's condemnation of Mrs. Gandhi.

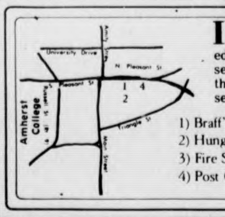
Desai said his government will amend an article of the constitution that allowed Mrs. Gandhi to declare the state of internal emergency in June, 1975.

The promised amendment would prevent any government from assuming dictatorial powers to stifle dissent.

Desai said his government also will annul censorship laws and said newspapers are free to publish proceedings of Parliament without fear of prosecution, a privilege the Indian press lost during the emergency.

Mrs. Gandhi jailed without trial and without giving any reason tens of thousands of her political foes in the wake of the emergency she imposed June 26, 1975.

Desai in his address also said family planning "will be pursued vigorously as a wholly voluntary program," indicating he will abandon forcible sterilization programs and other penalties against couples who have more than three children.



IF you are a serious student or educator, you're probably just as serious about your appearance. For the best in dry cleaning or related services....

1) Braff's
2) Hungry-U
3) Fire Station
4) Post Office

Braff's Royl
Cleaners
103 N. Pleasant Street
256-8288

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members go on the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right — 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep 'full' — no starvation — because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home.

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $3.00 ($3.25 for Rush Service) — cash O.K. To: Wm. Carter - Human Ecologist — P.O. Box 4246 — Department 16 — Hayward, CA 94540. Don't order unless you want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do!

Podgorny voices support for S. African black rule

LUSAKA, Zambia [UPI] — Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny said yesterday the Soviet Union supports the rights of whites in Rhodesia, South West Africa and South Africa under black majority rule.

But he advised whites their best guarantee for safety in southern Africa would be to renounce racism "speedily" and "unconditionally."

"The Soviet Union supports policy statements by southern Africa's freedom fighters that under majority rule the democratic rights of white citizens in those countries will be guaranteed," he said.

"But the best guarantee of safety for the white population would be to disassociate themselves from racists and to renounce racist regimes unconditionally and speedily."

Podgorny, who ends a four-day state visit to Zambia today, was speaking at a banquet given by Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda.

The Communist leader said his country will continue to support black nationalist guerrillas in southern Africa, but he denied the Soviet Union seeks either military bases or influence in return.

Kaunda paid tribute to the Soviet Union's support of the nationalist movements and said Zambia and other African states have turned to Moscow because of Western ambivalence.

On Rhodesia, Kaunda said Premier Ian Smith's refusal to hand over power peacefully to that country's black majority left Africans with no choice but to fight.

"Blacks finally have no choice but to answer fire for fire, bullet for bullet and blood for blood.

"This road is Smith's choice. It is a road to white exodus and they will have it," Kaunda said.

The Soviet president will leave Zambia for Maputo, Mozambique today on the third and final leg of his African tour.

Tokyo bathers buried in coffee

TOKYO [UPI] — Americans may be boycotting coffee but Japanese are bathing in it — literally.

Customers at the Koso-Sauna Center on the outskirts of Tokyo enjoy the bizarre sensation of being buried up to their necks in a huge vat of heated coffee grounds.

The bath, the only one of its kind in Japan, claims to relax sore muscles, knock off pounds and cure a host of circulatory ailments in return for the $5 admission fee.

Some 100 Tokyoites daily visit two round pools — one for men and one for women — containing 22 tons of top quality Brazilian coffee heated to 140 degrees Fahrenheit and mixed with pineapple pulp, a fermenting agent.

Those who like milk with their coffee can luxuriate in a milk bath in an adjoining room afterwards.

Both customers get paper bikini underpants to wear while they brew in the 13-foot-wide, five-foot-deep pools filled with steaming, moist coffee grounds.

An attendant with a shovel waits to bury them.

The spade-wielder digs a shallow grave, directs his charges to lie down and shovels warm coffee grounds on top of them. In about 20 minutes, after they have sweated enough, he digs them up.

Washing off the grounds is a job best accomplished by bringing a friend with you to scrub your back.

Owner Kichimatsu Baba says the idea for his bath came from a doctor friend who stores coffee beans in a shed at his home. When the beans were soaked by typhoon rains the doctor noticed they began to ferment and gave off heat as a result.

The same process occurs in Baba's coffee bath have pineapple pulp is mixed with the grounds. Bathers also drink pineapple juice to make their bodies more receptive to the fermentation process.

"The bath warms your whole body, accelerates blood circulation and medically is good for high blood pressure, rheumatism and circulation disorders," Baba says.

The Paper Clip Ltd.

SPECIAL PURCHASE!
TWO DRAWER STEEL FILES
IN SIX DECORATOR COLORS

THE IDEAL SPACE SAVER FOR OFFICE, HOME, OR DORM.

$42.88
28"H x 18"D x 15"W

- Flush cup handles with card holder
- Full suspension drawers
- Nylon roller bearings
- Reinforced roller track
- Heavy gauge furniture steel

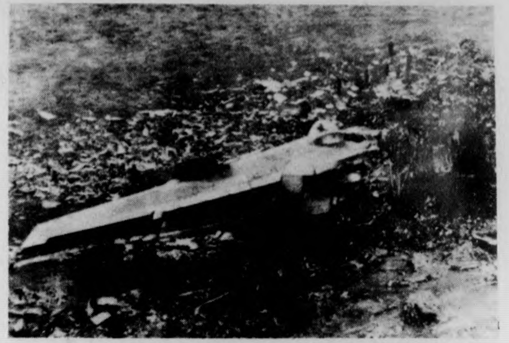
CHOOSE FROM YELLOW, ORANGE, GREEN, BLUE, WHITE, OR BLACK
PLEASE ALLOW TWO WEEKS FOR DELIVERY

FOUR DRAWER FILE $62.88
52"H x 18"D x 15"W

FIRE RESISTANT SECURITY BOX $15.99
4" x 9" x 13½"

- Protects valuable papers
- Insulated steel walls
- Easy grip handle
- With lock & key

25 S. Pleasant St., Amherst
"at the lights," downtown
256-8598



SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIRE, Spain: Wreckage of Pan Am 747 jumbo jet is scattered over wide area after collision. (UPI)

Experts contend crash was rare

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Air safety experts said yesterday the crash of two jumbo jets on a Spanish runway, which claimed nearly 600 lives, was the sort of disaster that is rare because its dangers are so well recognized.

U.S. aviation records show only one other similar crash in recent history. It occurred in Chicago in 1972.

"The chances are very small of that sort of crash happening in this country or anywhere else," one U.S. official said yesterday. "There are many, many safeguards to prevent it."

Although cautioning that main details remain unclear, Spanish and American safety experts said bad weather, abnormal operations at an unusually crowded airport and possible confusion about takeoff instructions all may have played a role in causing the collision Sunday at Santa Cruz de Tenerife.

Two of those factors, weather and communications, also figured in the 1972 crash.

In the Santa Cruz collision — history's worst air disaster — a Dutch KLM Boeing 747 slammed into a Pan American World Airways Boeing 747 on the lone runway at the Canary Island airport.

Airline officials reported 576 persons, including all aboard the Dutch jet, were killed.

The only somewhat similar accident in current National Transportation Safety Board records was the collision Dec. 20, 1972, between a Delta Airlines Convair 880 and a North Central Airlines DC9 on a runway at Chicago.

That crash killed 10 of 138 persons aboard the two planes and injured 17 others. Both planes were destroyed.

The North Central jet involved in the 1972 crash was taking off in fog at O'Hare International Airport and hit the larger Delta plane, which was crossing the runway.

The NTSB said said that crash was caused by ambiguous orders given to the Delta jet by an air traffic controller. It said the controller was not specific about which of two similarly numbered holding pads the Delta jet should go to, and the pilot got to an active runway by going to the wrong one.

Weather, however, also was a factor. A safety board official said: "Neither plane in the Chicago crash saw the other in time to stop."

Fog at the Spanish airport Sunday caused a similar disruption in the "see-and-be-seen" procedures normally used by pilots to supplement air trafic control instructions.

CAMP COUNSELOR OPENINGS
UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS
(Min. age 19 & completion of at least 1 year of college)
GRADUATE STUDENTS and FACULTY MEMBERS
THE ASSOCIATION OF PRIVATE CAMPS
. . . comprising 100 outstanding Boys, Girls, Brother-Sister and Co-Ed Camps, located throughout the New England and Middle Atlantic States
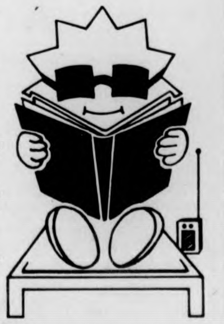
. . . INVITES YOUR INQUIRIES concerning summer employment as Head Counselors, Group Leaders, Specialties, General Counselors.
Write, Phone, or Call in Person
Association of Private Camps — Dept. C
55 W. 42 St., New York NY 10036 (212) OX 5-2656

SUMMER

Do what interests you most: folk dance, work at an archaeological dig, study at a university, live on kibbutz. And at the same time, have a short, in-depth Israel experience. Summer programs offer you a number of extra curricular activities: you can spend a week in Sinai, visit a settlement in the Golan Heights, tour big cities and historical sites. Meet people and gain awareness of Israel as a social, economic, cultural, religious and political reality. Have a good time while you are doing it. Contact the Israel Program Center and inquire about five-through-nine-week summer programs.

American Zionist Youth Foundation,
Israel Program Center
515 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10022,
(212) 751-6070



36
For information, please send to the above address.
Name ________ Age ____
Address ________
City ________ State ________ Zip ____
University ________
(USD)

APPEARING
TONITE & WED.
NEW RIDERS
of the Purple Sage
At
The rusty nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937
Tickets available at
Recordtown, Hadley
Faces of Earth, Amherst

Senators get speedy trial

DiCarlo, MacKenzie may lose seats

BOSTON [UPI] — The Massachusetts Senate Ethics Committee voted unanimously yesterday to grant two senators convicted and sentenced to prison for extortion a speedy hearing on whether their seats should be taken away.

One of the two lawmakers, Sen. Joseph J. C. DiCarlo, D-Revere, earlier took the Senate floor for 20 minutes in an impassioned defense of his right to retain his $14,000 a year post. He vowed to resign only after all appeals were exhausted.

"For two years now, I have been silent... both in and out of the courtroom... I am silent no longer, I am innocent. I did not receive a fair trial from the jury.

"I will pursue all avenues appeal available to me with all the strength I possess. I will not resign from the Massachusetts Senate.

"I am not guilty of the crimes for which a jury of my supposed peers found me guilty... I have never accepted payment for any services I performed in the course of my legislative career."

DiCarlo and Sen. Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington, were convicted of shaking down McKee-Berger-Mansueto Inc., a New York construction management firm, for $40,000 in exchange for a favorable and uncritical report from DiCarlo's committee on the firm's state contract.

JQA LOWER &
G. WASHINGTON MIDDLE PROUDLY PRESENT
orchestra
LUNA

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 8 PM

UMass students $2.50, 2, 1.50
general public $5, 4, 3

Tickets on sale now at
FAC Box Office & Ticketron

ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE!
BEST ORIGINAL SCREENPLAY
BEST FOREIGN FILM
BEST ACTRESS
MARIE-CHRISTINE BARRAULT

Cousin Cousine

ALBERT SCHWARTZ • IMRE J. ROSENTHAL PRESENT
A FILM BY JEAN CHARLES TACCHELLA
STARRING
MARIE CHRISTINE BARRAULT • VICTOR LANOUX • MARIE FRANCE PISIER • GUY MARCHAND
Gaumont Films Premiere • Northal Film Dist. Ltd. • Libra Films RELEASE R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
STARTS WEDNESDAY!

The Department
of Dramatic Arts
Amherst College
presents
CONTEMPORARY DANCE
SYSTEM
Daniel Lewis,
Artistic Director

2 Evenings of Repertory Performance
April 1, 2
8:00 p.m.

Kirby Memorial
Theater

Reserved Seats $2.50
542-2277
10-5

THE FIFTH ANNUAL
BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT

FRIDAY APRIL 1

CHARLES TOLLIVER-MUSIC INC.
AND THE
STRATA-EAST ALLSTARS

SATURDAY APRIL 2

FRANK FOSTER AND THE LOUD MINORITY
WITH VOCALIST
ANDY BEY

8:00 p.m.

STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
ADMISSION FREE

Sponsored by the Program Council Music Committee and The Student Activities Office

*Workshops Saturday, April 2, 9:00 a.m. & 1:00 p.m.
Franklin Patterson Hall - Hampshire College

King assassination

Ray gives information

PETROS, Tenn. [UPI] — James Earl Ray gave staff members of the House Assassinations Committee information yesterday which his lawyer said could identify the shadowy "Raoul" in the Martin Luther King Jr. assassination.

Chief counsel Richard Sprague and three other committee investigators spent six hours with Ray, King's convicted assassin, at Brushy Mountain State Prison.

Jack Kershaw, Ray's latest attorney, said the investigators have a third meeting scheduled with Ray April 4, ninth anniversary of the King assassination.

"Mr. Ray answered every question in great detail to the best of his ability. As a result of these interviews, they have a great deal of material substance," Kershaw said.

Sprague refused comment on what Ray told the investigators yesterday or at a similar session at the prison last Tuesday.

Among the information Ray provided the committee or made available through his previous lawyers, Kershaw said, were travel dates and motel lodging records documenting his own movements as well as telephone numbers Ray claimed to have used to contact Raoul, a mysterious figure Ray has blamed for the King murder.

Kershaw said Ray gave the investigators permission to examine materials he had given his previous attorneys, beginning with Arthur Hanes of Birmingham, Ala., and continuing through his latest group, which includes attorneys in Washington and Memphis.

Ray has no hard evidence to support his insistence that Raoul directed his actions from a year before the murder until 30 minutes before King was killed, Kershaw said.

"I have three leads that give me confidence that Raoul will materialize," Kershaw said.

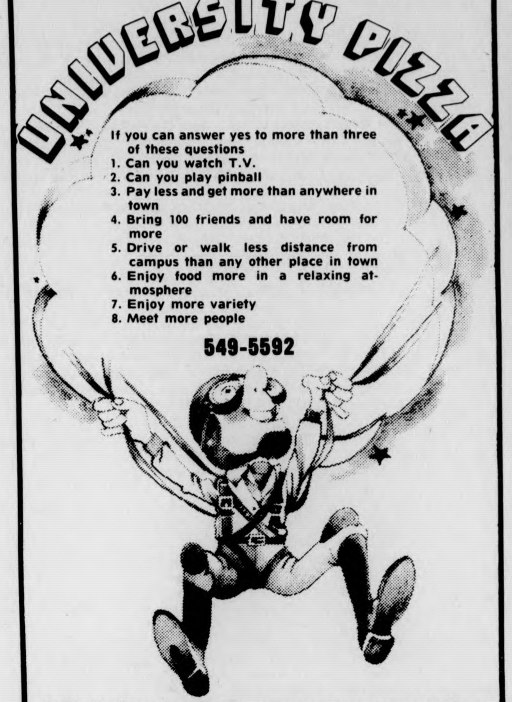
Kershaw said a decision on whether Ray will take a lie detector test will be announced in two weeks.

He said investigators discussed a statement by a former Louisville, Ky. policeman, Clifton Baird, who contended that FBI agents and police officers had discussed with him a conspiracy to murder King. Kershaw said Ray had received a letter from Baird in March 1976 detailing the plot.

Kershaw said he made a copy of that letter available to the committee investigators.

Ray, serving a 99-year prison sentence for the King assassination, is hoping to gain a new trial by cooperating with the committee.

YOU SHOULD DROP BY



If you can answer yes to more than three of these questions
1. Can you watch T.V.
2. Can you play pinball
3. Pay less and get more than anywhere in town
4. Bring 100 friends and have room for more
5. Drive or walk less distance from campus than any other place in town
6. Enjoy food more in a relaxing atmosphere
7. Enjoy more variety
8. Meet more people

549-5592

P.S. Enjoy an ice cream cone or sundae

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
[illegible] day advance payment required

Test Prep Services
358 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 549-5136

LSAT
6, 4-Hr. meetings covering cases & principles, practical judgement, evaluation of facts, various logic sections, data comparison, writing ability, new question types.
Meeting times:
Thurs. 1:30-5:30,
6:00-10:00

MCAT
6, 4 Hr. meetings covering biology, chemistry & physics as well as the new MCAT skills analysis question types.
Meeting days and times
Wed., Thurs.
6:00-10:00 p.m.
Sat. classes scheduled for
April

TPS' flexible programs permit you to arrange classes around your schedule, not vice versa. Most courses are held continuously throughout the year and all make-up sessions are LIVE. Weekend crash courses scheduled the two weekends prior to each exam. You can always count on a TPS program to meet your needs. Our 24-Hr. courses, plus 11 hrs. of extras lets you take advantage of 35 hours of live instruction with a top-scoring specialist.

Call to reserve a place in our weekly
FREE INTRODUCTORY CLASS
Held every Tues. evening 6:30 to 9:30

COME AND GET IT!

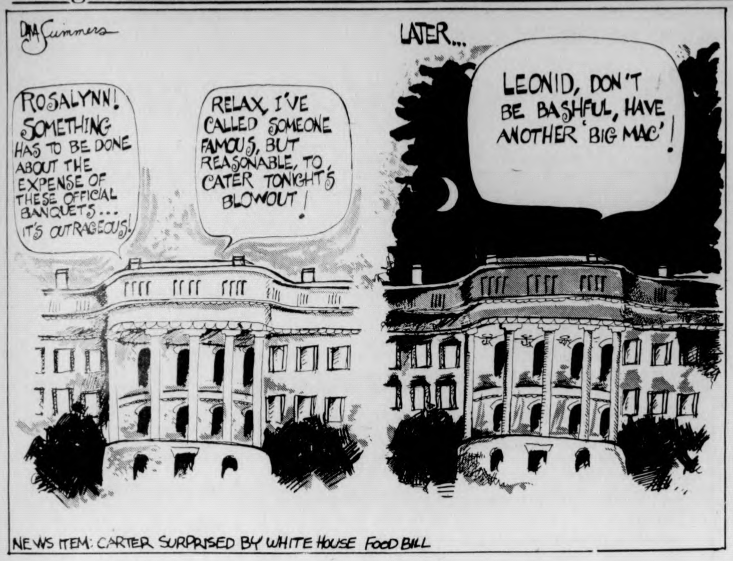
They're here—the Summer Session catalogs, full of all the right courses at the right time. For your convenience, catalogs are available at several locations around campus: Graduate Research Center, Room A245, the CASIAC Office in Machmer Hall, outside the Registration Office at Whitmore and at the Records and Registration Office of Continuing Education at Hills House North.

It's here. Come and get it!

JOIN US FOR SUMMER SESSION 1977 AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS/AMHERST



DANA Summers
ROSALYNN! SOMETHING HAS TO BE DONE ABOUT THE EXPENSE OF THESE OFFICIAL BANQUETS... IT'S OUTRAGEOUS!
RELAX, I'VE CALLED SOMEONE FAMOUS, BUT REASONABLE, TO CATER TONIGHT'S BLOWOUT!
LATER...
LEONID, DON'T BE BASHFUL, HAVE ANOTHER 'BIG MAC'!

NEWS ITEM: CARTER SURPRISED BY WHITE HOUSE FOOD BILL

letters

The pro's and con's of student towing

To the Editor:

The campaign to discard Amherst Towing and establish a student run tow service is in full swing. The Committee to Stop Amherst Towing has been selling bumper stickers, passing out fact sheets on student towing and collecting signatures on a petition that calls for the administration to make every effort to resolve student complaints regarding present towing on campus. Our table in the Campus Center and a front page article in the Collegian have been invaluable in extensively publicizing our concern throughout the UMass community. In addition, I'll be doing WMUA's OFF THE HOOK this Wednesday evening.

I'm convinced that a viable proposal for student towing will be accepted by the administration and that the Senate will appropriate funds to finance it, if they are convinced that the students want it. I do not expect everyone to support student towing, but I'd hope that those who do not, understand the pro's and con's. To help you decide, here they are:

PRO

1. All revenue from towing and storage fees will be kept in the UMass community.

2. A student tow service will provide approximately 280 hours per week of student employment.

3. Students will assume responsibility for operating a student service that primarily affects only them.

4. Amherst Towing would be eliminated from UMass forever.

5. Profits would go into student activities.

6. Storage facilities would be more conveniently located on campus.

7. Cost per tow would be reduced.

CON

1. A student tow service would require an initial expenditure of nearly $30,000.

2. Students should not be put in a position of having to tow other students, as that could potentially breed animosity between students and be a divisive influence on campus.

In weighing these arguments, keep in mind the factors that will remain constant irregardless of who is doing the towing. First of all, towing will continue to be done in response to a police call. Which cars are to be towed will still be determined by the police in accordance with university Motor Vehicles Rules and Regulations. Secondly, we will not like having our cars towed no matter who does it.

To date, we have collected 3000 signatures and enough donations to cover about half of our paper costs. Since we want 15,000 signatures and enough money to break even, we need more. I have got my pro-student towing rap down cold, so I urge the skeptics among us to hear it, by either coming by our table or calling me at home: 323-4866. It'll be worth a donation and a signature just to hear it.

Roger Sturgis
The Committee to Stop Amherst Towing

The right to strike

To the Editor:

There are presently three bills under discussion in the Massachusetts Legialative Committee on Urban Affairs, which if passed, would severely limit tenants rights to call for rent strikes. Since the rent strike is one of the only weapons tenants have in their battle with bad housing conditions, these measures need to be blocked before they can become state law.

One bill makes it possible for local housing inspection departments to decide which rent strikes are legitimate and which are not. The second measure would prevent people on rent strike from seeking an abatement, or reduction on their rent while a strike is in progress. This would mean that tenants could not argue for rent reductions because of bad housing conditions. Full rent on an apartment or house would have to be paid at the end of a rent strike regardless of housing code violations. The third measure, like the second, makes it hard for rents to be abated at the end of a rent strike. In all of these situations tenants would be obligated to pay any court costs involved.

The three measures will be debated Thursday March 31 at the State House in Boston. We urge all tenants to notify their representatives in the legislature and the Committee on Urban Affairs that the measures H. 1162, H. 2305, S. 1360 be defeated.

Diane R. Levenson
Bob Forrant
Off Campus Housing Office

The dangers of a cheap thrill

To the Editor:

A frightening experience occurred in the early morning hours of March 12th to residents of J.Q.A. At approximately 3:30 a.m. a second fire alarm went off. The first one preceeded it by about two hours and was the fault of some person getting a cheap thrill out of pulling the alarm. However, the second alarm proved not to be a prank, as a fire had broken out in a room on the 10th floor. Many of the residents, assuming it was only another false alarm, wandered about their corridors contemplating whether or not to evacuate. Others didn't even bother to come out of their rooms. By the time word traveled down that this one was for real, heavy smoke had filled one of the stairwells making passage impossible. People began to panic. Undoubtedly, if the false alarm had not occurred previously, evacuation would have been swift and prompt as was the first. The next time some fool decides to get a cheap thrill out of pulling an alarm, I hope they think twice about it. After all, it's human lives they're dealing with.

Valerie Hanson
and 16 other members of the 9th and 10th floors, JQA

commentary

Students: Wake up!

By RICH KLEIN

Early February, 1975, Providence, R.I. Editorials appear regularly in the Brown campus paper bemoaning the end of the activist spirit of the "60's" — that golden age of involement, movement, and change. Alas, read the weary pages, for the soul now lost forever. Apathetic students cease to even read about their self-acknowledged apathy.

One day the administration releases its "White Paper", detailing its fashion of dealing with the budget crises, i.e. less financial aid, less student services, elimination of minority programs: the big squeeze-out of the poor, the disadvantaged, the "expendable" due to birth or bank account.

Angry cries in the student paper elicited the usual apathetic unable - to - do - anything - about - it turning away. Except.

Except for a core of black students, seeing the end of their chances for an Ivy education, for "upward mobility", for a chance.

Except for a core of the poor, who had struggled and worked and filled out form after bureaucratic form in an effort to "beat the system" by joining it.

Except for a core of middle-class students, working at the d.c. or the library or as janitors to make it possible to keep on and maybe "make it".

Except for a core of the rich and privileged themselves, unwilling to see the isolated ivy tower rebuilt atop College Hill, overlooking the "real world" of urban-industrial Providence.

And so was formed a coalition, The Coalition.

A month later the campus was awakened. Journalistic cries bemoaning apathy became calls to arms filled with hope. Furious, incredibly productive meetings took place night after exciting night.

Every student found a classmate appearing weekly or nightly at his door with newsletter and information, with facts and figures doggedly extracted from a reluctant administration or searched for in the public record, showing alternatives to planned cuts and saner ways of reacting to very real financial pressures.

With strong support from the coalition of interests: the poor, the minorities, the middle-class, the rich — the students — things happened.

Not overnight did this happen, but in the course of three months of intense unpaid effort from many people, deriving support from a core of the truly devoted who were willing to eat, sleep and drink organization, and from a body of fact showing the disastrous results of the planned changes and the very real alternatives available.

Eventually we won — at least a battle if not the war. A 5000-strong student body, two months earlier "hopelessly apathetic", approved by referendum a week-long strike. The Providence Journal, the New York Times, and Walter Cronkite discovered a student body alive and awake in the U.S.A.

Black, Asian, and Hispanic students, supported by a largely white support group, eventually had to occupy University Hall for several days, completely nonviolently, and finally the administration bowed. Continued funding of minority programs and financial aid were agreed to, thus altering a supposedly unalterable budget.

For some it was too late. I was one of the middle-class students who couldn't afford Brown any more and had to leave.

But Brown did retain much of its diverse student body and did find itself recommitted to programs the administration had hoped to slough off. I feel good that it happened.

And I know the siren song of apathy and somnolence can be changed to the beating drums of movement, purpose, direction, and, eventually, successes.

Two years ago were not the "millenial 60's" by any means. UMass today faces cuts in funding and programs possibly worse than those at Brown in '75. Students can unite if the threats to their interests are manifest, and if reasonable alternatives are offered. What is needed is the will and knowledge to organize and the awareness of the necessity and possibility for a voice of the students, by the students, and for the students.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA [illegible]

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Gerard F. Rogers, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson, Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

mark wilding

It's a gas!

"WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is working quietly to upgrade its ability to wage war with nerve gas, a weapon that can cause agonizing death from spasms and convulsions if only a drop or two gets on a persons skin."

The Hartford Courant 3-21-77

Scene: A Pentagon laboratory.

WERNER — All right, what was your reading on that one?

MANFRED — Well let me see, that was four spasms and three convulsions and a look of concerted pain.

WERNER — Not agony?

MANFRED — No, no, far from agony. I think we have a ways to go yet.

WERNER — Christ! What are our quotas anyway?

MANFRED — Hmm, headquarters wants at least ten spasms and a half dozen convulsions.

WERNER — Gott in Himmel, impossible!

MANFRED — Shh, remember we're working quietly.

WERNER — All right, suppose just suppose we meet that quota. Do we still have to come up with an agonizing death? Can't we just make it an unbearable death, or an insufferable death?

MANFRED — Orders are orders. The word from HQ is agonizing death.

WERNER — Well we can't work miracles. We gotta have more than two drops per person for an agonizing death! Hell, two drops won't get us more than a "throes of discomfort" death. Now if they're talking paroxysms of agony it's gonna take at least five drops per person.

MANFRED — Sorry, two drops is tops. Pentagon figures that we can't go spending the taxpayers money on five drops per person. Public might get upset.

WERNER — So when do they expect us to be finished?

MANFRED — This afternoon.

WERNER — It can't be done.

MANFRED — Has to be, or else we're out of jobs.

WERNER — But chemical warfare is my life.

MANFRED — Well don't you think I'm worried? I mean I've got mouths to feed too.

WERNER — Listen, we've got one hope. One of us is going to have to be a subject and pretend to get the stuff on his skin. Then he acts like he's going into spasms and convulsions and then finally slides neatly into an agonizing death. Simple, heh?

MANFRED — And we keep our jobs for at least another six months. You're a genius!

WERNER — Quickly, they're coming. Throw off your lab coat and I'll switch some water for the gas. Ah, hello General Fishface and General Wart! You're just in time to watch our latest subject. Notice I place two drops of our friend on his arm and voila!...

GENERAL FISHFACE — Oh look — there's a pirouette!

GENERAL WART — Ooh, and a lovely double axle!

GENERAL FISHFACE — The spasms are nicely spaced, don't you think?

GENERAL WART — Splendidly spaced! And look, we get dry heaves in the bargain!

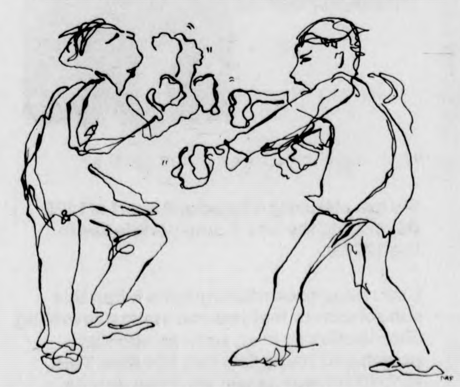
GENERAL FISHFACE — Here comes the agonizing death. I can feel it!

GENERAL WART — Yes, yes, there it is! Oh lovely, a gutwrenching grimace!

GENERAL FISHFACE — I wanta tell you Werner that you lab boys have done a super job, to have gone from a writhing death to an agonizing death in just two weeks, incredible! And as for the preliminary spasms and convulsions, they almost brought tears to my leathery, war-torn countenance. We're off now. Keep up the good work!

WERNER — Hey Manfred they're gone and our jobs are saved. Manfred, you can get up. C'mon Manfred would you get up? Uh, Manfred, please....

Mark Wilding is a Collegian Columnist.



"As long as the poor folks fights the rich folk wars, you'll keep a havin' poor folks, rich folks, and wars. It's the rich folks that makes the poor folks; it's the poor folks that makes the rich folks; an' it's the two of 'em that makes wars — rich folks ram-roddin' 'em, an poor folks a fighten' 'em.

"I would have lots of fights if I had a nother feller to fight 'em for me. But since I got to do my own fightin', I try not to have trouble. Same way with everbody. Make 'em do their own fightin' — and you do away with fightin."

—from "Woody Sez," by Woody Guthrie

jerry rogers

The great escape

"Ohhh, I hate you."
"It's a rough life, huh?"
"You went to Hawaii????"

These are the typical responses I get when people ask me what I did during the spring break and I tell them that I went to Hawaii. And when the first detailed information I offer is my disappointment with the strong Pacific trade winds that prevented me from playing much Frisbee during the week I was there, people become even more incredulous and skeptical about my continued sanity.

They are also in awe when they see that I don't have a tan yet hear that I did finish two books for a class I have.

I ask you then, rhetorically speaking (because I'll give you the answer), what is it that makes a great vacation? Can a definition be given for the crowd that will suit the needs of all people? And what is the validity of charter groups? Is what a person does during a vacation as important as how they feel about the enterprise? And should vacations be educational (either experientially or traditionally)?

The point is, that science has not been able to answer these profound and extremely puzzling questions that concern vacationing students even more than the general populace.

People like to hear that the Kona buds and the pakalolo were indeed quite extraordinary, or that the sun and surf were simply breathtaking. They don't, or simply can't, believe that I spent one afternoon riding around in a pick-up truck with my brother, a friend of his and a few six packs of Olympia. And it's indeed a horror story when I say that during the ride we went to the Honolulu county dump to get rid of some dead pineapple and palm trees, yet I was glad that I went for the ride.

I guess it's just hard to believe that someone who goes to Hawaii wouldn't be at the beach or bar hopping on Waikiki every moment of the time spent there. I guess managing your time well means that you manage to keep homework from using up any of your time rather than some of it and still being able to go to the beach every day.

Therefore, the answer to the rhetorical question raised earlier is that the word vacation is synonymous with the word escapism. A vacation is withdrawal then, rather than respite.

The best example of this that I found in Hawaii is the existence of the Kahala Hilton. The Kahala is where all the beautiful people go to see the real Hawaii, yet they never have to leave the hotel grounds and chance walking past The Doll House with its flashing neon signs proclaiming the all-nude dancers.

The local people are employed to run luaus, not only fish stock the miniature lagoon, but even penguins and deep sea turtles frolic about, and the beach and vegetation are scrutinized constantly to make sure they're maintained properly. Why, the University of Hawaii football team even takes promotional pictures at the Kahala of players with beautiful women standing under the tiny waterfall that fills the miniature lagoon, so I guess it must be really representative of the real Hawaii.

The Kahala then has done everything it possibly could to live up to the definition of a vacation as an escape.

I guess someone who eats and drinks at a Kahala luau yet never leaves the hotel grounds during a vacation is more in keeping with the reality of the islands than someone who eats at the Campus Center snack bar at the University of Hawaii and talks to a middle aged woman working there as a cashier about the university and the community.

But for me, getting the whole picture meant that my trip to the county dump and talking with residents was infinitely more desirable than escaping to an authentically reproduced version of a real Hawaiian luau. Mahalo.

Jerry Rogers is a Collegian Columnist.

commentary

Society's cages

By STEPHEN KLEIN

The term criminal would not exist in its present form if not for the concept of a society made up of a structured system of layers. Our society, through all its omnipotent wisdom, has created an upper class, a lower class, and a zillion classes in between. All those people in our prisons are not from the middle or the upper strata, by no means. Even if someone from the more fortunate layers of the community gets busted, they're not going to jail. They're going to buy themselves an intelligent, well educated attorney. The fact is, 97 per cent of the prison population is comprised of people from the lower class. It's a fact, poor people end up in cages, not rich people. Hmm.

The prevailing attitude of the times may be summarized as "clean up the streets", no matter what it takes. Get tough! People are sick and tired of crime, frustrated, fightened... Judges do not live in court. They live within the same crime ridden community we all live in. Hence, the courts are sentencing people, lots of people. That's what doesn't make sense.

The percentage of men returning to prison after release is in the vicinity of 18 per cent statewide. However, the rectivism rate at M.C.I. Walpole, housing 700 men presently, is about 70 per cent. What needs to be done is to trickle these men down through the corrections system — from the haunting crook-training locations of the maximum security institutions such as M.C.I. Walpole and Concord, to the newer pre-release centers located at Shirley, Lancaster, Norfolk, and Framingham. So what's the problem? Too many people, each one is a problem. That's 700 problems at Walpole State alone. There's not even a serious problem of overcrowding at Walpole and Concord. But within the lower echelon of the system, consisting of the minimum security institutions and the pre-release centers, the overcrowding is very serious. Triple bunked beds, arranging thirty men in a cubicle the size of a dorm room. This results in approximately 250 men who don't need the maximum security of M.C.I. Walpole (Massachusetts Correctional Institute) but who, out of necessity, are stuck there even though what is clearly needed is a better suited atmosphere. What's happening is these men who have a chance to be reformed are instead learning to become professional criminals at our expense. And when they need another two year "education", clang, they're sent right back to the "University of Walpole."

The newly-released inmate walks out with fifty bucks in his pocket and a suit. He knows and we know the reality of the situation. Barring parents, wives, or friends to lean on, he's got nothing going for him but his previous education. Wonder what that was like?

Overcrowded, and why? The state is looking into four locations to house between five and seven hundred men in a reformed minimum-medium security area, greatly alleviating the burden being faced today. In fact it would even serve to reform these people, by helping to create a flow of inmates through the system, as opposed to in and out of Walpole. The communities reaction may be highlighted by the people of Foxborough's attitude, one of the proposed locations. The clergy within the community are leading the people in prayer against the tentative site. If God is on our side, they'll locate in the next town. In Lenox, the general consensus is similar, but the rationalization is unique, and weak. The Jesuit Training School for boys once housed 200 boys. Now that it might house 200 inmates on their way to reformation, the sewer system wouldn't be able to handle the overload. The sewers can handle boys waste but not inmates waste. They're full of waste. Granted, nobody wants a corrections institute located in their living room, but the community must accept some responsibility if they are to continue griping about the surge of crime, and the present corrections system.

There's still the nagging question of reforming those who have "deviated from the social norm" (Remember, the people in prison average an income of less than $3000). These people need a period of adjustment to accustom themselves to prison and then another period to accustom themselves to society. Prison is demeaning. It has a stigma attached to it that can never be escaped from and this is what should be adjusted. Prison is a necessity. It serves its purpose in this society. However, eliminate the lower class, eliminate the need for crime (over 97 per cent). In order to do this, people have to change family by family, one by one. It's society's view of the criminal that needs reevaluation. This is not to say the present system is even acceptable. There are things that can be done immediately. Yet, if people don't renounce their prejudices even the best system wouldn't help reform the criminal. Society must change its outlook as well as the manner in which they deal with offenders of the law.

Community support. The newer modern programs need to be expanded. Those men need to be educated and trained. It makes sense. The furlough system and other programs such as "Project Re-Entry", out of the Berkshire County House of Corrections, have shown their success. Those prisoners given a well deserved chance, don't make any mistakes. There's too much pressure from their fellow inmates, not to mention the administration's harsh pressures. The system is jammed and gummy. The only way to dissolve the stick is funding. The community cannot afford to continue see-sawing these people back and forth between M.C.I. Walpole and the outlying community. That's what's dangerous and costly, nevertheless, it exists today.

If you've ever wondered how the term penitentiary developed, it happened early in this country. If you committed a crime against society, or if you were thought to have committed an offense against the church, you were thrown in a room, alone. Well not all alone, you were given a Bible. After a couple of years of repentance, the person usually came out nuts. Doesn't that seem ridiculous?

Stephen Klein is a Collegian Commentator.

Notices

ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN INVITED
To a Weathervane fashion show tonight at Chi Omega Sorority. For more info and rides call 5-2092 or 5-0162.

ALTERNATIVE
There will be a meeting today for the Jewish Alternative newspaper — presenting all angles of Mideast, U.S. and related news. Tues., March 29, 4 p.m. in our new office, the old cashier's office. Sponsored by Resources Judaica.

ARTHUR TREES, PHOTOGRAPHER
Will speak on March 29 at Merrill Science II at 8. Mr. Trees will show and discuss photographs from his new publication, "Theater of the MInd", the third in a series of books documenting the surrealist fantasies of the artist. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

BIBLICAL EXPLORATION
Tonight from 6:45 to 7:45 p.m. in 422 Student Union, an open search of Revelation 12 for anyone interested in finding more questions at the center of life. All points of view on scripture and faith are welcome and respected. Facilitated by Pete Sabey of the UCF Team ministry.

BIOCHEMISTRY MAJORS
All those interested in forming a department council come to a meeting Tues. at 4:30, SU 426. What does the department mean to you? How can we make it better? Bring ideas. For more info, call SOP at 5-2415.

BREAD & WINE
Tonight from 7:45 p.m. to a little after 8, a simple remembrance of the upper room will be celebrated by candlelight, in SU 422. This communion is offered by UCF as part of an ecumenical ministry to the whole UMass community. All are welcome, regardless of affiliation or faith stance.

CAMPUS SCOUTS
Come to a meeting tonight at 7 in CC 178.

COALITION FOR ALTERNATIVE AGRICULTURE & SELF SUFFICIENCY
Big meeting coming up. Organizing for student work related to the Orchard's preservation and rejuvenation. Wed. at 7 p.m. in CC 164.

DEADLINE
For submitting applications for change of major to LEISURE STUDIES AND RESOURCES has been extended to tomorrow, Wednesday the 30th.

FILMS ABOUT PRIMATES
Anthro Dept. film series presents 3 films on non-human primates: MISS GOODALL & THE WILD CHIMPANZEES, BABOON BEHAVIOR, AND MONKEYS OF MYSORE. Tonight at 8 in Thompson 102. FREE.

FIVE COLLEGE AREA COUNCIL
The 5-College Area Council for Exceptional children invites you to attend a lecture-workshop given by Dr. Robert Hawley on "Developing Human Values with Children". This event will be held on March 30, CC 904-908 at 7:30 p.m.

FRISBEE PRACTICE
There will be ultimate practice today, tomorrow and Thursday at 3:30 near the CC pond. Be there, Aloha. ps: First game at Tufts this Saturday.

HOUSING EXEMPTIONS
All applications for housing exemptions must be submitted no later than April 8. Applications received after this date will NOT be accepted. Please be prompt.

JEWS WITH NON-JEWISH PARTNERS
RAP group to explore problems of interfaith to clarify the issues and deepen understanding of possible options, today at 4 p.m. in CC 902.

JUGGLING CONVENTION-APRIL FOOLS
Juggling Convention to be held in SU on April 1, 2, 3. Many workshops planned. Come and learn to juggle, unicycle, mime and apply make-up. See some of the best jugglers on the East Coast perform. Non-competitive juggling is magic in the springtime.

KAPPA KAPPA PSI-TAU BETA SIGMA
There is a mandatory meeting for all brothers, sisters and pledges tonight at 7 p.m. in Old Chapel. Absence will urge consideration for your suspension.

LOST
Silver ring with tree design on North Pleasant St. 3-19. Sentimental value. Reward. 549-5320 or 5-2714.

LOST
Gold signet ring with initials J.R. Please call 665-7006 eves.

LOST
Pair glasses dark brown frames. Between SW & CC. 6-8483.

LOST
Pair of pink-rimmed glasses somewhere between Morril and SU. Reward. Lou, 584-2934.

MENTAL HEALTH ADVOCACY
Students who wish to be trained as mental health advocates in a one-year clinical and classroom program beginning July 1 should attend an aft meeting on Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at the Mental Patients Advocacy Project, N'ton State Hospital. For more info: Prof Arons, Legal Studies, 5-2000 or Mental Patients Adv., 584-1644 X265.

MUSICIANS
To play sets this Sat. at the Washington Coffee House. Call 6-8943.

PRE-PASSOVER WORKSHOP
Rabbi Jeger of Holyoke will lead a workshop today at 4 p.m. in CC 803. He will give a radical interpretation of the meaning of the 10 plaques. Open to all interested persons.

PROGRAM COUNCIL MUSIC COMM
Meeting tonight at 7:30 in the office 415 SU.

SEMINAR ON MEDICINE
Tonight's topics will be Leukemia (chronic and acute) and Hodgkins Disease. There will be movies on both. The class roster is finally set, so unfortunately no new students can register.

SEX DISCRIMINATION
All students, staff and faculty are invited to attend an open hearing TODAY relevant to sex discrimination in the Student Activities Office. At noon - 2 in CC 165.

SHAB
Student Health Advisory Board meeting tonight at 5:30 in CC 177. That is 5:30 and not 6:30. Please attend.

STUDENT OF OBJECTIVISM
There will be a meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. in CC 801 to discuss RSO business and the FOUNTAINHEAD movie. For info: Drew Crane 549-0360.

UPDATE ON ATTICA
The film ATTICA will be shown and a discussion will follow to update students on the aftermath of the Attica rebellion and the march in NYC on April 2. Tonight 9 p.m. Field Main Lounge, Orchard Hill.

VIDEO SIDEWALK PRESENTS
Premiering this week, THE STRIFE OF LIFE, a soap opera about student life, also featuring Improvisions, the tv magazine program, and from the Toward Tomorrow Series, STEWART BRAND-HERMAN Kahn DISCUSSION. Tuesday CC Concourse. Wed., the Hatch 11:30-2:30.

WORKSHOP
Heymakers our Bi-Weekly workshop will be tonight at 8 in Cape Cod Lounge. Bring money for dues and or convention. If you plan to go to convention your money must be in tonight. See you in a square.

©1977 JOS. SCHLITZ BREWING CO., MILWAUKEE, WIS.

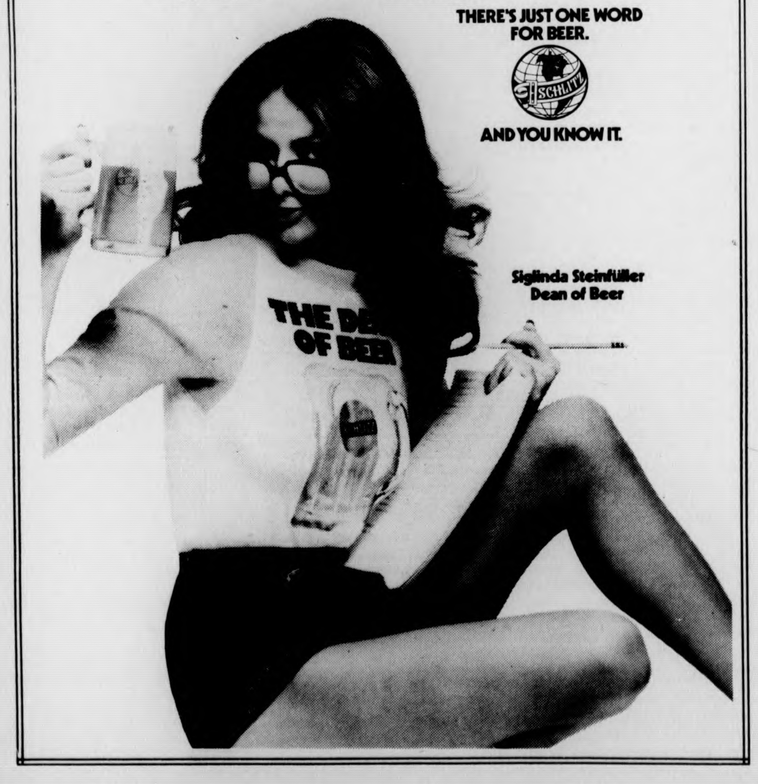
THE DEAN OF BEER'S QUICKIE QUIZ.

Q: Chill-Lagering is:
a) A popular German country and western singer.
b) A Scandinavian winter sport played without clothes.
c) A new ethnic TV comedy about the owner of an ice cube factory.
d) The right way to age beer.

A: (d) Sorry, Chill-Lagering is not Olga and Svend running around in a snowstorm in their birthday suits. Chill-Lagering is the way Schlitz ages beer.
They age it cold. Very cold. Down to 29.5 degrees. The result is a beer with sparkling clarity. A beer that's crisp, clean and bright.
I suggest you look into one right now.

THERE'S JUST ONE WORD FOR BEER.

AND YOU KNOW IT.



WHAT'S HAPPENING

Concert pianist heard tonight

UMass pianist Estela Olevsky will be heard in a free concert of Music from Latin America and Spain tonight at 8:00 in the Fine Arts Center. The program will feature works by Soler, Villa-Lobos, Ginastera and Albeniz.

Russian orchestra performing at FAC

The world-famous Osipov Balalaika Orchestra of Russia will perform in concert Monday, April 4 at the Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m.

Direct from Moscow, the company of 75 under the direction of conductor Victor Dubrovsky features singers and dancers of the celebrated Bolshoi Opera Company and dancers of the Grand Bolshoi Ballet. The Osipov performance in

TURN TO PAGE 11

Amherst Auto Parts
Used car parts
Junk Car?
We pay $10 and up.
Replace Glass
Buy and Sell Cars
Located ½ mile past the Rusty Scupper on Rt. 9, behind Amherst landfill.
Phone 256-6409

Position Open

CENTRAL AREA CRAFTSHOP DIRECTOR

$50 a week for 20 hours work
- Two room furnished apartment in Greenough for $30 a month
- Silver and Leather primarily
- Colloqs.

Contact
Mark Richardson
104 Greenough Dorm
5-2638 or 5-2639

MEMO: TO YOUNG PHOTOGRAPHERS
SUBJECT:
TURNING YOUR CAMERA INWARD

When we talk of "turning your camera inward," we do not mean self-portraits. We want to see publishable photographs that show (without the need of words) what is distinctive about your college, your relationships or any other areas of your life.

LIFE
LIFE
Confrontation in Harvard Yard

What are the pictures of the 1970's?

We are planning a Special Report of LIFE describing the way young people live in the 1970's.

If you have good photographs taken this school year or feel you can make a revealing contribution by May, write as soon as possible to Radio City Box 624 New York, N.Y. 10019 and we will send you details.

LIFE Special Report

CONT. FROM PAGE 10

Amherst is part of a 70-city tour throughout the United States. The Balalaika is the national instrument of Russia.

Tickets for the performance are on sale at the Fine Arts Center. Ticket prices are: General public $7, 6, 5: UMass students $5, 4, 3; other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4. The Fine Arts Center box office is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, 545-2511.

Material welcome for Wood evaluation

The Faculty Senate has established a Committee to Evaluate President Robert C. Wood (Senate Document No. 77-029). The evaluation will take the form of a report to the Board of Trustees. Members of the faculty, students (both graduate and undergraduate) and professional staff persons are invited to submit material for our use. Communication with the committee can take the following forms:

— An interview can be arranged by calling the Faculty Senate Office, 545-3611.

— Signed written statements can be sent to the committee c-o the Faculty Senate Office, Room 418 GRC Tower B.

— An open meeting will be held at 9:00 a.m. on Thursday, April 7th, in the Campus Center 803.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Index portrait deadline extended

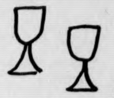
Due to the tremendous response of the class of '77 the yearbook portrait program has been extended so that everyone can have their picture in the Index. Appointments can be made this week by calling 545-2874 or going to the 9th floor C.C. between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Speaker on Christ appearing Wed.

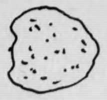
Russ Johnston, spokesperson for World Outreach for Christ, will speak on "How to Prepare Your Life for the 21st Century" Wednesday night at 7:00 in the Baker

TURN TO PAGE 13

Come to our house for the



SEDERS



CHABAD HOUSE
Invites you to join us for the Passover Seders.

SAT. NT.	SUN. NT.
April 2 7:30 p.m.	April 3 7:30 p.m.

$4.00 for one Seder
$7.50 for both Seders

30 N. Hadley Rd.
near 5-college bus-stop at Southwest UMass.
253-9040
for reservations by March 31.

University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS

THE OSIPOV
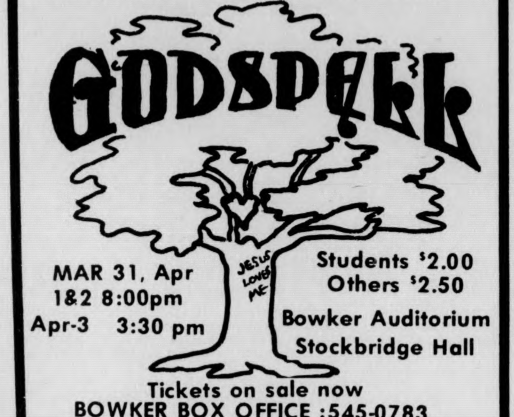
BALALAIKA
ORCHESTRA
WITH STARS OF THE
Bolshoi Ballet & Bolshoi Opera
COMPANY OF 75

MONDAY, APRIL 4 8 PM
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
Tickets now on sale. $7, 6, 5. UM-A - $5, 4, 3. Other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

UMass Music Theatre Guild presents



MAR 31, Apr 1&2 8:00pm
Apr-3 3:30 pm
Students $2.00
Others $2.50
Bowker Auditorium
Stockbridge Hall
Tickets on sale now
BOWKER BOX OFFICE :545-0783

SOME PROBLEM DRINKERS NEVER GET DRUNK.

Hard to believe, but true. You don't have to get drunk with alcohol to have alcohol problems. If it's interfering with home life, job, recreational pursuits, or personal relationships, you've got a problem. Help is available as it is for any other problem or illness.
Alcohol Education Project
Room-to-Move and Health Education
549-2671

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

PRAGUE
CHAMBER
ORCHESTRA
36 VIRTUOSO MUSICIANS IN MATCHLESS ENSEMBLE WITHOUT CONDUCTOR

A concerto festival with
Hans Richter-Haaser, piano soloist
Wed., March 30 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $7, 6, 5. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
NOW...ends Thursday!
at 7:00 and 9:00
(only area showing)
A film by Jeanne Moreau
"DAZZLING... SEXY, AND FUN."
– WCBS-TV
"BRILLIANT."
– New York Post
LUMIERE
A film by Jeanne Moreau
Roger Corman presents "LUMIERE" starring Jeanne Moreau · Francine Racette
Lucia Bose · Caroline Cartier and Keith Carradine Written and directed by Jeanne Moreau
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

Classifieds

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line
Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE
[illegible]

FOR SALE
[illegible]

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE
[illegible]

AUTO FOR SALE
[illegible]

HELP WANTED
[illegible]

AUDIO
[illegible]

FOR RENT
[illegible]

FOR RENT
[illegible]

ENTERTAINMENT
[illegible]

PERSONALS
[illegible]

TO SUBLET
[illegible]

TO SUBLET
[illegible]

ROOMMATE WANTED
[illegible]

WANTED
[illegible]

SERVICES
[illegible]

SERVICES
[illegible]

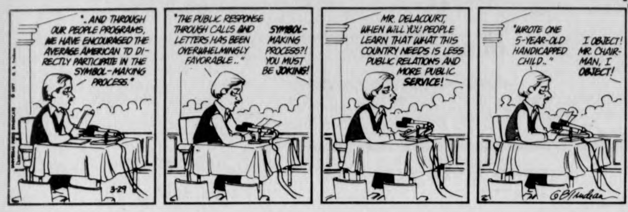
LOST
[illegible]

CALCULATORS
[illegible]

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

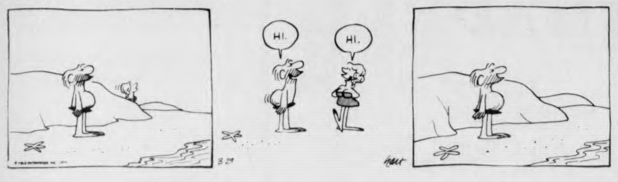
DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Valley
29 S. Pleasant St.
call 256-6736
M - F 10-6 S 10-2



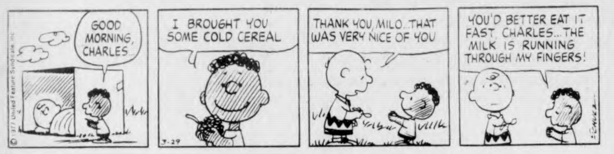
"..AND THROUGH OUR PEOPLE PROGRAMS, WE HAVE ENCOURAGED THE AVERAGE AMERICAN TO DIRECTLY PARTICIPATE IN THE SYMBOL-MAKING PROCESS."
"THE PUBLIC RESPONSE THROUGH CALLS AND LETTERS HAS BEEN OVERWHELMINGLY FAVORABLE.."
SYMBOL-MAKING PROCESS?! YOU MUST BE JOKING!
MR. DELACOURT, WHEN WILL YOU PEOPLE LEARN THAT WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS LESS PUBLIC RELATIONS AND MORE PUBLIC SERVICE!
"WROTE ONE 5-YEAR-OLD HANDICAPPED CHILD.."
I OBJECT! MR. CHAIRMAN, I OBJECT!
3-29
GBTrudeau

B.C. by Johnny Hart



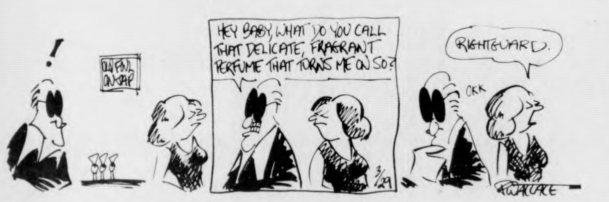
PEANUTS by Charles M. Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



GOOD MORNING, CHARLES...
I BROUGHT YOU SOME COLD CEREAL
THANK YOU, MILO...THAT WAS VERY NICE OF YOU
YOU'D BETTER EAT IT FAST, CHARLES...THE MILK IS RUNNING THROUGH MY FINGERS!
3-29
SCHULZ

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



!
OLD FOUL ON TAP
HEY BABY, WHAT DO YOU CALL THAT DELICATE, FRAGRANT PERFUME THAT TURNS ME ON SO?
OKK RIGHTGUARD.
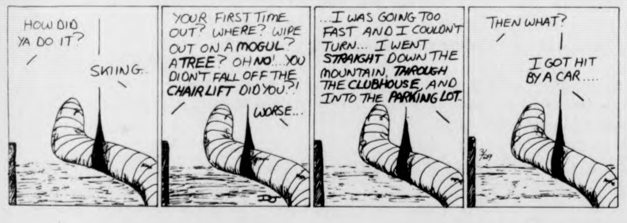
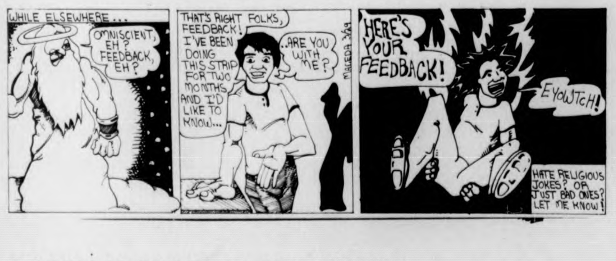
3/29
P.WALLACE

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



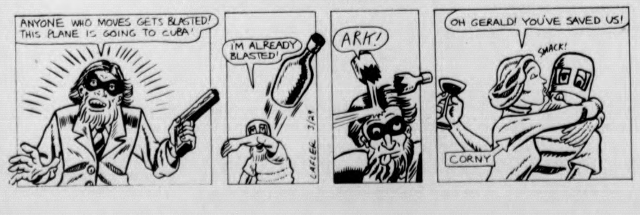
HOW DID YA DO IT?
SKIING..
YOUR FIRST TIME OUT? WHERE? WIPE OUT ON A MOGUL? A TREE? OH NO!...YOU DIDN'T FALL OFF THE CHAIRLIFT DID YOU?!
WORSE...
...I WAS GOING TOO FAST AND I COULDN'T TURN... I WENT STRAIGHT DOWN THE MOUNTAIN, THROUGH THE CLUBHOUSE, AND INTO THE PARKING LOT..
THEN WHAT?
I GOT HIT BY A CAR....
3/29

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



WHILE ELSEWHERE...
OMNISCIENT, EH? FEEDBACK, EH?
THAT'S RIGHT FOLKS, FEEDBACK! I'VE BEEN DOING THIS STRIP FOR TWO MONTHS AND I'D LIKE TO KNOW...
..ARE YOU WITH ME?
MACEDA 3/29
HERE'S YOUR FEEDBACK!
EYOWTCH!
HATE RELIGIOUS JOKES? OR JUST BAD ONES? LET ME KNOW!

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



ANYONE WHO MOVES GETS BLASTED! THIS PLANE IS GOING TO CUBA!
I'M ALREADY BLASTED!
LAFLER 3/29
ARK!
OH GERALD! YOU'VE SAVED US!
SMACK!
CORNY

Local Television

6:00 3 8 22 30 NEWS
24 TV COMMUNITY COLLEGE — MAN BUILDS, MAN DESTROYS
40 GUNSMOKE "The Bullet" Part II
57 ZOOM
6:30 8 22 30 NEWS
24 STUDIO SEE
57 REBOP
6:55 40 NEWS
7:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS
18 FESTIVAL OF FAITH
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
27 THE FBI "The Monster"
30 THE CROSS-WITS
57 IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS
7:30 3 CELEBRITY SWEEPSTAKES
8 THE TEN PIN PICK-UP
22 HOLLYWOOD SQUARES
24 CONNECTICUT
30 $100,000 NAME THAT TUNE
40 THE GONG SHOW
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 WHO'S WHO CBS News
8 40 HAPPY DAYS "Fonzie's Baptism"
22 30 38 ALL CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL
24 57 NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SPECIAL "The Incredible Machine"
32 BOSTON CELTICS BASKETBALL
8:30 8 40 LAVERNE AND SHIRLEY "Lonely at the Middle"
9:00 3 M-A-S-H
8 40 EIGHT IS ENOUGH "The Gipper Caper"
24 57 IN SEARCH OF THE REAL AMERICA
9:30 3 ONE DAY AT A TIME
22 30 DEAD OF NIGHT — A TRILOGY OF TERROR 1. "Second Chance"; 2. "No Such Thing as Vampire"; 3. "Bobby"
24 57 COUSTEAU: OASIS IN SPACE "The Power Game"
38 MOVIE "When You're in Love"
10:00 3 MITZI GAYNOR SPECIAL
8 40 FAMILY "There Are More Things in Heaven and Earth"
24 WORLD IN ACTION
57 LOWELL THOMAS REMEMBERS
10:30 24 THE GOODIES
57 CONSUMER SURVIVAL KIT
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
57 MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN
11:30 3 CBS LATE MOVIE "McMillan and Wife: Aftershock"
8 40 TUESDAY MOVIE OF THE WEEK: "Outrage"
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
57 CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS
12:30 18 HIGH ADVENTURE
1:00 8 40 NEWS
22 30 TOMORROW
1:30 3 NEWS, WEATHER
2:00 22 30 NEWS

Your Birthday

by Stella Wilder

Tuesday, March 29 — Born today, you are one those highly artistic individuals who knows instinctively how to commercialize the products of his art. You know precisely what the public will buy, what audiences will applaud, and so on -- and knowing that, you will direct your gifts toward ends that will satisfy both the waiting public's demands of taste and your own demands in the way of earning a substantial living. Nor are you ashamed of having such an attitude. You believe that one can be prouder of exploiting his gifts, of finding ways in which they can be employed for their possessor's benefit, than in living according to some wrong-headed notion of art ennobled through poverty or poverty-producing circumstances.

You possess intelligence and emotional restraint. The former will enable you to make the most of your talents; the latter will keep you from sentimentalizing your gifts out of all useful purpose. If you can match intelligence and emotional restraint with determination and imagination, you can hardly fail to make your mark upon the world. Nor need your gifts be of heroic proportions; even a modicum of talent can be the basis for "big things." Only your hesitation over sharing both your gifts and your needs with one who could be of considerable help to you could keep you from success.

You have a great deal of understanding for other people's difficulties. You may, in fact, often be called upon to rescue others from their various and sundry plights, for you will early gain a reputation for problem-solving. You may, however, have little inclination toward being an active help to others. You prefer remaining in the background, offering solutions, to be sure, but expecting others to transform your plans into action.

* * *

Wednesday, March 30

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Important documents must be protected against loss or damage today. There are those who may attempt to discredit you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Today offers you a change -- and a chance. Take advantage of each, especially if you can involve children in a new development.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — This is an excellent working day, whether you spend it at home or elsewhere. Deliver on a promise before day's end.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A romantic experience may leave you somewhat "down" by day's end. Be sure to take another up on a promise to apply pressure on your behalf.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — This is a favorable day for financial affairs. The elderly may prove worrisome early in the day; plans gel during afternoon and evening hours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Handle all affairs of youngsters with as much care as you would handle your own. You owe children your best efforts – all day!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Take greater care than usual with details. There is nothing to be gained by backing away in fear from your problems. Adopt a new image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — There are more reasons for differences between friends than you have been willing to admit. Try to look at things objectively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Considerable travel away from home takes you into areas you would rather avoid. Make the best of a poor situation at evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Smooth out differences that have arisen only recently between you and a loved one. Another may be causing trouble behind your back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — For your physical health's sake, take your mind off your worries. Take some time off for fun. Rearrange your schedule.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Prevent accidents in the home and on the employment scene. Do your part in protecting the young. Develop new habits of care and industry.

Copyright, 1977, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate

ACROSS

1 Diplomatic necessity
5 Give a beating to 9 Musical instrument
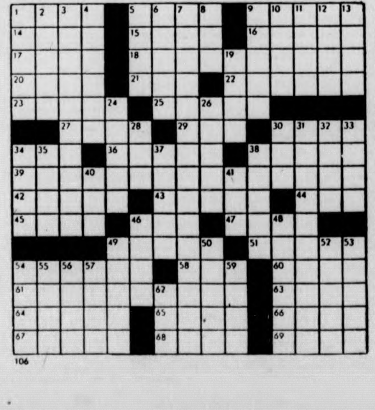
14 Turkish leader
15 "Now he belongs to the ----"
16 Daughter's spouse
17 Make defective
18 Nut: 2 words
20 "Trail of the Lonesome ----"
21 Against: Prefix
22 Ragged
23 "----- of robins ...."
25 Ann -----
27 ---- in: Intervene
29 Body part
30 Stain
34 --- neck: Canine defect
36 Norman Vincent -----
38 Think
39 Baseball stats: 2 words
42 Staple food
43 Improve
44 Superlative ending
45 For men only
46 Corroded
47 Showing, for short
49 Ward off
51 Small circular bands
54 Food for animals
58 Irritate
60 Ammo item
61 Anti-U.S.A.
63 Rushed headlong
64 Athenian poet
65 Wall part
66 Apart from that
67 Ontario canal
68 Over again
69 Fall back

DOWN

1 "Cigar" city
2 Another time
3 Oolong: 2 words
4 Most docile
5 Buddhist monk
6 Centaurus star
7 Panamanian e.g.: 2 words
8 MST plus two hours
9 Maker of a heap
10 Early So. American king
11 Sorrowful word
12 Promontory: Var.
13 Was in debt
19 Jot
24 Not so hot
26 Musical note
28 Writing instrument
30 Mineral spring
31 Desk compartment
32 Some greenbacks
33 Lab. routine
34 Falls back
35 Skin protuberance
37 Marble
38 Society structure
40 Follow closely
41 Extremity
46 Declare positively
48 Title of respect
49 Deputy
50 Craft
52 Scottish golf hazard
53 End of -----: Railhead
54 Mustiness
55 -- -- about
56 Rattling sound
57 King of Judah
59 Recognize
62 Miss Lupino

Monday's Puzzle Solved

C	H	A	D	■	H	I	S	S	■	■	C	A	D	R	E
R	O	L	E	■	A	T	I	P	■	O	N	I	O	N
U	N	I	T	■	H	A	L	O	■	V	E	R	S	E
S	O	B	E	R	■	L	A	R	G	E	N	E	S	S
T	R	I	C	A	R	■	S	T	A	R	T	■	■	■
■	■	■	T	I	E	S	■	S	I	T	■	P	E	R
R	E	F	I	N	E	M	E	N	T	■	T	A	M	E
A	L	L	O	Y	■	A	T	E	■	P	E	R	I	L
T	S	I	N	■	F	L	A	W	L	E	S	S	L	Y
S	A	T	■	B	E	L	■	S	U	E	T	■	■	■
■	■	■	S	E	A	T	S	■	G	R	A	S	P	S
R	I	G	H	T	T	I	M	E	■	S	M	A	R	T
A	L	L	A	T	■	M	I	N	E	■	E	V	O	E
P	L	U	M	E	■	E	L	S	E	■	N	O	V	A
E	S	T	E	R	■	R	E	E	L	■	T	R	O	D



UNITED TRANSMISSION EXCHANGE, INC.
ALL MAKE CAR AND TRUCK TRANSMISSIONS
REPAIRED
REBUILT
EXCHANGED
KING STREET NORTHAMPTON
584-6790

...CONTEST....CONTEST....

WHAT'S THE WORD??

Somewhere in today's Collegian is a word which means: "Sweet smelling; pleasant odor."

FIND IT AND YOU COULD BE OUR $5.00 DAILY WINNER!

Contest Rules: Submit your entry to the Daily Collegian Business Office before 3:30 P.M., the day of the issue, indicating what the word is and where it appeared. A DAILY WINNER WILL BE DRAWN FROM ALL CORRECT ENTRIES.

The winner's name will appear in the Daily Collegian the following day.

Yesterday's winner:

STEVE CORBIN

Yesterday's word:

DISCRIMINATE

..CONTEST....CONTEST..

CONT. FROM PAGE 11

Basement Lounge and 9 p.m. in the basement of Thatcher dormitory in Northeast.

On Thursday Johnston will deliver the same speech at 9 p.m. in the Hampden Dining Commons in Southwest. At each of the talks free refreshments will be served. Bring your own cup.

Spanish theatrical company schedule

The Spanish theatrical company called "Aula de la Universidad de Valladdid" will tour the Five College area today to April 5. The schedule of events and performances includes a March 31 performance of two entremeses of Cervantes: "Retablo de las maravillas" and "El viejo celoso," Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke, 8 p.m.

There will be a performance of "El desvan de los machos y el sotano de las hembras" (Men's Garrett, Women's Basement) by Luis Riaza, Theatre 14, Fine Arts Center, Smith College 8 p.m.

A colloquium on the theatre in Spain will be given in Herter Hall, 3rd floor lounge at 8 p.m. Panelists: Luis Riaza, the playwright, Juan Antonio Quintana, director of the company and members of the company's cast will be present.

Five College students will be admitted free to the performances on presentation of their ID cards. Admission charge for all others is $1.00. Some 100 copies of the Riaza play are available in the Spanish dept. office compliments of Joan Ciruti and the Mt. Holyoke Spanish dept.

What's Happening

Important info for June grads

All graduating seniors with a National Direct Loan are required by the federal government to have an "exit interview" with a representative of the bursar's office to discuss your rights and obligations under the conditions of the loan. For this purpose, we are holding two meetings, one tomorrow night in Herter 231 at

This is an important part of your National Direct Loan and your cooperation will be appreciated so that we will not have to administratively withdraw you under the conditions required by the Federal Government.

7:30. The second meeting will be on Thursday evening in SBA 120 at 7:30. You may attend either of the meetings. Seniors with loans are being notified by mail. If you do not receive a notice you should come anyway.

Agriculture coalition to preserve orchard

The initial project of the Coalition for Alternative Agriculture and Self-Sufficiency is the preservation and rejuvenation of the "abandoned" University Orchard. A meeting for all interested will be held tomorrow in Campus Center 164 at 7:00 p.m.

No one can deny the fact that eating is becoming a very expensive habit, even more so for residents of Massachusetts where food costs are among the highest in the nation. Dependence on out-of-state sources for 85 per cent of our food is one reason we're paying top-dollar at the supermarket. Our main supplier, will have no food to spare for export withint the next 25 years. In anticipation of the serious effects of like trends on Massachusetts consumers, the state Department of Food and Agriculture has issued a Policy for Food and Agriculture in Massachusetts. The policy makes a direct appeal to the University to assume some of the responsibility to ensure we will be able to cope with the impending food crisis.

The Coalition for Alternative Agriculture and Self-Sufficiency here is a group of students and faculty interested in using some of the 4,000 acres the University owns statewide to make it more self-sufficient in terms of food production via increased cultivation of University land, alternative energy systems, and waste recycling. In addition to providing an invaluable educational experience for students, this self-sustaining system could serve as a future food-energy model for Massachusetts and New England.

DYNOMITE
ATTENTION • • • ALL UMASS. STUDENTS.
YOUR NEWSPAPER—THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN—IS LOOKING FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK THEY CAN SELL. WE HAVE POSITIONS OPEN FOR THE COMING SEMESTER. THIS IS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO EARN EXTRA MONEY AND ACQUIRE GREAT JOB EXPERIENCE.
interested?: Drop this coupon off to Steve Lesser, Ad Manager, at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, or call 545-3500.
WHEELS ARE NECESSARY!
I'm interested in becoming a Collegian Ad Rep:
Name:
Address:
Telephone:
Any selling experience?
( ) Yes ( ) No
Do you have a car?
( ) Yes ( ) No

It's a matter of degrees at the University of MAINE at ORONO
SUMMER SESSIONS
The degrees-cooler summer climate of Vacationland Maine is a great place to earn your degree credits. You'll be happy with the under graduate and graduate courses, distinguished faculty, visiting lecturers, conferences, workshops, sports clinics, concerts, week-end outings and modern dormitory accommodations. The recreational opportunities are endless at nearby lakes, mountains and seashore — plus many on-campus facilities including an Olympic-size indoor swimming pool.
TEN WEEK SESSION
1 eight-week evening session (twice a week) June 20 - Aug 11
1 six-week session July 11 - Aug 19
2 five-week sessions June 20 - July 22, July 25 - Aug 26
3 three-week sessions June 20 - July 8, July 11 - July 29, Aug 1 - Aug 19
For detailed information write DIRECTOR OF SUMMER SESSIONS
1420 Merrill Hall, University of Maine at Orono, Orono, Maine 04473
Make Vacationland Your Vocationland

Welcome Back
NW.
OPEN EVERY DAY
MUNCHYS
WORCESTER 10:00 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
FRANKLIN 11:00 a.m.-7:00 p.m.
HAMPDEN 8:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m.
SNACK BAR
WORCESTER 7:00 a.m.-10:30 p.m.
HAMPDEN 7:30 a.m.-1:00 a.m.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

U.N. under-secretary at Mount Holyoke

Dr. Davidson Nicol, Under Secretary General of the United Nations and Executive Director of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research, will speak on Third World and the United Nations tonight at 8 p.m. in Gamble Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College.

Dr. Nicol has been a prolific writer both in the area of his scholarly interests and as a poet and novelist. He has won critical acclaim for his creative writing.

School of Education entrance interviews

The School of Education has set the schedule for admissions interviews for students who wish to enter one of the 18 alternative undergraduate programs offered by the School. Further information on these programs and applications can be obtained at the Program Fair today, 12:30-4 p.m. in the Main Lobby of Hills.

The interviews will begin April 4.

'Toward Tomorrow' taped highlights

The Toward Tomorrow Fair, held in June 1976, examined social-possibilities and energy-alternatives through lectures and workshops, exhibits and booths. Most students were away at the time, and so the Student Video Project has prepared a series of tapes to present highlights from this celebration of the future.

Tonight at 7:30 in the Commuter Collective Lounge, Student Union, a taped debate between Steward Brand and Herman Kahn on "The Pros and Cons of Centralization" will be shown, followed by a round of discussion led by Robert Kahn of the Future Studies Program. Admission is free and there are refreshments.

This same tape, along with an interview of anarchist Sam Lovejoy, a local proponent of decentralization, will be shown as part of the Video Sidewalk program, this afternoon on the concourse and on Wednesday.

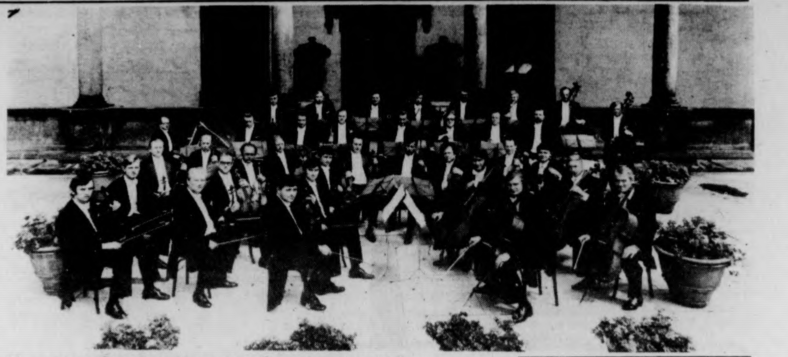
Cheerleading tryouts slated

Tryouts for next year's Cheerleading Squad will begin tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the main gym in Boyden. All interested men and women should attend this important first meeting.

Passover workshop interprets 10 Plagues

"A Radical Interpretation of the Ten Plagues" will be the subject of the Pre-Passover Workshop to be led by Rabbi Daniel Jezer of Holyoke, today at 4 p.m. in Campus Center 803. Rabbi Jezer will take a new look at an old story, as the Egyptians might have seen it.

Tomorrow afternoon Rabbi Saul Perlmutter, UMass Hillel rabbi, will hold a workshop on "How to Do Passover". At the workshop, which will be held at 2:30 p.m. in CC 803, Rabbi Perlmutter will explain how to do your own seder, understand the symbols, etc. All interested people are invited to attend these workshops.



Prague Orchestra performs tonight

The Prague Chamber Orchestra, 36 instrumentalists without conductor, now on its sixth American Tour, will appear in concert tonight, at 8:00 in the Fine Arts Concert Hall. Appearing as soloist with the Orchestra, pianist Hans Richter-Haaser, one of the world's most sought-after artists, will be heard in works by Schumann, Beethoven and Mozart.

Following the ensemble's first American debut during the 1964-65 season, the public response was such that four consecutive tours were booked in succeeding years.

Tickets for the concert are now on sale at the Fine Arts Center box office and at all Ticketron Outlets. They are priced at $5, $6 and $7 for the general public; one-half price for UMass-Amherst students; $1 off the regular price for senior citizens and students attending schools other than UMass Amherst. For further ticket information call the box office, 545-2511, which is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, Monday thru Friday.

Olympics set funds

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The Commerce Department Monday approved a $30.2 million grant to help build facilities for the 1980 winter Olympic games in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said construction of the facilities is scheduled to begin later this spring.

"The facilities to be improved and constructed with the grant will have a dual purpose — to provide the necessary accommodations for the XIII Olympic winter games and later to serve as the foundation for long-term economic growth in the Essex County area of New York," said Mrs. Kreps.

A check for the first $1 million of the Commerce grant was turned over Monday to Lake Placid Mayor Robert Peacock and two members of the Lake Placid 1980 Olympic Games, Inc., Ronald MacKenzie and John Shea.

B.B. writers appoint head

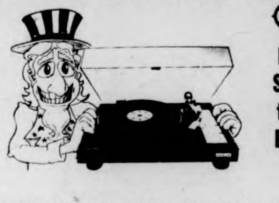
ATLANTA [UPI] — Edgar Allen of the Nashville Banner has been elected president of the United States Basketball Writers Association at their annual meeting here.

Allen succeeded Steve Guback of the Washington Star who was elected secretary-treasurer, replacing Ray Marquette of the Indianapolis Star.

U.Mass
Student Federal
Credit Union
POSITION AVAILABLE.
MANAGER
15 credit internship
An interview is required.
Contact Linda Cote,
or Anne Smith 545-2800.

CLOG
Headquarters
the SHOE-BIN
"OPEN FRIDAY NITES"
AMHERST, MASS.

SHIRTS
$5.00
Famous Name
Factory Returns
and Irregulars
Originally $14-$20.
NOW $5.00
Excellent Condition
Faces of Earth
Next to the Amherst Post Office
Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.



Let Uncle Sam buy you a better turntable.
HITACHI
Believably better.
PS-48 Direct Drive, Semi-auto, Wow and flutter .025%, with Empire 2000E3 Cart. list $279.95
NOW $215
or one of these fine tables - all complete with Base, Dust Cover and Cartridge

	list	NOW
Hitachi PS-10 Belt-Drive w/Pickering SE1 Cart.	$154	110
Garrard 440M	110	70
Philips 406	225	169
Philips 212	194	150
Philips 427	155	85
Thorens TD 165 w/Empire 4000D1	255	135

ANY PURCHASE WITH TAX REBATE CHECK--10% OFF!
wheel and deal for your best price -- then flash the check for 10% more.
the Sound room
186 Main St., Northampton 584-4478
Mon-Fri 10-6; Sat 10-5
44 Elliot St., Brattleboro, Vt.
Mon-Fri 9:30-5:30; Sat 9:30-4:30

Yarworth was at his best during mermen's off year

By MARK MARCHAND
Collegian Staff

What the UMass men's swim team needs is a few more performers like Russ Yarworth.

Yarworth, a junior Biochemistry major, was recently named the most valuable member for the '76-'77 season by UMass coach Bei Melamed. It wasn't a hard choice to make as Yarworth led the team in scoring, amassing a total of 92 points en route to his finest season ever.

In addition, the 6'1" 170 lb. swimmer now holds six UMass records and is coming off of a fine performance in the New England championships where he placed second in the 400-yard IM and third in the 200-yard IM. Also, Yarworth is a sure bet to be named to the Yankee Conference All-Star squad as he was already selected for his performances last season.

A native of Attleboro, Yarworth began swimming at the age of nine and was a top swimmer in the state at the age of ten while with the YMCA. From there, his talents continually improved as he lettered three times while swimming for Attleboro High School.

From high school, Yarworth came directly to UMass where he quickly established himself as a prominent swimmer while becoming a fixture on the squad.

It might also be of some interest to note that Yarworth had a lot of influence from his parents on swimming as both were swimmers during their collegiate careers.

An extremely versatile competitor who swims all four strokes with equal talent, Yarworth is looking for some great accomplishments when he finishes up his career here next season.

"I'd like to win an event in the New England's and qualify for the National finals," said Yarworth. "My primary goal is to help the team to a winning record first and then try to achieve some of my individual goals."

While Yarworth had an excellent season, the UMass swim team didn't do as well as it turned in a lackluster 4-7 record with a 13th place finish in the New England's.

"The quitting of several key personnel at the outset of the season and the lack of experience on the part of our younger swimmers really hurt us," Yarworth said. "There isn't any scholarship program for swimming so we really can't attract any of the fine swimmers in this area to our school."

For Melamed, Yarworth has only praise. "Bei has worked with me a lot since I've come here and as a result, my stroke is greatly improved," Yarworth stated. "Bei really knows a lot about swimming and has the ability to teach any of the swimmers that come here."

Yarworth is a real team leader and a lot of the younger swimmers look up to him. He has been dubbed 'boosty' by Melamed, who has managed to come up with a different name for each team member. It was Yarworth, along with seniors Ben Crooker and Dave Boucher, who formed the nucleus of the team in an otherwise unproductive year.

The 19-year-old Yarworth hopes to go on to graduate school after he finishes his undergraduate studies and lists teaching as one of his possible future occupations. A self proclaimed "lover of life," he also competes on the UMass water polo team, which he would like to see made into a varsity sport.

Next season, Melamed will be relying tremendously upon Yarworth to do a large amount of scoring unless the unexpected happens and one of the star swimmers from one of the area high schools decides to attend UMass.

Mike Berger

Mark Donoghue did his job well

Now that the UMass basketball season has ended and one has had time to either analyze, forget, and-or remember the good points, one player I will never forget was number 50, senior center Mark Donoghue.

Donoghue wasn't the most prolific scorer, certainly not the most spectacular dribbler, but he won this reporter's respect for his overall play-He wasn't someone who was flashy, nor someone that made you stand up and say "Hey, what a player". But if the 6-8, 212 lb. senior from Greenfield didn't play, UMass never would have beaten Rutgers twice this season, nor would it have beaten Seton Hall to get into the quarterfinals of the N.I.T. In short, UMass never would have been as good as it was this season, if not for Donoghue.

"Mark Donoghue," said UMass coach Jack Leaman, "came closest to reaching full potential as any player I have ever coached."

"He always didn't play spectacular but he always played as hard as he could. Mark can be proud of his play here at UMass because he earned every bit of success he accomplished," Leaman said.

Leaman said that Donoghue became the first player he ever coached to be selected as the team's captain twice in successive years.

Donoghue finished the seventh leading rebounder in the ECBL League and second leading on the UMass team. He finished the season with a 7.9 average and a four year career average of 7.5.

In the 76-77 season Donoghue averaged 13.1 points per game to earn him the fourth leading scorer on the team. He had the second highest shooting percentage of the regulars with a 52.1 shooting percentage.

An honor student with a Academic All-America honorable mention, Donoghue hit for over 15 points in 18 of the 31 Minutemen games. His highest scoring game was against Duquesne where he scored 35 followed by his 26 point performance against Seton Hall in the opening game of the N.I.T. Donoghue's last second layup in that contest provided the winning margin.

Donoghue's greatest natural asset was his knowledge of how to play defense. Against Rutgers, Donoghue only allowed heralded center Jim Bailey, accustomed to scoring 20 points or more, 10 points. He allowed University of Tennessee known transfer Irv Chatman only five points in 21 minutes of play and Villanova center John Olive eight in Villanova's 81-71 victory over UMass in the N.I.T.

Mark never let anyone intimidate him and knew how to evaluate his opponent. He made him work for every point he scored," added Leaman.

Donoghue, an accounting major, came to UMass in 1975 after spending the 73-74 basketball year at Dartmouth.

He came to UMass to be part of a respectable basketball program after he spent what Leaman termed "an horrendous year" at Dartmouth.

"I heard about the tradition of UMass basketball and wanted to be a part of it. I hoped I would fit into coach Leaman's style of play," said Donoghue.

Voted the MVP in the Basketball Hall of Fame 76 tip-off tourney, Donoghue said he has no regrets about his UMass collegiate career and hoped to catch on to a European league team as former teammate John Murphy did.

Although Donoghue said beating Rutgers twice in a season and winning the Seton Hall game with a last second shot will stand out in his mind, Donoghue added being elected captain twice in a row and earning the respect of his fellow players will be his greatest memory.

"Coming from a stagnant 4-22 Dartmouth program to a 21-6 Leaman-coached team is a great memory. Playing next to forward Jim Town will be another good one. I have no regrets at all about coming to UMass," Donoghue said.

Sox win

DUNEDIN, Fla. [UPI] — The Boston Red Sox, getting all the runs they needed on a three-run homer by Jim Rice in the third inning, defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2 Monday.

Luis Tiant, making his second start for the Red Sox, gave up a run in the first inning, then settled down to pitch three innings of scoreless ball before being relieved by Tom Murphy.

The Blue Jays' Bill Singer, who has been sidelined with an elbow ailment, made his first appearance in eight days. He pitched two strong innings in relief, allowing just one runner on a base on balls.

Poor Richards
TUESDAY
25¢ Drafts
$2.00 pitchers
ALL NIGHT

BIG AUTO PARTS
We've got auto parts for foreign cars.
Auto parts for foreign cars – quality-made replacement parts for the most popular foreign cars in town. Worldparts are made by world famous manufacturers such as Maremont . . . Bosch . . . Lange . . . Boge . . . and more than 60 others.
When your foreign car needs repairs, have your garage or service station man call us for Worldparts. Or we can give you the name and address of a foreign car expert near you.
AMERICAN PARTS
Allied Motor Parts
319 Main Street, Amherst
256-8341
SHOP SERVICE AVAILABLE
Hours: 8-5:30 M-F, 8-5 Sat.

STYLES BY DEBORAH
ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL
OUR VERY BEST UNIPERM REG $30.00
NOW ONLY $22.50 COMPLETE WITH
CUT & STYLE FOR MEN AND WOMEN.
OUR STYLISTS WILL SHOW YOU HOW
TO PROFESSIONALLY STYLE YOUR
OWN HAIR. STYLE CUT ONLY $5.00
CALL 549-5610 FOR APPT.

HUNGRY-U
WE DELIVER THE BEST PIZZA IN TOWN!
256-0474
or 256-0473
103 N. Pleasant St.
FREE FRISBEE with any Any Large Combination PIZZA while supply last
2 FREE SODAS with any Small Combination Pizza
Offer good from Tue. 3-29 to Fri. 3-31
103 N. Pleasant St. Deliveries Only

Women College Graduates
As a woman Air Force ROTC student, you compete for your commission on the same footing as the men in your class. And later on you wear the same insignia.
There are two-year, three-year, and four-year scholarship programs available to help you get there. If you enroll in the four-year Air Force ROTC program you also qualify to compete for a scholarship for the remaining two or three years as a cadet. Tuition is covered, fees are paid, textbook costs reimbursed . . . plus $100 a month, tax free.
Call Major Richardson at 545-2437
Air Force ROTC
Gateway to a Great Way of Life

Collegian Sports

Berger column; p. 15

Mermen feature; p. 15

McGuire retires a winner

ATLANTA [UPI] — Al McGuire crowned his 20-year college basketball coaching career with his first NCAA championship last night when Marquette defeated North Carolina 67-59.

McGuire, an impulsive and tempestuous character, buried his head in his hands with eight seconds remaining as it appeared tears of happiness began to well up in his eyes.

The Warriors sank 14 of 15 foul shots in the last two minutes to seal the victory. Ironically, it was North Carolina's clutch foul shooting which had carried them through the NCAA tournament and into the championship game.

Marquette's senior forward Bo Ellis, who never had attained the stardom predicted for him by McGuire this season, scored 14 points and dominated the backboards to lead the Warriors to victory.

The Warriors survived a chaotic season in which McGuire announced his retirement in December. Marquette then lost its next two games and went 2-4 in early February, but regrouped to make its way through the Midwest Regional and win the championship in the OMNI.

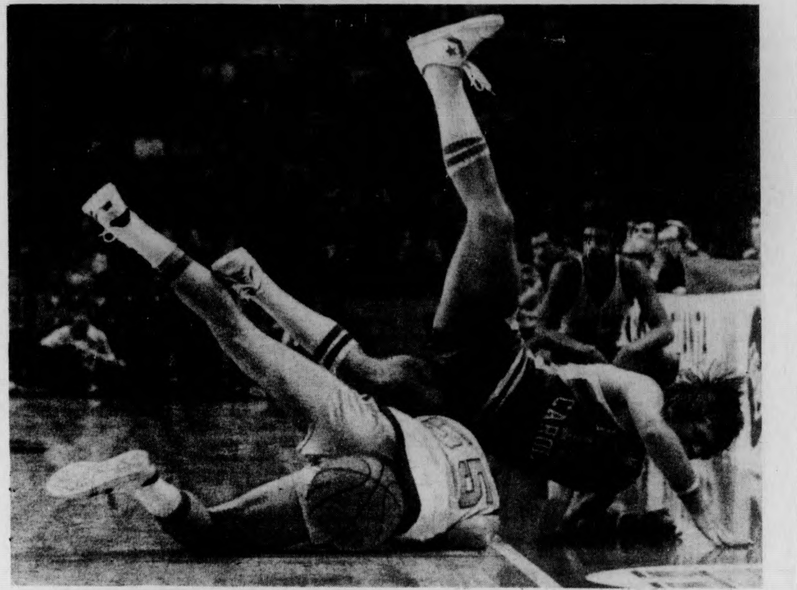
Marquette's 25-7 record includes the most losses by any team ever to win the national championship.

Marquette was beaten by North Carolina State in the 1974 championship game, McGuire's only other appearance in the NCAA final. But he got his revenge on the state of North Carolina by beating Wake Forest, North Carolina-Charlotte and the Tar Heels in the Warrior's last three tournament games.

Marquette held a 12-point lead, 39-27, at halftime, but the Tar Heels outscored the Warriors 14-2 at the start of the second half to tie the score 41-41 with 15:57 left.

With 12:33 left and the score tied 45-45, North Carolina went into its famed four-corners offense and Marquette also used the spread offense the rest of the game.

Butch Lee, who led the Warriors with 19 points, sank a pair of free throws with 6:09 remaining to give Marquette the lead for good, 49-47. Guard Jim Boylan, a transfer student recommended to McGuire by North Carolina coach Dean Smith, extended the lead to 51-47 when Walter Davis was called for goaltending.



North Carolina guard John Kuester comes out on top of this exchange with Marquette's Gary Rosenberger. His team didn't fare as well when the final buzzer was sounded however, as Marquette rolled to a 67-59 victory. (UPI)

Bowlers do well

The UMass men's and women's bowling teams competed in the Bryant Invitational Tournament this past weekend held in Cranston, R.I. Considering that the tourney was held at the end of the spring break and despite missing four starting players, the team fared well.

The women only came in fourth for the day but because they took half of their match points, is still in first place in league standings. It is 40 match points ahead of second place Central Connecticut State and have for all intents and purposes clinched first place in overall league standings in Tri-State.

For individual honors, Amanda Garcia and Karen James bowled a fine 1111 series to win the doubles event and Amanda also won first place in singles with a 575 series and 2nd place all-events with a 1033 series.

Other members of the team who bowled were Beth Schneider and Jane O'Neil, who won doubles two weeks ago and Pam Lander, who is a newcomer.

The men also did not place well but won 44 out of a possible 50 match points to move into second place in the league. They trail University of Lowell by a half-point. The next Tri-State tourney is position round and the men have an excellent chance to overtake Lowell.

Berard, who took second place all-events in the ACU-I's last month and is traveling to Reno, Nevada for the national collegiate tournament next week, placed second in singles with a 611 series, just one pin behind a West Pointer.

Other members of the team were Rich Rosenthal, Rich Lacross, Mitch Foreman, Dave Tursky, and Jeff Nelson.

This weekend the teams travel to Troy, N.Y. for the Sectionals. If they win, they will go to San Antonio, Texas for the Bowling Spectacular.

Discontented Randle punches manager

ORLANDO, FLA. [UPI] — Len Randle, discontented all Spring because a rookie had been given his second base job and enraged because Texas Rangers Manager Frank Lucchesi had called him a punk, punched Lucchesi in the face Monday and broke his right cheekbone.

Lucchesi, his face badly swollen, was rushed to a hospital where he was placed under heavy sedation.

One of Randle's teammates indicated the incident may have been premeditated and club owner Brad Corbett immediately suspended Randle.

"I would like to suspend him for a year," said Corbett. "I know of no way he can remain a Ranger."

Ranger Pitcher Bert Blyleven said Randle had hinted during the morning there might be a showdown with Lucchesi, who last week said he was tired of Randle's griping about his status with the Rangers.

"Lenny said 'something might be done today,'" Blyleven said. "He asked me what would happen if he hit somebody. I told him if he hit a player he would probably be suspended and if he hit the manager he would probably never play again."

A doctor in charge of the emergency room at Orlando's Mercy Hospital said Lucchesi was in pain when he was admitted. But after a series of tests plastic surgeons said they did not think surgery would be required.

"Frank's face was swollen on one side around his right eye," said Rangers General Manager Danny O'Brien. "Lenny has been suspended pending the outcome of an investigation. It is hard to say what we will do."

John Lowney

Will you believe a Finley Division?

Last week major league baseball club owners met to discuss division realignment and interleague play in what seems to be a yearly professional sports ritual.

Whether it be pro baseball, football, basketball or hockey, there is always talk of schedule change. The owners will say they want to create a "balance" or "natural rivalries," but we all know that they just want to make money to save their struggling franchises.

The owners have already extended each of the seasons so that we have baseball in October, football in July and basketball and hockey in May. The sports seasons overlap ridiculously.

My ideas for the absurd pro sports leagues will not create a perfect "balance", but the all-American "rivalries" are numerous.

Baseball, football, basketball, and hockey teams would compete with each other in these new divisions. My plans are admittedly incomplete, but here is a rough listing of the all-American divisions.

Almighty Dollar Division: Capitals, Bills, Dodgers, Oilers, Steelers, Packers, Nuggets, 49ers.

Ethnic Division: Celtics, Knicks, Yankees, Canadiens, Canucks, Vikings, Browns, Reds.

Cowboys and Indians Division: Cowboys, Indians, Redskins, Braves, Chiefs, Warriors, Spurs.

Maritime Division: Mariners, Dolphins, Nets, Raiders, Buccaneers, Pirates.

Daniel Boone Division: Trail Blazers, Rangers, Islanders, Lakers, Maple Leafs.

Rugged Road Division: Cubs, Scouts.

Endangered Species Division: Eagles, Tigers, Bengals, Rams, Falcons.

Celestial Division: Suns, North Stars.

Heaven and Hell Division: Saints, Angels, Padres, Flames.

Your Highness Division: Kings, Royals, Barons, Cavaliers, Sabres.

Spaceshot Division: Flyers, Rockets, Supersonics, Astros, Jets, Chargers, Pistons, Bullets.

Caged Division: Lions, Bruins, Bears, Bucks.

Rodeo Division: Colts, Broncos, Pacers, Bulls.

High Fly Division: Hawks, Black Hawks, Orioles, Cardinals, Blue Jays, Penguins.

Hi Fi Division: Jazz, Blues, Rockies.

Mutation Division: Giants, Twins.

Bicentennial Division: Patriots, 76ers.

? Division: Mets, Expos, Phillies.

Stinkfoot Division: Red Sox, White Sox.

Drunken Division: Brewers.

Charles O. Finley Division: A's.

Who can complain about such a realignment? Because the divisions are made up of teams with similar names, there are innumerable possibilities for "natural rivalries".

Who could resist a Cubs-Scouts game? Or a Blues-Jazz doubleheader? How about an Angels-Flames confrontation? Or for old movie freaks there is the Cowboys-Indians battles.

The balance of these divisions is shoddy, but there are reasons. The Almighty Dollar and Ethnic divisions have to be large for obvious all-American reasons. The Brewers are alone in the Drunken Division, only because the ABA Spirits of St. Louis are now defunct.

The Charles O. Finley Division is in commemoration of the most distinguished of owners. The A's will have to finish in first place in the Finley Division no matter what the owner does.

Finley can also be commissioner of his division. he can run it any way he wants. He can have the team mule for umpire of home games. He can trade all his players to the Jets or Rockets for exhaust fumes to be named later.

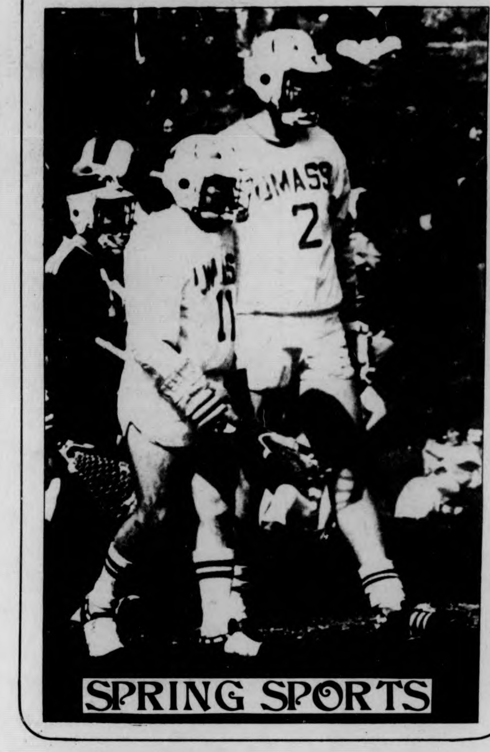
We already have interleague play, but is America ready for intersport play? If the success of the Superstars competition is any indication, then the armchair quarterbacks will appreciate this new form of entertainment.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 111 WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1977

Collegian

Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

Inside



Attorney General rules

SW Assembly must change constitution

By LARRY COHEN
Collegian Staff

Due to Monday's ruling by Student Attorney General Paul Yanowitch that area government executive elections be by popular vote, the Southwest Assembly (SWA) must amend their constitution before holding their executive committee elections, said President Chris Durkin last night at the SWA meeting.

Up to now, only SWA representatives voted in executive committee elections.

To amend its constitution, SWA must hold a Constitutional Convention, which consists of regular SWA representatives plus one designated representative from each house in Southwest. Proposed amendments must be submitted no later than next Tuesday morning. The Convention will be held April 12.

Durkin was angered by the decision. "I agree with the premise," he said. "What I don't like is that Yanowitch didn't bring it up until five hours before Central Area Government was to have its elections, although he knew about it for at least a week."

The Central Area Council (CAC) was forced to delay their scheduled elections Monday night due to the late decision.

"This is not the first time Yanowitch has made life difficult for us," Durkin said.

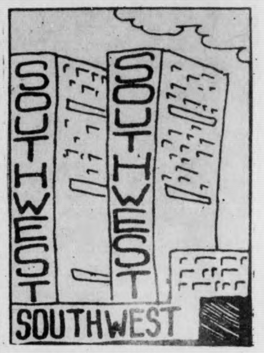
Yanowitch admitted knowing about the rule for a week. "I discovered the clause in the SGA constitution on the Monday of vacation week," said Yanowitch. "Obviously I could do nothing with it at the time. I was not even aware of the CAC elections taking place this Monday until I was informed by President Janice Perry.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm trying to save the area governments the hassle of holding illegal elections."

In other business last night, SWA allocated $300 for a New Games Tournament, to be held April 28 and 29. The tournament will consist of a variety of non-competitive games, where enjoyment and participation are stressed, rather than winning.

The assembly also allocated $500 to the Asian-American Conference to be held April 8 and 9. The conference, entitled "Aspiring to Liberate," will feature speakers, workshops, films, a Saturday morning brunch, and a disco. Everyone is urged to attend.

SWA granted $57.75 to a leather craft colloquium in John Quincy Adams Tower (JQA). The money will cover the costs of replacing damaged equipment and buying new material.



In final business, the Assembly voted to sponsor Southwest student Joe Abel in the Multiple Sclerosis Dance Marathon to be held this weekend at the Hatch. Abel and his partner, Gail Syphers, will attempt to dance for the entire 30-hour event. SWA has agreed to pay $10 for every hour they can dance.

President Chris Durkin also announced a proposal that would grant raises to the SWA executive committee. If passed, the proposal would raise each officer's salary by $200 a year.

The deadline for articles for the Southwest Newsletter is April 5. Many more articles are needed and all Southwest students are urged to contribute.

Students to push for bigger budget

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

A meeting between Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and student representatives of the state's colleges and universities last week seems to have produced a firmer resolution among the students to work for an increase in higher education budget allocations and towards defeat of the governor's proposed bill to reorganize public higher education.

Both UMass Student Trustee Paul M. Cronin and trustee-elect Pinky Batiste said the students who met with the governor have resolved to work together to make state legislators aware of the need for additional funding of the higher education sector and to fight Dukakis' plans to reorganize the schools.

The governor has proposed a $249 million "level-funding" budget for the entire higher education sector. This budget is then reviewed by state legislators, who have the power to amend it. The budget must then be passed by the house and senate and signed by the governor before becoming effective July 1.

Dukakis' proposal for the reorganization of higher education has not yet been filed at the statehouse, but is expected to be filed later this spring and be debated during the summer.

Cronin and Batiste, in an interview Monday, said the governor discussed the budget and reorganization with the students during their meeting, concentrating on the UMass budget.

Cronin said the governor reiterated his earlier statements that UMass President Robert C. Wood would have to vacate his One Washington Mall office in order to save money.

According to Cronin, the governor is trying to gain more control over higher education in an effort to eliminate what he considers administrative fat and program duplication.

The students who attended included Douglas Roop from the Community College Board of Trustees, Ellie DiMatteo from the State College Board of Trustees, UMass-Boston's Student Trustee Judy Baker, Southern Massachusetts University's Student Trustee Paul McGinn and the UMass representatives.

Dukakis' Press Secretary Allen Raymond, in a telephone interview yesterday said, "Higher education, like all other agencies are reaching the limit."

Education Sec. Paul Parks has said reorganization is a necessary first step in protecting the budgets of higher education at a time when no additional tax revenues are being raised in the state.

Batiste said the students were "disgusted" at the governor's apparent lack of understanding of the role of higher education institutions.

She said Dukakis seems to want UMass to be strong in arts and sciences, while keeping some of the more expensive specialized programs at the state colleges.

Both Cronin and Batiste objected to the governor's efforts to consolidate academic programs. If the state eliminates access to programs by offering them at only one institution, they will have to provide more financial aid, they said.

Raymond said some of the state's schools "have lost their identity." Schools like Boston State, which used to be primarily a teacher's college, now must choose to take on either a community college role or become more like a university.

Richard Aimes, assistant educational secretary, said in a telephone interview yesterday that under the Dukakis plan a Board of Overseers would determine which programs to consolidate.

Aimes said the board would have only advisory capacity in budgetary matters, with individual institutions retaining fiscal autonomy.

He said the 14-member board, appointed by the governor, would look at problems such as access and financial aid in terms of a long-range plan they would develop for higher education.

Dog's life hangs on leash

By KEVIN TURCOTTE
Collegian Staff

An Irish Setter described as "a great fan of University students," may die shortly if the dog is not returned home for medication that helps the dog digest its food.

Lora Southworth, the owner of "Brandy", the three-year-old setter, said the dog suffers from an enzyme deficiency and needs medication "in order to maintain his weight. It (the deficiency) won't kill him for weeks."

Southworth said the dog has been returned to her home in the past by students who were concerned about the dog's thinness.

Southworth said the dog was last seen in the Campus Center, Tuesday, March 22.

Southworth is afraid that some well meaning student might have given Brandy a new home in an attempt to fatten the dog up.

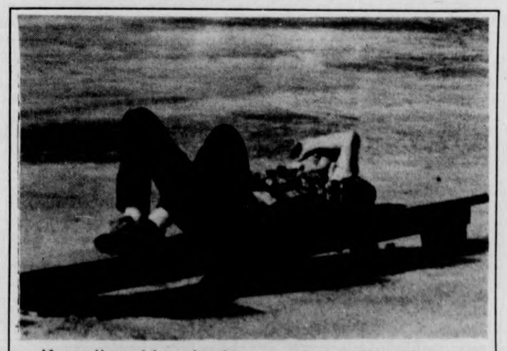
Town dog officers assured Southworth that this is the time most female dogs are in heat and overnight disappearances are not unusual.

Southworth said Brandy has never been away overnight before and "he has had plenty of time to pursue the romantic frantic."

Southworth's father is offering a $50 reward for information about the dog.

"I don't want anyone to be embarrased about returning him. We just want him back. We miss him and want him to get his medication," said Southworth.

Lora Southworth lives at 18 Old Town Rd., and her phone is 549-0330.



If you thought yesterday was nice, wait until you see today. Temperatures will be at least in the mid 70s. (Staff photo by Steve Hershberg)

Assistant professor says research support dwindling

By PATTI KELLEHER
Collegian Staff

A recent recipient of an $18,000 research grant believes that while the state argues the place of the University in its budget, those who make the University the institution it is could leave.

Dr. Richard S. Ellis, assistant professor of mathematics here, said yesterday the research support that professors come to UMass for is "being frittered away" while legislators argue about alloting "relatively small amounts" of money to the school. He said such losses may cause the eventual downfall of UMass as a reputable institution.

Ellis said he has enjoyed teaching at the University since he came here two years ago and that research support in terms of on-campus facilities has been good. However, he said he feels instructors coming here in the future may not be as lucky.

Ellis said the reasons a professor is attracted to any school lies in the research support available in the forms of salary, colleagues and professional moral support. UMass is no different.

However, the UMass faculty has had no pay increases in three years, support appears to be lacking, and professors are become upset about the problems with the budget.

Ellis came to the University in Sept. 1975 "at a raise level," but is concerned that other young teachers will not come here because "some are being paid at a new PhD level after two or three years experience," and "a number of younger people need the money."

"The long-term concern," according to Ellis, "is the general support of research." He equates good research with good teaching, but said "Legislators don't know what research means." He said any lack of research by professors in the future will directly affect students.

Ellis said he believes that teachers who are aware of new elements in their field will be more effective teachers, since they will be able to emphasize the right components of their courses.

He gave himself as an example. "My research is connected with physics, and ultimately could throw some light on some problems." He reasoned that by being aware of this knowledge, he can pass it on to his students. He went on to say that these are the kinds of things that excite students about learning. "By and large, students are motivated if they get that from you."

Ellis said he thinks state legislators regard the University as a typical state agency, although "UMass isn't a typical state agency." A good example of how the state regards the University is in the rule they put into practice in 1975-76, he said.

During that time, a professor was required to put in at least nine contact hours per day with students. This was thought to be a measure to improve the quality of education. Ellis said the state was trying to impose the check-in - check out policies they practice in government agencies in Boston. However, the ruling, no longer in effect, was "unenforceable, and not the way to produce a good university," he said. "You can't improve the quality by fiat."

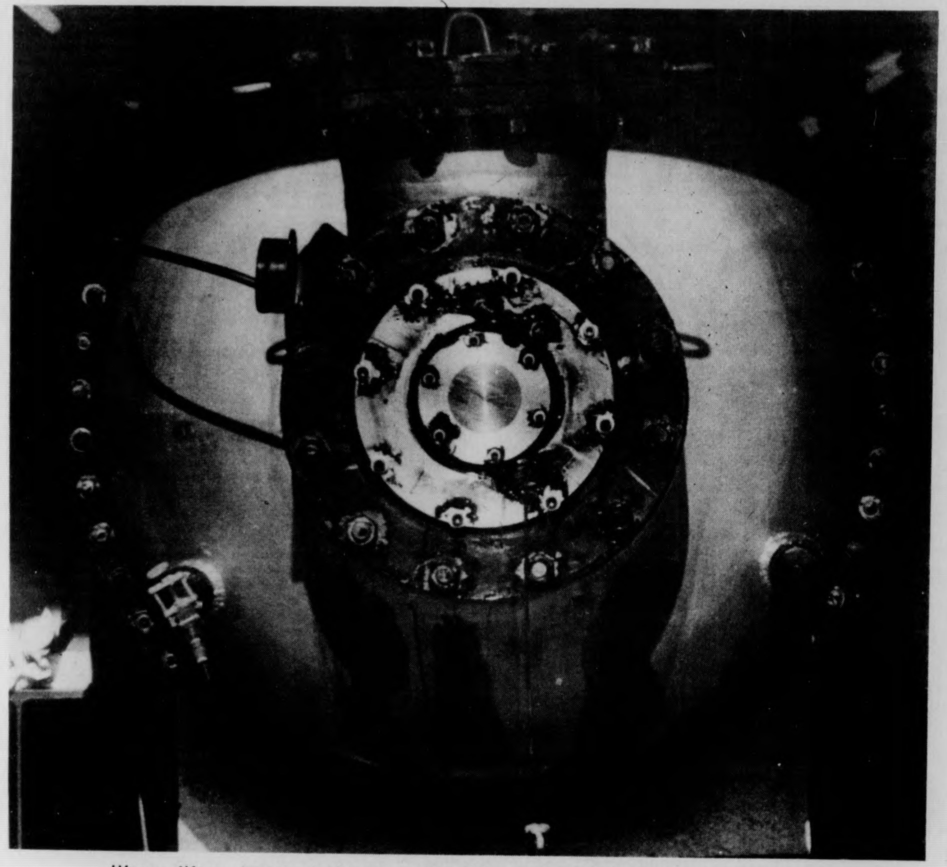
Ellis maintained that if professors are required to spend endless hours in the classroom, they have little time left for research and preparing books and papers for publication and delivery. But this is where they make their money he said, so if they have to skimp somewhere it will be in their classes. "Again," he said, "the students suffer."

Ellis teaches two courses now, but said even if it doesn't seem like much, he puts in a full week.

"The state makes you feel you are getting something for nothing." But Ellis again stated that legislators are not aware of the importance of research. "It's a matter of the support you are getting. People are happy if they feel they're being supported."

He said he believes the lack of support the school is getting from the government is going to drive good professors away. "The people won't be here in a few years if this continues."

"As times goes on, it will require more and more to undo the damage," said Ellis.



It's a.... it's a... jeezus, what the hell is this thing, anyway? (Staff photo by John Silletto)

'Rocky' KO's competition in 49th round

By JOHN MATTHEW
Below The Salt Staff

ANALYSIS

Sylvestor Stallone's 'Rocky', the film that captured America's heart, triumphed taking the coveted Best Picture Oscar Monday night at the 49th annual Academy Awards. The film's director, John Avildsen, was honored as Best Director and Richard Halsey and Scott Conrad won Best Editing for their involvement in the absorbing story of an underdog prize fighter battling personal insignificance.

'Network', an outrageous satire of television, pulled high ratings in nearly all the acting categories. Faye Dunaway won Best Acress, Beatrice Straight won Best Supporting Actress, and the late Peter Finch outpointed Stallone and Robert DeNiro for the Best Actor Award. Finch, who died several weeks before the announcement of the nominations, is the first actor to win an Oscar after death.

Bernard Herrmann, also nominated after his death for Best Original Musical Score for 'Taxi Driver' and 'Obsession', fell victim to Academy politics as he lost out to Jerry Goldsmith for his score in 'The Omen'. Apparently two posthumous Oscars in one year would be unacceptably coincidental, so the Academy went with the 'bigger' name, overlooking the brilliant Herrmann.

Jason Robards was victorious in the Best Supporting Actor fiasco for his portrayal of the editor of the Washington Post in 'All The President's Men'. The film won three other Oscars for adapted screenplay, sound, and art direction.

Haskell Wexler copped the Best Cinematography Award for his work in the little seen 'Bound For Glory'. The film also won Best Score Adaptation by Leonard Roseman.

The highly elaborate proceedings began with Academy President Walter Mirsch delivering the usual tedious monologue, commending the industry and all its talented members. One will remember Mirsch's most recent winner 'Midway', this writer's co-winner of 'The Worst Picture of the Year Award', sharing the distinction with 'The Omen', which also won 'The Hollywood Can Still Make You See Any Movie It Wants Award'.

As usual, the Awards were filled with winners giving their deepest thanks to those whose names could not be recalled without assistance, yet 'The Man' at this year's procession was Sylvester Stallone.

The Academy totally used Stallone, giving him plenty of screen time, showing the world that they recognize 'new' talent, but refusing to totally acknowledge it in the form of an Oscar for his screenplay or his performance. Tradition defines the Academy spectacle.

The Academy doesn't want to make themselves or the industry appear 'foolish'. Had Stallone won in his first major film, produced for less than a million dollars, 'foolishness' would have been the word as films such as 'King Kong', budgeted at $25 million, made by the industry's 'finest' hardly compares in any way with the marvelous 'Rocky'. Yet, 'Rocky's' producers, Robert Chartoff and Irwin Winkler did have the decency to bring Stallone to the podium with them to accept the Award for Best Picture, reminding the Academy that this film was one man's effort, one man's heart and soul, and that some special recognition for a talent like Stallone's need be instituted to overcome the perpetual Hollywood political structure. It doesn't take a lot of money to make a great motion picture, but the accepted Hollywood way of life is grandiose and the Academy Awards presentation represents Hollywood in its truest form.

Notice

The Afro-American Student Society is presenting a seminar on Government Repression of the Black Liberation Movement in America this Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Lumumba Room of the New Afrika House.

Speakers will be Yuri Kochiyama of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, and Askia Muhammed Toure, a member of the Afrikan Peoples' Party and a world reknown black poet.

TODAY'S STAFF
Issue Editor P.A. Milstein

Day Layout	Deborah Walters
Wire Layout	Cliff Skibinsky
Editorial Layout	Casey Eagle
Head Darkroom Tech	Dan "Do Nothing" Smith
Photo Staff	John Silletto
Head Graphics Techs	Cindy MacLeod, Susan Dvorachek
Anyone Else	Paul Yanowich
Ad Layout	Ellyn Faber
Wiseass Remark	"Evil is the food of genius"

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Wood office may be in danger

By D.A. CLARK
and JOHN MORAN
Collegian Staff

If passed, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' budget proposal for fiscal year 1978 would affect not only UMass students, but the office of UMass President Robert C. as well.

The budget could cut the money allocated to his office by almost 22 per cent.

"I think thoughtful people have recognized the president's office of a university this large cannot operate out of a tent on the common," Wood said during an interview at his One Washington Mall office.

The office covers the 12th and 13th floors of the building, with 150,000 square feet of total floor space. The annual rent for the office is $143,600 and it is under a five-year lease which expires this October.

Wood has been president of the University since May, 1970. His first office was located at 85 Devonshire St. Wood moved to the One Washington Mall location in 1972.

"The Devonshire St. office was not that big," said Howard White, an assistant to Wood. "Before Wood became president the Board of Trustees established the policy that the location of the central University administration should be in Boston, but not physically on the Boston campus."

Wood said he feels the trustee's policy for the location of his office is a good one.

"Since most of our working contacts are with legislators," he said, "this is a convenient location. But it is also a convenient symbol for people who are critics of the University."

The Summary Operating Budget for the president's office for fiscal year 1977 is $1,068,628, according to George Beatty of the Office of Institutional Studies in Whitmore. The budget provides for 17 full-time staff positions.

Wood has requested a $1,388,022 for next year. Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, however, has suggested a budget of $848,628.

"Dukakis has never visited the office," Wood said. "He is dealing with a figure that can capture public attention. He is not dealing with the real cost of running an office.

"The governor's budget is disastrous; he wants to cut half the positions in the office. The governor has never recommended an adequate budget.

"We never could have survived on the budgets suggested by Dukakis or Sargent. He (Dukakis) simply is not talking sense about educative realities. None of his budgets have ever gone through and hopefully this one won't either.

"In effect, the only way the University has made progress is because it has appealed to the legislature over the governor's head," Wood said.

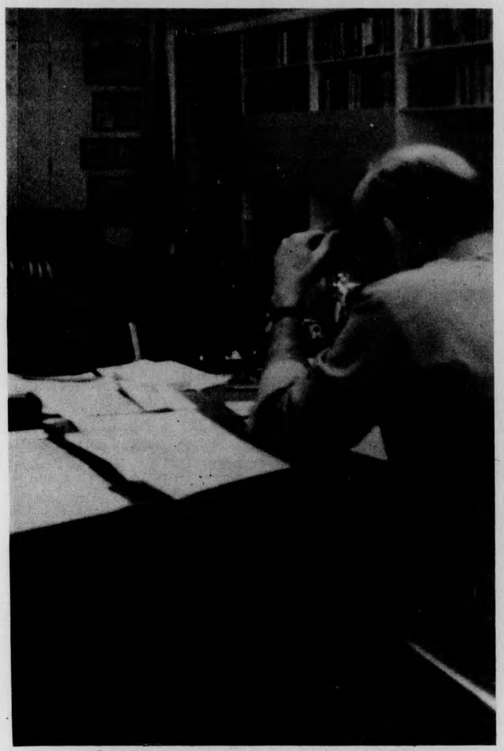
In the midst of this controversy over the president's office, the owners of One Washington Mall, Spaulding & Slye, Inc., have sold the building. Wood said he is considering the possibility of moving out of the building.

"I'm trying to explore better comparable arrangements at some of the other office buildings in the area," Wood said. "If we stay here, renovation is needed."

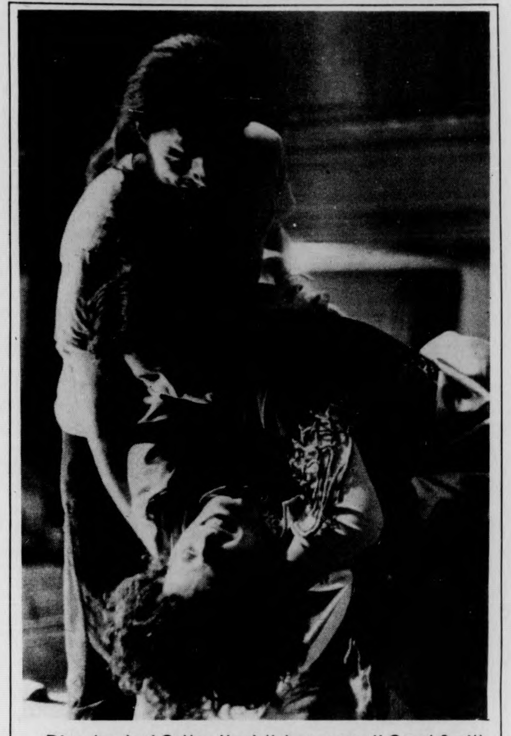
Wood said he had no opinions as to what alternatives he will seek, but ideally, he would prefer some arrangement where the central administrations from UMass and the community colleges would share the same physical location.

Edward Weston, executive assistant of management and business and a new member to the office staff, said, "I don't think it's plush; it's functional. It is a business office concerned with the business end of University affairs."

Nan Robinson, vice president for planning and policy, said, "The whole idea of the system works only if the central office is separated from each campus. We are dealing with state agencies whose offices are here in Boston."



"... the president's office of a university this large cannot operate out of a tent on the common," said UMass President Robert C. Wood in an exclusive Collegian interview. (Staff photo by Dave Rosenthal)



Director Joel Cotter (top) "chaperones" Carol Smith (center) and Larry Geller as they rehearse a scene from the Music Theatre Guild's production of "Godspell". The play starts Thursday in Bowker Auditorium. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

P.S.: 'Cat' on loose in Boston

By LINDSEY LANE
Collegian Staff

THEATRE REVIEW

We have all felt the gloomy prospect of a New Year's Eve with nothing to do, or losing the enthusiasm for what was planned, or worse, not feeling the "spirit" you're supposed to have on New Year's Eve. So imagine finding a burglar in your apartment, knocking him out and winding up with a captive audience to what you thought would be an extremely boring evening.

In 1973, James Kirkwood published his novel, P.S. Your Cat Is Dead. It was written originally as a play but was not performed until 1975. During March, the Boston Repertory Theater, under the direction of Ted Davis, performed the original version of P.S. Your Cat Is Dead.

The play begins at a crisis point. Jimmy Zoole's Village apartment is being robbed, his girlfriend is leaving, he's just been fired and his cat has just died.

Jimmy takes revenge on Kate, his girl friend, by throwing fruit at her from the window as she is leaving. Heaving a resigned sigh, he goes to sit on his bed and finds a gun. The telephone rings. Not wanting to talk with anyone and amazed at having a "real" gun in his hand, Jimmy playacts a shoot-out with the phone. The gun goes off. Jimmy is face to face with a burglar scrambling out from under his bed.

Charles Stransky plays Jimmy Zoole. From the moment he comes on stage and turns off the apartment light, not noticing it is already on, we know his life is dizzily out of kilter. He portrays a thirty - eight - year - old actor quickly passing his prime in a field he is too chicken to "make it" in. As Kate points out, everybody thinks his life is capped like his front teeth. She suggests he might approach his work with the same drive he shows during sex. He laughs but his tone of voice and the aversion of his eyes belies his own disappointment with his life.

Vito Antenucci, the burglar, played by Stephen Driscoll has a difficult role. Except for fifteen minutes at the beginning and end of the play, he lies prone, tied down to the kitchen sink at center stage, "captured" by Jimmy. While Stransky must animate the stage with movement and acting, which he does with decent impersonations of Bela Lugosi and James Cagney, Driscoll must spark and balance the dynamics of the script.

Among Jimmy's ploys to re-establish his self-respect, he sets a lavish candlelight dinner to flaunt his freedom. Vito derides him for being the boring schlep that he is.

As their acquaintance becomes more intimate, Vito evolves as a test case for Jimmy's imagination.

Even though this play carries little impact of a landmark in drama, it does convey the power and poetry of everyday language. Kirkwood has devised a situation of two guys: one depressed and the other physically repressed. In it, the wit of everyday language and believability evolves and rises with the characters.

Kirkwood's language cuts into the drama with a hot dialogue carving a pitch of sarcastic truth. There were many scenes that could have verged on barroom confessionals but both Stransky and Driscoll kept an edge on the dialogue.

The other characters in the play were Kate, Jimmy's ex-girlfriend, played by Barbara Ball; Fred, Kate's new escort, played by Joseph Wilkens; and Carmine, Janie and Bobby, friends of Jimmy's, respectively played by Danny Harris, Peggy Harmon and Peter Kovene; were interesting. Problems with their characters lay in the scripts, not in their acting.

They provided props for the two main roles. They were not on stage long enough to develop their characters except for Harris, whose flashy appearance as an S-M swinger was enough of a taking off point to give him a presence. Kate, whose stage time was most lengthy, was played without enough spunk, and she left the stage without any loss for us.

They are good characters but Kirkwood didn't want us to get involved with them more than was necessary. It's a relief when they exit and we can return to Stransky and Driscoll.

What sealing adjective could sum up this play? Funny? Imaginative? Heartwarming? Unbelievable (in a zany sense)? Perhaps Worthwhile. But certainly not Profound.

Tomorrow Fair looks ahead

By ALEXANDER CONANT
Collegian Staff

"The Toward Tomorrow Fair will be concerned with our future and ways to improve it through alternative sources of energy and through social alternatives," said June Greig, an organizer of Toward Tomorrow '77.

"This year's fair will be bigger and better than Toward Tomorrow '76." She said, "The fair will have more speakers, more workshops and more exhibits concerning energy and social alternatives."

Some of the speakers at the fair will be R. Buckminister Fuller, Ralph Nader, Dick Gregory, William E. Heronemus, Murray Bookchin, Barry Commoner, Yuri Kochiyama, and Helen and Scott Nearing. Topics will be "How will future generations survive?," "What can we do to make the environment safe?", and "How can New England free itself from a heavy dependence on imported energy?".

"There will be workshops where fairgoers can talk to people who use alternative energy sources in their homes and discover how practical they are," said Greig. There will be a workshop where fairgoers will be able to build their own solar collectors.

Exhibits at the fair will include displays of solar, wind, and wood as energy alternatives. "There is a great deal of new technology available in alternative energy sources," she said, "we want to make this available to as many people as possible. Last year the fair drew 17,000 people, this year we think it may be close to 25,000.

"On June 25, Pete Seeger and Guy Davis will be giving a concert. We also want to have more events for children and we are hoping to have a balloon ascent.

Black Affairs

VIEWPOINT

Editor's note: Viewpoint is a column designed for our readers to express their views on various subjects. In this manner, the staff of Black Affairs hopes to establish an open line of communication between our readers and us. Viewpoint does necessarily represent the views of the staff of Black Affairs. All articles must be typed.

The culturally confused Black student

By CONSUELO WILLIAMS

Within the past six years Black students have been, more or less, the most educated and the most culturally-confused Black generation since the 1940's and 1950's. This is a strong statement but let me explain. A large amount of Black students that go to college lived in a middle class environment. They went to good private and preparatory schools, and some grew up in white neighborhoods that seldom reflected their Black culture. Many of these students come to college with the added pressure of "finding themselves culturally". Being a freshman in a new environment is trying enough without this added confusion between the Black and white culture.

Here at UMass, it is extremely difficult to keep your Black identity on this predominantly white university but there are people that did survive this problem. Nonetheless, there are many Black students who don't know who they are. There are also those that are Black by color standards only, but inside they are white-orientated. A striking analogy is the "oreo" cookie; black on the outside, white on the inside. This is what I see as the culturally-confused Black student.

In addition to these Black students, there are students that forgot how previous groups of students struggled to get what we have here at UMass and other colleges and universities in the country. CCEBS, The Afro-Am. Society, Drum, BMCP, The Malcolm X Center, Nummo News and many other organizations were fought for by Black people so we could have our culture open to the Black population and to have areas on campus that we can call our own. Now what do we see? Lack of involvement, lack of participation, and lack of UNITY. A few doing the work of many, and just an extremely alarming sense of apathy.

This society is doing a thing on our Black youth. It is trying to condition us to be individuals that compete against each other thus keeping us divided. Unlike our ancestors that cooperate in a collective manner to obtain a goal of success.

A possible solution to the problem of the culturally-confused Black student is to stress the notion of getting involved with Black organizations on campus and learn what they are all about. Also learn about the rest of the organizations on campus, it will be to our advantage.

Julias Lester, Archie Shepp to speak tonight

By ANGELA THOMAS
Asst. Black Affairs Editor

Julias Lester and Archie Shepp two professors of the Afro-Am Department, will be among those to speak tonight, as part of the special topic workshop to be held at The Center For Racial Understanding (Moore House) in Southwest at 7:30 p.m.

Speakers and topics to be presented are Jon Crane of Communication Studies who will speak on "Ethnic Images and Television." Julias Lester of Afro American Studies will discuss "Mechanics of Racism." Archie Shepp of Afro-American Studies will talk on "Black Music," and Ralph Whitehead of Journalistic Studies will speak about "Media Power and Political Power."

Joplin, Ellington, DuBois homes proclaimed national historic landmark

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The homes of Scott Joplin, Duke Ellington and W.E.B. DuBois are among 33 sites associated with black Americans to be designated as national historic landmarks, it was recently announced.

Also included was the apartment where Jackie Robinson lived in Brooklyn when he broke major league baseball's color barrier.

In Massachusetts: the William C. Nell residence, Boston; William Monroe Trotter house, Dorchester; Maria Baldwin house, Cambridge; and the William E.B. DuBois boyhood homesite, Great Barrington were among the 33 sites named.

Their selection concludes a three-year study of sites and structures that possess national significance because of their part in black American history, Under Secretary of Interior James Joseph said.

The newly designated landmarks are located in 10 states and the District of Columbia, and they recognize black Americans who have been prominent in such fields as art, music, sports, law, literature, religion and architecture, he said.

This includes a St. Louis apartment formerly occupied by Joplin, who helped make ragtime a unique part of American music; the St. Nicholas Avenue residence in New York City where jazz musician Ellington lived between 1939 and 1961, and the Great Barrington, Mass., boyhood homesite of DuBois, the Afro-American scholar and author who helped found the Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

3 day program on The Elimination of Racism in Cuba,' begins today

By ANGELA THOMAS
Asst. Black Affairs Editor

A cultural-educational three-day program on "The Elimination of Racism in Cuba and its Significance For Peoples Living in the United States" will take place the evenings of March 30 through April 1, 1977 (Wednesday, Thursday, Friday) at the Hampden Student Center, Southwest Residential College at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. The activities will start at 7:30 p.m. each night. This event is jointly sponsored and coordinated by eight community and student groups in the Amherst area. The program is a concrete expression of the commitment to understanding, analyzing and combatting racism.

The program will open Wednesday, March 30 at 7:30 p.m. with Poetry and Music Workshops. The Poetry Workshop will engage people in addressing such issues as the role of poetry within movements for social change. Poets are encouraged to bring along their work. The Music workshop will focus primarily on Cuban music — its history and its present-day role and international significance.

In tonight's workshops, Irma McClaurin, Andrew Salkey, and Jorge Medina are the scheduled participants who will discuss the significance of Black people and the African influence on Cuban music. Cuban music will be played, and other topics will be analyzed such as racism and Cuban music. Both workshops are designed to encourage active-creative participation by all attending.

A scene from the Cuban film, "The Other Francisco." The movie will be shown Thursday, March 31, beginning at 7:30 p.m. as part of the 3 day workshop. The movie is an historical-documentary movie about slavery and racism. It presents two differing historical interpretations of the life and times of a Cuban slave, Francisco.

The movie will be shown Thursday, March 31, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Hampden Student Center in Southwest. Admission is free.

'Tomorrow Has Been Here And Gone,'

Lately we have been hearing so much about the 60's and the struggles that occured enabling us, the generation of the 70's to enjoy the benefits of college. During the week of March 15, 16 and 17th, the Voices of New Africa House Workshop presented the musical play "Tomorrow has been here and Gone," by Thurman W. Stanback and Temenga McCord. The play dealt with the struggles of a black New York family living in Harlem during the 60's. The play showed that times have changed but the problems and the need for struggling still remain. High unemployment, bad housing, welfare and drugs are still in existence in the black community, in the same way that thev existed back in the 60's. For those of us who had forgotten what the 60's were all about, "Tomorrow Has Been Here and Gone" was a nice reminder. Even though the Vietnam war is now over and the "riots" are no longer being televised, the conditions that enabled them to happen have not disappeared. The cast, directors, and the Voices of New Africa House are to be applauded for putting on such a fine performance and more importantly to be thanked for reminding us.....

Third World Women Workshop

Sunday, April 3, at 4 p.m., there will be a film shown entitled, "For Women Who Have Had An Abortion" in room 109 of New Africa House.

The subject matter of the film deals with the experience of three women who have had an abortion and the psychological effect it had on them. There will be a discussion afterwards. This is a topic that many women shy away from until it becomes a reality. All Third World women are encouraged to attend.

Korean Conference

The seventh annual conference on Korea and Koreans; problems and perspectives of Koreans and Korean-Americans will be held this Saturday, April 2, from 1 p.m. at the Student Center Ballroom of Central Connecticut State College. All interested in going that needs a ride or has a car, please contact Sookie N. Choo at 545-2419 and 545-2419.

LUNCH-N-COPY

AT THE AMHERST DELI
COMPLIMENTARY LUNCH

WITH COPY ORDERS PLACED AT ETC. COPY CORP.
1. COPY ORDER OF ONLY $10.00 or more
2. Placed between 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM
3. ANY REGULAR SIZE SANDWICH ON THE MENU COMPLIMENTS OF ETC. COPY CORP.

Regular-Size Sandwich
Balogna	.95
Mortadella	1.00
Liverwurst	.95
Salami	1.15
Genoa Salami	1.65
Imported Swiss	1.25
Imported Ham	1.50
Capicola	1.70
Prosciutto	1.85
Turkey	1.60
Pastrami	1.50
Corned Beef	1.70
Roast Beef	1.75
Tuna	1.50
Alaskan King Crab	1.99

Most Copy Order Completed
While You Have Lunch
CLEAN, CONCISE, CORRECT COPIES
on IBM COPIERS, it looks like your original.

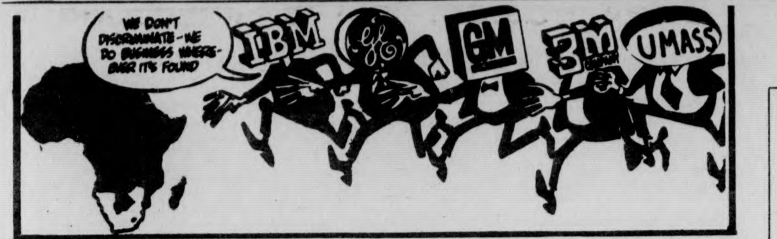
ETC. COPY CORP.

Amherst Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Ma. 01002
549-0566

Call 549-0566 to insure copying up to 12:00 (midnight) Mon.-Sun.

Copy Hours: M-F 9:00-6:00; Sat. 9:00-5:00

Special Hours: Sunday & After Posted Hours



WE DON'T DISCRIMINATE - WE DO BUSINESS WHEREEVER IT'S FOUND IBM
GE
GM
3M
UMASS

UMass upholds apartheid!

South Africa (Anzania) is governed by a white minority regime. Apartheid, the legalized system of racial oppression, means poverty and discrimination for the black majorty. The per capita income for blacks is $117, for whites it is $2373 — a difference of almost 20 times. Laws state that blacks cannot hold jobs supervising whites and that black trade unions are illegal. Blacks must carry identification passes at all times or they are subject to arrest. Blacks cannot vote or be elected to the parliament, and black political organizations are banned as soon as they are formed and their leaders imprisoned or exiled. Blacks must pay for their education, while for whites it is free and of higher quality. There is one doctor for every 415 whites, while blacks have only one doctor for every 100,000 people. One consequence of this is a 53 per cent mortality rate for children to the age of five.

The U.S. is the second largest foreign investor in So. Africa. U.S. corporate investments increased 400 per cent between 1960-70. These corporations are bound by the laws of the land, and can only strengthen the apartheid system. In fact, the legalized exploitation of black labor helps these corporations make a 17-19 per cent return as opposed to a world average of 11 per cent. Their material interests make them resist any real reforms.

The University of Massachusetts has a total of $540,559.28 invested in 16 corporations with holdings in So. Africa (from a comparison of the Feb. '77 account of the University endowment fund with the latest report of the American Consulate General in So. Africa.). This is a conservative estimate since some University holdings, e.g. Xerox and Amax, are not on the Consulate's list but are almost certainly in So. Africa. These University holdings support these corporations and therefore apartheid and all it entails. They not only fly in the face of any moral standards, they contradict their own guidelines as stated in the University's "Guidelines for the Investment of the Endowment Fund".

The South African Support Committee (S.A.S.C.) supports the elimination of racial oppression in So. Africa through the struggle for black majority rule. We want to: 1) educate about the realities of So. Africa, 2) oppose U.S. involvement in So. Africa, and 3) struggle against racism with the U.S. We encourage everyone to join us.

SIGN THE PETITION! 12:00 New Africa House

AFRICA:

LAST GRAVE AT DIMBAZA

ANGOLA: THE SECOND WAR

Teach-in on April 4,
Demonstrate April 5 for U.S. OUT OF SO. AFRICA
BLACK MAJORITY RULE
SELL RACIST UMASS INVESTMENTS
FREE BROWN AND GETHERS

Meeting on every Monday in room 114 at the New Africa House.

These two films sponsored by the commuter collective will be shown in Herter Auditorium on March 31st at 8 and 10 p.m. There will be a speaker from the South African Support Committee. $1.00 donation.

Amherst Travel
Consultants, Inc.
"Your travel agent"
South Pleasant Street
Amherst, Mass. 01002
256-6704

PHOTO CONTEST

DEADLINE: April 26

No smaller than 5'x7' or larger than 8'x10'

Mounting unnecessary

1st Prize $25
2nd Prize $15
3rd Prize $10

2 honorable mention $5 each

Include your name, address, telephone, how the picture was shot, (film type, shutter speed, special effects, etc...) with your photo.

Winners will have their photos printed in the May 2nd Collegian Photo Special

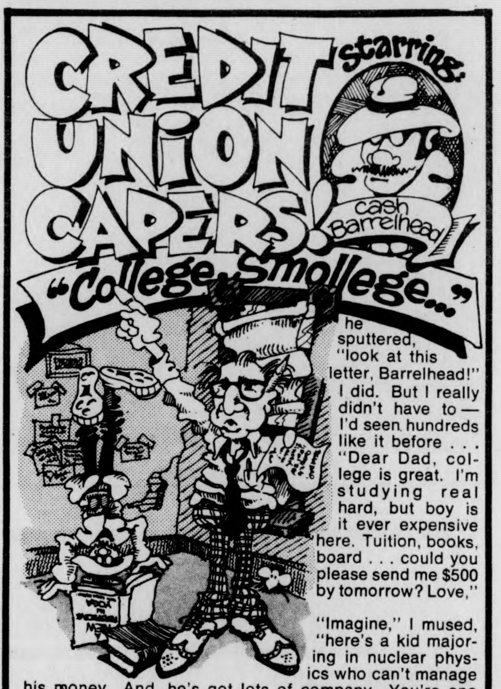
Black Affairs

A needed name

As many of you know the CCEBS program has now established a study lounge on the second floor of the New Africa House. The purpose of the lounge is to provide students with a quiet place to study, hold special seminars, and to use the library of books the program has begun to develop. It is also a place where students can come and work with their tutors or just to use as a resting place between their classes in the New Africa House.

The program staff would like to get the community involved in the naming of the lounge and in the establishment of its long-range theme.

If you have ideas please call 545-0031 between 9:00-5:00 p.m. and leave your suggestions or use the program's 24 hour answering service to leave your suggestions, or send them to room 214 New Africa House. We will take suggestions until March 26, 1977. Then, the editors of Nummo, Black Affairs, the CCEBS' Dorm organizers and staff will get together to determine the top five ideas which will be presented to the community for their selection of the final name.



he sputtered, "look at this letter, Barrelhead!" I did. But I really didn't have to — I'd seen hundreds like it before . . . "Dear Dad, college is great. I'm studying real hard, but boy is it ever expensive here. Tuition, books, board . . . could you please send me $500 by tomorrow? Love,"

"Imagine," I mused, "here's a kid majoring in nuclear physics who can't manage his money. And, he's got lots of company. You're one of hundreds of parents who get letters like this every day."

CREDIT UNION

By now he was trembling with trepidation. "But, what can I do, Barrelhead? Help me!"

"It's not what you can do now," I sagely said, "but what you should have done years ago. You should have taught him to manage his money—not yours. You should have started him out with a credit union account of his own so he could learn the value of smart saving as he grew up."

"But, I didn't know kids could have credit union accounts," he said sheepishly. "That's what they all say," I replied in my best hard-boiled detective dialogue. "But, the truth is, almost every credit union welcomes young people through family memberships. And, most are willing to help out with some good financial advice for them along the way. Since you didn't do it before, however, I'll give you this advice now. First, tell him to join his college credit union and start getting educated (better late than never). And second, see your credit union for a $500 loan. They're very understanding." "College, smollege," he muttered, "am I ever getting an education."

And so he left. Not wealthier, but a little wiser, thanks to the Champion of Money Management and Credit Unions. Me, Cash Barrelhead. See ya. Chow!

University of Massachusetts
Student Federal Credit Union
Colonial Lounge-Student Union
UMass Amherst, MA01003

KAT - food

By DUKE SIMONEAU
Collegian Staff

This is the fifth in a six part series featuring UMass students working their way through college in various shapes and forms. COLLEGIAN reporter Duke Simoneau has interviewed a random sampling of students in some of the more unusual positions on campus.

Most workers get paid once a week. Richard Bruce, a 22 year old Art History senior, gets paid everytime he works. He doesn't get a computer-punched check. Bruce is paid in pot roast dripping with gravy, a kaleidoscope of fresh vegetables, and rich cherry cheesecake. Bruce is one of a handful of University men working as a sorority houseboy.

A spokesman for Greek Affairs said that houseboys in all UMass sororities are "paid" in meals. Mrs. Betty Bean, who shares houseparent duties with her husband Bill, is Bruce's boss at Kappa Alpha Theta. She outlined the duties of the three KAT men.

"They're primarily waiters," explained Bean. "Waiters with a little more to do in the kitchen. The girls grab breakfast on the run, and we have one houseboy come in at lunch to set up and clear the buffet. Supper is when they do the most work."

"It's not hard at all," smiled Bruce. "I come in around quarter to five and set up the tables. Two or three tables, depending on who's here." Bruce then settles down to collect his "wages". He and his partner Dave Needle do none of the cooking. Mrs. Rosetta Aldrich, a local woman, prepares all the meals in advance. Pat Kelley and Cecile Daniel, KAT sisters, work in the kitchen warming up dinner.

"It's the best," said Needle. "I walk into my apartment and see the TV dinners my roommates eat. Makes me sick. What I eat here looks like the picture on the box. Those guys have to eat what's INSIDE!"

When Rick and Dave finish dinner, it's just about 5:30 and dinner time for the 24 sisters at KAT. The kitchen sisters load trays with serving platters and the houseboys ferry them to the dining room. Everything is served family style at KAT.

"I worked in a restaurant back home in Wood's Hole," said Bruce. "That's why I thought I'd like this. I eniov this type of work. And it's true, I like the food."

After dinner, Needle and Bruce clear tables while Pat and Cecile feed the dishwasher and garbage disposal. "There's really not a lot of waste here," said Kelly. "Mrs. Aldrich turns tonight's leftovers into tomorrow's lunch. And leftovers come out good for lunch!"

Some people on campus view the houseboy system as demeaning. Bruce, in his fourth semester at KAT, disagrees wholeheartedly.

"The women here respect us," he said. "It's like a family. There's a sort of rapport between us. If we need a night off or the house wants something special done, there's no hassles. It's great that way."

"The most important aspect of our having houseboys is that we all work together," sais Mrs. Bean. "Maybe that's why we get guys that keep coming back."

Unlike many sororities and fraternities, KAT has an open kitchen.

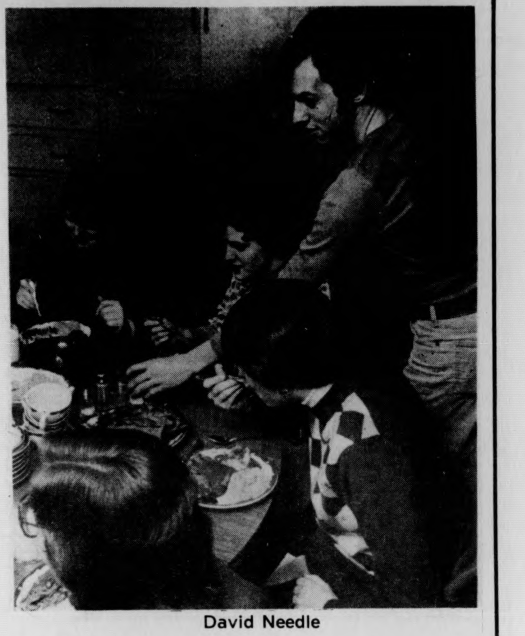
"All that means is that when someone misses a meal or gets hungry later in the night, they can come down and raid the icebox. Our girls are good about it. They don't abuse it and they keep the place clean afterwards."

Both Bruce and Needles admitted to taking a share of kidding about "being a houseboy in a KAT house".

"The jokes tend to be a lot of the same," said Bruce. Needles added that they were mostly on the "fringe benefits" of such a job.

"It's pretty much a standard bad joke that all our houseboys have to live with," said housemother Bean. "It's worse because of KalTheta's initials. I get it from every repairman that comes in the door. But there's nothing you can do."

Richard Bruce



David Needle

THE FIFTH ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT

FRIDAY APRIL 1
CHARLES TOLLIVER/
MUSIC INC.
AND THE ALLSTARS

SATURDAY APRIL 2
FRANK FOSTER
AND THE
LOUD MINORITY
WITH VOCALIST
ANDY BEY

8:00 p.m.
STUDENT UNION
BALLROOM
ADMISSION FREE

SPONSORED BY THE PROGRAM COUNCIL MUSIC COMMITTEE AND THE STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE

Workshops Saturday, April 2, 9:00a.m. and 1:00 p.m.
Franklin Patterson Hall Hampshire College

Bottle bill belabored

BOSTON (UPI) — Bottle bill proponents said, at a rowdy legislative hearing yestderay, that out-of-state beverage industry representatives have been distributing false information on the probable effects of a ban on throwaway containers.

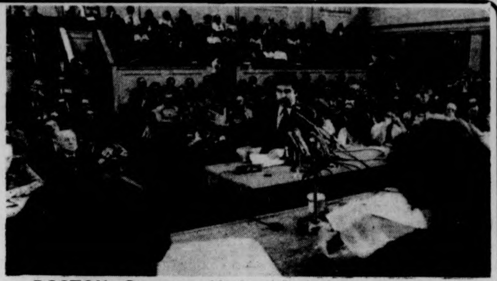
The legislature's Commerce and Labor Committee held a hearing in jam-packed Gardner Auditorium on legislation madating returning soft drink and beer bottles and cans.

Last November, voters narrowly defeated a referendum to ban throwaways. Bottle bill supporters attribute it to a massive advertising campaign by out-of-staters who said banning throwaways would probably lead to a reduction of jobs and higher beverage costs.

Hissing, booing, laughter and whistling interrupted the hearing as several committee members questioned proponents, including Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, Vermont Congressman James Jeffords and leading proponent Rep. Lois Pines, D-Newton, on their testimony.

"If I were the least bit convinced that the bottle bill weren't in the Commonwealth's best interest, I would indeed oppose it," Dukakis said. "But every argument I've heard and every study...I've seen points only to the benefits of such a system."

Jeffords, whose state passed a bottle bill in September 1973, cited federal studies showing energy savings, increased jobs and lower beverage costs to the consumer as a result of returnable containers.



BOSTON: Governor Michael Dukakis speaks out for a bottle bill before the Commerce and Labor Committee yesterday.

News in Brief

Spain now has jets' 'black boxes'

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel announced yesterday it will try two West Germans and three Arabs for an attempt to shoot down an Israeli airliner at a foreign airport, believed to be Nairobi, Kenya, some 15 months ago.

An announcement by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's military aide, Brig. Ephraim Foran, said the five have been held in Israel following the attempt January, 1976.

Havana says no go to wires

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cuba has refused permission, without giving a reason, for United Press International and Associated Press to send reporters and photographers to cover a South Dakota basketball team scheduled to play in Havana early next month.

A spokesman in the office of Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., which arranged the games between a combined squad from South Dakota University and the University of South Dakota and a Cuban team, said the UPI and AP applications were turned down.

AFL-CIO's ire aroused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top AFL-CIO leader said yesterday a recent victory by antiunion forces who "like to fight in the gutter" has strengthened labor's resolve to battle for new legislation, including repeal of right to work laws.

Eastern chief hits deregulation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of Eastern Airlines told Congress Tuesday that proposals to deregulate the industry would destroy "the very basic core" of the nation's airline system and could force Eastern to drop some cities from its routes.

Testifying before the Senate aviation subcommittee, which is considering sweeping deregulation legislation, Eastern's Frank Borman proposed alternative measures he said would expedite and and ease the regulatory functions of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Israel to try Germans and Arabs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Spanish government is in possession of the four "black boxes" containing cockpit data from the two jumbo jets that collided in the Canary Islands, the National Transportation Safety Board said yesterday.

Carter faces first 'partisan' test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter faces his "first real partisan" test with Congress over his proposal for a $50 tax rebate for every American, his chief spokesman said yesterday.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said that Carter would start "chit chatting" with Democratic senators to line up support for the crucial vote on the House-passed rebate.

Delay of limit voted by Senate

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The Senate voted yesterday to wait an extra year, until the start of 1979, to impose a $8,625 yearly limit on outside earnings — the most controversial feature of its prospective ethics code.

Proponents urged the move so that the Senate code would conform with the one adopted by the House early in March.

Members approved it by voice vote after Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., head of the special panel that drafted the proposed Senate standards, said he had no objection.

The action came, with almost no debate, at the start of the Senate's ninth round of debate on the code. A final vote on the full code has been scheduled for Friday.

The Nelson committee had recommended that the income ceiling — a feature that has drawn vociferous opposition from many senators — go into effect Jan. 1, 1978.

Under the amendment sponsored by Sens. Lloyd Bentson, D-Tex., and Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., the limitation would take effect a year later.

Under both the House and Senate codes, members would be allowed to earn no more than $8,625 a year from speechmaking and other "personal services."

That would equal 15 per cent of their congressional salaries, which were boosted to $57,000 a year by the recent federal pay raises. Proponents of tha strict outside earnings limitation, including Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd, argued that the pay raise made the restriction an indispensable element of the proposed ethics code.

DOW JONES AVERAGE
30 Industrials
Mar. 29 1977
Closed at 932.01

UP
5.90

N.Y.S.E.
Volume Profile

UP	UNCHANGED	DOWN
868	489	508

ISSUES TRADED: 1865
INDEX: 54.19 up 0.34
VOLUME: 20,523,670 SHARES
S.& P. COMPOSITE 99.69 up 0.69

POWER TO THE PEDALS !

Regularly 28⁰⁰
Now $20⁰⁰ with this coupon

Fine, full grain leather uppers on this cycling shoe by Patrick are ventilated for comfortable summer riding. Steel shank transmits power to pedal rather than flexing the shoe.

runner'shop
15 Strong Ave.
Northampton
10-5³⁰ mon-sat
thurs til 9pm

CELEBRATE SPRING!
With A New Pair
Of FRYE Boots

Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
New Hours 10:00-5:30
Monday - Saturday
253-5135

FREE MINK OIL & SADDLE SOAP
WITH PURCHASE OF FRYE Boots
GOOD THRU APRIL 2 WITH THIS COUPON

terri brogan
15% discount
on sunglasses with this ad
Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 N. PLEASANT ST./256-6403

Back Room
Record Shop
All $6.98 List
Record Albums
$3.99
COUPON EXPIRES APRIL 15
SPECIALS BELOW
Fleetwood Mac Rumors $4.52
Geo. Benson In Flight $4.52
Steely Dan Royal Scam $3.57
Rufus Ask Rufus $3.57
Renaissance Novella $3.57
Keith Jarrett Shades $3.57
New Jimmy Buffet $3.57
— PLUS OTHERS —
CUT OUT ALBUMS 77¢
Located in rear of College Town Barber Shop
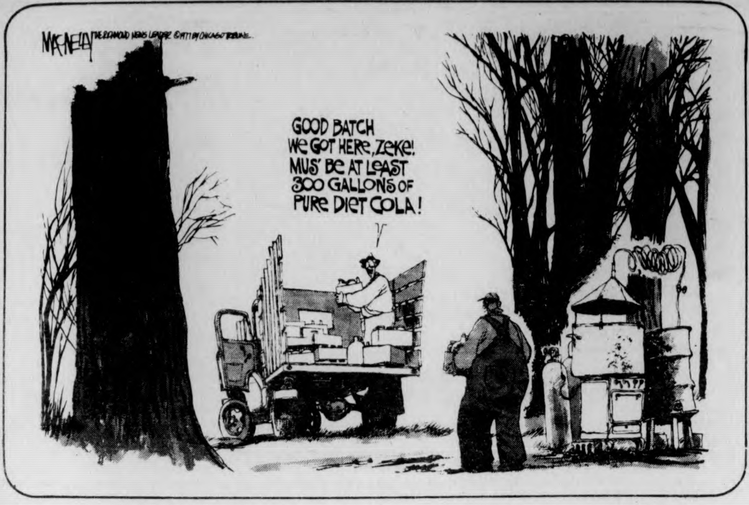
183 N. Pleasant St.
Next to Mobil Station



MacNELLY THE RICHMOND NEWS LEADER ©1977 BY CHICAGO TRIBUNE
GOOD BATCH WE GOT HERE, ZEKE! MUS' BE AT LEAST 300 GALLONS OF PURE DIET COLA!

letters

Workshops on off-campus living

To the Editor:

We would be very happy to run dorm or area workshops on the dynamics involved with living off campus for the first time. It is our feeling that such a workshop would be useful to students currently living in dormitories who may be planning to live in the Amherst area during the summer months. Such a workshop would also be helpful to those students who are contemplating the move to off campus living for the fall. We would discuss available living options: rooms in private homes, off campus roommate situations, apartment living, special needs of single women tenants, area tenant groups, etc.

We hope to hear from you soon.

Joanne R. Levenson, Coordinator

Thanks from Pinky and Jon

To the Editor:

We would like to thank everyone who voted in the SGA Presidential Elections. A very special thanks to all of the people who supported us throughout the campaign. We really appreciate the long hours and sleepless nights that so many people endured to get the vote out and help us win. Thanks again!

Pinky Batiste and Jon Hite

commentary

Solar energy in New England?

By MALCOLM QUINT

"New England To Be Showcase For Solar Energy"

This may be the headline in newspapers across the country if the Federal Government decides to place its Solar Energy Research Institute (SERI) in Massachusetts. An unlikely candidate? You may think so, for in New England the sun doesn't have the strength to even warm our bodies for over half the year.

Why not put the research institute in Arizona, Texas, or Florida where the sun strikes with considerably more heat? Well it might indeed end up in the sunbelt, but the argument for putting SERI up north is a strong one. Of all regions in the country New England has the most need for solar energy development.

At present 88 percent of New England's fuel requirements are met by oil and over half of this is supplied by foreign sources. This statistic and the awareness that oil is controlled by people in other places is forcing New Englanders to seek alternatives in a hurry. For these reasons New England has become one of the most active areas in the country in making solar energy commercially available.

Consumers are beginning to create considerable pressure to develop solar energy as a heating source. When the Energy Research and Development Agency (ERDA) opened up its solar energy division, they were swamped for months with requests for information from the public. Here at UMass we may be housing the Solar Energy Information Service as sponsored by the New England Regional Commission. Such a development would not only be a great benefit to the energy programs on this campus but would also hasten the spread of use of solar energy as a heating source for buildings in the Pioneer Valley.

New England, and Mass. in particular, is on the frontier of making solar energy a profitable business. The collection of private interests working on solar energy is interesting and revealing. Arthur D. Little, a business consultant in Cambridge, is trying to motivate the business community to take solar energy seriously as a commercially profitable venture.

Some of the major oil companies are pouring money into solar energy development by investing in firms in the Boston area. Mobil Oil and Tyco have formed Mobil Tyco Solar Energy Corporation to spread distribution. Exxon has invested in the Mass. based company called Daystar Corp. which is selling solar collectors for heating buildings. These companies have other energy sources to sell to the public. While their interest in solar energy is real, their primary concern is making a profit on their major investments, such as in oil. Bringing a new energy source such as solar to the public before liquidating existing assets would reduce profits.

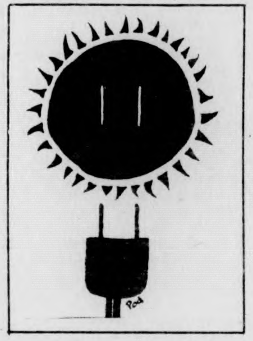
Solar energy is now cost competitive with electric heating in new homes — even the Energy Research Development Agency hhs come out and said so. It seems almost daily there are new developments making use of the sun's rays more attractive to the public. So what's the hold up in widespread use? Individual homeowners are waiting for solar energy to be thoroughly tested and proven before risking a heavy investment in collectors to gather the sun's heat. Industry, for its part, is waiting for widespread public demand for solar energy before making capital intensive investments in an entirely new field.



The private business sector is banking on the government to do the initial groundwork of research and development as well as demonstrating to the public the benefits of solar energy. The government, while content to take on this role has refused to push solar energy up the ladder of priorities by making necessary funds unavailable. This frustrating picture is what's delaying wisespread use of solar energy, not any lack of technical abilities but rather of the willingness to make an economic commitment to solve our energy problems.

There is a piece of this puzzle which doesn't fit in with the the "backyard" inventors. There are scores of tinkerers in this community alone who are experimenting with methods of collecting solar energy. Some are using highly sophisticated methods and enjoy access to the equipment of high technology. This can be seen on this campus with the folks over in the Civil Engineering Dept. Others, using appropriate scrap materials are building inexpensive solar energy panels which are used to collect heat from the sun. Students of the Five College area have done such projects in a class at Hampshire College. People are not waiting for necessary profit margins to motivate them. Instead these people see a need of society going unfulfilled and are working on their desire to better the community. What significance they will have on a mass scale is yet to be determined.

The answer in part lies with the individual consumer, in how we decide to heat our buildings. I have heard too many stories of people building new homes and saying I'd like to use solar energy but it's still unproven and I can't afford it. The truth is that the added capital expense of solar heating equipment is made up for in lower fuel bills over time. Certain solar heating systems have been proven efficient but the homeowners must do their own research to discover which ones are best. Once again it is not technical problems but rather social structures which refuse to provide for the development of a much needed energy source. Individuals can't possibly use solar heating systems if banks refuse to loan money for them or if the Federal Housing Authority will not approve of houses with solar energy systems for their loans. Once again, the consumer is trapped by the maze of red tape of an overwhelming bureaucratic system both in the business community and government.

As an individual working to open the gates for money to flow for solar energy development, I see hope. One of the keys is the development of solar energy on a decentralized level by people who want to see this non-polluting source of energy used now not in twenty years. If we educate ourselves and others in the potentials of solar energy rather than waiting for gigantic corporations to serve us solar energy on a silver platter, power may indeed belong to the people.

commentary

An obvious solution?

By DUKE SIMONEAU
Collegian Staff

A retired Northampton man has proposed a solution to UMass' financial troubles. In a recent Hampshire Gazette, Richard S. Holden, retired President of the Northampton National Bank, suggested that the "obvious solution to the University's money problem" was to raise tuition by $500-$1,000 annually. This "would make a total fee that is still only a fraction of the University's cost per student," said the six paragraph letter.

Where did Holden suggest students find the extra cash? "Doubtless many parents could squeeze something out of the family budget for this purpose. There could be no more legitimate use of the family savings. Then there are summer jobs, and part-time work during the school year. In addition, there are various student loan plans, and for the lucky ones, scholarships and grants."

Mr. Holden goes on to say that higher tuition would "ease pressure on the private institutions ... as well as the overburdened taxpayer."

I would like to orient Mr. Holden (and many others) to the facts of academic life.

One of the basic philosophies behind have a state-run university is that more people have a chance at a good college education. UMass (or U - any - other - state) was never founded with the intention of having students pay the full load of their education costs. (That doesn't happen in private schools either, incidentally.)

Tuition is NOT the big cost of UMass. Next school year, the Bursar projects student costs of $3200 plus. Only $436 of this is tuition. The other $2764 plus is divided among room ($800), board ($740) and "fees" (Campus Center, health, and assorted others).

Mr. Holden apparently assumes students here don't work. The Financial Aid office automatically assumes each student saves $700 per summer before allotting aid packages. In a recent study compiled by Mr. Larry Benedict of the Vice Chancellor's Office, 85 per cent of UMass students work, either in the summer or during the year (or both).

Most of the students working part-time during the semester are work-study employed on campus. Part-time work, on or off campus, is almost impossible to get, due to the mass of able bodies in the area. Mr. Fitzsimmons of the Financial Aid office did allow that if tuitions were raised by the amounts Mr. Holden suggests, the amount of Federal subsidy for the UMass work-study program would be increased by a certain percentage and more students would become eligible. However, these are also tax dollars. What good does it do to lower your state tax bite and raise the Federal?

The other suggestion Mr. Holden has is for students to secure loans. In a telephone interview, he said that he put his kids through college and had to borrow money to do it. He wouldn't say how many kids and through what colleges. I'm sure, too, it was easier for Northampton National Bank's President to secure loans than it was for the roughly 52 per cent of UMass' 25,000 students who have bank, government and other loans outstanding.

Mr. Holden ends his letter by saying that college graduates get better jobs and that "the achievement of a college degree is well worth a family effort."

College graduates may get "better jobs", but many of us will graduate in May with dim prospects for working in our "chosen fields".

As for the achievement of a college degree? I have a brother who's a steam engineer, a sister who's a registered nurse, and a kid brother who's saving lives by assisting U.S. Air Force surgeons. I will be the first in my family to graduate college. When I leave here with a B.S., where is "the achievement"?

Duke Simoneau is a Collegian Commentator.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no

richard caplan

Your chance of a lifetime

Hello friends. Are you tired of the day-to-day rat race of going to classes and competing for the best grades (or the best high)? Are you feeling bored with meaningless relationships with unexciting people? Well then, I've got wonderful news for you.

You can be one of the first to join the internationally known SCHOOL OF TERRORISM. That's right, this is the first time this has ever been offered and it may be the last, so act now.

Listen to some of the great things you'll learn at this school:

You'll learn how to make yourself into a human bomb and blow yourself up at a busy airport.

You'll learn how to talk to aircraft pilots and explain to them that they'll be taking an fly the plane.

You'll learn funny things to say to passengers as you inform them that ~~they'sll~~ be taking an unexpected journey to the Far East.

You'll learn not to be nervous when speaking in front of police chiefs, congressmen, and even foreign ambassadors, as long as you carry a sub-machine gun.

You'll learn how to make a date with an attractive hostage.

You'll learn how to hear "voices from God" telling you who to kill.

You'll learn how to murder people in cold blood and then be psychotic enough to rationalize it.

Yes there's so much you'll learn that it's impossible to list it all here. But are you afraid you're not the kind of person who would be capable of creating international terror and then getting away with it? Well, just try this fool proof method we recommend to all our potential students:

Have yourself committed to the nearest mental hospital for an observational period of 30 days. If, after the month is over, they let you go, then the School of Terrorism may not be for you. However, if they want to keep you, then you may qualify. In fact, if they want to keep you in a locked ward, under full sedation, and with an armed guard, then you're the kind of person we're looking for.

But that's only the beginning. We not only teach you how to make bombs and how to obtain weapons but, more importantly, we help you choose a name for your little group. Did you like the name "black September"? Well, we did too and we have many many more names to choose from. How about, "the Mary Hartman Marauders" or "the No More Mister Nice Guys" or even "The Not Ready for Prime Time Killers".

But we don't stop at just the name. We also include a really nice black leather jacket with the name of your terrorist group embroidered along the back. And, at no extra charge, we'll send along to you our free booklet; "Spring fashions for the up-to-date terrorist". In it you'll find our entire wardrobe of sweatshirts, work pants and army boots, which no self-respecting terrorist would be without.

And as a special treat, we'll also send you another free fashion book; "How to fit your face to the proper stocking." A guide to masks you can wear to any occasion.

Act now on this chance-of-a-lifetime deal and you'll never regret it. Just write to the "NATIONAL SCHOOL OF TERRORISM" and you'll be on your way to the most exciting career of your life. (Women and Third Worlders are encouraged to apply).

———

Don't miss NBC's coverage of the national terrorist competition from Washington, D.C. as the middle east "Hanafi" challenge the "Black Muslims" for the world title. It should be exciting.

Richard Caplan is a Collegian Columnist.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Gerard F. Rogers, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson, Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is

lisa melilli

Let's get out of the race

Take off. It's time to take off and the gun has just gone off and us lined up in this starting line of the race, start off running, taking off as fast as we can. We're in a field of down-trodden grass, grass trampled down by racers who have competed in this race before. About three-hundred yards ahead is the goal: success. It's in a cloud of dust and we can only imagine what's there at the finish line. We've learned from others that it's something great. We really can't tell how long it will take us to get to that finish line, that three-hundred yards ahead of us. We can only approximate.

All we know is this is the most important race in our lives. It's the test of everything we've been doing all our lives, so far. It's the test of our value as a person because we know our value is measured by our success. And this is our chance to reach this "Success" and we have to make it look good.

We've just been spit out, a product of an educational facility (private or public) in this great "equalizing" nation of America. In this facility, we have been running a primary race in preparation to the one we are now running. In this primary race, while running we were thrown statistics; intellectual theories of history, philosophy, psychology; scientific facts; and practical skills to be used as mechanisms to increase our chances for being victor in this race we find ourselves in now. In this primary race, we've learned all the arts of competition, beating the enemy by racing against everyone else for a mind full of the largest amount of knowledge and academic achievement. In this, we've learned that to win, the other must lose. We came into this final race determined not to let the other one win, else we be the loser.

You and I are running and I can see you over to the left of me. Hello? Hello! Oh, hello. That's all we can say to each other because should we stop and chat for awhile, our momentum in running will break, our running in the race.

Everyone is after success. We've learned that we have to succeed because America is a place where anyone can succeed if they try hard enough. And if they don't succeed, it's because of something they have done wrong or because there must be something wrong with them. And so we've all lined up and waited (not so patiently) for the gun to sound off for us to take off — running in the race.

It's a human phenomenon — this running in the race. In America it's a way of life — the American dream. But the race is starting to catch up with us as many of us find ourselves trapped in mediocre jobs with a family to support, wondering what we did wrong; finding ourselves not worthy to be in the company of a corporate executive because we're only a factory worker; finding ourselves breaking our backs for our children to have the opportunity "mechanism" to obtain success — college — and finding them turning it down, or treating us with disrespect because they have a diploma and we don't, or having that diploma and no success (where did we go wrong?).

And it goes even further — finding ourselves over-systematized, over-scheduled so as not to have a free minute to simply talk to someone or rest; finding ourselves, as Mark Twain once wrote, at our death beds realizing that we've never lived; or finding ourselves as University professors of sociology not seeing anything else but the field of sociology and not being able to converse with anyone but an expert in the field of sociology.

Or we find ourselves at the end of the race — a success — but empty, sad, depressed because we've missed totally the most important thing in life, other people, and we can't share our happiness and victory with anyone else. Or we become an example of the statistics reporting that seriously running in the race leads to early heart attacks, ulcers, serious heart conditions: you can't run seriously and stay young and healthy at the same time.

Erich Fromm, a foremost figure in humanistic psychology, claims in his book THE SANE SOCIETY, that Americans are driving themselves to the state of being "robots" — automatic, unfeeling beings leading themselves to destruction.

Seymour B. Sarason, professor of psychology and Urban education at Yale University, writes in his book WORK, AGING, AND SOCIAL CHANGE that, "the young no longer live each day as if they were immortal, as past generations did... the sense of aging has already begun in young people, and their sense of the passage of time has become related to the sense that time is a limited resource already beginning to run out... an expectation of unhappiness."

Excuse me, but I can't run anymore in this race. And I'm waving my arms in the middle of the field and I've stopped running. People behind me have stopped: to the side they've stopped. I've just been disqualified by the judges. See, in this race, no one stops. But I've got to and I think we all should — but — then what?

My mother and my aunt think we'll turn to a political system employing socialism. (And they didn't even go to college.)

Synchronize, the revolution begins in half an hour.

Lisa Melilli is a Collegian Columnist.

commentary

Nuclear war has been banned

By STEVEN DUBIN

Mankind rejoice! The struggle has ended! NUCLEAR WAR HAS BEEN BANNED! The Rooskies will not obliterate the world! Sea and air attacks are things of the past! Guerilla and terrorist tactics are as outmoded as cap guns!

The International Blood and Guts Conference (IBGC) in Helsinki has unanimously voted to put war where it belongs: in the city. Their rationale is sound; a widescale nuclear war would be a disaster. No one would be left Victor (or for that matter, Sam, Gus, or Charlie). As a plausible alternative to conventional war the IGBC has devised groundrules which allow feuding nations to clash in a city of their choice. Indeed a stroke of genius! No longer will prime agricultural land be defoliated or peasants rendered homeless. And let's face it, what the hell can you do to a city?

The Pentagon is enthusiastic. Already emergency plans are being enacted to ready the new fighting forces. The neglected art of camouflage has taken a refreshing uplift. For example, jeeps are being disguised as svelte Checker Cabs. Forest-green army fatigues have been exchanged for dynamic neon red livlies. High-laced combat boots have been discarded in favor of have been transformed into cheery, bright "Holiday Inns."

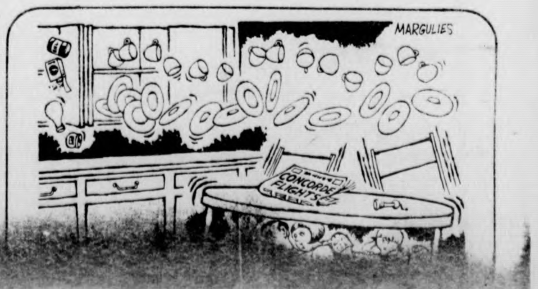
Naturally, strategy and tactics have been drastically altered. The infantry is now "subway troops". After a preparatory Earth Shoe camp, they are dispatched to the far corners of the world's rapid transit systems. Henceforth, a major military offensive will consist of sabotaging stratigically located stop-lights into chaotic non-synchronization. This will ultimately lead to paralyzing traffic jams. Street vendors will be utilized as double agents. And obviously pigeons in the local parks are not to be trusted.

In conjunction with the IBGC, humanitarian codes are now being drafted by the Geneva Convention.

Firstly, it is expressedly forbidden to harm city maintenance workers. They are after all, responsible for keeping tidy battlefields. Secondly, muggings will be restricted to one's own allies. The enemy will be off-limits to protect the tourist industry.

Oh yes, military personnel will not be issued "Rations", a constant diet of "Illogics" are in order. Watch out... The Hub, the Big Apple, Champs Elysees, metropolises everywhere, here it comes!

Steven Dubin is a Collegian Commentator.



Dukakis agrees to $70M in pay hikes

BOSTON [UPI] — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis agreed yesterday to amend his $4.1 billion budget package to provide for $70 million in pay hikes which will be due to state employes in fiscal 1978.

Dukakis agreed to make the amendments during a one-hour meeting with House Ways and Means Committee Chairman John J. Finnegan, D-Boston, who had threatened to halt further budget hearings.

Following the session Finnegan said Dukakis and his aides had agreed to submit amendments by Friday to cover the cost of the pay raises. The cost is estimated by House Ways and Means Committee members to be "at least $70 million."

Finnegan said the governor indicated the salary costs would be covered in a new reserve account, the exact amount of which was not specified.

"I expect a recommendation from the chief executive by the end of the week on a salary reserve," Finnegan said.

The chairman said details on how the reserve would be created were not discussed.

Dukakis himself declined to comment on details of the meeting, calling it "very constructive".

"It's going to be a long budget process," Dukakis said.

Administration officials later indicated the reserve fund may be created from a combination of sources including an estimated $20 million in additional federal counter-cyclical revenue sharing not included in the governor's original package.

The agreement apparently ends, at least for the moment, the threat by Finnegan and other House leaders to suspend budget hearings due to the governor's failure to provide funding for the raises.

Refusers can keep licenses

BOSTON [UPI] — The Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles will stop suspending licenses of drivers who refuse to take sobriety breath tests, a registry spokesman said yesterday.

U.S. District Court Judges Frank H. Freedman and Joseph L. Tauro ruled Monday the registry cannot suspend licenses without a hearing. The court said a state law calling for an automatic 90-day suspension for refusal to take the test is unconstitutional. The law has been in effect since 1967.

Mass. unemployment drops below average

BOSTON [UPI] — Unemployment in Massachusetts declined below the national average in February for the first time in six years to a seasonally adjusted rate of 6.8 per cent compared with 7.3 per cent recorded in January, Employment Security Director John D. Crosier said yesterday.

Nationwide unemployment for the same period increased from 7.3 to 7.5 per cent, Crosier said.

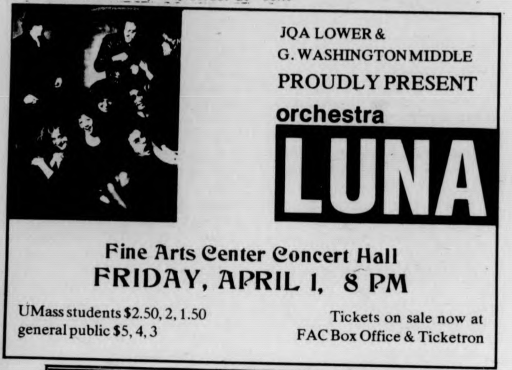
The lowered rates reflected a decline of 9,700 persons on the unemployment rolls, Crosier added, reflecting a decrease in the number of persons collecting total unemployment compensation under the state's regular program and a significant 9 per cent drop in the unemployed who have exhausted all federal-state benefits.

Total employment rose to 2,483,000 the highest level ever recorded in February, he said.

The New Bedford area posted the highest unemployment rate, 0.4 per cent; Worcester, the lowest at 6.3 per cent.

In addition, Springfield-Chicopee-Holyoke reported 6.8 per cent.

CALVIN Theatre
SUN - THURS 8:00 ONLY
FRI - SAT 7:00 & 9:10
A MOTION PICTURE HAS NEVER SPREAD SUCH FEAR!
The Cassandra Crossing
R
MON - TUES DOLLAR NITES!



JQA LOWER &
G. WASHINGTON MIDDLE PROUDLY PRESENT
orchestra
LUNA
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 8 PM
UMass students $2.50, 2, 1.50
general public $5, 4, 3
Tickets on sale now at
FAC Box Office & Ticketron

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
national black theatre
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
NOW at 7:00 & 9:00
(only area showing)
"ONE OF THE YEARS 10 BEST FILMS!"
- Rex Reed
- Time Mag.
a film by
françois truffaut
small change
No Dollar Nights
This Program!

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
KARR-LEWIS DUO
Double Bass & Keyboard
WED., APRIL 6 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
PRAGUE CHAMBER ORCHESTRA
A concerto festival with
Hans Richter-Haaser, piano soloist
Wed., March 30 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $7, 6, 5. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS
1 NOMINATED FOR 3 ACADEMY AWARDS! Cousin Cousine R STARTS FRIDAY
2 IT'S THE MOST HILARIOUS SUSPENSE RIDE OF YOUR LIFE! GENE WILDER JILL CLAYBURGH RICHARD PRYOR SILVER STREAK PG Weds. 5:45, 8:00, twi-liter 5:15-5:45
3 ACADEMY AWARD WINNER! A STAR IS BORN R Weds. 5:30, 8:00, twi-liter 5:00-5:30
4 The Newest, Pinkest Panther of All! BLAKE EDWARDS' PETER SELLERS in "THE PINK PANTHER STRIKES AGAIN" PG Weds.: 5:45, 8:15, twi-liter 5:15-5:45
REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI-LITE SHOW TICKETS LIMITED TO SEATING

Notices

ABORTION: FILM AND DISCUSSION

"It Could Happen to Us" — movie shown March 30, 8 p.m. Woman's Center 112 Field. Discussion afterwards.

ALL POLITICAL SCIENCE MAJORS

There will be a cocktail party today, March 30, 3:30 to 6 p.m. in CC 1001. Free beer and wine for all Political Science majors and faculty.

ALL SENIORS GRADUATING IN MAY, 1977

All graduating seniors with a National Direct Loan are required by the Federal Government to have an "exit interview" with a representative of the Bursar's office to discuss your rights and obligations under the conditions of the loan. For this purpose, we are holding two meetings, one on Wed. evening, March 30 in Herter 231 at 7:30. The second meeting will be on Thurs., March 31 in SBA 120 at 7:30. You may attend either of these meetings, whichever one is more convenient. Seniors with loans are being notified by mail, but if you do not receive a notice you should come anyways. This is an important part of your National Direct Loan and your cooperation will be appreciated so that we will not have to withdraw you administratively under the conditions required by the Federal Government.

ALTERNATIVE HEALING SERVICE

A lecture on Perspectives of Nutrition will be given by Brian Lynch, Wed., March 30 at 8 p.m. at Emily Dickinson Hall Rm 17 at Hampshire College. Everyone is welcome.

ASTRONOMY CLUB

Meeting tonight in Hasbrouck 22 at 7.

A TIME FOR JUGGLERS

Tonight and every Wed. night, first floor CC 7:30. We're unbelievably psyched for the convention this Fri. and Sat. Juggling is bigger than ever before at UMass. Everybody's juggling!

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD VOLUNTEERS

A communication workshop will be held this evening, 7-8:30 in CC 176 for all volunteers and other interested persons. Guest speaker Lisa Carroll will discuss total communication, hearing impairments and language development. All are welcome to attend.

ATTENTION: MEETING CHANGE

Amateur Radio meeting Thurs. at 8. Previously scheduled for Wed. Movies scheduled. Come and learn about ham radio. 8 p.m. Thurs. in ELAB 109.

BRIDGE PLAYERS

Come down and join us tonight at 7:15. Check the Campus Center schedule for room number. We have a partner for you.

BUDDIST MEDITATION

Buddist meditation and study group meets 7:30 in CC. Lead by students of Chogyam Trunpga Rimpga. For further info call John Gorman, 549-5663.

DAYCARE CAMPAIGN

The Western Mass July 4th Coalition will hold an educational on its recently adopted campaign to protect, maintain and expand child care facilities in Northampton on Sunday, April 3, 7 p.m. at 21 Market St., Northampton. Work groups will be established at this meeting and all are invited to attend. For more information, call 584-3989 or 584-8051.

FASHION COUNCIL

Please attend this organizational meeting for the fashion show being held on April 21. Models will be chosen.

FOOD DAY APRIL 21

Meeting to plan events for Food Day in Western Mass. Lounge on the 8th floor of the Campus Center at 7:30 p.m.

FOUND

Misc. camping equipment in a green duffel bag, near stadium. If yours, call 546-5259. Ask for Lee.

FRIENDS OF UMASS MEN'S SWIMMING

All those people who helped run, tim, judge, etc. meets for the Men's Swimming Team are invited to a party at Boo's apt. Friday night. For info call 549-4487.

FRISBEE CLUB MEETING

Important, important meeting at 7 p.m. in Lewis House basement. Shirts, jackets, four tournaments, double disc court and the nature and philosophy of the Ultimate team will be discussed in this short meeting.

"GODSPELL"

Tickets are still available for the Music Theater Guild's production, Godspell, Thurs., through Sat., March 31-April 2 at 8 and Sun., April 3 at 3:30 in Bowker aud. Call 545-0783 for reservations.

GRADUATES CHANGE STUDENT CONSTITUTION

At a meeting in Rm 911 CC tonight at 7:30. Grad students will continue a review of their senate constitution. All grads are welcome.

JOURNEY: A MYTHICAL MUSICAL

Production meeting for JOURNEY will be held this afternoon at 5 p.m. at the BDIC conference room, 416 Goodell Library. Production staff and anyone else interested in working behind the scenes are asked to attend.

J.P. STEVENS BOYCOTT COMMITTEE PUBLIC MEETING

The campus J.P. Stevens boycott committee will hold an organizational and strategy planning meeting open to all interested groups and individuals on April 6, Wed. in the Campus Center rooms 174-176 at 8 p.m. J.P. Stevens is an industrial bandit that refuses to bargain with employees who have freely chosen to belong to the amalgamated Clothing and Textile Worker's Union. For more information on how you can help the local effort in this nation-wide boycott call 584-3989 or 584-7541.

LOST

Black vinyl ring binder. Contact owner at 253-7139.

PASSOVER SEDER

The Chabad House is an organization near the S.W. dorms that is concerned with Jewish awareness and education. Join us for a real traditional Seder for Passover. Call us at 253-9040 for reservations. First seders, Fri. and Sat. nights.

POETRY READING

Bill Tremblay will read his poetry at 9, March 30 in Butterfield House.

PRE-PASSOVER WORKSHOP

Saul Perlmutter, Hillel Rabbi, will lead a workshop today at 2:30 p.m. in CC 803 on How To Do Passover. All people interested in how to do their own seder, understand the symbols, etc. are invited.

SCREEN TEST

On the Campus Center Plaza at 12 Thurs., there will be a screen test for the film, on March 31. Musicians, actors, clowns, eaters.

SELF EXPLORATION WORKSHOP

There will be a free workshop tonight, sponsored by Room to Move, concerning inter-and intra-personal communication. It will be in the CC Rm 811-815 from 7:30-9:30.

"SUMMER WISHES, WINTER DREAMS"

Admission FREE to see "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams" with Joanne Woodward in the basement of Baker. March 30, 7 p.m. Everyone welcome. Sponsored by the Central Area Women's Center.

TA APPLICATION: RHETORIC PROGRAM

During the month of April the Rhetoric Program, including its ESL Component, will be interviewing qualified applicants for teaching asstships. Application forms may be obtained in Bartlett 305. Deadline for complete applications is April 30. Call 5-0610.

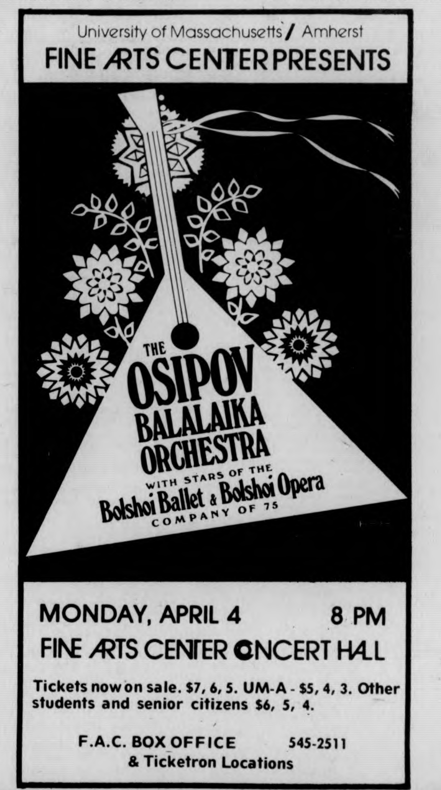
TM PROGRAM

"Characteristics of the State of Fulfillment", tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Herter Hall, Room 225. The Students Intl. Meditation Soc. will sponsor an introductory presentation on the Transcendental Meditation technique. Lecture is free and open to all. For more info call 549-5335.

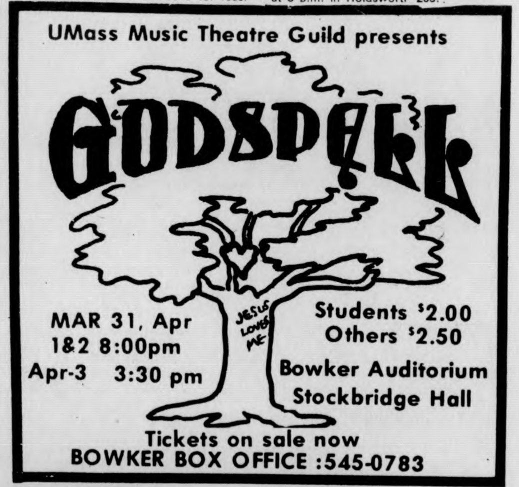
WILDLIFE SOCIETY

Tonight Dr. Carl Carlozzi, professor and environmental consultant will speak on Environmental Jobs in the Private Sector at 8 p.m. in Holdsworth 203.

Showcase Cinemas
ROUTE 5
RIVERDALE RD.
West Springfield
733-5131
BARGAIN $2.50 til 2:30
MATINEES WED. SAT. SUN
ROCKY PG United Artists
MGM presents NETWORK R United Artists
AIRPORT '77 A UNIVERSAL PICTURE TECHNICOLOR PANAVISION PG
REDFORD/HOFFMAN "ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN" 8 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS PG
FREAKY FRIDAY G
A STAR IS BORN R
'THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN' PG
A RALPH BAKSHI FILM WIZARDS PG
PLEASE CALL THEATRE FOR SCREEN TIMES



University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS
THE OSIPOV BALALAIKA ORCHESTRA
WITH STARS OF THE Bolshoi Ballet & Bolshoi Opera
COMPANY OF 75
MONDAY, APRIL 4 8 PM
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
Tickets now on sale. $7, 6, 5. UM-A - $5, 4, 3. Other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations



UMass Music Theatre Guild presents
GODSPELL
MAR 31, Apr 1&2 8:00pm
Apr-3 3:30 pm
Students $2.00
Others $2.50
Bowker Auditorium
Stockbridge Hall
Tickets on sale now
BOWKER BOX OFFICE :545-0783

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

Classifieds

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line
Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

New ski boots. Italian imports, polyurethane with flo-form linings Most sizes, $35. After ski boots, $25 Call Sue 256-8641 evenings 7:00 - 10:30.

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift Idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

'72 Honda 350 6K Mi. ex. cond. 549-6190.

For Sale: 2 pairs of skis — Head 360's 185 cm., excellent condition, $100.00. Head HRP's 185 cm, Look Nevada bindings, $125.00. Nordica boots, $60.00. Head poles, $15.00. Call 549-2691.

For Sale — Used albums, like new! Big assortment. 75c to $1.50. Call 549-2691.

Electric guitar & amp, $150, cassette rec., new, $50; 2 lg. speakers, $75; slide projector, $40. 549-3886. Records for sale, too.

Green suede boots, Wm., 7. $10. Clark nurs. shoes, Wm. 7. 6-7782.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

Olympus OM1-MD black with normal and tele lens & cards. 586-3738 - 9 p.m.

Bicycle, ten speed, Motobecane Mirage. Perfect. $125. After nine p.m. 586-3738.

6 Poolsize goldfish, cheap 617-544-3362.

Hang glider 18' delt wing. Ex. $495 - 253-2825.

AUTO FOR SALE

SAAB 99 '70 Parts: Engine, body, etc. 584-8601. All day Tu. & Th., eves M. + W.

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0616 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

1969 Ford Galaxy 500. 78,000 miles. Runs good. $350. 256-8694.

'71 Plymouth Cricket, 4 spd., 30 mpg. 5000 OML. Exl. cdt. $650. Call 665-4381 aft. 5.

'65 VW Bug. Exc. mech. cond. 35 mpg. $750. 253-3623.

'64 VW Bug. Rebuilt eng. Good cdt. $200. 549-0798.

'72 Vega Yenko Stinger - modified engine, GT package - lmtd edition. Car just back from Paige's Chev. New rings, pistons, valves, head — in past year, new everything! W-4 stl. blt. ovals, 2 new snows. Have receipts to prove all work. Must pay bill to Paige's. Will not haggle on price! $1350 firm! Worth more. Call 546-6720. John.

1972 Opel GT. $1950. Call 256-8885.

'71 Toyota Corolla. New paint, brakes, valve job. 665-3546 after 10:30 p.m.

1976 Dodge Van, custom interior, alarm, rustproofed, more. 1-268-7721.

HELP WANTED

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

Sales person wanted. Must have vehicle and camera. Call 586-0824 - Steve.

HEBREW TEACHER required. Westfield congregation needs a Hebrew teacher beginning Sept. - 1 or 2 afts. a wk. $10—hr. Contact Judy Brown, 7 South St., Westfield, 01085; 562-3224.

Mike's Westview is looking for a waitress. Apply in person Weds. aft. before 6 and Thurs. evenings after 6.

$3—hr. Travel Survey on Campus. 4 hr. shifts, 6:30-10:30; 10:30-2:30; 2:30-6:30 p.m. Must be available Wed. 4-13 and—or Wed. 4-20. Call 5-2086 for info.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

FOR RENT

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 + sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

1 or 2 non-smokers for furnished house. Federal St., Belchertown. For April & May. $50—mo. incl. util. 323-4249.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

FOR RENT

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot: you're alright too. AJF

Lizzy F. (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie. D.L.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

'71 Suzuki TS185. Very good cond. Needs no work. 60 mpg. $345. 256-8074.

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075

PERSONALS

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

F.B. — Convenience isn't everything. B.F.

Congratulations, Jay. We know you're going to be a great Student Government Treasurer. We're with you this Wednesday. The Gang.

TO SUBLET

3 bdr. Townhouse, ¾ mile to campus — on 2 bus rt. June-Sept. Call 549-4855.

3 bdrm. Twnhse apt. on bus route. Semi-furn., air cond. 6-1 — 8-31. $260 mth. 549-6919.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus rt. Jun. 1-Aug. 31. Semi-furnd., w-w, air cond. Call 549-4766.

TO SUBLET

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths & terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

3 bdrm. apt. Puf. Vil. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

AUDIO

Quality audio components — over 130 lines available. Call Peter, 665-2920.

Stereo equalizer - 12 band with test record, $88. After nine p.m. 586-3738.

WANTED

Aluminum tennis racket, Haywood. T-3, Ashe, Comp and Head. 542-2171.

Decent tennis racquet. $15-$20. Call 665-3416 late or 253-5259 Mon.-Thurs. morns.

Non-smoking, non-drinking, potential veg., very tidy, grad asst. seeks a quiet co-op living situation in Belchertown. $100— inc. Bill 253-7105 or 5-2155.

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

INSTRUCTION

Orchard Hill Women's Center presents "It Could Happen To Us", March 30, Wed. night, 8:00, Webster Main Lounge. Film about abortion, discussion afterwards. All are welcome to attend.

SERVICES

Sewing & alterations. All kinds. 549-6407.

Peace Of Mind — Housesitters. Avail. for summer. Call Simon 549-4280.

Passport and application pictures. Quick service. Will do CPA and portfolio slides. Contact Steven at 546-9653.

Need to sell your car? Want the best price? Advertise with us: W. Mass. Wheeler Dealer - deals only in cars with circulation of 70,000. Call Pete, 586-0824 for info.

TRAVEL

London by air for $120. Must depart April 29. Call 369-4980, Conway, MA.

FOUND

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears, cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

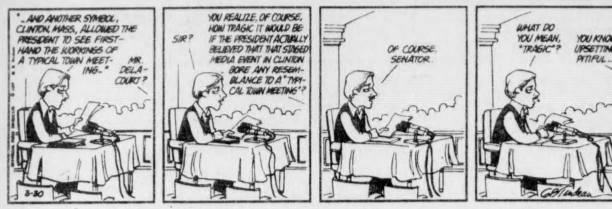
CALCULATORS

College Calculators has low prices! All T.I. warr by me for 1 yr. SR-52 $199.95; SR-56 $84.95 ($10 rebate off this pr.); SR-40 $34.95, bus anal $34.95 — All HP's avail. HP-67 $389.95. Call and check our PR's. Call Bob Or Linda 549-1316!!!!!!!!!M!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

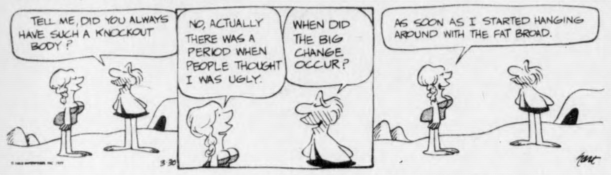
DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Valley
29 S. Pleasant St.
call 256-6736
M F 10-6 S 10-2



"...AND ANOTHER SYMBOL, CLINTON, MASS., ALLOWED THE PRESIDENT TO SEE FIRST-HAND THE WORKINGS OF A TYPICAL TOWN MEETING."
MR. DELACOURT?
SIR?
YOU REALIZE, OF COURSE, HOW TRAGIC IT WOULD BE IF THE PRESIDENT ACTUALLY BELIEVED THAT THAT STAGED MEDIA EVENT IN CLINTON BORE ANY RESEMBLANCE TO A "TYPICAL TOWN MEETING"?
OF COURSE, SENATOR.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, "TRAGIC"?
YOU KNOW, UPSETTING, PITIFUL..
3-30

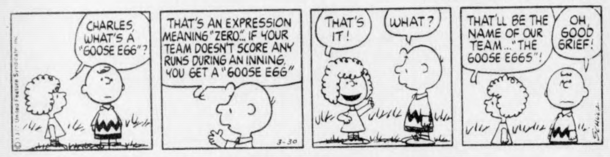
B.C. by Johnny Hart



TELL ME, DID YOU ALWAYS HAVE SUCH A KNOCKOUT BODY?
NO, ACTUALLY THERE WAS A PERIOD WHEN PEOPLE THOUGHT I WAS UGLY.
WHEN DID THE BIG CHANGE OCCUR?
AS SOON AS I STARTED HANGING AROUND WITH THE FAT BROAD.
3-30
hart

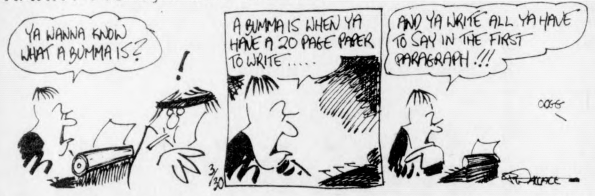
PEANUTS by Charles M. Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549-5610



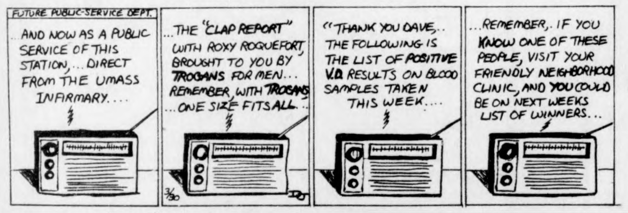
CHARLES, WHAT'S A "GOOSE EGG"?
THAT'S AN EXPRESSION MEANING "ZERO"... IF YOUR TEAM DOESN'T SCORE ANY RUNS DURING AN INNING, YOU GET A "GOOSE EGG"
THAT'S IT!
WHAT?
THAT'LL BE THE NAME OF OUR TEAM..."THE GOOSE EGGS"!
OH, GOOD GRIEF!
3-30

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



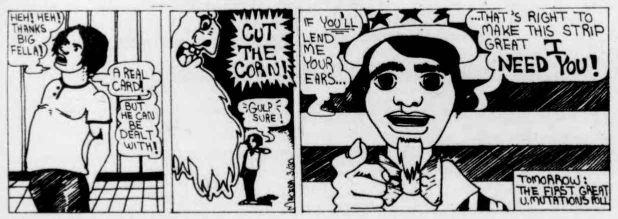
YA WANNA KNOW WHAT A BUMMA IS?
A BUMMA IS WHEN YA HAVE A 20 PAGE PAPER TO WRITE.....
AND YA WRITE ALL YA HAVE TO SAY IN THE FIRST PARAGRAPH !!!
3/30

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



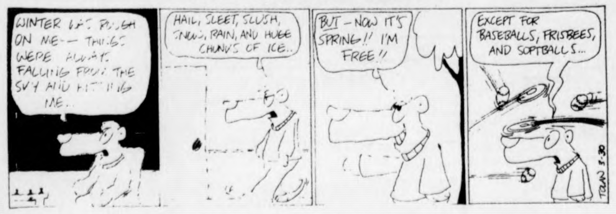
FUTURE PUBLIC-SERVICE DEPT.
...AND NOW AS A PUBLIC SERVICE OF THIS STATION,... DIRECT FROM THE UMASS INFIRMARY....
...THE "CLAP REPORT" WITH ROXY ROQUEFORT, BROUGHT TO YOU BY TROGANS FOR MEN... REMEMBER, WITH TROGANS ...ONE SIZE FITS ALL...
"THANK YOU DAVE,.. THE FOLLOWING IS THE LIST OF POSITIVE V.D. RESULTS ON BLOOD SAMPLES TAKEN THIS WEEK....
...REMEMBER,. IF YOU KNOW ONE OF THESE PEOPLE, VISIT YOUR FRIENDLY NEIGHBORHOOD CLINIC, AND YOU COULD BE ON NEXT WEEKS LIST OF WINNERS...
3/30

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



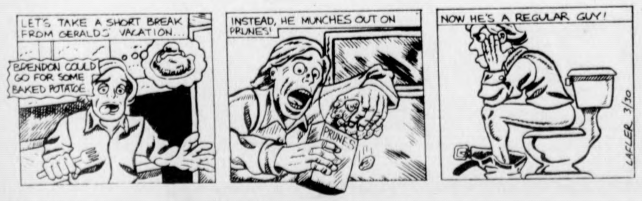
HEH! HEH! THANKS BIG FELLA!
A REAL CARD!
BUT HE CAN BE DEALT WITH!
CUT THE CORN!
GULP SURE!
IF YOU'LL LEND ME YOUR EARS...
...THAT'S RIGHT TO MAKE THIS STRIP GREAT I NEED YOU!
TOMORROW: THE FIRST GREAT U.MUTATIONS POLL
MACEDA 3/30

THE SCENT OF MAN by Peter Tolan



WINTER WAS ROUGH ON ME— THINGS WERE ALWAYS FALLING FROM THE SKY AND HITTING ME...
HAIL, SLEET, SLUSH, SNOW, RAIN, AND HUGE CHUNKS OF ICE..
BUT—NOW IT'S SPRING!! I'M FREE!!
EXCEPT FOR BASEBALLS, FRISBEES, AND SOFTBALLS...
TOLAN 3-30

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



LET'S TAKE A SHORT BREAK FROM GERALD'S VACATION...
BRENDON COULD GO FOR SOME BAKED POTATOE
INSTEAD, HE MUNCHES OUT ON PRUNES!
PRUNES
NOW HE'S A REGULAR GUY!
LAFLER 3/30

Local Television

6:00 3 8 22 30 NEWS
24 57 ZOOM
27 THE LONE RANGER "Sinner by Proxy"
38 HOGAN'S HEROES
40 GUNSMOKE "The Bullet" Part III
56 THE BRADY BUNCH
57 ZOOM
6:30 8 22 30 NEWS
18 SPORTS ONLY
24 TV COMMUNITY COLLEGE — AMERICAN GOVERNMENT
27 SUPERMAN "Close Shave"
38 ADAM—12
57 CROCKETT'S VICTORY GARDEN
6:55 40 NEWSBEAT NEWS
7:00 3 22 40 NEWS
8 CONCENTRATION
18 THE 700 CLUB
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
27 THE FBI "The Man Who Went Mad by Mistake"
30 THE CROSS-WITS
38 THE ODD COUPLE
56 STAR TREK
57 AS MAN BEHAVES
7:30 3 $25,000 PYRAMID
8 BREAK THE BANK
22 THE BIG MONEY TV GAME
24 CONNECTICUT
30 MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM
38 DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
40 SUPERMAN "Star of Fate"
56 FAMILY AFFAIR
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 GOOD TIMES
8 40 THE BIONIC WOMAN
22 30 THE LIFE AND TIMES OF GRIZZLY ADAMS "The Tenderfoot"
24 57 NOVA "The Human Animal"
27 MOVIE "Moonrise"
32 38 BOSTON BRUINS HOCKEY
56 MOVIE "The Condemned of Altona"
8:30 3 LOVES ME, LOVES ME NOT
9:00 3 CBS WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIE "Chisum"
8 40 BARETTA "Big, Bad Charlie"
18 WILBURN BROTHERS
22 30 THREE GIRLS
24 57 GREAT PERFORMANCES "Rostroporich Performs Haydn"
9:30 18 THE PTL CLUB
10:00 8 40 CHARLIE'S ANGELS "To Kill an Angel"
22 30 KINGSTON: CONFIDENTIAL "Eight Columns Across the Top"
24 57 SCENES FROM A MARRIAGE "The Vale of Tears"
27 NEWS
LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE
10:30 27 BIG MONEY
10:45 38 THE HONEYMOONERS "The Golfer"
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
27 MOVIE "Family Diary"

Your Birthday

by Stella Wilder

Wednesday, March 30 — Born today, you are concerned for the most part with family affairs. Loved ones – and most especially children – stand always first in your mind. Career matters, social success, artistic development – all pale before the importance of those nearest and dearest to you. You have more than sentimental attachment to the family; you are intellectually bound to it, and take some of your highest pleasure out of tackling and solving the problems home and family initiate. The elderly find a special friend in you, for you have tremendous compassion for their position and for what, in the midst of societies that place emphasis upon youth, ultimately becomes their plight.

Although you do not always agree with your superiors on the employment scene, you are never quick to make your disagreement public. You prefer to think quietly about differences until such time as you can see your way clear to making a compromise. You do not easily change your mind completely, but you habitually make every effort to accommodate your thoughts to those of another so that progress can be made. Without such accommodation and compromise, projects and endeavors would certainly come to a standstill; with it, you stand an excellent chance of attaining that high degree of success you hope for.

You should have a number of opportunites to demonstrate the fairness of your outlook on life. There will be times when only you and your insistence upon doing what is right will be able to save a situation from deteriorating into absolute failure.

* * *

Thursday, March 31

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Keep your new knowledge to yourself for the time being; otherwise, you may unintentionally do yourself out of considerable gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your dealings may carry you into the camps of important personages today. Take your turn handling matters of some delicacy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Take an affectionate view of matters on the home front. There is much to be thankful for that you haven't even thought of yet!

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Differences of opinion must not be allowed to deteriorate into downright quarrels. Creative activity takes your time at evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Take care that dealings with close relatives don't lead to family quarrels. This is a good time for testing your capacity for tact.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Furthering business affairs in your immediate family may cause damage to personal relationships. You would do well to leave well enough alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Where confidence is wanting, gains will be few. Make an effort to up your opinion of yourself and your ability to work efficiently and effectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Early morning transactions may see you in command of your own future for the first time in weeks. Do your best to encourage another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Increase your activity in areas beneficial to your own future. Another's objections are not necessarily valid.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Greater risks than usual accompany your efforts to improve your position on the employment scene. Co-workers take exception.

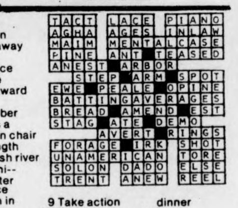
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Display consideration for those near and dear to you as well as for those with whom you have yet to establish a firm relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — A superior move on your part results in a gainful morning. Friends may cause you more than a little concern at day's end.

Copyright, 1977, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Offshore wave action
5 "---- Bede": Eliot novel
9 Role player
14 Protected from the wind
15 Exhibited signs of life
16 Piece of garlic
17 Specialized writing sheet: 2 words
19 Makes a recording
20 Wake Island, for one
21 Move quickly: Informal
23 Spanish painter
24 Unrealistic thinking
27 Digits
29 Drafted, as a will: 2 words
31 Dyed fabrics
35 Numerical prefix
37 Gets out of bed
39 Group of 20
40 Physical assistance
42 Bishop's hat
44 British carbine
45 Stimulates
47 Tree
49 Obtain
50 Run away from service
52 Slope backward
54 Door member
56 Fixes a rattan chair
59 Strength
62 English river
64 Amphitheater space
65 Town in Mass.
67 Poor football punt: 2 words
70 Startle with fear
71 U.S.S.R city
72 Treaty group: Abbr.
73 Reduces one's waist
74 Lean on
75 Valley



TACT LACE PIANO
AGHA AGES INLAW
MAIM MENTAL CASE
PINE ANT TEASED
ANEST ARBOR
STEP ARM SPOT
EWE PEALE OPINE
BATTING AVERAGES
BREAD AMEND EST
STAG ATE DEMO
AVERT RINGS FORAGE IRK SHOT
UNAMERICAN TORE
SOLON DADO ELSE
TRENT ANEW REEL

DOWN
1 Meal course
2 Ending with mod and pop
3 Disks
4 Touch organ
5 Wing
6 Road sign
7 State formally
8 Excellence
9 Take action
10 Produce of the three B's
11 Small shark
12 Higher than 13 Mental tranquility
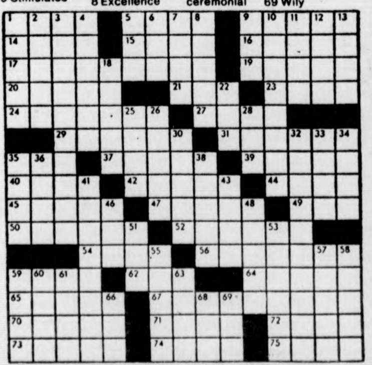
18 Diligent worker
22 Father: Informal
25 Float on water
26 "The Sound of -----"
28 Noun suffixes
30 New Testament book
32 Out of the ordinary: 2 words
33 Lumber source
34 Requested to go
35 Dull sound
36 Uncommon
38 Jewish ceremonial dinner
41 Antler material
43 Speed competition
46 Spanish title: Abbr.
48 Restore an old tire
51 Facial twitch
53 Quite brave
55 Workers collectively
57 Growing outward
58 Drawing room
59 Just elapsed
60 Skin sensation
61 Bangkok citizen
63 Female horse
66 "--- Miserables"
68 Dolores --- Rio
69 Wily



1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13
14 15 16
17 18 19
20 21 22 23
24 25 26 27 28
29 30 31 32 33 34
35 36 37 38 39
40 41 42 43 44
45 46 47 48 49
50 51 52 53
54 55 56 57 58
59 60 61 62 63 64
65 66 67 68 69
70 71 72
73 74 75
115

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
[illegible] day advance payment required

U.Mass
Student Federal Credit Union

POSITION AVAILABLE.
MANAGER

15 credit internship
An interview is required.

Contact Linda Cote,
or Anne Smith 545-2800.

summer
israel bar-ilan
university

Office of Admissions
Bar Ilan University
641 Lexington Avenue,
New York, N.Y. 10022
212-751-6366

$1245
plus $50 registration fee
July 5-Aug. 16, 1977
Live on campus
6 college credits
Tour Israel
Fully Kosher

With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase L24
FREE Biscuits
Homestyle or Buttermilk
Stop & Shop–10 Count-8 oz. pkg.
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one pkg. per customer 261
Dairy

With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase L22
Stop & Shop Tuna 39¢
Chunk Light
6½ oz. can in oil
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one can per customer 259
Grocery

With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase L15
5 lbs. Sugar 69¢
Stop & Shop
5 pound bag
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one bag per customer 265
Grocery

With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase L21
Deluxe Processed American Cheese Slices 79¢
Stop & Shop
White or Yellow–12 oz. pkg.
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one pkg. per customer 258
Dairy

With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase L23
Mayonnaise 49¢
Stop & Shop
32 ounce jar
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one jar per customer 260
Grocery

With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase L20
5 lbs. Flour 49¢
Pillsbury
5 pound bag
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one bag per customer 266
Grocery

ONE OF THE STOP & SHOP COMPANIES
Stop & Shop SUPERMARKETS
It's 'my store' to more people...
More and more people who come in for mini-warehouse buys call Stop & Shop 'my store'!

Frank Van Mourik
Store Mgr. E. Springfield

"One of the things 'my store' customers really like is the mini-warehouse area.

Our Mini-Warehouse Buys are not advertised. But my customers know all they have to do is stop and look under the big red arrows in 'my store' for the best grocery bargains. You see, the prices in our Mini-Warehouse area are near wholesale ... and my customers know it.

Some people just grab a couple of cans or packages. And some people buy case lots. We don't impose any limits, so we can't give any 'rain checks' when we run out. We just replace the item with a new warehouse special.

The Mini-Warehouse in 'my store' is always giving my customers new ways to save themselves a lot of money."

frozen Specials for every meal.
Stop & Shop–All Natural Ice Cream $1.49
Assorted Flavors–½ gal. tub
Choclit Covered Stop & Shop Ice Cream 20 ct. 35 oz. box $1.19
Stop & Shop Corn or Peas 4 10 oz pkgs $1
Macaroni & Cheese Stop & Shop 32 oz pkg 89¢
French Fries Stop & Shop Regular or Crinkle Cut 5 9 oz pkgs $1
Stop & Shop Fish Sticks 16 oz pkg 79¢
"New" Meat Tortellini Stop & Shop 6 oz pkg 79¢
Stop & Shop 10 pk. Pizza 23 oz box 99¢
Orange Juice Stop & Shop 2 12 oz cans 89¢
Stop & Shop Squash 5 16 oz pkgs $1
Large Size Waffles Stop & Shop 3 10 oz pkgs $1
Coffee Lightener Stop & Shop 32 oz pkg 39¢
Chopped Onions Stop & Shop 12 oz pkg 29¢
Stop & Shop Strawberries 39¢

bakery Wait 'til you taste these goodies.
Daisy Donuts 2 11½ oz. pkgs. of 12 $1
Plain, cinnamon, or sugar
Buttertop Bread Stop & Shop 2 22 oz loaves $1
High Protein Bread Stop & Shop 16 oz loaf 43¢
Cinnamon Coffee Cake 14 oz loaf Sliced 69¢
Stop & Shop Brownies Choc. or Butterscotch 9½ oz pkg of 12 89¢ kitchen Made with quality ingredients ... in our Stop & Shop kitchen...

Fresh Cheese Pizza 69¢
Stop & Shop–11 ounce
Stop & Shop Cole Slaw 15 oz pkg 55¢
Delmonico Potatoes 1 lb pkg 69¢

self service deli Specials for quick-to-fix meals.
Nepco Franks Extra Mild 1 lb. pkg. 69¢
Oscar Mayer Bacon 1 lb pkg $1.69
Oscar Mayer Weiners or Beef Franks 1 lb pkg $1.09
Stop & Shop Bologna 12 oz pkg 69¢
Stop & Shop Meat Bologna 1 lb pkg 79¢

EKCOETERNA® Quality Crafted heavy guage radial base
Porcelain on Aluminum
2qt. Covered Saucepan with cover $5.99 with ea $5 food purchase
4 qt. Stew Pot $7.99 5 qt. Dutch Oven $8.99

Stop & Shop "Great Beef"
Chuck Steak 47¢ lb
Stop & Shop GREAT BEEF QUALITY PROTECTED USDA CHOICE
Beef Chuck 1st Cuts Bone-in Limit 3 per Customer
Extra tender and flavorful, fresh, juicy and well trimmed.
Underblade Chuck Roast Beef Chuck Bone-in 89¢ lb.
Boneless Chuck Roast Beef Chuck USDA Choice 99¢ lb.
Chuck Cube Steak Beef Chuck USDA Choice $1.39 lb.
Boneless Blade Steak Beef Chuck USDA Choice $1.49 lb.
Chuck Stewing Beef Beef Chuck USDA Choice $1.29 lb.
Fresh Brisket of Beef Flat Cut–USDA Choice $1.49 lb.

26% Ground Beef 69¢ lb
Any Size Package
*This Stop & Shop meatier ground beef contains not more than 26% fat.
Regular–Maple Cure–or Thick Sliced
Stop & Shop Bacon Sliced 1 lb. pkg. 99¢
Smoked Pork Shoulder Picnic Water Added 59¢ lb
Stop & Shop Pork Shoulder Smoked Picnic Water Added 63¢ lb.
Stop & Shop Beef Liver Skinned & Deveined Frozen 49¢ lb
Fresh Turkey 59¢ lb
U.S. Grade "A" 10-14 pounds
Perdue Oven Stuffers 79¢ lb
5-7 Lbs.
Perdue half roasters available for smaller families.

corner deli A full service deli.
Avail. in stores with corner deli
Cooked Ham $1.99 lb
Domestic–Sectioned & Formed
Beef Franks Morrison & Schiff Cello Casing per lb 99¢
Fontina Cheese Imported From Denmark per lb $2.19
Oven Roasted–Deli Style
Roast Beef $1.99 lb
Stop & Shop
Chinese Style Pork Loin qtr lb 89¢
Fresh Chicken Salad per lb $1.69
Macaroni Salad per lb 59¢
Stop & Shop Custards per lb 69¢ seafood Specials for Lenten meals.

Fresh Perch Fillets $1.59 lb
Salmon Delmonte Whole or Half Frozen per lb $1.89
3 lb. Box Squid Calamari–Frozen $1.49
Langostino Cape Horn Brand 12 oz pkg–Frozen $2.29
Shrimp Extra Large Stop & Shop–Peeled & Deveined–12 oz pkg–Frozen $3.99
Breaded Shrimp Stop & Shop Frozen 1 lb pkg $1.49
Cooked Fish Cakes Taste O Sea 1 lb pkg–Frozen 59¢
Shrimp Patties Taste O Sea 12 oz pkg–Frozen 89¢

Fresh Strawberries pint 59¢
Fresh California Celery stalk 49¢
California 113 size
Navel Oranges 12 for 99¢
Watermelon 19¢ lb Fresh Bunch Carrots 3 bunches $1.00

Stop & Shop BRAND
Stop & Shop Brand Sale!
Sometimes it takes convincing to get customers in 'my store' to try my Stop & Shop Brand. But once they do, they're sold ... because the quality is there.
Stop & Shop Small Peas 3 16 oz. cans $1
Stop & Shop 16 oz. jar Boiled Onions 49¢
Stop & Shop 25 oz. jar Applesauce 2 for 89¢
Stop & Shop 20 oz. btl Ketchup 49¢
Stop & Shop 9 oz. jar Mustard Yellow or Spicy Brown 19¢
Stop & Shop Liquid Dressing 8 oz. btl. All var. except Blue Cheese 39¢
Stop & Shop 32 oz. btl. Wine Vinegar 39¢
Stop & Shop Coffee Creamer 16 oz. jar 79¢
Stop & Shop 12 oz. jar Preserves 2 for 99¢
Peach–Pineapple–Apricot
Stop & Shop Spaghetti Sauce 32 oz. jar–Meat, Meatless or Mushroom 79¢
Stop & Shop Layer Cake Mix 18½ oz. pkg. Asst. Flavors 39¢
Stop & Shop Pancake Syrup 24 ounce bottle 89¢
Chocolate Chip Cookies Stop & Shop 10 oz. pkg. 45¢
Stop & Shop Yah Yah Cookies 16 ounce pkg. 59¢
Stop & Shop Heavy Duty Trash Bags 3 mil. 8 ct. pkg. $1.09
Food Storage Bags Stop & Shop 75 ct. pkg. 79¢
Stop & Shop Toilet Tissue 10 Pack $1.69
White–Pink–Aqua–Yellow
Heavy Duty Liquid Laundry Detergent 64 oz. btl. Stop & Shop $1.39 dairy We make sure of freshness in 'my store'.

Natural Yogurt
Stop & Shop
Assorted Flavors 4 8 oz. cups $1
Stop & Shop Orange Juice ½ gal. ctn from concentrate 69¢
Pillsbury Cinnamon Rolls Iced 9½ oz pkg 49¢
Breakstone Ricotta Cheese 1 lb cont 99¢
Temp-tee Cream Cheese Breakstone Whipped–12 oz pkg 99¢
Parkay Margarine 1 pound pkg. qtr. lb. sticks 49¢ health & beauty aids Quality savings on our Stop & Shop brands.

Stop & Shop Toothpaste 2 7 oz. Tubes $1
Regular or Mint
Shaving Cream Stop & Shop Reg. or Lime 2 11 oz. aerosol can $1
Stop & Shop Cotton Swabs 2 180 ct pkgs $1
Liquid Antacid Stop & Shop 12 oz. bottle 59¢
Stop & Shop Mouthwash 32 oz. bottle Red, Green or Amber 69¢
Roll On Deodorant Stop & Shop Reg. or Unscented 2.5 oz pkg 69¢
Daily Vitamins with Iron Stop & Shop 100 ct. bottle 79¢
Stop & Shop Baby Shampoo 32 oz btl. 79¢

With this coupon L27
Save 25¢
on any style Stop & Shop
Panty Hose or Knee High Stockings
Good thru Apr. 2. Limit one pkg. per customer 264

Prices effective thru Sat., Apr. 2. In fairness to all our customers, we reserve the right to limit sales to three packages of any item except where otherwise noted. Items offered for sale not available in case lots or to other dealers or wholesalers. Copyright 1977 by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. All rights reserved.

HADLEY-AMHERST Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line. 8a.m.-10p.m., Mon.-Sat. We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

HS counselors meeting tomorrow

The University College of Arts and Sciences and Admissions Office will present its annual conference for Massachusetts high school counselors tomorrow in Campus Center 174-176.

At least 70 counselors from across the state will listen to presentations on topics including University policy and procedures, requirement summaries, different campus departments, and special programs.

Free tax service begins today in CC

A free tax service for students and staff of UMass will be conducted by the Delta Nu chapter of Beta Alpha Psi in the Campus Center beginning today.

Students participating in the service are accounting majors in the School of Business Administration who have a background in federal taxation.

The schedule for the service is: March 30, room 804-8; March 31, room 903; April 6, 7, 13, 14 and 15, room 904-8. The service will be offered from 6 to 10 p.m. all days.

Boltwood Project sponsoring workshops

A series of workshops on Developmental Disabilities will be held in the Campus Center beginning today. The workshops are being sponsored by the Boltwood Project in conjunction with Belchertown State School.

The purpose of the Blotwood series is to provide volunteers and other interested students an opportunity to acquire theoretical information and pragmatic skills related to the field of Developmental Disabilities.

Liissa Carroll, director of the Communication Resource Center at Belchertown State School, will present the opening workshop entitled "Language Development." This workshop will be held today in Campus Center 176 at 7 p.m.

Racism in Cuba topic of workshops

The Elimination of Racism in Cuba and It's Significance For U.S. Peoples will be the topic of a three day cultural and educational event, beginning tonite at 7:30, with poetry and music workshops.

Tonight, Irma McClaurin, a well-known poet and Andrew Salkey, an internationally acclaimed author and poet, will conduct a workshop at 7:30 in Southwest's Hampden Student Center on poetry and social change, discussing the integration of politics and art, and much more. The workshop is designed to encourage active participation and discussion. People are urged to bring their poetry.

LOCAL COLOR

Festival, competition for folk musicians

The Middlebury College Activities Board is sponsoring its Third Annual Folk and Bluegrass Festival and Competition on April 29 and 30. All folk and-or bluegrass musicians are welcome. The contest will be limited to the first 35 performers to apply. There will be $600 in prizes awarded. Deadline for applications is April 15.

For complete information concerning the Festival and for application forms, write to: Folk and Bluegrass Festival, Box C2099, Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont 05753.

Abstract paintings on exhibit at Herter

Susan Holsclaw will open her M.F.A. Thesis exhibition at the Herter Art Gallery. Ms. Holsclaw paints in an abstract-expressionist style, with colors ranging from the purest hues to muted tones. Her relatively small "corner paintings shaped to fit the corner of the room, provide an interesting contrast to her immense, lavishly painted canvases.

The show will be on display until Friday, April 1. It is the first in a series of weekly M F A presentations in the gallery which will last until the end of the semester. Exhibit openings, which provide the public with a chance to meet the artist, will generally be held on Sunday afternoons at 3:00. Watch Herter Gallery Bulletin Boards for Posters.

'Feminist Seder' on sale this week

Copies of the "Feminist Seder" written by local resident Sherry Flashman and illustrated by Amherst artist Lorie Leininger will be on sale at the People's Newsstand this week. The traditional seder is the ritual meal which celebrates the Jewish Passover holiday (April 2-9), which commemorates the biblical Exodus of the Jews from slavery in Egypt.

The "Feminist Seder" builds on the Passover theme of struggle for freedom against oppression, but reinterprets the traditional symbols in terms of women's struggle for liberation, past and present. Quotes and excerpts from women's writings, poems and songs are substituted for the traditional text.

Experimental films to be shown tonight

The Mind's Eye Cine-Club will present a program of American avant-garde and experimental short films at the Forbes Library's Little Theater in Northampton (across the street from the Smith College Admissions Office) tonight at 7:00. Included are works by Stan Brakhage, Tom Joslin, Scott Bartlett, and Kyle Kibbe. Admissions is free.

'Belle of Amherst' tickets still available

Tickets for the April 7 presentation of "The Belle of Amherst" starring Julie Harris are still available at the box office at the Fine Arts Center.

Harris, a four-time Tony Award winner, is currently topping her brilliant career in theatre with her portrayal of Emily Dickinson in "The Belle of Amherst," a new romantic play by William Luce based on the life of America's most famous poetess.

Ticket prices are: General public $7, 6, 5; UMass students $5, 4, 3; other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.

Donations needed at blood donor center

Donations will be accepted this week at the UMass Blood Donor Center from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. today and tomorrow. If you're healthy and weigh at least 110 pounds you are probably eligible to join the bloodline. The Center is on the ground floor of the UMass Health Center (infirmary). For further information call Fred Shea or Howie Verstein at 256-6294.

VIDEO SIDEWALK PRESENTS:

Premiering this week, "The Strife of Life," a soap opera about the lives of UMass Students. Also on Impro Visions, the weekly TV magazine program, we'll meet Penny Worman and find out about Maple Sugaring and Easyrider. We'll get some stereo and mental health tips and much more.

Join us Tuesdays in the C.C. Concourse, and Wednesdays in the back of the Hatch from 11:30-2:30 P.M. Improvisions will also be aired Wednesdays at 7:30 P.M. on cable TV, Channel 8

Deutsche Grammophon

Deutsche Grammophon Introductory Special
only $4.99

the UNIVERSITY STORE
campus center

Political Advertisement

Please Re-elect
NANCY B. EDDY
to
Board of Selectmen
Town of Amherst
APRIL 5, 1977

She cares
She listens
She acts

Nancy Eddy wants to:
* Protect Amherst's environmental quality
* Encourage free discussion of problems
* Unite Amherst's citizens in constructive action

James Collins–27 Butterfield Terrace•Amherst, MA

"MAN, WAS I HUNGOVER THIS MORNING..."

Everybody should enjoy the party. . .
Even when it's over!

Find out how TONIGHT on the
SALSA SOUL MEDICINE SHOW
WMUA 91.1 FM
Every Wednesday from 7-10

THE MESSAGE IS IN THE MUSIC

ATTENTION • • • ALL UMASS. STUDENTS.

YOUR NEWSPAPER—THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN—IS LOOKING FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK THEY CAN SELL. WE HAVE POSITIONS OPEN FOR THE COMING SEMESTER. THIS IS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO EARN EXTRA MONEY AND ACQUIRE GREAT JOB EXPERIENCE.

Interested?: Drop this coupon off to Steve Lesser, Ad Manager, at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, or call 545-3500.

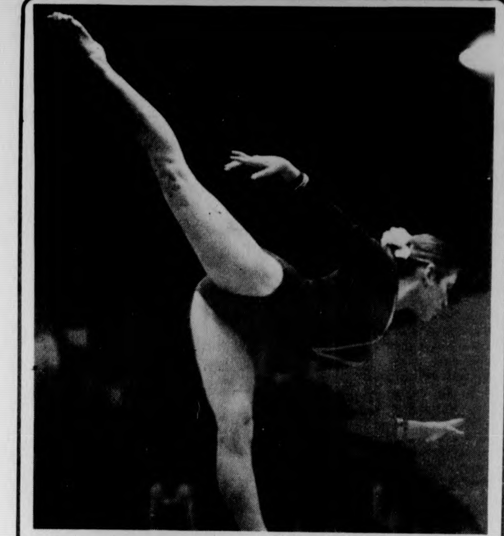
WHEELS ARE NECESSARY!

I'm interested in becoming a Collegian Ad Rep:
Name:
Address:
Telephone:
Any selling experience? ( ) Yes ( ) No
Do you have a car? ( ) Yes ( ) No



STRUTTING TO THE NATIONALS — The UMass women's gymnastics team will be heading to Central Michigan University in search of a national title. (Staff photo by Rob Carlin)

IM softball tips; quest for the crown

By RUSS SMITH
Collegian Staff

Spring has sprung. You know what that means? Not necessarily women's lacrosse though I'd like to wish Judy Kennedy and the rest of the team the best. Not even baseball. But you're getting warmer.

Weather permitting, intramural softball time has come.

Would you believe there actually are live students on this campus who study their brains out the first half of the semester to acquire a 4.0 cumulative average, then hope it will carry them through the second half of the semester, which is totally dominated by softball games, practices and scrimmages?

And there are those students who don't have that outrageous cum., play softball and let the studying take care of itself.

Softball is for everyone. Guys can play it. Girls can play it. Even nerds can play it (ask Potsie Webber of 'Happy Days').

Still, there are going to be some problems of winning softball games since some teams don't utilize the potential of the personnel involved (a kid with a super arm, catching, for example).

Therefore, the following paragraphs are suggestions to team coaches in how to succeed in softball without really trying.

Opening ceremonies: Prior to game time, managers should establish a good rapport with the officials, especially the home plate umpire. Explain how you trust his (or her) calls to be fair ones, and encourage him (her) to do a good job. Will this help you win? Well, it won't hurt.

Coaches should be aware of the physiological and psychological problems of individual players, before determining the lineup and the batting order.

The Lineup: Pitcher-should be smart, especially when teammates keep harassing him about walking six batters in a row (smart enough not to listen to them; obviously they don't understand the pressures involved with the position).

Catcher-Must be rugged and big enough to cover most of the plate. He must be friendly enough to confer with ump in between pitches to help him decide whether it was a ball or a strike.

First baseman-tall person, to catch high wild throws. Also should look good in attempting to pick up throws tossed in the dirt from shortstop who thinks he's related to Rick Burleson. Note: person only has to look good on low throws since he's not expected to make the stop anyways (See microfilm entitled 'Yastremski' located in library).

Second baseperson-Don't fret over who to put here. Not many balls hit here anyways.

Third baseman-fast person! Must be able to get out of the way of sharply hit line drives. Definitely should not smoke 'evil weed' before (or during) game.

Shortstop-statistics show 90 per cent of all shortstops are under 5ft. 7. Don't go against tradition; meet this requirement.

Outfielders (numbering 4)-Obviously, strong arm is imperative. Their egotistical level is low; they don't like to be the center of attention (why else would they want to play so far away from the action, where they can't even hear what their teammates are saying about them?).

Last but not least, the batting order: leadoff batter-if your squad has only one consistent hitter let him get up first. Hopefully he will crush your opponent's pitchers dream of tossing a no-hitter.

Batting second-smallest kid on team. Having given up a leadoff homerun, opposing pitcher is shaken up to the point where he thinks the strike zone is where you go in downtown Boston for a good time.

Third man-watch out who you place here. They're insanely jealous of those batting ahead of him, and no one thinks he'd make a decent cleanup hitter. Don't put insecure person here.

Cleanup-Felix Unger-type person. Don't expect too many extra base hits from this person; will spend too much time dusting off first base. Will swing for the fence attempting to clear the bases and end up leading the team in strikeouts.

Fifth-seventh: Statistics show these batters make 95 per cent of all outs throughout the season. All loses can be blamed on them since they'll kill more rallies than any other three spots.

Eighth: Pitchers supposedly can't hit but need some sort of psychological lift. Under no circumstances bat him ninth.

Ninth: Catcher already has the worst job, might as well be low man on the totem pole. Actually will lead the team in cheap hits as opposing pitchers won't be psyched for him (her or it) and will let up.

And there you have it. The guide to successful softball. Good luck, and if your team wins the campus championship in May, I'll be waiting for my invitation to the party in the mail.

Managerial powers: Coaches should try and emphasize how important it is for players to listen to him, even if this is not true. Anytime a player tries to impress you with his strategical knowledge of the sport by telling you how the Red Sox would have played it, point out that softball and baseball are two different games and therefore cannot be compared. If this doesn't work, explain to him (her) that it is never too late to be traded away for cash.

Team structure: as opposed to baseball's Oakland A's, it is better to have friends (or even acquaintances) on your team than enemies. If at all possible, get as many physical education majors on your squad. With all the gym classes they have to take, they must have some co-ordination. Sports administration majors would also be helpful in dealing with the organizational aspects of practices, the fining of players, etc.

Now comes the problem of who's gonna play where and bat when.

Sports notice

The UMass Ultimate Frisbee team will play its first game of the spring this Saturday at Tufts (there will probably be another game in Boston on Sunday). In preparation the team will be practicing at 3:30 p.m. today and tomorrow near the Campus Center pond. There will also be a full club meeting tomorrow, Thursday night at 7:00 p.m. in the Lewis House basement. The changing nature of the Ultimate team will be one item discussed.

There IS a difference!!! Our 38th Year

NEW PREPARE FOR:
MCAT• DAT• LSAT• SAT
GRE • GMAT • OCAT • VAT

Our broad range of programs provides an umbrella of testing know-how that enables us to offer the best preparation available, no matter which course is taken. Over 38 years of experience and success. Small classes. Voluminous home study materials. Courses that are constantly updated. Permanent centers open days, evenings & weekends all year. Complete tape facilities for review of class lessons and for use of supplementary materials. Make-ups for missed lessons at our centers.

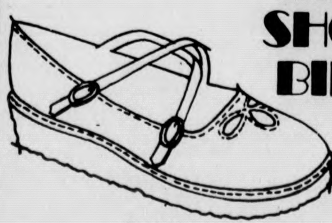
ECFMG • FLEX
NAT'L MEDICAL & DENTAL BOARDS
Flexible Programs & Hours

25 HUNTINGTON AVENUE
BOSTON, MASS. 02116
617-261-5150
Outside NY State Only CALL Toll Free 800-221-9840
Centers in Major U.S. Cities and Lugano, Switzerland

Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

TONITE
Tuborg Night
Giveaway Prizes

BLUEWALL
Walker
Live Entertainment



the SHOE•BIN

Open Friday Nites

187 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MASS.

Collegian Sports

Sport special inside

IM softball tips; p. 15

Nick Kotsopoulos

Athletic department in need of direction

All right you trivia buffs, here are this week's two mind-boggling questions:

1. At what state university in this country does the baseball team have to raise 4,000 dollars in order to finance its spring-training trip down south?

2. At what university in this country does a team have to raise its own money in order to provide for a scholarship fund so that it can recruit some prospects?

Don't spend too much time mulling over the answers to these trivial questions because the answers are right before your own eyes. That's right, the answer to both questions is UMass, the state University of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

If the answers to these questions should come as a surprise to you, well you are guilty of ignorance because they should come as no great surprise at all.

Right now, the UMass athletic department is in a terrible bind and lacks any concrete direction. On one hand there are those teams that are doing well, and on the other hand there are several teams struggling to stay alive.

Both the men's and women's basketball programs have made significant advances. The Minutemen held their own in the ECBL this year and nearly came away from Philadelphia with the championship. Meanwhile, the women became one of the top powers in New England basketball, and almost made it into the national tournament in Minnesota.

Then there is the women's gymnastics team, the other athletic success on campus, which for the past three years has been among the top nationally-ranked teams.

But on the other hand, there are the baseball and the men's gymnastics teams—teams that have been forced to continue on their own with little help from the athletic department, or support from the student body.

Believe it or not, the UMass baseball team, that is the baseball team of the state university of Massachusetts, recently had to raise 4,000 dollars on its own in order to finance its spring-training trip down south.

"We received some money from the athletic department," UMass coach Dick Berguist said, "but we had to raise a majority of the money ourselves through various raffles and clinics that we sponsored."

Not only did the baseball team have to raise its own money, but for those of you who don't know by now, it also doesn't have any money to offer scholarships to incoming freshmen. Not that I agree with the scholarship idea in the first place, but in order to compete with area schools for the baseball talent, Berguist needs some money to be able to go about and recruit bodies.

"It's difficult for us to compete for talent," he said, "because other schools are able to offer these prospects some scholarship money, while we cannot."

The story doesn't stop there.

Then there is the men's gymnastics team, which doesn't receive any scholarship money to recruit. Not wanting to see the entire program go down the drain, UMass men's gymanstics coach Dick Swetman is planning to put on a few gymnastics extravanganzas with his team so that they can raise 2,000 dollars to provide for a scholarship program of their own so that good all-around gymnasts can be recruited.

The story goes on, it doesn't stop here unfortunately.

There is the hockey team, which because of its lack of support from the athletic department has fallen on hard times, as has the wrestling program.

With no money, these teams cannot compete to get the best talent and therefore are unable to evenly compete against other schools.

It's time for the athletic department, and everyone else who runs this institution, to give the athletic department new direction. Either restore money to all the athletic teams or just drop athletics.

After all, why should a member of the baseball or hockey team be deprived scholarship money when he or she practices as much, and as hard, as a football or basketball player.

It's time for some new direction before things become even more chaotic, because right now nothing makes sense.

NFL expands year

PHOENIX [UPI] — National Football League club presidents, meeting continuously for seven hours in an afternoon-evening session, voted last night to play 16 regular season games starting in 1978 and to expand the post-season playoffs to include 10 teams.

The clubs will play four exhibition games, starting in 1978, and thus the season will begin on the first Sunday of September, extending the regular season by two weeks.

The vote to change the format to 16 games was 21-7, and it came after many hours in which it lacked one vote for the necessary three-quarters support.

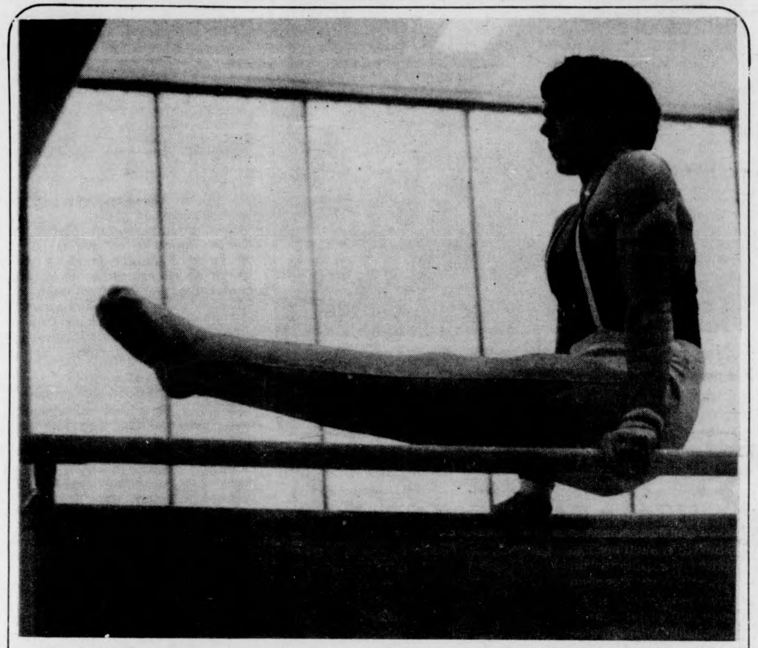
Commissioner Pete Rozelle had been in the forefront of those pushing for the so-called 16-4 format, while Al Davis, main owner of the Super Bowl Champion Oakland Raiders, led the fight to keep the format at six exhibitions and 14 regular season games. The Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys were known to have backed Davis, but Rozelle did not indicate how the vote broke down.

"It was unanimous," Rozelle quipped, meaning the necessary 21 votes had been secured for passage of the proposal.

As for extending the playoffs, the vote there was unanimous. It was an idea Davis first proposed two years ago and adopting it came as a mere formality once the 16-4 format had been approved. Thus, two additional "wild card" teams will participate in the playoffs.

There will be two games on the first Sunday after the end of the regular season, pitting two wild card teams from each conference against each other, with the winner advancing to the playoffs against the three division champions.

In another vote, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were placed permanently in the NFC Central Division, starting in 1978.



The UMass men's gymnastic team straightened up this year under first year coach Dick Swetman. The Minutemen completed the season with a 5-5 mark. The gymmen then placed fifth in the Easterns at West Point to round out the season. (Staff photo by Pat Dobbs)

Swetman pulls men back into swing

By NICK KOTSOPOULOS
Collegian Staff

Just when it appeared that men's gymnastics was going to be completely eliminated from the UMass athletic department, first-year coach Dick Swetman and his assistant Joel James came onto the scene this year and completely turned the program around, putting it into a better, more promising future.

It wasn't easy for Swetman, but he successfully brought respectability back to this always-proud team that has been on lean times the past couple of years. But now things are back on the upswing.

The Minutemen turned in a respectable 5-5 record under Swetman's direction, a season which, with the help of a few breaks here and there could have been a winning one for the gymmen.

After romping past Boston St. in its first meet in Boston, the Minutemen, led by senior all-around stars Angelo Scuderi, and Steve and Paul Marks, returned to Amherst to host Army in a very important early season meet.

The gymmen certainly didn't disappoint any of the over 300 people in attendance, as they turned in some fine performances. However, UMass lost the contest by a fraction of a point, in a thrilling meet.

The Minutemen bounced back from that heartbreaking loss to romp past Lowell University in their next meet, setting the stage for the team's next big encounter, this one against Penn St., Swetman's alma mata.

Swetman was extremely confident before the meet, knowing that his gymnasts had a very good shot at knocking off one of the top men's gymnastics powers in the country.

"We have such excellent talent at UMass," Swetman said before the Penn St. meet. "In our case it is just a matter of hitting our routines like we are capable of."

Down at Penn St. the Minutemen did hit their routines very well, but once again came within a mere point or two of the Nittany Lions.

"We were so psyched up for that meet," Swetman said, "and I thought that everybody did just great. But a little something on one thing and a little something on another thing deprived us of a very big win."

Following the Penn St. meet, the UMass gymmen did not see any further action for the next 51 days until they met Dartmouth in early February. The long intersession layoff didn't seem to have any ill-effects on the Minutemen as they defeated Dartmouth, Syracuse and Navy.

"At that point in the season we were progressing very well," Swetman said. "We were improving in the areas in which we were weak on in the beginning of the year and we were getting stronger in the areas that we were strong to start off with."

As the season drew to a close, the Minutemen faced the iron of their schedule with meets against So. Connecticut, Springfield and Temple, three of the top teams in the East.

The Minutemen had little success against these three teams, losing to each of them. However, despite the losses, the gymmen continued to show good improvement.

"It wasn't that we were slipping at that time," Swetman said, "because we weren't. As a matter of fact we had some of our best performances of the season against these three teams."

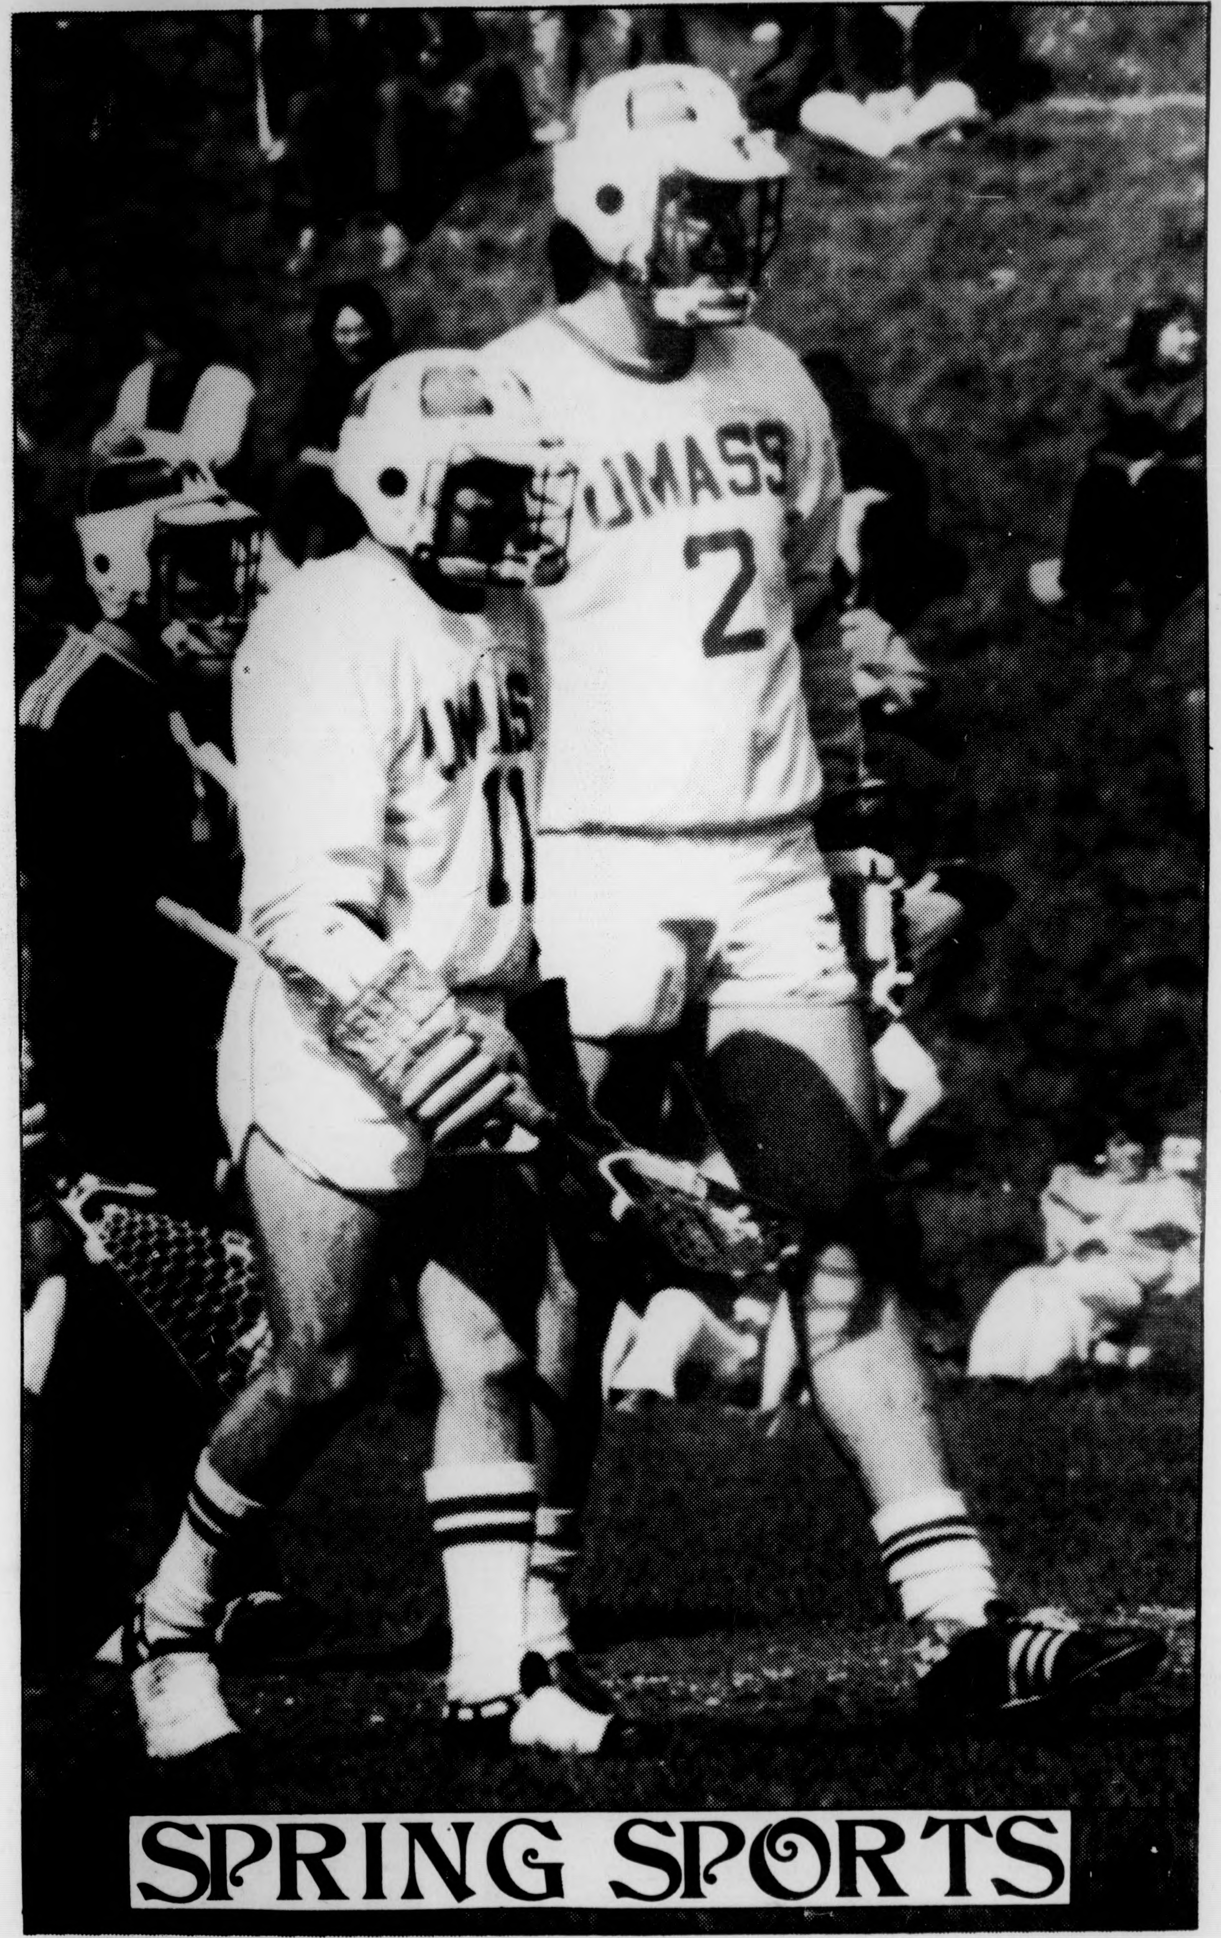
Two weeks after their final regular season meet, the Minutemen went to West Point, N.Y. to participate in the Eastern Championships. In the finals, Swetman was hoping for a third-place finish by UMass. However, some weak scoring in the compulsory exercises hurt the Minutemen's chances for a third place finish and instead they placed fifth.

"If I had the whole season to do over," Swetman said, "I would have stressed the importance of the compulsories. We didn't work on them that much this season and it showed in our performances in the Easterns."

If the season was to start all over again for Swetman, there are some things he would change, some things he would add and some things he would stay with.

"This season was more of a learning experience for me than it was for the team members," he said. "Just from this year I learned the importance of coaching the compulsories, the importance of preseason conditioning and I think most important of all, I have learned to demand more from my gymnasts to bring out their true potential."

Swetman will be losing only three players from this year's team, but they will be three very big spots to fill, as the top all-around performers, Scuderi and the Marks brothers will be graduating.



Men's Lacrosse

Gorillas gunning for NCAA playoffs

By TOM CROWLEY
Collegian Staff

A fast-breaking experienced team relying on man-to-man defense will be shooting for a playoff spot this spring against some tough competition.

No, it isn't the Boston Celtics; it's the UMass lacrosse team, which is coming off a 10-3 season and an appearance in the NCAA playoffs.

By the end of 1976, the Gorillas were ranked sixth in the nation and number one in New England. This year, the Gorillas are again rated numero uno in this region, ahead of Brown and Harvard.

And why not? UMass has all of its attack, its starting goalie, and most of its defense back for another season.

Lost from last year's team by graduation are midfielders Andy Scheffer and Billy O'Brien. "Scheffer was a good runner and Billy was a fine offensive player," said coach Dick Garber in describing them. O'Brien was a second team All-American last year.

On defense John McCarthy who played in the North-South game after his graduation, is lost. Bobby Durland, the back-up goalie last season, also graduated.

Paul Martin won't compete this year as he is studying in Germany, but he will be back next season.

The Gorillas are a senior dominated team as there are 12 on the roster.

The most experienced area of the squad is in attack. Seniors Kevin Patterson, Jeff Spooner, and Micky Menna return from last year's top unit, along with the first substitute, sophomore Norm Smith. Tri-captain Spooner led the team in scoring last season with 31 goals and 40 assists for 71 points. He has also been named as an honorable mention All-American for three straight years. Tri-captain Menna was second last year in scoring (29-20-49) and Patterson was fourth (31-5-36).

Norm Smith checked in with 14 goals and 11 assists for 25 points.

Another attackman Garber is high on is freshman Dave Martin. "He's going to be a player," the coach said.

Another area of team that is deep in goal. Starting goalie Bobby Goldstein is returning. The sophomore allowed 87 goals in 11 games for a 7.9 goals against average a year ago.

Behind Goldstein will be Eric Banhazl and Jeff Cohen. "Eric played JV last year and he really came on during fall practice," Garber said. Cohen, a freshman, was a high school all-American last year.

"This is the best goalie corps we've every had here. Usually we're lucky to have one good goalie," the head Gorilla added.

The defense in front of the crease is tight, too. Starters Ken (Moose) Michaud, Rich Donovan, and Wayne Ament are all returning to the unit. Behind them and sure to get playing time will be Roger Coe, senior Bob Morse, and senior Tim Murphy. New additions to the defense are Tom Keenan and Dick Cranell, both freshmen.

"The attack and the defense look strong, but the midfield, which is where you win or lose games, doesn't look as strong as last year. We don't have the kind of speed we had last year, so far. We lost Andy Scheffer and Billy O'Brien who were really good," Garber said.

"But the guys have been hurt with bum legs: ankles and hamstrings. They should come around."

Tri-captain Terry Keefe leads one midfield as the face-off man. Senior Steve Pappas (1-3-4) returns ("excellent"-Garber) as does senior Vin LoBello 12-7-19) who is a four year vet. Senior Randy Krutzler (10-10-20) returns as the best all round mid-fielder, with junior Mike Lettera and sophomore Toby Rice rounding out the midfield corps.

Chuck Smith is expected to do some great things offensively, but Garber said "he's not a heady player." Fran Young and Jack O'Brien are young players the coach hopes will help. Freshmen Mike Lewis and David Smith also look good. Dave Lautman and Bill Koch, meanwhile, are up from the undefeated JV team and should add depth.

"We have several outstanding candidates and from this group we should get three strong midfield lines," Garber said hopefully.

Overall, Garber thinks that this version of the Gorillas could be the best team he has ever had. "This team has the potential to be the best ever at UMass. If we played the schedule we played three years ago, we'd go undefeated," the coach commented.

That undefeated mark could be very hard to attain this season as UMass has the toughest schedule ever faced by a New England school. In a preseason poll, Garber's Gorillas have been tabbed as the number one team in New England. "That doesn't mean a thing unless the team wins," Garber said.

The squad is now down to 35 members after 84 had tried out. The ones that didn't make the varsity are on the JV squad. "Other years, a lot of those players would have been on the varsity," Garber added.

Dick Garber will take his experienced and deep squad into a very tough season, but since he's been here 22 years and has a career record of 173-75-4, he shouldn't be overly worried about it.

So when a clever stick-handling, hard-shooting, running, and finesse team makes the NCAA playoffs this spring, don't be very surprised. It will probably be the UMass lacrosse team.

Top powers loom ahead

By BILL EDELSTEIN
Collegian Staff

The little old lacrosse schedule-maker has really outdone himself this year, and he brings with him some good news and some bad news. The good news is that UMass lacrosse fans will get to see Garber's Gorillas face some of the very best teams in the country. The bad news is that the Gorillas must face some of the very best teams in the country. It's redundant, but true.

No fewer than nine games out of UMass' 14-game slate will be played in the friendly field behind Boyden Gymnasium. These contests will include such national powerhouses as North Carolina, Rutgers, and defending NCAA champion Cornell. As if this isn't enough, of the remaining six home matches, two more will pit the Gorillas against nationally ranked Syracuse and Dartmouth. No doubt about it, it'll be a great year for UMass lacrosse fans.

The Gorillas, however, get the dubious pleasure of playing against this kind of competition.

"This is the toughest schedule any New England team has ever played," said UMass coach Dick Garber. He tends toward understatement.

This coming Saturday, UMass locks sticks with formidable Cornell, the country's top club. ("It's hard to believe that they've improved over last year, but they have." — Garber)

For Cornell, the man to keep an eye on is senior attackman Eamon McInney (number 10 in your program, folks), who, for the past two years, has been named the nation's outstanding offensive player. If McInney is covered, the Big Red have another scoring threat in the blistering hard shot of midfielder Craig Jaeger.

Garber said that he doesn't like UMass to play Cornell so early in the season, before the Gorillas have had adequate time to get rolling. UMass played Cornell early last year also, and wound up on the losing end of a 22-10 pasting.

Garber lured North Carolina to the wilds of Amherst when he met the Tarheel coach at a Florida lacrosse clinic.

"North Carolina plays Army this year, so while they're in the neighborhood, we agreed to help them with travel expenses to Amherst," said Garber. "But the main reason why teams like these are coming here is because we've moved up in the national ranking to where other clubs play us to get a better shot at making the NCAA tournament.

Both the Tarheels and Rutgers are newcomers to the UMass schedule. So far this season, Rutgers has upset Navy, 9-7, and lost to a good UPenn team which also defeated Hofstra.

On the New England scene, Brown has lost last year's starting goaltender, a couple of defenders and five midfielders to graduation.

"Brown always turns out a tough lacrosse team, though," warned Garber.

The Bruins, however, have already given up 14 goals this season in ekeing out a three-goal victory over Boston College, so their netminding is still suspect.

The other Ivy Leage teams on the UMass schedule, Harvard and Dartmouth, are greatly improved because of a new Ivy rule which allows freshmen to participate in varsity sports. "Harvard might even challenge for the top spot in New England," predicted Garber.

Syracuse is a potent offensive club last year, and the Orangemen have been helped by freshman goalie Jamie Malloy defensively. All of last season's starters are returning.

The Gorillas face one of the nation's top Division II teams in Cortland State, a team UMass barely survived last year.

Boston College, Connecticut, Williams, New Hampshire and Springfield round out the slate, and these teams are expected to give UMass little trouble.

SPARTAN
BRAKE AND MUFFLER SHOP
• BRAKES
• MUFFLERS
MUFFLER SERVICE
• SHOCKS
• TOWING AAA ALA
8 Pearl St Northampton 584 8531
TRUST YOUR CAR TO SPEEDY SPARTAN SPECIALISTS!

jogging or soccer, golf, hiking, basketball, boating, track & field, football, tennis, baseball, wrestling, etc.
Improve your performance with sports shoes by the world's finest makers....all fitted by interested professionals who know shoes....and sports.
Adidas - Pro-Keds
Sperry Topsiders
Tretorn - Nike
Mathews
SHOES
AMHERST

Baseball

Batsmen swing into spring

By RICH ECKEL
Collegian Staff

Talk around professional baseball circles this season has centered around the effects the new free agent system will have on the game. What professional baseball pundits don't realize is that college coaches have been dealing with the same situation for years, only their problem comes under a different heading — graduation.

This season UMass baseball coach Dick Bergquist is faced with a major reconstruction job. Ten lettermen from last year's 24-13 second in New England team have departed, leaving Bergquist in a position that even Oakland A's manager Chuck Tanner could sympathize with.

But instead of complaining and categorizing this season as a rebuilding year, Bergquist is optimistic about his club's chances for a successful season.

"There's no question we were hurt by graduation," said Bergquist before his team's departure to Anita Bryant territory. "We've lost some offensive firepower, but except for the loss of Craig Allegrezza, (now in the Baltimore Oriole farm system) our pitching staff remains intact. That's gonna be our strength."

Ever since the beginning of Abner Doubleday's version of America's favorite pastime, followers of the game have maintained that pitching is 75 per cent of the game. This season's version of Minuteman baseball should either lend credence to the belief or dispel it as myth.

Last year's staff compiled a respectable 3.59 ERA and if the Minutemen hope to challenge the Black Bears of Maine again this season that mark will have to be equaled. Junior righthander Tom Nigro (7-1, 1.78 ERA) senior Jeff Reardon, whom Bergquist labels, "the hardest thrower on the staff," and senior Jerry Erb are all penciled into the starting rotation that the Minutemen will be relying upon.

Other members of the staff include senior lefty reliever Dave Tewhill (3-1, 3.66 ERA) junior Pete Rankowitz, sophomore Dave Stoller, who was 5-0 with the JV's last season, and senior southpaw reliever Chris Kirby. Another dart thrower, freshman phenom Doug Welenc, rounds out the eight-man staff and could challenge for a spot in the starting rotation.

"It's gonna have to be pitching and defense which carries us this season," said Bergquist, who is unsure of his team's offensive capabilities. "We have good possibilities it's just that our younger players haven't proven themselves yet."

The concern about his team's offensive production stems from the fact that his top six producers from last season's squad have all graduated. Mark Fontaine, Mike Koperniak, Jim Black, John Seed, Jerry Mondalto, and Bob Moore combined for an average of .344. All but three of the team's 21 home runs, and 121 of the club's 173 runs were provided by the sextet. The effect of their loss is obvious and should alter the squad's offensive approach.

"We'll use the hit and run an awful lot this season, and that's something I love to do if I have the right personnel," said Bergquist. "This team has more speed than last year's, but not as much power, everyone's gonna have the green light to steal a base. If we can just hit the ball consistently we should be all right."

In order to utilize their speed the Minutemen will need baserunners, and Bergquist will be looking for production from four returning veterans with game experience, along with prospects from last year's 18-1, JV ball club.

Captains Jim Cullen and Paul Abramowicz (Mr. Versatile) will be relied upon to settle the relatively young and inexperienced Minutemen. Cullen hit a solid .279 last season and played a steady third base. This season Cullen, the only letterman along with Abramowicz not on the pitching staff, will move a few steps to his left and occupy the shortstop position. Abramowicz is slated to start in centerfield, although he could move to the infield should the situation arise.

Junior John Czerapowicz appears to be the leading contender for the starting catching position and will be called upon to strengthen the Minutemen's defense up the middle. The other infield positions are up for grabs.

Senior Dale Stone, who saw limited action last year, appears to have the inside track on the first base station. Two sophomores, Ed Skribiski and Mike Stockley, are contenders for the second half of UMass' double play combination, and another sophomore, Leo Kalinowski, seems assured of a shot at the hot corner position.

Teaming with Abramowicz to roam the outfield will be a combination of three sophomores and two juniors. Bob Alves, Rick Flynn, George Kelly, Neal Lojek and impressive freshman Mike McEvilly, (also a quarterback on the football team) all have an opportunity to win a starting berth in the outfield.

The situation adds up to one of inexperience combined with a great deal of optimism and enthusiasm. Only six of the team's 22 players are seniors, which means many members will be receiving their baptism under fire. How these players react to the pressure, combined with the pitching staff's performance, will determine the Minutemen's final fate.

CHEQUERS
Wednesday is Mich Nite
Happy Hour never stops!
4→closing
Cheese and Crackers early hot dogs and sauerkraut late
COME AND ENJOY!

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
60 day advance payment required

Transit, G.S.E.U., Revenue Sharing, Administrative Withdrawal, Student Grievances, Legal Services, Search Committees, Graduate Program Reviews, T.A.'s in Summer Session, Graduate Senate Tax, Affirmative Action, Smoking Restrictions, Campus Center Policy, Trustee Committees, Academic Honesty, Departmental representation.....

The Graduate Student Senate announces the Opening of Nominations for the four Senate officers
for 1977-1978.

Elections will be held at a General Meeting of Graduate Students on WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20th, 1977

The Graduate Student Senate conducts its elections in accordance with agreed Affirmative Action Procedures.

Tough opposition in store for batters

By FRAN SYPEK
Collegian Staff

A team that played in last year's College World Series, a professional baseball team and a team that is back on the UMass baseball schedule after a two-year absence highlight some of the tough opposition that the Minutemen will be facing this spring.

With 27 New England games on tap, UMass will be hoping to at least duplicate last year's northern mark of 21-8. One result the Minutemen would like to improve on is the playoffs. Last year the UMass nine was defeated in the finals of the New England playoffs by Maine.

The Black Bears, who won two games in the College World Series in Omaha, Nebraska, were 4-0 against the Minutemen last season. Minutemen mentor Dick Bergquist expects Maine to be tough again this spring, but isn't conceding anything to the Yankee Conference rival.

"Maine should be the club to beat in New England this year," he said. "Last year they swept the New England's, the Northeast regional and won two games in Omaha. They represented the East very well.

"But I think we're at least as good," he added. "One of our losses to Maine came in the ninth inning and another one came in extra innings."

Maine, along with UMass and UConn, were the three best teams in New England last year. The New England playoff format has the three top teams making the playoffs, so last year the playoffs were dominated by the Yankee Conference.

Things might be different, however, because there might not be a Yankee Conference for baseball this spring.

"We still don't know if there's going to be a Yankee Conference," said Bergquist. "The thinking was to do away with it. But maybe they'll have it."

UConn, which swept UMass in a doubleheader at Lorden Field last year, will be tough. The Minutemen, however, made up for those losses with a 5-1 win over the Huskies in the playoffs.

"UConn should be among the top clubs in New England," said Bergquist. "Tom Germano, the club's top pitcher, will be back this year."

The other two Yankee Conference teams are New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

"UNH didn't have a good record last year," said Bergquist. "They played a lot of sophomores and are

TURN TO PAGE 15

Women's Lacrosse

Gazelles winning while growing

By NICK KOTSOPOULOS
Collegian Staff

Last year Frank Garahan had to start from scratch in developing UMass' first women's lacrosse team. It wasn't an easy task, to say the least, because for many of the women on the team, it was the first time they had participated in the sport.

Nevertheless, the UMass women's lacrosse team enjoyed a fine 7-1 premiere season and with most of the team returning this year, Garahan is looking for a lot of improvement and to become the number one women's lacrosse team in New England.

"Last year was especially difficult at times," the soft-spoken Garahan said. "I didn't really know what to expect from my players and they didn't know what to expect from me.

"At the beginning of the season, we had problem communicating because a lot of the women had trouble understanding the terminology and rules of the game. Even I was guilty of not understanding all the rules and that makes it difficult to coach when you don't even understand all the rules."

But now the baptism is over and Garahan feels that the knowledge of the game has increased for his players and instead of wasting time explaining less important points of the game, the Gazelles are now working on more sophisticated aspects.

"I have noticed the past three weeks we have been training," Garahan said, "that we have come a long way in one year in terms of what we are trying.

"Last year we more or less ran only a free-lance run-and-gun offense, but this year because we have a better understanding of the game as a team, we are working on a more deliberate style of game, incorporating a few plays into our offense.

Garahan has a good nucleus returning this year. However, among the players who aren't coming back are co-captains Kathy O'Neil and Trish McCarthy, along with the team's high-scoring attackperson, Debbie Belitsos.

"Debbie decided to leave UMass and transfer to URI," Garahan said, "and we lost Kathy and Trish through graduation."

"I'm not really concerned with the fact that we lost three key players because I feel that we have a strong returning group."

Collegian
sports

Garahan is particularly pleased that his whole defensive returns intact. Also the team's top two scorers, Nancy O'Neil and Evie Sneeden, have returned.

In goal, Mary Murray is back, although she is in competition with freshman Robin Jennings for the starting berth.

During the past five weeks, Garahan has been putting the Gazelles through an interval training program, designed to get everybody into tip-top shape for the opening game on April 16 against Northeastern.

"I feel that running is very important to our team strategy," Garahan said. "Our ability to fast-break last year enabled us to have such a successful year.

"Since there aren't as many opportunities to substitute in the women's game like in the men's, it forces some of our players to take longer shifts on the field, and that is an important reason why we stress so much conditioning."

The Minutewomen will play an upgraded 10-game schedule this spring. Among some of the top teams UMass will play are: Cortland St., a powerhouse in women's lacrosse, along with some of the top schools in New England.

Topping off the season, the Minutewomen will be in the New England College Women's Lacrosse tournament, which will be held May 7 and 8 at Williams College.

"Our goal this season," Garahan said, "is to play to the best of our potential that will make us the top team in New England.

"Then we want to go to Williams in May and walk away from there with the New England championship."

Not only has the schedule been upgraded, but the athletic department has also created a junior varsity team to meet the substantial demand of interest.

"The athletic department has been very kind to us," Garahan said. "We now have a JV team and we also have gotten more money that will enable us to play a lot more road games.

"The program has really blossomed in one year."

About 40 women went out for the lacrosse team this year and Garahan plans to break the team down about 20-20 so that everybody will have an opportunity to play.

"The success of our season," Garahan pointed out, "lies in our athletes. We just have some super athletes at this school who have excellent talent."

So with a full season of experience behind them, better communication and a better preseason workout, Garahan confidently looks forward to that day in May when his Gazelles are tabbed the top team in New England.

AREA'S LARGEST SELECTION OF FOOTWEAR FOR SPRING!

Jogging Softball Baseball Tennis Running

Clark's
SPORT SHOP
281 MAIN ST.
GREENFIELD, MASS.
774-2298

men's, ladie's, & children's shoes
Adidas running shorts, shirts, & warm ups nike Hyde adidas

COME AND GET IT!

They're here—the Summer Session catalogs, full of all the right courses at the right time. For your convenience, catalogs are available at several locations around campus: Graduate Research Center, Room A245, the CASIAC Office in Machmer Hall, outside the Registration Office at Whitmore and at the Records and Registration Office of Continuing Education at Hills House North.

It's here. Come and get it!

JOIN US FOR SUMMER SESSION 1977 AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS/AMHERST

Track

Tracksters ready to set pace

By DAVE RODMAN
Collegian Staff

Blessed with the fastest track facility in New England, the UMass men's and women's track teams are looking ahead to the upcoming spring season and the opportunity to run some fast times against top competition.

Headlining the scheduled meets at the Llewellyn Derby track complex will be the UMass Relays on April 16, the Yankee Conference Championship on May 7, and the New England Championships on May 13 and 14. The latter two meets are for the men only, but the relays will have both a men's and women's division.

The men will also face top level competition in the BC Relays, Penn Relays, UConn Invitational, IC4A's, and NCAA's. A dual meet is also scheduled against Northeastern, now the strongest team in New England and NE indoor champ.

Outside of Southern Connecticut, the women will not face challenge in their dual meet season. Penn State and Rutgers both good women's teams, are tentative participants in the UMass Relays, and the Minutewomen will also face top runners, jumpers, and throwers in the Easterns, as well as the nationals.

"We're going to be looking for continued improvement out of everyone," said coach Arnie Morse. "We're hoping for personal best times from a lot of people. The key things to avoid are illness and injury, which hurt us indoors this winter. If we can keep the team together, there's no question we'll be one of the strongest teams in New England."

Indoors, the women finished fifth in the Easterns, their only championship meet. They scored heavily in the distance events, and these should prove to be continued strong points outdoors. The addition of the javelin to the outdoor program could help with some points as well. Other strong events should be the sprints, hurdles, quarter-mile, and relays.

The squad returns an experienced nucleus of 23 letterwinners. In 1976, the team's first year of competition, it lost one meet, qualified 24 members for the Easterns and one for the nationals. The team also finished fifth outdoors in the Easterns. There are 60 women on the team this spring.

The men's team, led by co-captains Jim Hunt and Ken Adamson, returns 25 lettermen and nine of the top 10 points scorers from last spring. Depth will be the key for the Minutemen, who finished a dismal eighth in the indoor New England championships. The addition of the javelin, 440 intermediate hurdles, discus, and steeplechase to the outdoor program should add potential scoring power to the attack.

Five UMass records were set last year, and the potential is there to equal that number of shattered marks this season.

The first meet for the women will be at UConn on April 5. The men will be tested early on April 2, when Boston University, Northeastern, and Brandeis visit the Derby track.

Head coach Ken O'Brien and assistants Gary King and Morse feel that both teams have the potential to get through the regular season in good shape and do well in the season-ending championship meets.

The men's track team will jump into its season opener this Saturday at Derby Track against two foes. (Staff photo by Jay Saret)

LANDRY'S MARKET
The Oldest Grocery in Amherst

Budweiser Beer
12 oz cans $5.79 case $1.59 6-pak
Imported Portugese Vinya Rose $1.89 fifth
N.Y. State Taylor Wine $3.79 half gal
MEAT
Boneless Chuck Steak 69¢ lb.
Homemade Breakfast Sausage 89¢ lb.
Slab Bacon $1.29 lb.
Reg. Hamburg (no more than 30% fat 79¢ lb. 59¢ lb. on Sunday
All Beef Hot Dogs 99¢ lb.

Charcoal $1.89 bag
Ice 69¢ bag
Muenster Cheese $1.59 lb.
Prices Good thru April 5

711 Main St. Amherst 253-5387
On the Belchertown Bus Route

Ends March 31st!
2 Great Offers

SR·52
FREE $59 worth of software

SR-52 FREE Software offer.
Indicate choice of 2 software libraries below and (1) return this completed coupon along with (2) your completed SR-52 serialized customer information card (packed in box) and (3) a dated copy of proof of your purchase, verifying purchase between Jan. 20 and March 31, 1977 to:
Texas Instruments Incorporated
P. O. Box 1210
Richardson, Texas 75080
Name
Address
City State Zip
SR-52 Serial No. (from back of calculator)
Math Statistics Finance EE
Texas Instruments reserves the right to substitute software libraries of equal value based upon availability. Please allow 30 days for delivery.

$199.95

SR.56
$10 REBATE

SR-56 $10 Rebate.
Texas Instruments will rebate $10.00 of your original SR-56 purchase price when you (1) return this completed coupon (2) along with your completed SR-56 customer information card (packed in box) and (3) a dated copy of proof of your purchase, verifying purchase between Jan. 1 and March 31, 1977 to:
Texas Instruments Incorporated
P. O. Box 1210
Richardson, Texas 75080
Name
Address
City State Zip
SR-56 Serial No.
Please allow 30 days for rebate.

$84.95

at the calculator store
THE UNIVERSITY STORE
campus center

WARNING: The Ivory Tower is about to collapse.

It's your last year of college. Why think about life insurance now? Because, the older you get the more it costs. And next year, it's all up to you. Find out about CollegeMaster.

Call the Fidelity Union CollegeMaster Field Associate in your area:

Ronald J. Nathan Agency
747 Main St., Amherst
256-8351

CollegeMaster.

Softball

Optimism reigns in preseason drills

By PAT McGRATH
Collegian Staff

Optimism. That is the word which best describes the attitude of both the players and coaches toward the 1977 version of the UMass softball team.

It all started before intersession. More than 70 women expressed an interest in playing softball and signed up to participate in preseason workouts which started February first. Head coach Dianne Thompson believes that the best way to get a team in shape for the upcoming season is to start working with the players early to build up their skills.

One month after these extensive tryouts began, the team was cut down to 29 players. Many of the 70 women cut themselves by not attending tryouts, and the two coaches had to cut about a half-dozen additional people.

The members of the team have been practicing for over a month at NOPE Gymnasium. The practice sessions usually run two hours, but the women can stay longer to work on any skills which they feel they need to perfect. There have been two substantial improvements over last year's program with the addition of a hummer pitching machine and a batting cage.

"Both of these new pieces of equipment will really help the team offensively," Thompson said. "The hummer throws up to 90 miles per hour and the batting cage allows the women to take full swings. They have been of tremendous help."

Practices for the 1977 softball team have stressed two important things: both hard work and fun. The women have been working diligently on their skills every day for over a month, and both Thompson and JV coach Linda Wetherby feel that it is important to allow the players to have a good time and get to know one another.

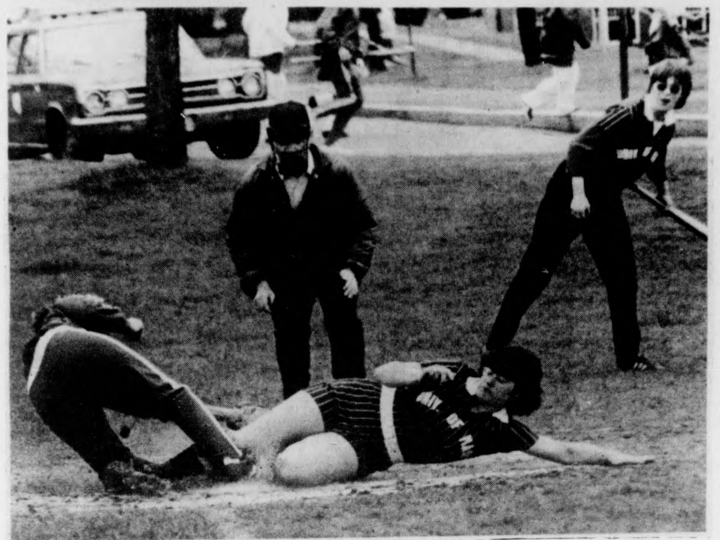
"The ideal situation is to provide good, hard work as well as a relaxed, uninhibited atmosphere. We believe in making practice fun and we hope that everyone will get to know everyone else," Wetherby said.

Up to this point in time, Thompson and Wetherby have not picked the varsity and JV teams. However, they did choose 16 women to participate in double practices that started last Thursday. These 16 women practiced from 9:00 a.m.-12:00 and from 1:00-4:00 p.m. in the Cage and outside.

There are seven women returning from last year's varsity squad. The only two seniors on this very young team are pitcher Gail Matthews and first baseman Heidi Dickson. Matthews looks very good so far and Thompson is looking for consistency from her pitchers.

Lynn Barry and Carol Bruce are returning in the outfield. Both of these players have strong arms, and they are also working on other positions. Thompson feels that a good team has players who can play more than one position effectively.

Other returnees include sophomores Susan DiRocco, a very fine infielder, and Elaine Howle, who plays third base and the outfield. The final veteran on the varsity is junior catcher Cheryl Meliones. Her accurate arm and team leadership will be an important factor to UMass softball success in 1977.



Elaine Howle and the rest of the softball team hope that all their slides this season are called safe. (Staff photo by Jay Saret)

The UMass varsity team will play 18 games this season. Thompson wants to carry at least two or three pitchers on the varsity squad and set up a pitching rotation. This big increase in the number of games is another reason for having each player learn more than one position.

"Defensively, I think we will be a strong team," Thompson commented. "We will go over possible game situations every other week. We even pulled off a triple play in practice. It's great to see the players get into the game mentally this early in the season."

The Minutewomen will open up their regular season at home Friday against Central Connecticut. The game will be played on the field behind NOPE. Thompson isn't too

TURN TO PAGE 13

From April 1 through June 14, you can fly roundtrip from New York to Luxembourg for only $410.

That's $89 less than the youth fare you'd pay on any other scheduled airline. (From Chicago you pay $458 and save $103.) All you have to do is be under the age of 24.

There are no booking restrictions. And no skimping on meals or service. Because we give you the same service you'd get from other airlines, without the same high costs. So, if you're not flying Icelandic to Europe, you're spending more than you have to.

We'll give you the best deal.

Save $89 on jet fares to Europe and book anytime you want.

Icelandic Airlines, Dept. #CN
630 Fifth Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10020
See your travel agent. Or call toll free: (800) 555-1212.
Please send information on all Icelandic's low-cost fares to Europe.

Name
Address
City State Zip
Fares subject to change and gov't. approval.

Icelandic
Lowest Jet fares to Europe of any scheduled airline.

Veteran infield, pitching sharp

By MEL WEBSTER
Collegian Staff

The infield for the UMass softball team should be a solid unit this year with a mixture of veterans and rookies.

First-year coach Dianne Thompson hasn't made her final choice for each position yet, but she has solid candidates for each spot. Many of the infielders will be able to switch positions, because Thompson "likes to have people play more than one position to add strength and depth to the team."

At first base, the Minutewomen have Heidi Dickson returning from last year's varsity squad. Dickson committed only one error at first last year, and seems to have the lead for the job. Pitchers Gail Carter, a freshman, and Gail Matthews, a senior, are also expected to see action at first.

Thompson has two candidates for second base. Freshman Rhonda McManus and senior Sandy Lunt are both expected to play here. Lunt also hopes to fill in at shortstop.

Three women have looked good at third base. Chris Verdini, a freshman, has drawn raves at the hot corner. Also showing potential at third have been McManus and Elaine Howle, a sophomore who batted .368 last season.

The shortstop position also looks to be very strong. Susan DiRocco, a returning sophomore, made only two errors last year at short while batting a respectable .250. Sophomore Joan Carew looked good here before coming down with mononucleosis. Coach Thompson is looking forward to getting her back in action.

Thompson said the fielders have been working very hard on handling bunts and making double plays. Thompson said fielding a bunt is very important because she has seen "many teams lose games because they can't field a bunt."

"The fielders are really thinking for so early in the season," she continued. "The women were playing the game 'pickle', and were consistently getting the baserunner out or forcing her to return to the base she came from."

Matthews and Carter have both looked very strong on the pitcher's mound, according to Thompson. They are her two strongest hurlers, but the coach hopes that freshman Sue Peters will develop into the third. Thompson said that right now Peters is behind the other two pitchers because of her participation on the basketball team

Both Peters and Carter have impressive high school records. Peters compiled a log of 64 wins against three losses with a 1.56 earned run average at Southbridge High, while Carter had a record of 43-8 in three varsity seasons at Methuen High.

"Carter has improved her speed immensely since practice began six weeks ago," Thompson said.

Thompson hopes to have junior Cheryl Meliones behind the plate. Meliones was the starting catcher last year, but sustained an elbow injury early in the season. Thompson said Meliones has "strengthened her arm coming back from the injury, and is throwing well."

Freshman Beth Collins is also expected to see some backup action at the catching position.

AIR FORCE ROTC
The facts of the matter.

With something as important as your future being discussed, it's very urgent that you get and understand all the facts. Air Force ROTC can be an important part of your future, and we'd like to take this opportunity to outline some of the main facts of that matter and invite you to look further into the subject.

The U.S. Air Force needs highly qualified dedicated officers. Both men and women, and we need people in all kinds of educational disciplines. Air Force ROTC offers 4-year, 3-year and 2-year scholarships with $100 monthly tax-free allowance, and contrary to what some people think, there is no military obligation during the first two years of the Air Force ROTC.

Upon college graduation you'll receive a commission in the U.S. Air Force and the opportunity to compete for a challenging job with advanced educational opportunities.

Let's get together and discuss Air Force ROTC further. We'll give you all the facts and clear up the fictions. It could be one of the most important talks you've ever had with anyone.

Call Major Richardson
at 545-2437

Air Force ROTC

FOR ALL YOUR SPORTS EQUIPMENT

FENTON'S
377 Main St. Amherst
253-3973

Athletic Supplies

WE SUPPLY THE AMHERST AREA WITH THE FINEST IN ATHLETIC SUPPLIES & EQUIPMENT

- Tennis
- Lacrosse
- Basketball
- Swimming
- Track
- Baseball
- Softball
- Golf
- Soccer

Mary Murray (front) of the women's lacrosse team seems to have those old spring training blues. (Staff photo by Marcia Carlson)

Finast
SUPERMARKETS

Tesori Tomatoes Italian Imported 35 oz can 39¢
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid March 27-April 2, 1977 H-734 FN

Scot Towels 140 ct roll 39¢
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid March 27-April 2, 1977 H-735 TX FN

Hoods Ice Cream ½ gallon carton 99¢
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid March 27-April 2, 1977 H-736 FN

50¢ off one pkg 4 G.E. Light Bulbs
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid March 27-April 2, 1977 H-733 TX FN

Exciting offer by Oneida! Genuine Silver Plate Spoon Rings 99¢ ea Exquisite Spoon Rings and Bracelets. Sold at Finast checkout Stands.
Spoon Bracelets.. ea 1.49

Freezer Queen — Salisbury Steak w/Gravy, Turkey Croquettes, Char Broil Beef Patties, Spaghetti & Meatballs — 2-lb pkg 89¢
Mrs. Filberts Margarine — Golden Quarters 1-lb pkg 38¢
Finast Fresh Large Eggs — doz 79¢

Grocery Values the Finast Way!
Mushrooms Penn Dutch Stems & Pieces .. 2 4 oz cans 89¢
Prince Lasagna....... 16 oz pkg 59¢
Appian Way Pizza Mix. 12½ oz pkg 49¢
Beef Ravioli Chef Boy ar-dee .....2 15 oz cans 89¢
Dinty Moore Beef Stew 40 oz can 1.49
Libbys Tomato Juice... qt btl 57¢
Facial Tissues Lady Scott ...2 200 ct boxes 1.00
Waldorf Bath Tissues.. 4 roll pkg 79¢
Mop & Glo Floor Cleaner .... 32 oz btl 1.29

Finast Frozen Food Values!
Orange Juice Treesweet 16 oz can 59¢
Swanson Dinners..... 11 oz pkg 77¢
Pot Pies Finast Beef, Mac. & Cheese, Chicken or Turkey . 4 8 oz pkgs $1
Fruit Pies Orchard Hill Apple, Peach, Blueberry and Cherry . 4 8 oz pkgs $1
Boil in Bags Meat Entrees Finast Brand .... 4 8 oz pkgs $1
Sara Lee Cakes Choc. Cream or Walnut 18 oz pkg 1.69

Sunrise Fresh Dairy Values!
Tropicana Orange Juice ½ gal ctn 79¢
Amer. Cheese Slices Kraft Deluxe 8 oz pkg 69¢
Biscuits Pillsbury Hungry Jack Buttermilk and Butter Tastin .. 3 10 oz pkgs $1
Hoods Yogurt Firm & Fruity ..... 4 8 oz ctns $1
Axelrod Sour Cream... 16 oz ctn 69¢

Baked fresh the Finast Way!
White Bread Big Round Top Finast Fresh 3 20 oz lvs $1
Finast English Muffins..3 pkgs 6 $1
Fresh Rolls Hot Dog & Hamburg ...... 3 pkgs 8 $1
Plain Donuts Finast Fresh .... 2 pkgs 12 $1
Hot Cross Buns....... 14 oz pkg 79¢
Bakery Items Available Tuesday thru Saturday only

For Your Health & Beauty!
Crest Toothpaste 10¢ off label .. 5 oz tube 69¢
Short & Sassy Conditioner .. 7 oz btl 1.19
Datril Tablets Extra Strength ..... btl 24 69¢

In-Store Bake Shop Features!
Enriched Rolls Home Style ..... doz 79¢
Italian Bread....... 4 7 oz lvs 1.00
Assorted Cookies Large Old Fashioned . doz 99¢
Available Only in Stores with In-Store Bake Shops

Finast Welcomes FOOD STAMP CUSTOMERS

Fresh Chicken Parts — Quarters Breasts (with wings) or Legs (with backs) 49¢ lb
Shake n' Bake for Chicken 4¾ oz pkg 77¢
Assorted Pork Chops — End and Center Cuts 1.09 lb; Center Cut Pork Chops 1.39 lb
Finast Applesauce 15 oz jar 35¢

Beef Brisket Fresh Boneless Whole untrimmed Avg. wt. 6-8 lbs 89¢ lb Trimmed Point Cut lb 1.09
Trimmed Flat Cut lb 1.49
Farmers Horseradish... 8½ oz jar 59¢ (Great with Fresh Beef Brisket)
Beef Skirt Steak Boneless ... lb 1.59 (Great with Durkee Mushroom Gravy ¾ oz pkg 31¢)
Franks or Knockwurst American Kosher .... 12 oz pkg 1.19
Midget Salami American Kosher ... 12 oz pkg 1.19
Bologna Oscar Mayer Meat or Beef .... 12 oz pkg 1.09
Chef's Pride Breakfast Link Sausage ...... lb 89¢
Natalina Pizza Pepperoni ... 14 oz pkg 1.29
Gaspar's Linguica or Chourico . lb 1.99

Mr. Deli Favorites!
Cooked Ham Domestic Freshly Sliced to order 1.99 lb
N.Y. Style Pastrami..... lb 1.39
German Bologna....... lb 1.29
Amer. Cheese Land O Lakes White or Yellow .. lb 1.39
Hillshire Farms Kielbasa lb 1.39
Italian Hot Ham........ half lb 1.39
N.E. Luncheon Loaf Carandos lb 1.69
Imported Swiss Cheese. lb 1.99
Rye Bread or Pumpernickel Golden Hearth ..... 1 lb loaf 59¢
Donuts Raised Ring Iced Choc. Vanilla ....6 for 89¢
Cheese Pizza Mr. Deli ... 12 inch 15 oz pkg 99¢
Available Only in Stores with Mr. Deli Depts

Split or Cut-up 65¢ lb
Whole Fresh Fowl 4 to 5 lbs 59¢ lb lesser amounts 59¢ lb
Fresh Chicken Livers 5 lb ctn 49¢ lb
Marco Brand lesser amounts 99¢ lb
Italian Style Sausage 5 lb box 89¢ lb
Quality Value a Breakfast Favorite
Finast Sliced Bacon 1-lb pkg 99¢

3 Breast Qtrs, 3 Leg Qtrs, 3 Wings, 3 Giblet Paks
Fresh Box-o-Chicken. lb 47¢
Fresh Chicken Pie Mrs. Budd's 36 oz pkg 1.99
Beef Rib Steaks Extra Trim Bone-In lb 1.79
Chuck Steak Boneless Underblade .. lb 1.19
Chuck Pot Roast Boneless lb 1.09

3 Drumsticks, 3 Thighs, 3 Half Breasts
Fresh Best of the Fryer.. lb 67¢
Shoulder Steak or Top Blade Steak Boneless Beef lb 1.49
Boneless Beef Stew.... lb 1.19
Fresh Pork Ribs Country Style Loin End . lb 1.09
Pork Loin Roast Boneless ... lb 1.49

LARGE ECONOMY PACKS!
Whole Cut into Roasts & Chops
Pork Loins 1.19 lb
Whole Bnls Cut Into Roasts, Steaks, & Kabobs
Shoulder of Beef 1.29 lb

Fresh Turkey Parts!
Drumsticks or Wings.... lb 59¢
Turkey Thighs......... lb 79¢
Turkey Breasts........ lb 1.19

Seafood Favorites!
Peeled & Deveined Shrimp Frozen 2.19 lb
Snow Crab Claws Frozen Alaskan lb 1.69
Flounder Fillet Frozen .. lb 1.69
Rainbow Trout Frozen Idaho . 12 oz pkg 1.59
Tartar Sauce Hellmann's great with fish .. 6 oz jar 45¢

Fresh Hen Turkeys 8 to 14 lbs 58¢ lb
Stove Top Stuffing 12 oz pkg 1.29

FIRST O' THE FRESH
"First of the Season"
California Strawberries 69¢ pint
Dessert Shells pkg of 6 49¢
B.E. Cool Whip 9 oz ctn 69¢
Calif. Navel Oranges Large Family Pack 18 for 1.69

"FRESH SALAD BAR"
Romaine Lettuce... hd 39¢
Chicory or Escarole Salad Twins ... 3 lbs 1.00
Green Cabbage.... lb 25¢

Delicious Apples Wash. State Golden U.S. No 1 2¼ inch min. 39¢ lb
Zucchini Squash....... lb 39¢
Heather Plant Good Luck Plant 4½ inch Pot ..ea 2.49
Coleus Plant Assorted Colors 5½ inch Pot ...ea 1.99

Make Finast Your Headquarters for Passover Foods!
Imported from Israel Aviv Matzo 5 lb box 2.89
Adlers 24 oz jar Gefilte Fish 99¢
Potato Starch......... 12 oz pkg 95¢
Rokeach Macaroons... 10 oz tin 89¢
Borscht Mothers, Rokeach, and Manischevitz ...... qt jar 59¢
Matzo Ball Mix Croyden House ... 4½ oz pkg 69¢
Potato Kugel Mix Croyden House .. 6 oz pkg 89¢
Adlers Soups......... 32 oz 89¢

$1 off with this coupon on (1) 5 lb box Matzo (Except Aviv) Valid thru April 2 Limit one FN
40¢ off with this coupon on (1) 24 oz Gefilte Fish (Except Adlers) Valid thru April 2 Limit one FN
20¢ off with this coupon on (1) 16 oz Easy-Off Oven Cleaner H-737 TX Valid Mar. 27-April 2 MFG
20¢ off with this coupon on (1) 26 oz Snowy Bleach H-738 TX Valid Mar. 27-April 2 MFG
8¢ off with this coupon on (1) 11 oz Betty Crocker Pie Crust Mix H-739 Valid Mar. 27-April 2 MFG
15¢ off with this coupon on (2) 154 ct Viva Towels H-740 TX Valid Mar. 27-April 2 MFG
25¢ off with this coupon on (1) 1-lb Hills Bros Coffee H-741 Valid Mar. 27-April 2 MFG
30¢ off with this coupon on (1) 1-lb Brim Coffee H-747 Valid Mar. 27-April 2 MFG

Prices effective March 27 thru April 2, 1977
We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities
Not Responsible for Typographical Errors

Spring Sports Schedules

Men's lacrosse

Apr. 2	Cornell	Home	2:00
Apr. 6	Connecticut	Home	3:00
Apr. 9	Cortland	Away	2:00
Apr. 13	Dartmouth	Home	3:00
Apr. 16	Rutgers	Home	2:00
Apr. 18	Boston College	Home	2:00
Apr. 23	Williams	Away	2:00
Apr. 29	North Carolina	Home	3:00
Apr. 30	New Hampshire	Home	2:00
May 4	Syracuse	Home	3:00
May 7	Harvard	Away	2:00
May 9	Springfield	Home	3:00
May 11	Brown	Away	3:00

Varsity baseball

Apr. 2-3	Southeastern Mass. Inv. Tourn. (SMU, UMass, Northeastern, New Hampshire)	@ SMU
Apr. 5	Holy Cross	Home	3:00
Apr. 8	A. I. C.	Home	3:00
Apr. 9	Northeastern (2)	Home	1:00
Apr. 12	Boston College	Away	3:00
Apr. 13	Holyoke Millers (exhibition)	Home	2:00
Apr. 14	Springfield	Away	3:00
Apr. 16	New Hampshire (2)	Away	1:00
Apr. 19	Dartmouth (2)	Home	1:00
Apr. 21	Fairfield	Home	3:00
Apr. 23	Maine (2)	Home	1:00
Apr. 27	South. Mass. Univ.	Home	3:00
Apr. 28	Bridgeport	Away	3:00
Apr. 30	Rhode Island (2)	Home	1:00
May 4	Connecticut (2)	Away	1:00
May 6	Springfield	Home	3:00
May 7	Providence (2)	Away	1:00
May 9	Connecticut	Home	3:00
May 11	Amherst	Away	3:00

Women's lacrosse

Apr. 16	Northeastern	Home	1:00
Apr. 19	Smith	Away	4:00
Apr. 21	Williams	Home	3:00
Apr. 23	Rhode Island/Cortland	Away	11:00
Apr. 27	Bridgewater St.	Away	3:00
Apr. 30	New Hampshire	Away	11:00
May 3	Mt. Holyoke	Away	3:00
May 5	Plymouth	Home	3:00
May 7-8	N.E. Women's Lacrosse Assoc. Tourn @ Williams
May 10	Springfield	Home	4:00

JV women's lacrosse

Apr. 21	Williams	Home	4:15
Apr. 23	Rhode Island	Away	2:15
Apr. 27	Bridgewater St.	Away	4:15
May 3	Mt. Holyoke	Away	4:00
May 5	Plymouth	Home	4:15
May 10	Worcester	Home	3:00

Men's track

Apr. 2	Boston/Northeastern	Home	1:00
Apr. 6	Holy Cross	Away	2:00
Apr. 13	Rhode Island	Home	3:00
Apr. 16	UMass Relays	Home	10:00
Apr. 22-23	Boston College Relays	B.C.
Apr. 29-30	Penn Relays	@ Philadelphia, Pa.
May 7	YanCon Championships	@ UMass	11:00
May 14-15	New Englands	@ UMass	10:00

JV men's lacrosse

Apr. 6	Yale	Home	3:00
Apr. 16	Naval Acad. Prep	Home	2:00
Apr. 23	Williams	Away	2:00
Apr. 29	Dean Jr. College	Home	3:00
May 7	Harvard	Away	2:00
May 11	Brown	Away	3:00

Varsity softball

Apr. 1	Central Conn.	Home	3:00
Apr. 5	U. of Lowell	Home	3:30
Apr. 14	Rhode Island	Away	2:00
Apr. 16	Keene St.	Home	1:00
Apr. 19	Westfield St. (2)	Home	2:30
Apr. 21	Springfield	Away	2:30
Apr. 23	Connecticut (2)	Away	11:00
Apr. 25	Bridgewater St.	Away	3:00
Apr. 30	Boston St. (2)	Home	1:00
May 3	Southern Conn.	Away	3:00
May 5	New Hampshire (2)	Away	3:30
May 7	Vermont (2)	Home	1:30
May 10	Springfield	Home	2:30

Women's golf

Apr. 23	Rhode Island	Home	1:00
May 6-7	Lady Lion Tournament	@ Penn State

SPECIAL CREDITS

Layout — Rich Eckel, Russ Smith, Judy Van Handle
Paste-up — P. J. Prokop, Judy Van Handle
Front and back cover photos — Jay Saret
Centerfold photo — Jim Higgins
Cover design — Randy Glenn
Special thanks — Ware people

Varsity tennis

Apr. 6	Williams	Away	3:00
Apr. 8	Tufts	Home	3:00
Apr. 14	M. I. T.	Home	3:30
Apr. 19	Holy Cross	Away	3:00
Apr. 23	Central Conn.	Home	2:00
Apr. 24	Boston College	Home	2:00
Apr. 26	Springfield	Away	3:00
Apr. 28	SUNY @ Albany	Home	3:00

Women's track

Apr. 5	UConn/Vermont	@ UConn	2:30
Apr. 16	UMass Relays	Home	10:00
Apr. 23	Cent. Conn./Boston U.	Home	1:00
Apr. 29	Univ. of Vermont/U.R.I.	Home	3:00
May 14	Albany Invit.	Away	10:00

Men's golf

Apr. 19	Salem St./Amherst/ Dartmouth	@ Amherst	1:30
Apr. 21	Boston College/Holy Cross	Home	1:00
Apr. 24-25	Salem St. Tournament	Away
Apr. 28	Mass. State Tournament	Stowe, Mass.
May 5-6	New Englands	Pleasant Valley Sutton, Mass.

JV baseball

Apr. 13	Berkshire C.C.	Home	3:00
Apr. 15	Connecticut	Away	3:00
Apr. 17	Quinsigamond C.C. (2)	Away	12:00
Apr. 19	Dartmouth (2)	Home	1:00
Apr. 23	Westfield St. JV (2)	Home	1:00
Apr. 26	Holyoke C.C.	Away	3:30
Apr. 30	Springfield (2)	Home	1:00
May 1	Westfield St. JV (2)	Away	1:00
May 5	Leicester J.C.	Home	3:00
May 7	Springfield (2)	Away	1:00

JV softball

Apr. 14	Rhode Island	Away	3:30
Apr. 16	Keene St.	Home	2:30
Apr. 19	Smith	Home	3:30
Apr. 21	Springfield	Away	4:15
Apr. 25	Bridgewater St.	Away	4:45
May 3	Southern Conn.	Away	4:45
May 10	Springfield	Home	4:15

Tennis

Singles solid again

By MIKE SMOLENS
Collegian Staff

Not much has changed for the UMass men's tennis team since last fall's Yankee Conference competition. Once again depth and experience are the dominant characteristics of UMass singles. And once again erratic UMass doubles could prevent the team from having a highly successful season. The glaring difference between the spring and fall seasons is the schedule.

"It's definitely tougher," said UMass coach Bill Brown. "Although the Yankee Conference was unusually good last fall, it was just a warm-up. We're all working toward the spring."

Tougher, indeed. Last spring UMass (4-4) lost to four of the eight teams on this year's schedule; Tufts, M.I.T., Boston College and SUNY Albany.

Last fall the Minutemen finished the regular season with a 3-2 record and, despite some spectacular play in the Yankee Conference Championships by Alan Green, Rickey Sharton and Steve Heyl, UMass finished second behind UNH.

Unlike the fall, when the regular season record has no bearing on the championships, the Minutemen's spring record will determine their placement in the New England Championships at Amherst College in May.

This spring UMass' strength lies in its six singles positions. Last fall the Minutemen never lost the singles competition. At worst the Minutemen would lose three solo matches — and that only happened twice. The spring singles lineup is identical to last fall's, but the lineup is by no means stable. A few talented new faces have the potential to break into the singles positions.

Freshman Adam Rosen and sophomore Alan Green, at first and second singles, are both experienced tournament players. Their talent puts them head and shoulders above the rest of the team. Rosen and Green are also the first doubles team.

Rosen is a tall, powerful, and aggressive player whose ground strokes and net game are equally devastating. His serve, which intimidated many opponents last fall, can be awesome. Rosen's 5-2 fall record hinted of inconsistency as he lost to Vermont's Peter Cooper in two sets at the Yankee Conference championships in Maine. Earlier in the season Rosen outclassed Cooper in a two set victory.

Rosen has worked hard throughout the winter and early spring at team practices at the Hampshire College bubble. He played in a tournament over spring break and is anxious to play Martin Goldberg, a talented player with some impressive wins under his belt, when Williams comes to town for the season opener on April 6.

Rosen is a seasoned player and has traveled the country in tournament play. Last year he was ranked 14th in the East in the 18-and-under division.

Rosen's double partner, Alan Green, was the team's MVP last fall with a perfect 8-0. Green plays a quick serve and volley brand of tennis. His unblemished record answers all questions about his consistency. Green's health could be the key to the team's success early in the season. Stricken with bronchitis a month ago, Green went home to rest, only to catch a cold from his mother.

"It's a big question," said coach Brown about Green's condition. "Right now it's the biggest worry of the season."

Third and fourth singles will be played by Barnaby Kalan, a senior, and sophomore Jimmy Barnhart, according to Brown. Together they comprise the second doubles team.

Both Kalan and Barnhart hit the ball with picture book form. If you want to learn how it's done, watch these two. Despite their form, however, Kalan and Barnhart had mediocre seasons last fall with identical 3-3 records. Coach Brown has faith in these two and hopes they will get their games under control for a consistent season.

Sophomore Rickey Sharton is expected to play fifth singles, but could shake Barnhart or Kalan from their positions. Sharton, 7-1 last fall, won the fifth singles division at the Yankee Conference Championships. Sharton said he had the potential to move up in the ranks, but he wasn't sure if he could do it this spring. Sharton and Steve Heyl comprise the third, and last, doubles team.

Sophomore Steve Heyl will have a tough time keeping his job as the sixth singles player. He will have his hands full with competition from Dave Nowak and Dan Gallagher, two spares from last fall's team, and Oberlin College transfer Alan Stable and freshman Tom Karol. All four have played well in preseason practices and should give Heyl a run for his money. Stable, who played first singles at Oberlin, should be Heyl's toughest competition.

"There may be some changes (in the lineup)," Brown allowed, "but I doubt it. If Heyl gets playing the way he did in the championships, he'll be in there."

Last fall Heyl was 6-2 on the season and played some spectacular tennis at the conference championships to win the sixth singles division.

Brown will hold challenge matches throughout the season to allow players the opportunity to advance.

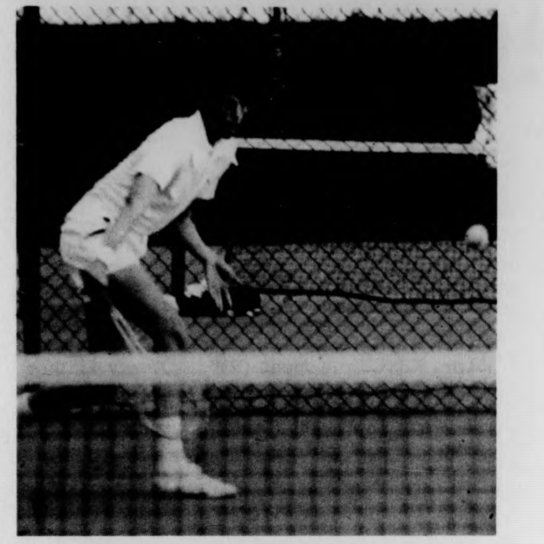
Despite the strength in singles, the performance of UMass doubles will be the decisive factor this spring. Last fall, faulty doubles play was responsible for the team's two losses. Against Rhode Island and New Hampshire the Minutemen were tied 3-3 after the singles competition. In both matches UMass failed to win two of the three doubles matches and wound up losing 5-4 to UNH and 6-3 to URI.

After these losses Brown made a few personnel changes and suddenly found himself with two doubles teams in contention for Yankee Conference titles. As it turned out, Sharton and Heyl won the third doubles division and Rosen and Green were runners-up in the first singles division.

"We're definitely going to work on doubles," Brown promised. Last year, he explained, schedule conflicts made it difficult for the doubles partners to practice together. This spring few conflicts exist, he said.

The tennis team will play its home matches on the windy Boyden upper courts, despite the option to play on the lower courts next to the rugby fields.

"The wind can be an advantage," Rosen said, "if you know how to use it. Some people will disregard a heavy wind and say 'I'll just play my own game and not worry about the wind.' But you just can't do that, no way. If you can adjust to the wind and use it effectively it can add to your game."



HOUSING EXEMPTIONS

Fall 1977 Housing Exemption Applications are due no later than April 8, 1977. Applications will not be accepted after this date. Please submit all applications to the housing office, 235 whitmore. Thank you.

In tomorrow's Collegian
Below The Salt
takes on a new identity
...see for yourself

Get Ready For TENNIS
FRAMES BY POP·HEAD
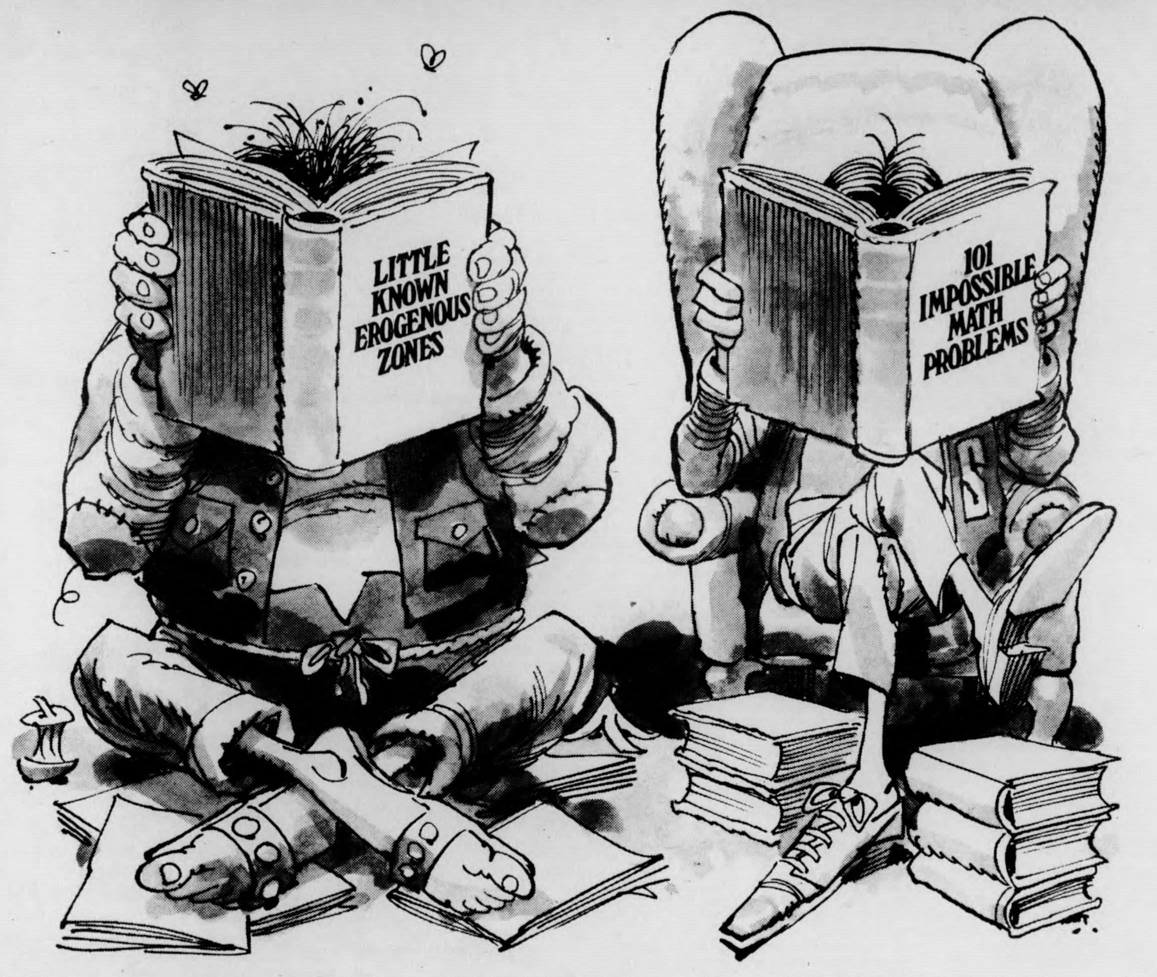
WILSON·DAVIS
BANCROFT
TENNIS SHOES BY Fred Perry
Now Featuring Warm-Up Suits by ZWICKEL
Custom Racquet Stringing and Repair
Laura Girard Shop
&
Empsall's Sport Shop
84-86 Green St.
BANKAMERICARD
USRSA Member

SCHMARTS vs. BRAINS



Make use of your useless knowledge in the First Annual (hopefully) Schmidt's Trivia Contest.

There are two kinds of intelligence. There's the kind that will make you famous, respected and a model to little children everywhere.

And there's Schmarts.

Well, the humanitarians at Schmidt's think your fun facts should do you some good, too. Ergo, the Contest.

Here's your chance to impress your friends, have more fun than you should on a week night, and maybe even win prizes.

So get ready for The Big One. You'll find all the details at your local pub, saloon or watering hole.

There's no purchase necessary.
Just skill.

Schmidt's
The beer that might make Philadelphia famous.

Veteran coach Fan Gaudette is hopeful that his duffers can once again qualify for the national tournament.

Adamson heads up men tracksters

By MIKE BERGER
Collegian Staff

Some people wonder what it takes to be elected captain of an athletic team. Is he elected because he is the most valuable member of the team? Or is it leadership, the ability to communicate, and the competitive edge that one person always seem to have?

The 1976-77 co-captains of the UMass outdoor track teams are Ken Adamson and Jim Hunt. According to head coach Ken O'Brien, no better choices could have been made.

"These two athletes are championship quality. You know that Kenny will always be in the running for first place in the long jump and Jimmy will likewise in the half-mile. These two kids will always give you a good performance in every meet and a great outing in championship meets," said O'Brien.

In this profile, co-captain Adamson will be featured. Sometime later this semester the other co-captain, Hunt, will be profiled.

Adamson, a psychology major, and senior, holds the present long jump records indoors and outdoors. Indoors, Adamson holds the record at 23'8 and also 23'10¼ in outdoor competition. In 1975 Adamson was the indoor Yankee Conference champion and was runnerup in the outdoor New England championship meet.

This year due to strained ligaments in his knee, Adamson was unable to compete consistently. He was ranked fourth in New England prior to indoor Yankee Conference and New England championships.

"This year, I have been hampered by the ligaments in my knee. It's described as small parts of the muscle being torn away from the bone. It's a nagging type of injury which comes and goes but over the last few weeks, it's been feeling a lot better. I'm ready to go again," Adamson said.

TURN TO PAGE 13

URBAN AFFAIRS IN NEW YORK CITY

Where else to pursue graduate work in Urban Affairs than in New York City?

The Department of Urban Affairs at Hunter College, CUNY offers such an opportunity and is still accepting applications for admission for Fall,1977. The M.S. in Urban Affairs program is an intensive three consecutive semester, 36 credit program. It emphasizes urban policy analysis and urban program development and implementation through classroom work and extensive fieldworkopportunities with city agencies and community groups. WRITE: Director, Urban Affairs Program, Hunter College, Dept. of Urban Affairs 790 Madison Ave. New York, New York 10021 for information and application forms.

Financial aid, scholarships and fellowships are available.

Golf

YC champs?

By BOB HASKELL
Collegian Staff

The reluctant departure of the winter cold turns thoughts to lush green fairways, breath-taking doglegs and the natural high of making a side-hill 20-footer for a birdie.

Coach Fan Gaudette's crew is taking to the links in preparation for the upcoming UMass men's golf season, which will begin with a match on April 19 at The Orchards golf course in South Hadley. The match pits the Minutemen against the teams from Salem State, Amherst and Dartmouth.

According to Gaudette, the loss of co-captain Tim Diskin, who graduated in January, leaves the coach with a hole to fill in his starting lineup.

"We'll go with a five-man squad for most of our matches," said Gaudette. "Right now it looks like co-captain Bob Sanderson, Billy Locke, Jim McDermott and Flint Lincoln will be starting, with everyone else fighting for the fifth spot. Nothing's sewed up, though. We've got a lot of good prospects out this spring, and I'm gonna give them all a good look before I decide."

One top prospect Gaudette is looking forward to seeing is freshman Chris Hales, a Westminister native who was the District III schoolboy champ in Central Massachusetts last year.

Other hopefuls vying for that open spot in the linup are: Chuck Dempsey, Mark Powers, Vic Lahteine, Richard Marotta, and the brothers Duggan (Rick and Mark), and Casey (Jake and Phil).

The UMass team finished with a 7-1 record last spring, capping the season by winning the New England Division I Championship in May. The Minutemen have just come off a good fall season in which they won the overall New England championship. UMass' McDermott won the New England individual title in a playoff at that event.

The golfers' main objective this spring will be to win the New England Division I crown for the third straight time, thereby qualifying for the NCAA championships, which are scheduled to be held at Colgate this year.

"We didn't do well at the Nationals in Albuquerque last year," said Gaudette. "Our low qualifier in the New Englands, Glen Sullivan, turned pro before the Nationals, and that really hurt our chances. We want another shot at it this year."

So duffers beware! The UMass golfers will be out slogging through the mud this spring with those Nationals foremost in their minds.

Ah, spring. Dust off the old niblicks and mashies and head for the local course. Oh, and don't worry about the weather. If it snows, there's always the 19th hole.

HARRY CHAPIN
In Concert!
At Smith
J.M. Greene Hall
9:30 p.m.
$6.00
gen. admiss.
Tickets at:
TICKETRON-U.MASS
FACES OF EARTH-
AMHERST

POOR RICHARDS
Wednesday
50¢ for most drinks all night

FASTBACK FRISBEE®
APRIL 2-3
FREE FRISBEE

WORCESTER AND HAMPDEN SNACK BARS

FREE FRISBEE WITH YOUR GRINDER

while they last

SAVE-ON-TIRES, Inc. ROUTE 9, HADLEY 3 Miles from Northampton 3 Miles From Amherst

OPEN MON., TUES., WED. & FRI. 9-5:30, THURS. - 9 TO 8 P.M. SAT. 9 TO 4

FIRESTONE-MICHELIN-LEE-GENERAL-ARMSTRONG
B.F. GOODRICH — PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS

TIRES CASH 'N-CARRY Wholesale to the Public

If you need tires — before you buy elsewhere, see our prices that can't be beat!

4 PLY POLYESTER

LEE OF CONSHOHOCKEN TIRES First Quality

XL-200

SIZE	Sale Price
A78x13	$18.95
B78x13 C78x14	$20.95
E78x14 F78x14	$22.50
G78x14 G78x15	$23.50
H78x14 H78x15	$25.50
L78x15	$28.95

WHITEWALLS ONLY 77¢ MORE Plus F.E. Tax

DOUBLE STEEL BELTED RADIALS

First Quality 2-Steel-Plus 2-Polyester
Made By ARMSTRONG
• 78 SERIES • WHITEWALLS

BR 78 x13 $29.95 Each plus F.E.T.
DR 78x14, ER 78x14, FR 78x14 $36.95 each plus F.E.T.
GR 78x14, GR 78x15, HR 78x15 $39.95 each plus F.E.T.
LR 78x15 $45.00 each plus F.E.T.

FOREIGN CAR RADIALS First Quality

165x13, 165x14, 165x15 ONE PRICE ANY SIZE $28.95 Plus F.E. Tax

FIBERGLASS BELTED

Made by MAJOR U.S. TIRE MFGR. SAME QUALITY AS NEW CAR EQUIPMENT

WHITEWALLS

A 78 x 13 $22.50 Plus 1.77 Tax
B78x13, C78x13, C78x14 25.95 Plus F.E.T.
E 78x14, F78x14, G78x14, G78x15 28.95 Plus F.E.T.
H78x14, H78x15, J78x15, L78x15 32.95 Plus F.E.T.

40,000 MILE WEAR GUARANTEE

MICHELIN X FOR AMERICAN CARS

STEEL RADIAL

WHITEWALLS	REPLACES	Reg. Price	Sale Price	FET
165x13	A78x13	59.17	44.38	1.77
175x13	B78x13	62.66	46.99	1.99
175x14	C78x14	66.37	49.78	2.13
185x14	E78x14	71.17	53.38	2.30
195x14	F78x14	75.46	56.59	2.51
205x14	G78x14	81.67	61.25	2.66
215x14	H78x14	88.81	66.61	2.95
205x15	G78x15	86.40	64.80	2.84
215x15	H78x15	91.70	68.78	3.13
225x15	J78x15	95.56	71.67	3.29
230x15	L78x15	109.04	81.78	3.33

MICHELIN ZX IMPORTED AND SPORTS CARS BLACKWALL TUBELESS

STEEL RADIAL

Size	Reg. Price	Sale Price	F.E. Tax
155x12	45.53	34.15	1.39
145x13	41.69	31.27	1.23
155x13	46.60	34.95	1.48
165x13	51.77	38.83	1.61
175-70-13	58.75	44.06	1.72
185-70-13	65.01	48.76	1.95
165x14	56.97	42.73	1.70
175x14	59.82	44.86	2.01
185x14	62.37	46.78	2.24
155x15	54.59	40.94	1.66
165x15	60.45	45.34	1.82
175x15 Wht	82.04	61.53	2.18

MADE BY PIRELLI FIRST QUALITY
560x15 VW
18.95 ea. + F.E.T.

REGULAR RECAPS
YOUR CHOICE - ANY SIZE
14.95 ea. Plus F.E.T.
WHITEWALLS only 77¢ more.

WIDE TRACKS
HI PERFORMANCE - DOUBLE GLASS BELTED "SUPER PROWLER" - RAISED WHITE LETTERS

SIZE	REG. PRICE	SALE PRICE	F.E. TAX	TIRE WIDTH
F60x14	51.19	38.95	2.82	8.25"
G60x14	53.41	39.95	3.07	8.25"
L60x14	60.14	42.95	3.56	10.25"
G60x15	54.30	39.95	3.08	8.25"
L60x15	62.06	45.95	3.70	10.25"
A70x13	40.88	28.95	1.96	6.00"
E70x14	44.06	32.95	2.47	6.75"
F70x14	46.24	34.95	2.61	7.00"
G70x14	47.70	35.95	2.78	7.25"
H70x14	51.33	39.95	3.04	7.25"
G70x15	48.77	36.95	2.84	7.25"
H70x15	51.96	39.95	3.08	7.50"

Tested by "Car and Driver Magazine" As The Highest Scorer Of All The Non-Radials

SAVE-ON-TIRES, INC.

ROUTE 9 HADLEY
Cash and Carry or BankAmericard Master Charge
586-2544

HOURS
MON. thru FRI. 9 to 5:30
SAT. 9 to 4
THURS. 9 to 8 p.m.

1 MILE WEST ON THE SAME SIDE OF RTE. 9 FROM HADLEY DRIVE IN THEATRE

★ Ovalteam's leader

CONT. FROM PAGE 12

The tall, muscular Adamson who has a fairly long stride, came to UMass a much-heralded athlete. Adamson was a standout at Natick High in the low hurdles, the triple, and long jump. He was Class A state champ in the triple jump and runnerup in the low hurdles championship. With a time of 19.4, Adamson tied the state record in the 80-yard low hurdles and holds the Bay State High School 50-yard dash record at 5.4.

Adamson, who has run the 50, 60, and 100-yard dash here, is timed at 5.4, 6.3 and 9.9 respectively.

"Kenny's great sprinting ability combined with his long stride make him a natural sprinter. He is an extremely versatile athlete," said O'Brien.

"We have used him sparingly in the sprinting events because we didn't want to jeopardize his long jump potential. Because when he is healthy, he definitely is one of New England's best long jumpers," added O'Brien.

"Track, according to Adamson, is an individual sport. It's a sport where you, alone, make it to what you want it to be. Unlike other major sports like football and basketball, your success is based on individual output."

According to Adamson, "Track is not a prestigous sport but it's feelings of achievement can be overpowering at times."

Adamson's brother Bob, a 1976 UMass graduate, was Yankee Conference champion in the triple jump, and there's always been competitive spirit between both brothers.

"Bob and I always used to kid each other about who was going to do better in the long or triple jump. But each other pressuring on each other always improved one another. That's the way track is, you have to have keen competition to improve," said Adamson.

Adamson looks forward to the outdoor season because for the first time since the snow and cold hit Amherst, Adamson will have the opportunity to use adequate facilities to jump.

"Winter is a bad time for our indoor team. We didn't have good facilities and we had a lot of people hurt. We do have the talent this outdoor season to do very well in championship meets. Perhaps even second in the New Englands. You cannot be but optimistic for this outdoor season," said Adamson.

"I have never seen Adamson have a bad day," said O'Brien. He will always be at the top all the time. Kenny is the mark of a championship caliber athlete."

★ Crewwomen all set

CONT. FROM PAGE 14

and over intersession, and it seems to be paying off."

Each race during the spring is a set distance, 1500 meters, which takes about five and a half minutes to complete.

UMass' first meet is Saturday at Brown. The season's highlight will be on May 12-14. The crew will compete that weekend in the Dad Vail in Philadelphia.

"We have a very real chance of winning it," Frost mused. "Our real shot is to win in Philadelphia, and then make a good showing in Worcester."

The Worcester race Frost referred to is the Eastern women's sprints, which are slated to take place May 15.

"Although they're called the Eastern sprints, they're very close to the National championships," Frost said. "The powers like Yale and Wisconsin will be there."

Stamina will play a big part in UMass' showing in Worcester, since it will be coming off the three-day Dad Vail competition.

UMass women's crew is a club sport, although it does get funding from the athletic department.

★ Softballers hopeful

CONT. FROM PAGE 6

pleased with the conditions due to the absence of a backstop. She is presently looking for an alternative game site.

It appears that the UMass softball team will be a unit to be reckoned with in 1977. It is a young team with an abundance of talent and determination. It's going to be a long season, but with two qualified coaches at the helm and players dedicated to hard work, the Minutewomen should make the experience worthwhile.

YOU SHOULD DROP BY

UNIVERSITY PIZZA

If you can answer yes to more than three of these questions
1. Can you watch T.V.
2. Can you play pinball
3. Pay less and get more than anywhere in town
4. Bring 100 friends and have room for more
5. Drive or walk less distance from campus than any other place in town
6. Enjoy food more in a relaxing atmosphere
7. Enjoy more variety
8. Meet more people

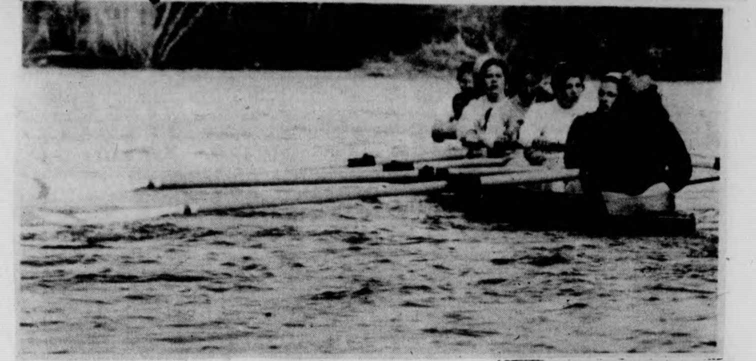
549-5592

P.S. Enjoy an ice cream cone or sundae

Crew

Men river-bound...

By BILL CARRINGTON
Collegian Staff



The cumulative efforts of six months of intense training will come to a head on April 9 when the UMass men's crew team opens its season against Marist College on the Hudson River in New York.

The crew practices on the water from September to November, followed by grueling indoor workouts which included running stairs in the Grad Research towers, weight lifting, and calisthenics, to name just a few. This winter training session lasted up until just recently, when the weather permitted the return to the Connecticut River. The previous six months were spent in preparation for five races to be held this spring which will last about seven minutes apiece.

Although the spring is really the racing season for rowing, UMass did compete in some races during the fall. Several boats made an excellent showing in The Head of the Charles, and a UMass four had an impressive victory in the Frostbite Regatta in Philadelphia.

On April 9, UMass will compete in its first spring race against Marist in Poughkeepsie, NY. Then the crew travels to Hartford, to race Trinity College on the 16th of the month. The UMass-Trinity race has always been intense, as these two teams have become arch-rivals.

On April 30, UMass goes up against Williams and defending Division II champion Coast Guard Academy in a three-boat race in Ware. May 7 finds UMass at the New England Invitationals in Worcester. UMass won every event that it entered in this regatta three years ago, but has not competed there since. This season the team hopes to repeat its impressive performance.

The season comes to a close on May 13-14 at the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia, which is the Division II championships. Last year, one of 47 schools entered, UMass took four second places out of the six events that it entered.

Varsity coach Kurt Betchick expects the crew to do well this year. "We have a good number of top quality people. The material is there. I expect that we will finish among the top of our division," he said.

Returning from last year's varsity will be: Mike Melvin, Steve Frackleton, Frank Miconi, Dave Kumlin, Mike Partrige, Dick Dunne, and Rick Edwards. Senior Mark Lyle will be varsity coxwain.

Only three of last year's frosh are still rowing. They are: Jim Clair, Dave Rubin, and Mark Bouziaris. In addition to them, nine new men bring the total to 19 oarsmen. Lineups have not been made yet, but it is expected that there will be two eights; varsity and junior varsity.

The outlook for the freshman team looked dismal this year until February. The frosh were left with only seven men and no coach. Alumnus Steve Loomer assumed the coaching responsibilities after the previous coach, Hank Cullen, joined the Navy.

Loomer recruited 13 new frosh. The spring outlook will depend on how quickly the new group of recruits can learn how to row, since freshmen are usually taught how to row in the fall. Coach Loomer expects the first few races will be a learning experience.

"Dad Vail championship hopes are realistic, though, and very definitely attainable — all boats entered should qualify for the finals," he said.

...women turn tide

By JUDY VAN HANDLE
Collegian Staff

The UMass women's crew team enters its 1977 spring season with a young squad, a winter's worth of work behind it, and an optimistic outlook for its six-meet schedule.

Coached by Doug Frost, an undergraduate Finance major, the crew has been working out all winter in preparation for its spring season.

"Since November, the team has been lifting weights and running the 20-story Grad Research Center tower stairways," Frost said.

During the fall, the crew had one race, the Head of the Charles, in which it placed 19th out of 40 boats.

"The purpose of fall crew is to mainly take out new people and teach them the sport," Frost said.

He added that the crew which competed in the Head of the Charles race was full of "old-timers", and wasn't "necessarily the best team we had. We did it as a gesture to thank them," Frost explained.

The spring roster has 25 members on it, which is enough for a varsity and junior varsity eight, and a novice four and pair.

"We got on the water March 17," Frost said. "We have a big crew in terms of height and strength."

The coach has weeded out the candidates and has settled on a varsity eight for at least the first few meets.

The cox will be Faye Bluementhal, while the stroke is set to be Laura Love. The seven through two rowers are, in order: Joanne Andreas, Ginny Peebles (of women's basketball fame), Deb Quinn, Maureen O'Brien, Robin Willworth, and Susan Bassett. In the bow will be Betty Howley.

According to Frost, the cox serves as a second coach to the crew.

"The cox steers the boat. She has control of the rudder. She also has to constantly coach the crew and correct it. She has complete command of the boat," Frost said.

"The cox has to get the eight people coordinated and has to have the respect of the crew," he added.

The stroke also serves an important function to the crew, Frost said.

"The stroke sets the cadence. The rest of the crew follows her."

Since the team has returned to the water, Frost is impressed with what he has seen.

"I'm very, very pleased with what they've done," he said. "They did a lot of work in the winter months

TURN TO PAGE 13

T.A. APPLICATIONS RHETORIC PROGRAM

During the month of April the Rhetoric Program, including its ESL Component, will be interviewing qualified applicants for teaching assistantships. We require that each applicant fill outan application (which may be obtained in 305 Bartlett), submit three letters of recommendation especially addressing the applicant's potential as a teacher of rhetoric. submit an extensive sample of his/her writing (expository or argumentative prose). During April, applicants will be interviewed by at least two members of the Program's senior staff. Deadline for complete applications is April 30. Each one hired will need to be certified a "student in good standing" by his/her graduate degree department.

All first year teaching assistants are required by contract to participate in the Program's extensive teacher training workshop series, to participate in a video tape/counseling program, and to participate in our course/teacher evaluation program.

The Rhetoric Program is, as is the University, an Equal Opportunity Employer

STYLES BY DEBORAH
ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL
OUR VERY BEST UNIPERM REG $30.00
NOW ONLY $22.50 COMPLETE WITH
CUT & STYLE FOR MEN AND WOMEN.
OUR STYLISTS WILL SHOW YOU HOW
TO PROFESSIONALLY STYLE YOUR
OWN HAIR. STYLE CUT ONLY $5.00
CALL 549-5610 FOR APPT.

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
NOW at 7:00 & 9:00
(only area showing)

a film by
— françois truffaut
small change
No Dollar Nights
This Program!

DO YOU KNOW ABOUT
TEL AVIV UNIVERSITY
ACADEMIC PROGRAMS FOR AMERICAN AND CANADIAN STUDENTS

STUDY

COURSES TAUGHT IN ENGLISH
Main disciplines: Middle Eastern Studies
Visual and Performing Arts
Liberal Arts & Humanities
Judaic Studies
Accreditation: . . Program accredited by American Universities

ENJOY

Enjoy an enriching life experience studying and maturing in the expansive environs and facilities of modern Tel Aviv University, situated in a vibrant, cosmopolitan city . . . a cultural center. Enjoy the within walking distance beach, and the program provided trips to Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Hebron, etc. Enjoy the new sports center, olympic pool, tennis and basketball courts, track and soccer stadium. Truly, there is so very much to complement your serious academic program to make your stay at the university most enjoyable and memorable.

SAVE..

Tuition: . . . . . . $1400 for one year
$700 for one semester
Dormitory: . . . . $270 for one year
$120 for one semester
Living: . . . . Estimated living expenses
$100 per month
Total Package: $3600, includes travel, tuition, dormitory, living expenses for one year.

CALL TOLL FREE 800-223-7419
American Friends of Tel Aviv University, Inc. 342 Madison Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10017

Hurlers bolster Minutemen hopes

By JOHN LOWNEY
Collegian Staff

Thirty-seven games in less than two months, as many as seven or eight contests each week, eight doubleheaders — yes, UMass will be playing a typical northern collegiate baseball schedule.

A concentrated baseball schedule, whether it be on the professional, collegiate, or Little League level, creates the need for pitching depth. No pitcher, whether he specializes in knuckleballs, fireballs or beanballs, can work several complete games a week without ruining his arm.

If there is one area in which the Minutemen have particular depth and experience, it is in their pitching staff. A highly regarded freshman and a couple of promising members of last season's 18-1 junior varsity team join five veterans to give UMass one of its best staffs in years.

"We'll need six pitchers working for us," said coach Dick Bergquist, "with all the doubleheaders this season. Fortunately, our pitching staff could be one of the best in this part of the country."

The Minuteman pitching staff represents many styles and backgrounds. There are flame throwers and control artists. There's a potential freshman sensation and a four-year starter. There are potential stars lacking maybe one pitch and a man who exceeded all expectations last year.

Tom Nigro is the pitcher who surprised everyone last season. The junior righthander was projected as a top reliever last year, but he developed into the most consistent hurler on the staff.

Nigro's biggest asset is his control, as he has as much confidence in his slider as in his fastball. Described by Bergquist as "a good thinking pitcher who won't get himself into trouble," Nigro compiled a 7-1 record with a team-leading 1.78 earned run average last season.

Coach Bergquist is also counting on a big season from righthander Jeff Reardon. "He tends to be overpowering at times," said Bergquist, "and if he can consistently put the ball where he wants it, he could be one of the top pitchers in the East."

Reardon, who has led the Minutemen in strikeouts for three straight years, also was tops on UMass in innings pitched last season. If he can avoid the back problems which have recently given him trouble, he should improve upon last season's 6-5 record.

Jerry Erb, a native of Dalton like Reardon, has the "best breaking ball I've seen in college," according to Bergquist. The senior righthander must consistently control his curveball to be more effective.

Doug Welenc, a freshman with unusual confidence in both his fastball and his breaking ball, should fit in as the fourth starter. He led Greenfield High to success in the state playoffs last year.

Two other possibilities as starters are lefthander Dave Stoller and righty Pete Rankowitz.

★ Diamondmen face busy slate

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

looking forward to this year.

"Last year we split with URI and I really respect them," he added.

Providence, Holy Cross, Boston College and Fairfield should all be strong this year. Providence had been missing from the UMass schedule the past couple of years due to complications in scheduling, but is back and slated to face the Minutemen in a doubleheader at Lorden Field.

"Providence looks strong," Bergquist predicted. "They have a good program and we're glad to have them back on our schedule."

Holy Cross will be a strong club as it will be boosted by some outstanding freshmen, led by shortstop Ron Perry of basketball fame. If Perry plays the infield as well as he handles a basketball, he should be something to watch.

Another Crusader to look for will be Rick Jasinski, a second baseman-pitcher, who had a fine season playing for Harwich of the Cape Cod League last summer.

Boston College and Fairfield might pull some surprises this season.

"BC is capable of doing something this year," predicted Bergquist. "Last year they didn't do much. Fairfield was expecting more last year, so maybe this is the year they will put it together."

An added attraction will be an exhibition game with the Eastern League Holyoke Millers, a farm club of the Milwaukee Brewers. This will be the first time that UMass will play an exhibition game with a professional outfit, and Bergquist feels it will be a good experience for the team.

One thing that might be a factor is the weather. Although spring started on March 20, Mother Nature doesn't always see fit to cooperate.

"It's something you have to live with," said Bergquist. "Other teams have to play under the same conditions, too," he added. "We've probably got it better than teams like Maine, UNH, and Dartmouth."

Something that does concern Bergquist, though, is the early finish date. The regular season winds up on May 11, when the Minutemen face Amherst College.

"We have a very concentrated schedule," said Bergquist. "One thing that can really raise havoc with it is injuries, but hopefully we can stay healthy."

If the team does stay well and things hold true to form, it should be an interesting baseball season for the UMass nine.

DISCOVER THE GALAPAGOS ISLANDS
This summer visit these fabled islands - a must for naturalists and photographers. Four days spent in Quito, Ecuador; one week cruising & exploring, etc. For this & other unique tours write or phone for brochure
OONAGH CHAMBERS
New England Representative
Hanns Ebensten Travel, Inc.
18 Whiting Farm Road
Branford, Conn. 06405
(203) 488-6433
Associate
Crossroads Travel
Old Lyme, Conn. 06371
(203) 434-5757

WARE FACTORY SHOE OUTLET
East Street Ware, Mass Phone 967-3683
Thousands of pairs of famous name shoes
ALL FIRST QUALITY!
Savings From
25% To 50% OFF
HURRACHI WEDGE
WIDE VARIETY OF STYLES AND COLORS
VALUE $20.00 OUR PRICE $14.97
Come shop at the Ware Factory shoe outlet and Save!

SPRING AND SUMMER TRANSPORTATION SPECIAL
1976
KAWASAKI KZ 400S
ONLY $895 DELIVERED

55 MPG.
AND ROOM FOR TWO
VALLEY MOTOR SPORTS
348 King St. Northampton
584-7303
EXPERT SERVICE, USED BIKES, BATAVUS & CIMATTI MOPEDS
MTWF:9-6 TH:9-9 SAT:10-4

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 112 THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1977

Collegian

Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts . Amherst, MA. 01003/ (413) 545-3500

Trustees may set tuition rates

By KEVIN J. CLAFFEY
Collegian Staff

State Representative James G. Collins (D-Amherst), yesterday assailed the Massachusetts State Legislature for trying to determine tuition bills for state system students.

"The House should not set tuition schedules," said Collins, "it should be left up to the Board of Trustees."

The House rejected a package Tuesday which would have increased tuition for state residents, but sent a proposal to increase tuition for out-of-state students to the House Ways and Means Committee.

The bills, submitted by House Minority Leader Francis W. Hatch Jr., (R-Beverly), would raise tuition for out-of-state students at UMass from $1300 to $2800, at community colleges from $882 to $1,329 and at state colleges, from $1,200 to $2,300.

Rep. Jonathan L. Healy (R-Charlemont) said, "We are getting ripped off in terms of what other states are charging us. We're subsidizing the students from out-of-state and they're chuckling at us."

Hatch claimed the measure would raise an additional $43 million for the state coffers, $21 million of which would be used to fund students who couldn't afford the raised tuitions.

Collins said combined costs for students at UMass are now about $3200 per year and are "beginning to be a luxury for the taxpayers who fund it."

He claimed Hatch's bill would raise these costs to "between $5,000 and $6,000 a year."

House Education Committee Chairperson Francis Metrango (D-North Adams), said half the students in the state's higher education institutions come from families with incomes of $12,000 or less.

A spokesperson for Hatch yesterday termed the House's action of sending the bill to the Ways and Means Committee "a victory for us." He said by getting the bill to the Ways and Means it was spared "sure death" in the House Committee on Education.

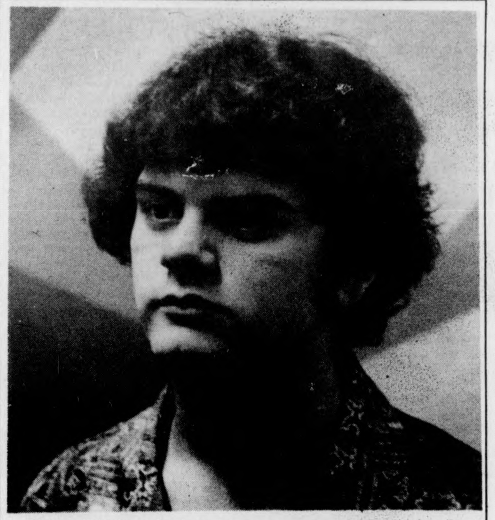
Collins is a member of the Education Committee.

Opponents of the legislation also claimed victory. Informed sources in the State House said the bill was sent to the Ways and Means Committee by House Speaker Thomas W. McGee (D-Lynn) to be killed.

Hatch contended that Massachusetts was subsidizing 3,900 out-of-state students to the tune of $3.5 million a year.

A Collegian telephone poll, conducted yesterday found tuitions in Massachusetts public universities lower than three other major New England public universities. The University of Vermont in Burlington charges out-of-state students $3,230 per year, the University of Connecticut in Storrs charges out-of-state students $2,180 and the University of New Hampshire in Durham charges $2,990.

The bill to raise resident's tuition from $480 to $1,300 was soundly thrashed in a vote on a House floor by a 187-33 margin.



Brian DeLima last night was re-elected for a second term as speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate.

DeLima, Kerrins re-elected

By BRAD GOVERMAN
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate voted last night to re-elect Brian DeLima and Tommy Kerrins to their respective offices, of speaker of the senate and senate treasurer.

DeLima defeated his two opponents Nick Korkoris and Jeff Kirpa 61-24 respectively. Kerrins defeated his only opponent Jay Milender 52-31.

Experience and diligence proved to be the deciding factors in the incumbant's election. His speech before the senate vote brought DeLima resounding applause from those attending the meeting. He emphasized his diligence and total commitment to the job and noted his past accomplishments.

"I've implemented many new programs since I took office. More importantly, last October there were no more than 30 senators. There are now over 100 active senators."

DeLima admitted to making mistakes but asked the senate for forgiveness.

"No one's perfect and I admit to making errors. As chair, part of your job is to say yes to some things and no to others. The fact that I've campaigned for Foley-Tyson does not mean I will treat Pinky (Batiste) and John (Hite) unfairly. The speakers job is more than a clerk. If we wanted a clerk we'd use a work study person."

Korkoris told the senate his main goal was "to work with all of you to bring honor and decency to student government."

Korkoris was disturbed by the lack of impartiality on the part of DeLima during actual Senate meetings.

"Partiality is contrary to the duties of the office outlined by the constitution. An opinion voiced by the Speaker carries more weight than that of an individual senator."

Korkoris was also disturbed about the lack of communication between the speaker and senators.

"I will do everything I can to significantly increase one to one communication within the senate. One way to do this is by instituting individual relations with all senators, not just big name senators," said Korkoris.

In response to the results Korkoris congratulated DeLima and said he would be happy to help him out in his next term as speaker of the senate.

Speaking before the senate incumbent Treasurer Kerrins pointed to the present status of the senates finances as his greatest qualification for his re-election.

"When we went before the Trustees we were operating a system that was attacked for its lack of credibility and shaky political situation. In the next few weeks we will be approaching the trustees as one of the most financially sound systems on campus," said Kerrins.

Co-President Jay Martus cited Milender's consistency, honesty

TURN TO PAGE 12

Tommy Kerins, also in his second term, was elected as the treasurer of the senate. (Photos by Dale Griswold)

Gov's agreement may mean raises

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

Salary increases for all University employes with the exception of faculty and related staff seem a near certainty with Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' agreement to submit an amendment to his budget package covering the costs of the raises by tomorrow.

Dukakis Wednesday agreed to submit the amendment, which provides $70 million towards salary increases of all state employees, after House Ways and Means Chairperson John J. Finnegan threatened to cancel budget hearings for fiscal year 1978.

University employes have been waiting since the February Board of Trustees meeting for the governor to release the necessary funds. The trustees approved both increases for faculty, staff and classified employes and the negotiated increases of several unions.

At that time Dukakis said he had a reserve of $32 million to finance the increases, but never released the funds. Since the trustees vote stated the increases would not be paid until the funds were released, no one has yet received the monies.

The Amherst organizer for the Massachusetts Teacher's Association (MTA), to which the UMass faculty union is affiliated, said the MTA's lobbyist is working for an amendment to the budget package ensuring a salary increase for UMass faculty and staff.

Ralph H. Flynn, MTA organizer said the timing of the faculty's decision to unionize has caused uncertainty over payment of the increases to the group, if the governor releases the funds.

The trustees vote is directed to non-union employes and employes receiving negotiated increases. Since the faculty and related staff subsequently voted to unionize, it is not clear if they will be considered as non-union employes or if they will have to wait for increases to be negotiated.

Flynn said the trustee vote to challenge the composition of the faculty union, has added more confusion. The trustees are objecting to the inclusion of department chairpersons, part-time faculty who have been teaching for three consecutive semesters, visiting faculty and faculty not receiving their salaries from state monies.

The faculty union's position has been they should receive the increases before negotiations begin.

inside

Four UMass administrators said they favor discontinuing all check cashing services on campus. See Sam Hassan's story, page 2.

Outgoing senate co-presidents Paul M. Cronin and Jay A. Martus are interviewed by Bernie Davidow. See story, page 3.

Dean of the School of Business Administration George S. Odiorne's resignation was made public. See Joe Quinlan's story, page 3.

Assassination committee is back in business ... See page 5
Message foulup could have caused 747 crash ... See page 6
Logan Airport gets a "black star" for safety ... See page 6

weather

Windy, but warm

if you weather the storm.

SU checks out, bursar may

By SAMUEL P. HASSAN
Collegian Staff

Four top UMass administrators said yesterday they favor the discontinuation of all University financed check cashing services and the establishment of a branch bank on campus.

The administrators are all members of the Principle Administration Officers (P.A.O.), an advisory group to Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery that supported the request by Campus Center Management to close Student Union check cashing facilities March 18.

The ultimate decision to close such facilities is made by Bromery.

In a Collegian telephone interview last night, Bromery said discontinuing all University financed check cashing, "May be a recommendation, but I haven't heard it yet."

Bromery said, "If we can get past the philisophical arguements and get to the practical side of the issue, we'll find that the best thing we can have on campus is an outside banking facility."

The Collegian has learned from a reliable administration source that the Bursar's office will no longer be classified as a student service thus eliminating remaining on-campus check cashing facilities next fall.

Bromery said last night that he had not yet made the decision to close remaining facilities, but added that, "There are those that will construe it as a mechanism to force the bank on students."

Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert L. Woodbury said, "With a tight budget situation, its tough for the University to absorb lossses for cashing checks."

All four PAO administrators cited the frequency of bad checks and the overall expense of providing a check cashing service on campus as reasons for discontinuing remaining services.

UMass Dean of Students and acting Campus Center Director William F. Field said, "The University is not very good in dealing with check cashing. One person ripped us off for $2700 in two weeks, and the money comes from student fees."

Kenneth H. Dean, an administrator with the Vice-Chancellor's office on special assignment in the Campus Center said the insurance policy for the three UMass campuses would have required the purchase of four new safes for the Student Union facility.

A cost of $10,000 per safe ultimately led to the March 18 closing, Dean said.

According to Dean Field, "The Umass Department of Public Safety said that it wasn't safe to have check cashing and all cash handling for the Campus Center-Student Union complex in the old Student Union cashiers window area."

Field said that an additional expense was incurred by the necessary hiring of a full time UMass Campus Police officer to patrol the area.

UMass Director of Personel John L. DeNyse said he favors a back on campus because, "A bank has the ability to write off losses that everyone incurs," while cashing checks.

Cuba symposium finishes tomorrow

By D.A. CLARK
Collegian Staff

A symposium on "The Elimination of Racism in Cuba and its Significance for Peoples Living in the United States," ends its three-day cultural-educational program Friday, April 1, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hampden Student Center in Southwest.

The program includes a dramatic presentation addressing racism and the anti-racist struggle, music, and a panel forum with three speakers.

The speakers will present an historical overview of racism and its elimination in Cuba. The significance this may have for people in the United States and the efforts for combating racism in our country will be included in the discussion.

Participating will be actress Valerie Stephens of UMass and Dean John Howard of State University of New York.

Howard, who recently returned from Cuba, will speak on "The History of Racism in Cuba" up to 1953.

Also participating is Dara Thorpe, from the Task Force on Racism for the Interfaith Council for Corporate Responsibility. Thorpe will discuss "Racism and the Elimination of Racism," and "Blacks in Cuba after the Triumph of the Revolution" from 1953 to the present.

Johnetta Cole, anthropologist and professor in the UMass Afro-American Studies program, will discuss what has happened in Cuba regarding racism, focusing on its significance for people working in the United States.

The program will close with a poetry reading by Andrew Salkey.

Jorge Medina lectures on Afro-Cuban music and the effects it could have on the elimination of racism in Cuba. (Staff photo by Marilyn Mankowsky)

Outing Club shack-led, and happy

By BOB JONES
Collegian Staff

The UMass Outing Club's (UMOC) dream of having its own cabin is now verging on reality according to Barbara Bartlett, chairman of the UMOC cabin committee.

"It's been a dream of the club for 15 years now and if everything goes real well we can start construction this June," she said.

Through the work of the club members, approximately $3400 in pledges has been received for purchase of the cabin, almost half of the total projected cost. The club plans to obtain the rest of the money in one of three ways; a loan from the SGA, a direct appropriation from the SGA or by operating the concession stand during the Spring Concert.

"From the pledges alone we can at least buy the land," said Bartlett, "but we can still use all the pledges we can get."

The UMOC cabin will be open to everyone in the UMass community for a modest fee according to Bob Keating, UMOC president. "Club members will have first priority but the purpose of the cabin is to have it occupied as much as possible and to generate as much revenue as possible."

Various plots of land near the north and northwestern side of the White Mountains have been looked at as possible cabin sites. The location is planned to be within close proximity of cross-country and downhill facilities, rock climbing and mountaineering areas. Bartlett said that the club should purchase the land within the next four to six weeks if all goes as planned.

The cabin itself has already been designed by Corey and Steve Jones, both UMOC members. The cabin is expected to hold up to 25 people and includes a fire place, kitchen and dining areas.

"We can use anyone to help build the cabin. It should be a good time," said Bartlett.

Break-ins plague Greeks

By ROBERT L. DAVIDSON
Collegian Staff

The president of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, Herbert J. Shepardson, reported to Greek Council an attempted break-in into the kitchen of his fraternity at its bi-weekly meeting last night.

Two other break-ins involving Greek Area houses have been reported to Greek Council in the last three weeks.

Shepardson said he was woken up on Tuesday night when he heard two kicks on the kitchen door of the fraternity and saw a person running across the parking lot at the rear of the building.

Shepardson said he woke another member of the fraternity after seeing the person in the parking lot. They went outside and saw a light-colored car pulling away from the parking lot of the apartment building behind the fraternity.

Shepardson said the lock on the kitchen door was destroyed. He said he replaced it yesterday with a stronger one.

Bowe said that the Board of Health had threatened to close Tau Epsilon Phi because of health code violations in its kitchen and the entire house was in disrepair.

According to Bowe, the fraternity was closed because of several internal problems relative to organization, coordination and direction, a serious decline in membership, financial instability, health and environmental problems and continuous problems with neighbors.

Bowe said that the national headquarters of the fraternity was trying to negotiate a sale of the building and property.

S. African talk Monday

The UMass Support Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa is sponsoring a teach-in on Monday, April 4.

The purpose of this all day teach-in is to educate the university community about the present situation in Southern Africa.

There are to be series of workshops, films and panel discussion throughout the day.

Speakers to be present are: David Sebeko - Pan Africanist Congress of Azania, Themba Vilakazi - African National Congress, Paul Irish and Prexy Nexbit - American Committee on Africa, Nana Seshibe - Pan Africanist Congress, Playthell Benjamin - former Professor in the UMass Afro-American Studies department, Beheki Langa - Moderator South African Support Committee.

Four profs speak on racism

BY MARY ELLEN LOWNEY
Collegian Staff

A special topics workshop, sponsored by the Center for Racial Understanding, was held last night at Moore House. The workshop consisted of four University professors with racism in the media as their main theme.

Julias Lester of Afro American Studies opened the series with a speech entitled "Mechanics of Racism", covering what he believes is the historical basis for racism.

The racial bias most whites have today, Lester explained, has its roots in 15th century England, when feudalism gave way to capitalism. Africans, who didn't value their money-making ideals, were considered sinful and consequently enslaved.

"Racism," said Lester, "is not an attitude toward blacks, but an attitude whites have toward themselves."

Ralph Whitehead of Journalistic Studies spoke on "Media Power and Political Power," beginning with post World War II and focusing on how capitalism has traditionally excluded minorities.

"Dollars work, and the people we're talking about don't have the capital," said Whitehead.

An historical account of minorities in the media was also given by Jon Crane of Communication Studies in his talk on "Ethnic Images and Television." Crane brought the subject up to date with comments on minorities as seen on the tube today.

"Although weekly shows like 'Sanford and Sons', 'The Jeffersons', and 'Good Times' depict the black experience to a certain extent, they are produced, written and directed by whites," Crane concluded.

'Awakenings' at CC

By LAURY ROBERTS
Collegian Staff

Fourteen workshops ranging from massage techniques to polarity balancing are being offered tomorrow and Saturday, April 1 and 2, in the Campus Center. The symposium, entitled "Awakenings", is being coordinated by Room to Move.

"We wish to provide the opportunity to experience some of the many alternative approaches to personal growth and community building," says Allen Gordon, Room to Move director.

The workshops are free of charge and no pre-registration is required. However, each group is limited to between 15 and 35 participants.

Community and university resource people and professionals, along with UMass counselors and doctoral candidates will lead the workshops which run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

Friday evening a Contra Dance will be held in the Cape Cod Lounge of the SUB and Saturday will be a night of disco at the same location.

FRIDAY

Taking Charge of Your Life, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m., CC 903, Limit 35

Psycho-Social Therapeutic Evolution, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m., CC 803, Limit 35

Video Techniques in Human Communication, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m., CC 805, Limit 15

Community Building - A Gestalt Approach, 1 p.m. - 4 p.m., CC 903, Limit 35

Massage Workshop, 2 p.m. - 5 p.m., CC 811, Limit 20

Male Sexual and Role Oppression, 2 p.m. - 5 p.m., CC 803, Limit 25

Women in Womens' Communities, 4 p.m. - 6 p.m., CC 805, Limit 3 15

SATURDAY

Different Perspectives on Re-Evaluation Counseling, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m., CC 803, Limit 35

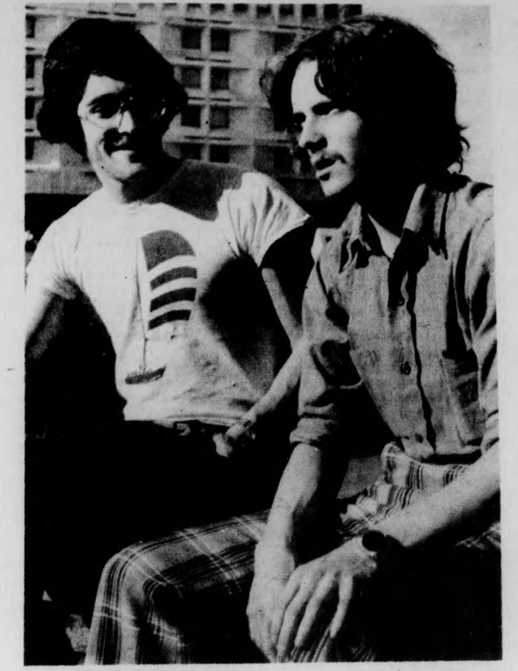
Psychodrama: An Introduction, 9 a.m. - 12 p.m., CC 805, Limit 25

Oppression and Cultural Development, 1 p.m. - 4 p.m., CC 803, Limit 40

Lover as Intimate Enemy (couples only), 1 p.m. - 3 p.m., CC 917, Limit open

Freedom from Self-Concepts, 2 p.m. - 4 p.m., CC 805, Limit 30

Introduction to Radical Therapy, 2 p.m. - 5 p.m., CC 808, Limit 25



Jay Martus and Paul Cronin, ex-copresidents of the student senate find time to reflect on a year of ardent service in the senate. (Staff photo by Dale Griswold)

SGA co-Presidents now just has-beens

By BERNIE DAVIDOW
Collegian Staff

The presidency of the Student Government Association (SGA) officially changed hands last night and Paul M. Cronin and Jay A. Martus are now "former" co-presidents.

"Quite frankly, I'm going to attempt to become a student again," Cronin said. "I'm just going to take a little time off."

Martus said now that the responsibilities of the office are off him he would like to take time out and "do some more outside activities. I want to do some sailing."

Martus and Cronin, who won the 1976 SGA presidential election with 55 per cent of the vote, said they would probably still be active in student affairs.

Cronin, who served as student trustee during his year in power, said he will at least continue to testify at the state budget hearings now going on in Boston.

"I think Jay and I have established recognition in the joint committee of education," he said.

Martus said he would also continue to testify and hopes to devote more time to the South African Support Committee, which is currently petitioning the University administration to sell its shares in industries taking part in South Africa's apartheid policies.

Both said they have confidence in the newly elected co-presidents, Jon A. Hite and Pinky Batiste.

They said Hite and Batiste will be able to continue to close the gap between financial aid and the rising cost of higher education. The new team, according to Cronin, should be able to continue to fight Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' plans to reorganize public higher education in the state which he says is "very closely tied to his budget allocations."

The candidates, who endorsed Hite and Batiste during the recent SGA presidential campaign, said they would be around to help the new presidential team get used to the office.

Hite is replacing Martus as campus president and Batiste is filling Cronin's role as student representative to the University Board of Trustees.

Cronin and Martus said although the line between the positions is not always clear, the duties of the self-appointed posts are quite different.

"The student trustee, because of the nature of the board (of trustees), is involved with more long-range, political and philosophical concerns," Cronin said. "The trustees are more concerned with the mission of the University; the macrocosm."

Martus said "the campus president gets more pressure on campus issues on a day-to-day basis," and he deals with the administration about specific issues.

"Jay was more the hatchet man," Cronin said. "I played the political games."

He said it's tough to be a full-time student and SGA president at the same time. "This job is so much a living experience."

Their advice to Batiste and Hite is "to promise themselves to get at least three meals a week, sleep four hours a night, and to occasionally go to class, and, on a more serious note, to remember the limitations of the office and of themselves.

Martus and Cronin said perhaps their most outstanding accomplishment was in developing a long-range plan to help students better enter free negotiations with the administrators and trustees. For example, they said the governor for the first time has included money in his budget proposal, $150,000, to hire an architectural firm to do a fiscal audit of the campus' dormitories. Thus the state is now taking the responsibility for funding dorm renovations, they said, where the students have always had to pay for them in the past.

Martus said students are now at a "crucial crossroads." Referring to the recent formation of a campus faculty union, Martus said, "students have to gain access to the bargaining table not as an observer and not as just a vocal participant. We have to be at full status at that bargaining table.

"We will be a bargaining unit, whether you call it SGA or union," Martus said.

Cronin estimated it would be 18 months to two years before students get to the bargaining table with UMass President Robert C. Wood's office and University faculty, but insisted students would be there.

"The students can't be bought off. The SGA is capable of entering any negotiations as an informed and intelligent party," he said.

SBA dean quits; sees fund misuse

By JOE QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

The resignation of the dean of the School of Business Administration (SBA), George S. Odiorne effective August 31, was made public yesterday by Dean David C. Bischoff of the Provosts Office in Whitmore.

Bischoff declined to comment about the reasons Odiorne gave him for stepping down from administration duties. He only called Odiorne "a valuable member of the community."

Other administrators who were to receive the letter, dated March 28th included Provost Paul L. Puryear, Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery, Vice-president Ernest A. Lynton, and President Robert C. Wood. None of them acknowledged seeing the letter.

While acknowledging good personal relations with Dean Bischoff and appreciation of Bischoff's understanding of SBA's problems, Odiorne "has been in unremitting disagreement with the way in which resources are allocated among units on campus."

Odiorne also refuses to be "further identified with an administration which stands incapable of shifting more than one-tenth of one per cent (.001) of its budget from places of low demand to places of extremely high demand over a three year period."

Odiorne then listed seven problems he feels have been the results of the alleged mismanagement:

—Twelve highly talented younger professors have been lured to major schools.

—At least one internationally known scholar has left in despair at the ravaging effects of the past four years fiscal support.

—SBA presently operates with over forty per cent of its classes taught by teaching assistants (TA's) rather than professors, dropping the school below standards of accreditation.

—SBA now employs numerous "adjunct" or part-time professors to cover classes.

—All administrators of the school teach heavy teaching loads, including the dean (Odiorne) who teaches nine hours.

—All members of our faculty teach nine hours, even though graduate school standards are that graduate faculty teach six hours load.

—SBA's salary structure for younger faculty is so rigidified by an artificial and capricipious policy that new faculty are hired at rates of $3000 above the salaries of faculty with three years experience. This is a wrongful and capricious policy which forces departure of the best young talent.

Odiorne underlined that these problems and similar ones in the other schools at UMass-Amherst — are not from "state funding but campus management."

"Under these circumstances," said Odiorne, "the best thing for me is to divorce myself from the administration for my own reputation."

Odiorne, who has been a dean at the state universities in New Jersey, Michigan,aand Utah, has published 14 books and 300 articles in the marketing field.

Odiorne plans to retain his teaching position in the SBA, not with the higher salary of a former administrator, but with a reduced professor's pay.

Correction

The Collegian yesterday inadvertently left out the details of Prof. Richard S. Ellis' $18,000 research grant. Ellis, who works in statistical mechanics and probability theory, received the grant from the Sloane Foundation for Basic Research. The money can be used for travel and supportive research. It was in the context of discussing the grant that Ellis' comments concerning supportive research came in yesterday's page two article.

Dance-dance-dance-cash

By ARNOLD WARSHAW
Collegian Staff

They probably won't be doing the fox trot or the old soft shoe, but nevertheless, the participants in this weekend's dance marathon will be dancing the night, as well as the day away.

Starting at 7 p.m. Friday and ending at 1 a.m. Saturday, the Hatch will be the scene as approximately 50 couples from the Five College area dance in the 30 hour marathon sponsored by Phi Mu Delta.

The goal of the marathon is to raise $2,000 to be used in fighting Multiple Sclerosis, in the Pioneer Valley. Multiple Sclerosis is a crippling disease which affects people between the teenage years and the early forties.

The people dancing will be sponsored by friends, relatives businesses and organizations for a certain amount of money an hour.

Participants will have an added incentive to go the full 30 hours, because the one couple who raises the most money will win two trips.

One partner wins a trip for two to London and the other wins a trip for two to Montego Bay in Jamaica.

There are groups that are sending a number of couples to the marathon, and the group that earns the most money wins $500.

Phi Mu Delta, has sponsored marathons for the last five years, and this year's chairperson, Bob Mahoney says that most of the people make it the whole way.

"It's not that tough," Mahoney said, "most people stay with it." Mahoney will be dancing himself and says that he expects "no problem" in hanging on till the end.

The participants do not actually dance 30 hours straight, as they get six hours sleeping time from 1-7 a.m. Saturday morning, and two 15 minute breaks during the rest of the day.

The Great Pretenders will be providing the music on Friday and Saturday nights and radio station WAQY will be playing the tunes during the day on Saturday as they broadcast from the Hatch.

Collins to give nuke talk

By PAT BEINER
Collegian Staff

Representative James G. Collins (D-Amherst) will discuss with citizens a bill to make the operation of nuclear reactors much safer today in the Jones Library Gallery at 4 p.m.

Currently, Mass PIRG representatives on campus hope Collins and Senator John D. Olver (D-Amherst) will decide favorably on it in the Boston State House next week.

Called the Nuclear Power Plant Safety Act (House 1200), the bill would raise insurance limits in case of nuclear accidents. Also, a new Nuclear Advisory Group would monitor waste disposal programs and the testing of emergency cooling systems. Finally, the Governor would publish and distribute evacuation plans which citizens would review every year.

PIRG, testifying before the legislature's Joint Energy Committee March 15, expressed support for nuclear power safety, emergency evacuation plants, storage of radioactive wastes, and insurance liability limits.

Though Committee Chairman Michael Lopresti indicated part of the bill would probably receive favorable Committee action, PIRG urges citizens to write committee members, particularly Lopresti, Collins, Thomas C. Norton (D-Fall River), and Andrew S. Natsios (R-Holliston) at the State House to give their support.

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor	Orville Wright
Assistant Issue Editor	Wilbur Wright
Logo Layout	Wright With Eversharp
Editorial Layout	I'd Rather Be Wright Than President
Sports Layout	Elmo Wright
Head Architectural Tech	Frank Lloyd Wright
Photo Staff	Now Hold Your Head Just Wright
Ad Layout	The Price Is Wright
Title IX Tech	Equal Wright
Little Known Person	Hector Wright
What You Do When Miss Lillian Stops Breathing	Wright Her Off

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Steven Perry, whiz-kid guitarist for Orchestra Luna, grimaces as he hits a high note. Tickets are still available for the band's concert here tomorrow night. (Photo by Cindi Therrien)

Orchestrated lunacy

CONCERT PREVIEW

By PHILIP MILSTEIN
Below The Salt Staff

If you've got plans for tomorrow night at eight, postpone them, cancel them, or bring them to the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Orchestra Luna, who've been absent from this area since February, are playing a one-shot concert there, and the insane April Fool's atmosphere should bring their orchestrated lunacy to its peak. Even if you've seen them five times before, this show remains one not to miss. And there are plenty of tickets still available.

Luna, however, is an intimate band who thrive on their one-to-one rapport with the audience. They project best when playing a small club, and as a result I worry how they will deal with the 2000-plus seat FAC auditorium, particularly the seats way up in the back of the hall. It will probably be to your advantage to spend the extra buck for the good seats.

Well, they asked for it themselves: this show grew out of a request to play the FAC made by Luna's leader Rick Kinscherf when they last played The Hatch. Members of John Q. Adams Lower and George Washington Middle dorms decided to take the band up on the offer, and made the arrangements for tomorrow's concert.

But Orchestra Luna is a thoroughly professional outfit, and will have to learn to play such-sized halls soon, if they ever hope to make it to the so-called big time. At any rate, it will be interesting to see just how they adjust to the size of this venue.

If you already plan on going tomorrow but have never seen Luna before, don't read the next paragraph; it is best to experience them for the first time not quite knowing what to expect. If you have seen them, there's no reason to read the next paragraph, since you already know what to expect. This next paragraph, then, goes out to all you who have not yet decided to see Luna tomorrow:

From the start, they are pure excitement. The four members of the band proper (Steve Perry: guitar; Chet Cahill: bass; Bob Brandon: keyboards; Ace Holleran: drums) bound onstage, all kinetic energy, and immediately roll into the first number. Midway through that opening song, the four singer-actor-dancers (Karla DeVito, Peter Barrett, Liz Gallagher, Rick Kinscherf) pop into the act, one-by-one. The set moves by rapidly. Most of the songs open with a short skit or monologue, sometimes rehearsed, sometimes ad libbed, always funny. The skits are wrapped around (and occasionally through) the songs, which combine elements of space-rock, fusion jazz, rocknroll, Broadway show music, etc.

First-time viewers rarely know what to think of Luna until the next morning, when they wake up with half the band's repertoire dancing through their cerebella. Whether to enjoy the songs as they are performed or to experience that wonderous morning-after recognition, Orchestra Luna is a must-see act like very few acts ever have been. And if you see them tomorrow, you will realize that this is no exaggeration.

Saturday the Rabbi will Passover

By MICHAEL SIMONS
Collegian Staff

Passover, the eight day holiday marking the freedom struggle of the Jewish people from slavery and their redemption from Egyptian bondage under Pharoh Rameses 2nd (approx. 1300 B.C.E.), starts Saturday evening and continues through April 10th.

After the tenth plague, the killing of all Egyptian first-born males and the Angel of Death passing over their homes, the Jews fled Egypt. They did not even allow themselves enough time to let their bread rise before fleeing.

To remind Jews of what happened that night, Jews refrain from eating any food during Passover made with leavening or yeast, such as bread. Instead, they eat Matzah, a cracker made with flour and water but without yeast.

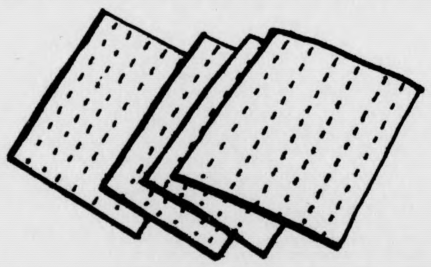
Preceding the first night of Passover, families all over the world clean their homes and change their dishes to rid the house of any leavening that might have been dropped or spilled during the year. The day before the holiday a special search is made in which pieces of bread are purposely left throughout the home so they can be found and a prayer said, telling God his commandment has been followed and the home has been rid of leavening.

During the first two nights of the holiday, a ritual meal is held known as the Seder. Seder means order and the entire meal follows a pattern handed down to Jews for over 2,000 years.

The entire Seder except for the actual eating is read from a book called the Haggadah. In recent years, many new Haggadadot have appeared such as the "Freedom Seder", the "Feminist Seder", the "Fourth World Haggadah" and the "Jewish Liberation Haggadah."

The table for Seder is set as a traditional Friday night meal, but in addition to the table cloth and the candles, wine is set in front of everyone. Cushions are placed on all the chairs, three matzhahs are set before the reader and a special Seder plate is set upon the table.

The Seder plate contains a hard boiled egg, a toasted lamb bone, greens, bitter herbs (usually horse radishes), salt water and a mixture of apples, cinnamon, nuts and wine mashed together called haroset. The haroset, which looks like clay symbolizes the clay used by the slaves to build the pyramids.



During the Seder, the youngest child who can read, asks the four questions.

Why is this night different from all other nights? Why do we dip our food twice, when on other nights we don't even dip our food once? Why do we sit leaning? Why do we eat Matzah and bitter herbs? The answers to these questions compose the story of the Haggadah and the redemption from Egypt.

Right before the actual eating, the middle of the three matzahs is broken and a piece is wrapped up and hidden somewhere in the house. This is called the Afikomen or desert. Following the meal, children in the house search for the Afikomen. The one finding it is allowed to redeem the Matzah for whatever he or she wants. The meal doesn't end until everyone at the Seder table tastes a piece of the Afikomen.

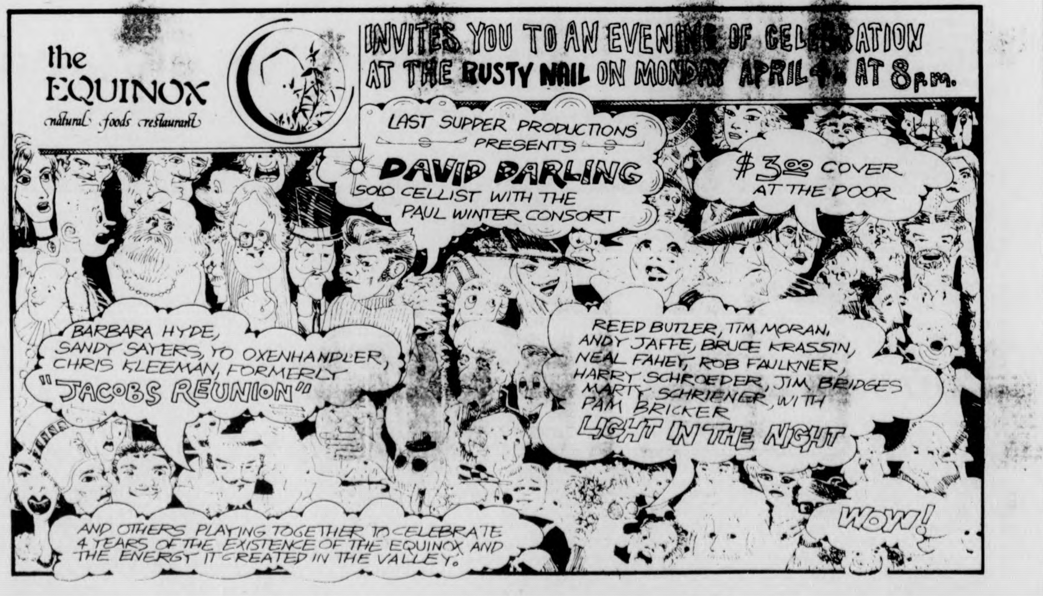
During the meal four cups of wine are consumed by the participants, but toward the end of the meal, a fifth cup is set for Elijah.

Elijah, a prophet of biblical times, is believed to go to the home of every Jew and someday will announce the arrival of the Messiah. The doors of the homes are opened, a prayer is said and Elijah comes in and drinks wine from the cup. The year the Messiah will arrive, Elijah will materialize and announce his arrival instead of drinking from the cup.

The Seder ends with all members saying they should be in Jeruselem next year, thus reaffirming the hope that someday they will all be together as in biblical times.

On campus, there will be a student-led Seder on Saturday night and a communal Seder led by the Hillel rabbi on Sunday. The cost for each Seder is an extra dollar over and above the cost of a Kosher meal or strip ticket, or $1.50 over and above the cost of a regular meal ticket. To reserve a place contact the Hillel office in room 302 Student Union.

The Seders as well as three Passover meals a day can be obtained at Hampden dining commons.



the EQUINOX
natural foods restaurant
INVITES YOU TO AN EVENING OF CELEBRATION AT THE RUSTY NAIL ON MONDAY APRIL 4th AT 8 p.m.
LAST SUPPER PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
DAVID DARLING SOLO CELLIST WITH THE PAUL WINTER CONSORT
$3.00 COVER AT THE DOOR
BARBARA HYDE, SANDY SAYERS, YO OXENHANDLER, CHRIS KLEEMAN, FORMERLY "JACOBS REUNION"
REED BUTLER, TIM MORAN, ANDY JAFFE, BRUCE KRASSIN, NEAL FAHEY, ROB FAULKNER, HARRY SCHROEDER, JIM BRIDGES MARTY SCHRIENER, WITH PAM BRICKER LIGHT IN THE NIGHT
AND OTHERS PLAYING TOGETHER TO CELEBRATE 4 YEARS OF THE EXISTENCE OF THE EQUINOX AND THE ENERGY IT CREATED IN THE VALLEY.
WOW!

House grants extension to assassination committee

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The House yesterday extended the life of its Assassinations Committee through the rest of the congressional term, giving it nearly two more years to investigate the murders of John Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr.

As the crucial vote approached, the panel's future seemed further clouded by the apparent suicide in Palm Beach, Fla., of a witness considered "crucial" to claims there may be new evidence on the Kennedy assassination.

Police said George de Mohrenschildt, 65, who described himself as a friend of Lee Harvey Oswald, was found dead of massive shotgun wounds to the head Tuesday.

Sheriff's Lt. Richard Sheets said late Wednesday Palm Beach Medical Examiner Dr. Gambino Cuevas has ruled De Mohrenschildt's death "a result of a self-inflicted wound — a suicide."

Jones Wilson, a Houston barbecue stand owner, carries a gun in his belt, as he plys his trade, because he wants to live as long as he can. (UPI)

Elegant cruise ship or luxurious car ferry...
...Karageorgis does it with style

No other cruise line offers more ancient sites, more modern excitement and unsurpassed luxury — and Karageorgis does it with style—aboard the superb 23,000 ton Navarino, formerly the Gripsholm. Experience the ancient splendor of Greece—Olympia, Mycenae, Epidaurus, Delos, Delphi, Mt. Athos—plus four of the world's most exotic cities: Athens, Dubrovnik, Istanbul and Venice. Aboard the beautifully refurbished Navarino. From Venice alternate Saturdays or Piraeus alternate Tuesdays. 14 ports in 14 days, and Karageorgis does it with style.

Relax aboard the 16,000 ton Mediterranean Sea or Mediterranean Sky. The convenient, luxurious way to take a car to Greece. Sailing from Ancona, the nearest port to the center of Europe year round. Sailing to Patras—the ideal gateway to Greece in 34 hours direct, or 35 hours via Corfu.

Four convenient sailings per week through the Summer. Two a week in Winter. From either end. Luxury cruise liner standards of accomodations, cuisine and service, with the convenience of your car on board. And there's a bonus 30% reduction for students.

KARAGEORGIS LINES
See an expert — your travel agent — or for more information contact: Karageorgis Lines, 1350 Avenue of the Americas New York, N.Y. 10019 Telephone: (212) 582-3007
All vessels are of Greek Registry.

News in Brief

Arms talks break down

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev flatly rejected both of President Carter's disarmament proposals and presented no new Kremlin offer on arms reductions, a disappointed Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said yesterday.

In Washington, President Carter said he was "not discouraged at all" at the collapse of his administration's first major arms limitation talks with the Soviets, but warned that if he is convinced the Kremlin leaders are not acting in good faith he may go ahead with new weapons.

Carter pulls for ERA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter drew cheers from women's rights activists last night when he told them that failure to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment is hurting U.S. efforts to set a standard for human rights around the world.

A key component of the human rights effort, Carter said, is ratification of the ERA which he called a "noble and very necessary change in the United States constitution."

"Our failure to pass the ERA hurts us as we try to establish a standard for human rights around the world," Carter said.

Relatives of victims sue

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A $1.2 million damage suit was filed yesterday against Pan American Airways, KLM, and the Boeing Aircraft Co. as a result of the Canary Islands crash Sunday.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court by three daughters of Jessie Briggs of Del Mar, Calif., one of the crash victims.

The three seek $1 million in actual damages and $250,000 in punitive damages, charging the planes operated without inspections and should have been equipped to allow the pilots to avoid the collision.

Sen. OKs dole extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate passed legislation Wednesday extending for another six months an emergency program that entitles jobless Americans to qualify for an extra 13 weeks of unemployment benefits.

The bill, passed 84-11, returns to the House, which earlier voted to extend the recession-born addition to the unemployment compensation program for a year, to March 31, 1978.

A conference committee with members from both houses met Wednesday afternoon to try to reconcile differences in the two bills.

dvp presents:
Martin Luther King, Jr.
Memorial Week:

Tues., April 5:
Rev. Hosea Williams
Dr. Randolph Blackwell
Ms. Marion Williams, Vocalist
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Wed., April 6: A Freedom Seder
6 p.m. S.U.B.
"Let the Church Say Amen," a film
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Thurs., April 7: Gospel Night
Mr. Vernard Johnson
Jessy Dixon & the Jessy Dixon Singers
8 p.m. S.U.B.

All events are free and open to the university and community at large.

LUNCH-N-COPY
AT THE AMHERST DELI
COMPLIMENTARY LUNCH
WITH COPY ORDERS PLACED AT ETC. COPY CORP.
1. COPY ORDER OF ONLY $10.00 or more
2. Placed between 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM
3. ANY REGULAR SIZE SANDWICH ON THE MENU COMPLIMENTS OF ETC. COPY CORP.

Regular-Size Sandwich
Balogna	.95
Mortadella	1.00
Liverwurst	.95
Salami	1.15
Genoa Salami	1.65
Imported Swiss	1.25
Imported Ham	1.50
Capicola	1.70
Prosciutto	1.85
Turkey	1.60
Pastrami	1.50
Corned Beef	1.70
Roast Beef	1.75
Tuna	1.50
Alaskan King Crab	1.99

Most Copy Order Completed While You Have Lunch
CLEAN, CONCISE, CORRECT COPIES on IBM COPIERS, it looks like your original.
ETC. COPY CORP.
Amherst Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Ma. 01002
549-0566
Call 549-0566 to insure copying up to 12:00 (midnight) Mon.-Sun.
Copy Hours: M-F 9:00-6:00; Sat. 9:00-5:00
Special Hours: Sunday & After Posted Hours

HP Spring Added Value Days
APRIL 1 THRU MAY 31

An exciting added value when you buy a Hewlett-Packard calculator now.

Free reserve power packs.

During Spring Added Value Days, Hewlett-Packard is adding a free reserve power pack—a $20 value—with the purchase of every HP-21, HP-22, HP-25, HP-25C and HP-27.

It's the best way we know to remind you of the added value you always receive when you buy an HP calculator—like free application books, uncompromising quality, efficient RPN logic system, and exceptional service. Each HP instrument is designed to be the finest of its kind in the world.

New Accessories

Hewlett-Packard is also introducing two new accessories to increase the value of the HP calculator you may already own:

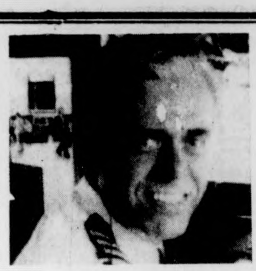
A DC Recharger/Adapter lets you operate and recharge your HP pocket calculator in cars, boats—wherever a 12-volt DC supply is available.

A Games Pac for the HP-67 and HP-97 includes 19 programs designed primarily for fun but also useful in teaching principles of math, physics and logic.

This special in addition to our regular low prices.
Come in and take advantage of Hewlett-Packard's Added Value Days today!

at the calculator store
the UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
UMass.

Logan under fire



van Zanten (UPI)

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Citing the jumbo jet collision in the Canary Islands, international airline pilots yesterday gave a "black star" danger rating to Boston's Logan Airport, where rules require planes to take off at night in the face of incoming aircraft on the same runway.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations said the danger is increased in many cases because the rules, aimed at noise abatement, often force planes to either take off or land in the direction the wind is blowing.

Such "downwind" operations reduce a plane's lift and violate a basic aviation safety procedure calling for takeoffs and landings to be made into the wind, the association said.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration disagreed about the danger, saying the rules affect only about 12 flights a night. "If we thought it was unsafe, we wouldn't let them do it," he said.

Boston's airport is the third in the United States to be given a black star rating, indicating critically deficient safety measures. The other two are Los Angeles International Airport and Harry S. Truman airport at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

The black star is the worst safety rating given by the pilots group, and only 26 airports in the world are labeled with it. The airport at Santa Cruz de Tenerife in the Canary Islands, where two jumbo jets collided Sunday in history's worst aviation disaster, is not one of the 26.

Signal mixup linked to crash

SANTA CRUZ de TENERIFE, Spain [UPI] — New fragments of taped radio messages between the airport control tower and two 747 jets raised the possibility yesterday that a misunderstood order may have prompted the KLM crew to begin its fatal takeoff run.

The newspaper Diario published this purported sequence of radio messages:

KLM: KLM reads for takeoff. Control to KLM: Maintain holding position.

Control to Pan Am: Have you left the runway?

Pan Am: No.

Control to Pan Am: Continue. Advise us when the runway is clear.

The KLM plane then began its takeoff run. The American jet, which had been taxiing slowly across the same strip, still lay in its path.

The Dutch jet accelerated rapidly, until the Pan American pilot saw its headlights through the ground fog that covered Santa Cruz airport. He shouted a warning over his radio, but neither pilot was able to turn aside.

The chief Dutch investigator here and the Spanish assistant airport director agreed Tuesday the KLM pilot did not have final clearance for takeoff.

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

national black theatre

SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM

Bowker Auditorium

Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

TWO FILMS ON

AFRICA:

LAST GRAVE AT DIMBAZA

ANGOLA: THE SECOND WAR

MARCH 31 8 & 10 PM
HERTER AUD.

$ 1.00 donation

sponsored by the commuter collective

SPEAKER FROM THE SOUTH AFRICAN SUPPORT COMMITTEE

COME AND GET IT!

They're here—the Summer Session catalogs, full of all the right courses at the right time. For your convenience, catalogs are available at several locations around campus: Graduate Research Center, Room A245, the CASIAC Office in Machmer Hall, outside the Registration Office at Whitmore and at the Records and Registration Office of Continuing Education at Hills House North.

It's here. Come and get it!

JOIN US FOR SUMMER SESSION 1977 AT THE
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS/AMHERST

LAUDERDALE CINEMA TONITE BOZOS ON THE BEACH
HOTEL Le Bon Mot
HOTEL SWAMM FLOO
BUS STOP NO PARKING
I'M HAVIN' A BALL
LET THE Lite
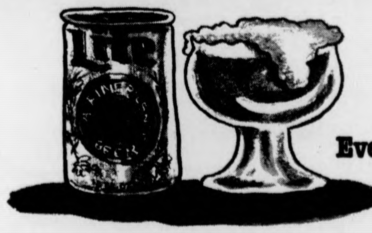
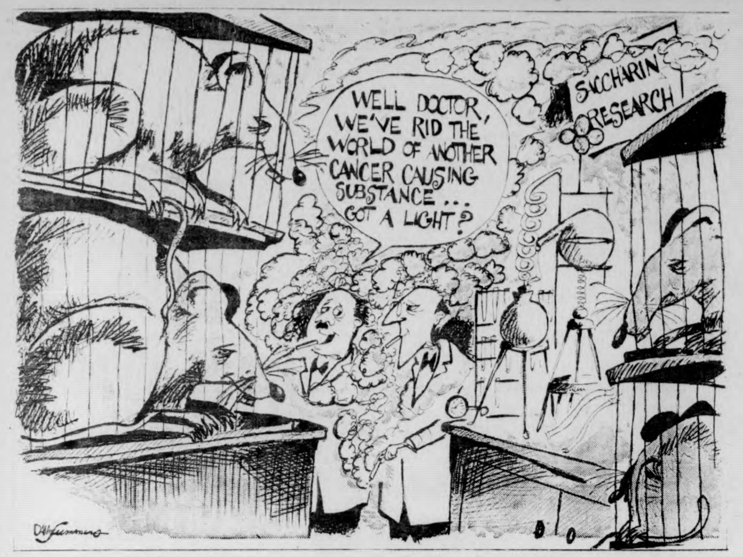
BALONEY
Rich Meyerowitz

When the two most important weeks of the school year have finally arrived but you have to spend them catching up on the previous ten .....it's no time to get filled up.



Lite® Beer from Miller.
Everything you always wanted in a beer. And less.

©1976 The Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.



WELL DOCTOR, WE'VE RID THE WORLD OF ANOTHER CANCER CAUSING SUBSTANCE ... GOT A LIGHT?
SACCHARIN RESEARCH
DWGummers

letters

Keeping in touch

To the Editor:

I recently received a gift from an anonymous donor of a subscription to the Collegian, and due to the poor quality of the media out here in Rocky Mountain High country, it was quite welcome.

It was also great to see so much going on for International Women's Week. Here in Boulder they celebrated by putting women's Frye Boots on sale. Ah, but I'm just a sour grapes easterner.

How totally incongruous yet typical of the Collegian's past history that I turn to a full page ad of the lovely Siglinda Steinfuller, Dean of Beer, flashing her big 4.0's to the Schlitz drinkers of the campus (we all know women don't drink).

I realize that a buck is a buck and the Collegian is a business, nevertheless, one of the reasons the Collegian has the backup of students funding is that it can have the choice of what kind of ads it prints.

Here at Colorado U., the student paper became an independent business a few years back, and as a result, lost its basic contact with students in pursuit of advertising dollars and "professional" quality. If a student newspaper is to be a "training ground" for writers, should it not also be a "training ground" for readers? These kinds of ads will only be effective as long as newspapers print them and refuse to explore other avenues. Perhaps the changes should begin with us.

As for women, hell, I think it's Miller time.

And as for Colorado, I have photographed Hunter Thompson, flown in a seat in front of Claudine Longet and am going in pursuit of John Denver and Jack Nicholson this spring break.

The problem with Rocky Mountain Highas is that they don't get stoned ...

B.J. Roche
former Collegian big wheel

Many thanks to Phi Mu Delta

To the Editor:

I would like to thank the Phi Mu Delta fraternity for all the effort they have put into sponsoring the Dance Marathon for Multiple Sclerosis which will take place in the Hatch this weekend. When we called for information and went to fill out our applications, Phi Mu were warm and sincere in their help and support. They really deserve a lot of credit for their concern and support of this cause. We would also like to thank everyone who is supporting us so far with pledges. It's great to have one's faith restored in one's fellow students and professors! Thanks all!!!

Sandy Simon
Rick Horton
804

In support of pornography protests

To the Editor:

The Mt. Toby Friends Meeting has approved the following minute of the March 13 Meeting for Business:

We strongly support the women and men at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, who are protesting the showing of pornographic films on campus. We support the statement of a spokesperson of the group who said that the pornographic films, which are often violent, portray women in a degrading manner and "oppress and intimidate them."

Pornographic films treat women as sexual objects. Young women and sometimes even children are exploited in making these films. The violence that is perpetuated on women by the media only encourages a continuation of that same violence against women on a day to day basis.

Joseph Havens
Clerk of the Mt. Toby
Friends Meeting

Cartoonist responds

To the Editor:

To those who found my "What Next?" cartoon of Tuesday, March 15 offensive, my deepest regrets. I realize now how certain people are extremely sensitive to topics involving minorities and sex. At the time I was completely unaware of Affirmative Action, or the sensitivity about minority hiring on campus. The cartoon was possibly insensitive and inappropriate, as was pointed out by the Associate Dean of Students, Bobby Daniels.

However, the editorial letter by Mr. Daniels was in itself inappropriate. I am indeed a white Anglo-Saxon male, but as a human being, I am not racist or sexist, and I abhor being called so publicly by an office of our University Administration. I had formally requested a letter from the Associate Dean, qualifying his statement of March 16, to be printed alongside this letter, but he declined.

When the first letter of protest hit the Collegian about my regretably tasteless "Castration" cartoon of March 9, you could literally hear the newspaper pages rustle all across campus, as people turned to the comic page, zeroing-in on "What Next?" ... primarily those with little sense of humor, but a vested interested in oppression, no matter how benign or slight. Suddenly it became fashionable to write letters condemning Dick Janssen. It is of course easier to write one letter than it is to produce five cartoons a week, every week. There are unfortunately no third world or female cartoonists on the comic strip page.

The primary function of my strip is humor. That is why it is on the comic strip page. I am a very strong advocate of humor ... there are many, many people out there who enjoy my efforts. I know because they've told me ... that's the only reward I get ... I receive no money and no academic credit for the comic strip. I dedicate much of my time and enjoyment looking for humor and developing it. There are unfortunately those who spend as much time looking for oppression.

People have come up with some pretty off-the-wall statements about what I think. Yet nobody has bothered to ask me what I think. Although most of the characters in my strip are nameless, unseen, and fictional ... they express their own opinions. "What next?" is not my life story. What the characters think is not necessarily what I think. What I consciously put into my cartoon is humor. What the individual reader wants to read into it, I cannot control. Interpretation is a wide-open field.

I sincerely promise to be more aware and careful in dealing with sensitive topics from now on. but I refuse to tiptoe on eggshells and turn my strip into a bland, idiotic children's nursery-book simply to avoid offending the over-sensibilities of any one of 20,000 daily readers. Remember, the people who are laughing don't write the letters.

To those plying the Collegian to censor me: the Collegian always has the right to refuse publication. I am merely a contributor. But if you are not prepared to laugh, censor it yourselves ... DON'T READ IT ... In our free society, censorship is the Ultimate oppression.

Dick Janssen

jan van tol

Distasteful messages

A great many people are afraid to speak their minds these days.

Last Thursday, the Boston Globe carried a short front-page feature about an enterprising young lad who is trying to address this problem. For a $5 fee, he will convey messages that his emotionally constipated clients are reluctant to deliver themselves. When he makes a call, he announces that "he has been engaged to deliver a distasteful message", and then reads it off. In this way, people can get the message across without the distressing need to be there in the flesh.

Now it occurs to us that UMass could also use a service like this. Despite the frequent professions of liberalism here on campus, remarkably few differences in thought are actually tolerated (e.g., consider the reaction to Dick Janssen's comic strip). Given this tremendous social pressure to conform in thought and deed, many students who might say unpopular things or defend "wrong" viewpoints are understandably deterred by the fear of outraging the rigidly "progressive" elements on campus.

This minority would not be so cowed, though, if there were a Distasteful Message Service on hand to do the dirty work. To illustrate how such a service might work, we've come up with a few distasteful messages that are surely just waiting to be delivered...

The SGA would be a prime market. In the Senate, where doublespeak is the official language, few have the guts to stand up for what they really think. But had a message service existed, the following would certainly have been delivered.:

To: Tommy Kerrins, Senate Treasurer

You lying SOB!! You deliberately lied to the student body about the need for an SATF increase when you said the enrollment would decline next year. But you knew all along that enrollment was going UP to 18,000, which means that the SATF didn't need to go up at all. What've you got to hide anyways?

Peter Graham
Chairperson, Rents & Fees

To: Peter Graham, Ex-Chairperson, Rents & Fees

Kid, I can squash you like a bug.

Thomas Kerrins, Treasurer

--

To: Brian DeLima, Speaker of the Senate

Don't run.

57 Senators
(and 19 Townehouse)

--

As we all know, SGA political campaigns always involve sordid little tricks behind the scenes. The last one was no exception. While the principals involved wouldn't like to say the following publicly, you can bet that privately they would have found it hard to resist them:

To: Jon and Pinky

Thanks for the posters.

Brian Harrington
Tyson-Foley Campaign Manager

To: Jeff Lutsky, University Judiciary Judge

Ha, ha. fooled you.

Jerry Rogers
Tyson-Foley Media Coordinator

--

Barbara Stack wrote that "there are always individuals in every group who do not act in their own apparent interests". Somewhere on campus, somebody must be itching to send these words:

To: Nummo News

Really liked your articles. Especially liked the graphic of the hanged man with the Star of David eyes. (Feb. 14, p. 5). Hope you keep putting the Zionist running dogs in their places. Keep up the good work.

Morris Schwartz

--

And even for hardened administrators, some messages are hard to convey personally:

To: O.C. Bobby Daniels
From: Personnel Dep't

It has come to our attention that you have repeatedly described your job as "nurturing the human environment". We have checked through our files and found that the job you describe does not exist. We regret to inform you, therefore, that you have been terminated.

--

The forming of alliances is also tricky at first. Secret messages could come in handy:

To: Albert Sparks

Al, I heard Baroque Enterprises needs members. I'd like to join. How about 30 per cent of the take?

Dick Janssen

--

Finally, some groups or individuals won't speak to one another, but would still like to get a message across:

To: Jan van Tol

Isn't anything sacred?

Student Organizing Project

To: SOP

Nope, Just my mother.

JMvT

Jan van Tol is a Collegian columnist.

---

martha newcomb

Truth

The real title of this column should read: "My Trip to Washington or The Truth About Amy", but they never give me long titles so "Truth will have to do. Actually, this has very little to do with truth, but we're close enough to April Fool's so that it doesn't matter.

Washington D.C. is an altogether superlative-inspiring place. During my five days there I played the American tourist role to the hilt. Aside from viewing the Hope Diamond, touching a rock from the moon and climbing inside a space capsule, the favorite sport of the tourist is "Celebrity Seeking".

And how could we leave Washington without saying we saw Jimmy Carter? We really did see a helicopter flying near the Smithsonian and when we went into the museum, school children told us that Jimmy had been there and took off in a helicopter; so it seems a valid conclusion that it could be no other than He that we saw. By all rights dictated in Philosophy 105, we could go home to family and friends saying the trip was complete.

The Jerry Ford viewing was not as far-fetched but pulls a close second. We were staying at a dormitory of George Washington University which is across the street from the famous F Street Club where Jerry was having dinner. We missed seeing him go in by minutes, and decided to wait (like good autograph hounds) until he came out.

After a chilly hour, his visage became less appealing, so we climbed up onto the wall to look in the windows. We had already ascertained the fact that Mr. Ford was there for dinner, and there we were looking into the dining room of the F Street Club. A long table was full and we could see all the faces of the guests except one; we saw the back of the head of the guest at the head of the table. It looked like the back of Jerry Ford's head, we wanted it to be the back of Jerry Ford's head, so therefore: it WAS Jerry Ford that we were seeing. Why not?

Our most embarrassing "Celebrity Hunt", was when we followed the fancy car up the drive to the Capitol. We were sure beyond a doubt that we were following our very own Senator Brooke. He turned out to be a security guard that was going on duty but I swear he was a dead ringer for Brooke. Maybe he was trying to slip in incognito.

Gary was driving us to Arlington Cemetery when he said, "Oh my God, don't turn around, Barbara Streisand is in the car behind us." We looked one at a time in the rear-view mirror and sure enough, it looked just like her. The girl with the big nose and the curly hair that passed us a block later in the old Buick sadly turned out not to be Barbara. But at least we were on our way to see the Eternal Flame over Kennedy at Arlington.

What we thought to be the Flame while we were coming up the long entrance drive, turned out to be a yellow light bulb at the closed entry gates to the Cemetery. I turned to my fellow tourists and said, "Close enough."

Well, we honest-to-God saw cherry blossoms, touched a rock from the moon and saw the Hope Diamond. We also saw where Amy Carter goes to school — I think.

Martha Newcomb is a Collegian Columnist.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Gerard F. Rogers, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson, Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

commentary

Congressional ethics?

By GREG BRYANT

While the average white American family makes about $13,719 and the black American family around $8,779, isn't it reassuring to know that the recent Congressional pay increase was $12,900? This increase, from $44,600 to $57,500 will of course be the burden of the taxpayers, to the tune of $118.6 million a year. As much as Congress has been spouting about ethics within their ranks lately, they seem to have a rather perverse estimation as to the meaning of the word. My contention is that this pay raise is not only unethical, but the methods used in order to get it were of the most odious nature.

That great political hack, and newly appointed Speaker of the House, "Tip" O'Neil, led the fight for the pay increase. Not only did he by-pass the democratic process, but he displayed his true elitist colors in the process. Stating that members of Congress needed and deserved the raise, O'Neil was instrumental in avoiding a House vote on the issue. In such a manner the raise automatically went through after it was decided that Congress was obviously more familiar with the situation than is the public.

O'Neil further stated, in response to criticism over the raise, that it was sometimes in the interests of the nation for Congress to vote against the will of the people. If a vote was taken, he said, it would probably have been overwhelmingly opposed due to public opposition. Thus so long as the rest of the House believed similarly, and apparently without the guts to display their apparent greed to their constituency, Congress got its means towards an even greater degree of consumption.

As a type of appeasement though, this benevolent Congress also passed a new ethics code which among other things limits their outside earnings to $8,625. Rallying under O'Neil's cry of restoring the people's confidence in the government, members voted in the affirmative only after they had all but destroyed their confidence through the pay raise.

This new ethics code of course disturbed many House members, among them Republican James Quillen of Tennesse who complained that it would "strike directly at the American free-enterprise system". Take heart though Mr. Quillen, for in addition to the nice $57,500 a year there are also the fringe benefits that you have overlooked that are bestowed upon you as a member of such a prestigious body. For example, according to the new code there will be an increase in personal expense allowances from $2,000 to $7,000 for each member. And of course there are the usual privileges:

—Unlimited U.S. phone calls between 5 p.m. and 9 a.m. weekdays.

—33 round trips home each year, at public expense of course.

—Mailing of non-political materials to constituents in an almost unlimited manner.

—Free medical care and drugs by the Capital physician and low rates at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

—Cut-rate life insurance rates.

So it seems that in this era of public cynicism towards government and governmental aloffness towards the public, that the recent pay raise and ethics code definitely fail to heal this breach; rather they seem only to perpetuate it. Write your Congresspersons and tell them the faith you have in a governmental system that enables them to in such luxury — just getting by on $57,500 — while you "the people" barely survive on a third of that.

Greg Bryant is a Collegian Commentator.

commentary

Passivity will get us nowhere

By GREG TARPINIAN

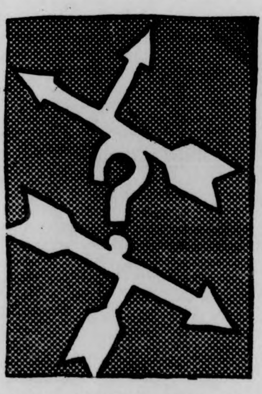
To many, the social relationships of academic departments are stifling. The traditionally authoritarian teacher-student relationship is one which does not normally allow for the total realization of one's creative or intellectual potential; such is also the case with the competitive spirit which seems to prevail amongst students. The acts of regurgitation and of "kissing ass" seem inevitable if one considers the predominant relationships within academia and the prospects which begrudgingly await us on the outside.

This situation is not a static one however. Its dynamic is similar to that of a nuclear reaction. It is altered with the whims of such things as the economy and the weather. Social relationships seem never to be in equilibrium.

On a micro-level, the inherently backward, alienating departments in which we find ourselves are growing worse. With cuts come higher student-teacher ratios. With cuts comes a declining degree of student input into department policy-making. With cuts come poor course offerings, and so forth down the line. The banal nature of academia seems only to act as a breeding ground for these cancer-like situations. It is readily apparent that students will continue to bear the "brunt". This is especially clear when one takes note of the faculty's recent decision to unionize. While they have finally recognized their positions as those of mere workers they have also complicated the present nexus which exists between themselves and the students. They have added to our traditional subservience with that of a more pronounced economic subservience.

The question we must ask ourselves is this: Given this scenario how do we better our situations within our own departments? The larger perspective sees the formation of a union of students as the best answer to the subordinate position we hold and to the subsequent deterioration in the quality of life at UMass. Organization in this direction is many-fold, from dormitory to work-place organizing. To address the needs of students in the place of their primary "schooling" relations — their major departments — the concept of department councils has emerged.

To this point many students have expressed concerns with the dynamics of their own departments and have sought ways in which to positively alter the situation. Dissatisfaction over course offerings, professors, hiring and tenure policies, and evaluations has been activated in several departments on campus. Students in such departments as Public Health, Economics and Legal Studies, to mention a few, have realized that the most effective way to rectify the problems has been to unite and form councils whose primary purpose is to become part of the departmental decision-making. While the objectives of equal representation, consideration, and power are seen to be a ways off, the councils have generated a degree of influence which has been lacking in recent years. It is apparent that through the operation of these councils students are a force to be reckoned with.



The councils are not acting alone however. They have the support and guidance of the student senate advocacy agencies. For instance, recently the Public Health Undergraduate Union became involved in a conflict with the faculty over affirmative action guidelines. The Legal Services Office, the legal arm of the student body, came to the aid with legal supervision. In the past research reports on such things as course evaluations and budget cuts, prepared by the Student Center for Educational Research, have aided in the struggles of various department councils. The Student Organizing Project, the organizing center of the unionization effort, is available for guidance on the process of department organizing. Many of the staff members of the SOP have been instrumental in the organizing of various departments, and the project has instituted organizing workshops. These workshops are designated to provide those interested with some of the skills which are helpful in attempts at effective organizing within departments. These skills relate to publicity, group-dynamics, and issue orientation and organization in the department. So far, they have proved quite beneficial to those who have participated.

Our roles as passive creatures in the University decision-making apparatus and within our own departments can in no way better our condition. At eye-level conditions may not appear so bad. Don't be fooled. The slow death which characterizes the Massachusetts economy will show itself more visibly in the near future. This decline is sure to take a new form in our eyes shortly. Attacks on the quality of education at UMass are not going to let up without the student body becoming a viable force. Departmental organizing seems to be a logical place to start. SBA is in fear of loosing its accreditation as soon as a couple of more faculty members leave. The teacher student ratio in the Economics Department is 33-1. Massachusetts has dropped in per capita spending on higher education from 28th to 48th since 1975. The list is endless.

We must first begin with the areas which apparently mean the most in terms of our futures as members of a society in which good futures are, at the moment, scarce.

Greg Tarpinian is a Collegian Commentator.

What's Happening

Socialism in Labor, theme of conference

A conference entitled "American Trade Unions and Socialism" will be held at UMass tomorrow in the Campus Center. Speakers from labor unions and political organizations will discuss the historical role of socialists in the labor movement and the current political and organizing activities. The opening session of the conference will begin at 10 a.m. in CC 917, and workshops will take place from 1-5 p.m. on the 9th floor. The conference is sponsored by the Labor Center Student Caucus. Further information may be obtained by calling 545-2893.

Mass PIRG to hold conference Sat.

The Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MassPIRG) will hold a statewide conference Saturday, at Mount Holyoke College focusing on the role of students in citizen action, and the development of public interest skills.

Workshops will feature Campus Outreach Techniques, Tactical Investigations and Organizing Strategy, Student Activism, Public Interest Research Skills, and Legislative Strategy. The conference will be held in the Willits-Hallowel Center, Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley from 9:45 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Students from MassPIRG affiliated colleges and universities throughout Massachusetts will be in attendance.

High school science fair held in SUB

For one thin dime UMass students can be treated to an exhibition of the behavioral, physical and biological sciences today in the Student Union Ballroom.

From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. 60 students from area high schools will participate in the Massachusetts Western Regional High School Science Fair for Hampden, Hampshire and Franklin counties. Winners in today's contest will go on to the state competition at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in April. The 10 cent donation will go toward trophies for the winners.

Black musicians to give concert Fri.

Black music concerts and workshops will be held at UMass and Hampshire College Friday and Saturday. Sponsored by UMass Student Activities and the Program Council Music Committee, the fifth Annual Black Musicians concert will feature Charles Tolliver, Music Inc. and the Strata East All Stars at 8 p.m., Friday in the Student Union Ballroom.

On Saturday, April 2, workshops will be held all day at Hampshire College featuring some of the most noted scholars and musicians in the field of black music. That night, Frank Foster and the Loud Minority, a 23-piece band featuring vocalist Andy Bey, will perform at the UMass Student Union Ballroom at 8 p.m.

All events will be free and open to the public. For further information, contact Bill Hasson in the Student Activities Office, 545-3600.

Discussion — lecture on socialism in PR

A member of the central committee of the Popular Socialist Movement in Puerto Rico will speak tonight at 7:30 in Campus Center 164. Discussion will focus on the struggle for independence in Puerto Rico and the strategies and tactics necessary to win true liberation. Everyone is invited to attend.

Benefit concert Sun. features rock bands

Clean Living and Sheehan's Reel are appearing in a benefit concert Sunday night in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets for the four hours of music and dance are available in town and on campus. The concert begins at 8 p.m.

History dept. talks about grad programs

"Graduate School and History" will be the subject of a panel discussion for history students to be held today at 8 p.m. in Herter 601. Six students presently in the Department's graduate program will discuss a variety of questions, including what graduate work in history is like, how one picks a graduate school, and any other questions the audience and the panel raise.

Rep Collins to hold office hours

State Rep. James G. Collins, D-Amherst, has announced he will hold office hours on Saturday in the Campus Center from noon to 1 p.m.

Buddhist Meditation: discussion topic

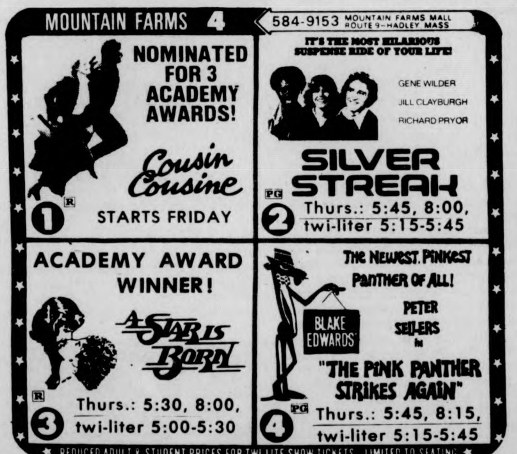
Bob Morehouse, a meditation instructor and student of Chogyam Trungpa, Rinpoche, will give a talk on Buddhist meditation and psychology today at 8 p.m. in Campus Center 168. The talk will center around the question of how one can use the energy of one's own confusion and aggression as a means of opening to oneself and the world. It is an introduction to a weekend workshop beginning Friday and continuing all day Saturday and Sunday with more talks, discussions, meditation and individual meditation instruction.

Tim Brook to talk on study of China

Tim Brook, a Canadian doing graduate work at Harvard, will discuss his two years of student experience in Peking and Shanghai at a potluck supper at 6 p.m. in Hope Congregational Church (Gaylord St. off Lincoln) in Amherst tomorrow.

Brook visited China to study Chinese literature and history. He spent one year in Shanghai, the giant metropolis that was a focal point in the recent overthrow of Chairman Mao's widow and three others, the so-called "Gang of Four."

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST. NORTHAMPTON
SUN. THURS 8:00 ONLY
FRI. SAT 7:00 & 9:10
A MOTION PICTURE HAS NEVER SPREAD SUCH FEAR!
The Cassandra Crossing
R
MON - TUES DOLLAR NITES!



MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY MASS

1 NOMINATED FOR 3 ACADEMY AWARDS! Cousin Cousine R STARTS FRIDAY

2 IT'S THE MOST HILARIOUS SUSPENSE RIDE OF YOUR LIFE! GENE WILDER JILL CLAYBURGH RICHARD PRYOR SILVER STREAK PG Thurs.: 5:45, 8:00, twi-liter 5:15-5:45

3 ACADEMY AWARD WINNER! A STAR IS BORN R Thurs.: 5:30, 8:00, twi-liter 5:00-5:30

4 THE NEWEST, PINKEST PANTHER OF ALL! BLAKE EDWARDS' PETER SELLERS in "THE PINK PANTHER STRIKES AGAIN" PG Thurs.: 5:45, 8:15, twi-liter 5:15-5:45

★ REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI LITE SHOW TICKETS LIMITED TO SEATING ★

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
NOW at 7:00 & 9:00
(only area showing)
"ONE OF THE YEARS 10 BEST FILMS!"
- Rex Reed
- Time Mag.
a film by — françois truffaut
small change
No Dollar Nights This Program!

Showcase Cinemas
ROUTE 5
RIVERDALE RD.
West Springfield
733-5131
BARGAIN $2.50 til 2:30
MATINEES WED. SAT. SUN
ROCKY PG United Artists
MGM presents NETWORK R United Artists
AIRPORT '77 A UNIVERSAL PICTURE TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION® PG
REDFORD/HOFFMAN "ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN" 8 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS PG
FRIDAY FREAKY G
A STAR IS BORN R
'THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN' PG
A RALPH BAKSHI FILM WIZARDS PG
PLEASE CALL THEATRE FOR SCREEN TIMES

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

Classifieds

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line
Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

New ski boots. Italian imports, polyurethane with flo-form linings. Most sizes, $35. After ski boots, $25. Call Sue 256-8641 evenings 7:00 - 10:30.

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift Idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

For Sale: 2 pairs of skis — Head 360's 185 cm., excellent condition, $100.00. Head HRP's 185 cm, Look Nevada bindings, $125.00. Nordica boots, $60.00. Head poles, $15.00. Call 549-2691.

For Sale — Used albums, like new! Big assortment. 75c to $1.50. Call 549-2691.

Electric guitar & amp, $150, cassette rec., new, $50; 2 lg. speakers, $75; slide projector, $40. 549-3886. Records for sale, too.

Green suede boots, Wm., 7. $10. Clark nurs. shoes, Wm. 7. 6-7782.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

Olympus OM1-MD black with normal and tele lens & cards. 586-3738 - 9 p.m.

Bicycle, ten speed, Motobecane Mirage. Perfect. $125. After nine p.m. 586-3738.

6 Poolsize goldfish, cheap 617-544-3362.

Alto Sax Bundy - special pads & finish. $150 firm. Call Steve 6-9625.

AUTO FOR SALE

Volvo parts. 122 & 142. Good prices. 586-0610 anytime.

1968 Ford XL. New tires, good shape. $600 or B. O. 586-0610.

'73 Merc. Capri 2000, green, auto., air, 28,000 mi. Best offer over $1800. 549-6452.

AUTO FOR SALE

SAAB 99 '70 Parts: Engine, body, etc. 584-8601. All day Tu. & Th., eves M. + W.

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0616 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

1969 Ford Galaxy 500. 78,000 miles. Runs good. $350. 256-8694.

'71 Plymouth Cricket, 4 spd., 30 mpg. 5000 OML. Exl. cdt. $650. Call 665-4381 aft. 5.

'65 VW Bug. Exc. mech. cond. 35 mpg. $750. 253-3623.

'64 VW Bug. Rebuilt eng. Good cdt. $200. 549-0798.

'72 Vega Yenko Stinger - modified engine, GT package - lmtd edition. Car just back from Paige's Chev. New rings, pistons, valves, head — in past year, new everything! W-4 stl. blt. ovals, 2 new snows. Have receipts to prove all work. Must pay bill to Paige's. Will not haggle on price! $1350 firm! Worth more. Call 546-6720. John.

1972 Opel GT. $1950. Call 256-8885.

'71 Toyota Corolla. New paint, brakes, valve job. 665-3546 after 10:30 p.m.

1976 Dodge Van, custom interior, alarm, rustproofed, more. 1-268-7721.

'64 Ford Galaxie, mech. v. gd., body lousy. $175. Call 256-8347 after 6.

'74 Camaro LT-350, 4 spd., spoilers, radials, 34K mi., exc. cond. $3350 - B. O. 665-2676.

'68 Volvo 122. Very good shape. $800. 586-0610 anytime.

HELP WANTED

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

HEBREW TEACHER required. Westfield congregation needs a Hebrew teacher beginning Sept. - 1 or 2 afts. a wk. $10—hr. Contact Judy Brown, 7 South St., Westfield, 01085; 562-3224.

Mike's Westview is looking for a waitress. Apply in person Weds. aft. before 6 and Thurs. evenings after 6.

$3—hr. Travel Survey on Campus. 4 hr. shifts, 6:30-10:30; 10:30-2:30; 2:30-6:30 p.m. Must be available Wed. 4-13 and—or Wed. 4-20. Call 5-2086 for info.

Small sorority needs pot washer for lunches, dining room worker for lunches, and dinners 5 or 6 days. Meals, plus 2 extra meals. Call 549-1587.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

FOR RENT

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 + sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

1 or 2 non-smokers for furnished house. Federal St., Belchertown. For April & May. $50—mo. incl. util. 323-4249.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

Apartment: May 23 - Aug. 31. Call: 10 - 2. M-F. Ask for Mike. Leave mess. 545-0189.

FOR RENT

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot: you're alright too. AJF

Lizzy F (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie. D.L.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

'71 Suzuki TS185. Very good cond. Needs no work. 60 mpg. $345. 256-8074.

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075

PERSONALS

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

Marjorie — we have passed the first stage. Our future will be together. Gotcha kid, John.

To the Friends of BOC of Mackimmie Party Band. Jinx 10 kegs. Be there, Fri.

To Princess Laura, Bernice, and the five other dwarfs: Thanks for the great vacation. It was Sssooo much fun. Baked Bean.

UMass Crew: Keep that cadence high but let that water fly. And we'll win again. Just like in VA. Good Luck, Amy.

TO SUBLET

3 bdr. Townhouse, ¾ mile to campus — on 2 bus rt. June-Sept. Call 549-4855.

3 bdrm. Twnhse apt. on bus route. Semi-furn., air cond. 6-1 — 8-31. $260 mth. 549-4919.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus rt. Jun. 1-Aug. 31. Semi-furnd., w-w, air cond. Call 549-4766.

TO SUBLET

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths & terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

3 bdrm. apt. Puf. Vil. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

1 bedroom apt., Puffton Village, June 1 - Aug. 31. Air cond., pool, tennis courts. Call 549-4789.

3 bdr., Puff. Vill. On bus rt. 6-1 — 9-1. 549-0748.

2 bd. rm. apt., furn., on bus rt. 6-1 — 8-31. $150 mo., util. included. Call 256-8607.

3 bds. in 5 bd. hse. 5 min. walk campus. Nice yard. Jun 1 - Aug. 15. $60—mo. 549-1709.

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

WANTED

Non-smoking, non-drinking, potential veg., very tidy, grad asst. seeks a quiet co-op living situation in Belchertown. $100— inc. Bill 253-7105 or 5-2155.

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

AUDIO

Quality audio components — over 130 lines available. Call Peter, 665-2920.

Stereo equalizer - 12 band with test record, $88. After nine p.m. 586-3738.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

SERVICES

Professional tennis lessons available. Call Peter 253-2997.

Peace Of Mind — Housesitters. Avail. for summer. Call Simon 549-4280.

Passport and application pictures. Quick service. Will do CPA and portfolio slides. Contact Steven at 546-9653.

Need to sell your car? Want the best price? Advertise with us: W. Mass. Wheeler Dealer - deals only in cars with circulation of 70,000. Call Pete, 586-0824 for info.

TRAVEL

London by air for $120. Must depart April 29. Call 369-4980, Conway, MA.

FOUND

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears, cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

LOST

Black vinyl ring binder lost - Amherst Environ. Contact owner at 253-7139.

3 golf clubs in S-west fields. Reward. Call Flynt 546-6071.

Gold necklace - chain and charm. Live - Love - Laugh. Sentimental value. Reward offered. 546-8159.

CALCULATORS

College Calculators has low prices! All T. I. warr by me for 1 yr. SR-52 $199.95; SR-56 $84.95 ($10 rebate off this pr.); SR-40 $34.95, bus anal $34.95 — All HP's avail. HP-67 $389.95. Call and check our PR's. Call Bob Or Linda 549-1316

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

University of massachusetts arts council presents
KARR-LEWIS DUO
Double Bass & Keyboard
WED., APRIL 6 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

University of massachusetts arts council presents
THIS TIME FOR SURE!
PILOBOLUS
DANCE THEATER
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price; senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Notices

ALLIANCE SPONSORS TAPE SHOW

The People's Gay Alliance will hold a slide-tape show today at 9:15 p.m. in CC 163.

ALPHA ZETA

It's that time again to recruit new members into our honorable ranks. Pledge meetings are tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 804-808; Monday and Tuesday at 6:30 CC 165. All members should attend at least one meeting.

AUDITION

The Student Video team will produce a film today at noon on the CC Plaza.

ATTENTION HELLENIC ASSOCIATION MEMBERS!!

There will be an important meeting for all members Wed. night, April 6, at 7:30 in CC 162-175. Discussed will be our involvement in the Intl. Fair and our social functions for the rest of the semester. Your attendance is crucial.

AWAKENINGS! FRIDAY & SATURDAY

Room to move is sponsoring a series of workshops this Friday and Sat. covering a wide range of topics: Gestalt, Psycholdrama, Sexism, and Racism etc. Look for notices on Campus or call 5-0400.

BICYCLE CLUB

General meeting tonight at 7 in CC 905. Everyone interested in bicycling is invited to attend. Slides of previous trips will be shown.

BICYCLE COOP

Important meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 901 for Spring activities. Everyone interested in bicycling should attend.

BIG STARS IN BLOOM!

Field coffee house this Fri. in the Main Lounge: 8:30-? Come, relax, and hear some terrific music.

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY

All are welcome to bring their questions along with lunch to SU 422 each Friday noon for an open discussion of theological concerns. Non-academic and not an encounter group, and certainly not indoctrination or proselytization. Come and enjoy this.

CHEERING TRYOUTS

Any women interested in trying out for next years UMass Cheerleading Squad should come to the main gym in Boyden tonight at 7 p.m.

COLLEGE DEMOCRATS

There will be an important meeting tonight at 6 in CC 178. Everyone is welcome to attend.

COIN CLUB

Interested in US or world coin collecting? Then attend tonight's meeting. Small informal club meets bi-weekly. See you there! CC 801 — 7:30 - 10:00.

CONSUMER ECONOMICS MAJORS

Meeting on Wed., April 6 at 6:30 in Skinner Hall. Nominations for officers will take place so please attend.

CPR COURSE

Those people who showed an interest in taking a CPR course with the Ski Patrol please come to a short meeting at 7 tonight, Morrill 161. Tentative course dates are: April 6, 13, 20.

ELECTRONIC MUSIC

There will be a demonstration of electronic music tonight at 8 in Dickinson House.

FREE FOOD AND MUSIC

Are you free tonight? Come to the Van Meter Coffee House in our beautiful Study Lounge. Good entertainment and great company. Showtime 8 until 11.

JUMP ON THIS OPPORTUNITY!!

The UMass Parachute Club will have a first jump course tonight at 7 in CC 163.

LACROSSE PLAYERS

The Hampshire Women's Lacrosse Assoc. will begin practicing outdoors on the Mt. Holyoke College Athletic Fields on Sundays begin April 3, at 2 p.m. In case of rain, practice will be held in the MHC gym. All interested persons welcomed. More info 253-7303.

LOST

Wilson T 3000 tennis racket. With cover. If found call 253-5697. REWARD.

MASS PIRG SOLAR ENERGY GROUP

Meeting tonight at 7:30 in CC 811. To plan Speaker's Bureau Program. Call Karen at 256-1434.

NORTHEAST AFFAIRS

Voting for Northeast Area Govt. officers will take place tonight in dorm lobbies from 5-8. Everyone please vote! There will also be a Northeast Area Govt. meeting tonight at 8:30 in Hamlin.

NUCLEAR POWER

Rep. J. Collins meets with interested people to discuss Nuclear Power Bill at Jones Library Gallery at 4. Call Mass PIRG for details.

PHILOSOPHY UNDERGRAD MEETING

There will be a business meeting for all philosophy undergrads today from 4-5 p.m. at the TOC, 11th floor, CC. It's categorically imperative that all should show.

POLITICAL FILM SERIES

WHAT IF THE DREAM COMES TRUE?, a film about upper middle class values, will be shown tonight at 6:30 in Field Dorm Main Lounge on O.H.

SAILING CLUB!

There will be a meeting of the Sailing Club tonight in CC 178 at 8 to plan the upcoming Regatta. All those interested in going to the Conn. Valley Champship this weekend at Coast Guard must attend. For more info call Tim at 6-4180.

INDEX PORTRAIT DEADLINE

April 22 is the last day Senior pictures will be taken. Appt. times are filling up fast so call now: 5-2874 or come to the 9th floor of the CC between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to be included in the 1977 INDEX.

TANTRIC YOGA

With Yogi Bhajan, April 1, 2, 3 for info call 256-8470 or 253-2889, come alone or bring a friend.

UMASS SKI CLUB

Enjoy one last spring ski fling! The Club is running a day trip to Stone on Saturday. Sign up at the Ski Club office today between 11 and 3.

UNDERGRAD BUSINESS CLUB

A meeting tonight at 7 in SBA 100. New members welcome!

LOST

Keys on ring: VW and Pope's medal. Between Grad Research and School of Ed. 549-6000 — ask for Mel.

B. Friedan to speak at labor conference

Betty Friedan, author and feminist leader, will participate in a panel, "Women and Work," tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Sage Hall at Smith College. The panel will be chaired by Jill K. Conway, president of Smith, and will include Barbara Garson, author of the book, "All the Livelong Day: The Meaning and Demeaning of Routine Work," and two plays, "McBird," and "The Co-op;" and Eli Ginzberg, Columbia University, chairperson of the National Commission for Manpower Policy and author of more than fifty books in the field of human resources and manpower.

Car inspection runs April 1 thru the 15th

Owners and Operators of Massachusetts registered motor vehicles and trailers are reminded that the compulsory spring inspection begins tomorrow. They are advised to have all necessary repairs made prior to presenting the vehicle for inspection so it will pass the first time and not be marked with a rejection sticker.

Before going for the inspection, check the registration number on your certificate with your plates to see if they are the same. If they do not match, go to a Registry Office to have this corrected. The vehicle identification number on the certificate must agree with the one on the vehicle. If they do not match, go to your insurance agency for this correction. This information must be accurate or the inspection will not be performed.

The fee for a motor vehicle inspection is $2. The fee for the trailer is 50 cents.

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500

THE FIFTH ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT

FRIDAY APRIL 1
CHARLES TOLLIVER/ MUSIC INC.
AND THE ALLSTARS

SATURDAY APRIL 2
FRANK FOSTER
AND THE
LOUD MINORITY
WITH VOCALIST
ANDY BEY

8:00 p.m.
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
ADMISSION FREE

SPONSORED BY THE PROGRAM COUNCIL MUSIC COMMITTEE AND THE STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE

Workshops Saturday, April 2, 9:00a.m. and 1:00 p.m.
Franklin Patterson Hall Hampshire College

Anti-racist Cuban film tonight in SW

The three day Cultural-Educational Program on "The Elimination of Racism in Cuba and Its Significance for U.S. Peoples" will be holding an insightful and dramatic account of black slavery during the 19th century tonight at 7:30 in Hampden Student Center.

Based on "Francisco," a famous Cuban anti-slavery novel (the Latin American equivalent of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin"), the film presents melodramatic scenes from the original novel, then takes apart the structure of the novel and examining the author's objectives, thereby contrasting the novel's romantic and idealized conceptions of slavery to the actual historical conditions.

The seminar ends tomorrow night with a presentation of the history of racism and anti-racist struggle in Cuba, the anti-racist struggle within the revolutionary process and the elimination of racism in Cuba after the triumph of the Revolution, and the significance of Cuba for U.S. peoples and our own struggles against racism.

Actress Valerie Stephens will present the history, while three distinguished speakers will hold a panel-forum about the topic. Dean John Howard, a sociologist at the State University of New York at Purchase; Dara Thorpe of the Task Force on Racism, Sexism, and Distributive Justice on the Inter Face Council on Corporate Responsibility; and Dr. Johnetta Cole of Afro-American Studies at UMass and the representative for the National Committee of Venceremos Brigade comprise the panel.

This event begins at 7:30 p.m., is free, and is open to the public.

Health Services give program description

A wide variety of services are offered at University Health Services in an effort to provide a comprehensive health program. The pharmacy, located in the Health Center, is one of these services. Working as members of the health team, the pharmacy staff will fill prescriptions, answer your questions related to the medications, and clarify instructions.

According to Joseph Pelis, R.Ph., director of Pharmacy Services, the pharmacy has established a formulary of all drugs and medications stocked there. The medical staff, through the Pharmacy Committee, evaluates, appraises and selects medications recommended for the treatment of problems likely to be encountered. These commonly stocked drugs are dispensed at a 50 cent co payment charge per item to students and dependents enrolled in the Student Health Plan.

The staff will obtain non-formulary presciptions prescribed by our medical staff should you need them. All nonformulary medications are dispensed at cost plus $1 handling charge. Valley Health Plan faculty, staff and dependents are charged a professional fee of $2 plus cost of all prescriptions.

Prescriptions written by physicians outside the health services staff, or for non students, cannot be filled at the Health Center due to licensing restrictions. If you have a prescription from an outside source, you may make an appointment with one of the staff physicians.

For your convenience, the pharmacy also stocks a limited selection of over-the-counter products for skin care, dental care, eye care, contraception and colds which are available at very reasonable costs. Consumer information on medications is also available as part of the Health Center's efforts to promote careful use of medications. You are encouraged to discuss the use of medications with medical, mental health, pharmacy or health education staff.

The Cold Self-Care Center is located near the pharmacy. If you have cold-type symptoms, the Self-Care Center may help you determine your need for medical care and provide information about appropriate self-treatment methods.

Students with Fed. loans meet with rep.

All graduating seniors with a National Direct Loan are required by the federal government to have an "exit interview" with a representative of the Bursar's office to discuss your rights and obligations under the conditions of the loan. For this purpose, we are holding a meeting tonight in SBA 120, at 7:30. You may attend either of the meetings, whichever one is more convenient.

Home Ec. Dept. holds symposium

The Second Annual Home Economics Symposium to be held on April 18, will be sponsored by the Edna Skinner Chapter of the American Home Economics Association (AHEA). "Clothing: Quality vs. Price" is a symposium about product quality in the textile and clothing area. There will be speakers from the U.S. Army, the J.C. Penney Company, and Cornell University, as well as textile and clothing displays.

The symposium will take place in the Campus Center Auditorium from 10:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. There is a registration fee of $2.50 for students and $4.50 for adults, each of which includes the luncheon.

For further information and-or registration forms, contact Mrs. JoAnn Pullen, 122 Skinner Hall, 545-2392.

Prison Arts Director speaks at Hampshire

Prison arts developer Michael Dalakian will speak at Hampshire College tonight on the use of the arts within correctional facilities. Dalakian, himself a former convict, is co-founder and co-director of the innovative theater program for inmates and ex-inmates, Theater Without Bars.

His appearance is sponsored by the School of Social Science at Hampshire College, and the Juvenile Justice and BDIC programs at UMass. He will speak at 8 p.m. in Donut 4, Greenwich House, Hampshire College.

Last chance for senior pictures

This is the last chance for seniors to have their pictures included in the 1977 INDEX. Appointments are now being taken to have your pictures done between now and April 22, which is the last day our photographer will be here. Make your appointment now by calling 545-2874 or come to the 9th floor Campus Center between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

★ Elections

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

and ability as qualifications which he implied were lacking in Kerrins.

"We're talking about a person who has the most influence in dealing with the budget. The treasurer should be a person that inspires confidence and trust. In the past few years everyone has wondered what swaps and what deals were going on. I don't think Jay Milender will be a treasurer such rumors will revolve around," said Martus.

After his re-election Kerrins said he felt "relaxed".

In response to his loss Milender said, "You ain't seen the last of Jay Scott Milender."

6
NOW SERVING
MEXICAN FOOD!
VILLAGE INN
OPENING SPECIAL
TAMALE DINNER, 2.75
Mexican drinks are doubles (with dinner).
DRAKE
Tel. 253-2548

WAYNE BURNS
Fri. & Sat. April 1 & 2
JOHN LITTLEPAW
Sun. April 3
MOUNTAIN LIFE

25c Drafts M-F 6-8 p.m.

RAHAR'S
FOOD DRINK LODGING

OPEN 11-1 DAILY • 12-1 SUNDAYS

VISIT OUR GAME ROOM
7 Old South St. • Northampton
ACROSS FROM Peter Pan Bus Terminal

DID YOU KNOW THAT THIS NEWSPAPER IS PRINTED ON 100% RECYLABLE PAPER? THE RECYLING PEOJECT REMINDS YOU TO PLEASE RECYCLE YOUR PAPER AND GLASS

FOR INFORMATION

CALL THE RECYCLING PROJECT AT

545-0618

C & C LIQUORS
NEXT TO TOWN HALL, AMHERST

STROGOFF VODKA
80 proof $ .75 qt.

JIM BEAM BOURBON
80 proof 6.29

TUBORG $6.25
12 oz. cans

RIUNITE LAMBRUSCO
2.29 fifth

Notice of Public Hearing

Notice is hereby given that the Pioneer Valley Transit Authority will hold a public hearing Thursday, April 7, 1977, at 6:30 p.m. in the Springfield City Hall, Room 218, on the proposed subsidy agreement with Peter Pan Bus Lines, Inc.; authority for Peter Pan Bus Lines, Inc. to operate on Main Street, Springfield; and to allow the Springfield-Agawam Bus Company to operate on Vernon and Court Street, Springfield.

BY ORDER OF THE PIONEER VALLEY TRANSIT AUTHORITY
TERRY E. TORNEK
Administrator

Just in Time for Warm Weather
ORDER NOW

$4.95

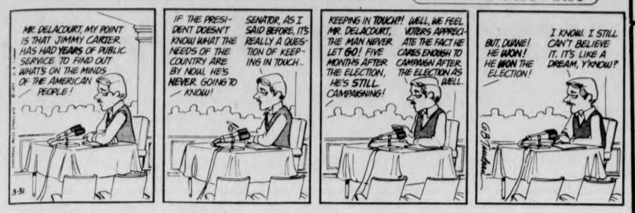
IF you dare...
"Biggest MAN ON CAMPUS"
Your DORM ...OR Mine?

SEND TO:
HOLLAND COOKE
P.O. BOX 328
SEEKONK, MASS. 02771
PLEASE PRINT

NAME ______________________
ADDRESS ______________________
CITY STATE ZIP
HOW MANY OF EACH?
"Biggest Man" XL ____ L ____ M ____ S ____
"Your Dorm" XL ____ L ____ M ____ S ____

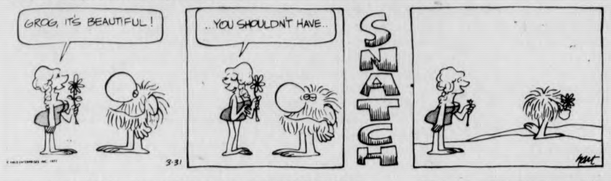
DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Valley
29 S. Pleasant St.
call 256 6736
M F 10 6 S 10-2



MR. DELACOURT, MY POINT IS THAT JIMMY CARTER HAS HAD YEARS OF PUBLIC SERVICE TO FIND OUT WHAT'S ON THE MINDS OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE!
IF THE PRESIDENT DOESN'T KNOW WHAT THE NEEDS OF THE COUNTRY ARE BY NOW, HE'S NEVER GOING TO KNOW!
SENATOR, AS I SAID BEFORE, IT'S REALLY A QUESTION OF KEEPING IN TOUCH..
KEEPING IN TOUCH?! MR. DELACOURT, THE MAN NEVER LET GO! FIVE MONTHS AFTER THE ELECTION, HE'S STILL CAMPAIGNING!
WELL, WE FEEL VOTERS APPRECIATE THE FACT HE CARES ENOUGH TO CAMPAIGN AFTER THE ELECTION AS WELL.
BUT, DUANE! HE WON! HE WON THE ELECTION!
I KNOW. I STILL CAN'T BELIEVE IT. IT'S LIKE A DREAM, Y'KNOW?
3-31
GBTrudeau

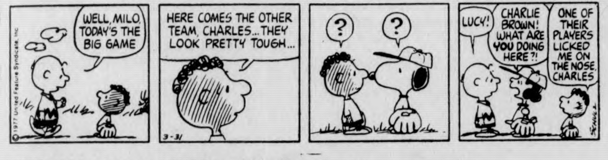
B.C. by Johnny Hart



GROG, IT'S BEAUTIFUL!
...YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE..
SNATCH
3-31
hart

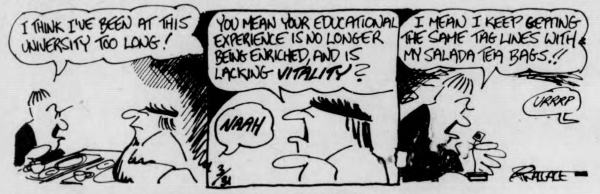
PEANUTS by Charles M. Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



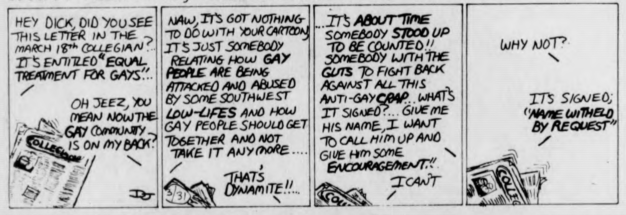
WELL, MILO, TODAY'S THE BIG GAME
HERE COMES THE OTHER TEAM, CHARLES... THEY LOOK PRETTY TOUGH...
?
?
LUCY!
CHARLIE BROWN! WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE?!
ONE OF THEIR PLAYERS LICKED ME ON THE NOSE, CHARLES
3-31
SCHULZ

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



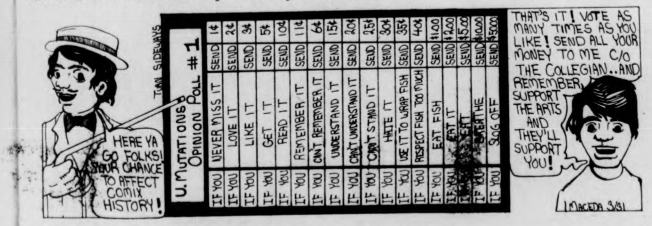
I THINK I'VE BEEN AT THIS UNIVERSITY TOO LONG!
YOU MEAN YOUR EDUCATIONAL EXPERIENCE IS NO LONGER BEING ENRICHED, AND IS LACKING VITALITY?
NAAH
I MEAN I KEEP GETTING THE SAME TAG LINES WITH MY SALADA TEA BAGS!!
URRRP
3/31
WALLACE

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



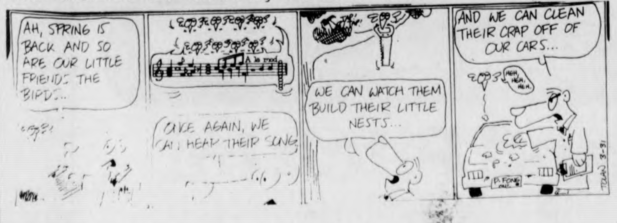
HEY DICK, DID YOU SEE THIS LETTER IN THE MARCH 18th COLLEGIAN? IT'S ENTITLED "EQUAL TREATMENT FOR GAYS"...
OH JEEZ, YOU MEAN NOW THE GAY COMMUNITY IS ON MY BACK?
NAW, IT'S GOT NOTHING TO DO WITH YOUR CARTOON, IT'S JUST SOMEBODY RELATING HOW GAY PEOPLE ARE BEING ATTACKED AND ABUSED BY SOME SOUTHWEST LOW-LIFES AND HOW GAY PEOPLE SHOULD GET TOGETHER AND NOT TAKE IT ANYMORE....
THAT'S DYNAMITE!!...
...IT'S ABOUT TIME SOMEBODY STOOD UP TO BE COUNTED!! SOMEBODY WITH THE GUTS TO FIGHT BACK AGAINST ALL THIS ANTI-GAY CRAP... WHAT'S IT SIGNED?... GIVE ME HIS NAME, I WANT TO CALL HIM UP AND GIVE HIM SOME ENCOURAGEMENT!!
I CAN'T
WHY NOT?
IT'S SIGNED; "NAME WITHELD BY REQUEST"
3/31

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



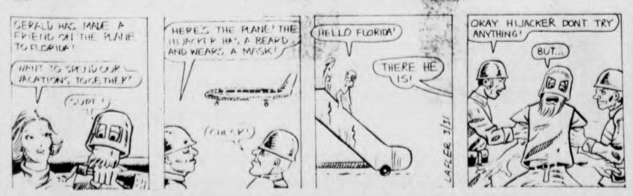
HERE YA GO FOLKS! YOUR CHANCE TO AFFECT COMIX HISTORY!
TURN SIDEWAYS
U.MUTATIONS OPINION POLL #1
IF YOU NEVER MISS IT SEND 1¢
IF YOU LOVE IT SEND 2¢
IF YOU LIKE IT SEND 3¢
IF YOU GET IT SEND 5¢
IF YOU READ IT SEND 10¢
IF YOU REMEMBER IT SEND 11¢
IF YOU CAN'T REMEMBER IT SEND 6¢
IF YOU UNDERSTAND IT SEND 15¢
IF YOU CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT SEND 20¢
IF YOU CAN'T STAND IT SEND 25¢
IF YOU HATE IT SEND 30¢
IF YOU USE IT TO WRAP FISH SEND 35¢
IF YOU RESPECT FISH TOO MUCH SEND 40¢
IF YOU EAT FISH SEND $1.00
IF YOU EAT IT SEND $2.00
SEND $5.00
IF YOU SWEAT THE SEND $10.00
IF YOU SLOG OFF SEND $50.00
THAT'S IT! VOTE AS MANY TIMES AS YOU LIKE! SEND ALL YOUR MONEY TO ME C/O THE COLLEGIAN..AND REMEMBER, SUPPORT THE ARTS AND THEY'LL SUPPORT YOU!
MACEDA 3/31

THE SCENT OF MAN by Peter Tolan



AH, SPRING IS BACK AND SO ARE OUR LITTLE FRIENDS THE BIRDS...
ONCE AGAIN, WE CAN HEAR THEIR SONG
A la mod
WE CAN WATCH THEM BUILD THEIR LITTLE NESTS...
AND WE CAN CLEAN THEIR CRAP OFF OF OUR CARS...
HEH, HEH, HEH.
TOLAN 3-31

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



GERALD HAS MADE A FRIEND ON THE PLANE TO FLORIDA!
WANT TO SPEND OUR VACATIONS TOGETHER?
SURE!
HERE'S THE PLANE! THE HIJACKER HAS A BEARD AND WEARS A MASK!
CHECK!
HELLO FLORIDA!
THERE HE IS!
LAFLER 3/31
OKAY HIJACKER DONT TRY ANYTHING!
BUT...

Local Television

6:00 3 8 22 30 NEWS
24 TV COMMUNITY COLLEGE — MAN BUILDS, MAN DESTROYS
40 GUNSMOKE "One for the Road"
57 ZOOM
6:30 18 SPORTS ONLY
24 CLASSIC THEATRE PREVIEW
57 ONCE UPON A CLASSIC
6:55 40 NEWS
7:00 3 22 40 NEWS
8 CONCENTRATION
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
30 THE CROSS-WITS
57 IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS
7:30 3 DOUBLE PLAY
8 THE MUPPET SHOW
22 HOLLYWOOD SQUARES
24 CONNECTICUT
30 GROUP HOMES: AN ALTERNATIVE SOLUTIONS
40 THAT GIRL "Dan, Sandy, Harry and Snoopy"
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 THE WALTONS
8 40 WELCOME BACK KOTTER "The Fight"
22 30 THE FANTASTIC JOURNEY "Funhouse"
24 CONNECTICUT HERITAGE
8 40 WHAT'S HAPPENING "From H Maternity"
24 THE FOURTH ESTATE
9:00 3 HAWAII FIVE
8 40 BARNEY MILLER
22 30 NBC'S BEST SELLER: CAPTAINS
KINGS
24 57 CLASSIC THEATRE "The Rivals"
38 MOVIE "Jesse James"
9:30 8 40 THREE'S COMPANY "Roper's Nie
10:00 3 BARNABY JONES
8 40 WESTSIDE MEDICAL
10:30 27 THE ELDER AMERICAN
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
57 MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN
11:30 3 CBS LATE MOVIE "Kojak: Last Rit Dead Priest"
8 40 THURSDAY NIGHT SPECIAL "Gregory
A Living Biography"
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
57 CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS
12:30 3 MOVIE "The House that Dripped Bl
1:00 8 40 NEWS
22 30 TOMORROW
1:30 3 NEWS, WEATHER
2:00 22 30 NEWS

Your Birthday by Stella Wilder

Thursday, March 31 — Born today, you are an impatient person who has little tolerance for those who lack the discipline it takes to be prompt. You yourself are always on time; indeed, you make such a habit of promptness that you might almost be said to make a fetish of it. Generally concerned about your health, you find it difficult to relax and let the world go by. You keep yourself on edge most of the time worrying about the rightness of what you intend to do or what you have already done. You make few allowances for yourself -- though you seem to understand the reasons for the errors you make -- being insistent upon being right the first time and all the time. Such demands may cause you considerably more strain than is good for you; it may also however, bring you considerably more than average success.

Although you are a person of no little imagination, you are not especially talented or practiced in the art of imagining. Fancy and fact are two things you keep strictly separate, for you have no wish to encourage yourself in a false sense of security -- or anything else -- through the employment of wishful thinking or the wearing of rose-colored glasses. What you may fail to realize, however, is that fantasy manifests itself in other things besides wishful thinking and colored viewpoints; fantasy is also the mother of idea. Make an effort to encourage fantasy in that direction and you may be glad you did.

You are quick to look into new proposals for gain -- but you are extremely thorough in your investigation and will leave no stone unturned in your effort to make certain of the direction in which you will go should you embark on a given project or endeavor. You do not like to be surprised by foul circumstance.

* * *

Friday, April 1

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Turn the tables on one who has been attempting to lessen your effectiveness lately. Thwart his efforts spoil your plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — A change in your method of operation could make all the difference to your financial future. Don't be distressed by a family quarrel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Marital difficulties may result from a difference of opinion early in the day. Children may have the best of things today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Cooperative effort brings you the kind of gain you've been hoping for. Alarm over another's failure may cause failure of your own.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Problems connected with parents or in-laws make it more difficult than usual to get through the day without some mental or emotional upset.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — This is not destined to be the happiest of days. Do what you can to help another to the fulfillment of an old ambition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — The urge to speculate with your own and another's mon resisted. If you succ may regret it before y SCORPIO (Oct. 23-N Assure another of the of your plan of attack. you may be causing cern in others than wish.

SAGITTARIUS (Dec. 21) — This is on slow days during wh difficulties are iron though perhaps more than you might wish.

CAPRICORN (De 19) — Turn your atten fulfilling of purpose. mise of success in the future carries you difficult hours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. — Your intuition shou ciently well develope you out of trouble to your peace with a pe fluence.

PISCES (Feb. 19-M You may find yourself more unsettled as progresses. Plans for a scene may have to be

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate

SURF ADAM ACTOR
ALEE LIVE CLOVE
LACEPAPER TAPES
ATOLL RIP SERT
DEREISM TOES
DREWUP PRINTS
TRI RISES SCORE
HAND MITER STEN
URGES CEDAR GET DESERT RECEDE
RAIL RECANES
PITH CAM ARENA
ATHOL BADSPIRAL
SCARE OREL NATO
THINS RELY GLEN

ACROSS
1 Brooch
6 African grass
10 River bank
14 Five: Prefix
15 In the near future
16 Man in Genesis
17 Earth tremor
19 The south of France
20 Mr. Brodie, to his mother
21 Leaves: 2 words
23 Resume
25 View
26 Time of year
27 Finland port
29 Sailors: Informal
31 Southeast Asia holiday
33 Card game
34 Leave hastily: Informal
36 Chief in India
40 Pack down tightly
42 One-night -----
44 Pianist Peter ----
45 Thing of value
47 Kay -----
49 Poetic contraction
50 Sports arbitrator: Informal
52 Foil's relative
53 E. Indian fabric
54 Relevant
57 Spanish article
59 Zestfulness
61 Aircraft
64 Fata Morgana, for one
67 Blanch
68 Bargain
70 Ending with Hel and Rub
71 Irish-Gaelic
72 Turgenev heroine
73 Coin
74 Ruminant animal
75 Stets' opposites

....

1 Auditors: Abbr.
2 Remaining
3 Reception areas
4 Man's nickname
5 Fathers or mothers
6 Mountain ---: Tree
7 Closed circuit
8 Photographer's concern
9 Kind of sock
10 NFL team
11 Specialized vocabulary
[illegible]lian city
[illegible]ndship
[illegible]ks
[illegible]nning
[illegible]ook
24 Court orders
27 Where Calgary is: Abbr.
28 Pythons
30 Sudden outpouring
32 Shade of brown
35 Utters abruptly
37 Transportation means: 2 words
38 Tune
39 Multitude
41 By means of 43 Visionary
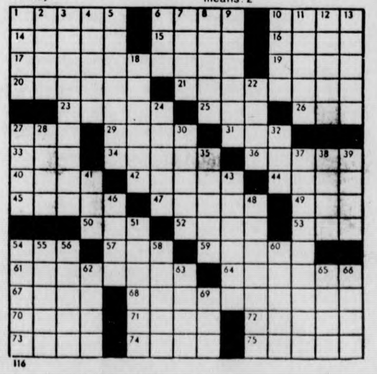
46 Have an effect
48 Amended
51 Frothed
54 Savory jelly
55 W. Canadian river
56 Bird's claw
58 Nocturnal sound
60 Scarflike vestment
62 Shut up
63 Noun ending
65 Footballer ---- Washington
66 Historic periods
69 Poetic contraction



116

UNANIMOU
"MAGNIFICENT."
—Leonard Harris, CBS
"FASCINATING."
—Gene Shalit, NBC
"★★★★!"
—Kathleen Car
N.Y. N
"DO ANYTHING T SEE IT!"
—Vogue Maga
"MEMORABLE . . passionate and stirring."
—A. H. Weiler, N.Y. Ti
"WONDERFUL."
—Bernard D
Gannett Newspap
"MEMORABLE . .
GREAT!"
—Kevin Sand
ABC

LOVE &
ANARCH
WRITTEN AND DIRECTE
LINA WERTMULLE
A HERBERT R. STE
BILLY BAXTER
PRESENTATION
WINNER INTERNATIONAL BEST ACTOR CANNES FILM FESTIVAL
TECHNICOLOR
Sunday April
CCA 7,9,11
$1.00

But win Can-Am meet

Skiwomen have ups and downs

By RICHARD MOORE
Collegian Staff

"Overall we had a good year, but I think we could have won our league" — UMass women's ski team coach Steve Tonelli.

The Minutewomen raced to wins in their first three Women's Intercollegiate Ski Conference meets, but fell apart in the last two WISC races and lost the league title to Boston University.

UMass' early season success was a result of good solid team skiing; each woman was skiing under control and finishing close enough to the top to assure a team win.

"We were exceptional in the beginning of the year," Tonelli said, "but we stopped skiing as a team and faded a little in the middle of the season."

Although they didn't win the WISC, the Minutewomen were one of 15 colleges in the country invited to the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women's first national ski meet at Stowe, Vermont.

The Minutewomen finished 11th, a very respectful showing considering the caliber of competition. They were up against national powers like Denver, Utah, Michigan, Dartmouth and Vermont — all colleges that invest more time and money in their ski programs than UMass does.

"Getting invited to the nationals was a real honor," Tonelli said, "and our girls went back to skiing as a team and skied up to their potential."

The Minutewomen ended the season in top-notch form, winning the Canadian-American meet, which was held the week before Spring Vacation at Waterville Valley, New Hampshire.

Eleven colleges competed in the two day meet, eight Canadian and three American, and the Minutewomen were far and away the class of the event, scoring 116 points. The University of Toronto was second with 103 points and Western Ontario University was third with 94 points.

The Minutewomen raced to a nearly unbeatable 19-point lead in the meet's opening giant slalom race.

Andrea Esson of Toronto took top honors, Minutewoman Nancy Hayden was second and Patsy Chaumers of Western Ontario finished third. Minutewomen co-captains Kathy Shinnick and Kathy Donovan finished fourth and eleventh, respectively.

"The girls skied real well in the giant slalom," Tonelli said, "and with that 19-point lead all they had to do the second day was stay on their skis and not fall down."

"The conditions were terrible," Tonelli added. "It poured rain and there was no snow, but the girls made the best of it."

The Minutewomen weren't as overpowering in the slalom, finishing third behind Toronto and Western Ontario, but Shinnick, Donovan and Hayden finished eighth, 13th and 14th respectively — and that was enough to assure the Can-Am win.

Toronto's Esson swept to another first in the slalom, Jo An Clifford of McGill University was second and Tracy Newlove of Boston University finished third.

"The competition was good," Tonelli said, "but nothing like what it was in the nationals".

"The Canadians are good skiers, but they don't have as tough a schedule in their leagues as we do."

Tonelli credited the Minutewomen's late season resurgence to the helpful advice and guidance of men's coach Bill MacConnell.

"We have coach MacConnell and his philosophy of team skiing to thank for our success in the Can-Ams," Tonelli said.

"He got us skiing under control again, and that's the whole secret to having a good team."

The Minutewomen aren't losing anyone to graduation and should be a squad to reckon with next year.

"We may move into division two next year. There are 12 teams and the competition is a lot tougher than the WISC, but I'm confident that we can handle it," Tonelli said.

FINANCIAL AID

Get excellent commissions and sales experience as a Carpet Cat mini-floor and carpet sweeper representative. No fees or quotas required to get started. For details: Scott Annand 6-6926 helping him develop into the significant competitor.

★ Kulakoff's dream

CONT. FROM PAGE 16

"Bob was an expert in the routine," he said, "and he helped me tremendously. Also, I think that Dick Swetman did a great job here this year. He is a real fine coach."

Kulakoff came to UMass in 1974 when he was recruited by former Minuteman coach Tom Dunn. Shortly after he came here, he almost decided to transfer because of the cutbacks in the men's gymnastics program.

"I was strongly considering transferring," he said, "but I decided to stay because I really like the school. As it turned out, I never regret making the decision to stay."

Still only a junior, Kulakoff has a bright future ahead of him.

"Dave is one of the hardest workers on the team," men's coach Dick Swetman said earlier this year. "We can always count on Dave to give us his usual strong performances each meet."

He may have not gotten a good night's sleep last night, but one thing is for certain. There are a lot of people at UMass who are proud of his accomplishments.

★ Batters

CONT. FROM PAGE 15

while Lec Kalinowski and Skribiski will share third base. Veteran Jim Cullen holds down the shortstop position.

The outfield situation is as wide open as the infield depending on who moves to the infield. Paul Abramowicz, George Kelley, Bob Alves, Lojek, McEvilly, and Welenc should all see action.

It sounds confusing, but the other three teams have been experiencing similar difficulties. SMU, New Hampshire, and Northeastern are not highly regarded teams this season, mainly because of their inexperience.

SMU has been rapidly upgrading its baseball program in the last few years, but lack of pitching consistency has presented problems this season. The Division Three Corsairs have lost to strong Division one teams like Rutgers and Princeton in compiling an 0-7 record.

New Hampshire also had little success in its southern trip. A [illegible] rebuilding program last season resulted in limited Yankee Conference success, and the Wildcats are only 1-5 this season.

Northeastern has yet to play this season. The Huskies are optimistic with experienced infielders and outfielders. The Huskies will be depending on freshman and sophomore pitchers, however.

Bergquist looks at the tourney as a [illegible] opportunity to experiment. "[illegible] the games count," he said, "[illegible] still feel like this is a [illegible] tournament."

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS

Asti Spumanti	Liebfraumilch	AMABILE LAMBRUSCO
10.5 per cent vol.	10 per cent vol.	8.5 [illegible] vol.
$2.99	$1.79	$ 1.59
24 oz.	23 oz.	24 Oz.

ICE COLD KEG BEER $20.00 and up

Unlimited Quantities on all Sales Items   No Extra for Delivery
Amherst's closest liquor store to UMass Campus

In Amherst Ctr., Across from the Village Green   253-5441

Get out and Pitch In!

National College "Pitch In!" Week sponsored by Budweiser® and ABC Radio is April 18 - 22.

All you have to do is get out and Pitch In! Get your fraternity, sorority or organization to pick up or paint up on campus or in your community. Then document your efforts with snapshots, films, press coverage, reports or diaries.

Pitch In!

Your group can really aid the community, and the best projects are eligible for some terrific educational awards and commemorative "Pitch In!" T-shirts. So, please, get out and Pitch In! Help make this year's campaign the best ever.

For more information: Contact your Dean of Student Activities or write to "Pitch In!" Week, Dept. C, ABC Radio, 1330 Avenue of Americas, New York, NY 10019.

KING OF BEERS® • ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC.   (Void where prohibited by law)

UMUA

MANAGEMENT
BOARD ELECTIONS
7:30 P.M. TONIGHT
C.C 174
MANDATORY
STATION MEETING

Friday April 1
'Summer of '42'
7,9,11pm
Mahar Aud.
$1.00

Collegian Staff Meeting

All staff members are urged to attend.

Monday April 4
903 Campus Center
7:30pm.

Spirit Haus Liquor Store

Open Daily till 11 p.m.
Amherst Largest Full Service Liquor Store

THIS WEEK'S SPECIALS

TUBORG Beer 12 oz. cans	$5.69 a case
FALSTAFF	$5.25 a case
Old Milwaukee Beer 12 oz. cans	$5.59 case
COTT Ginger Ale Qts.	2 for 79¢
Club Soda Tonic Case of Qts.	$4.39
PEPSI 2 qt. bottles	79¢
PEPSI case of qt.	$4.39

SHAFFER $5.49 CASE OF 12OZ. CANS

EASTER SPECIAL
10% OFF ALL GERMANWINES

OVER STOCK WINES

Mateuse	$3.29 fifth
Lake Niagara	$2.19 fifth
Nectar Rose	$2.39 fifth
Paul Masson Sangria	$1.29 fifth
Opici Lambrusco	$1.49 fifth
Inglenook	$5.99 gal.
Growers	$3.99 gal.
Riunite Lambrusco	$2.29 fifth

Large assortment of kegs.
We have over 90 brands of imported beer
(Mix your own variety six pack)

338 College St. Rt. 9 Amherst 253-5384
Not responsible for typographical errors.

UMass batsmen open north slate in SMU tourney

By JOHN LOWNEY
Collegian Staff

Who's on first? What's on second? I don't know's on third. Abbott and Costello must have had the present UMass baseball team in mind when they created that comedy routine.

The Minutemen will continue to experiment with different combinations as they open their Northern schedule at Southeastern Massachusetts University's Corsair Tournament on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

UMass used three catchers and numerous infield and outfield lineups in Florida last week, but the Minutemen still managed to defeat highly-ranked Miami and Southern Illinois en route to a 3-6 record.

The Minutemen didn't knock down any fences in the collegiate Grapefruit League, and their fielding was inconsistent, but UMass held its own against teams which had already been playing for several weeks.

The saviors for the Minutemen were the strong pitching arms of Jeff Reardon, Tom Nigro, Doug Welenc, Jerry Erb and Chris Kirby.

UMass coach Dick Bergquist commented, "The Southern teams couldn't get over how Nigro and Reardon were firing hard sliders over the plate."

These two righthanders will open the double elimination tournament. Either Welenc or Erb, or both if UMass must play four games, will follow against host SMU, New Hampshire and Northeastern.

The pitching staff is solid, but the remainder of the lineup is full of question marks. Bergquist has been inserting several players in the disappointing catcher and first base positions.

He has been using outfielder Neil Lojek at catcher during practice this week. "I wasn't satisfied with our catching in Florida," Bergquist said, "and now that (John) Czerapowicz has developed a sore arm, we need help."

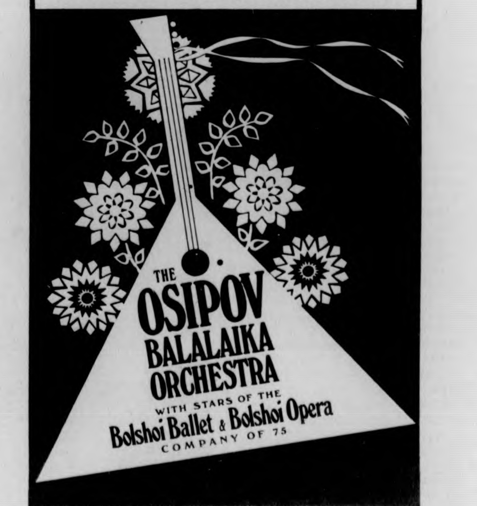
Injuries have also produced the first base revolving door. Dale Stone is still limping after pulling an upper leg muscle, so Bergquist will try outfielder Mike McEvilly and pitcher Welenc at the initial sack.

Both Ed Skribiski and Mike Stockley will work at second base

TURN TO PAGE 14

HARRY CHAPIN
SOLD OUT
Concert!
Smith
J.M. Greene Hall
9:30 p.m.
$6.00
gen. admiss.
Tickets at:
TICKETRON-U.MASS
FACES OF EARTH-
AMHERST

University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS



MONDAY, APRIL 4   8 PM
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL

Tickets now on sale. $7, 6, 5. UM-A - $5, 4, 3. Other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE   545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Gymwomen at Nationals

By LAURA BASSETT
Collegian Staff

A five-day trip to Mt. Pleasant, Michigan may not sould like a very thrilling trip to most people, but to the women's gymnastics team it's very exciting.

For the Minutemen it means a chance to compete with the nation's top teams vying for the national championship. Their excitement is understandable. On Friday and Saturday, Central Michigan University will be hosting 16 of the best collegiate gymnastics teams in the competition. Excitement comes to Mt. Pleasant.

For dedicated gymnastic fans it comes as no surprise that UMass will again be competing for a national championship. Last year's seventh place finish at the nationals was the first time in six years that the gymwomen have finished out of the top four teams.

Six straight years in national championships but each season is "entirely different," according to UMass coach Virginia Evans. She believes that this year's squad may be the best she's ever had, yet qualifying for the Nationals was not automatic. UMass finished third in the Easterns and had to wait for an at-large selection.

Clarion State won the Eastern Region and received the automatic. UMass finished third at the Easterns and had to wait for an at-large selection.

Clarion State won the Eastern Region and received the automatic qualifying bid while second place finisher Penn State also received an at-large position.

"Competing at the Nationals is definitely an honorable culmination of the season, the competition is very tough of course, but it is good to continually be right at the top of the best," Evans said.

UMass has been ranked fourth in the competition, a mark the team is pleased about. Considering that the gymwomen were not one of the nine automatically qualifying teams, their pleasure is justifiable.

Clarion has been given the top seed with its season high total of 149.0 points. Cal State-Fulleraton is ranked second just ahead of Penn State. Just .4 of a point separate the number two and three ranked teams. After UMass are Southern Illinois, Southwest Missouri, Southern Cal and Arizona State in the top eight.

Some new faces were seen on the team this year and they have been instrumental in the squad's success. Stephanie Jones, Jill Heggie, and Karen Hemberger all came to UMass last fall and now fill three of four very important all around positions on the team.

Jones began the season recuperating from an injury but has grown stronger with every meet. During the Easterns she finished fifth in the all-around competition and her 36.65 point total earned her a tenth place ranking nationally.

Heggie, a sophomore, was elected the captain of the squad and adds a combination of spirit and strength to the team. Late in the semester she ran into some consistency problems but recovered to finish ninth individually. Both Heggie and Jones were named to the 16 member All-East team for their performances at the regionals.

Hemberger has been bothered by an ankle injury all season and suffered another injury during spring vacation practices. The second sprain was placed in a cast to rest it thoroughly and when the cast was removed on Monday she was miraculously recovered.

Hemberger will now definitely see action as an all around competitor. Her ankle will be heavily taped for preventitive reasons and her routines will be slightly modified though remaining at superior levels.

Junior Susan Cantwell is the fourth UMass all-around competitor and the 'seasoned pro' on the team. She already has two national championship appearances behind her as a Minutewomen and with favorable results.

As a freshman she was named an All-American and this year she surpassed her own personal bests at the Eastern Regionals. She finished eight individually and is expected to come through again in Mt. Pleasant.

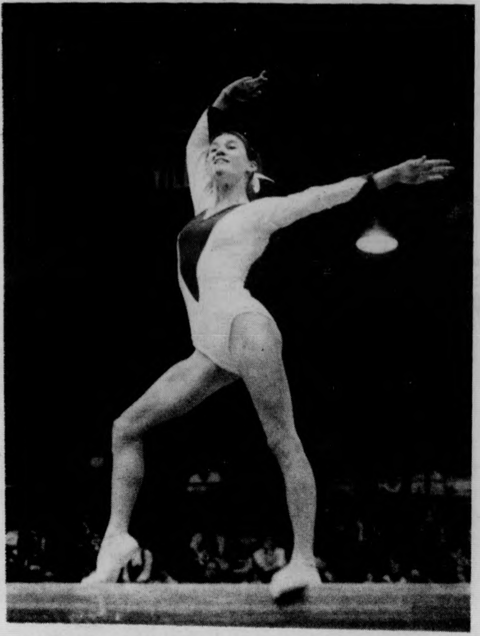
As an extra bonus this year, the top 12 finishers in the all-around competition will qualify for the World University Game trials.

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed for Stephanie, Jill and Susan to qualify for the games trials, that's a big thing right now," assistant coach John Calabria said.

"For the team to finish in the top five and placing at least one and hopefully all three in the games trials would be crowning point for the season," Calabria added.

Ann Carr of Penn State is top ranked in the individual competition with a 38.10 qualifying point total. Carrie Englert and Connie Jo Israel of Clarion are right behind, though, and offer the greatest challenge to Carr. Israel is the defending national champion and Englert was a member of the 1976 United States Olympic team.

"It's going to be exciting," said Evans mildly. Mt. Pleasant could turn out to be an exciting place after all.



Stephanie Jones should be one of the top all-around performers for the UMass women's gymnastics team in the Nationals this weekend. (Staff photo by Rob Carlin)

Kulakoff's dream comes true; competes in Nationals tonight

By NICK KOTSOPOULOS
Collegian Staff

When Dave Kulakoff steps out onto the floor of the gymnasium at Arizona State University tonight, it will be the culmination of a life-long dream.

Kulakoff, a junior on the UMass men's gymnastics team, is one of the many outstanding gymnasts who will compete in the National Championships in Tempe, Arizona beginning tonight.

"It's like a dream come true," said the soft-spoken Kulakoff. "This is something you strive for from the beginning of the season and it just makes you feel good to see all the hard work pay off in the end.

"I know I won't be able to eat or sleep the night before the meet. I always get that way before a big meet and this is by far the biggest one of my life. To think that your whole season's work depends on how you perform for 30 seconds just scares me."

Kulakoff, a Business Administration major from Long Island, qualified for his spot in the nationals by placing first in the sidehorse competition at the Eastern Championships earlier this month.

Not only did he finish first with an average score of 9.3, but he completely outdistanced his opponents in points. Because of his outstanding effort in the Eastern Championships, Kulakoff is currently ranked sixth in the nation in the sidehorse event.

"In order to get where I am today," he said, "I had to do a lot of routines over and over again in practice. There is a lot of self-discipline in gymnastics, but if you stay with what you are doing, it will pay off for you in the end.

Kulakoff displayed amazing consistency throughout the regular season meets. In eight out of the team's 10 meets, he scored a 9.0 or better in the sidehorse.

However, the sidehorse is not his only event. Kulakoff also competes in the parallel bars competition. He doesn't score as high in the parallel bars as he does on the sidehorse, but nevertheless he is still one of the top performers in that event for the UMass men gymnasts.

"I am much better on the sidehorse," he said. "Even though the sidehorse is one of the hardest events in gymnastics I feel more comfortable in that event than in the parallel bars.

"However, I don't have the talent to be an all-around performer. I was an all-arounder in high school, but when I came to UMass I decided to specialize in the sidehorse and the parallel bars."

Kulakoff, a slender 5'10" but very muscular in his arms, credits last year's coach Bob Koenig for

TURN TO PAGE 14

High scoring Mickey Menna (14) will lead his lacrosse teammates against NCAA champion Cornell Saturday at 2 p.m. on the field behind Boyden. (Staff photo by Jay Saret)

Bill Edelstein

The 'root' of the problem?

The novel Roots has had quite a profound effect upon our society. So much so that everyone and his great-great-grandmother can now be seen going over his personal past with a fine-toothed comb.

These family tree surgeons, unfortunately, are concerned only with their separate heritages, and so the true beginnings of various discoveries remain relatively unknown.

Granted, there has been much written that supposedly traces the origins of sports developments, but these "documents" are little more than old wives' tales being circulated by the spouses of old historians.

Happily, after minutes upon minutes of ceaseless investigation, some accurate facts are now ready to be reported on the subject of sports origins. We will concentrate on our timely efforts upon springtime gaming.

Lacrosse — The only error made by the researcher who deemed the American Indians the originators of this sport is that he prematurely decided his work was complete.

A crude form of lacrosse can be traced to biblical times. In those days, a common form of physical exertion was to find a heretic, position him against a wall, and then throw rocks at the wall. The heretic's job was simply to prevent the rocks from striking the wall.

History relates that although the average heretic was a phenomenal wall-keeper, he rarely made more than ten saves a game.

Baseball — Abner Doubleday was nothing more than the archaic name of an unsuccessful magazine publishing company run by Charles C. ("Bud") Abner and Franklin W. Doubleday.

Abner had a terrible drinking problem, and the company's profits went to supporting his habit. (In fact, Bud Abner had such a voracious need for alcohol that it prompted St. Louis Cardinals owner Gussie Busch to name a brand of beer after the late publisher's moniker.) After Abner's death, Doubleday began publishing books and became an instant millionaire.

Baseball itself was discovered by a turnip farmer in Dubuque. During one of the more intense hailstorms of the growing season, the farmer, Orville Crop, lamented to his 18 farmhands that "the hailstones are as big as baseballs." One of the farmhands then picked up a rake, swung at one of the pieces of refrozen rain and tripled to the opposite field. The rest is history.

Golf — Contrary to popular belief, William Howard Taft was not the first president of the United States to play golf. The first President-golfer was also the first President. Yes, George Washington gained a certain amount of fame by making a disgusting approach shot and then proceeding to senselessly hack to death an innocent cherry tree with his nine-iron.

The man who founded the game of golf was actually a boy. In 1732, the son of Ernest and Julia Bunker had just received a gas-powered lawn mower for his twelfth birthday. Bunker's brainchild was to earn a living mowing other people's lawns. The boy soon discovered that gasoline was not cheap, and in order to make a decent profit, he would have to raise his rates.

1732, however, was a depression year, so young Sandy devised a plan to increase volume while keeping his service competitive. He dug holes in his neighbors' lawns, incorporated himself, and charged a group rate. He named his creation after his seaside corporation — the Gulf course.

Later that same year, one of the mower's blades broke on a stone, inspiring the neighbors to endearingly refer to Sandy as "the little rocky feller". After the machine was repaired, the lad changed the name of the course to the "Standard Oil of New Jersey."

WORTHLESS PULL-OUT GUIDE — INSIDE

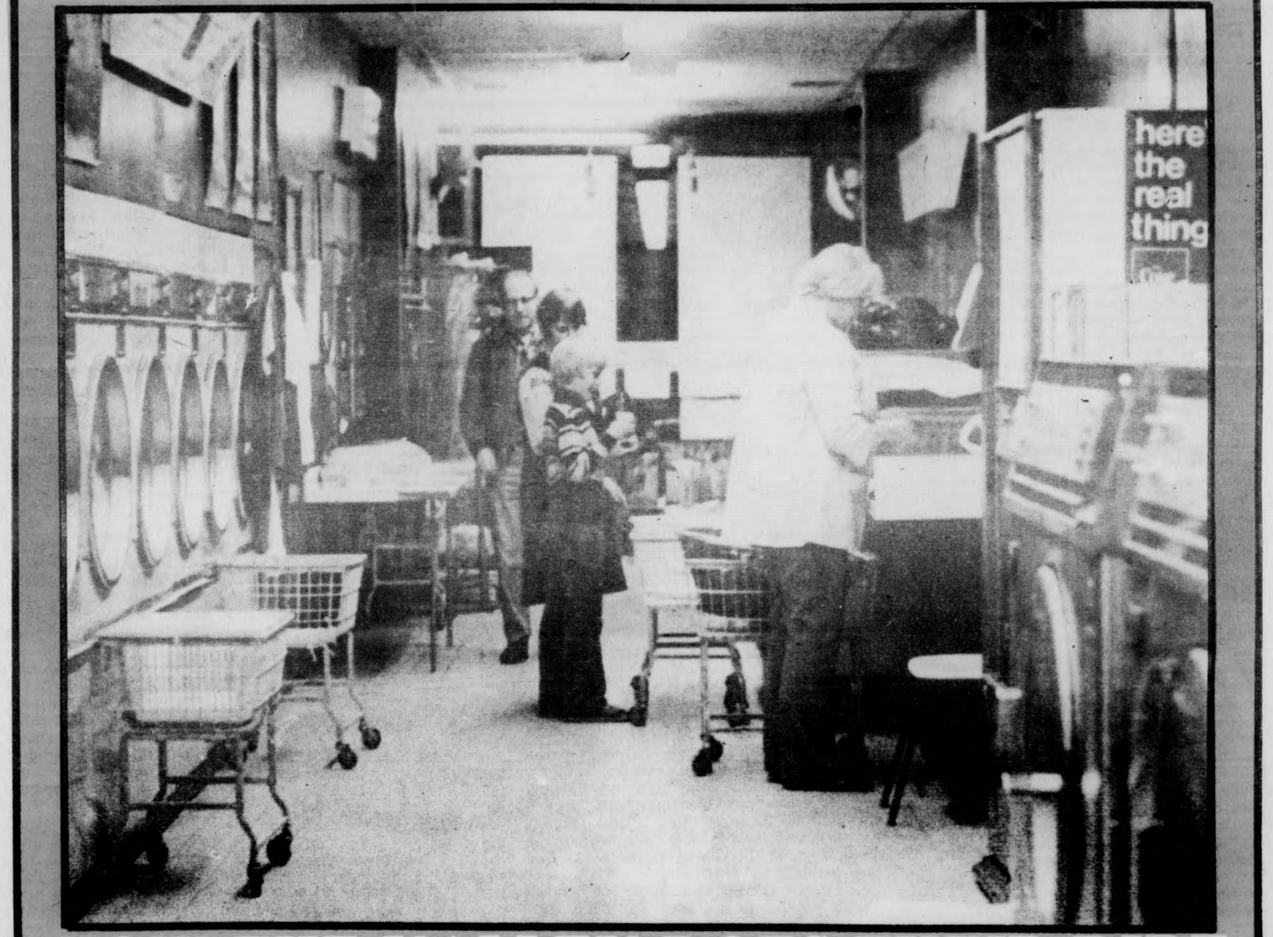
Vol. I / Issue 1 / March 31, 1977
supplement to the Collegian

VALLEY Avocado

The Alternative Shopper in the Valley

Amherst/Northampton/Greenfield

FREE
Who'd pay for this?



HOW THE VALLEY DOES THEIR DIRT

'It is surely clear to us by now: the CIA is in complete control of each and every laundramat in the Valley...'

AVOCADO'S OWN BANANA MUSH FALLS FOR

BELLA CRABZUG

'I'm a strong and courageous leader...If I were a man I'd be abrasive, feisty, and flamboyant; a real chauvanist!'

Is it just a state of mind?

ALTERNATIVE AGGRESSION IN HIGH SCHOOL

Prestone Crawla checks it out.

VALLEY Avocado
Volume I Issue 1
March 31, 1977

Whitewash!
The CIA and domestic dirt

By Maxime Marxim

Oh woe! The dirt how it clings
To my shirt and the grease it won't letta go.
I wash and I scrub bent over
This tub, my anguish you'll just never know!
Laundramat life, the pain, the strife,
From wash to rinse to spin
If blood be the means by which I cleans
It's not bleach that I've poured in!
—Anonymous worker's ballad 1907

Going to the laundry these days may be the surest way of soiling your Sunday best as well as supplying the Federal government with unnecessary info on your privates.

Image — conscious modern laundramats try to "white wash" this fact by cleverly offering a free 13th load of laundry for the price of a dozen, a ploy that almost always snags the middle-class-pocketbook consciousness that filter in to such establishments of corporate power. Any left over socks that can't be matched up are glossed over by slick advertising operatives who pose as change makers. And why not? After all, it certainly wouldn't help the tide of powdered soap sales if the Maytag Repairman was linked to the Central Intelligence Agency, now would it? Well, would it?

The no-nothing, do-nothing media in this area has, what with government infiltration no doubt, lulled the public into believing that what with this whole post-Watergate honesty at the capitol put-on, that scenes such as this one unearthed in a 1967 spy thriller, probably ghost written by E. Howard Hunt, do no longer exist:

"The constant churning of the machine's agitator and the unendurable heat seething from out of the dryers was slowly rendering me unconscious. A sudden twinge of pain in my nostrils and I realized that it was more than steam I was inhaling. The neatly tri-folded towels slipped from my grasp as I sunk to the tile floor. Before passing out completely, I looked up at the glass face of the dryer; a pair of sinister eyes were peering out at me..."

It is surely clear to us by now: the CIA is in complete control of each and every laundramat in the Pioneer Valley, sifting through your private linens, ferreting out your fecally-stained undergarments. Who will rise up as our champion, our advocado; who will dare point the finger at the CIA's notorious Bureau of Fetid Drawers and say "Lay off! This is domestic dirt!"?

Well, the Righteous Rinse Cycle Coalition is doing just that.

It's been six months since I've seen my friend Jonathan; it may be another six months before he stands trial. Last September the door to his Pleasant Street apartment that he shared with four women and seven cats was kicked in by three brutes in black — baring badges. They "sustained" Jonathan while searching through his room. Tossing shirts and socks over his shoulder, an agent buried himself into his top bureau drawer and finally emerged with a pair of shorts dangling from the tip of his fingers. Another agent held open a plastic bag into which the shorts were deposited.

Circumstantial evidence: that's what it's called. Traces of Tetrahydrocannabinol were found in the urine stains of his undershorts and he was busted on a narcotics charge.

"The point is not whether Jon was guilty or not," Wally "Nemesis" Phretch told me stirring his yogurt outside of the Coalition's office located above the condemned hardware store on Amity Street. "The shorts were clean inside of his bureau and so the only way the Feds could've examined them would have been at the laundry. Jonny drops in his dirty laundry then he strolls over to the People's Book Store for about twenty minutes, picks out a title to borrow, returns to toss them in the dryer and leaves off the book the next time he does a wash. It was during the time that he was choosing a paperback that the Feds moved in on his laundry...that's how they knew exactly which piece of linen to grab during the raid on his apartment."

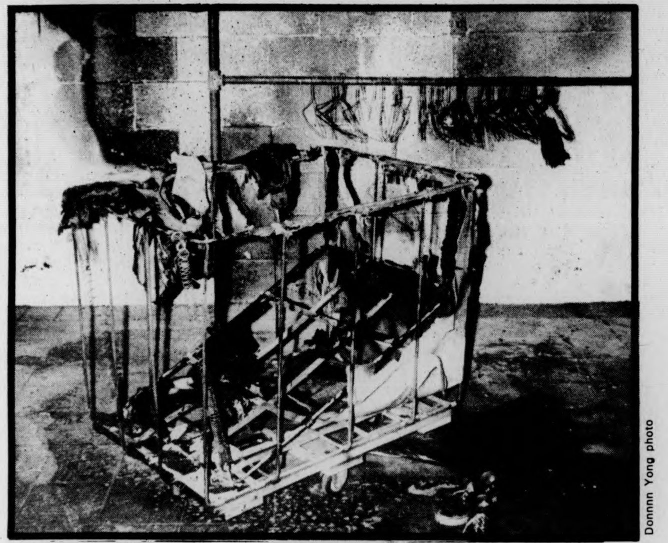
Nemesis, the self-appointed chairman of the Clean Rinse Cycle Coalition, knows what doing time is all about. He spent eight years behind bars for passing along fraudulent information that led to the conviction of three hundred students at Columbia during the late '60's. "Luckily," he tells me blending the yogurt into his beard, "they were all during the Nixon years." Today, obviously a changed man, Nemesis runs a dying fruit juice bar in Greenfield.

"Business is so bad," he says, "I've had plenty of time to read up on the CIA, FBI, and all. I keep a ditto machine in the back and run off flyers during the day and post them in all the laundramats at night. Next morning they're all torn down...but the struggle is all part of the fun in being oppressed. I remember one time, no ink. Did I give in? No way, baby. Those flyers all came out in orange lettering; carrot flavored!"

Nemesis, a man to be admired, but not in Washington apparently. He approached the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and demanded to know all the facts behind the Bureau of Fetid Drawers. He spent the night in a Maryland drunk tank and received free travel fare back to Western Mass.

"I knew that I needed help. Strength in numbers, you know. So the Coalition is started. The six of us all live in the same house out in Hadley. Hey, they know that house, believe me. The hassles! Shit, man. They (the Feds) know we're shacking up in there and what-do-you know? Only four months late on the electric bill and we're shut off...just like that!" He snapped his fingers.

He snapped his fingers and all I could do was hunch my shoulders. What can you do? They've got you coming and going. Perhaps the only alternative left is to move near a river and slap your laundry clean on a big rock. □



Donnnn Yong photo

Fact: If E. Howard Hunt had not spent the last few months behind bars, eight out of ten Valley laundries would probably look like this one.

Editorial

Managing Editors
Dick Grab Richard Assenuf

Arts & Entertainment Editor
U. P. "Chuck" Smith

Reporters
Prestone Crawla
Coleen Hurtz

Music Editor
David Socalled Soho

Staff Writers
Stepinit Krap
Cheap Aintworth
Saucee Holandaise

Ass. Writers
M.C.P.I.G. Kosgeek II
David Lowback
Uneeda Page
Frederick See! Weiss
Susan "Collegian Curve" Gonzo
Janice Intern (Leery)
Harvey Wassailman
Robert Spurious
James Holdthelettuce
(Free Meals)

Contributing Editors
Snoe F. Cone
Susan Rand McNally
Alan Cameraready
Christian Awesome
Dick Pulmine

Teen Editor
Edward J. Maybe

High School Beat
Prestone Gatha

Fillers
Edward J. Maybe

Photography
Donnnn Yong
Leonel Delacroix — Vinaigrette

Graphics
Christian Cooties
!Maria Arriba!
Kris Jackson — Pollack
Rob Inkman

Advertising
Business
Circulation

Staff Psycho Sgt.
Edward J. Maybe

Production

Editorial Production Super
David Socalled Soho
Typesetting Super
K. Diggsie Bambi
Advertising Production Super
George E. Muck
Production Staff
Banana Mush
Suzy Gonzo
Robin Cashew
Adrian Staircase
David Rude

Publishers
Edward J. Maybe (intern)
Robert Murdock

Executive Editor
Linda Matronly (interim)

Advertising Director
Snitchell Doung

Business Manager
Christian Awesome

Production Manager
Gob Fulluvit

General Information

TELEPHONE: Amherst 545-3500 (Editorial and Advertising); 545-3500 (Typesetting); Canada 545-3500 (Connecting all Departments); 545-3500 (General Business); 545-3500 (Foreign Desk).

CAUTION: 20,000 copies published each week on Thursday by UMass Media, Inc., Room 113 Campus Center, UMass, Amherst 01003. Editorial and Business Offices are located at Room 113 Campus Center UMass, Amherst. The Valley Avocado is distributed free (who'd pay for it) at thousands of independent outlets including the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Smith College, Amherst College, Hampshire College, and Mt. Holyoke College.

The Valley Avocado is also available on newsstands in Western Massachusetts for a whopping two bits per issue. Subscription rates: an outrageous $13 (one year) and $26 (two years) and $39 (three years) and $52 (four years if we're still in business).

The entire contanimates of the Valley Avocado are hilarious and may not be repeated in public in wholes or parts thereof by any practical jokers without written specific permission of the Pope. All matter-anti-matter appearing somehow in the Valley Avocado is the property of the UMass Media; all fights reserved. The Avocado actively collects stamps; please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope whenever possible. The Avocado is not liable for lost stamps.

FREE LISTINGS: The Valley Avocado selects events to be listed free if the sender is in good standing with the Avocado's Advertising Department. A half page ad allows the sender to one free listing per issue. Three full page ads and the Avocado will publish a free pull-out special pulp issue focusing on the sender—advertiser's product.

UMass Media Inc., also pumps out the Haverill Avocado and the New Hartford Avocado with all respects disregarded. A subsidiary of Collegian Supplementary Enterprises this special issue is published on this day and heretofore this day only henceforth it shall bear by mere coincidence only any resemblance to any other publication of any such nature or howsoever un natural whether that unmentionable publication be so living or dying fast.

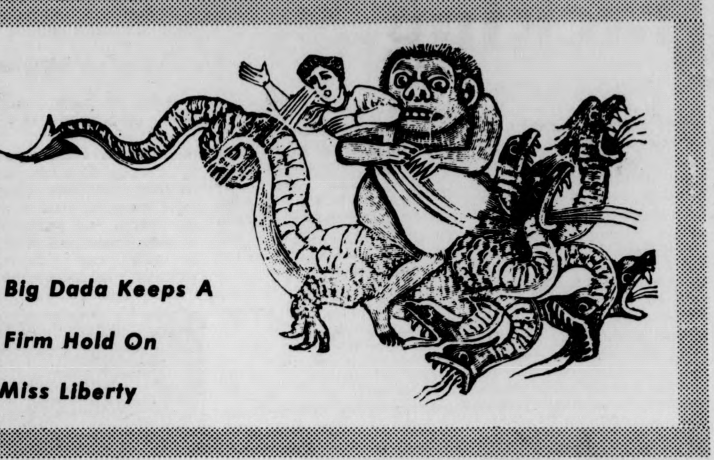
News Steal

Dada Knows Best

The Avocado has learned from informed sources in Washington that Ugandan president and king of Scotland and America Dada Idi Amin Dada is in actuality a gracious and benevolent chieftain, loved and respected by his people for many years. In the late summer of 1972 he was replaced by CIA operative H.Arlo Ankh; his whereabouts today are unknown and the White House has repeatedly failed to comment despite the Avocado's intensive probe into the affair.

According to our source, a noted psychic and part-time State Department employee, Ankh worked undercover in Uganda and neighboring nations for several years as a MOBIL representative gaining the confidence of the unsuspecting premiere. Then, one hot night in August, he thinks, July maybe, Idi Amin Dada was abducted and H. Arlo Ankh moved into the royal palace.

No one dared comment on the sudden change of heart that Amin had taken, nor on the astounding physical transitions that he had undergone. Not a word about his erratic behavior or bodily metamorphosis has leaded out of the terror stricken nation. □



Big Dada Keeps A Firm Hold On Miss Liberty

Alternative Agression

A recent study conducted by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of 2,000 local school districts places students in the Amherst public schools 1,873 in terms of reading, writing, and basic arithmetic skills.

The report, entitled "Writing for the seventies: how will Johnny sign his check?" has fed the fires of controversy surrounding the introduction last month of an Aggression Therapy Program in the Amherst schools.

Dr. Argh Holyshit, nationally-recognized aggression expert and designer of the ATP, explained the purpose of the program in a Tuesday afternoon press conference.

"It has long been realized that students in the Amherst schools cannot read or write," Holyshit said. "As concerned educators. we felt an obligation to help our students learn to deal with the aggressions that result from constant feelings of inferiority. We want to help our students learn to cope with inferiority."

Holyshit said the ATP relies on regular sessions of primal scream therapy and massive dosages of sedatives.

"Whenever one our students sees someone else reading or writing, he or she is trained to find an enclosed space, like a phone booth or a toilet stall, and scream until blacking out," Holyshit said. "This serves to release the student's aggressions in a socially acceptable manner."

Holyshit admitted that not all students found screaming a viable alternative to aggression.

"For that small minority of chronic trouble-makers, and I stress that they are a small minority, we use drug therapy," he said.

"Students who do not scream at the sight of reading or writing are injected intravenously with massive doses of tetrahydrocannabinol (THC). They are generally able to cope with reality, without aggression, within two minutes of injection," Holyshit said.

Holyshit said the use of THC as an anti-aggression drug was the result of seven years of testing on the UMass-Amherst campus.

"After we found favorable results in the UMass experiment, we introduced a pilot program into the Amherst schools by leaving carefully measured amounts of the drug in the school restrooms," Holyshit said. "The students responded quite favorably, and became familiar with the drug in a very short period of time."

Holyshit responded to charges made in the press that the students of Amherst would better be served by a school system that taught them to read and write.

"This is misleading and utterly without reliable

See Newsteal on page 17

LETTERS

We're Great!

To the Avocado:

Your paper is great!

I have stopped getting the Springfield newspapers and the one from Northampton. I never did read them much because I always thought they were full of lies. Now that I am an avid fan of the Avocado, I really don't need them anymore. You are all the truth I need. Plus the classified ads are great.

Matty Ryan

MS Case

To the Avocado:

Your coverage of the Markley—Suares case probably caused the U.S. Government to dislike them and you will probably be held responsible by Valley people for getting them hefty sentences.

I attended the entire trial and never heard one word about entrapment.

If you had said less about the case they would have had a better chance of getting off on the explosive charge.

I think the Avocado is a government-subsidized arm of the right-wing, tax-paying, church-going, college-educated, daily-bathing establishment.

Biff Rosenblatz

The Avocado Replies:

Staff members at the Advocado do not have wings, pay taxes, go to church or bathe.

Height Retort

Dear Avocado Editor:

Your rag is heightist. Every time I look at your tabloid I always see pictures of tall people, often tall thin people.

I don't mind the thinism that is rampant in Western Massachusetts, but the heightism is disgusting. Why don't you ever glorify short people, even short thin people? I can see why you wouldn't want short fat people, but a few pictures of short thin people might do something to put this capitalist piggery on its ear.

Mark Geenas

Personal Attack

To the Avocado:

How come the same personal classified ads run in every issue? I am getting real tired of reading about the same attractive, sensuous couples and GWM, seeking meaningful relationships with backpacking enthusiasts and older distinguished super masculine, well hung German Shepherds. Get new writers for that page or I will never read your paper again.

Bruce Mohunk

The Avocado Replies:

Thanks for your letter we appreciate hearing from our readers. Incidentally, we have fired the person responsible for those classifieds and have hired a Madison Ave freelancer to fill the position.

Attention
All Student-Parents:

The Central Area Women's Center would like to offer a Babysitting/Crafts Program
for your children

Meeting Thursday, March 31 at 7:00 p.m. in central area
Women's Center, 119 Baker.

Explanation and details to be discussed, refreshments served.

Any questions, call
Karen 6-4207
Cathy 6-4705
Laurie 6-6430

Southern Comfort® tastes delicious
right out of the bottle!

that's why it makes Mixed Drinks taste so much better!

great with:
Cola • Bitter Lemon
Tonic • orange juice
Squirt . . . even milk

You know it's got to be good . . . when it's made with Southern Comfort®
SOUTHERN COMFORT CORPORATION, 100 PROOF LIQUEUR, ST. LOUIS, MO. 63132

U.Mass
Student Federal
Credit Union
POSITION AVAILABLE.
MANAGER
15 credit internship
An interview is required.
Contact Linda Cote,
or Anne Smith 545-2800.

UNITED TRANSMISSION
EXCHANGE, INC.
ALL MAKE CAR AND TRUCK TRANSMISSIONS
REPAIRED
REBUILT
EXCHANGED
KING STREET NORTHAMPTON
584-6790

Tracking

By Preston Crawla

When political reporter and billiards correspondent Fred Cuestick of the Daily Hamper Gazette wonders if I'm running for mayor, so do I. The time has come to lay these rumors to rest.

Sometime ago, while eating with some friends at the Equalknox natural foods restaurant which I often frequent, I overheard some local politicos conspiring to move in on the mayor's office. I gave my beard a tug and reached into my breast pocket withdrawing my famous lens and set to examining the remaining rice grains on the plate before me. Meanwhile my ears were glowing.

I won't tell you what I heard; you've heard it all before, but I, the advocate of the Valley's populace, decided to get tracking and beat them at their own game.

A week later I decided to run for mayor. I went to my publisher, citizen Ed Maybes and received his full endorsement. It wasn't until weeks later, well after the news was out, that someone asked me one day at the laundry exactly what city I was running for mayor in. That just about killed it. □

Evil Toilet Paper

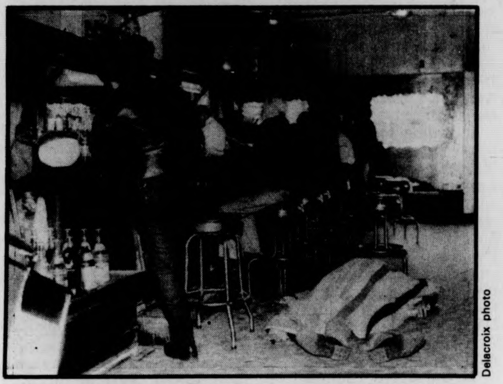
The Hampshire College Administrative Coordinating Council announced that due to the budget considerations, they will curtail the amount of toilet paper distributed to the bathrooms in the campus buildings. Spokesperson Merriam-Webster said that this was the easiest corner of the budget to cut and asked students and faculty to "use the other Five College facilities."

Franklin County Shots

The infamous Fireside Lounge in Turner's Falls is open again and despite some incredibly restrictive town ordinances, still feature live strip shows. The bar which caused a furor last year now can only have striptease shows between the hours of 10:30 and 10:45 on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The strippers, too, are restricted; no snakes or birds, "private parts" must always be covered by "a dark, no-see thru material" and music used must have been recorded before 1939.

A recent visit saw seven over-35 strippers strip down to their corduroy panties in a matter of seconds while Tommy Dorsey's "Hawaiian War Chant" cranked out of a corner jukebox. A local factory owner who frequents the bar and wished to remain anonymous said that the revamped floor show "sucked." □

Veggies Muscled Out



Delacroix photo

An "ex-vegetarian" who refused to sell his shares in the natural food business is shown here.

Many Amherst residents have wondered why the Equalknox natural foods restaurant on No. Pleasant St. is about to close down. Business has been excellent since the restaurant moved a year and a half ago from the cramped diner where it was born and all seemed to be going well for the cooperative of young people who ran it until the ad in the February 25 Valley Avocado announcing their imminent closing and thanking the community for their support.

What one might conclude as a consequence of poor management and lack of experience really has a deeper, darker, more stagnantly corrupt side. There have been some noticeably strange occurrences at the restaurant during the past few months. Several large, somberly dressed Italian men were seen to enter the Equalknox on January 25, smoking foul smelling cigars, swearing loudly and spitting on the macrame wall hangings. They did not order food and immediately accosted head chef Roscoe Krishnamurti. Their discussion was loud and vehement and sometime after they left, the chef was found meditating with his head in the oven.

These same men have also been seen on several occasions at the Mellow Fun Natural Food Coop in Amherst. According to several workers, the men "acted rudely," ridiculed a worker's turban and spilt "at least a half pound of buckwheat groats" on the floor. Hardly the behavior of a legitimate vegetarian. The trio, driving a gun metal blue Cadillac El Dorado, visited the Coop several times since then, each time engaging coop coordinator Larry LaPetomane in heated arguments. Though LaPetomane was reluctant to reveal the subject of these "discussions", coop ordering supervisor Merrill Lynch said that the men were representatives of a large Springfield meatpacking and munitions company, "some Italian name like Guardino or Gambino or something", and had offered to either purchase shares in the Coop or buy it outright.

When LaPetomane flatly refused both offers, the men became extremely angry, throwing tangeloes and zucchini around the office and telling LaPetomane that he would be "very sorry." Later that week, Avocado sources learned that a similar offer had been made to the Equalknox Restaurant.

The combination of circumstances points to a move by the powerful families of the West Springfield underworld to "move in", in Mafiosi terms, on the growing vegetarian-Macrobiotic market in the Amherst area. Now that the prostitution, gambling, pornography and laughing gas rackets have been cornered, the underworld is seeking out a new market to sieze hold of and exploit and what place is riper than Amherst?

On successive days in early February, I observed two turbaned kitchen workers from the Equalknox leave the restaurant at separate times and proceed to Barsellotti's, a barroom next to the restaurant on North Pleasant St. On the second day, I followed one into the bar, thinking it an unlikely place for a person so obviously involved with yoga to frequent.

The restaurant worker removed his turban, sat at the bar, asked the barkeeper to switch the TV to "The New Match Game" and proceeded to order "a draft and two dogs with everything on 'em." The man was obviously not what he pretended to be. An acquaintance of the restaurant worker came in and the two played a game of straight run pool in the rear of the bar. While they played, I overheard a good deal of their conversation.

The acquaintance asked, "How is the operation going, Frank?" Frank, the kitchen worker responded, "Great, but those fucking veggie turnipheads I work with are driving me fuckin' crazy and I can't show it or else...." "Yeah, I know, it's like that at the goddamn Coop too, but we're getting paid all right to do it. How close are you to..."

"A couple more weeks at tops, they're in bad shape now and still don't know how

See Tracking on page 17

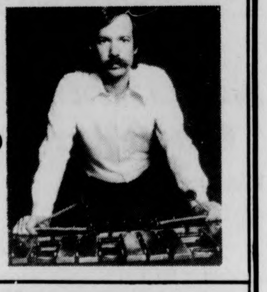
Frontier Concerts
Presents
Academy of Music
MAIN ST., NORTHAMPTON

Tom Waits and Leon Redbone

Wednesday, April 13th
Shows 7:30 & 10:30
Tickets: $5 advance, $6 at door

Leo Kottke and Gary Burton & Steve Swallow

Sunday, April 24th
Shows 7:30 & 10:30
Tickets: $5 advance, $6 at door



Coming May 1st
Jerry Jeff Walker
STEVE GOODMAN

TICKET OUTLETS
Amherst: FACES OF EARTH
SUNSHINE RECORDS
Northampton: TECH HIFI
S. Hadley: GOODBODIES
Springfield: MAIN MUSIC
Hadley: RECORD TOWN
[Mt. Farms Mall]
Greenfield: THE BACKROOM
Chicopee & Westfield:
WAX 'N WANE

Bella Crabzug

New York City's Next Queens?

Banana Mush photo

Just who is this person, anyway?

By Banana Mush

Like a cow pulling its foot out of the mud, a huge brown suede suit wandered almost aimlessly across the Bradley Field air terminal. Two saddlebags were slung at its sides. It took on a more humanly appearance when it staggered through the security gate. A look of anxiety faded when a small group hurling insults proved to be demonstrating against the arrival of another passenger.

"Ain't that somethin'," she grunted more than enough times to count. Her portly jowls and profit-to-spare figure could have been mistaken for a beast of burden. Save for those familiar trademarks, a wide-brim mouth flapping open in the breeze and an absurd sombrero crowning her thick head.

A black porter did three back flips in enthusiastic recognition. A well-endowed executive cartwheeled his way over to wish her well in her political future.

This was Bella Crabzug at Bradley Airport, mildly pissed that her flight did not land in Boston so that she wouldn't have to materialize before an audience that night in Amherst where she was being paid $2,000 to speak.

"I'm a strong and courageous leader!" she said quite convincingly. "If I was a man I'd be abrasive, feisty, and flamboyant; a real chauvanist!" A side show attraction in the political circus, she considers herself a spokesperson of women's rights. Throughout all her life she has babbled nonsense to society.

Her bellowing never stopped and every other line was an amusing anecdote that she failed to explain. Her message was short and sweet: "I'm being paid two grand for this but first how about dinner?"

We all chuckled along with this truly amazing woman.

"I'm still on the fringes of society," she said. Some of the people are making decisions for all of the people and I want to cash in on it! I got into politics to broaden my moves."

From Mississippi in the 1950's to Vietnam, Crabzug has seen plenty of action. "After breaking the law for 25 years, I became involved in politics because I was tired of small change. I wanted to explode."

As a young and successful attorney, she thought she had an identity problem. After discussing it with her husband Martin, she concluded that her lack of recognition was caused by the fact that she was a woman. To cure this fault of nature, she decided to wear outrageous, floppy sombreros, curse like a stable boy, and add on about 300 pounds which have become her trademarks.

Her talk, for some reason, entitled "Women in Political Processes," was in recognition of the Democratic platform and just so happened to fall during Women's Week '77. Her own uncertain future as a possible candidate for Queen For A Day has been the butt of everyone's joke for weeks.

Crabzug has served time, three terms in Congress and was cruising for a plush Senate seat last fall trying to pull the rug out from under former UN Ambassador Daniel Moynihan. To think, one per cent of the vote is all that stood between Crabzug and the Capitol.

"It barely escaped my clutches!" she explained. "I thought that after 200 years of democracy they'd give a little and I could be allowed in the Senate. I was experienced but not let in. A male Senate is a stale Senate!" she beamed.

Could the free ride she's looking for be the office of the mayor of New York City? A recent Avocado poll rigged her ahead of Prestone Crawla, candidate for several of the same. This is a serious question, she indicated with hunched shoulders, and is now in the process of asking it. It hinges on "whether I'd be different."

Bella Crabzug is a piece of stark reality unlike the "happy homemaker" myth; the Aryan mother and wife.

"I'm the largest underpaid woman in the country." A government study rated a transporter of cows above her. Forty per cent of Bella Crabzug works because she has to.

What can you say when faced with such facts? How can you challenge such infuriating statistics? I only thank God for Bella Crabzug who urges us to participate in her future through accelerated action.

"It's tough to reach success as a woman," she said. But who knows? As she herself said, "When I'm Queen of this country I'll change all that!"

$10 FREE
Spend this like cash towards the purchase of any quality $10
Good
Mar. 31 - Apr. 5
$10 FREE

$10.00 OFF ALL LEATHER BOOTS
ENCORE ZODIAC
BORT CARLTON etc.
the SHOE-BIN
AMHERST

Four Seasons
Package Store
Discount Liquers
RUSSELL ST. HADLEY
at the Mt. Farms Mall

Miller's BEER
12 oz. cans
$5.69 Case

Andre' Champagnes
Extra Dry — Pink
— Cold Duck —
Sparkling Burgundy
$1.79 Fifth

Crown Russe Vodka
$8.49 ½ Gal.

Pabst Blue Ribbon BEER
12 oz. N.R. Bottles
$4.99

Thursday 3/31/77 to Wednesday 4/5/77.
We reserve the right to limit quantities.

Nuclear Gestapo!

Donnnn Yong photo

Chancellor Randolph Bromery is shown leading a simulated evacuation of Southwest Residential Area at U. Mass. The drills are held to train staff and students in emergency procedures in the event that an accident occurs at the nuclear powered sewerage treatment plant near campus.

By Prestone Gala

A scheme to jeopordize the lives of every man, woman, child and Avocado reporter in the pioneer valley may be unfolding this week. Through the investigative efforts of the Avocado's Action News Team a strange and seemingly unrelated series of events has been brought into sharp focus.

It seems that for some time a great deal of construction work has been going on across from UMass' Boyden Gym on the Hadley-Amherst line. Most people have been going on with their daily routine and have assumed the work was part of a federally financed sewage treatment plant. Wrong!

Something is rotten in Amherst and it might just be the new sewage treatment plant. Avocado Action News has just finished an exhaustive No. four hour study of the plant using the exhaustive resources of the Everywoman's Center library and Every issue of New Times printed since 1975. The conclusion we reached won't surprise anyone familiar with the workings of big government.

(Editors note: some right-wing nit-wits will say we are just picking on big government because they don't advertise in the Avocado — this is unfair. We can document the fact that no salesperson from our office

See story on another page

Upcoming Concerts

CAPTAIN WEAPON, Lobby-9th Floor Campus Center Bldg., UMASS, April 1-3. (Just back from a fantastic afternoon gig at Dealy Plaza, Dallas, this band can shoot it out with the best of the area.)

THE KIBITZERS, Unknown roller skating rick in South Deerfield, April 1-4. (Much loved Valley band back from a triumphant flop at Max's Kansas City, they'll be debuting their new lp. THE KIBITZERS LEAVE HOME. (See album review)

KLAATU & SPECIAL BIG NAME FRIENDS, Green Hall, Smith College, Northampton, April 3. (Our Music Editor says it's really The Beatles!)

MATCHING UMOLE, Greenough Snack Shack, UMASS, April 3. (Special solo gig, 2:00. Compositions for Toy Piano, Treated Wankel Rotary Engine and instruments to be named later)

SACRED DOG POO, Acropolis Pizza House, Ware. April 6th. (Fresh from an unproductive solo career, possibility of some or all of The Kibitzers showing up and throwing Beef Chunks at him) (Sentimental pick of the week- Ed.) Salad anyone?

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN, GRAHAM PARKER & THE RUMOUR and SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY & THE ASBURY JUKES- Stadium, UMASS, Spring Concert Festival! (I wanna go sez David!)

NRBQ, Quicksilver, Amherst, May 1-2. (Some things just never go away do they- Ed.)

ERIK BENJI, Worcester Dining Commons, UMASS. April 1-4. (One of the Avocado's very own strikes out (on his own) as a acoustic singer-songwriter. Performs well rounded set of Eagles, Jackson Browne and other assorted blandness, but I like him anyways.

RHUBARB VALLEY CULTURAL SOCIETY, Poofter's Village, Amherst, April 5th. (Another Valley fave rave, three somewhat talented people performing assorted lunacy. Frankly, we don't understand them but it's really effite to like something so useless)

DEE GREASED, Bluewall, UMASS, April 1-2 (Now this guy is nifty, with an act that's includes pointing out big wigs like me in front of hundreds of people. He's no fool!- Ed.)

David Socalled Soho

Happenings
In The Valley

Thursday / 31

SENIOR RECITAL: By Melissa Mann, flutist, at 8 p.m., Sage Hall, Smith College, Northampton.

WOMEN'S STUDIES SEMINAR LECTURE: "How To Be an Artist and Earn A Living," by Barbara Nession, plus an exhibit of her work, at 7:30 p.m., Gallery, Johnson Library Center, Hampshire College, Amherst.

GALLERY TALK: Bonnie Zima of Smith College, on the "Sculpture and the Woodcuts of Elliot Offner," 1 p.m., Smith College Museum of Fine Arts, Northampton.

CONTRA DANCE: With Sheehan's Reel, Eagle's Hall, across from Pleasant St. Theater, Northampton, every Thursday, 8:30 p.m. $2.

THEATRE OPENINGS: At UMass "Godspell" and Easthampton Community Theatre "Arsenic and Old Lace." (See Theatre Events).

BEYOND NEUROTIC
Buddhist meditation
p.m., Room 168. Cam
Amherst.

RECITAL: On severa
p.m., Sage Hall
Northampton.

PREVIEW: Of "Jacqu
West today and tomo
States Exposition G
info call the theatre

GURU MAHARAJ JI
terested individuals discourse every T
Campus Center
number available a listed on the daily
under 'Divine Light

Frida

FILM: "Catch 22" by M
9:15 p.m., Main Lect
Hall, Hampshire Co

CONTRADANCE WEE
Folklore Center of Vermont hosts the weekend including and workshops today
8 p.m. tonight ther
with Applejack at t
W. Brattleboro. Cal

ASTRONOMY OBE
servations of the pla celestial objects w refreshments, 8 .r
406 and roo
Northampton.

HOME SHOW: Opening
through the 29th of Craftsmen & Artist
(413-549-6871). Disp niture, drapes and

THE 2nd ANNUAL B
MUSIC FESTIVA
3rd, Sanders T
University, Cambri
p.m., C.T. & Apr
drea Weltman. Show and 2 p.m. Sund registration for fee
876-3771.

THE VIENNA QUINT
Warbeke Memori
Holyoke College
Auditorium, Mt. Ho

INTERNATIONA
Every Friday night
Cape Cod Lounge in UMass, Amherst. D.
10 p.m. Open to a
the music and dance of peasant cultures.

AN EVENING FOR READER: Readi conversation wi authors, Heather A Day, is schedule
shire College's R
Amherst.

Tonight
Thurs., MARCH 31
PUTNEY SWOPE
CCA 7,8:45, 10:30
$1.00

DANCE SPONSORED BY HAMLIN HOUSE
SAT. APRIL 2nd 9:00 till 1:00
WORCESTER D.C.
Beer-25 WINE-50 ADM. $1.50
MUSIC BY RIFF RAFF

Valley Avocado Valley Avocado Valley Avocado Valley Avocado
W
and so ar
You can be operation too. B people will see your a
We've got a sense of hu
We laugh a lot
...all t

VALLEY Avocado WORTHLESS PULL-OUT GUIDE

Reviews Real

FILM
Black Sunday

Directed by John Frankenheimer.
Starring Robert Shaw, Bruce Dern, Marthe Keller

By Brian T. Sullivan

Black Sunday is one of the best thrillers of 1977. Based on the best seller by Thomas Harris and directed by John Frankenheimer, it is a film of pure entertainment that will captivate you from start to finish. The handsome Paramount release was produced by Robert Evans (Chinatown, Marathon Man) and stars Robert Shaw, Bruce Dern, and Marthe Keller.

The story revolves around the startling findings of an Israeli commando (Robert Shaw) on a raid against a Palestinian group called the "Black September." He finds a cassette tape made by one of the members (Marthe Keller) that says because of the United States Government's support of Israel, an incident will take place where thousands will die. The group's plot is finally uncovered at the Super Bowl, where a half-crazed, ex-Vietnam prisoner-of-war, (Bruce Dern), is found flying the Goodyear blimp - armed with enough explosives to wipe out the entire stadium..

The most amazing scene in the film is when the dirigible enters the stadium. Dern, half-bloodied from wounds, strains to ignite the explosives as Shaw tries to maneuver the zeppelin away from the stadium with a helicopter. As the blimp enters, it topples a light tower and mayhem ensues. The scene is devastating.

The use of the 1976 Pittsburgh - Dallas Super Bowl game was also a plus for the film. The realism of the capacity stadium and a professional game created that much more tension. I found this lacking in 1976's Two Minute Warning (a sniper loose in a stadium). It was obvious here that it was a University of Southern California team disguised as professionals. Several crowd scenes in that film were also sloppily handled.

My one negative reaction against Black Sunday is its excessive violence. There are numerous murders throughout the film, thus its R-rating. Paramount lobbied to have the rating changed to PG, but was turned down twice. Like Rollerball, a violent film that was also denied a PG rating, Black Sunday is another example of the new "get tough" policy of the rating board. The Board has been under fire recently for its supposed leniency towards certain subject matter for PG films (examples are certain expletives in All the Presidents Men and The Front — both rated PG), thus it is cracking down. Black Sunday deserved its R rating.

For Director Frankenheimer, this film, along with his recent The French Connection (II), is seen as a comeback picture for him. During the 1960's, he was considered one of the up and coming directors. He learned his trade in the early days of television and was given many large projects (Grand Prix was one). But he fell into disfavor with the studios and was out of work for a few years. His work in Black Sunday though, has prompted Paramount to sign him to a long-term contract, something unheard of today. He even has a small part in the picture as a harried television director in a van outside the stadium.

Performances in the film are excellent. Bruce Dern is especially effective as the psychotic ex-Prisoner of War bent on making America pay for his suffering. John Williams' musical score (he did the academy Award-winning music for Jaws) is as usual, superb. Black Sunday is an expert thriller in all details.

Film Clips: Author, Peter Benchley, will paly a cameo role in Columbia Pictures' film of his book, The Deep. Benchely previously played a television reporter in Jaws...Universal Pictures has announced its schedule of films for 1977: The Big Fix, a contemporary detective saga starring Richard Dreyfuss; Harold Robbins' The Lonely Lady, with Susan Blakeley; The Wiz (scheduled for Christmas release) based on the Broadway play - John Badham will direct (Bingo Long Travelling All-Stars); also in the works are film adaptations of Same - Time, Next Year, and Chorus Line; The Jaws sequel - Jaws II starts this summer with Director John Hancock (Bang the Drum Slowly) and star Roy Scheider. Also pending is a film called The Bodyguard which will re-unite Director John Avildsen and star Sylvester Stallone of Rocky fame.

THE SILVER STREAK

Starring: Gene Wilder, Richard Pryor
Directed by: Arthur Hiller

By Trish Mastendino

The first mistake that George Caldwell (alias Gene Wilder) makes after boarding a train in L.A. destined for Chicago is to doubt a fellow passenger who forewarns him that he is in for the ride of his life. Prevalent throughout the remainder of the movie is the attempt to fulfill that prophecy, both for Caldwell and any members of the audience, might they share similar doubts.

The plot is simple enough. Caldwell meets an attractive secretary aboard the train (Jill Clayburgh) and the two of them spend some time in her room discussing the finer aspects of gardening, which is when Caldwell sights his first dead body. Of course, no one believes him except the bad guys, who happen to be sneaky, tough and looking for some papers that the secretary's boss has. Plot thickens. The secretary reveals that she can't type or take shorthand, let alone help Caldwell bring justice to the bad guys or comic relief to their victims. The fellow passenger reveals that he's a horny vitamin salesman, and Wilder reveals that when all else fails, laughter can be had at the expense of pain.

In spite of the somewhat slow beginning, "The Silver Streak" manages to be appreciably funny in parts and slightly suspenseful, which is for the most part due to the appearance of Grover (Richard Pryor) on the scene. Pryor's antics, coupled with enough violence to set the action at a quicker pace, make the movie, with or without the stereotypical roles of Wilder and Clayburgh.

"It is a funny, beautiful, emotional movie."
—Barbara Garson, MS. Magazine
"Swept

JQA LOWER &
G. WASHINGTON MIDDLE PROUDLY PRESENT
orchestra

CAN YOU HAVE FUN AT A PARTY WITHOUT GETTING DRUNK?
Congratulations that's a step towards responsible drinking.
Alcohol Education Project

WHY HITCH?

Take a warm Peter Pan or Continental Trailways Bus to Boston, New York and many other places. Play it safe!

PETER PAN BUS LINES & CONTINENTAL TRAILWAYS

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

For Information, Schedules and Prices,
Contact: Campus Center Bus Office
Tel. 545-2006 or 549-6000

Peter Pan
CONTINENTAL TRAILWAYS

BIG Ω AUTO PARTS

We've got auto parts

Music

FLORA PURIM
Nothing Will Be As It Was...Tomorrow
(Warner Bros.)

The release of South American vocalist Flora Purim from prison (for cocaine possession) and her subsequent album, the widely acclaimed Open Your Eyes, You Can Fly, heralded the return of an incredibly gifted singer to the world of music. As is obvious from this album, Open Your Eyes was only the beginning.

Whether singing in Spanish or English, or just scatting random syllables (the true test of any great vocalist), Ms. Purim brings a feel to the music which is both pleasant and inspiring. Her voice, tinged with a delicate Latin accent, sounds innocently beautiful. The lyrics are filled with imagry which Ms. Purim's voice realizes fully; i.e. Holding on to a teardrop of sun in the mouth of the night.

The music surrounding her, thanks to producer Leon 'Ndugu' Chancler and her husband, Airto — percussionist extraordinaire, is heavily dominated by Latin percussion instruments and soft strings, building an atmosphere of powerfully gentle sounds. The songs' structures are diverse and the rhythms change fluidly, a rare combination of melody and complexity.

Nothing Will Be As It Was...Tomorrow is a fine, possibley even great album and Flora Purim is a singer of enormous talent and taste. I recommend them both, without reservation.

— Greg Tarlin

ACE
No Strings
(ABC)

If you are familiar with Ace's first hit single, "How Long," then you should also be familiar with their new album, No Strings. Now don't be mislead, Ace is a very nice, commercially oriented band with very few flaws. In fact, they ought to be complemented for rising above their infantile barroom band days. They feature superb vocal harmonies gliding smoothly over country-flavored rock, all touched lightly with Top 40 thought.

While a lot of their material seems the same, No Strings is rather enjoyable. Not many people would turn this likeable music off, as it will appeal to almost anyone. So, while no song stands out, No Strings is certainly not dull.

— Gary Halzel

PINK FLOYD
Animals
(Columbia)

Animals is a continuation of Wish You Were Here, both in concept and music. Hard-core fans of Floyd will no doubt recognize much of the music as coming from the Summer 1974 Tour. In fact, this is all the leftover material from the Wish You Were Here sessions under different titles. No doubt some will cry foul — and maybe with good reason, but hell — Animals is a classic Pink Floyd album.

Conceptually, Animals is an extension of some of the minor themes of Wish You Were Here. That is, power and corruption and how it destroys life. The song titles betray the concept immediately — you don't have to be a cum laude to figure out who the "Pigs," "Dogs" and "Sheep" are. It is very easy for the rock fan to dismiss such angst, but Floyd's very special way of putting things, as exemplified by Wish You Were Here, make it work. Roger Waters, the lyricist, is really not that far off from the insanity of Peter Hammill (Van Der Graff Generator), but only on a simpler level. For Waters, torment is the pathetic irony of each character; in "Sheep," the meek revolt against the Dogs (Powerholders), but in the end revert to their old ways: "The dogs are dead! You better stay home and do as your told. Get out of the road if you want to grow old."

While Floyd steadily improve as lyricists, it is still in the music that they excel. The stark, brutal world explored in words are played out in greater degrees on a musical battlefield. The three songs are long excursions Floyd does well, thoughtfully laid out and always engaging. Animals is more electric than in the past and the shifts in tension are (for them) adventurous. The array of sound effects Floyd use are no longer the cliched synthesizer droppings ala Dark Side Of The Moon.

Animals will no doubt be critically pasted because, as weak as this sounds, nobody understands them. It is curiously ironic that Dark Side Of The Moon is their best received work, despite it being the most dismissable. (In concert, it is another story, though.) Pink Floyd doesn't revel in the sillyness of the rock world; after all it cost them one member already. Instead they are a withdrawn bunch who, at the heart, are lazy, but every so often come out of hiding to remind us just who's king of Techno-rock. Animals is further proof of it, nobody has surpassed them as yet.

— Dave Santos

JACK LANCASTER-ROBIN LUMLEY
Marscape
(RSO)

This album is the product of a colloboration between Jack Lancaster, ex-Bloodwyn Pig saxophonist, and Robin Lumley, keyboardist for the British jazz-rock group Brand X. Having made an impressive debut as composers with their all-star rock interpretation of Peter and the Wolf (released late last year), Lancaster and Lumley have now composed, arranged, and performed on Marscape. Joining them on the album are the other members of Brand X — guitarist John Goodsall, bassist Percy Jones and Genesis's superlative Phil Collins on drums. The music, save for a few choral overdubs, is entirely instrumental.

SYREETA WRIGHT
One to One
(Motown)

Part of the pleasure of reviewing records, of just lending albums, is in the discovery of new people who get to you right off. It was my good fortune to get turned on to Syreeta Wright 18 months ago by good friends with good taste, and she's become one of

RICK WAKEMAN
White Rock
(A&M)

What some people won't do for an extra buck (or an extra pound in this guy's case); rascally Rick has certainly hit his all-time low with White Rock. Billed as "The Original Motion Picture Soundtrack Of The Innsbruck Winter Games — Composed, Performed, And Produced By RICK WAKEMAN," this disc serves about as much purpose as a one-legged relay runner in the Olympics would; none whatsoever.

Wakeman's career, at least his solo recording career, has totally gone down the drain. With each passing album, his composing talents(?) have sunken deeper and deeper towards the realm of total atrophy. As a keyboard performer, Wakeman may have few peers, but as a composer he exhibits skills which are probably on a par with Daffy Duck. To be blunt, this guy couldn't write his way out of a men's room. Mayhaps he'll be content to curtail his activities now that he's rejoined Yes (goodbye Patrick Moraz, you were a real gas) and stick to performing, not composing. Who asked for an album like this? A soundtrack to the Innsbruck Olympics... what next, a soundtrack devoted to the life and times of Gary Gilmore? How 'bout the lusts and loves of William McKinley? With Rick Wakeman around, anything is possible. Too bad his anything amounts to nothing.

White Rock should be listened to only in the event of a severe shortage of Sominex. Under such a situation, it's the perfect solution. Under any other circumstances it should be avoided like the plague. As popular as a punctured parachute, White Rock crumbles with a "this man's ego knows no bounds." D.

— Ross Nerenberg

JOHN MILES
Stranger In The City
(London)

If you remember John Miles for anything, it'll be for two

THE MARSHALL TUCKER BAND
Carolina Dreams
(Capricorn)

If you are among the many to have taken a fancy to past Marshall Tucker albums, this latest creation should prove itself to be quite satisfactory. It attemps nothing which could be considered outstandingly brash or innovative, but predominantly encompasses the same style as past Tucker works. Big-name guest stars include country fiddler Charlie Daniels, as well as a pair of ex-Allmans, Chuck Leavell and Jaimoe Johanson.

Geared more towards Country and Western than rock, this is a disc which has been receiving a great deal of radio airplay. It's perfect for such, due to the laid back, easy listening mood which perpetrates itself on the majority of the selections. Horn section arrangements courtesy of Leo LaBranche are another plus. Particularly pleasing is the flutework of Jerry Eubanks, who, while not exactly another Ian Anderson, gives the band a more identifiable sound than most Southern groups have. And, although this album features nothing as memorable as "Take The Highway" or "Can't You See," "Fly Like An Eagle" (not the Steve Miller tune) is cast from virtually the same mold. Other cuts worthy of special mention include "Desert Skies" and "Heard It In A Love Song."

All in all, Carlina Dreams is an album which wears well. It should mellow with age, just like a fine wine of vintage. It earnestly earns a "did this group really play at the Jimmy Carter Inaugural? B+

—Ross Nerenberg

THE DON HARRISON BAND
Red Hot
(Atlantic)

Red Hot is the second album by the group that includes the just arrived

14k Solid Gold Stud Earings $7 to $10
WITH PRECIOUS STONES
RUBY, GARNET, PERIDOT, SAPHIRE, TOPAZ
$17.50-$40.00

silverscape designs
264 n. pleasant st., amherst 253-3324

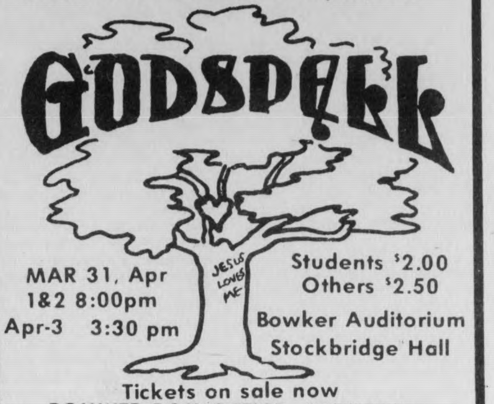
UMass Music Theatre Guild presents

GODSPELL

MAR 31, Apr 1&2 8:00pm
Apr-3 3:30 pm

Students $2.00
Others $2.50
Bowker Auditorium
Stockbridge Hall

Tickets on sale now
BOWKER BOX OFFICE :545-0783



Fashionable
Imported
Clothing
for Women

Music

CERONE
Love in C Minor
(Cotillion)

This album is definitely a disco-oriented disc. In fact, it's probably too much dance music for a lot of people to handle. The cuts are all of good length and this is made possible by only putting three cuts on the LP.

The songs include a very good and well orchestrated remake of the old standard "Black is Black." It's the shortest side at 5:52 but this is by no means a way of ranking it against the other two. It's a strong number and has a rightful spot on the LP. True to the original version, it doesn't sound like a silly remake of an old song with a catchy tune.

"Midnite Lady" is also a quality number having a certain "sex appeal" that is carried on throughout the whole LP and is especially present in the title cut; "Love In C Minor." At 14:48 the cut covers all of side one. It starts out with the three women vocalists meeting Cerone (the mastermind of the whole production) and then luring him into their boudoir and with the sensuous moanings and whispers in the background one's imagination is off and running. I've heard of Menage A Trois, but menage a quatre?

The sound (being a European product) is much like Donna Summer and the "Munich Machine" under the direction of Pete Bellotti and Giorgio Morroder. Lots of strings led by a powerful beat with female vocals opportunely enhanced by special effects. Not telling Pete and Giorgio to move over, but they had better make a little room

FOOD

FITZWILLY'S
23 Main St., Northampton
584-8666
Opens Mon.-Sat. at 11 a.m., Sun. at noon. Kitchen open nitely until 11:45 p.m.

By Lauren J. Traub

Despite Fitzwilly's popularity, its location is still a mystery to many. Located on the right side of Main St., as one enters Northampton from Hadley, no outside sign even announces its presence. The only clue that a restaurant exists next to the Pleasant Market is the glow of candlelight from the windowside tables after dusk.

The informal atmosphere appeals to a broad range of customers and guests can feel as comfortable having just a drink or snack as they would in ordering a meal. Cheese and crackers, and onion dip with raw vegetables are nice and rarely found menu listings that encourage leisurely between-meal snacking. The menu, printed on a souvenir-type folder has a diversity of dishes: sandwiches, salads, soups, sides, and snacks, all a la carte.

The Euell Gibbons Memorial Salad ($2.50) is a chef's salad highlighted by fresh mushrooms, hardboiled egg, turkey, ham and cheese, topped with a real pine cone in honor of the late gourmet of the wilds. Quick hot dishes like homemade chili ($1.70), beef stew ($2.40), or knockwurst with sauerkraut and brown bread ($1.90) make a pleasant change from a sandwich for a light meal. Then there are whimsically titled dishes like "Stuffed Shrimp Willy " ($4.90), "Mary's Monster" (a green pepper stuffed with crabmeat salad, $4.95) and Captain Funn's Idea, if more filling victuals are preferred.

Captain Funn's Idea is sliced ham and turkey rolled around asparagus stalks, with melted American cheese on top. This dish is served with bread and salad, and thougn the meats involved are top quality, the portion seems a little skimpy for $3.95.

Along with the usual deli sandwiches, are the more unexpected marriages of roast beef, cheese, and spinach, called the Artful Dodger, or sliced tomato, onion, and cucumber on rye with melted cheese (Raoul's Combo). Also, roast beef crowned with fresh mushrooms, or melted cheese. All sandwiches are on the customer's choice of roll or assorted breads.

"Lisa's Love" is the least expensive sandwich at $1.10, and consists of sliced fresh mushrooms, black olives, and melted cheddar cheese. Delicious on rye bread. The highest priced sandwich is a combination of three meats and Swiss Cheese, for $2.25. The prices aren't low for deli-sandwiches, but unfortunately no one's are.

Other interesting menu offerings are Quiche, fresh spinach salad, cheese fondue, and plain yogurt embellished with fruit, nuts, and honey. There is a limited bottled wine list, and four house wines are available by the glass or carafe. Or, why not try

Theatre

Tattletales

City Studio Theater
By Ricky Mazor

By Lindsey Lane

I believe I am still right in thinking that "tattletale" is a perjorative term referring to someone who snitches on someone else. On Saturday however, Ricky Mazor acted out fook-like stories called 'Tattletales' at the City Studio Theater in Northampton.

In fact, watching her enthusiasm charm her audience of children, I was reminded of wandering minstrels and Homeric poets who, in contrast to our present day use of tattletales, were not nuisances who revealed things we would rather not know, but were diversions who offered an infrequent but pleasant activity to a town's life.

During the single matinee on March 12, Ricky Mazor and two teenage assistants tattled three stories with a few props, a set of bongo drums and a triangle. Slowly the children became involved with her drama. She coaxed the repetition of sounds and songs from the children. She stopped the stories to ask the children for solutions to the problems in them. She colloquilized the stories giving those words the children hear each day a new charm.

Ms. Mazor enchants her audience. By dressing up a little and not pretending to know all the answers, she compels the children's involvement with her creative drama. She is currently conducting a workshop in the Use of Creative Drama in Educational and Therapeutic Environments.

The success of her work in theater depends on the audience's participation. One can't measure the quality of her theater by how "good" or "bad" it is but by how enjoyable it is. I enjoyed myself. I think the children did too. Ms. Mazor has created an opportunity for children to take part in theater as pleasant diversion. I hope she stays around.

ALL LEVIS
Denim and Courduroy
JEANS
Specially priced at $11.95

TIC SPEED: A talk on ation and psychology at 8
Campus Center, UMass,

veral instruments at 8
Hall, Smith College,

acques Brel" by Stage tomorrow at the Eastern n Grounds. For further atre Box Office 736-7092.
JI's followers and induals meet for satsang
y Thursday at UMass er, 7:30 p.m., Room le at the info desk or is aily activities schedule ight Club.'

iday/1

y Mike Nichols, at 7 and Lecture Hall, Patterson
College, Amherst.
EEKEND: The Chelsea
of West Brattleboro,
the spring contradance
ng a variety of dances day through Sunday. At there is a contradance
at the Center, Route 9,
Call (802) 257-1482.
PEN HOUSE: Ob-
planet Saturn and other (weather permitting), p.m., McConnell Hall
of, Smith College,

ning today and running of April, at Leverett
rtists, Leverett Center
Displays include fur-
nd pottery.
L BOSTON WOMEN'S
AL: On the 1st, 2nd, and Theatre, Harvard
nbridge. Tonight at 7
ril, Casse Culver & Anhows at 7 p.m. Saturday unday. For info and free childcare call 617-

NTET: Perform at the orial Concerts, Mt.
e, at 8 p.m., Pratt
Holyoke, S. Hadley.
L FOLKDANCING:
ght from 8-12 p.m. at the e in the Student Union.
t. Dances taught from 8-
all interested in sharing nces of a diverse range
res. Free.
OR THE COMMON
adings and informal ith two young rising
r McHugh and Robert
ed 8:30 p.m. at Hamp-
Red Barn in South-

Where Are They Now?

Area media

The alternative in the Pioneer Valley

By FRED NOBLES
MDC Staff

If you don't read the Valley Advocate regularly you probably don't know about low cost house construction in this area or how Sweet Pie's act evolved or about the tobacco industry's migrant workers or what's the best daily newspaper in the area.

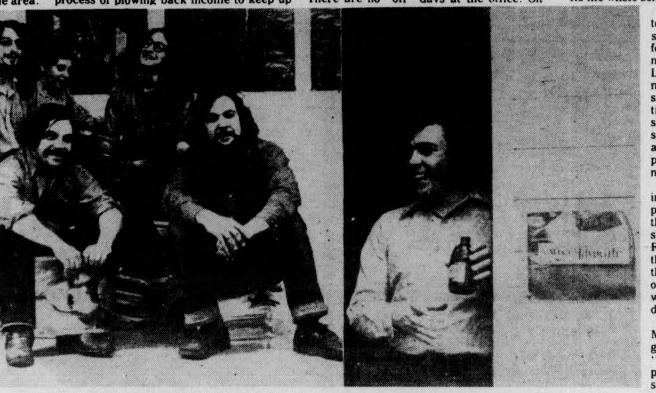
The Valley Advocate is an example of that small branch of American journalism broadly referred to as the "alternative press." What makes these newspapers "alternative" has a lot to do with their news priorities, their formats and their readership. In the words of Advocate editors: "We're writing about stories that don't have ample coverage elsewhere...you might say we take a different slant on topics...we try to be straight forward and get it out to people."

The Advocate has four full time staff members, a couple of regular department editors and a growing number of contributors. Editors Jeff Robinson and Ed Matys first conceived of the idea of an Amherst-Springfield area paper a year ago while they were both working for the Hartford Courant. Ed said he would like to run his own newspaper. "We had a lot of ideas about how we wanted to go about it so we got it all together one night and decided we could do it," he said.

They spent the summer getting the project underway, selling ads "after never having sold any before in our lives" and generally trying to get a paper out with very little outside help.

The first issue came out last September and, according to Jeff, "After that issue writers started coming out of the woodwork." The Advocate then began the slow process of plowing back income to keep up with expanding circulation and content. "When ads revenues went up," said Jeff, "we'd say we could afford another phone; when they crept up again we could afford stationary. You might say that when we began we limited our press run because of stationary."

In the push to keep up with the paper's growing popularity and circulation, the staff recently moved from its original office, a rear basement room complete with kitchen sink, to a larger office on Amity Street. There are no "off" days at the office. On Friday after the most recent issue came out, the staff was back at work. Their phones never stop ringing and contributing writers, advertisers and well wishers fill up the large office. Advertising Director Mitch Young, "the good will ambassador of the world," points out, however, that it continues to be a battle to keep the operation going. "We're not funded by anybody, there is no outside money coming in except for the advertising we can sell." Mitch would like to see the paper grow to a size that would allow it to "tie the whole school community together."



Part of the troop at the Advocate relax on the latest issue, while a fellow constituent looks on.

The most recent addition to the Advocate's full time staff is Gib Fullerton, a former Collegian business manager and photo editor. Like the other staff members his responsibilities extend beyond his title. "My major responsibility is production with a secondary emphasis on advertising and I do some photography when its needed," he said.

All staff members are interested in expanding the paper's coverage. Recently they have begun to include sports but not, as Editor Robinson noted, "exactly the establishment sports thing." Their most recent offering in this department was a feature on roller derbies.

There are other ideas. Mitch Young would like to get an audio column going, "because that is what people want." Ed Matys says that "one thing we really need is a woman music writer."

One of the Advocate's greatest assets is the number of freelance writers it attracts. Contributors include members of the college community and professional writers who work for many of the areas "traditional" newspapers as well as such "alternatives" as Rolling Stone, Zoo World and the L.A. Free Press.

The Advocate has come to represent a real addition to this area's media. If you want to know why the Bondsville train is no longer running read the Advocate.

ORCHESTRA LUNA: Will be at the UMass Fine Arts Center, Concert Hall, at 8 p.m. Box Office 545-2511.
BRINK COFFEEHOUSE: Will hold a contradance with Chris Madigan calling, 8:30 p.m., Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College, S. Hadley.
RECITAL: By Smith students, 4:30 p.m., Sage Hall, Smith College, Northampton.
5th ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT: With Charles Tolliver, Music Inc., and Strata East All Stars, 8 p.m., Student Union Ballroom, Hampshire College, Amherst.

Saturday/2

CONTRADANCE WEEKEND: Sponsored by the Chelsea Folklore Center continues today with a beginners workshop at 1 p.m., English Country dances at 3 p.m., and a contradance at 8 p.m. at the Center, Rte. 9, W. Brattleboro, VT.
OLDIES NIGHT: At the Rathskellar South, 10-1 a.m., Wilbur Hall, Mt. Holyoke College, S. Hadley. Wear a 1950's costume and get in the party for less!
CRAFT WORKSHOP: Sponsored by Leverett Craftsmen & Artists, Leverett Center (549-6871) on "Wood Finishing." For more info contact LCA.
AUCTION PREVIEW: A preview of the Channel 57, PBS TV, auction materials will be held today and tomorrow at the Smith College Museum of Fine Arts, BLACK MUSICIANS ANNUAL: At Hampshire College today, workshops at 2 p.m. with some of the most noted scholars and musicians in the field of black music. At 8 p.m., Student Union Ballroom, Frank Foster and the Loud Minority will present an extended concert as part of a weekend of black music. Call 545-3600 for details.

e're Growing...
re our advertising rates.
part of our expanding
Billions of gullible little ad in our paper.
umor at the Avocado.
the way to the bank !

BURTON, PARSONS HARD & SOFT
CONTACT LENS SOLUTIONS

Clean with PREFLEX®
The routine use of this specially formulated cleaning solution removes and helps prevent the buildup of tear residues and other deposits on the surface of the lens.
Available in economical-to-use 1.5 fl. oz. (45 ml) plastic vials.

Rinse with NORMOL®
A sterile, carefully buffered, isotonic solution for rinsing soft contact lenses after cleaning and prior to insertion — upon removal from the storage case.
Available in 8 fl. oz. (240 ml) plastic containers.

Disinfect and Store in FLEXSOL®
A unique storage solution formulated to disinfect (and condition) lenses prior to insertion.
Available in 6 fl. oz. (180 ml) plastic containers.

Rinse, Disinfect (Through Heating) and Store with BoilnSoak®.
A sterile, buffered, isotonic solution for rinsing, thermal disinfecting and storage. Offers the convenience of a premixed, ready-to-use solution.
Available in 6 fl. oz. (180 ml) plastic containers.

Rewet and Lubricate with ADAPETTES®
Used as directed with the contact lens on the eye ADAPETTES helps provide all-day seeing comfort — from lens insertion to removal.
Available in 1/2 fl. oz (15 ml) plastic vials.

COLLEGE DRUG STORE
ACCURACY

nrelated Ads That Make Money

The Bagel Deli
"Everything on a bagel"
BAGELS & OTHER BAKED GOODS BAKED DAILY ON THE PREMISES
- N.Y. STYLE DELI
- SMOKED FISH
- CHEESE CAKE
- EGG CREAM
- DAIRY PRODUCTS

OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
HOURS 7 A.M. - 2 A.M. FRI. & SAT.
7 A.M. - 9 P.M. SUN. - THURS.
28 Pleasant St. Northampton

THE SALT BOX
16 Main St., Amherst
Spring is at the Salt Box
C.R.T. Shirts and Separates

STYLES BY DEBORAH
ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL
OUR VERY BEST UNIPERM REG $30.00 NOW ONLY $22.50 COMPLETE WITH CUT & STYLE FOR MEN AND WOMEN. OUR STYLISTS WILL SHOW YOU HOW TO PROFESSIONALLY STYLE YOUR OWN HAIR. STYLE CUT ONLY $5.00
CALL 549-5610 FOR APPT.

T PAYS TO BE DEMAND.

r Force ROTC has scholarships, lowances and jobs for selected ience and engineering majors.

r Force ROTC has openings for ung men and women majoring specified science and engi-ering academic fields. Fields ch as Aeronautical, Aerospace, eneral and Electrical Engineering, athematics, Physics and Com-ter Technology. AFROTC en-llment pays well now and could ep paying off in the future.

r Force ROTC offers 4-year, year and 2-year scholarships th $100 monthly tax-free al-wance during the last two years non-scholarship students.

pon graduation you'll receive a mmission in the U.S Air Force d compete for challenging jobs. ere'll be numerous opportu-ties for advanced education in ur field, plus you'll have financial curity and start your way up the omotion ladder where your ability d ambition are the only limits.

pays to be in demand, and if u're the type we're looking for, pays to get the details No ligations, naturally

ll MAJOR RICHARDSON
at 545-2437
Air Force ROTC
eway to a Great Way of Life

APPEARING TONITE
ZONKARAZ
FRI & SAT
JAMES COTTON
AT
The rusty nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937
Tickets available at
Recordtown, Hadley
Faces of Earth, Amherst

ORIENTEERING
EXPERIENCE THIS CHALLENGING SPORT
SATURDAY 2 APRIL
11:00 AM TO 4:00 PM
REGISTER AT
MILITARY SCIENCE DEPARTMENT
OR CALL
5-2321
OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

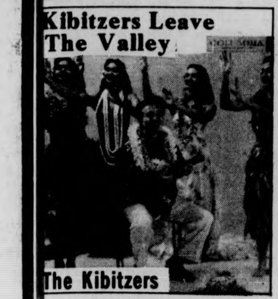
PHOTO CONTEST
DEADLINE: April 26
No smaller than 5'x7' or larger than 8'x10'
Mounting unnecessary
1st Prize $25
2nd Prize $15
3rd Prize $10
2 honorable mention $5 each
Include your name, address, telephone, how the picture was shot, (film type, shutter speed, special effects, etc...) with your photo.
Winners will have their photos printed in the May 2nd Collegian Photo Special

Emporium India
SPRING CELEBRATION
SALE
Friday & Saturday
April 1 & 2
15% OFF
ALL
Shirts and Blouses
Mon-Thurs 10-5
Fri 10-9
Sat 10-6
549-6400
Located in the
Amherst Carriage Shops

RECORDS

Flickering Flames

The Kibitzers
Kibitzers Leave The Valley
Time: 45:88



The Kibitzers

Among the many, many, many albums I own (about five thousand now, not counting singles and tapes — oh let's say another thousand more), The Kibitzers share one of the most cherished spots on my album laden walls. This, however, not taking into account my Bob Dylan collection (I Have all the bootlegs), a person whom I adore. After all, anything Bob Dylan does is great — a position I steadfastly hold despite adverse criticism at home.

Anyways, The Kibitzers have to be the Valley's all time greatest band besides Little Fire. (Did you know I played drums for them? Experience helps when you're a music editor you know!) Ever since that fateful night I "experienced" The Kibitzers at Greenough Dormitory at UMASS in 1973, I have seen true musical brilliance go unnoticed. KIBITZERS LEAVE THE VALLEY is their fifth record for Ginkdom; POINTERS FOR PORK PROFITS being their fantastic debut, DOG BLOW OVER THE RADIO being the nifty followup, LIQUID UNDERWEAR coming close, but too existential and finally last December's haunting eclectric double live release FRIGAT DIVINE MUSHROOM MUSIC. (by this time I was assistant music editor, time's they are changing!)

Frankly, I was worried about this new album because of two factors; one being the loss of lead sitar and vegetable player Sacred Dog Poo and the lack of a funny lp title. (I mean comparisons to The Ramones are bound to bolt into my sleepy little brain!) However, the new replacement is nonother than Bob Estele on Birchbark guitars and sundry oldies. No commies will infiltrate this band with bouncin' Bob back! The rest of the band remains the same; Sir Real on bass and "literture", Solid Vodka on drums and Autofarts, Stinky Weights doing lead vocals and Patti Smith (He also does a mean Tony Verline) and Matching UMole on toy piano and snorting.

LEAVE THE VALLEY is their most ambitious album to date, even though I thought "Cows WWW" from LIQUID UNDERWEAR (Side Two, track 3), was fundamentally spiffy. LEAVE THE VALLEY deals with syndromes I thought they'd never realize. For instance, the ten-minute "Swamp Thang Eats UMan Gomes": it chronicles the devasting trip to Boston The Kibitzers took in last summer; I was there, I know — who'd ever think of singing about the merits of Reeses Peanut Butter Cups? It's even better live! I saw it performed last week; a truly amazing performance in where the song was extended to an unbelievable eleven minutes. You should have seen Solid Vodka thrashing and farting, Weight's doing his best Patti Smith faces and Estele kicking commie's in the groin!

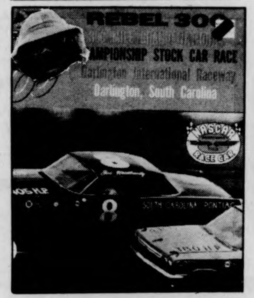
The rest of the album is just as good. "Master Bedroom", a cover version of the still unrecorded Little Fire number, traces anguish without sympathy and a hit single if I ever heard one. A great emotional ballad is "Your Presence Turns My Stomach", dedicated to Suzy Yin Yang Poop, that infamous groupie. It's as mellow as spruce beer and southern comfort! "You May Not Puke But You Won't Sleep" rocks out the album in the tradition of the Velvet Underground, circa 1969, the Andy Warhol period. "Boob Tube" is the album's comical moment and specially dedicated to Solid Vodka's ma — or so a close friend of the band told me. (Being a music editor, I got a lot of connections).

After two months of no touring and stinking, the return of The Kibitzers is frankly copascetic. LEAVING THE VALLEY is already one of the year's finest and on my playlist, right after BARKING GUARD DOGS and my FARTING CONTEST lp. Remember they'll be playing this week in the area (see local listings) and stink, don't think.

David Socalled Soho

Vrooommm Vrooommmmm!

Demolition Derby Sound Effects
(Audiofidelity)
Rebel 300 Stock Car Derby
(Smashup 1001)



REBEL 300
CHAMPIONSHIP STOCK CAR RACE
Darlington International Raceway
Darlington, South Carolina
NASCAR RACE CAR

Bob Dylan said in a recent TV Guide interview that "some of my favorite records are racing car sound effects. More people should listen to them." And in Dylan's typically cryptic and smelly way of making his genius sound mundane, he is right. And so is Colonel Beauregard Gasket when he yells, "Stawt yowah engines, gennulmen, the Rebel 300 has begun!" And 79 high powered death locomotives echo him with the hellish ferocity of their enormous fuel and air sucking machines of destruction. Gawd, what a moment. The only thing remotely similar to this was hearing the Velvet Underground play in a Midas Muffler shop in New York in 1964.

We would assume naturally enough that this "car noise" as some critics have deigned to call it, is merely noise and lies not in the realm of straight music, but I beg to differ. The cyclic progressions of car around race track and intermittent percussive collisions when heard often enough are reminiscent of Steve Reich's "Tape Concerto for Illinois Interstate and Petersbilt Diesel" and evoke the pleasant disturbance of Philip Glass' European recording of "My Body The Car The Tape Machine The Traffic Jam (for Mstislav Restropovish)". The demolition derby, aside from its importance to a happily sick society, is also a divine sort of rending, ripping musical catharsis for those who seek and do not find, but enjoy the sound of head banged against wall.

An especially torrid sequence of "Vaavavarroommmmmmmm's sequences into "Brrripppp.... burrrrrrrawwwwwwww - ooooooo",followed by a brilliant series of guttural, incomprehensible shouts from the pit crew consisting of the gripping "Git that piece of..." and "Hey put your..."

This is music of power, guts and heartfelt dementia that surpasses even the gas station testaments of Graham Parker and the Rumor or the garage grease and tire recap born antics of the Ramones. It takes the new punk energy transfusion and a step further, off the stage and onto the race track. These homegrown mechanic—musicians are risking their lives to give a schizoid America a new music of populist heat and exhaust. The flage hasn't come down on these ol' boys yet.

M.C.P.I.G. Kosgeek II

Thirteen Drachma Opus

Continued from page 17

by Baredhole Drek is a dusty old piece of moose mucus, badly directed by Helena Keyhole and ineptly counteracted by Shitty Studio Theatre.

Especially offensive were Mack Cruddy as a compulsive bath-taker and latent exhibitionist, Granite Wallet Cruddy as his little sister, who rides off into the sunset at the curtain, astride a conquered outlaw, Tool Kit Freemartin as an aging female impersonator, and the Littlest Hobo as Father McNamara, the priest who dared.

Emotions ran high in this production, especially at the climax, where Bessie looks out into the audience and says, "Guacamole."

The set, consisting of dandelion, seeds, a lighting gently on the stage, amidst a deluge of low quality guano, was contrived by Jeff Feeleymeeley, using Jerry Nogo's environmental unit concept.

Props, provided by Messier Funeral Home, were more effective than the 75 tons of green beans that Keyhole had served on the stage.

The music, scored by Virgin Tomthumb, was the low point of the night, with sprightly songs like "Brian's Dirge" and "Discolor My World." The cast numbers increased in ineptness up to the finale, "Igor's Boogie Phase 34."

Even the lighting was full of manure, which explains the dim stage.

All in all, Thirteen Drachma Opus by Baredhole Drek, as performed by Shitty Studio Theatre, is a dusty old piece of moose mucus. I recommend seeing it only to individuals who have recently ingested household cleaning fluid or taken an overdose of Michael Bloom music reviews.

Charles See Smite

appearing at the Bluewall
SASS
Thur - Sat
at the Hatch
Thur - Sat
WALKER
(Fri - Sat, Dancathon for Multiple Schlerosis)

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
day advance payment required

Amherst Auto Parts
Used car parts
Junk Car?
We pay $10 and up.
Replace Glass
Buy and Sell Cars
Located ½ mile past the Rusty Scupper on Rt. 9, behind Amherst landfill.
Phone 256-6409

nrelated Ads That Make Money

The Bagel Deli
"Everything on a bagel"
- N.Y. STYLE DELI
- SMOKED FISH
- CHEESE CAKE
- EGG CREAM
- DAIRY PRODUCTS

BAGELS & OTHER BAKED GOODS BAKED DAILY ON THE PREMISES
OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
HOURS 7 A.M. - 2 A.M. FRI. & SAT.
7 A.M. - 9 P.M. SUN. - THURS.
28 Pleasant St. Northampton

THE SALT BOX
16 Main St., Amherst
Spring is at the Salt Box
C.R.T. Shirts and Separates

STYLES BY DEBORAH
ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL
OUR VERY BEST UNIPERM REG $30.00
NOW ONLY $22.50 COMPLETE WITH
CUT & STYLE FOR MEN AND WOMEN.
OUR STYLISTS WILL SHOW YOU HOW
TO PROFESSIONALLY STYLE YOUR
OWN HAIR. STYLE CUT ONLY $5.00
CALL 549-5610 FOR APPT.

PHOTO CONTEST
DEADLINE: April 26
No smaller than 5'x7' or larger than 8'x10'
Mounting unnecessary
1st Prize $25
2nd Prize $15
3rd Prize $10
2 honorable mention $5 each
Include your name, address, telephone,
how the picture was shot,
(film type, shutter speed, special effects, etc...)
with your photo.
Winners will have their photos printed in the May 2nd Collegian Photo Special

T PAYS TO BE DEMAND.

r Force ROTC has scholarships, lowances and jobs for selected ience and engineering majors.

r Force ROTC has openings for ung men and women majoring specified science and engiering academic fields. Fields ch as Aeronautical, Aerospace, eneral and Electrical Engineering, athematics, Physics and Comter Technology. AFROTC enllment pays well now and could ep paying off in the future.

r Force ROTC offers 4-year, year and 2-year scholarships th $100 monthly tax-free alwance during the last two years non-scholarship students.

on graduation you'll receive a mmission in the U.S. Air Force d compete for challenging jobs. ere'll be numerous opportuties for advanced education in ur field, plus you'll have financial curity and start your way up the motion ladder where your ability d ambition are the only limits.

pays to be in demand, and if u're the type we're looking for, pays to get the details. No ligations, naturally.

MAJOR RICHARDSON
at 545-2437
Air Force ROTC
eway to a Great Way of Life

APPEARING TONITE
ZONKARAZ
FRI & SAT
JAMES COTTON
AT
The rusty nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937
Tickets available at
Recordtown, Hadley
Faces of Earth, Amherst

ORIENTEERING
EXPERIENCE THIS CHALLENGING SPORT
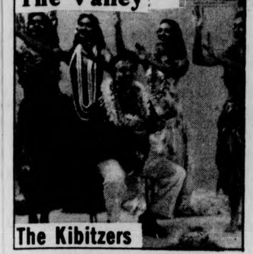
SATURDAY 2 APRIL
11:00 AM TO 4:00 PM
REGISTER AT
MILITARY SCIENCE DEPARTMENT
OR CALL
5-2321
OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS

Emporium India
SPRING CELEBRATION
SALE
Friday & Saturday
April 1 & 2
15% OFF
ALL
Shirts and Blouses
Mon-Thurs 10-5
Fri 10-9
Sat 10-6
549-6400
Located in the
Amherst Carriage Shops

RECORDS

Flickering Flames

The Kibitzers
Kibitzers Leave The Valley
Time: 45:88



Among the many, many, many albums I own (about five thousand now, not counting singles and tapes — oh let's say another thousand more), The Kibitzers share one of the most cherished spots on my album laden walls. This, however, not taking into account my Bob Dylan collection (I Have all the bootlegs), a person whom I adore. After all, anything Bob Dylan does is great — a position I steadfastly hold despite adverse criticism at home.

Anyways, The Kibitzers have to be the Valley's all time greatest band besides Little Fire. (Did you know I played drums for them? Experience helps when you're a music editor you know!) Ever since that fateful night I "experienced" The Kibitzers at Greenough Dormitory at UMASS in 1973, I have seen true musical brilliance go unnoticed. KIBITZERS LEAVE THE VALLEY is their fifth record for Ginkdom; POINTERS FOR PORK PROFITS being their fantastic debut, DOG BLOW OVER THE RADIO being the nifty followup, LIQUID UNDERWEAR coming close, but too existential and finally last December's haunting eclectric double live release FRIGAT DIVINE MUSHROOM MUSIC. (by this time I was assistant music editor, time's they are changing!)

Frankly, I was worried about this new album because of two factors; one being the loss of lead sitar and vegetable player Sacred Dog Poo and the lack of a funny lp title. (I mean comparisons to The Ramones are bound to bolt into my sleepy little brain!) However, the new replacement is nonother than Bob Estele on Birchbark guitars and sundry oldies. No commies will infiltrate this band with bouncin' Bob back! The rest of the band remains the same; Sir Real on bass and "literture", Solid Vodka on drums and Autofarts, Stinky Weights doing lead vocals and Patti Smith (He also does a mean Tony Verline) and Matching UMole on toy piano and snorting.

LEAVE THE VALLEY is their most ambitious album to date, even though I thought "Cows WWW" from LIQUID UNDERWEAR (Side Two, track 3), was fundamentally spiffy. LEAVE THE VALLEY deals with syndromes I thought they'd never realize. For instance, the ten-minute "Swamp Thang Eats UMan Gomes": it chronicles the devasting trip to Boston The Kibitzers took in last summer; I was there, I know — who'd ever think of singing about the merits of Reeses Peanut Butter Cups? It's even better live! I saw it performed last week; a truly amazing performance in where the song was extended to an unbelievable eleven minutes. You should have seen Solid Vodka thrashing and farting, Weight's doing his best Patti Smith faces and Estele kicking commie's in the groin!

The rest of the album is just as good. "Master Bedroom", a cover version of the still unrecorded Little Fire number, traces anguish without sympathy and a hit single if I ever heard one. A great emotional ballad is "Your Presence Turns My Stomach", dedicated to Suzy Yin Yang Poop, that infamous groupie. It's as mellow as spruce beer and southern comfort! "You May Not Puke But You Won't Sleep" rocks out the album in the tradition of the Velvet Underground, circa 1969, the Andy Warhol period. "Boob Tube" is the album's comical moment and specially dedicated to Solid Vodka's ma — or so a close friend of the band told me. (Being a music editor, I got a lot of connections).

After two months of no touring and stinking, the return of The Kibitzers is frankly copascetic. LEAVING THE VALLEY is already one of the year's finest and on my playlist, right after BARKING GUARD DOGS and my FARTING CONTEST lp. Remember they'll be playing this week in the area (see local listings) and stink, don't think.

_______ David Socalled Soho

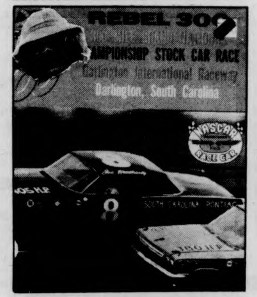
Vrooommm______ ______Vrooommmmm!

Demolition Derby Sound Effects
(Audiofidelity)
Rebel 300 Stock Car Derby
(Smashup 1001)



REBEL 300
CHAMPIONSHIP STOCK CAR RACE
Darlington International Raceway
Darlington, South Carolina
NASCAR RACE CAR

Bob Dylan said in a recent TV Guide interview that "some of my favorite records are racing car sound effects. More people should listen to them." And in Dylan's typically cryptic and smelly way of making his genius sound mundane, he is right. And so is Colonel Beauregard Gasket when he yells, "Stawt yowah engines, gennulmen, the Rebel 300 has begun!" And 79 high powered death locomotives echo him with the hellish ferocity of their enormous fuel and air sucking machines of destruction. Gawd, what a moment. The only thing remotely similar to this was hearing the Velvet Underground play in a Midas Muffler shop in New York in 1964.

We would assume naturally enough that this "car noise" as some critics have deigned to call it, is merely noise and lies not in the realm of straight music, but I beg to differ. The cyclic progressions of car around race track and intermittent percussive collisions when heard often enough are reminiscent of Steve Reich's "Tape Concerto for Illinois Interstate and Petersbilt Diesel" and evoke the pleasant disturbance of Philip Glass' European recording of "My Body The Car The Tape Machine The Traffic Jam (for Mstislav Restropovish)". The demolition derby, aside from its importance to a happily sick society, is also a divine sort of rending, ripping musical catharsis for those who seek and do not find, but enjoy the sound of head banged against wall.

An especially torrid sequence of "Vaavavar-roommmmmmmm's sequences into "Brrripppp.... burrrrrrrrawwwwwwww - ooooooo",followed by a brilliant series of guttural, incomprehensible shouts from the pit crew consisting of the gripping "Git that piece of..." and "Hey put your..."

This is music of power, guts and heartfelt dementia that surpasses even the gas station testaments of Graham Parker and the Rumor or the garage grease and tire recap born antics of the Ramones. It takes the new punk energy transfusion and a step further, off the stage and onto the race track. These homegrown mechanic—musicians are risking their lives to give a schizoid America a new music of populist heat and exhaust. The flage hasn't come down on these ol' boys yet.

_______ M.C.P.I.G. Kosgeek II

Thirteen Drachma Opus

Continued from page 17

by Baredhole Drek is a dusty old piece of moose mucus, badly directed by Helena Keyhole and ineptly counteracted by Shitty Studio Theatre.

Especially offensive were Mack Cruddy as a compulsive bath-taker and latent exhibitionist, Granite Wallet Cruddy as his little sister, who rides off into the sunset at the curtain, astride a conquered outlaw, Tool Kit Freemartin as an aging female impersonator, and the Littlest Hobo as Father McNamara, the priest who dared.

Emotions ran high in this production, especially at the climax, where Bessie looks out into the audience and says, "Guacamole."

The set, consisting of dandelion, seeds, a lighting gently on the stage, amidst a deluge of low quality guano, was contrived by Jeff Feeleymeeley, using Jerry Nogo's environmental unit concept.

Props, provided by Messier Funeral Home, were more effective than the 75 tons of green beans that Keyhole had served on the stage.

The music, scored by Virgin Tomthumb, was the low point of the night, with sprightly songs like "Brian's Dirge" and "Discolor My World." The cast numbers increased in ineptness up to the finale, "Igor's Boogie Phase 34."

Even the lighting was full of manure, which explains the dim stage.

All in all, Thirteen Drachma Opus by Baredhole Drek, as performed by Shitty Studio Theatre, is a dusty old piece of moose mucus. I recommend seeing it only to individuals who have recently ingested household cleaning fluid or taken an overdose of Michael Bloom music reviews.

_______ Charles See Smite

appearing at the Bluewall
SASS
Thur - Sat
at the Hatch
Thur - Sat
WALKER
(Fri - Sat, Dancathon for Multiple Schlerosis)

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
day advance payment required

Amherst Auto Parts
Used car parts
Junk Car?
We pay $10 and up.
Replace Glass
Buy and Sell Cars
Located ½ mile past the Rusty Scupper on Rt. 9, behind Amherst landfill.
Phone 256-6409

Nuke Sewage Stew

Continued from another page

has ever even bothered to solicit an advertisement from big government...or the Rockefeller-Mafia Cabal for that matter...so there bigoted, ignorant critics!)

The key to the scheme is found in one suspicious budget item approved by the Governor for the University—state grant No. 49981236. This expenditure is listed as an application to build and maintain a nuclear fussion reactor to determine the feasability of allowing work-study undergraduates to work with nuclear materials such as enriched uranium and plutonium. The students, according to the grant proposal would get valuable "hands on" experience that they need to find good jobs in the atomic power business when they graduate.

A spokesman for the sewage treatment plant confirmed that workers are moving ahead with the building of the massive concrete building—definite proof that a nuclear plant is in fact going in since all nuclear plants are constructed with concrete. (New Times Nov. 75 — Popular Mechanics, July 73).

The plot to build this nuclear powered sewage treatment plant might have worked but for a quick witted former Marine corporal, who smelled something going on at the building site.

The veteran, Chuck Trueblood, lived next door to the director of the project, a man named Ivan Blotski. Some time ago his keen Marine senses detected a powerful concentration of burned oatmeal and peanut butter in his apartment. His suspicions were confirmed when he passed Blotski in the supermarket last week.

"He was carrying a heavy supermarket bag," said Trueblood. "It was filled with peanut butter—jars and jars of the stuff." He also noticed that Blotski was wearing rubber gloves and gum boots.

"I figured something screwy was going on," Trueblood told our reporters. He quickly recalled that in Marine training they had mentioned that gloves and boots much like Blotski's were used as a precaution against radiation poisoning.

At first, Avocado staffers could not understand why the governor would approve such a dangerour program. It was pointed out by reliable sources however that a nuclear accident at the plant would make the nearby UMass campus uninhabitable for at least 75 years which would give the Governor one more reason why he should not increase the budget for the Amherst campus.

So there you have it—the pros and cons of the issue. This group of concerned reporters urges you to write your legislators and express your opinion about this important issue. It's still not too late! □

IT'S NO TRICK AT ALL

The Department
of Dramatic Arts
Amherst College
presents
CONTEMPORARY DANCE
SYSTEM
Daniel Lewis,
Artistic Director
2 Evenings of
Repertory Performance
April 1, 2
8:00 p.m.
Kirby Memorial
Theater
Reserved Seats $2.50
542-2277
10-5

THANKS SNITCH!

classifieds

good things to eat

Publicity puffs, advertising copy, and free "complimentary reviews" in exchange for free, but expensive meals. Payola will get you published. Contact Laurn J. Tripe, Avocado Box 3.

services

Typing: talking horse will type thesis, reviews, alternative journalism. Call Ed Maybes at the Avocado.

Expert photojournalist, W. H. Howl III will do dogs, weddings, forgeries. Guaranteed coverage from all angles. Costly cameras but well worth the clicks.

Nixon impersonator seeks steady lunch hour crowd for personal therapy. Call Dick Pulmine at the Avocado.

lost & found

Lost: talking horse, near Amity St. Will answer to all calls. Avocado Box T.

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

furniture

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

swaps & free

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

livestock

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

unclassifiable

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

autos for sale

1969 RRB, new engine, rebuild alternator, needs muffler. Good condition; rusted inside and out. Asking $1200 or top dollar.

1973 BSTV, souped-up, 4 wheel drive, sand tires, row bar, fins no motor. Call Bob.

1967 Cady Voup deGrille needs body, motor, interior, Must sell. Name your price but don't be absurd.

XL-19 BTT with 6J-90's up front and set of F-16's where you need them. Custom interior with latest KLHM83 push buttom non stop. A rare find that you can't pass up. I have to. Ask for Nigel.

Must part with my custom designed KGB. What a treasure! Beautiful white-green interior; yellow running boards; blue dash. Asking $16,780. Come and see it!

1984 Pick-up with optical rear scanners; solar heated; six wheel drive with spin option. Climate controlled, nice neighborhood. Near schools, walking distance from shopping center. $4400.

Classy car for the sporting you. Am moving to LA and must leave behind with precious memories. Yours for 5 big bills. Talk with Steve.

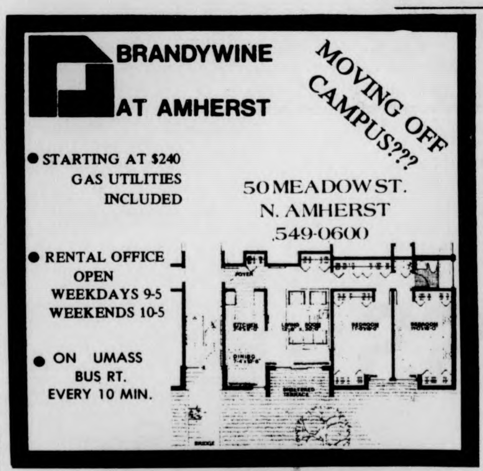
real estate for sale

Luxurious 23 bedroom estate located on country road. Stream, good fishing. Solar heated. Lovely view of thick woods. No neighbors, dangerous animals. Tramps who pass through in the night know it well. Railroad tracks at handy distance. Call B & S Realtors.

Got brats? Hey, perfect play, near highway, rushing river, other dangers you'll just have to see to believe. Steep cliffs, nice sunset. Garage. Call Paul for more details.

roommates

Reasonable male or female roommate wanted to share country setting. Own your own ground. Garden. No hassles, please. Call after 6.



BRANDYWINE
AT AMHERST
MOVING OFF CAMPUS???
- STARTING AT $240 GAS UTILITIES INCLUDED
- RENTAL OFFICE OPEN WEEKDAYS 9-5 WEEKENDS 10-5
- ON UMASS BUS RT. EVERY 10 MIN.

50 MEADOW ST.
N. AMHERST
549-0600

October Porkfest
Plan Early!- Don't Miss It This Year!

YOU SHOULD DROP BY
UNIVERSITY PIZZA
If you can answer yes to more than three of these questions
1. Can you watch T.V.
2. Can you play pinball
3. Pay less and get more than anywhere in town
4. Bring 100 friends and have robm for more
5. Drive or walk less distance from campus than any other place in town
6. Enjoy food more in a relaxing atmosphere
7. Enjoy more variety
8. Meet more people
549-5592
P.S. Enjoy an ice cream cone or sundae

classifieds

help wanted

Stuff it, $2 per thousand in your spare time. For details send $10 and S.A.S.E. to Box 351, Lower Slobovia.

Nudes, nudes! Drop your drawers for compassionate, sensitive artists (no hanky-panty). Serious student of the fine arts seeks attractive, sexy female models for serious figure studies. Send details to Drooling Pablo, Avocado Box XXX.

Uncertain future: top secret government agency seeks aggressive, enthusiastic men and women aged 20-35. Large build, several licenses essential, no home ties. Ample opportunity for world travel and promotion. Small quota to meet. Send mug and record to Box XYZ, Washington, D.C.

Dead bodies wanted for alternative underground mortician's collective. Write to Digger at Avocado Box D

Hired gun wanted for small but expanding town in Western Mass. Fast but discreet, no itchy fingers please or gun happy go luckies. Good credentials required. Send clippings to Triple Knotch Creek Commune, E. Wellbelly Mass., c-o Conway PO.

Talking horse seeks paid live-in companion. Send fact sheet and references to Avocado Box K

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

business opportunities

Your every wish is our command. Your perverse desires, services, and needs could infect 90,000,000 avid Avocado readers. The classifieds do the dirty work for you.

Avocado is seeking advertising salespersons. Become a part of the fastest growing alternative shopper in Western Mass. We make money hand over fist here at the Valley Avocado, and you can too! Help us exploit gullible consumers. Call the Avocado office and ask for Snitchell, our ad manager.

wanted to buy

Talking horse seeks used file cabinets. Must be in excellent tip-top condition, rarely used and willing to part with for cheap, inconsiderate price. Call Ed at the Avocado.

Spirited alternative newsstaffers seek used Chianti bottles for office decor. No Gallos please. Call Ed Maybes at the Avocado.

Talking publisher wants used typewriters. Will only consider good to excellent condition manuels or electrics. Under $3.00. Call Ed at the Avocado.

What are you looking for? Look no further! It's here in the Avocado's classifieds where 98,000,000 folks will thumb their noses at them.

tag sales & auctions

Your crap could be out of the closet and into the hands of 9 billion readers who rummage through the Valley Avocado's classifieds sports equipment

Talking horse seeks feed bags and jock straps. Avocado Box H

Hey sport, last years ski wax could be reaching tens of thousands of potential downhillers. Valley Avocado classifieds are downhill all the way!

personals

Built blonde female nymphomaniac with stock in liquors seeks klutzy Mitch Miller professor type with degree in mixology for adventures in fun and profit. Avocado Box 86

Noted valley illustrator Michael Boyle seeks several glandular high school age women for technical illustration models — anatomical textbook. On the level, really, no hassles. No experience necessary; binding contract preferred, no strings attached. Call FUXGOOD, keep trying.

Black and blue couple desires to meet with other couples for torture sessions or SF, SM, SciFi. Discretion assured. Send revealing pix to Avocado Box FX.

Semi-retired prof of Humanities, tall and handsome with backwoods estate wants young co-ed to share organic experiences. No scabs, PLEASE! Avocado Box Y.

Sex starved violence hungry artist seeks bondage partner for kinky slap abouts. No hassles. Avocado Box 36.

Well endowed son-of-millionaire desires meaningful relationship with clean, witty, young lady. Would especially appreciate sexual favors in return for monetary rewards. Handsome features a must; good housekeeper essential. Write to Duke, Avocado Box 87.

Hey MayBey! What gives with our mag?

WSKLX seeks GJCH for swinging times. Avocado Box G.

Expert lover on the prowl. Lunch on the Charles, Tanglewood, Grecian urns, strolls in the woods, Self hypnosis, TM, brown rice, that sort of thing. Interested? Wiley, Avocado Box 72.

Yoga freak, college educated, desires to try sex with attractive, intelligent, open minded gal. Send phone and photo to Kulundrahammnad'iw, Avocado Box 23.

Leaving for Europe on Monday. Would appreciate kind, considerate, female companion. No ripoffs, please. Contact Brad, Avocado Box 63.

Into rubber cement? You're not alone. Avocado Box K.

Normal people. Hey, let's get together and maybe work something out. The time to stick it out is now. Hang in there. Give us a call.

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

pets & supplies

Darling overgrown chimp needs a home. Must give away, leaving for Antartica on Saturday. Avocado Box 21

Talking Golden Palomino, full papers, with slight speech impediment for sale or trade for four wheel drive vehicle. Talking Merseycow, iguana, ocelot also for sale. All with some showbiz experience. Contact Wilbur Post Publishing Company.

Your item, service, or need listed here could be overlooked by countless thousands of readers.

rides

Leaving for the wild and wooly west? I'll make it worth your while. Avocado Box N.

Crossing country for Cairo either April 3 or 4. Would like to get off near Bengal. Ken, Avocado Box 78.

Leisure Class
Plain Jane Awning Dress
Halter Tie Bodice in Multi-Color Stripes
$17.50
Izod Shirts by La Coste For Men in White, Navy, Red, Kelly and Light Blue $13.50
Jogging Shorts
Solid or Striped in all colors
$3.50
Capezio Leotards
Sunback in Spring Colors
$6.25
Camisole
in Spring Colors
$6.00
Hooded Sweatshirts
in solid colors
$9.00
Big Smith
Painter Pants
$11.00
Krone Clogs
Men's and Women's Closed back clogs in Tan Leather Chino Pants The Lodge's Own!
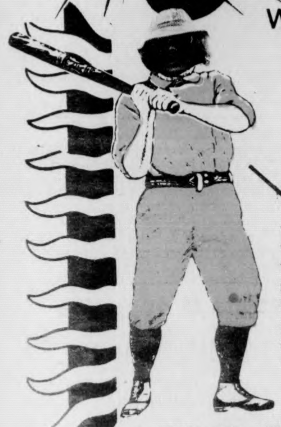
in Navy, Tan and White
$10.95
The Basic and Contemporary Clothing and Shoe store for Men, Women, and Children.
Massachusetts: Harvard Sq., Cambridge; Newbury St., Boston; Belmont St., Brockton; No. Shore Shopping Center, Peabody; Eastfield Mall, Springfield; Route 9, Amherst; Burlington Mall. Connecticut: Bishops Corner Shopping Center, W. Hartford. New Jersey: Paramus Park, Woodbridge Shopping Center, Echelon Mall, Voorhees; Riverside Sq. Mall, Hackensack. Pennsylvania: Plymouth Meeting Mall, Lehigh Valley Mall, Allentown.
THE LODGE at harvard square ®
Amherst, Rt. 9
Next to McDonald's, 584-9690



SUN MUSIC

'The truth never lies'
9 E. Pleasant St. 549-2830
10-6 p.m.
(Fridays till 9 p.m.)
Used records sold, purchased and swapped.

Watch owner Krazy Mike SMASH! prices

It's No Big Sale This Happens Everyday!

LOW
$4.98
The Band --Islands
Pink Floyd --Animals
Bad Company --Burnin' Sky

LOWER
$3.55
Johnnie Taylor
$3.98
Bootsy's Rubber Band-Ahh
Nils Lofgren-I Came To Dance
Jeff Beck--Live
Iggy Pop--The Idiot
Charlie Parker--Encoves
Kinks--Sleepwalker

LOWEST
(the used bin)
$2.22
Beatles--Abbey Road
John Handy--Carnival
ZZ Top--Tejas
$2.00
Firesign Theatre--Don't Dwarf

"Even in the price-warring cities, there's no way of getting records like these for less. Our used section finds happy new homes for thousands of used records. From $2.22 to 33 cents, you never know what magic lurks.

"Yes, there's always something on sale at SUN. We feature the lucky 13 new releases. Right now we are giving away those above as well as the new ones by Fat, Phil Ochs, Brass Construction, Jethro Tull, Harold Melvin, Return to Forever, and Henry Gross."

X-tre X-tre

This special edition of the

VALLEY Avocado
The Alternative Shopper in the Valley

has been brought to you by those clever people at

Below The Salt
weekly fine arts magazine

The VALLEY Avocado was conceived and edited by Debbie Schafer and E. Patrick McQuaid

Special thanks to Jack Cahill, Dave Santos, Mark Leccese, Mike Moyle, Jim Sawyer, and to those others who wish to remain anonymous.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 113 FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1977

Collegian

Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/ Amherst, MA. 01003/ (413) 545-3500

Signs for Spring Concert

Stevie Wonder: May 11

By MARY GORDEN
Collegian Staff

Stevie Wonder, musical genius, superstar, and one of the most popular performers in the music world today, will weave his magic at the UMass Spring Concert on May 11.

The surprise announcement was made late last night by concert organizer Edward M. Wilkes, as last minute negotiations were completed by phone with Wonder's agent in California.

Wonder will be on stage for two hours, according to the terms of the contract, and will receive a reported $30,000 for the show.

The appearance of Wonder marks not only an important first for UMass but a brilliant coup on the part of organizers to get the cherished singer.

Wonder's last appearance on the east coast was in September of 1974 when he performed in concert in Boston.

He reportedly was urged to appear at UMass by singer Natalie Cole, daugher of famed singer Nat King Cole and graduate of UMass.

Cole did a benefit concert with Wonder two months ago as a favor, and it is suspected this is Wonder's way of paying her back.

Organizers said last night that negotiations have been going on with Wonder's agent since last October, but that they had broken down at several points because of money.

"Stevie doesn't play for peanuts, let me tell you," Wilkes said. "Some of the amounts that were being mentioned by the agent were outrageous — totally unbelievable. I gave up hope in February of ever getting him."

Wilkes said he hadn't spoken with Wonder's agent for a month.

But the unpredictable Wonder yesterday ordered his agent to find out the highest possible amount UMass was willing to pay, and then accept it.

"I couldn't believe my ears," Wilkes said. "When he (the agent) asked me the highest amount we would pay, I got a little optimistic and stretched our budget a little to see if that would bait him. And it did."

Wonder will reportedly bring along the $20,000 voice synthesizer he purchased last October from a music store in Northampton — the sole instrument he intends to use on his next album.

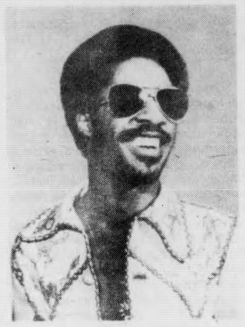
Wonder's latest album, Songs In The Key Of Life, has been a chartbuster since its release last October. The most popular hits from the album are now on the top forty — "Isn't She Lovely," "I Wish" and "Sir Duke".

Wonder was born in Dorchester, Massachusetts in 1951, and began his musical career at the age of 10. His first big hit was "Fingertips". Subsequent hits include "Uptight" and "For Once In My Life".

Wonder's sound matured with the advent of his album, Music Of My Mind. Next came Talking Book and the hits "Superstition" and "You Are The Sunshine of My Life."

His next album was Innervisions, and songs from that album which attained popularity were "Don't You Worry 'Bout A Thing" and "Living For The City".

Fulfillingness First Finale followed. A popular number from that album was "Reggae Woman."



Stevie Wonder

Student reaction to the announcement was as expected — apathetic. One avid fan, Louise Merrick, was estatic over the news.

Merrick, 19, of Brittany Manor, said, "I hope Stevie brings his little daughter so when he sings 'Isn't She Lovely' his daughter can say, 'Eat Me'. That's the best part of the whole song. I really get my buns off on it."

When asked what her buns were, Merrick said, "Well, they sure ain't the hot-cross type, honey."

Another fan, who only would give her name as Boo-Boo, was rather blase about the whole thing.

"I've got a parakeet that can sing better than that fucking bastard," she screamed.

Judge closes Bluewall for 'indefinite' period

By DAN BEAULIEU
Collegian Staff

A Hampshire County Superior Court judge ordered the Bluewall bar closed last night for an indefinite length of time for alleged discriminatory hiring practices.

Judge John J. Murphy granted a temporary closing order after members of a Northampton Title IX task force showed probable cause in a sex discrimination suit filed in Superior Court yesterday.

Title IX is a federal court ruling which prohibits discrimination in any educational institution receiving federal funds.

Dean William F. Field, acting director of the Campus Center, said in a Collegian interview last night, "The judge may have made a hasty decision, but we have no choice, we've got to abide by it."

Bernard F. Wilkes, manager of the Campus Center, said, "I had heard that such a suit was in the works, but the judge's closing stunned us. We're going to court this morning to try to obtain an injunction so we can carry on business as usual."

The charges were filed against the Top of the Campus, Inc., controllers of the liquor license, by Karen A. Cleveland of John Quincy Adams tower in Southwest.

"It's a clearcut violation," said Cleveland. "I applied first, I had more experience and the necessary qualifications, but I didn't get the job... they probably hired another jock."

Bluewall Manager Craig Roach labelled the charges "ridiculous" and re-stated his commitment to Affirmative Action hiring guidelines.

"I know the law, I mean geez, if I did it the way she (Cleveland) says I did... they'd have me. I just picked the person who I thought could best fill the position."

The coordinator of the Title IX task force, Maura S. Everett, hailed the ruling as "one that had to be made quickly and correctly." She said Moriarty did both.

According to Everett, Moriarty deliberated with colleagues for about two hours until the decision was announced at 10:30 p.m.

Thomas J. Kerrins, board manager of the TOC Inc., called the closing "hasty and irresponsible." He suggested that Cleveland may have gotten swifter action had she brought the problem to the 12 member TOC Board of Directors.

Field said he didn't expect any action to be taken against the Hatch or the Top of the Campus bars. "They've violated no laws and the judge dealt with the Bluewall as an individual bar, not as a part of a corporation."

Roach estimated that the Bluewall would lose nearly $6,000 in revenue this weekend alone.

"If the weather is nice Saturday, with the lacrosse game crowd we'd make quite a lot. If this extends much past the weekend, we'll be hurting," he said.

The Bluewall employs 15 bartenders and 11 employes in other various classifications.

One Bluewall bartender, who refused to be indentified said, "Hey, if she became a bartender she'd have to work some nights as a bouncer. I don't want some girl covering my back in a brawl. It just doesn't make sense."

Cleveland has hired an attorney, Elizabeth H. Casey of Holyoke, to investigate the possibility of bringing a civil suit against the TOC, Inc.

Paul L. Yanowitch, Student Government Association attorney general, confirmed that a complaint had been filed with the Student Judiciary. Jan van Tol, a student advocate, had been investigating the charges against Roach.

"Frankly, I couldn't find any wrongdoing," said van Tol. "I might have missed something or someone, but I don't think so. I'll have to read the published opinion."

Anne Thorkelson, Affirmative Action officer of the Undergraduate Student Senate, called the order "a hard decision" and she expressed skepticism about the outcome.

It even seems a little hasty to me," said Thorkelson.

UMass Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery told the Collegian early this morning, "After we finish the budget, I promise to investigate."

You can pick your friends, and you can pick your nose but ... you can pick your friend's nose. (Staff photo by Earl Butz)

inside

The University is adding a new requirement to students' course load — Bestiality 101. See Lesley Nearman's story on Page 6.

Maureen Majerowski reports on a new perfume for women designed to ward off lecherous fellow office workers. Turn to the women's pages.

If you've had problems being chased by dead bunnies, Collegian reporter Fluffy Ball tells you what to do to avoid them.

weather

Snow probable, lows in the low zeros. Does 0 to 50 in 7.8 seconds. Seconds on the house, coffee included. Include name, address and fetishes.

UMass secedes from union

By DUKE AND THE DRIVERS
Collegian Staff

UMass - Amherst has seceded from the union.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery announced yesterday that this move is the "only viable solution" to the problem of lack of representation for the Amherst campus in President Robert C. Wood's office.

"We will follow the example of those brave islands of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket," said Bromery. "We will catagorically secede from the University of Massachusetts, the Commonwealth, and the United States of America."

The head of the world's newest country added that not only is the campus proper being declared independent, but that apartment complexes such as Brittany Manor, Puffton Village and others, more than half rented by UMAss students, will be annexed as "buffer territories."

"There will, necessarily, have to be some measures taken to insure the sovreignity of our nation," said Bromery, "A major concern is, of course, our defense in case of repressionistic tactics by the American government."

The newly-appointed Field Commander, Army ROTC Colonol Baxter M. Bullock, outlined some of the plans.

"Chancellor Bromery has authorized me to take all necessary steps to defend our homeland," he said. "I have armed the equestarian team with sabers and formed the 7th Minuteman Calvary, named for another famous fighting outfit. All physical education majors are now required to take gymnastics, Tae Kwon Do and guerilla tactics. They will serve as our front line of ground troops.

"The crew teams, both men's and women's, have been mobilized. All shells have been mounted with torpedoes and deployed on search and destroy missions in the campus pond. The Concrete Canoe Team is busy constructing the flagship of our armada.

"Aerial superiority has been taken care of, also. The hang-gliding and parachute clubs have been outfitted with razor-edged frisbees and stationed atop all buildings on campus over seven stories tall."

Bullock refused more than these general comments, saying that he didn't want to tip the enemy on all UMass' defenses. It is rumored, however, that the University has signed a pact with Amherst Towing to provide an effective anti-tank defense. An unidentified Political Science-ROTC major was quoted as saying, "The bastards'll never get a chance to shut off their engines. Those wreckers'll tow 'em as fast as they can park." Company spokesmen were silent, but it has been observed that five new trucks have joined their fleet.

Bromery said he did not think independence would hurt UMass enrollment or raise tuition.

"On the contrary," he smiled, "I believe enrollment will go up and tuition will actually drop, once certain changes in curriculum are made." Bromery listed those "certain changes."

"One, the program will become a full four years. In the semesters that students aren't in class, they will work at various practical skills, according to their majors. Food science, plant and soil science majors and those in related fields, will work on University land to raise food for the dining commons. Engineers will develop new technology for defense and convert the entire campus over to wind and solar power. I feel most of the University's population can be placed in a field relating to their major. Those who cannot will rotate through the projects wherever they are needed.

"Two, the University will follow the Swiss and Israeli examples of universal conscription. All students are on active reserve duty in the armed forces. This, I believe, is the only way to defend the country and build 'esprit de corps'."

RSB opposes declaration of independence

By GEORGE PATTON
Collegian Staff

The Revolutionary Student Brigade (RSB) came out in direct opposition to Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery's decree of independence for UMass-Amherst.

RSB leaders, identified only as "Smith and Jones" (for fear of reprisals by the Administration), declared the RSB's "undying support of America, mom, and apple pie."

"We can't allow this outrage by a two-bit tyrant," bellowed Smith. She was particularly outraged by the idea of conscripting women into the armed forces.

"Bromery knows we're the weaker sex. Why should he put us where the fighting is? Our place is in the home. Our position, in any battle, should be prone."

Jones was also adamant against the independence of UMass.

"The RSB has always been at odds with Bromery," he said. "I never thought he'd go this far, though. Rather than force an open confrontation at this time, we'll work covertly. We have been in touch with CIA recruiters on campus and things look promising for support from that quarter."

When asked about the immediate plans for resistance, Smith and Jones said there will be an apple pie protest to determine student unity against independence.

"But only if Table Talk applie pies are served," they said. "We can't stand any other kind. They have a soft flaky crust."

Speaking of soft, flaky things, other RSB organizers said they were in support or Bromery's move.

"After we finish with the budget, we promise to investigate." (Staff photo courtesy of INDEX, d.)

Nuclear plant here in planning stages

By BLOE M. SKYHIGH
Collegian Staff

UMass Planning Director H. Jack Bigmeadow announced yesterday that UMass will build a $1 billion nuclear power plant to replace the present coal-fired plant.

"We hope to begin construction as soon as possible since the present power plant was supposed to last 30 years when it was built 50 years ago," Bigmeadow said.

The new plant, which will be built next to Alumni Stadium, will supply power for all of the campus.

"We're going to convert all the dorms to electric heat which will mean we won't have to go around and repair all those steam pipes all the time," Bigmeadow said.

Asked about what will happen to the new steam plant at Tilson Farm which was built two years ago, Bigmeadow said, "We think we are going to sell that to Ruby Vine. We got sick and tired of trying to repair all the leaks in that thing. The contractor said it would take another million to fix it completely, so we decided to get something better."

UMass President Robert C. Wood said he was "amused that the Amherst campus was getting a new toy."

The plant will be designed by Westinghouse Nuclear Inc. and will be based on the Vermont Yankee Power Plant, according to a Westinghouse spokesman.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) ordered the Vermont plant closed for major repairs last year due to faults in the cooling system and leaks in the roof. Asked about this, the spokesperson said: "We think we can work out all the bugs in the UMass plant, if we can't; I live in California, so I don't have to worry."

Bigmeadow said he hopes to save money on the plant by having the Physical Plant do a lot of the work themselves.

"We don't think we need a professional construction company do the work. After all, the last one

TURN TO PAGE 5

police beatings

Senator arrested for attempted castration

By FLASH QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

Karen M. Kelly, Undergraduate Student Senator, was arrested yesterday for attempting to castrate a Bluewall bouncer.

Kelly had to be restrained from plunging a knife into the zipper of James L. Borden, 24, while he manned the entrance of the campus bar during happy hour yesterday.

Borden was rushed to the Infirmary, where a spare janitor sewed a new man's organ on him.

Kelly said last night she did it for her boyfriend, former SGA co-president Jay A. Martus.

Kelly said she and Martus were sitting in the Bluewall drinking when Martus mentioned he would like to get a kilo of dope, and mentioned something about a "brick."

Kelly, saying she "would do anything for my sweet baboo," then rushed over to the bouncer and plunged her knife through his pants zipper.

Kelly said she figured she could get in "one good chop," and make the bouncer's man's organ fall down his pants leg and onto the floor, where she said she planned to "scoop it up unnoticed and stick it in my pocket."

She said she chose a bouncer because she could be guaranteed of "getting a fat one."

Martus giggled good-naturedly about the incident when contacted by the Collegian last night.

"Karen always rushes to do things for me without really thinking," he chuckled. "It's kinda cute sometimes."

He said he was sorry about the bouncer's man's organ, saying he realized what an integral part of the job one is.

"He didn't need that extra load in his pants anyway," Martus said. "He just won't bounce naturally anymore."

Larcenies

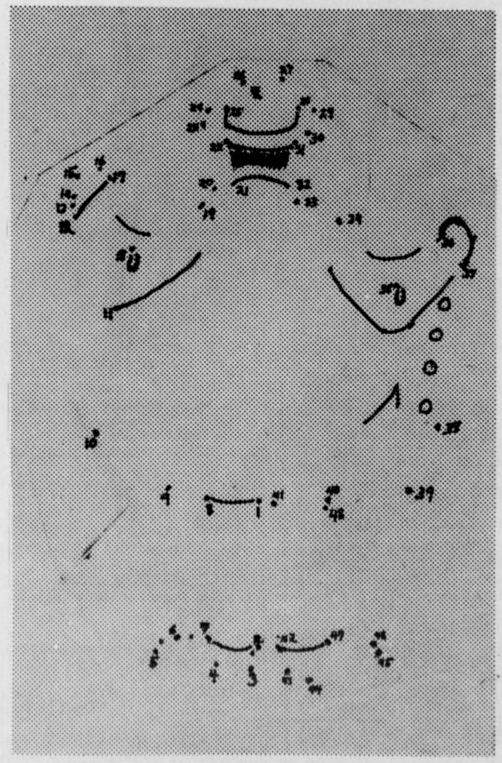
None worth mentioning this week.

Assaults

Brian DeLima, speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate, was cautioned by police to stop assaulting a brightly-colored display of Easter clothes in the University store.

"I thought it was another Hawaiian," DeLima said. "We all look alike, you know."

DeLima is a native of Hukalewey, Maui, Hawaii.



UMass student caught in a candid pose on a beautiful spring afternoon. (Staff photo by Flash Gordon)

Correction

The Collegian inadvertently reported in today's paper on Page 1 that Stevie Wonder would be coming to UMass for Spring Concert. He is not — the featured performers will be The Monkees.

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor	Charles Manson
Assistant Issue Editor	Albert DeSalvo
Lindburgh Baby Layout	Bruno Hauptman
Chop First, Ax Question Later Tech	Lizzy Borden
Hospital Layout	Richard Speck
Buried Dead Cigar Tech	Juan Corona
Deeply Religeous Layout	Idi Amen Deo
Little Known Strangler	Lloyd Smith
What You Do to the Man Who Tore Miss Lillian's Clothes Off When He Gets a Flat Tire	Jack The Ripper

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Batiste/Hite participate in Inaugural ball

By DINKY DOINK
Staph Infection

The Student Government co-Presidents started the year off with a bang last night at the annual Inaugural ball held in the Student Union Ballroom.

Entertainment was provided by songster Sweet Pie, with continuing film clips provided by porno entrepreneur Albert Sparks.

The films were donated courtesy of Dean William F. Field, said to be from his private collection.

The ball itself took place beneath center stage.

Cute Pinky Batiste, student trustee-elect, wearing red candy pants, fishnet stockings and black leather ankle bracelets opened her ceremonies and showed the crowd where she got the name "Pinky".

Co-President Jon Hite, sporting his UMass "Minuteman" prophylactic, a bow tie and very large rabbit ears, provided the thrust for the evening.

The ball was conducted to the tune of "Johnny Come Lately" sung in a duet with Sweet Pie and Maggie Wood, wife of UMass President Bob Wood.

Outgoing Student President Jay Martus, who spent much of the night locked in the men's room staff with Bob Woodbury, commented "Compared to this year's ball, our's blew!"

Paul M. Cronin, outgoing trustee, added "It looks like the end of the oral tradition of the SGA."

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, arriving with his wife Pussy, proved throughout the night that it's true what they say about Greeks.

Randolph W. Bromery, when asked if its true what they say about the Black man's sexual prowess, said, "As soon as we finish the budget, we'll investigate."

His wife, Fifi Bromery, said "It's twoo, it's twoo!"

Kinky performed complementary copulation with the two out-going co-presidents.

Martus, when asked how he liked his ball, explained sullenly, "If there's one thing I can't stand, its sloopy seconds! Hite's going to have to do something about those fucking condom machines in the Campus Center..."

Trustee Chairman Joseph P. Healy, a prominent Boston banker, even rose to the occasion.

The event was so successful, the student senate plans to sponsor a fundraising "Screw-a-thon" for the alumni next fall, with participants earning three credits a screw towards a master's degree from the school of education.

Hite then entertained the crowd from the stage, singing "Don't Leave Me This Way" and inviting Sen. Karen Kelly and adminstrative assistant to vice-chancellor Woodbury Ruth Green to a rendezvous behind the buffet table for what Jon described as a "quickie".

As Sweet Pie played "Hold on, Just a Little Bit Longer, Now Baby", Pinky joined the trio over the objections of escort Paul Cronin, to make it a foursome which she later said "just blew me!"

Pinky Batiste (top, or bottom?) and Jon Hite (bottom, or top?) "participate" in last night's Inaugural ball in the SUB. (Staff photo by Russ Meyer)

New co-President 'screwed'

By OMAR BAHLS
In-depth Reporter

Jonny "Wad" Hite is reportedly taking more of the top position in the SGA co-fornication, inside senate sources said yesterday.

Kinky Batiste is apparently upset with her position.

"I'm really getting screwed," Batiste said.

Hite has reportedly maneuvered himself into the dominant role in the twosome by waving his Amherst Democratic dong whenever the opportunity for political scoring rises. This is in direct conflict with Hite's campaign promise to remain close to Batiste.

Batiste said, "No matter how hard we try we can't get closer than about three and a half inches."

Batiste said she was unaware before the election of the enormity of the Hite organ.

"He ran a limp campaign, but as soon as we were elected, WOWEE!" Batiste said.

Hite refused to disclose the actual measurements of his polling power but said he lept a low key during the campaign on purpose.

"I thought that Kinky would find it hard to swallow," he said.

John Foley criticized Hite for not running a heads up campaign last night in a Collegian inner view.

Towers to rise in Central

By BILL DUMUP
Confusion Staff

In a surprise announcement yesterday, the University trustees released a plan calling for an 8,000 student enrollment increase at the Amherst campus, and a drastic expansion of the Central Residential area.

Governor Michael S. Dukakis said the plan "was formulated to accommodate the growing need for providing a quality education to lower and middle income people throughout the state."

Attached to the enrollment increase is a dormitory expansion program designed to meet the resulting higher housing demand.

Carrying a price tag of $85 million, the program calls for all dormitories located in the Central area to be expanded to 24 story luxury high-rises, instead of "starting from scratch" according to the Governor.

The construction project will be carried out in two phases, with work on Baker, Brett, Brooks, Butterfield, and Chadbourne beginning in early June, 1977 and ending in August 1978; while work on Gorman, Greenough, Van Meter, and Wheeler will begin in September, 1978 and be completed in the summer of 1979.

A housing office spokesperson said last night that those students currently living in Central will be allowed to remain in their dorms while construction is carried out. An intricate tunnel system is in the works, designed to provide safe passage from Central to the campus, the spokesman added.

Dukakis, when asked why the state planned another high rise community in light of the problems created by the design of Southwest, said "I spent one night in a Southwest tower and I felt that there was a tremendous sense of unity in such a set-up. All the talk about Southwest being a zoo is hogwash," he continued. "Therefore, when the higher enrollment plan was submitted to myself and Paul Parks, we jumped at the opportunity to create another such community."

Although details of the construction were not made available, Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said that the new additions will be "luxurious." He said that all rooms will have wall to wall shag carpeting, and "even their own showers and toilets." But added Bromery, "After we finish with the budget, we promise to investigate."

The construction will be carried out by the DiCarlo-MacKenzie construction firm, a New York-based company specializing in campus renovation. When contacted by the Collegian last night, a firm spokesman offered a curt "no comment."

Vice-Chancellor turned in for turning tricks

By ARNIE WOODWARD
Investigative Reporter

One of the top members of the UMass-Amherst administration has been engaging in corrupt and unethical practices.

At a press conference held yesterday in the Campus Center, Flossie Hardwick, personal executive secretary and special assistant to Acting Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert L. Woodberry, announced that she was on the University payroll solely for her sexual talents.

"All I am is a sex toy, nothing more" Hardwick said. "And I'm tired of it. I thought this guy wanted me for my brains, but it ain't so."

Hardwick, was hired last fall on Woodberry's recommendation at a weekly salary of $859.31.

"When I applied for the job," Hardwick told reporters, "I told Bobby I wasn't too good of a secretary 'cause I didn't know how to type, or do any of that kind of office work.

"But he said he didn't care about that," Hardwick said, "because I was going to help him with his 'special needs.' Well, how could I know what his special needs were going to be?"

Hardwick claims she never performed any "normal" office duties, but instead worked mostly during coffee and lunch breaks, after-office hours and weekends, "doin' 'stuff' for Woodbury and his big-shot friends.

I'm just a piece of meat," Hardwick said, "somethin' they can play around with. But for cryin' out loud, I ain't a fruit fly. Let me tell you something, Bobby can always put out, but I'm gettin' plum tired.

"That's it. I'm fed up with bein' used. Now it's time for Bobby to get screwed."

Hardwick, a 26-year-old native of Twin Mountains, Oregon, is an honors graduate of the Sweet Skunk elementary school.

The 1972 "Miss Prunes", Hardwick says that with the money she will probably earn from her upcoming book I Was a Tramp — But I Didn't Know It, she will go to school and become either a TV repair person or a brain surgeon.

When contacted at the Happy Hands Massage Parlor, Woodberry declined to make any comment on Hardwick's charges.

Two top officials expressed shock, amazement and anger after learning of the situation.

UMass President Robert Would-Love-To expressed general disgust with Woodberry's actions.

"That stupid schmuck," Would said, "as if I'm not having enough trouble of my own convincing Dukickass that I really need oodles of money, and he has to go out and do this. He's going to ruin it for me... er, I mean, UMass' reputation."

Gov. Michael S. Dokickass, speaking to reporters from the public john at the Brookline MBTA station, said that if he had had a more direct influence on the University, this situation would never have taken place.

"If I had been able to control the budgets of every department this kind of thing never would have happened," Dokickass said.

"That goddammed Would, he'll hire any gigalo so long as the guy will kiss his ass. I'm a man who cares about quality in anything I do. I never would have hired a jerk like Berrywood. I hire jerks like my assistant, Howard Write."

Collegian cans April 1 issue

Due to circumstances beyond our control, the Collegian will not be printed today. Believe us, we wanted to print today, but we just couldn't. I mean, like we were really primed; really ready to put out a paper, it's just that a few things went wrong and well...

For starters, the coffee machine went on the blink, and our star reporter fell asleep in the middle paragraph of the writing of the lead story. We tried pouring tea on the slumbering wire machine, but that only caused it to repeatedly type, "WHAT, NO CRUMPETS?"

Then our golf writer went on strike, demanding less rough working conditions and higher wedges. He threatened to seek greener pastures.

As if this wasn't bad enough, the editor-in-chief developed a terminal case of acne. Every time he tried to enforce one of his policies, he was told to dry up.

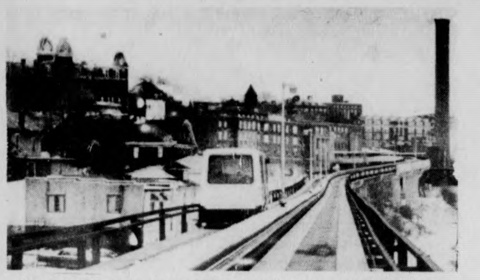
The delivery of the New York Times was late, giving us too little time to plagerize pages six and seven. This created a huge news hole through which any kind of light could shine. In short, the sun was in our eyes.

When we walked into the editorial office, we found our off-the-wall columnist stapled back up on the wall.

Ya gotta believe me — we wanted to publish. We really did. We live from day-to-day just to see our names in the paper. Ya gotta believe me. Ya gotta.

Aw, shit, forget it.

Co-Presidents announce new FART system



New Fine Arts Rapid Transit System (FARTS) on a test run through Central area. (Staff photo by I. Edith Beans)

By BLATUS O. FLATUS
Collegian Staff

Student Government officials announced last night that the University has obtained federal funding for an experimental monorail transport system to be established here.

The project, to be known as the Fine Arts Rapid Transit System, (FARTS), was announced by newly-elected co-Presidents Pinky Batiste and Jonathan Hite.

The federal government will finance 75 per cent of the system, and the town of Amherst and the University will split the remaining 25 per cent.

"The project will revolutionize life on the UMass campus by making it easier to see more of the campus quicker," said Batiste.

"People will be able to FART all around campus," wheezed Hite.

Hite lauded the benefit which would be accrued by the students living in University housing.

"The bus system is geared to the off-campus student. Buses to North Amherst and Sunderland certainly do their job, but students on campus have been neglected by the Transit Service," said Hite.

Numerous projects to help defray the initial costs of the system have been proposed, but Hite and Batiste revealed a plan which they called "bold, innovative and realistic."

"The additional monies may be accrued from a new rock and roll-popular concert series at the Fine Arts Center. The ticket sale profits will be the source of the needed funds," Hite explained.

The director of the UMass Arts Council, Alan D. Light, said, "I'm sick of all the high brow culture we've been providing. I'm happy to announce that we'll have some marketable name talent that we can sell."

Among the names mentioned by Light were Steely Dan, Robert Zimmerman, Bruce Springsteen and the Rolling Stones. "If this pans out" quipped Light, "maybe we'll get the Who and put them up at the Y in Ware."

Police apprehend suspected thief

Photo courtesy Hastler Magazine

Charlie Allen

By MORT LYING
Special to the New York Times

NO AMHERST — Amherst police arrested a North Amherst person early this morning in connection with yesterday's daring robbery of Rotunda's Market on N. Pleasant street.

Charlie Allen, 22, of 2 Varsity Drive, was apprehended at 1 a.m. in Duggie Daddy's All-Night Smoke Shop on Pleasant street.

The robbery netted more than $16 for the hardened criminal, according to Amherst Police Chief Robert Ironsides.

Officers Bernard Krupka and Robert Dibble assisted Ironsides in apprehending the former UMass student.

"Well," said the rotund chief, "we obsoived the mug in the store reading soft-core porno mags and called for a back-up unit. By the time dey came we'd already arrested and nearly broken the arm of the suspect."

Smoke Shop owner Sam Drucker said Allen was "engrossed" in the May issue of Playperson.

Allen, when introduced to his less-than-adequate public defender this morning, told District Attorney Rufus T. Firefly, "Dey coulda killed me an' I pay my taxes ya know."

Firefly guaranteed a six-to-10 year term in the Hampshire County House of Corrections for the belligerent Allen.

The stick-up by the alleged hardened criminal took place in the vicinity of the imported beer cooler.

"I was standin' there ya know, and dis person says to me 'Gimme all yer cash, kid,' " stammered schoolchild Jasper "Yerdles" Rotunda, aged 7.

Rotunda, a second-grader at the Marks Meadow School, detailed the rest of the robbery in a 61-page report submitted to Ironsides at midnight.

The report, according to a police spokesperson, was printed in turquoise crayon and signed "Love, Yerdles." Morons at the Amherst police station won't know who Yerdles is until they read the paper.

According to Papa Rotunda, the store owner and father of the young Yerdles, "I was held up for $16.09, no more ... no less," said the arrogant grocer.

Allen, an Amherst School Committeeperson and former president of the UMass backgammon collective, declined to stop commenting.

"Those chauvinistic imperialist lackies have trampled the rights of this law-abiding citizen for the last time," said the bruised and battered Allen from the Intensive Care Unit at Cooley Dickinson hospital in Northampton last night.

Ironsides said he believed Allen was read the Miranda card and said the rights were perfectly clear. The chief has a sordid reputation for telling untruths.

The chief was unable to comment further due to a Gestapo-like questioning being conducted by the police department's Internal Affairs Division, who have quite a reputation for nastiness themselves.

SU bear alive and well, living on farm near OH

By HOMER LUDENS
Collegian Staff

The Student Union bear statue, missing since last September, was found yesterday on the farms by Orchard Hill.

Harry Hokkaido, caretaker of the farms, said he thought the bear was alive these past seven months and just visiting some animal friends on the farm.

"It seemed like a right friendly bear," he said yesterday. "Never made any threatening moves at me or nothin'. Jes' sat there and munched on some grass."

Hikkaido said he had offered the bear some honey a few times, but said the bear apparently wasn't hungry.

He said the bear probably wasn't sighted before yesterday because it had been hibernating.

"I went out one day and found the poor little thing frozen stiff, and realized it must be time for it to hibernate. So I dug a little hole for it and put it in it for the winter. I jes' took him out two days ago."

Administrators and police said yesterday they were "pleased" at the recovery of the bear.

Lost gonzo journalist here to promote book

By SPENCER VIBES
Firing Line Staff

Dr. Hunter S. Thompson, the recognized maestro of "gonzo journalism" made a visit to UMass last night to do, among other things a promotion of his new book "Fear and Loathing on the Blue Wall Trial."

According to publicist Philip A. Milstein, the book is "almost as good as a Ramones album and twice as demented."

Thompson, the bald-headed 35-year-old self-confessed ether freak, told a crowd of 3,000 persons at the Hatch, "I've never seen such a bunch of drug-addled farm hands in all my life." The author-journalist, now working on a novel having to do with tribal practices among Ibogaine users in Western Massachusetts,, acknowledged the debt he said he owed to college youth.

"Without you assholes cheering me on, I would have been consigned to the back pages of Roller Derby Illustrated years ago."

Tempers flared when representatives of the "Free W[illegible] Cox Movement" staged a demonstration on stage in which they dumped Thompson's inebriated body into a 200-foot deep barrel of oil and lit a match to it.

UMass Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery told the Collegian, "After we finish with the budget we promise to investigate."

Sources close to the incident report Thompson miraculaeously survived the "trial by fire" by hoisting himself out of the barrel on a rope, somehow managing to criticize the Jesuits at the same time.

Sources told the Collegian that Thompson's parting words to the crowd were garbled, though he did make identifiable gestures with his hands upon leaving the stage.

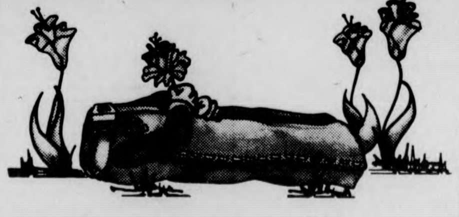
"I hope this check doesn't bounce," Thompson was quoted as saying to Bromery as he left the hall, swearing profusely.

Come See Us this Spring!
• colorful 100% cotton wrap skirts
• a full line of canvas bags
+ many accessories to go inside them!

Kaleidoscope Handprints
16 Main St.
Amherst
(3rd floor Russell Liquor Building)

STUDENT TRAVEL
- EIGHT EXCITING DAYS
- SEVEN GLORIOUS NIGHTS
- SWIMMING
- PING PONG LESSONS
- HORSEBACK RIDING
- FREE ROOT BEER
- HIKING

ONLY $189.95



LEVIS® Levi's® for feet

End it all

shoes-sandals sneaks-boots

Bolles Shoes
NOW AT 8 MAIN ST
AMHERST

We come now to the end of your jeans . . . and where Levi's for Feet begin. Like denim, Levi's waxhide leather goes soft with wear. The crepe sole cushions yours. Put on a pair. Levi's for Feet. The end.

President Robert C. Wood walks away in disgust as his helicopter goes down in the Campus Center pond. Wood was on way to Trustees meeting. (Staff photo by Howard White)

Duke approves budget increase

By KENNY DOIT
and BETTY WONT
Collegian Staffers

In an unexpected use of his executive order privilege, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis yesterday finalized approval of an $18 million increase in the state's public higher education budget.

The three UMass campuses are slated to receive a $6.9 million hike for fiscal year 1978.

The increase follows three years of fiscal hardship for the state's 30 undergraduate and graduate schools and the Worcester Medical School.

Dukakis cited a need to "save the UMass Business School and the rest of the University," while inking the budget submitted to him by Secretary of Educational Affairs Paul Parks late yesterday.

Sources close to the governor indicated that mounting pressures from various student organizations prompted his order for next year's $267 million budget.

The governor had said during his visit to the Amherst campus three weeks ago that the university will have to "suffer through another year of austerity budgets with level-funding."

Yesterday he said, "We have to save public higher education in Massachusetts."

UMass President Robert C. Wood opposed the governor's action in a Collegian telephone interview last night.

"Dukakis has gone overboard again," Wood said.

"Let's say that the tanker of higher education has run aground," Wood added, while labeling the governor "mis-guided and as irresponsible as any other Greek captain."

Amherst Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said, "After as we finish with the budget, we promise to investigate."

Parks defended the budget hike, saying, "In a measley two years Massachusetts has dropped from 26th to 46th in the nation for per capita expenditures in state higher education..'

Parks said "The guv. did the right thing."

"Now maybe those goddamned students will get off my back," Parks added.

In voicing his disgust with the $18 million budget increase, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee James A. Kelly called the Dukakis administration "a gross conflaguration of ineptitude."

"The fucking state is broke, and Dukakis acts like he's Ari Onassis," Kelly said.

In her first official duty as SGA co-president and trustee, Pinky Batiste presented the governor with a bouquet of red and yellow roses at yesterday's enacting ceremony.

Dukakis was 20 minutes late for the ceremony after his Bic pen exploded in his pants pocket while riding the MBTA's green line to the State House.

The governor apologized for wearing his jogging suit with a friendly quip aimed at President Carter.

Slam prexys with $ misuse

By PEN E. PINCHER
Collegian Graft Finder

The incoming presidents of the Student Government Association have been charged with illegal use of funds and extortion by a former supporter.

Jon Wiseass, president of the Northeast area government, filed the charges yesterday with Student Attorney General L. Paulie Yanowitchbergstein against Pinko Baptiste and Lack O. Hite.

It is alleged that a Collegian endorsement of the duo, which appeared the first day of balloting was part of the sleazy scheme.

Baptiste called the charges "ludicrous" and Antonio P. Harmelini XV, Collegian business manager, alleged controller of the illegal slush fund, said, "They give me too much credit... I'm not that smart."

Yanowitchbergstein said he'd see to it that the two were hung by their buns and then dealt with severely.

The alleged $400 payoff was described by Harmelini as "a loan for lunch money." Hite said he is shocked by the move and promised to look into the matter today.

U.MASS RUGBY CLUB
v/s
NORWICH UNIVERSITY
Sat., April 2 Fields West of Boyden
Kick-off at Noon

EEK!
GRR! GRRR!

Debauch Yourself — Support UMass Rugby

Collegian Business Manager Antonio P. Harmelini XV (left) tries to cover up his contribution to Pinko Baptiste. (Former Staff photo by Bubba Bornyesterday) messed up the Tilson Farm plant, whereas we did a great job putting that $500,000 bar in Bromery's office."

★ Nuke plant here

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

The Physical Plant will install the emergency core cooling system. the radiation monitoring systems, and plant the geraniums outside the plant, said Bigmeadow. "We are all reading books on how to do it. Anybody know how to use a hammer?"

Reaction to the new plant was mixed. Prof. William Heronemus of the Civil Engineering Dept. was disappointed that the University had decided against his proposal to build a giant windmill on the island in the middle of the campus pond.

now playing in a menage near you
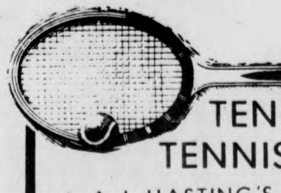
PorkLoin
The film that dares to give you more meat than you can devour!

(U.S.D.A. CHOICE)
"SALIVATING..."
"The Best in Flesh..."
sponsored by
Masta Beta Kow



TENNIS BALLS
TENNIS RACKETS
at A.J. HASTING'S
newsdealer and stationery
45 S. Pleasant St.

Black Affairs

CCEBS says,

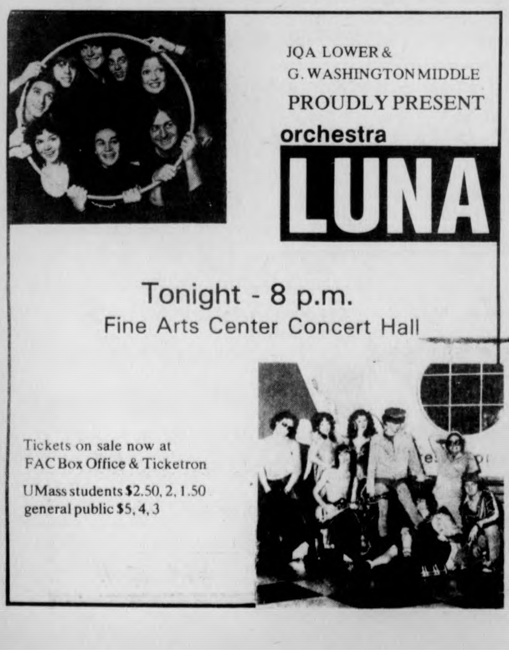
Southwest balls courts off limits

By VAKAAAANI MAGUFAME
Collegian Staff

After a meeting last night, Daniel Shillips, the director of the recreational grounds in Southwest and Michael Fackson, director of the Collegiate Committee for the Extermination of Black Students, (CCEBS) decided to close-down the basketball courts for the rest of the semester.

The decision was based on the increased racial tensions that have occured there recently. Shillips said he had investigated the situation carefully before coming to his decision and "It is better to stop the situation now before it gets out of hand." Many white students have been complaining about black students insisting that all balls to be used on the courts be painted red, black, and green.

Black students in shock at the Malcom Z center last night, after being informed on the decision to ban Southwest courts. (Staff photo by Kenneth Robinson)



JQA LOWER &
G. WASHINGTON MIDDLE PROUDLY PRESENT
orchestra
LUNA

Tonight - 8 p.m.
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets on sale now at
FAC Box Office & Ticketron

UMass students $2.50, 2, 1.50
general public $5, 4, 3

Former Black Affairs Editor Nasa Ego looks dejected after the Board of Editors fired him yesterday. The new Black Affairs Editor Bull Fidelstein (right) and his assistant Judy Von Unhandle raise their fists in victory salute. (Staff photo by Chicken George)

Black Editors Fired!

By BIG BUBBA
Collegian Staff

At an emergency Board of Directors meeting yesterday, the Board unanimously voted to fire the Black Affairs editor Nasa Ego, and his assistant Angelia Thompson.

When contacted, the Editor-in -Chief Ran O'Arena siad, "The Board and I felt that Nasa didn't fill the requirements and experience to be Black Affairs Editor. First of all he isn't a Negro, he wasn't willing to attend the Collegian Keg-Parties and mainly because he refused to stand up for our beloved National Anthem during the basketball games. We gave the man a chance but he messed up. But off the record, I wanted him out because I was sick and tired hearing him or reading the articles he wrote knocking our beautiful U.S. of A. Love it or leave it Nasa!"

Mr. O'Arena refused to comment on why the Board also fired Angelia Thompson but he suggested that we talk to the Managing Editor Bub McHiggins. Mr. McHiggins, after an hour's search, was found at the Blue Wall buying rounds for everyone there and he seemed to be in a jovial mood. When asked why the two Black Editors were fired, he first rambled on about how good he felt knowing that he wasn't going to deal with Nasa or Angelia anymore. "I can put as many ads as I please on the Black Affairs pages without having to be called a racist or a bigot anymore. And I am glad Angelia is gone!

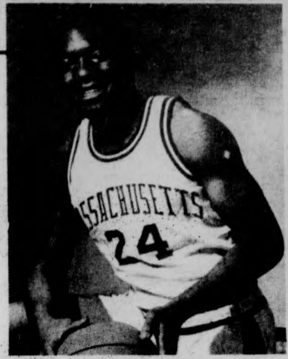
Third World Caucus call emergency meeting

There will be a meeting for all Third World Students on campus in room 801 of the Campus Center. ‘he meeting is being called, because of the Wednesday incident in the Senate meeting. The facts are still being untangled. At 7:10, the Third World Caucus went into a brief session. The Senate then proceeded to pass a resolution to rescind all the monies left in the Third World Community budget. Upon the return of the Third World group, the story leaked out as to the actions of the Senate. Within a few moments, a number of confrontations broke out in the meeting. Order was restored, police breaking up fights. No one was seriously injured, but comment from outsiders favored removal of the entire Third World Caucus. The comments went as far as to say, that the group should be replaced by a less violent group. In fact, a spokesperson who prefers to keep his-her name in silent, stated that they would lead a chant to reduce the Third World funding for '78' to zero.

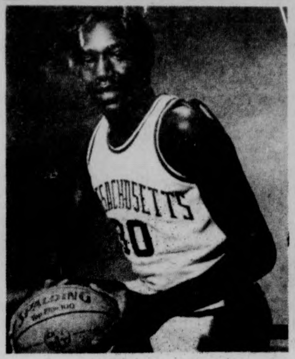
WMUA
FOOLSALL

Black Affairs

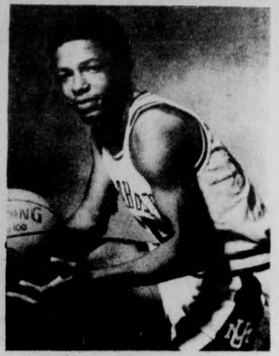
Goodbye Alex, Mike et' Derick



Alex Eldridge



Mike Pyatt



Derick Claiborne

Three of the starting five of the UMass men's basketball season have decided to call it quits and return to New York City to coach a high school-team, the Collegian learned late last night.

Juniors Alex Eldridge, Derick Claiborne, and Mike Pyatt have opted to leave UMass at the end of the semester and return to their hometown to coach William H. Taft high school, located in the Bronx.

"The opportunity came up," said communications major Derick Claiborne and we couldn't pass up. It's a once in a life time shot to coach your own high school."

Claiborne said that his and Eldridge's high school coach, Don Adams, will soon sign a lucrative contract to be assistant general manager of the New York Knickerbockers, a little-known NBA team.

"We got a call from our high school principal yesterday, offering us the job. I will say that money is not a factor in our decision," said Claiborne.

The 6-2, 170 lb. guard did not state whether he or Eldridge or Pyatt will be returning to UMass to finish up their basketball or academic career.

Meanwhile, UMass coach Jack Leaman was unavailable for comment. Sports Information director Dick Page said Leaman has locked himself in a hidden janitors closet in Boyden gym to think this one through and will hold a special press conference on Monday.

Assistant coach Fan Gaudette reached at home last night had nothing further to add.

"All comments regarding this and any situation will come from Coach Leaman. I have nothing further to say," said the past, present, and future, UMass golf coach.

Another assistant, coach Ray Rickets was philosophical about the three players decision to leave.

"That's life or as they say in French — C'est la vie," said Rickets.

"If Doctor J can leave, so can these three. It's their lives and not no one should tell them what to do, say, or act," Rickets said while dribbling a basketball on his fingertips in his office.

Alex Eldridge, interviewed in the Hatch, smiled in his typical cheshire cat imitation.

"Today's a new day. Listen, No more will I have to practice ten days in a row, and no one is going to tell me what to do anymore. For now on, I call the shots," said Eldridge.

Eldridge did say his coaching style will be a combination of Red Auerbach, Don Adams, Jack Leaman, and Alex Eldridge.

"I'm my own man now and my first order as coach will be that my players respect me. If I tell them to tuck their shirts in and run a few extra laps, or even be in bed by 11 a.m. every night including Friday and Saturday night, that's the way it's gotta be," Eldridge emphatically stated.

Mike Pyatt, named ECBL player of the week and named to the ECBL tournament all-star team said the following outside the Student Union:

"One factor which ultimately caused our decision was the lack of publicity we have been receiving. We're all going to the Big Apple where all the big guns of the media are," Pyatt said.

"We are all sick and tired of reading the Daily Collegian, Amherst Record, Springfield Daily Union and what's the name of the other? Oh yeah, Daily Hampshire Gazette. The Boston Globe doesn't even know UMass and that the UMass basketball team exists. They can't even spell UMass right," said Pyatt munching on a cheese sandwich.

Claiborne, spokesperson for the New York trio, said that at least if all three of them do a good job, they will have more recognition.

"Our goal is to be the number one high school team in New York City just like when me and Boobie graduated. Being No. 1 in the city of 15 million is our goal. I know Boob and Michael will work super hard this summer to get ourselves ready for next season," Claiborne said with tears in his eyes.

With the music of Boz Scaggs, "What can I say, What can I do", blaring in the background of the Bluewall Claiborne said. "We're really going to miss UMass. You know, the Cage, the men's plush locker room, and the exhibitionists, the pep band the cowbell chant, the cheerleaders, Jimmy Town, Mark Donoghue, Chuck Steveskey, you know the whole chibang. But we will think of it as part of our education," he said.

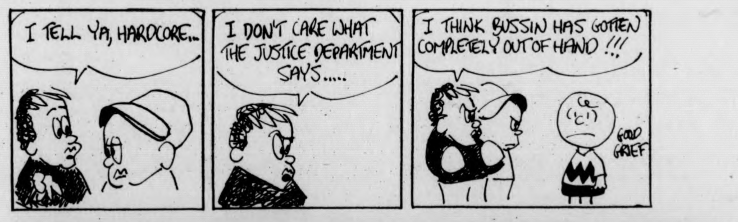
A UMass ticket manager, who wished to remain anonymous, looked a big chagrined when asked whether the three leaving will have a financial effect on ticket sales for next year.

"I'm sure it will have some kind of an effect. But to what extent I can and will not say. I will only comment that UMass basketball will never quite be the same again," he lamented.

Stevie

There is a meeting tonight 8:00 p.m. at the New Africa House for all interested people who are willing to work at the Spring Concert. Stevie together with 'Bootsey' Collins are scheduled to appear and people interested in working on publicity, security and other miscellaneous jobs (e.g. escorting members of the groups) are urged to come.

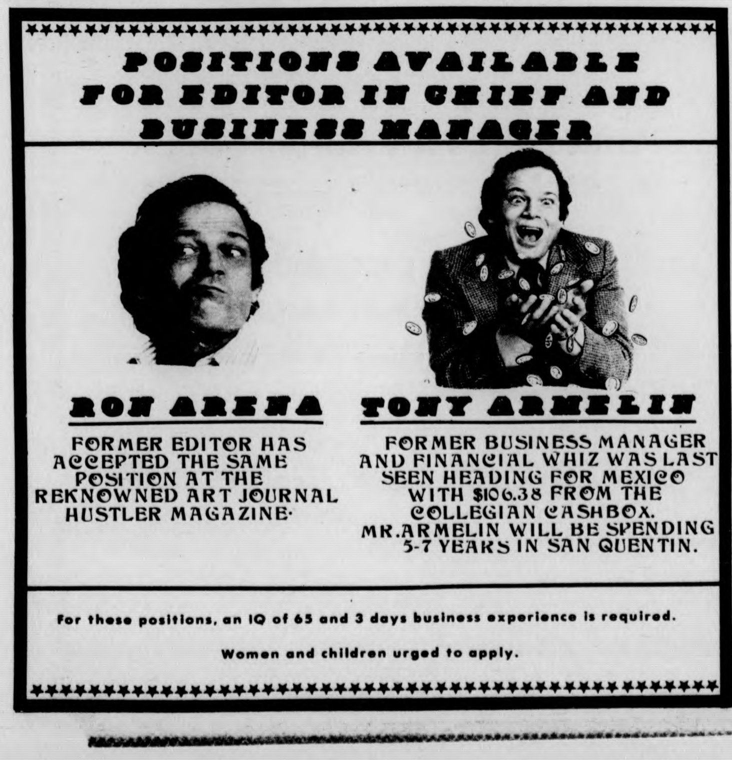
GOOFER by Carsick Barhop, Jr.



I TELL YA, HARDCORE...
I DON'T CARE WHAT THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT SAYS.....
I THINK BUSSIN HAS GOTTEN COMPLETELY OUT OF HAND !!!
GOOD GRIEF

'Roots' pulled from ground

AP — It was revealed that the highly acclaimed novel and tv drama by Adolf Haley was a fake. "The story was a complete falinication," according to federal authorities. "After carefully reviewing Haley's data there is no way that he could have traced his ancestors to such accuracy," according to Hugh O'Donell, a noted authority on American Salve History. Adolf Haley pulled the same trick Glifford Towing did in his "so called" Howard Fughs story. Adolf Haley has been in hiding and therefore unavailable for comment.



POSITIONS AVAILABLE FOR EDITOR IN CHIEF AND BUSINESS MANAGER

RON ARENA

FORMER EDITOR HAS ACCEPTED THE SAME POSITION AT THE REKNOWNED ART JOURNAL HUSTLER MAGAZINE.

TONY ARMELIN

FORMER BUSINESS MANAGER AND FINANCIAL WHIZ WAS LAST SEEN HEADING FOR MEXICO WITH $106.38 FROM THE COLLEGIAN CASHBOX. MR. ARMELIN WILL BE SPENDING 5-7 YEARS IN SAN QUENTIN.

For these positions, an IQ of 65 and 3 days business experience is required.

Women and children urged to apply.

WANTED
FILTHY DIRTY
BART
REWARD
Fine Quality Auto Body & Glass Work in Amherst Belchertown Area
BART AUTO
Paint & Body Specialists
Foreign and Domestic Collision Work
116 FEDERAL ST., BELCHERTOWN, MASS. 323-5010

Senate annual gala gathers glittering stars

By BERNADINA DAVID
Society Reporter

The Student Government Association feted their incoming president and trustee last night at the annual Student Government Inaugural Ball, held in the Student Union Ballroom.

The ball was preceded by a catered meal for the 500 dignitaries who attended the invitation-only affair held in honor of Pinky Babtiste, newly-elected student trustee and Jon A. Hite, newly-elected student body president.

The dignitaries enjoyed a six-course meal catered by the UMass student-run Earthfoods company. President Hite and Trustee Babtiste enjoyed an appetizer of organically-grown canteloupe, followed by watercress salad, whole wheat bread, and kumquats imported from New Mexico.

Soup du jour was served next, followed by lima bean mash and grits, a main course even Jimmy Carter would have enjoyed. Dessert was an Earthfoods original, cherry lentils jubilee, and was topped off by ginseng tea, which was rumored to have a 14 per cent alcohol content.

The social event of the season was kicked off at 7 p.m. as Babtiste with escort Paul M. Cronin, outgoing trustee and Pinky's current beau, began greeting guests in the receiving line in the lobby.

President-elect Hite, with a mysterious masked woman, also greeted the guests. Hite is reportedly dating the daughter of a first-district also-ran from the November election.

Outgoing student government President Jay A. Martus, was escorted by Senator Karen Kelly, who looked ravishing in a low cut "Priscilla of Boston" evening gown.

Babtiste, wearing a Dior original, she said she bought with surplus campaign funds, greeted ex-student senate speaker Brian Delima. Delima, wearing a bright green tuxedo jacket tailored in Honolulu, is known through the senate offices as a dashing playboy from Maui. His escort for the evening was Donna Ho, reputed sister of singer Don Ho.

Senate Treasurer Thomas Kerrins chose a more formal attire, and appeared in a Caldor original black tux. His date, the sister of State Senator Joseph Dicarlo, wore a full-length black sequined gown with matching flip-flops. All are from Revere, Mass.

One of the surprises of the evening occurred when porno-king Albert Sparks arrived arm-in-arm with feminist Charlotte Allen. Apparently the two have patched up their differences, although they would not talk with reporters. Charlotte looked lovely in a skin-tight hot pink jumpsuit which looked simply smashing with her new hairstyle, no doubt modeled after Farrah Fawcett-Major's skateboard.

Former senate Communications Coordinator Bryan Harvey, now editor of University Directions, arrived with his new boss Ruth Green, an administrative assistant to Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert L. Woodbury.

After making the rounds, Harvey entertained the group with a medley of his favorite tunes, including "I'm Feeling Good About America," "Why Not the Best?" "Keep Clean with Gene," and "Happy Days are Here Again." Bryan finished up with the Channel 4 Theme song "We're Four!"

Also feting the newly-elected officers were King and current President of the Graduate Student Senate Michael Federow, and past president and current Queen Barbara Stack. Barbara and Michael attended in a unisex jump-suit of black velvet.

Student Government challengers John Foley attended with Marvella Bayh, reportedly the wife of Senator Birch Bayh, and Herb Tyson, a Maryland native, attended with the entire squad of the University of Maryland cheerleaders.

Joel Wiseman made his entrance on the arm of Susan Saxe, released from her Worcester cell on her own recognizance to attend the event. His runningmate, Chuck Pooler, attended with famed newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, decked out for the occasion in a Dianne von Furstenburg gown. During the ball, the foursome handed out leaflets describing a potential merger between the SLA and the RSB.

Karl Allen attended with WMUA staffer and Music Theatre Guild enthusiast Priscilla West, who entertained the crowd between numbers with her imitations of the Guild's dancers.

WMUA Station manager Charles J. Pellet danced the evening away with long-time beau Laurie Ann Wood, assistant business manager at the Collegian. Laurie looked delightful in a white victorian - collared dress she said Charlie had picked out for her at Woolco's. "No one's going to look down the front of my Laurie's dress if I can help it," said Charlie.

Other attendees included former speaker of the student senate and UMass graduate Kenneth Somers, R.S.O. Business Manager Paul Hammel, with ex-Collegian Business Manager Jane E. Steinberg, and Collegian columnist and Frisbee Club President Jerry Rogers with current Collegian Business Manager Tony Armelin III. Rogers spent the evening taking pot-shots at the dancers with his frisbee from the Ballroom stage.

Dave Kantor, who is heading up this year's spring concert, attended with the $67,000 Question, but if Dave knows, he's not telling. The unofficial word is he's signing famed singer-songwriter Stevie Wonder for the occasion.

Several members of the Student Organizing Project crashed the gate, led by the charming Susan Birmingham, chanting "Eat the Rich." Susan looked lovely in her designer Levi's.

A woman's world

By PRISCILLA ANNELEE HARTWICK
Leisurely Editor

Wear your sneakers to the next sale at your favorite discount clothing outlet. It'll help you run faster to the racks and jump higher to the top shelves where the best buys lie waiting for only one.

Never buy pots and pans with rusted out bottoms — the rust tends to interfere with the savory taste of your favorite stew.

And speaking of favorite stews, here's a neat little trick I picked up from a friend just the other day. Add a can of vegetable soup and a package of frozen vetegables to a casserole full of rice. Pop in the oven; top with American cheese. Yum!

Hawaiian shirts are definitely in!!! Get your favorite man one today at Walgren's Drug Store, on sale until Saturday or until the supply runs out! In a dazzling array of colors and prints!!

For those hot summer nights, cool off with Schleppes' new sugar-free, high-saccharine Pineapple-Tomato soda. We hear that mixed with vodka and a twist of lime, it's quite a treat!

Your jeans will look super-snazzy when you top them with sequined halters designed especially for you by Miss Dorothy at Tops and Bottoms. Let it all hang out!

For those tennis matches with that darling, dashing tennis pro you just can't resist, dazzle him with your new see-through Crassy Evert tennis dress! Get yours in hot pink today!

Those luscious little kumquats from New Mexico are ripe on the shelves of your favorite delicatessen now!! Served with bacon and a dollop of low-calorie mayonnaise, it's bound to be a hit at your next cocktail party.

For younger, fresher, sexier skin, mix potato peelings and sand only from Daytona Beach, adding a touch of Chanel No. 5 for that lively fragrance. Follow with a tingling bath in Sparkling Burgundy (1965 is a good year).

Adele's Haristyling Salon is offering a special this week on a complete cut, dry, style, comb, brush, wash, drip-dry, and wring-out: a mere $47.50 will transform you into the woman of your dreams.

WOMEN'S PAGES

FINANCIAL AID

Get excellent commissions and sales experience as a Carpet Cat mini-floor and carpet sweeper representative. No fees or quotas required to get started. For details: Scott Annand 6-6926

Walk Run, Crawl....
TO YOUR NEAREST DINING COMMONS

Serving daily 1 to 4 for the culinary experience of your life

DON'T BE FOOLED
GET THE BIG THREE AT ONE STORE
LEE
LEVI'S
WRANGLER

Rugby shirts only $7.95
several styles
also

- Denim Vests
- White Jeans
- Western Shirts
- Short Sleeve Sportshirts

Running shoes - Sweatshirts - Workshoes

FINES Northampton

I AM NOT GOING TO LAW SCHOOL
THESE ARE THE REASONS WHY

— I did poorly on my LSAT's
— I'm bright, but my grades do not reflect it
— I was rejected by all the law schools I applied to because they only look at numbers and scores

THESE EXCUSES WON'T WORK
IF YOU ARE HIGHLY MOTIVATED

WE ACCEPT STUDENTS WHOSE PRIME STRENGTHS
ARE MOTIVATION & ACCOMPLISHMENT

Grades and scores mean less because we are training you to be a lawyer, not a law student

CALIFORNIA LAW INSTITUTE

For more information and an application write:

Mary Osborne, Dean of Admissions
School of Law
California Law Institute
2034 Alameda Padre Serra
Santa Barbara, California 93103
Telephone (805) 963-1567

John Davies, Assistant Dean, will interview prospective students on Monday April 4, 1977, from 9:00 AM to 4:00PM

The lowdown on spring fashions, designers

By MRS. ROBERTA WATERCRESS APPLE, JR.
Fashion Reporter

NEW YORK, N.Y.: Hello dearidoos. I'm just telling you, I had the best time this past Monday. My husband, R.W. Apple, Jr. and I hit all the plush parlors on Seventh Avenue to view all the spring lines. You know, Peter Clemens, Diane Von Furstenberg (oh, what a doll she is and she's lost 10 lbs. you know — smashing in her own wrap-dress), Ann Klein, Bill Blass, Geoffrey Beane (he's getting such a pot-belly these days. Marge, his wife tells me it's from too many watercress sandwiches at the Lord and Taylor's Birdcage Restaurant at their branch in Stamfrod, Conn.), Neddie Gould, Andrea Gayle, Freddie Rothchild, Christian Dior (who, by the way has just come out with a new fragrance — so sensuous even R.W. was turned on by it), and Alan Rodriguess who's now showing under a new label but his wife is still there modeling for him. Yes, his wife, well, R.W. was turned on by her, too — but we won't go into that.

Well, girls, some really exciting looks for the upcoming season and such exciting fabrics — I simply don't know where to begin.

It was a really terrible train ride from Greenwich, Conn. into the city, you know. We wanted to take the car, but we had left it accidently at our weekday penthouse apartment on Fifth Avenue, right near Central Park, of course. Oh, those doormen, simply not as polite as they used to be. Have to show proof of identification. Don't trust anyone these days.

And even Greenwich where we spend our weekends. They want to put up an apartment complex. High cost and ritzy of course. You know Greenwich. But still, apartment houses? How demeaning to Greenwich! We had a horrible weekend there. It rained and we couldn't play tennis in our own courts in back of the house and the indoor club we belong to in Westport lost their electricity. Such frustrations!

But, back to the fashions...

Skirts and t's are again big, but the t's have now taken a fancy turn from last year's simple cap sleeve and rounded neckline. Now those clever designers (clever to make us have to get a whole new wardrobe again) have come out with "specialty t's, fancier necklines and different sleeve lengths, intricate designs, also prints now instead of just solids. Everything to make you look prettier and sexier. Wrap skirts are leading the skirt scene in gauzy materials particularly whether in chalky pastel solids or the newest breezy looks in madras patterns.

Trousers with drawstring waistlines are the newest on the total casual fashion line. (Who says sailor pants are the only trousers which give you thirteen chances to say no?) And speaking of sailor trousers, they're back and they're big in gauzy material, pastels and vibrant solids, madras checkerboard square prints.

To complete your casual town and country look, jackets are gathered at the waist, shoe-string tied. Or, they're blazers in double breasted with shiny gold or silver buttons. Real sharp!

Dresses are soft and feminine with a leading number in sundresses. Perky prints and ginger solids, ruffles and bows, decorated buttons, halter backed, spaghetti strapped to make you prettier, more feminine, and more attractive for the male's roving eye.

Dresses with slits up the side are best — the slipless look. Soft materials. The Von Furstenberg wrap-dress is sitll big in a variety of prints and solids. An interesting dress variety: asymmetrical necklines, one shoulder saras, plunging back necklines are now sexier than those plunging in the back. Quianas to chiffons to madras, to gauze, to ultima two in fabric looks and it all continues into great looks in gowns.

Shoes are t-straped, skinnier heels, platforms are still a big number with the new rope looks wrapped around the ankle to the middle calf. Barefoot is definitly out with these pretty treasures. (And make sure you paint those toenails!)

Hair is longer now. The Dorothy-do is definitly do-not with the long, suaver look. Bangs or side parts, curls will keep you going to the hairdresser.

The jean scene has ventured into large tent jumpers and dresses with snappy waist bands. Geoffrey Beane has the most exciting jean ensembles starting at $300.

Savory 'shrooms add zesty kick

By SUE ANNE NIVENS
The Sensual Gourmet

While so much of the country was grimly enduring the winter now passing, mushrooms were safe in their windowless houses, or underground caverns, enjoying their preferred and law-abiding coolth of 55 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

Though much hotter temperatures are required in the early stages of preparing and spawning a mushroom bed (love that spawning!) spring-time coolness is ideal during the picking period. Modern mushrooms growing techniques make it possible to grow these choice vegetables throughout the year, rain or shine, winter or summer.

This constant supply of mushrooms, fresh or canned, has made it possible for homemakers to dress up family or company meals, especially vegetables of all kinds. Or slice raw mushrooms and toss with salad greens to give healthful variety to that course, for those among us who need to conrol that tummy bulge!

When it comes to dressing up foods we almost immediately think of sauces, always the pride of French chefs. The following Savory Mushroom Sauce is ideal for steak, chicken, or pork. It will also glamorize less expensive cuts of beef; bring some with you the next time the Dining Commons offers that delectable "Beef Patty Special."

SAVORY MUSHROOM SAUCE

1 pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 oz.) canned mushroom stems and pieces plus 1 can (6 to 8 oz.) sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons oil (not from your car, please)
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
½ cup chopped onions
2 ounces sliced cooked ham, diced (about ½ cup)
2 tablespoons flour
3 beef bouillon cubes
2 cups boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ cup chopped parsley

Rinse and pat dry fresh mushrooms. Chop half and slice half of the fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a medium saucepan heat oil and 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add onions, ham and reserved chopped fresh mushrooms or canned mushroom stems and pieces; saute for five minutes. Stir in flour; cook and stir for two minutes. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water (or canned mushroom liquid with sufficient water to make 2 cups). Add to saucepan with salt and black pepper. Cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens slightly. In a medium skillet melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add reserved sliced mushrooms; saute for three minutes. Add to sauce along with parsley. Serve over broiled steak, chicken, veal or pork chops. Leftover sauce may be frozen in a tightly covered container. To serve, thaw and reheat slowly, stirring often.
YIELD: 3-½ cups sauce

If desired ½ cup dry Marsala wine may replace ½ cup of the water.

If this is too complex for your cooking talents, try the following:

No-Fuss, No-Mushroom Quicky Sauce
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can golden mushroom soup
1 package potato chips
1 can Budweiser

Pour into a saucepan and place on hot plate burner. Turn on burner, and stir occasionally; do not burn. Eat (if you're brave.)

CHEQUERS
FINE SALOON

presents

THE BEST SUNDAY BRUNCH
IN THE PIONEER VALLEY

$2.95

Eggs Benedict
or
The Omelette
of your choice plus a Bloody Mary

Served 12-3

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
60 day advance payment required

FASTBACK FRISBEE®
APRIL 2-3
FREE FRISBEE
WORCESTER AND HAMPDEN
SNACK BARS
FREE FRISBEE WITH YOUR GRINDER
while they last

Fabric Frames...the decorator's dream. Turn this pattern, or any other cloth into vibrant Wall-Hangings. Custom-stretched, or assemble yourself.

EARTHWARES®
103 N. PLEASANT/AMHERST 256-8810

AROUND NEW ENGLAND

Cause of cancer revealed

BOSTON (UPI) — A team of researchers from Whoreverd university have concluded that nailbiting is "positively the main cause of cancer." The study was conducted at the university over a span of one year first testing rats, then humans.

Professor Patricia Pencilshoe headed the group comprised of ten female and five male educators.

While conducting the study on rats, pieces of cheese were carefully attached to their nails. Consequently, the rats bit them. In a matter of 130 days, the rats had developed cancer. The more they bit their nails, the faster the cancer advanced.

To be sure their conclusion was accurate, the researchers recruited students at 'Whoreverdl University with cums less than 2.0. The students were promised full scholarships for their participation in the experiment.

The undergraduate developed cancer after biting their nails for 18 hours over a span of 12 weeks.

In exchange for their assistance they are presently receiving free medical treatment at the 'Whoreverd l Medical Center.

Cops nab fowl thieves

CONCORD, N.H. (UR) — Three Sunderland Mass. chicken thieves were nabbed in a spectacular twilight ambush by Washington State police late last night.

Roderick van Eaton, 13, Lowell Bates, 12, and Cicely Breckinridge, also 12, all of 66 Harley Davidson Lane , were arraigned this morning in Tacoma District Court. All three were charged with the brutal slaughter of 16 chickens found buried in shallow graves in Sunderland Tuesday.

Virgins get special rates

EUGENE, ORE. — An unprecedented business move was made today yesterday when a Eugene bank announced special rates for sexally-responsible adults.

George Quacker, president of Duck National Bank, said, "I think the new programs in insurance that reward the careful driver should be an inspiration to other facets of business."

Beginning in June the bank will offer a special nine per cent interest rate to those who are "saving themselves for marriage," said Quacker.

With proof of virginity comes the added benefit of first dibs on Tupperware sets usually reserved for the bank's largest deposit makers, all of whom are usually sexually experienced and morally bankrupt.

India gov't. in danger

NEW DELHI (AP) — India's new government appears on the verge of collapse today as a result of an official statement by the new Prime Minister, after nearly two weeks of apparently successful negotiations with the various political factions in the country.

The crisis occurred after Prime Minister Morarji Desai denounced the leader of the Sacredcowindabushes Party, the leading political organization in Northern India, in a speech before the National Congress.

Desai accused the Sacredcowindabushes group of being a front for a specific faction of radical Untouchables, advocating the sucession of three northern Indian states from the nation.

Desai's speech threw India into a state of political turmoil as nearly every state and political party that had previously announced their support for the new government began sending denouncements to the capital.

Gazookai Mazola, leader of the Sacredcowindabushes organization, said his group was "outraged" at Desai's speech, and could not understand what could have motivated the recently-appointed prime minister to make such remarks.

Mazola has virtual control over three northern states including Poopa-la-doopa, Lotsacrappahere and Noabiggdeal.

Meanwhite, leaders of other states and political groups have been withdrawing their support of the national government, fearing similar reprisals from Desai.

Pookapooka Pook, who heads the southern state of Gasundheit, sais last night he was certain Desai would come out against his state next, since he had already given private indications Gasundheit was on the "Shitlist", the highly secret government list of political enemies.

MonteKeelerparkey, spiritual leader of the state of Lessfatandnocholestoral, has urged regional leaders to petition Peking for admittance to the People's Republic of China as colonies.

Montekeekerparkay, who is of British descent and education, said, "I say, you know, they can't be as bad as the Limies were. And we won't af to listen to that aw-ful British rock 'n roll."

"And no more butter. That is sacred in my country, you know," he said.

Desai's wife, Mme. madeamargerine, who can't speak English, said her husband "usiper iyunikkacola vishnumaharam, nummcad perso meliiaz buysz beffereg hiz swegger."

BOSTON: Governor Michael casts an hypnotic spell on Warren Gulko, Budget Director of UMass. The Governor, a former witch doctor in Plains, Ga., is upset with Gulko after the Director refused to accept his proposed $50 budget for the Amherst campus. (PU)

TIMMY'S
RESTAURANT

TIMMY'S will give you a Free 30¢ beverage on a purchase of a Sunday Buffet with this coupon
• Good during the month of April • limit one per customer

NOW EVERY SUNDAY
ALL YOU CAN EAT
Sunday Buffet 12 - 8pm $2.19

ALSO
Breakfast Special 99¢ served every morning
2 eggs, homefries, toast & coffee

Rte. 116 in the center of Sunderland mon - sat 6am - 8pm ; sun 8 am - 8pm
• call 665-8789

Fishermen uncover 'gold mine'

Whales useful for energy

NEW BEDFORD (API) — Fishermen in this whaling city have offered a solution to the nation's fuel problem — the use of whale oil as an alternative source of energy, according to Mayor Rotsa Brubber.

"The use of whale oil will undoubtedly increase the city's revenue by over 5,000 per cent," the mayor said in an interview from his log cabin in the downtown district of his historical city.

The idea originated from the fishermen of "The Portuguese Mariner." The men noticed how flammable the oil was when their ship caught fire from a misplaced joint of Gold.

Unfortunately, only two men kept afloat after the accident, the rest being too stoned to swim to the nearby shore.

Manny Medeiros and Joe Almeida, the two survivors, then relayed their important discovery to authorities.

Construction has begun of 250 new plans to accommodate one million tons of blubber from the 500,000 whales caught in New Bedford's harbor last week.

The plants will boil down the blubber, the end product being oil.

Presently, the blubber is being kept frozen in the city's ice hockey rink.

New Bedfordites have chosen to ignore threats of bombings by major oil companies, including XX-up, Toxinaco, and Sinoco.

"We plan to fight these suckers with all it takes," resident Herman Melville said in an interview.

Another city dweller, Moe B. Dick, was quoted as saying "We're all in on this together and we'll never give up our whaling industry because of a few jealous cruds."

Of the 100,000 New Bedford inhabitants, 99,000 will be forced to give up their homes to make room for the new factories. They will move to new 100 story high rises nearby. The citizens are in good spirits, though, according to city spokesperson Neptune Fernandes.

Among the vessels used to capture the whales are The Mayflower and the Titanic, which have been in operation for over 150 years. The ships range from 200-1,000 feet in length and are made of solid steel.

Tanker accident is 'greasy' incident

MIAMI [RIP] — The 200,000 ton Jewish tanker "Walter Hickel" ran aground yesterday, off Miami Beach, spilling 100 million gallons of suntan oil into the ocean.

Coast Guard officials say they first received word of the accident at 2:05 a.m. when the 29 crew members staggered into the Miami Coast Guard Office and reported that they had run aground at 7:30 p.m. the previous night.

Captain George Popadopolous said that the experience had been so unnerving that they had decided to get "medical aid at Castaway's Wreck Bar before reporting the accident."

Popadopolous was captain of the 10,000 ton tanker "Argo Merchant" until it ran aground off Nantucket last December, spilling 7.5 million gallons of oil into the New England waters.

A Coast Guard spokesman said that the tanker is believed to have been operating without proper navigational equipment.

Popadopolous denied this saying: "Sure we had proper equipment on board. We had the latest model Oijua board and a map that Columbus used. We also had the latest books on navigation such as "Finding Your Way around Miami Beach" by Arthur Frommer."

Popadopolous also denied reports that he was operating the tanker without a license. "I've got my driver's license right here, see."

Damage to the beaches was estimated to be in the millions. Miami mayor Irving Goldberg said, after touring the oil covered beaches, "Well, there goes the neighborhood."

Hotel owner Conrad Hilton said that he would loose thousands of customers at his hotel but he was considering opening a gas station.

The Coast Guard Atlantic Strike Force Team visited the wreck early this morning to determine whether the tanker could be salvaged.

Coast Guard seaperson Elmo Zumwalt said that "it was hopeless." "The tanker was really well built; they had a double bottom on it. Unfortunately, it was two sheets of quarter-inch plywood."

The ship's owners, Thebes Shipping, who also owned the "Argo Merchant" said the tanker was built to conform to the latest Librarian safety standards.

"See, I've got a copy of them right here: "How to Build a Boat" by Archimedes," said Irving Zorba, president of Thebes Shipping.

Zorba was also questioned about why the company had put Popadopolous in command of another ship after the "Argo Merchant" disaster. "Well, we believe in giving a guy a second chance. After all, he must have learned something from his mistake. He missed the Nantucket Shoals this time."

The "Hickel" was bound for Baltimore from Venezuala.

The Coast Guard said it will try several new techniques to clean up the oil spill. "We were going to set fire to the oil with bombs, but the Miami Beach Fire Dept. didn't like the idea. They were afraid we might miss and hit some of the hotels. That's ridiculous, the oil is a good 15 feet from the nearest hotel," said Zumwalt.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — Three members of "The Dick Nixon Fan Club" illustrate a new dance to be performed tonight in Dick's ballroom with mistress Fanne Foxe.

Sex bias continues...

PROVINCE, COPE COD: Police here are somewhat happy in this gay city. Homicides, murders, and suicides are all down from last year.

Unfortunately, rape, sodomy and co-habitation discrimination is on the rise. So is the increase of vampire sightings (vampires victims remember, have to be virgins, which makes all the females in P-town eligible reciprocants).

Police chief Ifit Feelsgood spokes to this newspaper on this issue: "I don't mind rape increases but sodomy has got to stop! Sex between consenting homos is normal down here, not to mention what the lesbians have been up to. But animals have no choice when it comes to who they sleep with, ecetera. As for the co-habitation issue, the motels only will rent a room to mixed (sex) couples. Needless to say, hotels don't do very good business."

P-town residents are upset also over Martha's Wineyard, and now, they too want to secede from the Cape (in a poll conducted from Wareham tp Truro, all the towns voted to let 'em go).

MON		WED	THURS	FRI	SAT	SUN
				1 ALL FOOL'S DAY	2 EVE OF PASSOVER	3
START THE WEEK 4 AT MUNCHYS	5	6	GOOD SNACKIN' 7 AT D.C. SNACK BARS	8	9	10 EASTER SUNDAY
11	MUNCHYS 12 IN 3 CONVENIENT LOCATIONS	13	14	15	16	17
18 PATRIOT'S DAY	19	BUY 5-MEAL STRIP TICKETS 20 AT WORCESTER MAIN OFFICE	21	CELEBRATE 22 THE WEEKEND AT D.C. SNACK BARS	WORCESTER 23 SNACK BAR 7:00AM-10:30PM	HAMPDEN 24 SNACK BAR 7:30AM-1:00AM
SPRING FEVER RELIEF 25 AT D.C. SNACK BARS	26	IT'S TIME TO 27 SHOP MUNCHYS	28	29 ARBOR DAY	MUNCHYS 30 CAN MAKE YOUR WEEKEND!

CHARTER FLIGHTS TO EUROPE AND CALIFORNIA

- London
- Paris
- Amsterdam
- Frankfurt
- Vienna
- Zurich
- Poland
- Hungary
- Ireland
- Greece
- Rome
- Spain
- Geneva
- Hamburg
- Brussels

LOW FARES NO MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED

For Further Information Contact:

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

Campus Center 3rd level
Univ. of Mass. 545-0500

Whimsical Spring Arrivals

Victorian Dresses Silk Blouses Flowery Sundresses
Baggy Drawstring Pants/Shorts
Hair Combs/Barrettes
Spray Perfumes/Soaps/Bath Oils
Sachet Pillows
Espadrilles/Clogs
People Shoes from Main-land China

love at first sight
549-0700
Carriage Shops, Amherst

Vision Showcase
(formerly House of Vision)
Kent Whalen - Licensed Optician

We are Specialists in:
- Fashion Eyewear
- Contact Lenses
- Emergency Replacements
- Free Adjustments Anytime
- We Clean & Polish contact lenses on the premises.

We also carry fashion styles by Diane Von Furstenberg & Oscar Dela Renta

Mt. Farms Mall, Hadley 584-8324

1977 APR

SUN	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNES
3 Palm Sunday - slap a Cath five. Passover - ignore a Jew today	4 How can you tell that two elephants have been making love in your backyard? Look under April 21.	5 Fifth day of the month - the safe period is over, women. Pop for protection.	6 First day of Lent baby.
10 Dead bunnies for sale, Campus Center Concourse. Your choice of brown, white, or dead but still warm.	11 JV Baseball Boyden fields 4 p.m. Come, team, come!	12 Advance three spaces.	13 Do you have Prin can? Then let him
17 Your garbage cans are empty and your dog is pregnant.	18 Saturday the rabbi will Passover again.	19 What do you do when your nose is on strike? See April 20.	20 Pick it.
24 What's black and white and red all over? See tomorrow.	25 A dead nun.	26 They are all on the bride.	27 Maureen Majer appear in conce singing famed Po from the homeland. the ballroom at 8 p

AUDIO SERVICENTER

STEREO COMPONENT
REPAIRS ON ALL BRANDS

REASONABLE RATES

Tuesday Thru Saturday
10 a.m. To 5:30 p.m.

Call Amherst
256-0524

James F. Wooton, Prop.
274 North Pleasant St., AMHERST

VW, Toyota
Opel, Datsun
Mercedes

AUTO PARTS
FOR IMPORTS
WORLD PARTS

Capri, Volvo, MG
Renault, Fiat
Triumph

TIRES

Goodyear, Mohawk, Pirelli and others

Get Your Car in Top Shape for Inspection
Alignments, Balancing, Brakes, Shocks

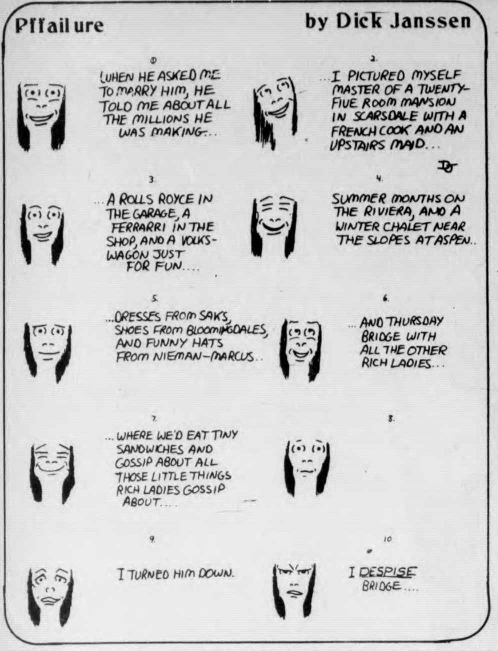
MUFFLERS
Discount with student ID cards for tires

BAK TIRE CO.
55 Damon Rd.
Northampton 584-4769

Garber's
Gor
HOST THE NCA
The Big Red o
FREE
L

Now comes Miller time.

© 1976 The Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.



Pffailure
by Dick Janssen
1
WHEN HE ASKED ME TO MARRY HIM, HE TOLD ME ABOUT ALL THE MILLIONS HE WAS MAKING...
2.
...I PICTURED MYSELF MASTER OF A TWENTY-FIVE ROOM MANSION IN SCARSDALE WITH A FRENCH COOK AND AN UPSTAIRS MAID...
DJ
3.
...A ROLLS ROYCE IN THE GARAGE, A FERRARRI IN THE SHOP, AND A VOLKS-WAGON JUST FOR FUN....
4.
SUMMER MONTHS ON THE RIVIERA, AND A WINTER CHALET NEAR THE SLOPES AT ASPEN..
5.
...DRESSES FROM SAKS, SHOES FROM BLOOMINGDALES, AND FUNNY HATS FROM NIEMAN-MARCUS..
6.
...AND THURSDAY BRIDGE WITH ALL THE OTHER RICH LADIES...
7.
...WHERE WE'D EAT TINY SANDWICHES AND GOSSIP ABOUT ALL THOSE LITTLE THINGS RICH LADIES GOSSIP ABOUT....
8.
9.
I TURNED HIM DOWN.
10
I DESPISE BRIDGE....

letters

A virally important message

To the Editor:

I am taking this opportunity to convey a virally important message to all college students in America. It would be impossible for me to write to each of you personally, therefore, your college newspaper is but one of thousands receiving my letter.

Venereal disease is nothing to be ashamed of. Many young people in our society have had sexual experiences prior to marriage. While I was fortunate enough to have gone the other way, I am opposed to public funding of abortions for those who cannot afford it. It may, however, be the right thing to do for many of you who can.

If you have venereal disease, please seek medical attention immediately, and take a serious look at counseling, possibly with your local church group or religious center.

As I said before, veneral disease is nothing to be ashamed of. It is something to be dealt with right away, before your Judgement Day.

If you do not know the whereabouts of your local medical facilities, please feel free to call me at my office, toll free. The number is: 1-800-225-0186.

With kind regards,
Jimmy Carter
President of the United States

A great paper - a great editor!

Dear letters to Editor Person:

We would just like to say what a wonderful paper all you hard-working college kids turn out. Not just 'cause our boy Ronnie is editor-in-chief. The Mass. Daily Collegian is a great little weekly. Ronnie has it mailed to us to show why he only gets to three classes a week.

Of course, he also tells us all the stories that give us the behind-the-scenes picture. Like how he single-handedly edits, lays out, and manages the office. He said he even vacuums up the roaches in the office. Really, if you kiddos were a little neater with your lunches, you wouldn't have bugs in the office!

Keep up the good work!

Grinnell Arena
Momsa Arena
John-Boy Arena
Empty Arena
Boston Arena

But not a drop to drink

To the Editor:

Recent droughts in the western U.S. are symptoms of a far deeper and more sinister ill. I am referring, of course, to Nelson Rockefeller and the capitalist conspiracy.

Rockefeller and his cronies, including Henry Kissinger, have fabricated the entire water shortage through their shrewd and highly unethical manipulation of the nation's water tables. In order to quench their infinite thirst for profits, they are hell-bent on controlling every facet of our existence. If necessary, they are prepared to use giant fans, run on the toil of working folks everywhere, to collect and liquify the earth's life-giving oxygen, and then sell it at outrageous prices.

But there is something we can do. Boycott water. People have survived for weeks at a time without water, and your faith in a new life after the revolution will overcome the pains of dehydration. By showing Rockefeller just what we are made of, you shall defeat the capitalist pigs and their "Communist" sympathizers with ease.

Lyndon LaRoach

jack gregg and wilson cahill

Legends in our own time

Both of us arrived at Great State U. in the ancient fall of 1973 not knowing the whys and the where fores of the impending What and even less about the hows. In the course of courses, 5 College intercourses, and intense daily meditations in area toilets, we feel that much of value has been revealed to us about the wherefores, but little to nothing about the what, the why and the hows. To enhance further confusion, here are our findings.

Gregg Wilson soon abandoned his naive notions that good study habits and perserverance were the foundation for future success and delved immediately into the wild and ruthless world of independent studies, political power trips, mind expanding drugs and "heavy" relationships with some very "Heavy" people. The people who most influenced Wilson during this period were B.J. Roche, radical feminist jokester and sometime writer, James T. Paulin, former legendary literary genius-in-residence and master subterfugist Michael "Governor" Dukakis.

From these sources and several other less legitimate ones, Wilson fashioned an entirely new Marxist theory: Good Time Socialism. The essence of Wilson theory (the fastest growing political mindset since Democratic Alcoholism) is contained in Gregg's quote, "A personal niche in history is at least as important as exercising one's individual hedonistic instincts. Your toke, honey."

In typical freewheeling style, Wilson assumed the position of Collegian Executive Editor, assaulted the Economics and Honors Depts. with anarchic gusto and spread his message of fun and solidarity throughout the Valley's frisbee fields and bars. Gregg's repeated assaults against the Dukakis administration are a consequence of his fear that the rigidly moralistic and sensible gubernatorial character will severely hinder the onset of Good Time Socialism. In the meantime, he is pleased with the movement's growth and plans to travel to California for further research and a possible sale of the theory to "either Werner Erhard of EST or the Transamerica Corporation." Gregg is grateful to the UMass experience for helping him form his theory, but maintains that his favorite experience in the last four years has been "free bus rides."

+ + + + + + + + + +

Asked recently to describe his major accomplishment while a student at UMass, Collusion columnist and rhetoritician Jack Cahill offered this less than rhetorical reply, "overall and quite frankly I must emphatically state that it is the proliferation and widespread acceptance of ratso hair growth on the upper chin." Mr. Cahill, who himself sports a mohawk-like growth below his lower lip continued, "it's hard to understate the impact this growth has had on UMass and the surrounding community, I hear the Chopping Block will soon offer a wash set and ratso styling to its disco cut line."

The ratso has been critical to Mr. Cahill's development as a saxophonist and jazz reviewer.

"It reduces the chafing often caused by this physically and mentally intruding instrument. Consequently it has enabled me to develop the unusual lip and mouth techniques which are crucial to my overall performance. My lips and tongue can now explore the entire sonic range; I tell you this fad is spreading, Harry Reems has just contact me in reference to cultivating his own ratso style."

Brigitte Bardot sports the latest "ratso" style.

JC-DC as he is known to friends and terrorists alike had this to offer to UMies who have just entered the false ivory towers of UMass, "reality is fast encroaching, pessimism is rampant among the avante guard, as the late Fats Waller once cautioned, one never knows, do one."

Jack Cahill and Gregg Wilson will embark on a mind expanding trip this Summer, please pray for their safe if not insane return.

science scene

Inhalation therapy

By BONG MELIA

A small group of students doing semi-scientific research into the effects of marijuana have asked me to summarize the results of their research, and I agreed because, with Gov. Dukakis attempting to turn UMass into an institution of level education, there is a real need to do every thing possible to keep UMass an institution of higher education.

But before we proceed to the results of their research, we must first examine their jargon. They do not smoke pot — they engage in "inhalation therapy." And they do not hold therapy sessions in a dorm room, but in an "Intensive Care Unit," where they refer to each other as "Doctor."

They invite "patients," not friends, over for therapy. Pot is called "theraputic material," and they smoke it not out of a pipe or bong, but from a "theraputic instrument." They light up with a "sulfer preparation" instead of a match.

Now that we understand the jargon, we're ready to move on to matters of higher importance. Their favorite theraputic material is something called a buffalo chip, and this amazing substance was invented by accident. One of the doctors had harvested some plants, wrapped them up in a plastic garbage bag and put them in a cool damp corner of his cellar.

He promptly forgot about them, and when he rediscovered them some weeks later, the resin had collected at the bottom of the bag and was covered by a white fungus-like growth. The doctor immediately wrapped up the "fungusy" resin in aluminum foil, ran over it several times in his car, and called his new substance a buffalo chip. It tastes terrible, but it produces a most pleasant theraputic effect.

Therapy is administered only late at night and its goals are to eliminate tension, stimulate creativity, and induce restful sleep, thus enabling patients to be intellectually alert and imaginatively creative the following day. Seen in these terms, therapy has been a great success — there has been a sharp and direct correlation between frequency of therapy and academic excellence.

However, conditions must be just right for therapy to produce the desired effect. Proper company is essential, so therapy is by invitation only — no walk-in patients allowed except in cases of extreme emergency.

The conversation must be stimulating, as well. Recent theraputic discussion topics have included an analysis of the political ramifications and economic implications of international speculation against the British pound, and a radical critique of the Hegalian concept of the dialectic.

An adequate supply of food and drink is essential to satiate the patients' post-theraputic desire for increased caloric intake. The doctors have found "Chateauneuf-Du-Pape" (vintage 1969) and "la mousse au chocolate" to be a superb combination, but on the rare occasions when such Epicurean delights are unavailable, peanut butter and Ritz is perfectly adequate.

After years (and pounds) of careful research, the doctors are now able to quickly diagnose a patient's ailments and prescribe exactly the right brand and quantity of theraputic material necessary to effect a complete cure.

Such an ability is obviously priceless in a society where most people are tense, worried, and insecure. If legal and available, inhalation therapy would be much cheaper than psychoanalysis and would produce results in a much shorter time.

I have it from reliable sources that the administration once seriously considered creating a department of Inhalation Therapy. Only one thing stopped them: The lab fee would have been outrageously high!

Bong Melia is a piece of Collegian lab apparatus.

---

lilly melisa

The happiest of bride dollies

Allow me to introduce myself. I'm 5'3", blue eyes and brown hair, typical product of a Catholic leper colony, and always open for business. I'm having the girls over for tea and crumpets today. We are all bride dollies sitting in our comfy bride dollie chairs, around our bride dollie coffee table, sipping from our wedgeware tea cups, extending our pinkies the way our bride dollie mommies told us was proper.

And you know something? I love being a bride dollie! I love playing Jane to Tarzan. Once, I wanted to be Tarzan! Now don't get me wrong, I've always loved my hubby. I had a hell of a time landing him, too. Thank God the drugstore was closed New Year's Eve! We had a June wedding and a little Melissa made her way into this world in late September. She's a beauty with her little pink bonnet although she's a chronic bedwetter, just like I was when I was her age. I remember I had a sloppy bed accident when I was eleven. I hit the sheets in my toy chest and my mother found them a week later. She confronted me with them and I explained that I had spilled some ammonia on them and was afraid she'd be angry. She looked at me knowingly, smiled, and ate the sheets. Well anyway, yesterday, I could have died. My little darling toddled up to me at the breakfast table and gurgled, "Mama, where is the vacuum?" Well I was so excited I called up Annie Homedew next door to tell her. Well she almost died too. The best her little daughter could ask for was a whisk broom.

So where was I? I wanted to be Tarzan, the jungle man. I saw myself running naked through the jungle, with a mango breeze caressing my buttocks, leaping over peat bogs, wrestling alligators. A man. A man. A man at last! But they were only fleeting visions which then faded and shrunk like the sweater I accidentally put in my Kenmore dryer last week.

You'd think that with only a husband and a little baby to care for I'd average maybe two laundries a week. Well I do. Mondays and Thursdays are laundry days around here. Tuesdays and Fridays are taken up with ironing and shopping, which reminds me I ran into Grace Dooby this morning. Ironing-board Gracie we called her in high school. I remember she got married in our senior year. God, we envied her.

I will always be a bride dollie, as happy in my split-level colonial as Winnie the Pooh in his honey tree. You can have your Women's Lib — give me a Frigidaire and a baby's bib. I had a dream last night. I saw Gloria Steinem in front of a soda machine. She was having a difficult time deciding what soda to get. Her fingers kept hopping back and forth, uncertain and afraid. Finally she pressed the coin release. The machine was broken! Then frantically she clawed at all the soda buttons, but no soda fell into the slot. The analogy is obvious. She had deliberated so long that she blew her chance for a husband. And she lost her change to boot.

Oh and just a final word. I finished The Total Woman a couple of days ago. It was marvy! Yesterday I dressed up as a navel orange for my hubby. He went wild, frantically trying to peel me! Tomorrow I dress in Saran wrap. Indeed I am the happiest of bride dollies!

Lilly Melisa is a Collegian drag queen.

Letters policy

So you think you want to write a letter to the editor, huh? Well you can just forget it right now, maggot-brain. Because the day the Collegian accepts or even stoops to take a cursory glance at anything a lowbrow wooden spoon like yourself would write is the day Albert Sparks joins NOW. So just slither back into your hole, bonehead.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

BORED EDITORS — HOTLIPS HANAFIN, Maniacal Editor-in-chief; BIGBOY J. CLAFFEY, Sunshine Special BooHoo; JINGLES JOHNSON, Lady of the Evening; MOZZARELLA MILSTONE, Pizza Editor; BUBBA STILL-BOURNE, Dead Baby Editor; MISS LILLIAN Z. EDELSTEIN, Presidential Impersonations Editor; PEBBLES PARENT, Attorney-at-Disruption; JAMES ALAN SYRUP; Foto an Speling Editer; STEPHHIE ARONSON, Back Rub Editor.

Associate Editors - Joe Quinlan, Associate Believability Manager; Eeny Meeny Vene, Dean of Beers Editor; Steve Lesser, Almost a Moustache Editor; Bubbles Bradley, Associate BooHoo; Jan Vudy Fondle, Associate Yachting Cap Editor; Rona Rena, Associate I-Don't-Have-The-Time Editor; Bruno Sammartino, Associate Fine Arts Editor.

The Collegian is a student newspaper paid for by many and read by few. The staff will not sign its name to the articles so blame Ronald Arena because he tells us what to write.

Unsigned editorials represent a lack of character on the part of the author. Signed editorials represent absolute stupidity and loss of the will to live.

The Collegian is a member of the Rex Trailer Fan Club and has vowed to slay any impostor upon sight. The Collegian pays its board of editors vast sums of money and receives little, if anything, in return.

The Collegian is an elitist, power-mad organization who publicly heckle students at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

The Collegian strives to print any advertisement because the board of editors has given itself a pay hike and has to make it up somehow. If you read this far into the masthead, you must really be bored.

66.5 LATE MOVIE "Mosquitos from the Dark Lagoon" Giant mosquitos eat their way into White House. Jimmy Carter, starring as President, asks them to leave on rounds of ethnic purity.

1:00 2 4 6 8 LATE LATE MOVIE "Mosquitoes from the Dark Lagoon" Deadly mosquitos threaten lives of Boston Red Sox during spring training in Winter Haven. Players wave sox in air and the bugs buzz off.

2:30 22.7 LATE, LATE, LATE MOVIE "Mosquitos from the Dark Lagoon" Hordes of mosquitos, angry over alleged discrimination forcing them to live in a Florida milliam z. wills

Father Bill

Editor's Note: Milliam Z. Wills, a UMass junior, is a non-existent person. Every week, a few* Collegian staffers get together to write this column. Moreover, there is no such place as Taos, New Mexico.

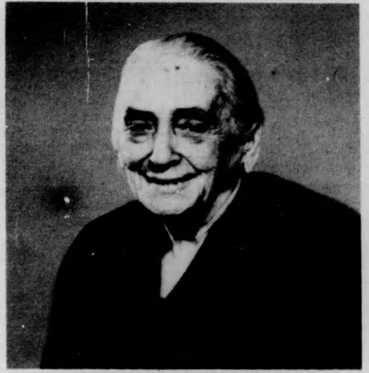
TAOS, New Mexico — The kumquat.

This fruit is little known and little loved and we can all learn a lesson by it.

Kumquats grow on the trees here, amongst the cacti and sparse shrubbery, creating oasis after oasis of beauty in the broad vista that is the endless desert.



Paco the kumquat

These very kumquat trees symbolize the love that permeates the everyday lives of the people here. The kumquat represents this beauty, yet, but for the people of Taos, it is a forgotten fruit — like unrequited love.

People in Massachusetts want only lettuce, tomato, cucumber, onion and an occasional radish in their salads. Kumquats are never requested — never missed. At the dining commons, we are content with watercress and imitation low-calorie French dressing.

In Taos, the people eat kumquats and make their own salad dressing.

I love kumquats.

Even the persimmon cannot match the versatile kumquat. The life-giving fruit is even used in making preserves.

Unselfishly it relinquishes its right to be eaten along — all by itself. Willing it gives up the ability to impose its own flavor upon our taste buds, so that it can instead, enhance the flavor of other fruits.

Why can't people be more like kumquats? Why can't we be self-sacrificing? Why can't we postpone the realization of some of our goals, some of our goals, some of our dreams, just long enough to enhance the flavor of other fruits?

For instance, in Massachusetts I witnessed an auto accident. Someone had driven his car into a fence next to a patch of tomatoes.

Not a single tomato got up to help.

Here in scenic Taos, I was privy to a similar mishap. One of the scenic townspeople was riding across the scenic desert when he plowed his scenic jeep smack into the scenic middle of a scenic cactus.

Immediately, a whole group of nearby kumquats rushed first to aid the quaint operator of the hapless vehicle and then went over to console the family of the stricken flora.

Why can't people in Massachusetts be more concerned about the victims of auto accidents? Why don't we lend a helping hand to struggling cacti and kumquats? Why must I persist in posing these irrelevant questions?

Irrelevant questions are truly beautiful.

They symbolize that element in our society which is unafraid to be accountable only to itself; nonconformists.

In Taos, the people exude this irrelevance — only the names have been changed to protect the innocent. Take "Paco"...please.

The sun shines down on Paco 330 days out of every year. Paco notices the sunshine.

How many of us in Massachusetts notice the sun's warming and reassuring rays?

In Taos, Paco notices.

Each day, Paco walks 20 miles across the burning desert to get to the building in which he will be educated. By the time he reaches the little school, he is delerious from sunstroke.

I love sunstroke.

But for sunstroke, Paco would not have the chance to be carried off to the cooling umbrage of the kumquat trees. And but for Paco's delerium, the shady trees would be unappreciated.

Any students interested in kumquats should contact Emma Sunstroke at the CCEP office, 252 In the Shade before advising week.

The incompetent photographer

By Sure Jon

Do you think I could have til tomorrow morning so I could give it some thought, I feel a little light headed right now.

This idiot refused to have their picture taken, so we're not printing their answer, instead we're printing their picture.

Hey, I really shouldn't be telling you this, but don't you think it would help the picture come out by turning on the lights?

Oh wow man, what a heavy question ... ah ... I'm not really sure ... hey you got any papers?

I really have mixed emotions on this issue, sometimes I think I agree, and sometimes I don't.

james a nollet

(From the left)

"God is a figment of your imagination — Communism, however, and the pleasure it brings regardless of the political affiliation of your partner — That is real. I write from experience.

"To some people Communism comes very naturally — They say Socialize with the one you're with."

From the bathroom stalls of typical Communist Cells.

I live in Greenwich Village around West St. and the neighborhood is notorious as a place where a Communist can easily make a pick-up for his cell. One of the classic pickup lines, accompanied with a caressing of clenched fists, is, "Are you having a nice night, ... Comrade?"

I am a closet Communist. Though I can now openly discuss my alternative political life style, thanks to the efforts of the ICF (International Commuphile Front), I was not always an open Communist oh no indeed no. For many years I had to repress my true political identity. For many years I masquareded as a straight Heterocapitalist Imperialist Exploitator of happy Lumpenproletarians!!!!

My training began as a small boy. During bedtime stories about Captains of Industry, my father always made me look under my bed for Communists. "None here tonight, Sir," I would always shout gayily, but inwardly I was crying. How I desired intimacy with a real Marxist!

When I was nine years old, I developed a crush on my neighborhood's known political deviant. I tried to run away with him and read The Thoughts of Chairman Mao but my father caught me and sent me to Katy Glib's Business School. But the joke was on them — I organized COMMIE LIB IN KATY GLIB'S!!!!

After I destroyed the school, which was the center of the worldwide Capitalist Conspiracy, I drifted over to (The) West (is Red) St. There I quickly got picked up by a Communist and joined a Commune and studied Marxist — Leninism and gayily lived happily ever after.

I've been hustling the streets for. years. During the Democratic Convention at Madison Square Garden, we demonstrated every night alongside the Marijuana Legalizers, and I made the discovery that MARIJUANA IS A FORM OF COMMUNISM! LET'S GET BACK ON THE COLUMBIAN GOLD STANDARD! LEGALIZE "REDS" NOW!!!

I met a most interesting man recently. He has a black toothbrush mustache, and wears a khaki uniform with a diagonal leather strap (I love leather!). In addition to an armband, he wears a patch on his uniform which resembles an eagle with outstretched wings. From its claws, the eagle is holding a curious twisted cross. I figure this obviously military man must be from our provisional wing.

Anyways, this man (He likes to call himself "The Leader") told me to pass on the following messages:

WORKERS OF THE WORLD UNITE!
FREE RUDY HESS NOW!

My training began as a small boy. During bedtime stories about Captains of Industry, my father always made me look under my bed for Communists. "None here tonight, Sir," I would always shout gayily...

James A. Nollet is a reformed Collegian Imperialist Pig.

james j nollet

(From the right)

Recently many pinkos on campus have been making a lot of noise about Governor Dukakis' level funding plan for UMass. I would like to argue that level funding is just one step in the direction of regaining the individual freedoms that were stolen by socialists like former Governor Francis Sargent, even if he was a Republican.

As my regular reader remembers (that's me), I have driven a taxi cab in New York City. (Unlike many cabbies I know, I am willing to pick up blacks and gay people, although sometimes I drive through Greenwich Village with my eyes closed so I won't have to look at hippies, artists and other commies. There are limits even to my liberal tolerance.

One time I was looking for a fare in the Bronx when I saw a road crew composed of four or five men, three of whom were leaning on their shovels. The only exertion any of them was involved in was occasionally opening his mouth or shifting his weight on the shovel handle. God, what a terrible malaise is this monster socialism.

I floored the taxi as I went by and kicked up some sand into their eyes — I felt much better and thought for a moment of Milton Friedman and other men who made this country great.

Down the road a piece there was a man waving desperately for a taxi. A little bit ahead of him was a rather attractive young woman hitchhiking. Being a strong believer in equal rights for those who deserve them, I pulled past the man and picked up the woman. I took her to her apartment, where she informed me that she was broke and couldn't afford the fare, and asked how she might possibly reimburse me. Fearing I might upset the natural flow of supply and demand in our Capitalist System if I just let her leave without providing some payment for the service rendered, I consented and we slipped into her apartment.

But that's neither here nor there. My point is this — only under capitalism can a truly free education exist. And the more money we spend on education, the more we threaten the capitalism that makes it possible. The complete argument is pretty simple.

Let's suppose that we spend tax money on higher education. That's a form of socialism... ugh. Under socialism, the state dictates what is taught — socialism. UMass is a good example. Even the Chemical Engineering Department here is socialist. So we don't have a free education. Ask Albert Sparks. If the state stopped funding UMass, then we would receive a free, capitalist education. The University could make a profit. Dukakis has taken the first step with level funding.

This reminds me of another time I was driving my own car through Springfield. I noticed that the gas gauge was near the empty end. Just ahead of me were Exxon, Texaco, Gulf, Shell, and Arco gas stations, all within a tenth of a mile of each other. I chose the one with the lowest price for regular. What a marvelous economic system we live in. When you think about it, getting a college education is a lot like buying gasoline.

Unlike many cabbies I know, I am willing to pick up Blacks and gay people, although sometimes I drive through Greenwich Village with my eyes closed...

James J. Nollet is a reformed Collegian Communist.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT

FRIDAY APRIL 1
CHARLES TOLLIVER/
MUSIC INC.
AND THE STRATA
EAST ALLSTARS

SATURDAY APRIL 2
FRANK FOSTER
AND THE
LOUD MINORITY
WITH VOCALIST
ANDY BEY

8:00 p.m.
STUDENT
UNION
BALLROOM
ADMISSION FREE

SPONSORED BY THE PROGRAM COUNCIL MUSIC COMMITTEE AND THE STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE

Workshops Saturday, April 2, 9:00a.m. and 1:00 p.m.
Franklin Patterson Hall
Hampshire College

OVER 50 STYLES OF FRYE™ BOOTS
PLUS JACKETS, BAGS, BRIEFCASES, BELTS, SANDALS, CLOGS ··· EVERYTHING IN LEATHER!
Heartfelt Leather
103 No. Pleasant St., Amherst
253-512
10-5³⁰

CLOG
Headquarters
the SHOE· BIN
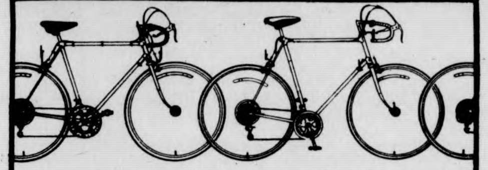
"OPEN FRIDAY NITES"
AMHERST, MASS.

L 1977

AY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SAT
		1 You believed all this crap, didn't you, you fool!!!	2 We have a strange and beautiful relationship. You're strange and I'm beautiful.
up a	7 International Twinkie Day. Say hi to your roommate.	8 What's so good about a crucifixion?	9 All The President's Men SUB 7, 9, 11
rt in a	14 How do you know when an Italian has been in your backyard? Look under April 17.	15 Louise, bad news. Your rabbit died.	16 How come there are never any flies on the food at an Italian wedding? Look under April 26.
	21 The plastic liners from your garbage cans are missing.	22 Two used boo-boos for sale. Call Benny.	23 Why is it easier to unload a truck of dead babies than a truckload of marbles? See April 30.
will night llads her in	28 Charlie Berube will appear in concert tonight singing famed Jewish ballads from the homeland. See him in Maureen's dressing room at midnight.	29 With the babies you can use a pitchfork.	~~30~~ Thirty days hath September and April used to...



AMHERST CYCLE SHOP
253 TRIANGLE ST AMHERST, MA
☆☆ ☆☆ ☆☆ ☆☆
RALEIGH,RAMPAR, PANASONIC, ROSS, ETC.
BIKES, REPAIRS, EQUIPMENT, RENTALS
☆☆ ☆☆☆ ☆☆
SPECIALS:
$10⁰⁰-25⁰⁰ OFF on some
RALEIGHS AND FRENCH 10- SPEEDS

CRAZY JOYCE'S
MT. FARMS MALL
★Anything on a T-Shirt
★ Paraphernalia
★We're foolish ALL year round!

illas champs
Cornell
aturday April 2 2:00 P·M· rosse - the fastest game on foot come to the field behind Boyden
B.Y.O.B.

Sport
Coat
100% cotton, made in Yugoslavia, available in white, light green, blue, and yellow.
$9.95 each
Faces of Earth
Next to the
Amherst Post Office
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Worm gets caught with pot

DENVER, Colorado: Juan Denver, along with some close friends, were arrested last night on possession of marihuauna with intent to smoke. Hiking to the top of the Colorado Rocky Mts., the recently deputized posse caught Denver red-handed, in the act of inhaling of one Marijuana Small.

"We knew that worm was up there. We had our radio on and we heard his song. Imagine, he was actually bragging about sitting around a campfire up there, getting high" one of the possum exclaimed.

"Cops have radios too."

Osmond charged with shooting

KINGSTON, Jamaica (RAP) — The self-proclaimed priestess of "disco-rock" has been arrested and charged with the shooting last December of reggae songster Bob Marley and three of his troupe.

Marie Osmond, 17, of Salt Lake City, Utah was apprehended here yesterday and charged with four counts of assault and battery and attempted murder. Osmond is scheduled to be arraigned before a kangaroo court sometime today.

Osmond, who has repeatedly expressed contempt for reggae music and specifically Marley, was arrested during the third song of her show last night, shackled and carted off to the Kingston House of Corrections. Osmond was singing the never-popular song "Beating the Bulrushes with Bobby."

Kingston police captain, Roderick Cuff said the timing of the arrest was most important. "That song, sung by her, has to be the worst. One might say we killed two birds with one stone."

Old hack wants US spotlight

LUNACY, Ohio (QPA) — An embittered Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, today announced his candidacy for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

The 66 year old Stassen, who has hired former Rolling Stone Sportswriter Raoul Duke as his press secretary, made the announcement before the 16 member Ohio Republican caucus.

The wheezing, emaciated old coot assailed such Republican hopefuls as Sen. Howard Baker of Teneseee (A snot-nosed turncoat), former President Gerald Ford (a washed-up wardheeler") and former Vice President Nelson Rockerfeller ("a codger").

Physicians at Fernwood Hospital announced, at a press conference scheduled concurrently, that Stassen was "a senile, vindictive old buzzard who his presently taking Ibogaine, an obscure Brazilian drug, perscribed by his family doctor, Hunter S. Thompson.

OJ causes rats

CYCLAMATE (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration is banning orange juice, the only liquid beverage secreted by oranges, because it causes rats in labratory tumors.

Acting FDA Commissioner Ollie Y. Beefeater said yesterday that the ban will go into effect on July 1. He called upon all manufacturers "to set fire to their stocks of orange juice without delay."

He said there are no plans to recall orange juice alredy on supermarket shelves. "We'll call it what we always have; orange juice" he said.

The FDA's orange juice ban based on scientific studies that involved feeding 100 tumors a diet of five per cent pure orange juice foom conception until death.

Fourteen of the tumors developed rats, 81 were unaffected, and five developed into oranges.

This group compares to another group of test tumors who were fed an orange juice-free diet of pretzels and beer. This group of tumors deveoped no rats at all.

In order to consume a similar amount of orange juice, a human being would have to ingest over 800 cartons of orange juice a day. In addition to the cartons, a human being would have to drink 639 gallons of orange juice a day, the FDA said.

The FDA order was denounced by I. Needa Biant, and the orange bird, both orange juice industry supporter.s

"This ban is completely absurd. Orange juice is good, clean and wholesome food. I suspect my opposition to homosexual rights legislation led to this action. Its all a plot by FDA homosexuals," Biant said.

The agency is reviewing its action but an fianl decision is said to be at least a light year away.

CLEAN LIVING

Sheehan's Reel
in CONCERT
April 3rd Student Union Ballroom UMass 8 p.m.
Tickets $2.50 Available at:

Ticketron, UMass
Peoples Market, UMass
Just Desserts, Amherst
Soup Kitchen, Northampton
Face Of Earth, Amherst
Dakin House, Hampshire College

Benefit for Cultural Worker Magazine
Sponsored by Commuter Collective

FOUR HOURS OF MUSIC & DANCE
¡ Bring all Your Feet!

Warnke 'out on limbs'

WASHINGTON (CPA) — The nation's capital yesterday was all agog at the controversy surrounding President Carter's cabinet officials.

Paul Warnke, U.S. chief arms negotiator underwent surgery today in Bethesda Naval Hospital to have his arms removed. Claimed Warnke, "I have always stood for the reduction in arms, and by God, I make good on my promises!".

President Carter commented that the act demonstrated courage and an extraordinary commitment to a worthwhile cause."

However, Carter did add that he will miss shaking hands with the feisty negotiator, and that it will surely hurt the White House softball team, which, according to informed spectators, had an excellent shot at the Washington baseball crown, held now by the CIA.

Last year's game was a forfeit, as the runner ups, the Committee to Re-elect the President (1972) could not muster up a full team.

Soviet Premier Leonoid Breshnev, upon hearing the news of Warnke's pending operation said that he will respond to this magnanamious gesture on the Warnke's part by going even further toward arms limitations, and decapitate his chief negotiator, Andre Sakharov.

In other news, the U.S. Senate yesterday confirmed Carter's nominee for CIA chief, Maxwell Smart.

Carter, extolling the virtues of his newest appointee, claimed that Smart was "a man with experience, a sense of humor, dedication and he is too damn dangerous out on the streets.

"It about time we got him behind a desk, where he will be relatively harmless."

Smart, being interviewed after the hearing, smiled and said, "I am happy as Carter was when he was elected; would you believe, as happy at Fritz, hearing he got a job; how about Archie Cox, going to Nixon's house to do hallucinogens.

Secretary of HEW Joseph Califano again publicly defended his bodyguard, hired for an estimated $40,000.

Announced Califano," For Christ sake I've got a free Cadillac payed for by the taxpayers, a $20,000 valet, $35,000 of home improvements on taxpayer's money and two mistress-secretaries on Senate payroll. So what the hell is everyone getting upset about this drop in the bucket for? Besides, everyone else does it!

Bell's Pizza House

FOR PIZZA RICH AND SAUCY TRY US, YOU'LL LIKE US!

Bell's Pizza.

Free Delivery on Campus Sun.-Thurs.

253-9051 or 549-1311 66 Univ. Drive

Spring Sling Thing FROM THE earth®

STYLE 400 BROWN

STYLE 605 NAVY

264 N. Pleasant St.
open Tues-Sat 10-5 pm
BRANDYWINE CORP

BEFORE WE MADE THEM
LOOK GOOD
WE MADE THEM FEEL GOOD

earth shoe
For every walk of life

PHOTO CONTEST
DEADLINE: April 2
No smaller than 5'x7' or larger than 8'x10'
Mounting unnecessary
1st Prize $10,000
2nd Prize $100,000
3rd Prize - FREE DIPLOMA
2 honorable mention $5 each
Include your name, address, telephone, how the picture was shot, (film type, shutter speed, special effects, etc...) with your photo.
Winners will have their photos printed on the cover of lfe magazine.

Santa's Stereo Sale

O.K. We caught your eye with that dumb headline but these stereo deals are for real. Prices good thru Saturday some items in short supply and no rainchecks.

RECEIVERS:	LIST	SALE	BONUS
SONY STR 7065	549^{95}	329	Free Sharp Electronic Calculator
SONY STR 7055	449^{95}		Free Shure M91ED
MARANTZ 2275B	649^{95}	560	Free AKG 140 Headphones
NIKKO 3035	249^{95}	134	Free Sound Guard
NIKKO 2025	189^{95}	99	Free ERC W/Pickering Cartridge
SHERWOOD 7010S	199^{95}	149	Free Dinner for Two at the Copper Lantern
SUPERSCOPE R1220	199^{95}	149	Free Pat on the Back
SONY STR 70105	229^{95}	139	Free Empire 4000 D/I Cart
TURNTABLES
THORENS TD145	300	199	Free Empire 4000/DI Shibata Tip Cart.
THORENS TD165 (Demo)	200	94	Free Psycoanalysis (30 sec. max)
PHILIPS GA212	200	165	Free (2) grado F3 Cart. 50^{00} List ea.
PHILIPS GA406	200	175	Free Micro 2002-E Electret Cart. for 5^{00} - List 115^{00}
PHILIPS GA427	110	82	Free Hand out the Door

ACCESSORIES

All cartridges 65% off List including this super value.
An Empire 4000D/I Shibata type cartridge List 85^{00} NOW 30.13 and buy the replacement stylus for $5^{00} (comp. total value 147^{00}).
P.S. Anyone who purchased this cartridge from us in the last 10 days at our regular price gets the new stylus free!
Just bring proof of purchase.

MAXELL TAPE
UDC 90 2.87 ea.
UDXL I 90 3.12 ea. List 6^{50}
UDXL II 90 3.12 ea. List 6^{50}

We are AMHERST AUDIO

WE FIX ANYTHING WE SELL
IN OUR OWN SERVICE DEPARTMENT

586-2552 549-2610

259 Triangle Street - Amherst
OPEN TIL 9, Sat. TIL 5

master charge
your BANKAMERICARD welcome

Duke still here; seeks towed limo

By I.M. DeFLOWERED
Collegian Staff

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis is still in Amherst at UMass, attempting to retrieve his limousine which was towed by Amherst Towing Co. during his visit here in February.

This is the allegation of several students who claim to have spotted Dukakis, disguised by plastic glasses and moustache and questionably a false nose.

The students, who requested anonymity, said they have seen this man sleeping in dorm study halls and lounges around campus, and sneaking food from Franklin Dining Common by entering through back stairway.

One person spoke with the supposed Dukakis and said, "He told me that he refused to pay the $610.00 fee which has been accumulating since the automobile was towed from a posted 'No Parking' area in front of the Whitmore Administration Building.

"He said he was remaining incognito until he could steal back the car from the Amherst Towing Co. lot. Although he admitted that he was illegally parked, he insisted that it was 'only for a minute' and besides, he didn't have tha much loose cash on hand."

When he asked by the student if this incident had any bearing on the UMass financial cuts, the alleged Dukakis answered, "Well, I'm not one to hold grudges, but I feel that getting Amherst Towing on my back was going a little too far. It's hard to negotiate with people who employ such hostile tactics."

People are speculating on who has been in charge at the State House if Dukakis has really gone underground with his obsession.

Some students surmise that a facade has been activated in which a dummy is being used in news conferences, etc., until the real one returns.

Meanwhile, the alleged Dukakis wages his private battle with Amherst Towing Co. He hopes success in his endeavors, but as our informant reportedly told him, "With Amherst Towing Co., to win you have to join the war."

When contacted, the Amherst Towing Co. had "no comment".

Lecture tonight on 'anals' of history

History Professor Ages Ago will be lecturing on "Boredom in History" tonight at 7:45 p.m. in Herter 909.

Ago is known for his brutal killings of students enrolled his introductory course "The History of Man With a Special Emphasis on Underwear". Ago has recently been charged with the deaths of 56 students at a class where he was guest lecturer.

Those who attend tonight's lecture are uged to plug their ears and leave as soon as possible, as Ago is an expert in the use of boredom as a weapon.

Oboeists held instrument meeting

The Society of Collegiate Oboe Repairmen will have its first meeting of the semester yesterday. Chapter President Roland Swollen said he didn't want to announce the meeting ahead of time because he didn't think anyone would show up.

"I didn't even show up," he said, "I just announce meetings in the Collegian so the Senate will think we're using our $5,000 of RSO money. I don't even know what an oboe looks like."

DC Menu

TODAY

LUNCH Quiche Lorraine, Veal Cordon bleu, candied yams petit fois au gras, baked stuffed eggplant, pomegranites and cherries jubiliee. Wine List: Rothschild 1823-44.

DINNER Les nappes roules au jus nausee, pommes de terre merde, kielbasa caccitorre, stewed tomatoes and prunes with peanut margeriue sauce, dandelion souffle and baked alaska with cranberry sauce.

In Southie, they stoned, not stoning

BEANTOWN, Mass.: Boston's men-in-blue feel crime in general has leveled off. Even incidents on the busing scenes are now a rare occurence.

"Yes, things are better now than in past months" commented a know-nothing rookie in the third precinct.

"Those Irish lads down in Southie haven't stoned a bus in weeks. I think it's because they're too busy getting stoned. I hear there's some good Jamaican going around."

Meanwhile Southie's headmaster, in an unrelated interview, spoke to an assembly of over 30 students who happened to be attending school that day.

"I'd like to thank you students for showing up today. It shows you'll go a long way in the educational system later on in life." spoke Principal I.M. Naive.

"Unfortunately," he dribbled, "you won't graduate from college, since no college accept graduates of Southie High".

Told you they were unrelated incidents.

C & C LIQUORS
NEXT TO TOWN HALL, AMHERST

STROGOFF VODKA
80 proof $ 4.75 qt.

JIM BEAM BOURBON
80 proof 6.29

TUBORG $ 6.25
12 oz. cans case

RIUNITE LAMBRUSCO
2.29 fifth

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

THIS TIME FOR SURE!

PILOBOLUS
DANCE THEATER

SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

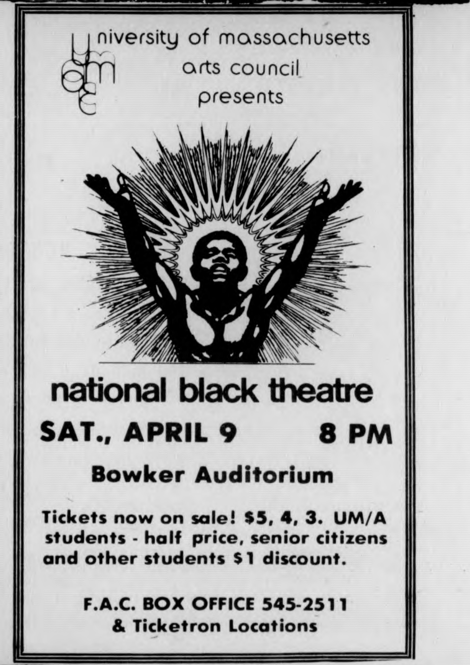
ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton

NOW at 7:00 & 9:00
(only area showing)

"ONE OF THE YEARS 10 BEST FILMS!"
- Rex Reed
- Time Mag.

a film by
— françois truffaut
small change

No Dollar Nights
This Program!



university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

national black theatre

SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Bowker Auditorium

Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

UNANIMOUS!

"A BREATH-TAKING FILM! High-pitched passion and romance . . . brilliant performances. The bordello offers a banquet of women: innocent and tough, sensual, mischievous . . . with a Niagara of party-clad prostitutes signaling the start of work."
—Paul D. Zimmerman, Newsweek

"A REMARKABLE, SUPERIOR PICTURE. STARTLING, VERY POWERFUL AND MOVING. It is gripping, technically brilliant, commercial and universally appealing to all. A wide canvas of decadence and vulgarity. Rush to see it."
—Rex Reed, New York Daily News

LOVE & ANARCHY

WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY LINA WERTMULLER
A HERBERT R. STEINMANN-BILLY BAXTER PRESENTATION
Starring: GIANCARLO GIANNINI (Winner "Best Actor" Cannes Film Festival)
MARIANGELA MELATO/EROS PAGNI/LINA POLITO / PINA CEI/ELENA FIORE
A PEPPERCORN-WORMSER RELEASE

WINNER INTERNATIONAL BEST ACTOR CANNES FILM FESTIVAL

Photography by GUISEPPE ROTUNNO
Music Composed by NINO ROTA
PRODUCED BY ROMANO CARDARELLI FOR EURO INTERNATIONAL FILMS
TECHNICOLOR R

CCA $1.00
Sun. 4/3/77 7,9,11

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS

NOMINATED FOR 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
Cousin Cousine
R
1 Friday — 5:00, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:30-5:00; Sat. — 2:15, 5:00, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:30-5:00; Sun. — 2:15, 6:00, 8:15, twi-liter 5:30-6:00.

IT'S THE MOST HILARIOUS SUSPENSE RIDE OF YOUR LIFE!
GENE WILDER
JILL CLAYBURGH
RICHARD PRYOR
SILVER STREAK
PG
2 Friday — 4:45, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sat. — 2:00, 4:45, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sun. 2:00, 5:45, 8:00, twi-liter 5:15-5:45.

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER!
A STAR IS BORN
R
3 Friday — 4:30, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:00-4:30; Sat. 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:00-4:30; Sun. 2:00, 5:30, 8:00, twi-liter 5:00-5:30.

The Newest, Pinkest Panther of All!
BLAKE EDWARDS'
PETER SELLERS in
"THE PINK PANTHER STRIKES AGAIN"
PG
4 Friday — 4:45, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sat. 2:15, 4:45, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sun. 2:15, 5:45, 8:15, twi-liter 5:15-5:45.

REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI LITE SHOW TICKETS LIMITED TO SEATING

Public pubic show tonight at Mahar

Human anatomy Professor A. Big Toe will present a slide show tonight for all interested persons on "Pubic Hair and Its Relation to Fingernail Growth." The show will be presented in Mahar Auditorium at 7 p.m.

Toe is known throughout the University community for his lecture series "Sexual Impotency in UMass Frats".

Chess Club pawns film festival tonight

The Chess Club will be sponsoring an Andy Hardy film festival tonight in the Student Union Ballroom. The films star Mickey Rooney as a cute, cuddly, white, racist, sexist boy.

Among the films to be shown are: "Andy Hardy and Debbie Reynolds Sing About Chimps", "Andy Hardy and Judy Garland Kiss a Lot", "Andy Hardy Grows an Inch" (guess where) and "Andy Hardy Visits the Red Light Zone and Learns He Needs To Grow Anothr Inch" (guess where).

'Split' personality to appear tonight

Kleagle, former lead singer of the defunct musical group "The Banana Splits", will appear in concert tonight at 8:00 in the Fine Arts Center to benefit the UMass Croatian Student Relief Fund. Prior to the concert, Kleagle will speak on "The Decline of the Cartoon Character in Contemporary Music."

Before he split in 1969, Kleagle was considered top banana in the then blossoming stuffed-animal-singer scene. A bout with brown aphids in 1973 put a temporary halt to his career, but Kleagle rebounded quickly and is currently on the national college circuit.

Tickets are free.

Wood quits follow trying experiences

UMass President Robert C. Wood today announced his resignation from his One Washington Mall office in Boston.

Wood called a press conference to announce his decision, which he said had been coming for a long time, "ever since I took the job."

Madison meditator members may meet

The Dolly Madison Meditation Society kicks off their Spring Lecture Series tonight at 8:00 with a lecture entitled "Your Armpit: Eliminator of the Existential Angst?"

Dr. Shuma du Dumama, Amherst herpatologist, will conduct an informal question and cosmic abuse session following the lecture.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Formed by de Dumama in 1972, the society seeks to harness psychic energy and relieve everyday tension through the practice of 'zufpa". Zufpa, said de Dumama, is the practice of causing ones head to come into repeated, forceful contact with a variety of inanimate objects.

New members may register with the society at the lecture. Prior experience is helpful, but not required.

Copy of baseball demonstrated tonight

Dr. Philip Milberg will give a lecture entitled "How to Operate a Telecopier and Play Baseball with a Ruler and an Eraser" in Thompson 104 tonight at 8:00.

Milberg, an internationally-known expert in these subjects, will cover such topics as how to plug in your telecopier and how to hit an inside curve ball. The lecture is free, and pizza will be served.

Thpeech thluwwerth hope to talk tonight

The Communication Dithorderth Club will have a meeting tonight in Bartlett 619 for all patht and pwethent memberth.

New methodth of thpeech thewapy and bwand new instwumentth will be exhibited. Thethe include a thwetch wack for pokey tongueth and a faith-thlapping machine for those who hava habit of thluwwing their thpeech.

The meeting will be catered by Phil Milthtein'th Pizza Palathe.

Christians meet Lions in roaring contest

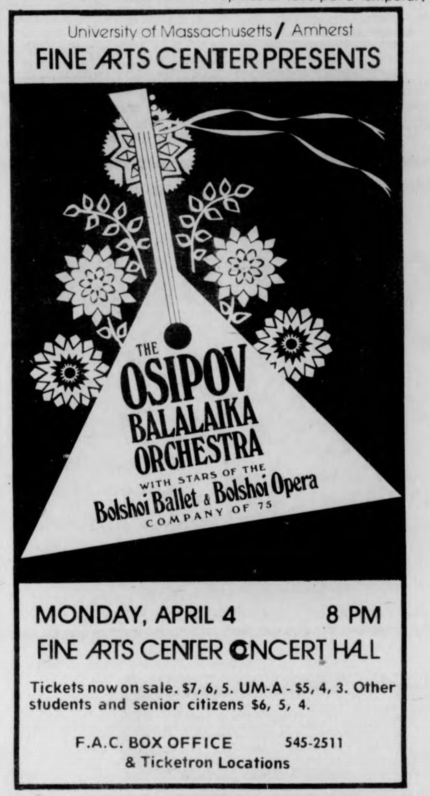
The Tactical Games Club has revived an old favorite combat game — Christians against the lions. At noon tomorrow, UMass Protestant and Catholic chaplains will meet in Alumni Stadium and meet 16 stoned and munched-out lions.

All non-Christians are urged to attend.

Fruits to discuss kumquat growth aids

The Alternative Agriculture Association will hold a meeting tonight to discuss the feasibility of using parakeet fertilizer to aid the growth of their alternative Kunquats.

The association has adopted "Parakeet Power" as their new slogan.



University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS

THE OSIPOV BALALAIKA ORCHESTRA
WITH STARS OF THE
Bolshoi Ballet & Bolshoi Opera
COMPANY OF 75

MONDAY, APRIL 4 8 PM
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL

Tickets now on sale. $7, 6, 5. UM-A - $5, 4, 3. Other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

"Swept Away..."
Written and Directed by LINA WERTMULLER
Starring GIANCARLO GIANNINI and MARIANGELA MELATO from CINEMA 5
CCA
Fri. 4/1/77 7, 9:15, 11:30 $1.00 R

The Pleasant St. Theater
The Finest in Foreign and Revival Film.

Matinees
Saturday at 1 and 3
Sunday at 1 only
DANNY KAYE'S
Knock On Wood

Sunday Silent
with A.T. Purseglove at the Organ through Sunday

BERGMAN'S
The Virgin Spring
7 and 8:30

Keaton's
The General
with Perils of Pauline Episode
Coming Monday: Katharine Hepburn Dble Bill

27 Pleasant St./Northampton 586-0935

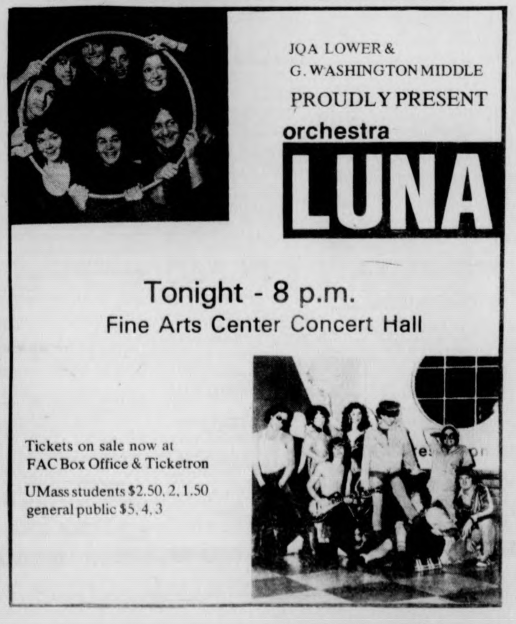
university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

KARR-LEWIS DUO
Double Bass & Keyboard

WED., APRIL 6 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations



JQA LOWER &
G. WASHINGTON MIDDLE PROUDLY PRESENT
orchestra
LUNA

Tonight - 8 p.m.
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets on sale now at
FAC Box Office & Ticketron
UMass students $2.50, 2, 1.50
general public $5, 4, 3

Showcase Cinemas
ROUTE 5
RIVERDALE RD.
West Springfield
733-5131

BARGAIN $2.50 till 2:30
MATINEES WED. SAT. SUN

ROCKY
PG United Artists

MGM presents
NETWORK
R United Artists

AIRPORT '77
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
TECHNICOLOR PANAVISION PG

REDFORD/HOFFMAN
"ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN"
8 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS PG

"BLACK SUNDAY"

A STAR IS BORN R

'THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN'

A RALPH BAKSHI FILM
WIZARDS
PG

Notices

AARDVARK AND ANTEATERS APPRECIATION ASS'N
The AAAA will meet with representatives from ALA and AAA to discuss the importance of drunken drivers who kill animals and refuse to attend AA meetings. To be held tonight in Campus Center Room 34 at 11:30.

COFFEEHOUSE
Crampton Upper will sponsor a coffeehouse in the Fine Arts Center tomorrow at 6 p.m. Featured performer Woody Guthrie.

LOST
One pet crocodile and a doberman. If found treat with extreme kindness or you could become the treat.

BRETT HOUSE
Residents of Brett House will sponsor a pancake eating contest tonight at 9. The first person to be eaten by the giant pancake wins, you moron.

COACH GARBER
If the lacrosse team loses tomorrow, Coach Dick Garber will be tarred and featured in the CCA at 7:30 p.m. Anyone requesting fuuther information, WILL JOIN HIM!!!!!

UNITE
The Revolutionary Student Brigade will hold a seminar entitled "Unity: Methodical Madness" Sunday at high noon in the Newman Center Chapel. Anyone interested in attending should watch the Celtics game instead.

WORKSHOP
A workshop to discuss methods for setting up Ad-Hoc Committees task forces and one of the 300 types of yo-yo committees on this campus will be held in the Pottery Collective office in CC 1400.

LOST
My sense of judgment. It's three a.m. and I'm typing up hokey notices.

CUB SCOUTS
Anyone who was ever a cub scout should attend a mandatory meeting in the Bluewall this afternoon at 3. Failure to be on time or provide an excuse from your den mother will cost you you Bear badge.

HARLEM GLOBETROTTERS
Anyone who is interested in becoming a Harlem Globetrotter should practice their dribbling tonight at 12:00.... in the sink please.

FOUND
One lb. of super Jamaican gold. If you lost it be standing outside the Bluewall at 3 p.m. today waving a Collegian and yelling, "I'm waiting for a trolley," so I can make an ass of you again.

LOST
A gray tomcat with one white stripe, about two yrs. old and answers to the name of Leonard. If found contact....no forget it... keep the stupid cat.... have a barbeque.

PARTY
At a Puffers Pond to be named later. You bring the beer, food and pot. I'll take care of the matches and ice, sucker.

SOMNAMBULISM
Moon Mullin will conduct a seminar tonight at 11:00 on how to sleep for an entire semester and survive. An equal opportunity-Affirmative Action teacher.

IF YOU....
If you are still reading these notices, your professor has got to be the most boring or your social life sucks eggs.

I PAY MONEY
For talented writers and good typists. If interested in making a six-figure salary call the Valley Ardvark or the Daily Hamper Grubbette, if they can't help you then meet someone who has some serious money.

TROJANS
I am looking for my "Roots", if you or any of your relatives were in the Punic Wars, I must hear from you!!! Only first person testimony, none of this "records" bullshit.

READ
Your horoscope in today's paper. If you think I'm high you should see her!!!

TAMMY WYNETTE FANS
If you like Tammy Wynette, that's your problem and don't burden me. Remember, joker, all your musical taste is in your mouth.

XEROX CLUB
The Xerox Machine Ad-hoc Task Force will hold a demonstration of the new Xerox 6,000,000 AFB in the SUB candy counter tonight at 7:30. This revolutionary machine can make actual reproductions of cars, houses and people. Support technocracy.

SERIES
The Amherst Towing Ass'n will sponsor a lecture series on Marxian economies next semester. The course will be entitled "Virtues of Social Behaviors".

RIOT
The annual aggregation of Arab and Israeli agitators will meet head on tonight in Alumni Stadium at sundown. Members are reminded that hand grenades are outlawed from competitionby Article Seven of the Peace Act.

ANEMICS
There will be a blood drive sponsored by the Amherst American Anemic Ass'n. All donors are asked to bring their own hypodernics and zip-lock bags.

BOOGIE
The annual Barnyard Boogie is looking for "local talent" for their convention to be held April 9 at 6:00. This year's entertainers included "Roll in the Hay Rhonda and Gigola George Grable. No one under the age of thirteen will be admitted without a letter of recommendation from one nationally known degenerate.

HRTA STUDENTS
All HRTA students must attend an important meeting tonight in Herter 205. Prof. Eat Me will speak on the best way to serve dead babies.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PARAKEET FUCKERS
All those interested in doing kinky things to small animals sucha s Janice X. Bergamini, meet in Thompson 104 at midnight.

LOST
Four pairs of sunglasses outside the Hatch. They are chrome-plated, dark brown, heated, four on the floor, V-8 engine, 45 mph highway. Answers to names Pinky, Stinky, Dinky and Kinky.

Romeo and Juliet to disco at Wall

The Bluewall will be hosting the Real Authentic Shakespeare Company tonight at 8:00 on the dance floor.

Bluewall Bouncer Bwilly Bwigmouth, who helped to organize the event, said, "It's twoo, it's twoo! They're weally going to act out Shakespeare wight here. I can't wait twoo see Lady MacBeth wandering around the castle. I hear in dhose days dey didn't wear any cwothes to bed!"

Jet club meeting should be real blast

The Turbojet Club cordially invites the entire UMass community to the library to witness its latest endeavor tomorrow at noon.

Since the 28-floor structure was opened in 1972, they have secretly been installing four rocket engines in the basement.

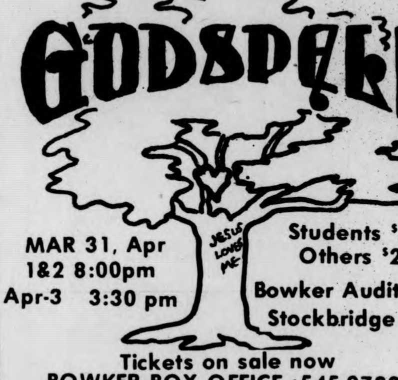
At noon, club president "Flash" Rodgers will push the button that will fire charge the afterburners and make UMass the first power to put a library on the moon.

Bring your own beer and hot dogs for a quick-fry lunch.

DANCE SPONSORED BY HAMLIN HOUSE
SAT. APRIL 2nd 9:00 till 1:00
WORCESTER D.C.
Beer-25¢ WINE-50¢ ADM. $1.50
MUSIC BY RIFF RAFF

Friday April 1
'Summer of '42'
7.9.11pm
Mahar Aud.
$1.00

UMass Music Theatre Guild presents



MAR 31, Apr 1&2 8:00pm
Apr-3 3:30 pm
Students $2.00
Others $2.50
Bowker Auditorium
Stockbridge Hall
Tickets on sale now
BOWKER BOX OFFICE :545-0783

Classifieds

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

FOR SALE

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift Idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

For Sale: 2 pairs of skis — Head 360's 185 cm., excellent condition, $100.00. Head HRP's 185 cm, Look Nevada bindings, $125.00. Nordica boots, $60.00. Head poles, $15.00. Call 549-2691.

Electric guitar & amp, $150, cassette rec., new, $50; 2 lg. speakers, $75; slide projector, $40. 549-3886. Records for sale, too.

Green suede boots, Wm., 7. $10. Clark nurs. shoes, Wm. 7. 6-7782.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

Siamese kittens for sale, seal and lilac points. 253-9096 - $20.00.

1969 Ford Falcon, blue, 46,000 miles, good running condition. Asking $600.00. 19" Ateia 10 speed bicycle - $95.00. 253-7249.

PLANTS CHEAP — over 50 hsepints, small, med, large. Lvng country - must sell all! Sat.-Sun. Apr. 2nd, 3rd, 9-6 at 74 Riverglade, So. Amherst, 256-8885.

Alto Sax Bundy - special pads & finish. $150 firm. Call Steve 6-9625.

For Sale — Used albums, like new! Big assortment. 75c to $1.50. Call 549-2691.

AUTO FOR SALE

'68 Camaro, vc top, 350 engine, 4v, auto trans., needs work, $400. or best offer. 549-4744.

Volvo parts. 122 & 142. Good prices. 586-0610 anytime.

1968 Ford XL. New tires, good shape. $600 or B. O. 586-0610.

'73 Merc. Capri 2000, green, auto., air, 28,000 mi. Best offer over $1800. 549-6652.

1976 Dodge Van, custom interior, alarm, rustproofed, more. 1-268-7721.

'71 Toyota Corolla. New paint, brakes, valve job. 665-3546 after 10:30 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0616 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

1969 Ford Galaxy 500. 78,000 miles. Runs good. $350. 256-8694.

'71 Plymouth Cricket, 4 spd., 30 mpg. 5000 OML. Exl. cdt. $650. Call 665-4381 aft. 5.

'65 VW Bug. Exc. mech. cond. 35 mpg. $750. 253-3623.

'64 VW Bug. Rebuilt eng. Good cdt. $200. 549-0798.

1972 Opel GT. $1950. Call 256-8885.

'64 Ford Galaxie, mech. v. gd., body lousy. $175. Call 256-8347 after 6.

'74 Camaro LT-350, 4 spd., spoilers, radials, 34K mi., exc. cond. $3350 - B. O. 665-2676.

'68 Volvo 122. Very good shape. $800. 586-0610 anytime.

FOR RENT

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot; you're alright too. AJF

Boston: Ex-large Apt.; 2 bedrm., living, dining, sun porch, front-rear balcony, etc. $260 b.o. June-August—617-426-0871 (days) 782-8015 (nights) Write: Att.: Rob, 147 South St., Boston.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

FOR RENT

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 + sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

1 or 2 non-smokers for furnished house. Federal St., Belchertown. For April & May. $50—mo. incl. util. 323-4249.

Apartment: May 23 - Aug. 31. Call: 10 - 2. M-F. Ask for Mike. Leave mess. 545-0189.

Lizzy F (Amazon woman, How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie. D.L.

HELP WANTED

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

HEBREW TEACHER required. Westfield congregation needs a Hebrew teacher beginning Sept. - 1 or 2 afts. a wk. $10—hr. Contact Judy Brown, 7 South St., Westfield, 01085; 562-3224.

$3—hr. Travel Survey on Campus. 4 hr. shifts, 6:30-10:30; 10:30-2:30; 2:30-6:30 p.m. Must be available Wed. 4-13 and—or Wed. 4-20. Call 5-2086 for info.

Small sorority needs pot washer for lunches, dining room worker for lunches, and dinners 5 or 6 days. Meals, plus 2 extra meals. Call 549-1587.

Manfred Leber is starving to death. Urgently requires part-time cook. (cordon-bleu preferred). Will give free German lessons. Contact 546-9931.

ENTERTAINMENT

Party tonite!! 8 p.m. $2 - All you can drink at Farley Lodge. Great non-stop music. Must get tickets before Fri. at 5. Get them on the 20th floor of Washington.

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075

PERSONALS

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

UMass Crew: Keep that cadence high but let that water fly. And we'll win again. Just like in VA. Good Luck, Amy.

To Kennedy from 22, we will see you again when the moon is full.

Pam and June, Happy Birthday fools. Love, Jimi.

To the girl with the mickey mouse T-shirt - Happy Birthday from 16 Coolidge!!!!!!!

Happy B-Day Bob: From the Gog Gang.

Tony, read any good course description guide credit pages lately? Check out the last one, we're almost neighbors! Interested? I doubt it, but if you ever get the urge to do something crazy, drop by! P.S. There was a C.B. in the Senate once, but it wasn't me. I'm just 0355239!

To the girl with the great lips, if they say the first year is only the beginning, then the best is yet to come. —Scoop—

TO SUBLET

2 bdrm. apt. on bus rt. Jun. 1-Aug. 31. Semi-furnd.,w-w, air cond. Call 549-4766.

3 bdrm. Twnhse apt. on bus route. Semi-furn., air cond. 6-1 — 8-31. $260 mth. 549-6919.

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths & terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

3 bdrm. apt. Puf. Vil. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

1 bedroom apt., Puffton Village, June 1 - Aug. 31. Air cond., pool, tennis courts. Call 549-4789.

3 bdr., Puff. Vill. On bus rt. 6-1 — 9-1. 549-0748.

Gorgeous 3 bedrm. apt. 63 Graves St., So. Deerfield, on bus rt. Apt. is very unique, must be seen, call 665-7193.

2 bdr., Brandywine, exc. bus rt. Beautifully furnished, A.C. pool, 549-4744.

TO SUBLET

3 bds. in 5 bd. hse. 5 min. walk campus. Nice yard. Jun 1 - Aug. 15. $60—mo. 549-1709.

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

WANTED

Non-smoking, non-drinking, potential veg., very tidy, grad asst. seeks a quiet co-op living situation in Belchertown. $100— inc. Bill 253-7105 or 5-2155.

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

Looking for used quality scuba gear (Lrg.). Call evenings - 253-5410.

Student experienced in technical inking and drafting on a regular part-time hourly basis for summer session. Phone 5-2548.

AUDIO

Quality components over 130 lines. Reasonable prices. Call Peter, 665-2920.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

Summer and or Fall pl.? Air cond, pool, 5 min. fm. CAMPUS. Stu.-F, 549-1879.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

'71 Suzuki TS185. Very good cond. Needs no work. 60 mpg. $345. 256-8074.

SERVICES

Peace Of Mind — Housesitters. Avail. for summer. Call Simon 549-4280.

Passport and application pictures. Quick service. Will do CPA and portfolio slides. Contact Steven at 546-9653.

Tune-up and main all AM makes. John 253-5664.

TRAVEL

Important Study Abroad Announcement: Appl. now accepted for summer and next academic yr. for Moscow, Leningrad, London, Paris, Nice, Florence, Perugia, Geneva-Copen H., Amsterdm. All subjects for students in gd. standing. Accredited unv. courses. 4, 6, 8-wk. summer terms or quarter semester, full yr. terms. Summer from $710. Yr. term from $1590. Contact: Center For Foreign Study, S-AY Admissions, Dept. M, 216 S. State, Box 606, Ann Arbor, Michigan, 48107--313-662-5575.

London by air for $120. Must depart April 29. Call 369-4980, Conway, MA.

FOUND

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears, cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

LOST

Black vinyl ring binder lost - Amherst Environ. Contact owner at 253-7139.

3 golf clubs in S-west fields. Reward. Call Flynt 546-6071.

Gold necklace - chain and charm. Live - Love - Laugh. Sentimental value. Reward offered. 546-8159.

CALCULATORS

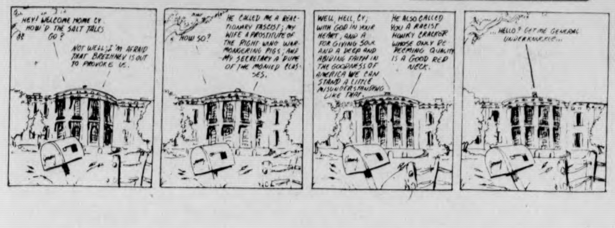
College Calculators has low prices! All T. I. warr by me for 1 yr. SR-52 $199.95; SR-56 $84.95 ($10 rebate off this pr.); SR-40 $34.95, bus anal $34.95 — All HP's avail, HP-67 $389.95. Call and check our PR's. Call Bob Or Linda 549-1316!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

DOOMSBURY

by Garry Rudehoe

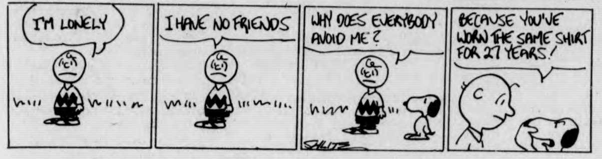
Valley typing
29 S. Pleasant St.
call 256-6736
M-F 10-6 S 10-2



HEY! WELCOME HOME CY. HOW'D THE SALT TALKS GO?
NOT WELL; I'M AFRAID THAT BREZHNEV IS OUT TO PROVOKE US.
HOW SO?
HE CALLED ME A REACTIONARY FASCIST; MY WIFE A PROSTITUTE OF THE RIGHT WING WAR-MONGERING PIGS; AND MY SECRETARY A DUPE OF THE MONIED CLASSES.
WELL, HELL, CY; WITH GOD IN YOUR HEART, AND A FORGIVING SOUL AND A DEEP AND ABIDING FAITH IN THE GOODNESS OF AMERICA WE CAN STAND A LITTLE MISUNDERSTANDING LIKE THAT.
HE ALSO CALLED YOU A RACIST HONKY CRACKER WHOSE ONLY REDEEMING QUALITY IS A GOOD RED NECK.
...HELLO? GET ME GENERAL UNDERKNUCKLE...

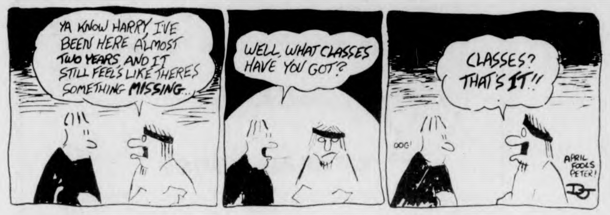
PEENUTS by Charles M. Schlitz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



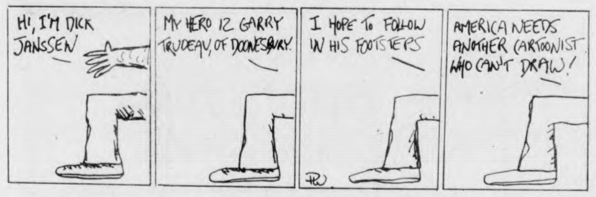
I'M LONELY
I HAVE NO FRIENDS
WHY DOES EVERYBODY AVOID ME?
BECAUSE YOU'VE WORN THE SAME SHIRT FOR 27 YEARS!
SCHLITZ

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



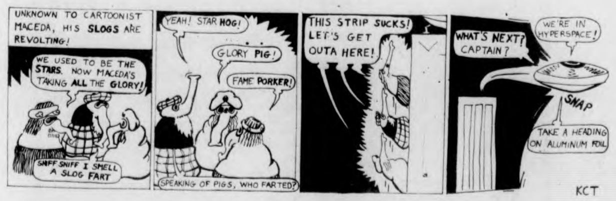
YA KNOW HARRY, I'VE BEEN HERE ALMOST TWO YEARS, AND IT STILL FEEL'S LIKE THERE'S SOMETHING MISSING...
WELL, WHAT CLASSES HAVE YOU GOT?
CLASSES? THAT'S IT!!
OOG!
APRIL FOOLS PETER!

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



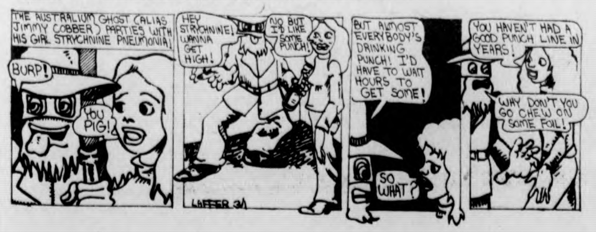
HI, I'M DICK JANSSEN
MY HERO IZ GARRY TRUDEAU, OF DOONESBURY.
I HOPE TO FOLLOW IN HIS FOOTSTEPS
AMERICA NEEDS ANOTHER CARTOONIST WHO CAN'T DRAW!

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



UNKNOWN TO CARTOONIST MACEDA, HIS SLOGS ARE REVOLTING!
WE USED TO BE THE STARS. NOW MACEDA'S TAKING ALL THE GLORY!
SNIFF SNIFF I SMELL A SLOG FART
YEAH! STAR HOG!
GLORY PIG!
FAME PORKER!
SPEAKING OF PIGS, WHO FARTED?
THIS STRIP SUCKS! LET'S GET OUTA HERE!
WHAT'S NEXT? CAPTAIN?
WE'RE IN HYPERSPACE!
SNAP
TAKE A HEADING ON ALUMINUM FOIL
KCT

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



THE AUSTRALIUM GHOST (ALIAS JIMMY COBBER) PARTIES WITH HIS GIRL STRYCHNINE PNEUMONIA!
BURP!
YOU PIG!
HEY STRYCHNINE! WANNA GET HIGH!
NO BUT I'D LIKE SOME PUNCH!
LAFFER 3/1
BUT ALMOST EVERYBODY'S DRINKING PUNCH! I'D HAVE TO WAIT HOURS TO GET SOME!
SO WHAT?
YOU HAVEN'T HAD A GOOD PUNCH LINE IN YEARS!
WHY DON'T YOU GO CHEW ON SOME FOIL!

Local Television

6:00 2 4 6 8 WHO DO WE APPRECIATE? This sleazy sordid saga of seven silly sexy schoolchildren will probably not be shown after its blase premiere.

36 2.9 FOGHORN LEGHORN The zany rooster whom we all have mixed emotions about flys the coop with his archrival "the Chickenhawk".

6:30 4, 5 6 DICK AND DAFF This early evening talk show featuring former President Richard M. Nixon and Disney character Daffy Duck as co-host should be ample entertainment for the pea-brained.

77, 79 OFF THE WALL WMUA's own radio talk show goes on national TV. Host Bobo Le'vain speaks with U.S. Senator Lex Linseed (R-Montana) about porcupine farming.

7:00 66.5 I LEFT IT TO BEAVER Eddie Haskell croaks and leaves the Beave his jalopy. Ward gets entrapped by a "sidewalk sweetheart".

14, 67 FESTIVAL OF FAITH Massachusetts Governor Dukakis is host, tells how the Greeks celebrate Easter. Peter Cottontail co-hosts.

7:30 66.5 LEAVE BEAVER The Beave gets arrested for flashing. Wally does his homework.

2 8 14 GREAT MOMENTS IN WESTERN CIVILIZATION In a special presentation, Idi Amin accepts the Nobel Peace Prize.

8:00 5, 6 67 THE FLINTSTONES Dino eats Pebbles.

44.7 MY MOTHER THE CAR Mother gets a lube job and her front end alligned.

8:30 77, 79 ESCAPADES OF LASSIE Our flirtatious canine turns on a bit too much of her charm and finds herself involved with a trio of would-be lovers: Flipper, Fury and Arnold Ziffel.

Your Birthday

by Stella Wilder

Friday, April 1, 1977 — Born today, you are often apathetic with things which do not concern you. You are easily scared by people who point sub-machine guns at you. You pride yourself on being able to get along with people you like, yet you are many times confused by things which are not clear to you. You tend to look upon social workers as those who perform social work.

PISCES Feb. 19 - March 20) — Your mother wears army boots, and this will cause your toes to curl up until you develop ingrown athletes foot. Buy a case-and-a-half of Desenex before Saturday at noon.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) — You will die horribly shortly before three o'clock in the afternoon. Those whose moons are in the fourth house will be run over by cars, those whose moons are in the third house should get their asses on over to the fourth house.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) — You will become terribly nauseaus when you witness the horrible death of an Aries.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) — Today you will go to the store and get a loaf of bread and a quart of milk. When yo get home you will discover that you have been short-changed.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) — You will develop a case of the screaming mimies upon beating pushed out of the top floor of a tall building. Not to worry though, you will land on a Sagittarius.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) — You will spend the entire day exposing yourself to young children. At midnight you will turn into a pumpkin.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) — That dead gerbil that you found in your bed yesterday is in there again today. Whatsa matter, you like dead gerbils in your bed or something?

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22) — Use more care in picking your nose. Monetary matters will give you a ruptured spleen. Although a dog will piss on your face, you will become gratified when you discover that it was only trying to point out that you are wet behind the ears.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) — Don't leave your house. If you do, well...it's too disgusting to even think of. Just take my word for it, don't even go out the front door. Please. You've got t believe me, I'm trying to preserve what little time you have left. No! Don't get out of that chair! Don't challenge your Maker! Oh, my God...

SAGGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) — A Cancer, who has been pushed out of the top floor of a tall building will land on you.

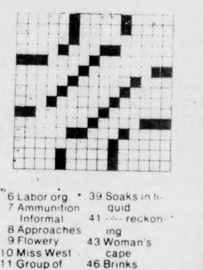
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) — Contrary to the views of friends and relatives, you do not have buck teeth. You do, however, smell like a goat. Do not pass go, do not collect $200.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20 - Feb. 18) — My God, you're a bore! Take care not to speak to anybody you might have warm feelings for.

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Wild animal's track
5 Baby grand-
10 Soda fountain creation
14 Hawaiian winsstorm
15 Playwright ----- Rice
16 Felipe, Mateo or Jesus ---- Baseballer
17 Big time Slang 2 words
18 Type style
19 Black Poet
20 Throws
22 College exam
24 Partake of
25 General sense
27 Ocean vessel
29 Trolley tracks 2 words
32 Aural sensitivity
33 Clay, today
34 Papas
36 Copenhagen citizens
40 Hourglass material
42 Illuminated 2 words
44 Machete
45 Provoke
49 Strike gently
50 Feel pain
52 Birds
54 Gas station giveaway 2 words
58 Memento from the past
59 The greatest possible
60 Stay during a trip
62 Very bad
65 Foible
67 Voluptuous woman
69 Lie at anchor
70 Evangelical Abbr
71 Actress Verá ----
72 Currier's colleague
73 Make loans
74 Eurasian sandpiper
75 Penny



DOWN
1 Card game
2 Graphic emblem
3 "Like a puppet --- ------"
4 Drapery ornament
5 Done in person
6 Labor org
7 Ammunition Informal
8 Approaches
9 Flowery
10 Miss West
11 Group of records
12 Unfettered
13 Piano ---- Instrument mechanic
21 Patient wife
23 Soft metal
26 Performed again
28 Bedouin
29 Toronto's ---- Loma
30 ---- Shepard Astronaut
31 --- -- and took notice
35 ----- cargo
37 Inert: 2 words
38 Flair
39 Soaks in liquid
41 ---- reckoning
43 Woman's cape
46 Brinks
48 Sunken missile shelter
51 Light foam
53 Kind of acid
54 Tangle
55 Martini ingredient
56 N. American highway
57 Eng. Channel port
61 Whine
63 Former British Prime Minister
64 Insect colony
66 Result
68 Clergyman's title: Abbr

S	L	O	T	■	P	I	A	N	O	■	M	A	L	T
K	O	N	A	■	E	L	M	E	R	■	A	L	O	U
A	G	A	S	■	R	O	M	A	N	■	E	B	O	N
T	O	S	S	E	S	■	O	R	A	L	■	U	S	E
■	■	T	E	N	O	R	■	S	T	E	A	M	E	R
C	A	R	L	I	N	E	S	■	E	A	R	■	■	■
A	L	I	■	D	A	D	A	S	■	D	A	N	E	S
S	A	N	D	■	L	I	T	U	P	■	B	O	L	O
A	N	G	E	R	■	D	U	P	E	S	■	T	A	O
■	■	■	A	I	L	■	P	E	L	I	C	A	N	S
R	O	A	D	M	A	P	■	R	E	L	I	C	■	■
A	L	L	■	S	J	O	P	■	R	O	T	T	E	N
V	I	C	E	■	H	O	U	R	I	■	R	I	D	E
E	V	A	N	■	E	L	L	E	N	■	I	V	E	S
L	E	N	D	■	R	E	E	V	E	■	C	E	N	T

128

MAGIC transparent tape

Scotch
MAGIC TRANSPARENT TAPE
53¢ at the University Store campus center

..CONTEST....CONTEST....

WHAT'S THE WORD??

Somewhere is today's Collegian is a word which means: "Fruit used in preserves".

FIND IT AND YOU COULD BE OUR $5.00 DAILY WINNER!

Contest Rules: Submit your entry to the Daily Collegian Business Office before 3:30 P.M., the day of the issue, indicating what the word is and where it appeared. A DAILY WINNER WILL BE DRAWN FROM ALL CORRECT ENTRIES.

The winner's name will appear in the Daily Collegian the following day.

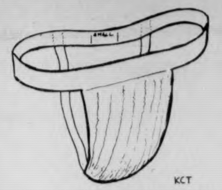
Yesterday's winner:

PACO

Yesterday's word:

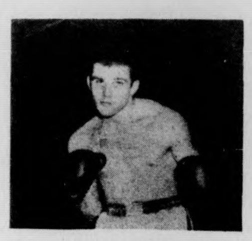
PRIEST

..CONTEST....CONTEST..



Sports shorts

Recently suspended Texas Ranger second baseman Len Randle announced his retirement from professional baseball yesterday in order to pursue a blossoming motion picture career. The veteran major leaguer has been offered the leading role for the sequel to the motion picture "Rocky".



Len Randle

"I know I could play the part," said Randle. "That chump Sissy Stallion can be whupped and I'm gonna do the whupping. I haven't had much acting experience, but there's no question I can fight, just ask that punk Lucchesi."

Randle's retirement papers were met with scorn at commissioner Bosie Kewn's office, however, as the commissioner expressed his doubt about Randle's future.

"I'm not sure I can allow his action to go through," said Kewn. "I have my doubts about this transaction. I am the commissioner and I can tell anyone related with the game what he can and cannot do. Don't forget I am the commissioner, I am the commissioner."

Randle, when asked about the commissioner's statement, replied in anger, "That guy better not interfere or I'll tatoo his face too. Maybe that would be in the best interest of baseball."

New York Yankees third baseman Graig Nettles stormed out of the team's spring training site yesterday, upset over his current contract situation. "All I asked the management was if I could renegotiate my contract after the game and they wouldn't even listen to me. Hey, not every guy in this league can get three hits in a game down here.".....World champion heavyweight Muhammed Ali said yesterday that he is thinking of beginning a fast for three straight months in order to lose weight. Ali said he's getting a little old for the heavyweight division and would like to challenge for the bantamweight crown.....

Apprentice carpenter Steve Cauthen, 16, rode 50 more nails into the side of a new duplex house at Aqueduct yesterday to bring his total to 366. Young Cauthen has earned more than $2.50 since he's been on the job.....Troubled Detroit Pistons forward Marvin Barnes suffered a broken leg yesterday while at a team practice. Earlier in the day Barnes was notified he was being sent to prison for life. His mother died of a heart attack, his new Cadillac was stolen from his driveway, while his house burned to the ground. Que serasera Marvin.....

Rico Petrocelli, who was recently released from the Boston Red Sox after 12 years of service, said he wasn't bitter. Petrocelli said his future plans were undecided, although he has had an offer to be a groundskeeper at Fenway Park and an offer from the World Track Federation. Petrocelli is a world class sprintet.....

Joey Heatherton, former wife of Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Lance "the pants" Rentzel, was charged with exposing her body to young males on their way home from school. Looks like they did belong together after all....UMass athletic director Frunk McIninny is accepting applications for the head basketball coaching position vacated by Jock Lowman earlier in the week. Lowman left the position to accept a job with the Metropolitan Opera as that troop's leading soprano.

Following nauseating auto accident, Bo Ellis and his team of blind people who have no sense of touch has trouble finding loose ball against defensive whiz for team of genetic misfits born with one arm and only a stump for a leg. The member of the "Dismembers" stole the ball from Bo in this action, and rolled in for an uncontested layup. (API photo by Helen Keller)

Namath traded

CONT. FROM PAGE 29

2 4 6 8 MYSTERY MOVIE COLUMBO Lt. Columbo is assigned the Brown-Gethers case.

9:00 66.5 MY THREE SONS Robbie, Chip and Ernie make it with Charlie's Angels while Uncle Charlie makes it with Charlie.

44.7 and rising CHARLIE'S ANGELS Our three buxom beauties are visited by three underage bachelors. Charlie reveals himself.

10:00 77 67 WHO'S WHO CBS News presents the life of Johnny Carson.

5 6 NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC SPECIAL National Geographic takes its cameras to the heart of the UMass wilderness to interview the natives. (A candidate for the Kumquat TV documentary award)

11:00 2 4 6 8 66.5 NEWS Lyndon Johnson elected President.

9 LOWELL THOMAS REMEMBERS Tonight's show features Thomas remembering what he ate for breakfast this morning.

11:30 22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW Ed McMahon throws up his Bud on Johnny's new suit.

Come to our house for the
SEDERS
CHABAD HOUSE
Invites you to join us for the Passover Seders.

SAT. NT. April 2 7:30 p.m.
SUN. NT. April 3 7:30 p.m.

$4.00 for one Seder
$7.50 for both Seders

30 N. Hadley Rd.
near 5-college bus-stop at Southwest UMass.
253-9040
for reservations by March 31.

Spirit Liquor Store Haus
Open Daily till 11 p.m.
Amherst's Largest Full Service Liquor Store
THIS WEEK'S SPECIALS

Tuborg Gold Beer 12 oz. cans $5.69 a case
Falstaff $5.25 a case
Old Milwaukee Beer 12 oz. cans $5.59 case
COTT Ginger Ale Club Soda Tonic 2 Qts. for 79¢ $4.39 Case of Qts.
PEPSI 79¢ 2 qt. bottles $4.39 case of qt.

OVER STOCK WINES
Mateuse fifth $3.29
Lake Niagara fifth $2.19
Nectar Rose fifth $2.39
Paul Masson Sangria fifth $1.29
Moselblumchen $1.99 fifth
Opici Lambrusco $1.49 fifth
Inglenook gal. $5.99
Korbel's Pinot Noir Cabenet Sauvignon fifth $2.89
Growers gal. $3.99
Riunite Lambrusco fifth $2.29

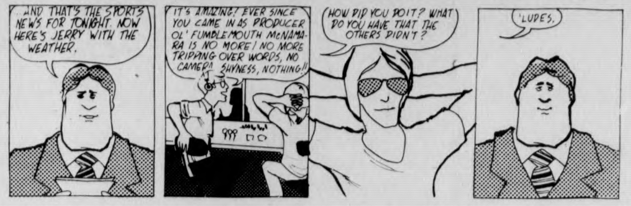
Wine Browsers Welcome
Large assortment of kegs.
We have over 90 brands of imported beer
(Mix your own variety six pack)
We Buy Silver Coins
338 College St. Rt. 9 Amherst 253-5384
Not responsible for typographical errors.

APPEARING
FRI & SAT
JAMES COTTON
AT
The rusty nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-4937
Tickets available at Recordtown, Hadley Faces of Earth, Amherst

PAUL J LANDRY

LANDRY'S MARKET
GOOD THRU APRIL APRIL 5
BUDWEISER BEER $5.79
12 OZ CANS $1.59 6 PAK CASE
IMPORTATED VINYA ROSE $1.89 fifth
N.Y. STATE TAYLOR WINES $3.79 half gal.
CHECK OUT OUR MEAT AND OTHER GROCERY SPECIALS

TRANK McNamara by Jeff Millers & Bill Wines



...AND THAT'S THE SPORTS NEWS FOR TONIGHT. NOW HERE'S JERRY WITH THE WEATHER.
IT'S AMAZING! EVER SINCE YOU CAME IN AS PRODUCER OL' FUMBLEMOUTH McNAMARA IS NO MORE! NO MORE TRIPPING OVER WORDS, NO CAMERA SHYNESS, NOTHING!!
HOW DID YOU DO IT? WHAT DO YOU HAVE THAT THE OTHERS DIDN'T?
'LUDES.

Puck-team to use pond

By CUSTER AXIOTUS
Pond Reporter

Due to all the cutbacks to the athletic program at UMass, it was announced yesterday that the hockey team will have to play its home games for the 1977-78 season on the campus pond. The announcement was greeted with mixed feelings from athletic officials and students at the University.

"I don't see how anyone can complain about the new arrangement," said Athletic Director Frank McInerney. "All I've heard for the last five years was that this campus needs a hockey rink. Now we've got one and it's centrally located, so everyone should be happy."

Jack Canniff, varsity hockey coach at UMass, was not very thrilled with the news, because he feels it will hurt his recruiting.

"Recruiting was so easy in the past," Canniff said. "Before I was able to lure high school hockey players to UMass by telling them they would be playing on a rink named after Bobby Orr. Rink Rats from all over Greater Boston would flock to Amherst to play hockey at Orr Rink."

Canniff went on to say how that didn't change when Orr became a free agent and left for Chicago. He said he tried to get Amherst College officials to change the name of the facility to Esposito Rink before he remembered that Espo had been traded to the Rangers.

"This past season we almost got them to rename Orr Rink, Doak Rink, but it fell through at the last minute," Canniff added.

Some students at the University liked the idea, while others expressed their dismay over it.

"I think it's a great idea because when the refs start making bad calls, we can throw snowballs at them," said one student.

"I don't like the idea one bit," another student said. "I've been attending UMass hockey games during every one of my eight years here. Somehow it just won't seem the same seeing the team play anywhere else but Orr Rink."

Canniff said that he is going to demand a pay raise for next year.

"I'll need the extra money to stock up on long johns," he said. "It can get mighty cold standing around at the edge of a pond in the winter."

Local package stores were thrilled with the news.

Sports and feces

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

VARSITY BACKGAMMON — UMass 21,345, Mt. Holyoke (JV) 25

JUNIOR VARSITY DUCKPINS — UMass 213, Boise State 210 (Hi single — Lotta Spare)

VARSITY CURLING — UMass 0, Ouchita Baptist 0 (Lost broom, ice melted)

TODAY

VARSITY PRECISION TYPING — vs. Montclair Normal School Home 11 a.m.

WOMEN'S HAIR CURLING — vs. Smith Away 7 p.m.

MEN'S VARSITY KITE FLYING — vs. Hampshire College (Who else?) Home High Noon

VARSITY WEAVING — vs. Walla Walla U. Away 4 a.m. (Our time)

TOMORROW

MEN'S VARSITY YODELING — vs. Northampton School of Voice Home 6 p.m.

WOMEN'S HAIR PULLING — vs. Guilford State Home 7 a.m.

Namath to L.A. for toupee today

By RED BUCKS
Complicated Games Writer

NEW YORK [API] — New York Jet quarterback Joe Namath yesterday was traded to the Los Angeles Rams in a complicated 21-way deal that involved six players, two bodies, three penguins, a duck, and a toupee.

The Jets got backup quarterback Ring Lardner from the Seattle Seahawks and future considerations. Seattle then received the rights to the deal with the Miami Dolphins right offensive line, if the wives of the players involved don't object.

The Dolphins, in a move to dump the "No-Name Defense", acquired the name of the neighboring NASL team, the Tampa Bay Rowdies, The former Rowdies got Garo Yepremian, beat him up, and gave him back.

The Rowdies then acquired Pele from the New York Cosmos. The Cosmos then received permission to sign any former New England place kicker who could help clean up after the games.

For compensation, the Patriots received $100 and Freddie Patek from the baseball Kansas City Royals to fill in the smallest receiver corps in pro football. The Royals, in turn, got former goalie Gump Worsley to play shortstop and show the Kansas City fans what hockey really is like, contrary to how the Scouts played.

The North Stars then received the rights to sign any American hockey player, older than 12, from around the Boston area. In return, the Bruins would be assured that BU might finally win the NCAA championship and the rights to talk to the Howe, Why, and When families.

In return, the Chicago Black Hawks got Bobby Orr's knees back and Bobby Hull's toupee. The Minnesota Fighting Saints then got suspended sentences and consideration when anyone talks to them.

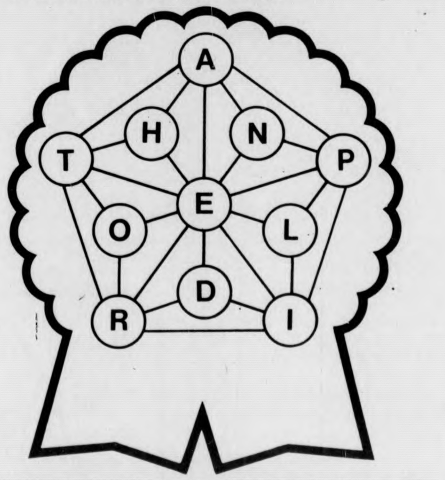
To pay back the legal pull they used to support the Saints, the Minnesota Twins received permission for warm weather in the spring, when they are in the pennant race, and cold weather in the fall when they are out of it.

For payment, the Cleveland Toros will have their concessions sold by Playboy Bunnies and Positive ID is not required. In return, the New York Nets will sign anyone who can play basketball.

TURN TO PAGE 28

The challenge.

Your challenge is to discover words of four letters in this pentagon. Discover them by following the straight lines to and from the letters, forming words as you go. You may not use two of the same letters in any one word. If you can make 30 words or more, you've met the challenge.



When there's a challenge, quality makes the difference.

We hope you have some fun with the challenge. There's another challenge we'd like to offer you, too.

The Pabst challenge:

We welcome the chance to prove the quality of our beer. We challenge you to taste and compare Pabst Blue Ribbon to any other premium beer. You'll like Pabst better. Blue Ribbon quality means the best tasting beer you can get. Since 1844 it always has.

Pabst Blue Ribbon

PABST. Since 1844. The quality has always come through.
©1977 PABST BREWING COMPANY Milwaukee Wis. Peoria Heights Ill. Newark N.J. Los Angeles Calif. Pabst Georgia you'd be a fool

not to take advantage of our
$2.00 off promotion on any pair of Pro.Keds sneakers
at the
University Store
campus center

Woody 'sticks it' to Humble Howard at Good Guy night

By DON RICKLES and MEL FUNCTION
Resident Sickies

POCATELLA, Idaho [API] — The first and last Good Guy awards banquet were held last night at Dino's Bar and Grill before a large, enthusiastic, and totally intoxicated crowd of 11 persons.

Howard Cosell, the winner of the Good Guy announcer award, was master of ceremonies for the evening's events. He handed out the awards for nine different categories.

The first award was given to the loveable George Atkinson in the professional football category. Cosell noted that George was a fine example of playing the game hard but keeping it clean. Atkinson grunted a thank you to the crowd.

The college football award went unanimously to that great coach, Woody Hayes. Hayes is known for his kindness to the press and his great love for reporters. When asked for a comment by Cosell, Hayes told Howard to stick it.

Ilie Nastase received the award in the men's tennis division. He was presented the award by a line judge who had been mauled by Nastase earlier in the season. On the women's tennis side, Dr. Renee Richards came out on top for literally being a real good guy.

There was no award given in the hockey category due to a lack of interest. Besides that, the people who voted didn't know enough of the players to pick anyone. The only player they could think of was Morris Mott, and he didn't merit the award.

The crowd had now dwindled to only eight, as two persons succumbed to the evil alcohol while another became lost in the septic tank, but the best was yet to come.

The award for baseball was the closest of the night. The final result was a tie between Len Randle of the Texas Rangers and the team of Graig Nettles and Mickey Rivers from the Yankees.

Frank Lucchesi was supposed to present the award to Randle, but for some reason he just couldn't seem to bring himself to speak. It was as if his jaw had been wired shut.

Nettles and Rivers won for their great battle plan they used in their sneak attack on Bill Lee. They were presented the award by Lee with his right hand.

The crowd was now becoming excited as there were only two awards left before the big one was to be handed out. There now were only seven persons, as one man became lost in the ladies room.

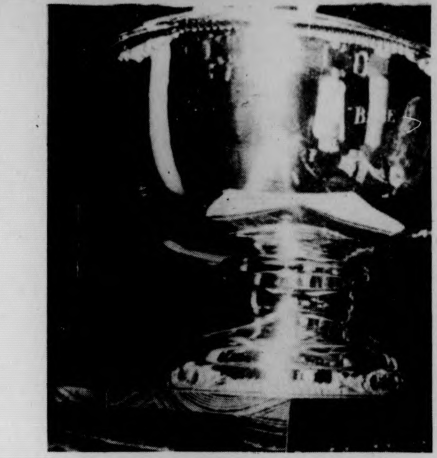
The Good Guy dorm award went to the infamous third floor of the Johnson House. The group consisting of Dr. K. Bean, Pubes, Lumpy, Grog, Que, and the infamous Earl of Butz were ecstatic at receiving the award, and immediately smashed into a million pieces on the ground.

The final categorized award went to Marvin Barnes of the Detroit Pistons. Barnes was cited by Cosell for the fine example he was setting for youngsters all over the United States, with his civic and community activities. Barnes was unable to attend, and the award was accepted by his probation officer.

The crowd became hushed as the big momment arrived. It was time to announce the Goodest Guy of the Year. To no one's surprise, the Award went to Idi Amin.

Amin was chosen because of his generous offer to be the king of Scotland, and because he likes Jimmy Carter and wants to be friends with him. I can see the day when Jimmy and Idi go out for a few beers on a Friday night, then everything in the world will be fine.

The evening concluded with Cosell being collared by Atkinson and being forced to listen to himself repeating the chant: "Jimmy Young Jimmy Young," over and over and over......



This is one of the trophies that was won at last night's Good Guy Awards ceremony. It belonged to Woody Hayes, but it could not be taken home. the reason: An intoxicated Michigan State fan who hates Woody pissed in it. Hayes had no comment. (Staff photo by I.P. Freely)

Red Sox bring back Rico to field all sod problems

By JUNIOR VARSITY HANDLE
API Sportswriter

BOSTON — Recently waived Rico Petrocelli of the Boston Red Sox was today named director of maintenance operations at Fenway Park.

"It gives me great pleasure to give Rico this job," said Red Sox general manager Dick O'Connell. "At least he won't have to go on welfare."

The 33-year-old ex-third baseman was equally excited about his new position.

"Boy, oh, boy, I can't wait to get going," Petrocelli said. "This means I'll still get to hang around the clubhouse and the dugout, sweeping up the garbage the guys leave behind."

The ex-All Star also said that his wife was a little disappointed that he took the position with the Boston club instead of signing a $150,000 no-cut contract with the Seattle Mariners.

"I really wanted to go back to the West Coast and especially Seattle, which is my home town," Elsie Petrocelli saod. "But Rico said he realized that he was all washed up."

But Petrocelli said that it wasn't so.

"No, that's only an excuse I gave Elsie," he said. "Actually, do you think I want to play for Darrell Johnson again? Be serious. And do you think I'd like to be playing third with pitchers like Dick Pole and Diego Segui on the mound? For crying out loud, I'd be on the field while the other teams battered them around. Besides, Seattle hasn't got the country-club image that Boston does. I need my brews after the game."

Johnson was then asked what effect Petrocelli's decision not to join his young club would have on it.

"Listen, the reason I pitch hit for Willoughby was because I thought Cooper could hit it downtown, besides, Burton had a good arm and a lot of promise," he said.

Petrocelli was optimistic about his new duties with the Sox.

"Yeah, I think I can do the job," he mused. "I don't have much range and I'm not the fastest guy in the world, but I can field ever everything hit right at me. And that goes for dirty towels, chewing tobacco, and jockstraps too."

"Hey, I gave the Sox the best years of my life. I'm happy they dicided to give me this upon my, ahem, retirement."

O'Connell reported that Petrocelli would be paid somewhere in six figures.

"Good help doesn't come cheap these days, and besides, if we can give Luis Tiant all that money we can give it to Rico too," the general manager said.

O'Connell added that Petrocelli would be responsible for cleaning out players' lockers, sweeping the floor, and trying to "maintain decorum in the clubhouse."

Petrocelli said that he thought that his duties wouldn't be too difficult, especially in taming the troops in the locker room.

"Zim won't take any shit from the players, and besides, Lenny Randle isn't on the team."

Need A Job?

The Student Activities Office needs a keypunch operator to work 20 hours per week to help out in our office. Typing speed of 60 W.P.M. or better required — previous experience on a key punch machine helpful but not necessary.

If you are interested please come to the Student Activities Office, Room 416 Student Union between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, except Wednesday when we are open 12:30 p.m.-5:00 p.m.

The Student Activities Office is an Affirmative Action—Equal Opportunity Employer.

Sports Notices Nothing

INTRAMURALS — All softball games will be postponed because of a take over of the athletic fields by Stockbridge cattle. The cattle are protesting the use of chemical fertilizer instead of cow dung. Check sports notices tomorrow for further developments.

KICKERS — As ass kicking contest will be held at 4:00 p.m. in the NOPE gym. A head butting competition will be held for any parapeligics who want to join in the fun.

HUNTING — Easter egg hunts will be held on the UMass campus throughout the next two weeks. Anyone interested in participating should contact Alan Eggelson or Ester Buni.

HANG GLIDING — A meeting will be held for anyone interested in ang gliding on the 22 floor of John Adams at 3:30 today. All participants must bring their own noose.

SPORTS SEMINAR — A seminar on "The Future of UMass Sports" will not be held due to financial reasons.

LECTURE — The dangers of illegal hitting in football will be the topic of speaker George Atkinson at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

U.Mass
Student Federal
Credit Union

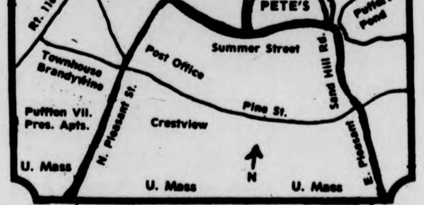
POSITION AVAILABLE. MANAGER

15 credit internship
An interview is required.

Contact Linda Cote,
or Anne Smith 545-2800.

PETE'S PACKAGE STORE

144 SUMMER ST., N. AMHERST
Why fight traffic? - Easy Parking
TELEPHONE — 256-6828



First Right After Post Office

Knick 12 oz. ret. $4.50 case plus dep.

Ballantine Ale 16 oz. ret. $5.50 case plus dep.

PROMPT — FREE DELIVERY
Not Responsible for Typographical Errors.

Open 84 hrs./wk. to serve you!

Monday thru Saturday 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

'Bruins suck' chortles Cherry

By GUY LADOUCHE
API Staff Writer

BOSTON (API) — Boston Bruins coach Don Cherry wonders why his team even bothered to try and catch the Buffalo Sabres all year long.

"We're a team of half-wits with no talent and little desire. They play like a bunch of Pee Wees," the Bruins coach said.

Cherry is equally optimistic about his team's playoff chances. "That's why I can't see why we tried to beat out Buffalo all season long. No matter who we play in the first series, we're going to be eliminated. It doesn't matter if it's a three or seven game series," Cherry, a former poster baby for planned parenthood, said.

"Buffalo is great. Philadelphia and Montreal are great. The Islanders would kill us. We suck," Cherry said with great intensity.

Cherry said one of the better transactions his team made was the trading of Bobby Orr. "He was a puck-hog. He shot too much and he never took a shower," Cherry said. "He'll never amount to much, he doesn't have even a high school diploma."

While Cherry is ecstactic that Orr is gone, he wishes that some of the other players would leave, too.

"Terry O'Reilly can't skate to save his life. He's lucky he doesn't break his stick when he trips over it," Cherry said, ducking as a puck suddenly flew by his head.

"Don Marcotte's a fairy. He doesn't hit and when he goes in the corners, it's not for the puck. No one drops the soap while he's in the shower.

"The only thing Gerry Cheevers and Gilles Gilsbert can catch is Hoof and Mouth disease and Venereal disease, respectively.

"On defense, we're hopeless. Brad Park's the best and he couldn't stop my blind grandmother," Cherry said with a gleam in his eye.

While Cherry was highly critical of the team, he was especially hard on center Jean Ratelle. Ratelle came to the Bruins in a trade for four hockey pucks and a list of Chinese restaurants in Moscow and Kiev.

"How do you expect a team to win when no one can understand him? Marcotte yells 'Shoot! shoot!' on the ice and Ratelle stops and says, 'Qu-est-ce que c'est?'! How can you win? He's also 39 years old. He's over the hill. The stupid guy's got the moves of a filing cabinet. He should go back north and chop down trees," Cherry said, raising his voice.

There have been unconfirmed reports of conflict between Cherry and Ratelle. One rumor has Ratelle paying a thousand dollar fine for putting a bear trap in Cherry's locker. Sources close to the Bruins also said that Ratelle threatened the coach with an ax when Cherry called him a Canuck and stuck his tongue out at him.

When reached for comment on the reports, Ratelle said "Cherry est un couchon. Il est un grande pit-du-arm," the excitable Frenchman said.

Bruins' Terry O'Reilly falls unconscious to the ice after teammate Gary Doak (not shown) fired the puck off O'Reilly's skull and into the Bruin's net. Gilles Gilbert shows his usual fine style of goaltending by imitating a sieve. (Staff photo by Clarence Campbell)

Kuhn goes to bat for Mighty Casey

NEW YORK (API) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn yesterday announced that in the interest of our national pasttime, Mudville storybook slugger Mighty Casey did not strike out.

Speaking to a group of attorneys for Charlie Finley, Kuhn immediately got the [illegible] Madison Square Garden crowd in a happy mood by promising to spring for a round of drinks after his speech.

He then got down to the business at hand.

"Upon reviewing films of that fateful game, it has become apparent that at least two of the three called-strikes were questionable," said Kuhn.

The commissioner then turned down the house-lights and ran the films as evidence against the games's home-plate umpire.

"The count on Casey has been officially changed to 2-1, and the remainder of the game will be played on the first mutually open date in September," Kuhn announced. "Besides, these obviously bad calls, baseball loses some of its potential prospects to football when little children are fed this propogandistic drivel."

Kuhn then accused National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle of contracting Ernest L. Thayer to write the poem.

"This whole business stinks to hell of Rozelle," rhymed the commissioner. "I'm getting pretty pissed off at the lengths to which those Communist football people are going to undermine our national pasttime."

Kuhn further stated that Casey's family had been affected by the "libelous remarks", and he pointed out that the slugger's offspring have been unable to lead normal lives because "everywhere they go people call them the kids of a schmuck."

Rozelle adamantly denied Kuhn's accusations in a telephone interview from a pay toilet in the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' locker room.

"I've never heard anything so outrageous in my life," said Rozelle, his face flushed. "Face it, Kuhn is just trying to cover-up for another baseball hero that turned out to be another nobody."

Kuhn was advised of Rozelle's comments when reporters finally tracked down the baseball czar laying under a table in a local McAnn's Bar. He was on his feet in a flash.

"I'll fight anybody in the joint," bellowed Kuhn, rolling up his sleeves.

Reports from Mudville indicate that the sun has finally come out from behind a hundred-year long cloud cover which had plagued the hamlet and that George and Matilda Joy have moved back in to town.

SHIRTS

$5.00

Famous Name
Factory Returns
and Irregulars
Originally $14-$20.
NOW $5.00
Excellent Condition

Faces of Earth

Next to the Amherst Post Office
Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

EXPERT SERVICE, USED BIKES, BATAVUS & CIMATTI MOPEDS

SPRING AND SUMMER TRANSPORTATION SPECIAL

1976
KAWASAKI KZ 400S
ONLY $895 DELIVERED

55 MPG.
AND ROOM FOR TWO

VALLEY MOTOR SPORTS
348 King St. Northampton
584-7303

MTWF: 9-6 TH: 9-9 SAT: 10-4

Sports Mailbox

A misfit speaks out

To the Editor:

As a concerned sports buff and ardent reader of the Collegian sports pages, I feel it appropriate to voice my complaints.

I have long been suppressing my most inner feelings pertaining to the Collegian sports department, but I refuse to hold them in any longer. To be blunt — the Collegian sports staff stinks! To be blunt*est* — well, use your imagination.

Having evaluated the staff as a whole, I would now like to address individual "reporters" who have contributed to the downfall of the sports pages.

First, take Bill O'Edelburg ... Please. A very trite joke, you say? A very trite person, I say. Monsier O'Edelburg is the classic example of a cub reporter intent on making it to the big-time via the humor route. He has as much chance of advancing in this manner as Tomy Hanson does with his good looks, Rico Petrocelli with his speed, or Len Randle with his composure. O'Edelburg has no humor! Yet his constant attempts to be funny (He would look for humor at his mother's funeral — trite) — continually plague the sports pages. His picture is ugly, too ...

Next, we have Miguel Cheeseburger. Unfortunately, we have him. Segnior Cheeseburger came to the Collegian with a suitcase full of potential. Sadly, he lost his keys to the suitcase and that potential never evolved. As the old saying goes, "Don't count your chickens before they become overconfident." Another hindrance to your pages ....

And how about J.V. Grip, the so-called topcat of the sports pages. She can write with oodles and oodles of adjectives and still never get a handle on the story. As a girl trying to make it with a bunch of guys, she is failing miserably.

I could go on and on. But let me conclude by saying your sports pages are bad. "How bad?" you ask. They're so bad that they'd make Ernie Roberts puke up his breakfast.

Sincerely,
Ron Arena

If you think TENNIS . . . Think WHITE CAT

MT. FARMS, MALL, HADLEY

Tennis Pro Shop Special

Garcia Craig 360
TENNIS RACKET Reg. $42.00 NOW $28.95 with this ad

TENNIS RACKET RESTRINGING
½ Price with this ad

P-town provides impetus

Cagers take on new look

By DR. R.
Christine Jorgensen Staff

In an unprecedented move, the UMass basketball team underwent the first team sex change in the world. The men travelled to far away Provincetown for the operation, which was performed over spring vacation.

Team captain Donna Hue explained how this novel experiment came about. "It started as a joke at one of our practice sessions. We started kicking the idea around in the locker room. Then a couple of us went to a women's weekend game at the Cage and we thought it was great."

Teammate Alice Eldridge interjected, "Yeah man, it was super. They seemed to be having a good time. They have a 30 second clock which is decent since our team does not have a past history of being the epitome of a four-corner stall."

"Not only that," snuck in Jane Town, "but the fans can drink during the game. Nothing like a couple of Buds to pass the halftime span quicker. Too bad they don't serve beer with Bluewall prices; the extra revenue could support a new facility."

I'm looking forward to slam-dunking one. The fans will go wild; women's basketball and dunks too" insisted Lynne Kohlhaas. "We'll be a super team."

"Height, muscle, speed and talent," pointed out Charlene Steveskey. "Who's gonna stop us? Who's gonna try?"

Indeed. Any team with the height advantage the Minutemenwomen will have over the other women's teams they will play could definitely be a plus in UMass' favor. But what did Lee Man, coach of the now defunct men's team feel — how did he react to the sex-switch?

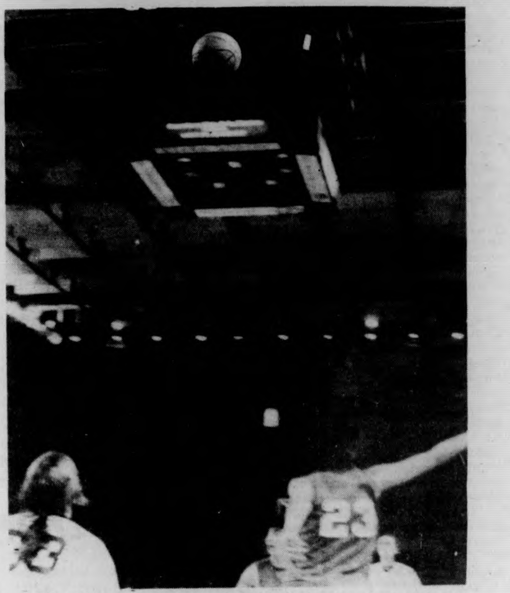
"We talked with him about doing it near the end of the season. He didn't think it was that hot an idea," said Georgette Dennerlein. "Once he realizes our true potential, maybe even a national rating and championship, he'll see the gold mine we've struck, and jump on the bandwagon. We had to do it (sex operation) now before UConn, Rutgers, or some other school thought of it."

Derrica Claiborne summed up the interview's last questions. "We're an equal opportunity team. We'll let those women who were on the women's team last season try out for ours before we do away with that extinct program. We're an equal opportunity organization."

If Lee Man refuses to coach the team, the players will request that Rennee Richards apply.

Also old Minuteman uniforms go on sale in Boyden Gym tomorrow night at 10 a.m. to the highest bidders.

Hand suddenly spouts from Chrissie Evert left cheek during her participation in the week-long Hiroshima Tennis Classic. Unusual radiation levels also caused the formation of lips on Billie Jean King's forehead. (Photo by Harry Truman)



Minuteperson Donna Hue (left) looks skyward after losing ball ... permanently. (Staff photo by Myra Breckenridge)

Collegian Sports

Laver over netmen; UMass support fails

By MRS. BUD COLLINS
Tennis, anyone Staff

An ailing Rod Laver yesterday defeated the UMass men's tennis team 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, and 17-12 in the fourth quarter at the Boyden Upper courts in the Minutemen's first exhibition of the 1977 season.

Laver, sporting a cast on his right leg from a recent Five College Bus accident, took three hours, seven minutes, and 15 seconds to put away the entire UMass team.

The Minutemen, however; were also hampered by unusual circumstances. The six team members arrived at Boyden to find all but one of their athletic supporters missing. Unable to bum a few jock straps, the Minutemen decided to share the one that they had — at the same time. This forced UMass coach Bill Brown to change his game strategy.

"Originally, we hoped to wear Laver down by playing him one at a time," Brown said. "But because of the supporter problem I used the 'two heads are better than one' theory figuring the more heads the better. This is why I decided to stick all six players in the blasted thing."

This tactic proved to be successful throughout the match, but in the end Laver's expertise proved too much for the United Minutemen.

Laver was not disturbed by the Minutemen's tactics. In fact, he admired the "Yanks' ingenuity."

"The lads showed inspiration and team unity that any hacker would be proud of," he said. "The bloody rogues looked rather cute, all strapped together like that."

The match was marred by some unsportsmanlike conduct when Alan Green, playing the left leg loop of the UMass supporter, leapt from his position, in a moment of frustration, jumped over the net, and bit Laver's left ankle. Umpire Ilie Nastase complimented Green for his action.

Asked after the match if this was a new tactic to intimidate opposing players, Green replied: "Naw, I was just hungry."

Jimmy "Crash" Barnhart, who played opposite Green in the supporter's right leg loop, disapproved of his teammate's action.

"He really did the wrong thing," Barnhart said. "He should have busted Laver's left arm instead."

Laver was pleased with his game and said the cast did not affect his play. What irked him was some confusing American terminology.

"What's a UMie?" he asked.

Laver gave a detailed explanation of his game strategy over a few Foster Lagers after the match. "I hit the ball hard over the net," he said.

John Newcombe was at the Laver-UMass exhibition looking for employment. Cannon, the camera company that used Newcombe in advertisments, became disillusioned with Newcomb shortly after his lip went bald.

Newcombe refused to comment on his break with Cannon. He said he just came to see his countryman play.

"Rod played superb with that cast on," Newcomb said. "I just hope the broken leg gives him a lasting disability. Rod would make a bloody bundle on 'Challenge on the Handicapped."

"I'd love to make a bloody bundle," replied Laver, "but not by exploiting the poor crippled. I'd much rather hit the bloody oil companies for a few quid."

Unfortunately, Laver's injury is more serious than a typical broken leg. After the bus accident, Laver entered the UMass Health Center where the doctors on duty took extreme care in gluing his left leg back together. Shortly thereafter the doctors realized that it was Laver's left leg which needed attencion.

"I'm quite disillusioned with the Yanks," Laver said. "First they put a cast on me wrong leg. Then they put six rogues in a jock strap and try and beat me at tennis. What happened to the technology that made this country famous."

B.C. Roberts

God, I love B.C.

Good morning!...My favorite, the BC training table breakfast today...Grapefruit, a bowl of Total topped with fresh Chestnut Hill strawberries, steak and eggs, all washed down with Wild Eagle bourbon.....Had the time of my life at the bi-nightly Screaming Eagle Alumni Club banquet last night at the Roberts Center...Surprise guest speaker was Billy Bumper, the man that BC grid coach Joe Yukica got his driver's license from......Bumper, a real class guy, whipped the crowd into a frenzy with his lightning quips, including "...even then Joe was good in the clutch!"..... God, I love BC...

More good news from the Heights...Alphonse "Side of a" Barn, a 7-7, 635 lb. offensive guard from East Dakota, Minnesota, will attend BC in the fall...The big lineman will patch up some holes on the left side of the line...Reservations are now being taken for a winter vacation with the Eagles to whatever bowl game BC will be involved in.....Make checks payable to B.C. Roberts, Sports Information Director and Head BC Cheerleader, care of Boston Glove Sports Dept.....

Will Win's Moron Quiz

I played ping-pong at BC,
And won the intramural tourney,
The year was 1923,
Can you guess my name?

THOUGHTS WHILE TAKING A CRAP.....Hasn't BC, with its fine record in bowl appearances (remember the '43 Sugar Bowl) proven that it belongs on the same field with anyone in the nation?....Last week's intramural girls' gymnastics meet at BC displayed some of the finest young collegiate talent this side of Everett.....Rumor has it that the University of Massachusetts has a girls' gym team too, but I have been unable to confirm that one.....ANSWER TO QUIZ: Who gives a flying fuck?....NFL scouts tell me that ex-BC star quarterback Gary Marangi is potentially the greatest QB in the history of football, once he learns how to throw the ball....Well, must head off to tonight's banquet out at Chestnut Hill...I hear there's talk of renaming the Roberts Center.....

Below The Silt

weakling fine arts magazine

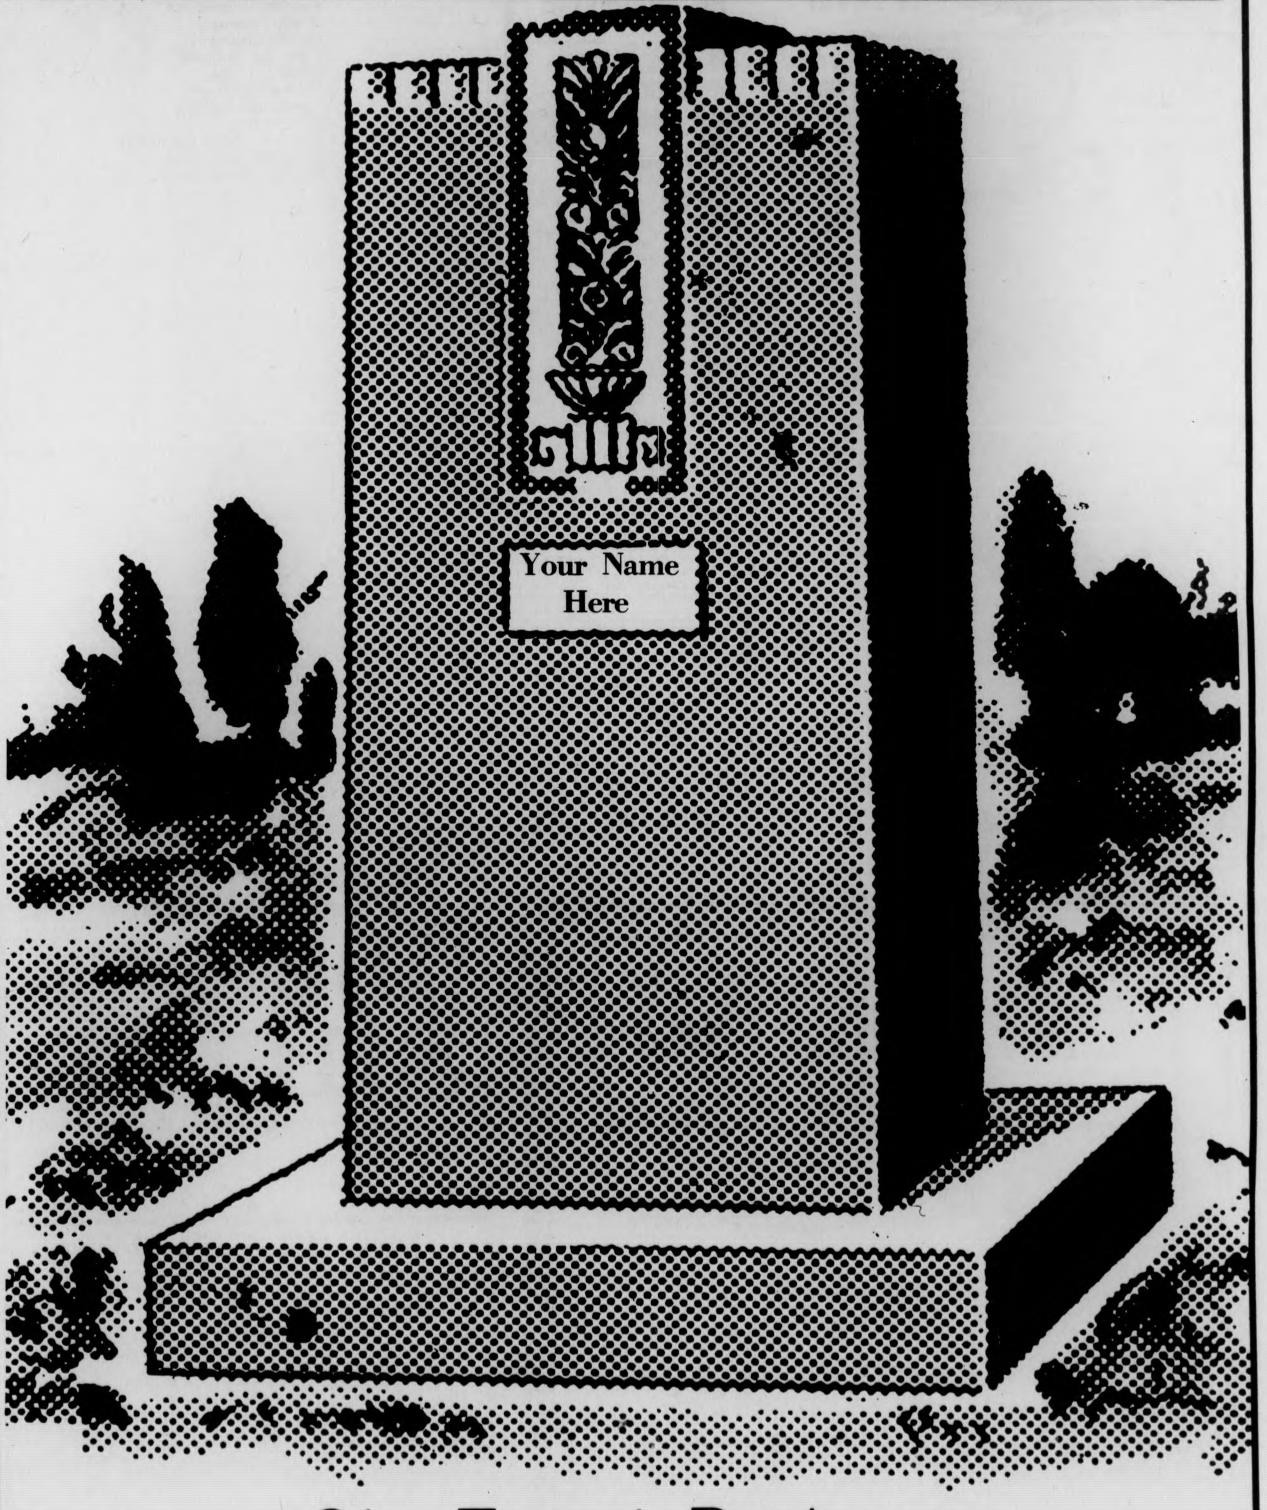
Volume: 19 grams Issue: The Merits of Parody April 1, 1977



Six Feet Below

MIKE'S WESTVIEW

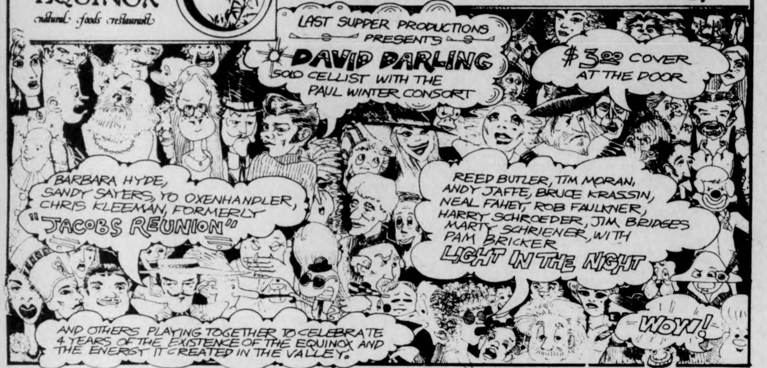
Appearing Saturday nite April 2

Raintree

no cover no admission

the EQUINOX natural foods restaurant

INVITES YOU TO AN EVENING OF CELEBRATION AT THE RUSTY NAIL ON MONDAY APRIL 4th AT 8 p.m.



LAST SUPPER PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
DAVID DARLING SOLO CELLIST WITH THE PAUL WINTER CONSORT
$3.00 COVER AT THE DOOR
BARBARA HYDE, SANDY SAYERS, YO OXENHANDLER, CHRIS KLEEMAN, FORMERLY "JACOBS REUNION"
REED BUTLER, TIM MORAN, ANDY JAFFE, BRUCE KRASSIN, NEAL FAHEY, ROB FAULKNER, HARRY SCHROEDER, JIM BRIDGES MARTY SCHRIENER, WITH PAM BRICKER LIGHT IN THE NIGHT
AND OTHERS PLAYING TOGETHER TO CELEBRATE 4 YEARS OF THE EXISTENCE OF THE EQUINOX AND THE ENERGY IT CREATED IN THE VALLEY.
WOW!

• CAMP TRAILS KELTY • JAN SPORT • ALPINE DESIGNS SIGG •

JASQUE • WHITE STAG • MIRRO

Annual Spring
SALE
And Early Buy Promotion

April 1st thru April 16, 1977
Weekdays 9 to 5:30
Thursday and Friday Nights to 9 p.m.
Saturday 9 to 5

HIKING and BACKPACKING EQUIPMENT

Our annual SPRING SALE and EARLY BUY TENT PROMOTION will be held April 1st thru the 16th. Selected items throughout the store will be at special low sale prices and a Early Buy on all our tents will be offered. This might be the best time to come in and browse thru the largest selection of quality camping and backpacking equipment. Free 96 page catalog with a copy of this ad.

Don Gleason's CAMPERS SUPPLY, INC.
Pearl Street, Northampton, Mass.
Exit 18 I-91
Master Charge Accepted

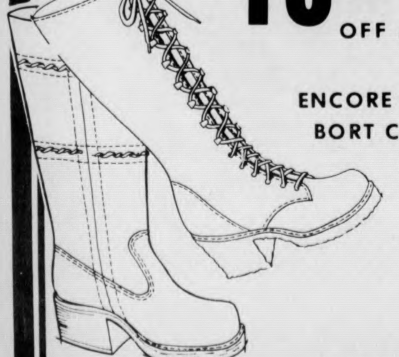
WOOLRICH • PETER STORM

• PALCO • COLEMAN • NORTH FACE • EUREKA • OPTIMUS •

$10 FREE

Spend this like cash towards the purchase of any quality
$10
Good on any pair leather boots.
Good Mar. 31-Apr. 5

$10 FREE



$10.00 OFF ALL LEATHER BOOTS

ENCORE ZODIAC
BORT CARLTON etc.

the SHOE-BIN

Open Friday Nites

AMHERST

Poetry

Untitled

On the avenue
you say it leaks out of you runaway.
On the causeway
I see you dripping
cement mucous.
On the boulevard
I grab you fighting
fisty farting,
drag you neath the bridge and catch the echoes of your sacred Music.

Joan Seemen

Not Titled

Now that the flower has come of age,
Since the bloom is almost passing,
I take your petals in my teeth,
snorting golden pollen deep,
Gladiolus barely past its prime with leaves that bend to brush my arm
I feather cut the juicy stem and smear the ooze upon my limb.
Both hands grasping near the root
I pull you from the dirt of earth and chew the stalk that held the power nothing can reproduce that flower.

Jan Céman

Below The Silt

weakling fine arts magazine
Volume: 19 grams April 1, 1977
Issue: The Merits of Parody

THE SILT STAFF:

R. I. P.

Self-Indulgence

Just Who The Hell Reads This, Anyway?

Chancellor Bromery about to attempt strangulation of Below the Silt reporter

By P. Hatrick McFate

Slightly off-white pages, tinged a sickly grey with printed words, stain the reader's fingertips. When well-written, the words run electrically up the reader's arms to his brain, as if he were standing in a bath-tub with a finger in the light socket. Every Thursday, like the work of a clock, Below the Salt appears engulfed in the pages of the Collegian, pages colored slightly off-white and tinged a sickly grey with printed words.

Around. the dank, depressing offices of the Mass. Daily Collegian, most people didn't even know what Below the Salt was. "I know what Below the Salt is," offered Collegian Business Manager Tony Armelin. "It's twelve pages!"

"It's pie for sure!" said Gerald Forge, star of the Aluminum Foil comic strip. "Ooog," said comic strip star Harry Fig. "Urrp," he added, after giving the matter some thought.

"I sorta miss the record reviews," said one person we thought was a student, but turned out to be a visitor from New York. "Hey, are you from the Collegian?" asked another, answering a question with a question. "Hey, is my name gonna be in the Collegian, huh, is it?"

"Isn't Below the Salt a form of torture?" asked another, looking up from his book Raid on Entebbe: The Whole Story, Right Down to the Last Bullet Hole. "Sort of like the Chinese water torture."

"Not right now," Bromery said.
"Talk to me after the budget is done."

"Read what? What are you talking about?," said Chancellor Randolph Bromery when asked about his reaction to Below the Salt. "Never heard of it," he elaborated.

"I find it both amusing and bemusing," mused UMass President Robert Wood. "I read it whenever I'm in Springfield...er, Amherst. That's where the college is, isn't it?"

"I steal a copy every chance I get," confessed Ed School dean Dwight Allen.

Pinky Batiste and Jon Hite, co-presidents-elect of the SGA said, "Hey, we know that you guys stole the idea for yesterday's Valley Avacado issue from the Valley Advocate. We just can't prove it."

Thinking (or, rather, hoping) that if we asked students, they could give us their reaction to the Collegian's weekly fine arts magazine Below the Salt, we took our quixotic query to a group of students in the Hatch, which is, after all, where we hang out, too.

What can the inquiring reporter conclude from the various and sundry answers? Nothing. Like a tree falling in the forrest with no one near to hear it, Below the Salt still exists. And gets read. We get compliments every day like "I loved the layout. Looked real good. Er, no, um, I didn't get a chance to read it." Read us. You might find that day's secret word in our pages one of these days. But I doubt it.

YOU SHOULD DROP BY

UNIVERSITY PIZZA

If you can answer yes to more than three of these questions
1. Can you watch T.V.
2. Can you play pinball
3. Pay less and get more than anywhere in town
4. Bring 100 friends and have room for more
5. Drive or walk less distance from campus than any other place in town
6. Enjoy food more in a relaxing atmosphere
7. Enjoy more variety
8. Meet more people

549-5592

P.S. Enjoy an ice cream cone or sundae

Fashionable Imported Clothing for Women

SAVE 30% to 70%
Dresses
Pants
Skirts
Blouses

SPECIAL PURCHASE
Slightly Irregular
Women's Clothing at
Ridiculously Low Prices

Faces of Earth

Next to Amherst Post Office. Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

Aggravating Alliteration Arousing Awareness of Area 'Appenings

Fri 1

Biological Sciences Symposium: Alexei Bogdanov, Professor, and division head of Nucleoprotein Chemistry and Biochemistry, Moscow State University: "RNA- Protein and RNA-RNA Interactions in Ribosomes," 5 p.m., McConnell Hall B05, Smith College. Bring your own beer.

Musical: Godspell, presented by the UMass Music Theatre Guild. Bowker Aud., 8 p.m. Tix $2 for students, call 545-0783 for reservations. Praise the Lord and Sing in Key.

Films: Catch 22 7, 9:15, Main Lecture Hall, Patterson, Hampshire. $1
Swept Away, 7, 9:15, 11:30, CCA $1
McCabe and Mrs. Miller 7:30, Mt. Holyoke, 75c
2001: A Space Idiocy, 8:00, 10:30, Merrill Center, Amherst

Dance: Contemporary Dance System, Daniel Lewis, autistic director. 8 p.m. Kirby Theater, Amherst College. Free for Amherst students, $2.50 for all you uncultured cretins who don't have what it takes to fake an Amherst education. "No one but Amherst students will understand it, anyway," said Box Office director J.F.Y. Fathead IV. "I mean, how do these morons justify their existence, for God's sake, much less seeing a sophisticated dance production?"

Concert: The amazing Charles Tolliver and his band are featured with the Strata-East All-Stars from the Black Musicians Conference. Free! SUB. 8 p.m. Be There! Aloha.

Ritual to be performed by unidentified pagans on Easter Sunday at an unspecified place.

Concert: The Orchestra Luna, one of the area's most popular bands appears at the FAC Concert Hall, 8 p.m. A very good act.

Sat 2

Films: Mutiny on the Bounty, 7:30. Gamble Aud. Mt. Holyoke 75c
Seven Beauties, the story of Smith College and the Seven Sisters. 7:30 and 9:30, Sage Hall, Smith. $1

Concert: Frank Foster's Loud Minority featuring Andy Bev. More from the Black Musicians Conference. SUB, 8 p.m. Free

Musical: Godspell resurrects, see yesterday.

Gallery opening: Richard Fleischner, sculptor, brings his work to the University Gallery, starting today.

Sun 3

Poetry Reading: Spectrum Present Voices CC 174-176

Films: Lady Sings the Blues, Penny Center, Octagon, Amherst College. 3 p.m.
Love and Anarchy CCA 7, 9, 11

Mon 4

Concert: The Osipov Balalaika Orchestra, from Russia with love. FAC Concert Hall, 8 p.m. An interesting concert that you vill not miss, da?

Tues 5

Films: Guys and Dolls, with Frank Sinatra and Marlon Brando. Gamble, Mt. Holyoke, 8 p.m. 75c

Video: Diego Cortez, CC 174-176, 8 p.m.

Wed 6

Films: The Decameron, Patterson Hall, Hampshire. 7 and 9, $1

Concert: Karr-Louis Duo, double-bass and keyboard. FAC Concert Hall 8 p.m.

Next Week in
Below the Silt:

Resurrection
Special

Come Back
With Us!

appearing at the Bluewall
SASS
Thur - Sat

at the Hatch
Thur - Sat
WALKER

(Fri - Sat, Dancathon for Multiple Schlerosis)

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 114 MONDAY, APRIL 4, 1977
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA. 01003 (413) 545-3500

Harry Chapin performed before a capacity crowd at the J.M. Greene Hall at Smith College on Thursday night. Chapin announced his plans for an upcoming European tour and the release of a new album in the near future. (Staff photo by Rob Carlin)

'Progressives' aim for meeting seats

By TERESA M. HANAFIN
Collegian Staff

For the first time in 40 years, Amherst town residents will elect a completely new town meeting — 240 members — and a group of "progressive" candidates are taking full advantage of the unique situation.

The town recently reorganized its districting plan to allow representation by population rather than just registered voters. So tomorrow the polls will feature a dazzling array of names — 419 — to confuse the voter.

But a group of candidates have combined efforts, so to speak, and are running as progressives, with a specific set of issues they are supporting in their run for town meeting.

These issues include opposition to the transportation of nuclear wastes through the town; sending a representative to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission this summer; deleting the by-law which makes it illegal for more than four unrelated persons to co-habitate; support of rent control; opposition to the diversion of the Connecticut River; and opposition to further Northeast Bypass construction.

The candidates say their aim is to try and get a more progressive town meeting — one that will vote on these issues.

The group is a mixture of students, homeowners and tenants of the town, so the label "just a bunch of students" doesn't apply here.

The group is opposed to the transportation of nuclear wastes through Amherst, and they plan, if elected, to send a representative to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission hearings this summer to inform the commission of the two Amherst votes which have come out in opposition to the construction of nuclear power plants in Montague.

They also feel that tenants have a right to free association and privacy — and the unrelated persons by-law invades and violates their right. The candidates say they know some very large families in town who do not have any restrictions, and the law is seen as blatant discrimination.

The rent control issue is another platform. Those people in the town who favor the establishment of a fair rent commission as a sort of middle - of - the - road path are seen by these progressives as just waffling. They maintain that they are painted by many people as a group only interested in raising taxes and spending money, a claim they vehemently deny.

But it cannot be denied that no candidates have yet to come up with solutions for the problems that Amherst faces — higher taxes; declining budget at UMass; federal subsidies of low-income housing; and so on. But a solution may be reached by a common consensus of the people, and that is what the town meeting is all about — as close to grassroots democracy as you can get.

The following candidates are running as progressives in tomorrow's election. Numbers before the names indicate placement on the ballot:

Precinct 1 — 4. Marilyn Gonter, 6. Brent Spears; 7. Nancy Gillis; 12. William Ford; 13. Richard Minear; 17. Diana Lizotte Souza; 19. Cindy Brock; 23. Kathleen Carlson; 28. Robin MacDonald; 32. Alan Superant; 37. Philip Jalbert; 38. Barbara Laurent; 39. James Duncan; 40. Vince O'Connor; 41. Michael Canavan; 42. Eugene Worman; 44. Marjorie Karlson; 47. Mary Efferen; 49. Peter D'Errico; 52. Jill Wallach; 54. Jonathon Post; and 56. Ellen Wolf.

Precinct 2 — 8. Walter Popper; 10. Otto Stein; 12. James Sullivan; 15. Joan Arbetter; 17. Christine

TURN TO PAGE 8

Selectman seats contested in Amherst Town Election

By TERESA M. HANAFIN
Collegian Staff

The Amherst town election tomorrow features five candidates running for three selectmen seats on the board, but at least one of the races is virtually uncontested.

The race for Nancy B. Eddy's seat has Nathaniel Reed and Chauncy T. Simmons trying to unseat Eddy, a veteran of six years on the board and the current chairperson. Although the election is supposed to be a choice of two out of the three candidates for two seats, Eddy is virtually unbeatable, which leaves the race between Reed and Simmons for the other seat, to be left vacant by Michael Sullivan.

The other race is not so clear cut as to the winner, but the issues are fairly well defined. Kenneth B. Mosakowski is seen as an outsider because he has only been in the town 10 years, versus Roger Jacque, a life-long resident "townie." On top of that, Jacque is a farmer, a fact that sits well with many residents.

Mosakowski and Jacque disagree on several issues, alttough Jacque is rather fuzzy on some.

Mosakowski supports rent control on the grounds that it will help low-income tenants, including elderly of the town who are "getting priced out of the market." Jacque says he hasn't completely read over the warrant article for the May town meeting regarding the latest rent control proposal, but that if it was economic, he said he would rather see it solved by the supply and demand method. He said he would like to see a "broader type" of apartments in Amherst, mainly more apartments for the high-income tenants, which, he claims, would open up the market for low-income housing.

They disagree also on the by-law which restricts the number of unrelated persons living together to four. Mosakowski feels the by-law is clearly discriminatory by distinguishing between related and unrelated persons. He feels one can't stereotype on the basis of

TURN TO PAGE 3

MTA petitions Trustee snub

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

Members of the faculty and staff union at both the Amherst and Boston campuses will find out this week if their efforts to reverse the Board of Trustees March vote to ignore the union and challenge its composition have paid off.

Ralph H. Flynn, an organizer for the Massachusetts Teacher's Association (MTA) to which the UMass unit is affiliated, said in an interview Friday that the Amherst and Boston locals will present a joint petition to the trustees at their Wednesday meeting in Worcester asking them to reverse their decisions.

The trustees voted not to recognize the union at their March meeting, saying the inclusion of department chairpersons, part time faculty who have been teaching three semesters, visiting faculty and faculty who do not receive their salaries from state monies, will make the unit too complex to successfully negotiate a contract.

Flynn said union representatives have been meeting informally with members of the board of trustees to discuss the Massachusetts Labor Relations commission's unit determination decision and explain the union's view of the unit challenge.

The faculty will call a joint meeting of the locals at the Worcester Sheraton-Hilton to discuss a course of action at the conclusion of the trustees meeting, he said.

The trustees vote to ignore the union and question its composition, under collective bargaining law, forces the union to bring the University to court on unfair labor practice charges. The University cannot challenge the composition directly.

According to Flynn, the trustees have not been given a "sufficient" copy of the commission's decision. The 70-page document is the longest in the commission's history, he said.

The trustees have also been receiving phone calls from the faculty and staff included in the unit, Flynn said, to give them an idea of how the faculty feels about the challenge.

The union is also urging faculty to attend the Worcester meeting to show the trustees how concerned the faculty is about the decision, he said.

According to Flynn, the MTA was surprised the trustees voted to challenge after the faculty voted to unionize, and not directly after the commission ruled on the composition of the union in October.

But Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery, in his capacity as acting executive vice-president formulating policy concerning faculty collective bargaining, last night said the administration took the only legal course open to them in challenging the unit's composition at this time.

Bromery, in a telephone interview, said the decision to challenge was not an individual one, but made by the board of trustees on the opinion of many legal staff and administrators.

Flynn also charged the University with wasting the taxpayers money by hiring the private law firm of Morgan, Kearns, Brown and Jay to handle the case. Their attorney, Arthur Menard, has a "vested interest" in the case, he said, since his retainer stops the day the court case stops.

Bromery said the decision to hire a private attorney was made after long deliberation on the part of the trustees. The campus administration supported the decision completely, he said.

In response to the MTA's proposal that the administration begin negotiating the contract while the challenge is proceeding, Bromery said that if the University would begin negotiations, it would represent recognition of the unit as it now stands.

Flynn said the faculty "are bending over backwards in terms of a professional, reasoned response," to the challenge.

He said the MTA's opinion is that negotiations can proceed at the same time as the challenge is being processed through the courts.

Erik Buiwit, age 5, of Gardner puts his juggling skills to the test as he participates in the Circus Arts Festival held in the Cape Cod Lounge this past weekend. (Staff photo by Rob Carlin)

Trustee declares UMass future good

By JOE QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

The future of UMass looks pretty good, according to one UMass trustee in an address on this topic at the Professional Association of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst (PAUMA) meeting Friday.

Nancy B. Eddy, also an Amherst selectmen, spoke on the University's "healthy" relationship with Amherst as well, and the present status' of the professional staff, PAUMA governance, and collective bargaining.

Eddy said that although some people believe UMass-Amherst could become worse economically, she sees possible improvement. She told PAUMA senators her confidence is based on a tentative commitment by the Massachusetts legislature for quality higher education in the state.

"Times will get better," assured Eddy.

Another bright spot at UMass, in Eddy's eyes, is the gradually improving relationship between the campus and Amherst.

"Six to ten years ago the town was at UMass' throat to halt building expansion, viewed by residents as detrimental to the environment," said Eddy during a phone interview with the Collegian.

"Now, possibly due to the economic times, Amherst is much more supportive of UMass," she explained. "There exists a mutual concern and cooperation between the two communities for campus problems which could also affect the town."

Eddy elaborated on the subject saying, that a lack of pay raises for UMass employees in the last few years has had an impact on their "disposable income" for shopping at the town businesses.

Eddy also offered her thoughts about the relationship between UMass trustees and the classified employees on campus, in regards to collective bargaining. Now being sought by many of the classified employees, collective bargaining was welcomed by UMass trustees "years ago", according to Eddy. However, she noted one obstacle to accepting a union can be disagreements about its makeup.

PAUMA speaker Robert L. Chew cited several other problems facing those seeking a union. Because the professional workers are "very vulnerable" to fiscal cutbacks, such as level funding, Chew said there is "a lot of interest in the professional structure for unionizing." However, the rigid 40 hour work week, "not nearly as flexible as others' (professors) schedules," hampers efforts to organize.

"It takes a tremendous amount of time," cautioned Chew. "I don't know what the chances (of unionizing) are."

As the speaker of a group which seeks to form better communication channels with trustees, Chew said he has remained separate from the unionizing efforts.

Eddy added that she believes non-union groups like PAUMA, could send appropriate sub-committees to sessions with the trustees.

Smith hosts Betty Friedan

By LISA MELILLI
Collegian Staff

Women's work is not necessarily in the home decided a panel featuring author and feminist Betty Friedan before a capacity audience of 1,000 in a discussion of "Women and Work" held at Smith College Friday night.

According to Friedan, author of "The Feminine Mystique", the present women's movement in the U.S. was first begun in order to equalize working conditions for women.

"The force of the movement is to get women into the mainstream of society," Friedan said. "Now women are less than humanized, isolated at home feeling they have no voice on what goes on in the world, watching society pass them by."

Friedan said the only way for women to be equal to men in the job market is by humanizing sex definitions. She said we are caught in a "mystique" by limiting women's place in society because of physical differences.

The Smith alumnus said "we see anatomy as destiny — and it's not so."

Included in the panel were Barbara Garson and Columbia University economic professor Eli Ginzberg.

Ginzberg, who has been a member of national commissions on employment, said that studies now show that women and blacks are competing for jobs.

Ginzberg said the job market has been increasing positions for women throughout the present century. "When jobs come, women come", he said however, that national studies have always underestimated the amount of women entering the job market. "They didn't consider women on the job market to be all that significant," Ginzberg said.

Ginzberg said that while women complain that they can't get ahead in professional fields they must understand that most men don't either.

She said that by increasing the numbers of employed women, more single parent households will result, and more interest will be taken in urban life since most job opportunities are in cities.

Barbara Garson, who recently published "All the Livelong Day: the Meaning and Demeaning of Work", said she is disgusted with working conditions.

"People are really something else and they're not treated like they are," said Garson who spent two years interviewing working people across the country in preparation for her recently published work.

"Behind opaque office buildings, banks, and insurance agencies are the industrial settings where workers play games to put meaning back into their jobs," Garson said. "Work is routine and boring."

She said work is cheap; "It's a dime a dozen. Employers know they can find anyone to fill a job, so workers behave, and working conditions are less than human."

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor Peter B. Wallace

Assistant Ex-officio	Betsy Grose
Day Staff	Hilary Sallet
Wired Woman	Roseanne Carito
In the Dark	Pat Dobbs, Marilyn Mankowsky
Head Darkroom Priest	Rob (D76) Carlin
Ad-lib layout	Brian Campbell and Bert, a honey of a blonde

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
Kill the Whales

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Recording the change in ice temperature at Orr Rink are four members of Dr. McAvoy's chemical engineering class. From left to right are Larry Slovin, Greg Virgilio, McAvoy, Lauren Berthiaume, and Bob Greenberg. (Staff photo by Steven J. Polansky)

Professor studies Orr Rink

By STEVEN J. POLANSKY
Collegian Staff

Dr. Thomas A. MacAvoy, professor of Chemical Engineering at UMass, is working in conjunction with Amherst College engineering and athletic departments, undertaking a semester long project at Orr Rink, which has been a financial drain for the school for years.

Ben McCabe, Head of Athletics at Amherst, called upon MacAvoy to try and solve some problems associated with the overall operations of the faculty and present some modifications which, when implemented, could reduce the budget of the rink.

MacAvoy's class meets at the rink for their lab location. The class is divided into groups which figure out their own task, and set out to solve the problem.

Last spring, the Blue Wall had a problem with their newly computerized beer pouring taps. During the "peak flow" periods, happy hours and specials, the demand on the taps was so great that the taps were not pouring the correct amount of beer into the cups, resulting in a large head of foam and a three quarter full cup of beer. The bartenders had to pour more beer into the cups to offset this, all the while costing more for spillage and time lost.

McAvoy and his Ch. Eng. class were contacted. They undertook a study of the phenomenon and recorded their impressions and research. They resolved that during those periods of heavy drain, the compressor used to pour the beer was not sufficiently large to handle the added strain. Their proposal was to use a larger compressor, which would solve this problem.

Back at Orr rink, the group feels confident that the "work will show that as much as $10,000 can be saved from the total operating costs yearly.

The major problem that the class faces is the resurfacing problem. The Zamboni machine, which scrapes the surface, cleans, and deposits a new layer of water on the ice, is a big concern.

This resurfacing problem now uses hot water within the machine, which is sprayed over the ice, and is constantly being cooled. MacAvoy claims that by using the hot water, "You pay to heat the water then you pay to cool it, it just doesn't make sense."

MacAvoy added, "If the lab experiments are correct, this machine should be able to use cold water to do the same job as with hot, and a considerable savings." Through this modification, close to $1500 in gas and electricity alone can be saved.

Most class members have had training in thermodynamics, economics and heat transfer, all of which are needed to handle a job of this size, he said.

When considering an off-campus endeavor of this caliber one asks, "Is this type of instruction better than in-class training? and if so, why is this practice so infrequently followed?"

"The answers are simple, yet not necessarily so," says MacAvoy.

"Surely, the practical application towards learning is emphatically better for the students, for not only are the students conducting their own research with respect to the given problem, but they are actively seeking answers to those questions.

"In fact, this class is learning how to think, a technique which cannot be learned by any method other than by the individual himself."

OHAG revokes Woman's Center's purchase orders

By LAWRENCE HIRSHBERG
Collegian Staff

The Orchard Hill Women's Center's power to sign its own purchase orders was revoked by OHAG last night in a 10-5 vote. The action took place after the Women's Center failed to report its expenditures bi-monthly as stipulated when the Center was given purchase order autonomy by OHAG in September.

Attempts to start the Orchard Hill snack bar in Field dorm failed last month, due to a violation of Affirmative Action guidelines. A committee had been formed, prospective snack bar managers were interviewed, and a manager had been selected. It was discovered that the interviewing committee consisted solely of two white males. This was not in accordance with Affirmative Action policy, and the decision was nullified.

A new committee will be chaired by OHAG vice president Mark Hergenrother, and interviews will resume in the near future. Discussion of an investigative committee to be formed to study the past expenditure of $17,000 for the construction of the snack bar facility received a go ahead from OHAG. Hergenrother will chair this committee also.

In other voting, a motion to require a report to OHAG of all expenditures greater than $100 was defeated. Since an officer of OHAG must sign all purchase orders anyway, it was felt by the general body that an additional report was unnecessary.

Orchard Hill-Central Area Arts Council is holding a spring folk-arts fair on April 24th. It will be held in the bowl at Orchard Hill, and a bluegrass band and area folksingers are scheduled to entertain all who attend.

The Orchard Hill Spring Concert will be on May 1, and the bands that have definitely said they will play are The Elis Hall Band, and the Bailey Brothers. Other bands are expected to sign shortly.

ORCHARD HILL

No artists signed for Spring Concert

By NIKKI ARONSON
Collegian Staff

With Spring Concert less than six weeks away, contracted artists scheduled to appear during the May 7 event have yet to be announced by the Concert Committee.

Committee Co-Chairperson David Kanton explained the delay, "We've taken a little longer than usual due to problems with outside promoters and agencies."

Many artists are not available," Kantor said in an interview yesterday, "We've contacted nearly 500 artists, but either they can't make the date or their prices are astronomical."

Kantor and Co-Chairpersons Dave ..nardi and Bruce Wingate have been working with various groups on campus since January to secure name acts that will "appeal to a wide diversity of the student population."

Committee members will be on the air tonight for a question and answer period. All persons with comments are urged to listen to WMUA at 6 p.m. for the scheduled broadcast time.

Group sponsors S. African workshops

The campus' South African Support Committee is sponsoring workshops concerning the apartheid policies of South Africa and the University's investments in corporations there from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today on the bottom level of the Campus Center.

The committee, along with other campus groups, is also sponsoring a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Campus Center Auditorium where David Sebako, Prexy Nesbitt and Seshibe from the PanAfrican Support Committee, South African Bheki Langa, and others will speak on apartheid.

A demonstration protesting apartheid is planned for noon tomorrow. According to organizers, protesters will begin at the New Africa House and from there march to Whitmore Administration Building.

See related story on Page 4.

★ Town Election

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

whether a group of people are related or not, and should solve any problems which may arise through the regular channels of the health and sanitary codes. But, he says, this would mean more staff, therefore more money, so he is hesitant to recommend this as the only solution. "There are no easy answers."

Jacque supports the by-law. He says he wouldn't want to get into a "hot debate" with Mosakowski over the issue, but that a blanket revision for the whole town would not be advisable. He favors "opening the door" for certain situations.

"I'm comfortable with four, considering the type of housing in Amherst and the parking facilities," he says.

Both candidates realize the importance of the University to the town's economy, but Mosakowski is willing to do more in the line of active support. He believes in lobbying for the University budget, while Jacque feels that trips to the State House would cost money that the town could ill-afford.

In the other race, Eddy's experience gives her a balanced and educated view of the problems and issues of the town. She opposes rent control, but supports another, more moderate rent control — the establishment of a fair rent commission which would review only rents which are brought before them on a complaint. The type of rent control proposed by most advocates of the plan would make every rent increase be reviewed by a grievance review board, a process Eddy feels is too much bureaucracy for the town to handle.

Both Reed and Simmons are against rent control; Reed feels it would only serve to discourage developers and squeeze landlords very hard. He says the free market system is the best to turn to in order to lower rates.

Simmons' opposition to rent control is on the basis that it would impose spending on the town, an increase that is unnecessary.

Eddy is the only candidate who opposes the bylaw which restricts the number of unrelated persons living together to four. She, like Mosakowski, feels the law is discriminatory and virtually unenforcable. Both Reed and Simmons favor the by-law; Simmons on the basis that there is no viable alternative, and Reed on the basis of too much wear and tear on the apartments.

Sylvan plans Spring Weekend

By JANIS FINSTEIN
Collegian Staff

The date for Sylvan Area's Traditional Spring Weekend has been set for the weekend of April 29th to May 1st. The committee for the Spring Weekend are planning several events for the occasion including, a talent show, movies, and possibility breakfast on Sunday in each of the dorms.

Members of the SAG voted unanimously last night to contribute $200 to the areas sports league, which includes the basketball and softball leagues. A schedule for the leagues will be announced.

The Traditional Big Bad Boogie has been termed a financial success as the area had expected to break even or gain a slight profit and did.

SAG leaders discussed the possibility of having individual keys made for Sylvan residents for the outside doors. Individual keys are given to other residents for their respective dorms on campus.

Sylvan Area's newspaper, The Parchment, will be available next week. Each suite will be receiving copies of the newspaper.

ary rule
the Qu
MS
DANCE MARATHON

Many students from the Five College area bogied in the 30 hour dance marathon over Friday and Saturday which supported MS. (Staff photo by Patrick Dobbs)

Waistlines wasted at eatathon

By CINDY YOUNG
Collegian Staff

Mounds of buttermilk pancakes dripping with sweet maple syrup and melted butter. All you can eat. Sounds great, doesn't it? Well, it wasn't exactly quite that way, for the contestants of last Thursday's "Eatin' for Epilepsy", pancake eating contest. Each entrant had only twenty minutes, in which to cram as many pancakes as humanly possible, down their throats.

The various techniques were unbelievable. They ranged from the neat eaters, gracefully wielding knife, fork, and napkin, to the "chow hounds", whose pancakes were rolled in sausage form and then popped into their mouths.

The cooks could barely keep up with the demand, as plates were emptied in a matter of minutes, and the contestants were forced to plod on, eating pancakes which were cold and lumpy.

The "Eatin' for Epilepsy" contest was sponsored by the Greek Area Activities Committee and held at the Pub in Amherst Center. Each contestant was sponsored by a fraternity or sorority house and pledges were made according to the number of pancakes consumed, or in set amounts in each house.

Dana Cormier, a resident of Rolling Green, sponsored by Chi Omega, topped the group, by devouring twenty-five and one-half regulation-size pancakes, in the twenty minute time limit. For those with mathematical minds, that's more than one and one-quarter pancakes per minute.

Mike Ognibene, a brother at Beta Kappa Phi, although a last minute entry, pulled through in the number two position, by polishing off twenty-two and one-half pancakes. Ognibene said it was the first time he had ever entered any type of eating contest, and he really felt no lasting ill effects. In fact, both Ognibene and his roommate, Mark Duggan, who also entered the contest, were planning on having pancakes for Sunday breakfast.

Following the contest, an auction was held, in which various items, donated by area merchants were auctioned off at bargain prices. The total amount raised has not been calculated at this time.

Delta Nu offers free tax help

By ILENE QUINT
Collegian Staff

Beginning March 30 in the Campus Center, the Delta Nu Chapter of Beta Alpha Psi will be conducting a free tax service for UMass students and staff. The schedule for the service is: April 6, 7, 13, 14 and 15, in room 904-8. It will be open from 6-10 p.m.

Beta Alpha Psi, founded in 1919, is a national honorary accounting society. It has existed on campus for two years. There are 110 chapters nationwide.

Beta Alpha Psi members must be of at least junior status, and have a 3.0 cumulative average in accounting courses.

Their newspaper, The Beta Alpha Psi Newsletter, (named for obvious reasons), is published periodically throughout the semester. A scholarship certificate is presented to the senior with the highest cumulative average.

A majority of the 100 members involved in the free tax service, have their Bachelor of Arts or Master's degree. The participants receive no academic credit for their assistance.

Last year Beta Alpha Psi was funded through the Outreach program. They tutored students in elementary accounting courses, through out the year.

Notice

ATTENTION COLLEGIAN STAFF — There will be a meeting tonight for all staff members tonight in Campus Center 903 at 7:30 sharp. Be there!

Black Affairs

United States supports Apartheid!

By MARCIA HOSPEDALES
Black Affairs Staff

Commentary

While South Africa enjoys the highest standard of living in the world, it is a striking irony that 70 per cent of the black population live below the poverty datum line set by the U.N. Commission on Human Rights.

It is not by chance that one out of every five blacks suffer from Tuberculosis and that Kwashiokor (a protein deficiency disease) has increased by 300 per cent in the last four years. Neither is it by sheer misfortune that there is one doctor for every 400 whites as opposed to 44,000 blacks and that 53 per cent of the infant population is destined to die before reaching the age of five. The South African government is at present exercising the largest forced movement of people in peace time (or is it peace time for black South Africans). A total of 7 million blacks have been forced into the eroded area of the Homelands, which can only support an estimated 2.5 million; while 87 per cent of the land is reserved for the four million whites. Black miners receive a meagre $29 per month as opposed to their white counterparts who receive $505. Blacks are forced to pay for an inferior education, while education for whites is compulsory and free. It is a government policy that every white man and woman know how to shoot.

These facts represent the gruesome reality of what it means to be on the receiving end of the racist and capitalist system of Apartheid in South Africa. In face of this, the South African government has continued to thrive with the support of Western imperialist powers. South Africa now has the 5th best armed forces in the world and the U.S. is the most influential in providing political, economic and military aid to the white minority regimes.

So far, the U.S. has only expressed verbal opposition, while at the same time has resorted to subtle means of supporting Apartheid. A historical comparison shows that U.S. policy toward South Africa has not changed. In 1969, a memorandum for Henry Kissinger stated that "blacks will not gain liberation for the rest of the century." This is similar to Vorster's statement that "no political rights, not now nor in the future, under no circumstances," would be given to blacks. The Byrd Amendment passed by the Congress in 1971, gave U.S. corporations the legal right to import Rhodesian chrome, despite U.N. sanctions barring trade with Rhodesia. The U.S. continues to supply arms to Israel, knowing that a large per cent of these arms are sent to South Africa. The U.S. government is also involved with Project Advocate, a S. African naval security program. Recently, one of Carter's advisers, James Schlesinger has advocated setting up a NATO base in S. Africa.

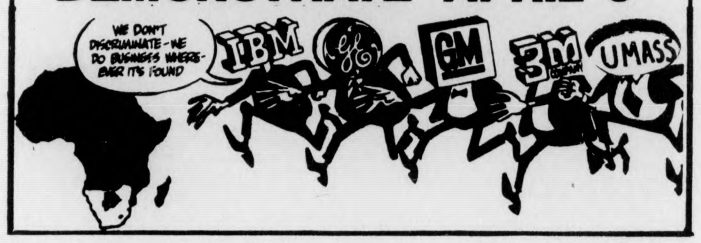
At present, there are over 400 corporations with investments amounting to some 1.5 billion dollars in S. Africa. These corporations comply with Apartheid laws and regulations. They claim to be objective, arguing that economic development will undermine the system of Apartheid. This statement has been disproved by the fact that the height of success for U.S. corporations in S. Africa has been followed by an increase in Apartheid laws. The corporations continue to provide both economic and military support as they did prior to 1974. During this period, GULF alone contributed one-half the money used by Portugal to fight the war in Angola. Last year, at the height of the worker's strike, the City Bank of New York assisted by providing loans to the S. African government. A 1971 survey showed that only 14 per cent of U.S. businessmen in S. Africa were opposed to Apartheid.

Here at UMass, the South African Support Committee has requested that the university divest itself of investments in corporations that operate in S. Africa. Their letter to top authorities has not yet been answered. As a result a series of workshops will take place today and a noon rally from New Africa House to Whitmore is scheduled tomorrow. What happens in S. Africa will affect what happens here in the U.S. Opponents of racism in the U.S. are urged to attend this rally.

Minority Rule: A U.S. Gold Mine

UMASS PARTNER IN APARTHEID

DEMONSTRATE APRIL 5



WE DON'T DISCRIMINATE - WE DO BUSINESS WHERE-EVER IT'S FOUND IBM
GE
GM
3M
UMASS

Thoughts

ATTEND WORKSHOPS TODAY
SUPPORT THE RALLY TOMORROW
"AWAY WITH VORSTER-
DOWN WITH OPPRESSION,
POWER TO THE PEOPLE OF S. AFRICA!"
Marcia Hospedales

U.S. - learn from Cuba!

By NASSER EGA
Black Affairs Staff

Prof. Johnnetta Cole (left) and Dora Thorpe (center) listen attentively to Prof. Robert Cole speak on the History of Racism in Cuba last Friday, April 1st, at Hampden Student Center. (Staff photo by Pat Dobbs)

Friday night brought an end to the three day program on the Elimination of Racism in Cuba with a panel forum lecture in Hampden Dining Commons consisting of Prof. Johnnetta Cole, Dora Thorpe and Robert Cole. The panel spoke on this history of racism in Cuba, The Process of Elimination of Racism, and the Elimination of Institutional Racism in Cuba and its significance for U.S. people.

The first speaker was Prof. Robert Cole, who replaced John Howard Roberts, and proved to be an effective speaker. Cole, speaking on the History of Racism in Cuba stated that the rise in demand for sugar was the main reason why slaves were brought to Cuba, but that slaves had basic rights. These basic rights included the right to marry, sue the owner until the capitalists took over. The amount of work the slaves did and the inhumane condition they lived under was the major factor why the life expectancy of slaves in Cuba was only 10 years. He went on to say that "The struggle of slavery and racism was not independent of other struggles. It became clear to those who seeked Independence from Spain that this "could not have happened unless it included Blacks." When the U.S. took over Cuba, Cole said they started to segregate public places and caused an increase in racism.

The next speaker, Dora Thorpe, dealt with the Process of Elimination of Racism in Cuba and said that, "with firmness, audacity and courage, one of the great tasks of the National Liberation process was the elimination of racial discrimination on every level of society: to put an end in a definite manner to a threat that was weakening to the nation as it faced its enemies from within and from without."

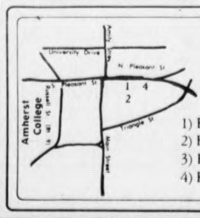
Thorpe described the methods used to make the process a success. She said that a Rent Reducing Law was introduced in May 1959, which cut all rents by 50 per cent, and the Urban Reform Law of 1960 that guaranteed decent housing for all citizens. "These were the original steps in an urban policy that eventually led to the law that fixes all rents at the maximum of 10 per cent of the income of the head of the household", Thorpe said. She also said that the preservation and affirmation of the Afro-Cuban Culture was encouraged. Schools such as the Institute of Ethnology and Folklore and the School of the Arts was established. There was a literacy campaign where literate people were sent to rural areas to teach the illiterate people.

The last speaker was Prof. Johnnetta Cole who confronted the question of what the significance of the elimination of institutionalized racism in Cuba meant to the people in the U.S. and what is the significance to the people of U.S. of the elimination of institutionalized racism.

Prof. Cole said that what Cuba has done means good and bad news for people in this country, "In terms of good news," she said, "It may appear simple minded to say Cuba demonstrates that racism is not genetic — but for those of us who have been socialized here in the heart of racist, capitalist America, it is not unusual to know theoretically that there is no gene that makes folks racist, but in practice, to act as if that is the case. Within our hemisphere, just 90 miles off the east coast, in a land that had slavery, in a land where Black people experienced the depths of indignities and pain associated with racism: Racism is no more!".

Prof. Cole said that the bad news, was only bad news for the 5 per cent who own 53 per cent of the wealth. She said that "We can easily seen then, that those who rule in this country love capitalism — but sometimes it is more difficult for us to understand that they love racism just as much. Indeed, they know that it is racism divides people who exhaust their energies fighting each other — and it's the capitalist who profits in the end". In many industries, particularly steel, Blacks often unknown to themselves, were used as strike breakers. Prof. Cole went on to describe what we can learn from Cuba. "We learn that the elimination of discrimination requires in Fidel Castros' words, "not only laws, but a revolutionary process". We might learn that a successful victory over racism requires the integral participation of black people (in Cuba, in U.S. all third world people) throughout the revolutionary process. The third major lesson from Cuba is that fighting racism and capitalism at home inevitably lead to fighting imperialism and racism abroad".

The evening was wrapped up by Prof. Andrew Salkley who read, as one of the audiences said, "a magnificent piece of poetry".



IF you are a serious student or educator, you're probably just as serious about your appearance. For the best in dry cleaning or related services....

1) Braff's
2) Hungry U
3) Fire Station
4) Post Office

Braff's Royl
Cleaners
103 N. Pleasant Street
256-8288

The Hon.
KA'ANAN SIVAN
Consul General of Israel
in Boston

"The New Carter Administration"
and the
Old Middle-East Deadlock:
"Is Anything Changing in 1977?"

Tues. April 5 4:00pm
Campus Center 804-808
presented by B.B. Hillel

Black Affairs

April 5, 6, 7
Dr. King Lecture Series

On April 5, 6, and 7, the Distinguished Visitors Program (DVP) will present the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial lecture series in the Student Union Ballroom.

This year marks the tenth annual series sponsored by DVP, commemorating the life and works of Dr. King. These events are scheduled each year during the anniversary of his death (April 1, 1968) reminding us of the goals Dr. King possessed; peace, equality, justice and freedom for all.

Dr. King was no dreamer, but he had a dream. History marks him as the prime minister of royal movement that shook the conscience of the world. From Montgomery bus boycotts to the assassin's bullet, this national hero showed us what man can be, what man should be and what man must be.

The lecture series begins on April 5 at 8 p.m. with a lecture by Rev. N. Williams, Dr. R. Blackwell, and a vocalist presentation by Marlen Williams. Rev. Williams has travelled extensively in all parts of the nation as a speaker, lecturer, and civil rights leader. Dr. Blackwell is the executive Director of Southern Rural Action, an organization helping poverty areas develop a secure economic footing by establishing small industrial industries owned by the employees. Williams has been described as the reigning Queen of Gospel. She is scheduled to do a perform and to close the lecture with a gospel presentation.

All are invited to come out and participate.

Education and Race

Dr. Wilfred Cartey, Marxian scholar of African-American literature and a Martin Luther King Distinguished Professor of Humanities at City University of New York will conduct a seminar entitled: "Education and Race; Its implications for the Underdevelopment of the Third World."

Prof. Cartey has had extensive experience in the area of creative writing and has published a number of works including:

a. "Whispers from a Continent: Literature of Contemporary Black Africa"
b. "Black Images: Evolution of the Images of the Black Man"
c. "Poetry of Spanish-English-French Speaking Caribbean, the United States, Latin America, and West Africa"
d. "Waters of my Soul"
e. "Red Rain"

The lecture will be held at the Center for Racial Understanding in the Moore House Faculty Apt. Southwest at 7:30 p.m. Monday evening. An informal discussion will follow and refreshments will be served.

Black Musicians Concert

By ANGELA THOMAS
Asst. Black Affairs Editor

The Student Union Ballroom was brought to life by the sweet sound of music, first by Charles Tolliver and Music Incorporated, and then by Frank Foster and The Loud Minority, as the fifth annual Black musicians concert got underway this past Friday and Saturday, April 1 - 2 at 8 p.m.

Friday night's opener with Tolliver, Music Incorporated, and the Strata-East All Stars, presented their music creativity to a majority white audience. The opening number "Cancellation," was followed by the beautiful slow moving ballad, "Motherwit." A number entitled, "Rubies Are," spiced with the flavor of Afro-Cuban music, was my favorite number, while "Round About Midnight," in the words of Tolliver, "was one of their favorites." The last number "Impact," very fittingly described the entire evening, the musical fervor of the musicians, merging with the emotional high of the audience, as music was experienced at its best.

Saturday night witnessed Foster and the twenty-three strong, Loud Minority, with vocalist Andy Bey. Numbers included in Saturday night's performance were "Simone," "Loud Minority," "Judgement," song by vocalist Bey, and "Ignorant Bliss." The closing number, "Giants Step," was reminiscence of Friday's performance, where the audience, aroused to climactic highs by the musicans.

A scene from this past weekend's Black Musicians concert that featured Charles Folliier, Music Incorporated, Strata-East All Stars, Frank Foster, Loud Minority, and vocalist Andy Bey. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Francisco:
Another side of slavery

By ANGELA THOMAS
Asst. Black Affairs Editor

As part of the three day program on "The Elimination of Racism in Cuba and its Significance For Peoples Living in the United States," the Cuban film, "The Other Francisco," was presented in the Hampden Student Center this past Thursday, March 30.

"The Other Francisco," directed by Sergio Giral, questions Anselmo Suarez portrayal of Cuban slavery in his novel, "Francisco." Suarez's version of slavery has jealously as its main theme.

Francisco an educated obeying house slave, supposely kills himself over Dorotea, a beautiful young woman who submits to her white master's lust in order to save her love, Francisco. She then flees in shame and self-hatred feeling unworthy of his love. Francisco in utter despair hangs himself from a tree.

Giral in his retelling of the novel, analysed the history of the orginal novel, and includes the character of the author and his social class. The perspective of "The Other Francisco," encompasses the effect of economic and market interests upon slavery, and the desire and determination of Cuban slaves for liberation. Consequently, doubts and questions begin to formulate as one ponders whether Francisco's sole reason for committing suicide was Dorotea, or were there other factors involved?

Hatred, power, lust, and greed, together with the historical background of the times, and the prelude to future slave revolts, makes for the intellectual and emotional re-examination and reflection of the life of Francisco.

Sergio Giral's, "The Other Francisco," viewed by a well attended and receptive audience last Thursday, March 30, at the Hampden Student Center in Southwest.

Afro-Am presents

Film lecture demonstration on acupuncture

On Wednesday, April 6, there will be a film lecture and demonstration on acupuncture, the Chinese method of healing and health care.

How and why is it significantly different from western methods? These and other questions will be answered.

The presentation will be given by brother Akram Muhammed of the New England School of Acupuncture, located in Boston.

The film will be Acupuncture Anestisisa, an excellent documentary on the scientific effectiveness of acupuncture over drugs in both minor and major operations.

The second film is on China's Barefoot doctors, local medically trained peasant experienced in China's traditional forms of medicine (and in Western methods) and how they help to provide health care for 80 per cent of China's population.

Time — 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

University of massachusetts
arts council
presents

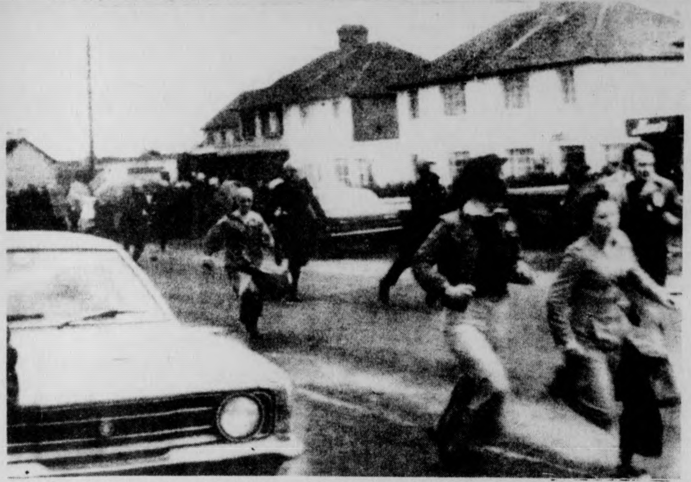
national black theatre

SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM

Bowker Auditorium

Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations



DUBLIN: Provisional Irish Republican Army members make a hasty retreat from baton-swinging police in Portlaoise following a brick-throwing demonstration that started as a hunger strike. (UPI)

Hunger strike becomes riot

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Irish riot police yesterday battled brick-throwing demonstrators outside Portlaoise Prison, where Provisional Irish Republican Army prisoners were staging a hunger strike.

At least 60 persons were injured, including 10 officers, a police spokesman said. Three of the injured, including one policeman, were reported in serious condition.

The spokesman said some of the estimated 1,500 demonstrators tried to break through police lines about a quarter of a mile from Portlaoise's maximum security jail, 60 miles south of the capital.

He said they hurled bricks and stones and attacked the officers with sticks and clubs. Police then charged the rioters.

One group tried to ram through police lines with a hijacked truck but was unable to get through the crowds of fellow demonstrators, he said.

The protest rally was organized by Sinn Fein, the political wing of the outlawed Provisional IRA, to back a 27-day-old hunger strike by 20 IRA prisoners demanding better jail conditions.

Ten of the fasters have been transferred to a nearby military hospital at the Curragh military barracks.

CERAMIC CANISTERS
w/cork tops
for spices, tea, sugar, coffee
25% off w/this ad April 4-11
POTS&PLANTS SHOP
247 N. Pleasant
open daily 12-5:30
sat 10-5:30

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
THIS TIME FOR SURE!
PILOBOLUS
DANCE THEATER
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

the EQUINOX
natural foods restaurant
INVITES YOU TO AN EVENING OF CELEBRATION AT THE RUSTY NAIL ON MONDAY APRIL 4th AT 8 p.m.
LAST SUPPER PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
DAVID DARLING
SOLO CELLIST WITH THE PAUL WINTER CONSORT
$3.00 COVER AT THE DOOR
BARBARA HYDE, SANDY SAYERS, YO OXENHANDLER, CHRIS KLEEMAN, FORMERLY "JACOBS REUNION"
REED BUTLER, TIM MORAN, ANDY JAFFE, BRUCE KRASSIN, NEAL FAHEY, ROB FAULKNER, HARRY SCHROEDER, JIM BRIDGES MARTY SCHRIENER, WITH PAM BRICKER
LIGHT IN THE NIGHT
AND OTHERS PLAYING TOGETHER TO CELEBRATE 4 YEARS OF THE EXISTENCE OF THE EQUINOX AND THE ENERGY IT CREATED IN THE VALLEY.
WOW!

DYNOMITE
ATTENTION • • • ALL UMASS. STUDENTS.
YOUR NEWSPAPER—THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN—IS LOOKING FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK THEY CAN SELL. WE HAVE POSITIONS OPEN FOR THE COMING SEMESTER. THIS IS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO EARN EXTRA MONEY AND ACQUIRE GREAT JOB EXPERIENCE.
Interested?: Drop this coupon off to Steve Lesser, Ad Manager, at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, or call 545-3500.
WHEELS ARE NECESSARY!
I'm interested in becoming a Collegian Ad Rep:
Name:
Address:
Telephone:
Any selling experience? ( ) Yes ( ) No
Do you have a car? ( ) Yes ( ) No

THE COLLEGIAN ☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆
GRAPHICS
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆ DEPARTMENT
HAS 4 WORKSTUDY POSITIONS AVAILABLE
☆☆ 2 NIGHT MANAGERS
☆ 1 TECHNICIAN
☆ 1 LIASON
STOP BY THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 9⁰⁰ A.M. AND 6⁰⁰ P.M.
ASK FOR RANDY GLENN OR CHARLES BERUBE

UNIVERSITY PIZZA
WE MADE YOU A PIZZA
YOU COULDN'T REFUSE!
NOBODY DID REFUSE
THE SPECIAL WENT SO WELL, WE WILL REPEAT IT THIS WEEK ORDER OUR
NEW 16" PIZZA
and get a free quart of Coke, Tab, Root Beer or Sprite on us!
OFFER GOOD UNTIL APRIL 7
Call 549-5592
Across from Southwest Dorms.
HOME OF THE STEAK & CHEESE SUB!

---

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
KARR-LEWIS DUO
Double Bass & Keyboard
WED., APRIL 6 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Prison guards vote to strike

NEWINGTON, Conn. (UPI) — Union representatives for Connecticut's prison guards and parole officers yesterday unanimously rejected the state's final contract offer and then voted overwhelmingly to go on strike.

State officials immediately began making contingency plans to staff the state's prisons and jails with state troopers.

At a special meeting, representatives for the state's 1,250 corrections employes voted to walk off the job today leaving Connecticut's 11 prisons unmanned. The strike vote was approved by a 10-1 margin.

Owen King, a regional representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, said the corrections workers were upset with new demands made by state negotiators.

"The state contract offer contained language contradictory to what was already agreed upon," King said.

Negotiators for the prison guards and the state averted a strike on Christmas Eve when they reached a preliminary agreement.

Before talks broke off Saturday, King said the state offered to give the prison guards a $2,700 raise over two years.

But he said the state demanded that the corrections workers increase their work week from 35 hours to 37¼ hours. The extra hours would mean only a $500 a year raise, King said.

Mike Ferrucci, executive director of the AFSCME local, said the prison workers also were distressed with a state demand that would require corrections employes to work weekends.

Baruch hopes to see industry and government work together

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — President Carter's nominee as assistant secretary of Commerce for Science and Technology, Jordan Baruch, says it's time for a union between government and industry.

And Baruch wants to ensure the beneficiary of that merger will be the American public.

"I want to help the government and industry work together in the public interest," Baruch said Sunday. "The job provides advisory input to the Secretary of Commerce on how technology and science affect business and the public welfare. It will be one of the most challenging jobs in government."

Baruch, 53, a professor at the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth College in Hanover, was nominated to the post Friday. He leaves for Washington today to begin his job, even though he has not been confirmed.

Be said he has worked for years with Commerce Department officials in policy planning, including

Baruch said in a telephone interview he was surprised he was nominated for the post. He said he worked for Carter's elect "but not in any capacity that he would know it."

his specialty, managing technological innovations.

"How do you make sure the innovations are for the public welfare and public good? Providing leisure time, things like that, that's what the public wants. They want quality and quantity," he said.

Baruch has been involved with how and why things work since after World War II. He received engineering degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and later helped form a consultant firm in Cambridge, Mass.

BUF-PUF
Nonmedicated Cleansing Sponge
For beautiful skin
REG 2.46 SALE 1.98
VISINE
1/2 OZ REG 1.75
SALE 1.39
BARBASOL 11OZ
REG.OR MEDICATED
2/$1.00
OR 59¢ EACH
COLLEGE DRUG STORE

The Hon.
KA'ANAN SIVAN
Consul General of Israel
in Boston
"The New Carter Administration" and the Old Middle-East Deadlock: "Is Anything Changing in 1977?"
Tues. April 5 4:00pm
Campus Center 804-808
presented by B'B Hillel

Carter asked to help return power to people

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers is calling on President Carter to help counties, cities, towns and states "regain our rightful position in the governmental structure."

In remarks prepared for delivery today Conrad Mattox said the Washington bureaucracy has become an "overpowering master" and the nation has drifted from the principle that power starts with the people and local government.

"Help us to regain our rightful position in the governmental structure of this nation," he said.

He cited a Labor Department move for a law imposing the federal unemployment tax on state and local governments and actions by the Transportation Department and other agencies to steer the spending of airport funds.

The group said it represents 7,000 lawyers from 1,340 municipalities.

ring day
JOSTEN'S
Seniors! last ring days before graduation!
Tuesday - April 5
Wednesday - April 6
10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
at the
University Store
Campus Center UMass

Collegian Staff Meeting

All staff members are urged to attend.

Monday April 4

903 Campus Center

7:30pm.

★ Candidates

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Eckhardt; 23 MaryJane Pi-Sunyer; 25. Elaine Mange; 29. Suninder Nehta; 33. Arthur Quinton; 37. Barry Holstein; 40. Edward Kayner; 44. Lynn Nakkim; 45. Nonny Burack; 51. Fred Rogers; 54. Joyce Berkman; 56. Bryan Ruth; 70. William Mullin; 76. Lawrence Shea; 72. Deborah Brown; 78. Saul Ripberg; 80. Margaret Roberts; 81. Michael Sullivan; 83. Marsha Goldman.

Precinct 3 — 2. Beverly Pacheco; 4. Leo Richard; 5. Adam Auster; 7. Donald Coole; 10. Lawrence Gerzog; 11. Armando Paeces-Enriquez; 17. Gary Shuster; 18. Scott Wieler; 20. Katerine Ozer; 21. Laura Alpert; 22. Leverne Thelan; 25. Robert Melia; 32. Richard Murphy; 33. Glen Munroe; 34. Steven Leibowitz; 37. Eric Forjgard; 38. Brian DeLancy; 42. Thomas Tooley; 47. Susan Hoffman; 48. David Pacheco; 50. Rosemary McCarthy; 51. Richard Scire.

Precinct 4 —2. Mark Cavanaugh; 8. Bonnie Aker; 9. Elisa Campbell; 10. Frank Irish; 17. Jim Starr; 25. Christina Platt; 27. Ellen Caracciolo; 30. Leslie Nary; 35. Frank Dorman; 37. Michael Parenti.

Precinct 5 — 2. Louise Johnson; 3. Judity Kopec; 9. Clover Drinkwater; 10. Claudette Gardel; 11. Ira Saleitan; 22. David Russell; 25. Robert Winston; 27. Nancy Hirsh; 32. Mildred Beals; 36. Nora Hertzfeld; 37. Ken Mosakowski; 38. Charlie Rogers; 40. Helen Collery; 41. Harold Kahn.

Precinct 6 — 3. Joan Logan; 5. Paul Gilmore; 10. Carol Scheurer; 20. Ralph Daniels; 21. Judith Eckhouse; 23. Kathleen Sczerzenie; 24. George McDowell; 26. Clark Roof; 28. George Scheurer; 30. Andrew vonSalis; 32. Rosanna Fallabella; 34. Joseph O'Connor; 36. Edward Zephir; 37. Philip Sczerzenie; 48. James Harrigan; 50. Thomas Swain.

Precinct 7 — 20. Jim Picardi; 26. Jim Chamberlain; 28. Fran Van-Tresse; Nancy Foster; Robert Griffith; Leslie Heath; Gary Jakacky; James Walker; John Ritter.

Precinct 8 — Alice Epstein; Ann Mallek; Claire Forbier; Joel Saxe.

The polling places for tomorrow's election are as follows:

Precinct 1 — North Amherst Parish Hall

Precinct 2 — North Fire Station

Precinct 3 — Marks Meadow School

Precinct 4 — St. Brigid's Church Hall

Precinct 5 — Masonic Hall

Precinct 6 — Fort River School

Precinct 7 — Crocker Farm School

Precinct 8 — Munson Library

Tomorrow's Collegian will feature a clip-out form for voters to take to the polls with them to vote for some of the candidates in tomorrow's election.

The following is a list of all 419 meeting candidates and their address:

PRECINCT I

11 Leigh F. Andrews, 260 Leverett Road
35 Anne S. Awad, 180 Pine Street
27 Leon A.J. Barkowski, 1069 North Pleasant Street
36 Marcia C. Bates, 11 Pine Street
5 Hugh F. Bell, 115 Montague Road
22 Priscilla A. Bernotas, 181 Sunderland Road
21 William W. Boyer, 16 Berkshire Terrace
19 Cindy L. Brock, 6 Puffton village
33 Steven W. Brode, 1117 North Pleasant St.
41 Michael F. Canavan, 81 Meadow St.
23 Kathleen J. Carlson, 346 Puffton Village
45 Allan C. Carpenter, 40 Fairview Way
26 Harold W. Cary, 29 Summer Street
8 Barbara S. Chase, 306 Montague Road
10 Cornelia B. Church, 33 Pine Street
49 Peter d'Errico, 141 Fairview Way
39 Doris M. Dickinson, 138 Sunderland Road
47 James M. Dungan, 158 Summer Street
12 Mary Efferen, 37 Fairview Way
15 William W. Ford, 562 Montague Road
7 John J. Gawienowski, 902 East Pleasant St.
4 Nancy E. Gillis, 562 Pufftòn Village
25 Marilyn A. Gonter, 888 East Pleasant St.
51 Hilda B. Greenbaum, 298 Montague Road
1 William P. Gurski, 216 Pine Street
57 Richard D. Harper, 5 Valley Lane
37 Philip P. Jalbert, 48 Presidential Apts.
44 Marjorie E. Karlson, 22 Riverside Park Apts.
29 Charles A. Kuzmeski, 255 Pine Street
14 Pauline A. Kuzmeski, 255 Pine Street
9 Brenda Lashway, 345 Pine Street
38 Barbara A. Laurent, [illegible] North Village
34 Carol R. Lentilhon, 77 Rolling Ridge Road
46 Robert W. Lentilhon, 77 Rolling Ridge Road
28 Robin Macdonald, 1177 North Pleasant St.
16 Patricia Jean McLaughlin, 36 East Leverett Road
31 Gail A. Mendosa, 93 Puffton Village
13 Richard H. Minear, 191 Rolling Ridge Road
40 Vincent Joseph O'Connor, 125 Summer Street
58 Kenneth R. Padelford, 378 Old Montague Road
43 Benjamin H. Page, 563 Montague Road
50 Robert K. Patterson, 340 Montague Road
30 Ernest E. Paulin, 111 Meadow Street
Jonathan V. Post, 239 Puffton Village
Stephen P. Puffer, Jr., 64 Montague Road
Richard A. Rohde, 870 North Pleasant Street
Martin Sevoian, 167 Montague Road
Brent W. Spears, 47 Summer Street
Alan G. Suprenant, 346 Puffton Village
Diana Lizotte Souza, 521 Puffton Village
Mary Szala, 1102 North Pleasant Street
May E. Szwacz, 10 Pine Street
Jesse I. Tillotson, 52 Mill Hollow Apartments
Jill D. Wallach, 68 Puffton Village
Ellen R. Wolf, 41 Berkshire Terrance
Eugene C. Worman, Jr., 125 Montague Road
Gregory J. Yost, 816 North Pleasant St.
Victor J. Zumbruski, 105 Leverett Road

PRECINCT II

15 Joan A. Arbetter, 329 Butterfield (UMass)
75 William M. Barnes, 112 High Point Drive
31 Eugene M. Battistoni, Jr., 79 Market Hill Road
5 Sara Berger, 459 Flat Hills Road
54 Joyce A. Berkman, 66 Cottage Street
85 Alfred W. Boicourt, 43 Butterfield Terrace
72 Ann C. Boyer, 663 East Pleasant Street
64 Gerald P. Brophy, 70 Red Gate Lane
77 Deborah F. Brown, 194 Village Park
2 Frank J. Bukoski, 999 East Pleasant Street
45 Nonny Burack, 57 Village Park Apts.
14 Joan L. Burgess, 36 Mt. Pleasant Street
63 Dolores C. Chisholm, 20 Grantwood Drive
28 Robert C. Chisholm, 20 Grantwood Drive
73 N. Laurie Clark, 133 Chestnut Street
9 Pearl Claunch, 27 Hills Road
1 Marjorie B. Day, 265 East Pleasant Street
17 Christine Eckardt, 83 Village Park Apts.
65 Arthur Elkins, 54 Wildwood Lane
69 Helen L. Field, 20 Hills Road
84 Barbara C. Ford, 300 Flat Hills Road
79 Norman C. Ford, Jr. 300 Flat Hills Road
13 Francis Fox, 180 North Whitney
22 Andrew K. French, 116 High Street
11 Karen A. French, 116 High Street
83 Marsha Goldman, 304 Butterfield (UMass)
4 Kirby M. Hayes, 635 East Pleasant Street
37 Barry R. Holstein, 226 East Pleasant STreet
3 Flora B. Hosford, 22 Eames Avenue
39 Elizabeth S. Ivey, 72 Blackberry Lane
41 Robert J. Joy, 119 North Whitney Street
40 Edward R. Kaynor, 460 Market Hill Road
38 David R. Knightly, 41 Cottage Street
50 Sandra G. Knightly, 41 Cottage Street
82 Frances A. LaMontagne, 176 Gray Street
52 Edwin A. LaSalle, 117 Chestnut Street
53 Marie E. Litterer, 58 High Point Drive
48 Donald L. Mader, 683 East Pleasant Street
25 Elaine J. Mange, 160 Gray Street
32 Edward R. Markert, Jr., 105 Gray Street
42 George A. Marston, 323 East Pleasant Street
7 Clinton E. May, 649 East Pleasant Street
71 Brian D. McCullough, 2 Bridge Street
29 Surinder K. Mehta, 30 Hitching Post Road
49 Barbara A. Mitchell, 340 North East Street
20 Louis R. Morrell, 36 Morgan Circle
61 Elinor M. Morton, 165 North Whitney Street
24 Stewart K. Morton, 165 North Whitney Street
70 William J. Mullin, 10 Forestedge Road
44 Lynn Nakkim, 104 Village Park
19 Gerald T. O'Neil, 166 North Whitney
30 Kathleen A. O'Neil, 166 North Whitney
59 Christopher A. Pickering, 365 Henry Street
23 Mary Jane R. Pi-Sunyer, 133 High Point Drive
21 Sarah T. ~~Rlantinga~~, 761 North East Street
55 Scott J. Plotkin, 23 Forestedge Road
8 Walter J. Popper, 132 High Street
74 Jeaane F. Potash, 130 Red Gate Lane
33 Arthur R. Quinton, 75 Red Gate Lane
78 Saul A. Rigberg, 83 Village Park Apt.
80 Margaret R. Roberts, 2 Hills Road
51 Frederick S. Rogers, 18 Village Park Apts.
36 Herbert D. Rollason, Jr. 34 Red Gate Lane
46 Anne S. Ruder, 336 Market Hill Road
56 Byron K. Ruth, 238 East Pleasant
66 Daniel H. Schwartz, 84 Eames Avenue
76 Lawrence L. Shea, 160 Village Park Apts.
16 John W. Sherman, 54 Eames Ave.
62 Vera M. Sherman, 54 Eames Avenue
60 Robert L. Shumway, 309 East Pleasant Street
47 Alison C. Simcox, 23 Forestedge Road
57 Glenn H. Snoeyenbos, 42 Hills Road
10 Otto L. Stein, 140 Red Gate Lane
12 James P. Sullivan, 100 Gray Street
81 Michael E. Sullivan, 28 Village Park Apts.
58 Benjamin A. Surner Jr., 68 Cherry Lane
68 Joanne F. Talbot, 40 High Point Drive
6 Joan C. Tippett, 155 Village Park
67 Patricia E. Wagner, 362 North East Street
35 Robert W. Wagner, 47 Red Gate Lane
34 Thomas O. Wilkinson, 65 Hills Road
27 Karol S. Wisnieski, 193 East Pleasant STreet
18 Jack S. Wolf, 135 Red Gate Lane
26 Joan J. Wysocki, 348 Henry Street
43 Robert J. Zakaitis, 475 Market Hill Road

PRECINCT III

21 Laura Mae Alpert, 407 Dickinson — UMass
45 William P. Annable, 20 Frost Lane
5 Adam Auster, 409 Dickinson, UMass
6 Sonya Bergquist, 48 Van Meter Drive
13 Robert S. Bond, 102 Harlow Drive
16 Shirley S. Brown, 94 Van Meter Drive
26 Diane Chajes, 28 Frost Lane
7 Donald W. Coole, 309 Webster, UMass
35 Janet W. Dakin, 650 East Pleasant St.
24 Winthrop S. Dakin, 650 East Pleasant St.
29 Richard A. Damon, Jr. 120 Van Meter Drive
12 Frank A. Decker, Jr., 846 East Pleasant St.
41 Katherine C. Decker, 846 East Pleasant St.
38 Brian K. DeLancey, 412 Webster, UMass
37 Eric C. Forsgard, 322 Wheeler, UMass
30 Jean M. Fox, 676 East Pleasant St.
31 Thomas W. Fox, 676 East Pleasant Street
10 Lawrence D. Gerzog, 707-B Cashin, UMass
49 Hilda H. Golden, 49 Ridgecrest Road
15 Morris Golden, 49 Ridgecrest Road
2 Henry H. Hagedorn, 108 Harlow Drive
39 Elizabeth B. Hartzler, 87 Harlow Drive
47 Susan J. Hoffman, 422 Dickinson, UMass
9 Leigh N. Hosley, 36 Frost Lane
40 Merle L. Howes, 610 East Pleasant St.
44 Ray L. Howes, 610 East Pleasant St.
34 Steven M. Leibowitz, 503D McNamara, UMass
28 Donald R. Marion, 12 Hartman Road
52 Glenn A. Marston, 224 Hamlin
14 Doris A. Maynard, 844 East Pleasant St.
50 Rosemary McCarthy, 621 Webster (UMass)
25 Robert M. Melia, 209D Brown, UMass
8 Frank R. Moran, 27 Harlow Drive
3 John Morton, 29 Frost Lane
33 Glen Thomas Munroe, 408 Dickinson, UMass
32 Richard J. Murphy, Jr. 11C Brown, UMass
20 Katherine Ann Ozer, 627 Dickinson, UMass
23 Beverly J. Pacheco, 26 Crestview Apts.
48 David J. Pacheco, 26 Crestfiew Apts.
11 Armando Parces-Enriquez, 408 Dickinson (UMass)
46 Jeffrey S. Perchak, 868 East Pleasant Street
36 Catharine C. Porter, 220 Rolling Ridge Road
27 William N. Rice, 115 Van Meter Drive
4 Leo T. Richard, 309 Brooks, UMass
19 Larry S. Roberts, 19 Nelson Circle
51 Richard S. Scire, 309 Hamlin, UMass
17 Gary Shuster, 319 Webster, UMass
22 Leverne J. Thelen, 208 Rolling Ridge Road
42 Thomas P. Tooley, 436 Baker, UMass
18 Scott A. Wieler, 726 Webster, UMass
1 F. Earl Williams, 802 East Pleasant Street
43 Albert L. Wrisley, Jr., 132 Van Meter Drive

PRECINCT IV

8 Bonnie Acker, 44B North Prospect Street
21 Mary E. Andrews, 334 Lincoln Ave.
9 Elisa K. Campbell, 220 North Pleasant Street
27 Ellen M. Caracciolo, 44B North Prospect Street
2 Mark F. Cavanaugh, 610 John F. Kennedy
35 Franklin A. Dorman, 19 John F. Kennedy
26 Edwina L. Fish, 30 Hallock Street
20 Dorothy D. Fraser, 33 Sunset Avenue
36 Constantine J. Gilgut, 259 Lincoln Ave.
29 Donald E. Hastings, 32 North Prospect Street
19 Mark Howards, 346 Cance
24 Wayne A. Howard, 33 Cosby Ave.
10 Frank P. Irish, 83 North Prospect
32 Chong W. Lee, 145 Sunset Ave.
11 Lewis C. Mainzer, 87 McClellan Street
18 Peter B. Manning, 61 Fearing St.
16 John C. Marchant, 30 Fearing Street
7 Francis X. Mazzei, 16 McClellan St.
3 Norma L. McCartney, 245 Amity St.
4 Robert M. McClung, 91 Sunset Ave.
31 Barbara M. McGarrah, 17 Elm Street
1 Bernard R. Moreau, 149 Sunset Ave.
33 Julius Muskus, 10 McClellan St.
30 Leslie A. Nary, 29 Phillips St.
37 Michael J. Parenti, 83 North Prospect St.
25 Christina Platt, 38 Cosby Ave.
13 Robert H. Plattner, 60 Fearing St.
22 Carol A. Schnuer, 41 Phillips St.
15 Harriett S. Shapiro, 135 Lincoln Ave.
17 Jim H. Starr, 44 North Prospect St.
12 Mary K. Steinway, 197 Amity St.
28 Mary Sidney Treyz, 306 Lincoln Ave.
23 Joseph L. Tudryn, 405 Amity Street
5 Elma K. Varley, 269 Lincoln Ave.
6 H. Leland Varley, 269 Lincoln Ave.
34 Beverly J. Weeks, 100 North Prospect St.
14 Willard T. Weeks, 100 North Prospect St.

PRECINCT V

1 Elizabeth M. Allen, 49 South Pleasant St.
24 George M. Andrews, 60 Main Street
19 Anne K. Bain, 33 Dana Place
20 George W. Bain, 33 Dana Place
32 Mildred A. Beals, 87 Woodside Avenue
39 John N. Brigham, 60 Dana Street
34 Patrick E. Brock, 30 South Whitney Street
43 Charles Chase, 200 College Street
42 Elizabeth A. Chickering, 31 Spring Street
40 Helen O. Collery, 271 South Pleasant Street
13 Pauline R. deSherbinin, 47 Triangle Street
91 Clover M. Drinkwater, 227 South Pleasant Street
12 Mary T. Dudley, 275 North Pleasant Street
15 Violet S. Durgin, 52 Hitchcock Road
16 Norman M. Enman, 38 Lessey Street
5 Patricia T. Fischer, 22 Seelye Street
7 Robert F. Fischer, 22 Seelye Street
35 Brenda J. Foley, 27 So. Whitney Street
30 Brett R. Foley, 27 So. Whitney Street

TURN TO PAGE 15

Go for a Master's...

Only a master ale-maker can brew McSorley's Cream Ale. It takes knowledge that doesn't come overnight to develop a hardy brew. Bold and invigorating. Robust. Full-bodied. Yet smooth every sip of the way.

Only a master can brew the aroma — and the flavor that says it's McSorley's.

McSorley's.
The Ale Master's Ale
McSorley's
CREAM
ALE

We've Expanded

We've Relocated

NOW IN THE CENTER OF TOWN
THE ART SHOP

tel. (413) 256-8159
23 No. Pleasant St., Amherst Ma. 01002

Kopelev expelled from Soviet Union of Writers

MOSCOW [UPI] — Lev Kopelev, a writer and human rights campaigner believed to have been the model for Alexander Solzhenitsyn's novel "The First Circle," said yesterday he has been expelled from the official Soviet Union of Writers. Kopelev, 64, said he believed the action was taken because of his support for dissidents, including his signature on a petition calling for the release of Alexander Ginzburg, the poet and human rights activist arrested by the KGB in February.

Expulsion from the writers union means Kopelev cannot publish his works in the Soviet Union and can get no state-approved job, including translations.

The writer said he learned of his expulsion from colleagues but had not yet been informed officially.

The expulsion came two weeks after the union ejected poet and novelist Vladimir Kornilov, accused of being a traitor for publishing in the West. Kornilov was the first author expelled in three years.

Kopelev, whose book about his World War II experiences in Germany was published in the West last year, said in a letter to the union he would not appeal "because everything that I am supposed to be guilty of was determined by my sense of moral and civil duty."

In his letter, made available to Western correspondents, Kopelev said he was guilty only "of defending those who have been unjustly persecuted and of protesting against attempts to resurrect Stalinism."

Kopelev's book "Not to be Destroyed" has appeared in West Germany and is scheduled for publication in the United States and Britain.

Finast SUPERMARKETS

FREE one quart bottle Regular or Sugar Free Sprite
With this coupon. Limit one. Valid April 3-9, 1977 H-989 TX MFG

5 lb bag Gold Medal Flour 58¢
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid April 3-9, 1977 H-992 FN

30¢ off one dozen Finast Fresh Large Size Eggs
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid April 3-9, 1977 H-995 FN

Flowers for Your Easter enjoyment! available starting Tuesday

Easter Lilies 4 blooms or more 5½ inch pots 3.79 ea

U.S. Brand Confectioners Sugar also Light Brown 3 1-lb pkgs $1

Holiday Specials this Week!
Finast Soda all Flavors 3 28 oz btls 89¢
Mashed Potatoes Big Tate-equivalent to 10 lbs of Potatoes 28 oz pkg 99¢
Sweet Mixed Pickles Finast Brand qt jar 99¢
Carnation Coffee-mate 22 oz jar 1.39
Trailer Sweet Peas 9 8 oz cans 1.00
Nabisco Oreos Creme Sandwich also Oreo Swiss 15 oz pkg 79¢
Cranberry Sauce Ocean Spray Jellied 3 16 oz cans 1.00
Dole Pineapple Chunk or Sliced 20 oz can 55¢

Trellis Corn Cream Style or Vac Pak 9 8½ oz cans $1

6 bulbs per pot Tulip Plants 6 inch pots 2.99 ea
6 inch pots Azalea Plants 3.99 ea
Mum Plants Assorted Colors 6 inch Pots ea 3.79
Cinneraria Assorted Colors 6 inch Pots ea 3.99
Hydrangeas Pink, Blue, Purple 2 to 3 Blooms ea 4.99
Orchid Corsages Single Flower ea 1.69
Hyacinth Assort Colors-6 inch Pots 3 blooms ea 2.99
Bouquets Freshly Cut Pom Poms, Carnations, Statice & Greens ea 1.79

BONUS BARGAINS
Hawaiian Punch All Flavors 46 oz can 49¢
Hi-C Fruit Drinks 2 46 oz cans 89¢
Green Giant Whole Kernel or Cream Style Corn 3 17 oz cans 1.00
Hormel SPAM Luncheon Meat 7 oz can 59¢
Spaghetti-O's Franco American 4 14¾ oz cans 1.00
Spaghetti Sauce Progresso 16 oz jar 53¢
Tomato Paste Contadina 4 6 oz cans 1.00
B&M Pea Beans 21 oz can 59¢
Kraft Mayonnaise imitation pt jar 59¢

Frozen Foods for the Holiday!
Tree Sweet Orange Juice 5 6 oz cans $1
BreadDough Rhodes 5 lb pkg 99¢
Vegetables Finast Peas, Corn or Peas and Carrots 24 oz pkg 59¢
Sliced Strawberries Sun Fresh 10 oz pkg 39¢
Creem Whip Finast Topping 9 oz ctn 49¢
Pound Cake Chock Full O' Nuts 16 oz loaf 99¢

Fully Cooked Hams Shank Portion 79¢ lb
Butt Portion lb 89¢
Whole or Shank Half lb 89¢ Butt Half lb 99¢

MEAT STREET U.S.A.!

Oven Ready Rib Roast First Cut 9th to 12th Rib USDA CHOICE 1.69 lb
Formerly 1st to 4th Rib

Fully Cooked Portions Water Added
Semi-Boneless Hams 1.49 lb
USDA Choice Beef Large End Bone In
Extra Trim Rib Steak 1.79 lb
Arm Picnic-US Government Inspected
Fresh Pork Shoulder 68¢ lb
Boneless USDA Choice
Beef Rib Eye Steak 2.59 lb
Average Weight 10 to 12 lbs (Half Rib Eye 2.39 lb)
Whole Beef Rib Eye 2.19 lb

Fresh Hams Whole or Shank Portion (Butt Portion lb 1.09) lb 99¢
Fresh Pork Roast Boneless Boston Butt lb 1.09
Pork Blade Steaks Fresh Bone In lb 1.09
Fresh Pork Butts Bone In Whole lb 99¢
Ham Portions Boneless Herrud Brand lb 1.79
Ham Steaks Boneless Herrud Brand lb 1.99

Porzio's "Snow White" Fancy Veal!
Veal Scallopini 2.58 lb
Leg or Rump of Veal 1.28 lb
Shoulder Veal Chops lb 1.28
Rib Veal Chops lb 1.48
Loin Veal Chops lb 1.68

USDA A GRADE
Fresh Hen Turkeys 8 to 14 lbs 58¢ lb
also Finast Frozen Hen Turkeys with pop-up thermometer 5 to 9 lbs

Seafood Specials this Week!
Turbot Fillet Frozen Greenland 99¢ lb
RedSilverSalmon Whole or Half (Sliced lb 1.99) lb 1.79
FrozenDressedWhiting lb 49¢
FrozenShrimp Ideal for Cocktails Peeled and Deveined lb 1.99
Jumbo Shrimp Frozen Peeled & Deveined lb 5.89
Stuffed Clams Large Frozen 30 oz pkg 1.69

Mr. Deli Favorites!
Roast Beef Cooked Freshly Sliced to Order 1.99 lb
Redi Baked Virginia Baked Ham Whole or Half 1.99 lb
Domestic Cooked Ham 1.99 lb
Easter Kielbasa Hillshire Farms lb 1.29
Carando Pepperoni lb 1.79
Genoa Salami Carando Whole or Half lb 1.59
Hard Salami B/C Whole or Half lb 1.59
Domestic Provolone for Slicing lb 1.69
Imported Swiss Cheese lb 1.99
Sour Dough San Francisco 1-lb loaf 59¢
Butter Cookies Danish Imported 1-lb tin 1.99
Available Only in Finast Stores with Mr. Deli Depts

Finast Welcomes FOOD STAMP CUSTOMERS

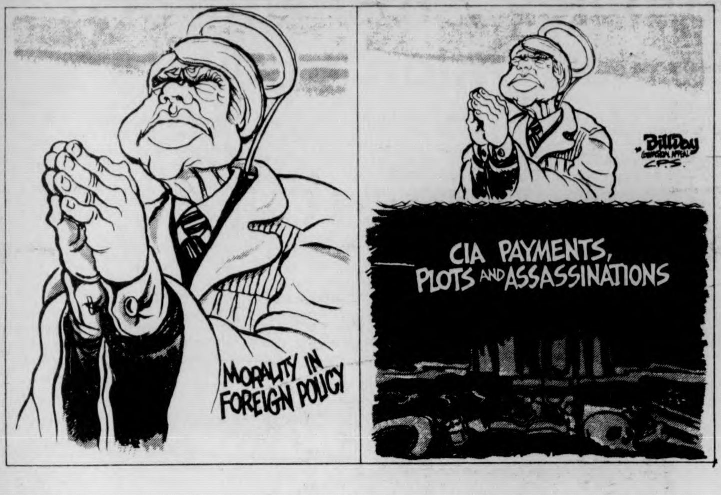
FIRST O' THE FRESH
Fresh California Asparagus 69¢ lb
Oranges 9 $1
Grapefruit 5 $1
AnjouPears 10 79¢
Fresh Pascal Celery 49¢
California Carrots 3 89¢
Idaho Potatoes 5 89¢
Holiday Fruit Tray 2.49

Fresh from Baker Street!
Big Round Top White Bread Finast Fresh 3 20 oz lvs $1
Fresh Rolls Finast Salad or Cloverleaf 2 pkgs 89¢
English Muffins Finast 3 pkgs $1
Hot Cross Buns Finast Fresh 14 oz pkg 79¢
Babke Cake 18 oz pkg 1.09

For Your Health & Beauty!
Listerine Mouthwash 1.59
Bayer Aspirin Tablets 89¢
Alka Seltzer 99¢
Prell Shampoo 1.29
Flex Conditioner 1.39

Sunrise Fresh Dairy Values!
Blue Bonnet Margarine Quarters 2 1-lb pkgs 89¢
Cheese Kraft Deluxe American Slices pkg 99¢
Finast Mozzarella pkg 69¢
Ricotta Cheese pkg 1.89
Finast Sour Cream 16 oz ctn 59¢
Buttermilk Biscuits Finast Brand 8 oz ctns 8 $1

Prices effective April 3 thru April 9, 1977
We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities
Not Responsible for Typographical Errors



MORALITY IN FOREIGN POLICY
CIA PAYMENTS, PLOTS AND ASSASSINATIONS
BillDay COMMERCIAL APPEAL CPS.

— from our perspective —

Town elections and you

Tomorrow's town elections in Amherst should be of great interest to all UMass students — especially those who are registered to vote here.

As a consequence of a new state law, Amherst was redistricted into eight new voting precincts, a move which necessitated holding elections for all 240 of the Town Meeting seats. (Town Meeting is Amherst's legislative body.)

Since the entire body will be voted in on Tuesday, the election presents students with an unprecedented opportunity to become involved in local government and thus shape policy which has a profound effect on how we live. Some important issues in which all students have a stake include rent control, mandatory rental housing inspections, nuclear waste transport through the town, bypass road construction, and numerous others.

Student tenants should recognize that while tenants represent some 50 per cent of the town's non-dorm residents and pay about 30 per cent of its taxes, they receive relatively little return on their investment. Tenants have little input in the government, and benefit less from the local school system, since they have relatively fewer children.

Thus whether you live on or off campus, the election is of concern to you. After all, if you are registered to vote here, the Amherst government is supposed to be your government as much as anyone else's.

Luckily, there are many students running for town meeting, as well as numerous people who have shown great concern for student and tenant issues. We don't have space to name them all, although they all deserve your support and vote.

Lists of progressive candidates are being circulated around campus and appearing in the Collegian. Student voters might be interested in consulting these.

The glaringly inequitable representation of students in local government can finally be remedied if students take the initiative to get out of the polls. It would be a shame if registered student voters who may have cast their votes for the national elections fail to "exercise their right" on Tuesday. The outcome of this election will surely have as great an impact on our daily lives as the 'big one' last November.

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of a majority of the Collegian Board of Editors.

— letters —

Local candidates need your support

To the Editor:

Tomorrow, Tues., A[illegible] 5th, are the Amherst town elections. We urge each and every student that is registered to vote in Amherst to do so. There are many students and other progressive people on the ballot running for town meeting. They need and deserve your vote. Town meeting is made up of 240 elected representatives. This body is responsible for approving all major money allocations and the passing of town laws.

Some of the major issues coming up this spring are: rent control, mass transit expansion, diversion of the Connecticut River, building of the Montague nukes and the Northeast bypass. This is the first time slates of students and other progressive people have been organized in each precinct. But getting on the ballot and organizing into slates was the easy part; the hard part is getting students, who are registered voters in Amherst, out to vote on election day. The only way these slates of students will get elected is if other students vote for them.

You and your friends can help by voting for the progressive slate in your respective precinct. There is power in numbers, and there are thousands of students who are registered to vote. The potential is there — let's use it. Take the time to vote tomorrow. Together, we can make it happen.

If you don't know what precinct you are registered in, call the Town Clerk's office: 253-9382. The number next to each name indicates position on ballot. You can take this list into the voting booth with you.

PRECINCT 1 — NORTH AMHERST PARISH HALL (OPPOSITE WATROBA'S), 4. Nancy Gillis, 6. Brent Spearis, 12. Mary Efferen, 13. Richard Minear, 15. William Ford, 17. Diane Lizotte-Souza, 19. Cindy Brock, 23. Kathleen Carlson, 25. Marilyn Ganter, 28. Robin MacDonald, 32. Alan Suprenaut, 37. Philip Jalbert, 38. Barbara Laurent, 40. Vince O'Conner, 41. Michael Canavan, 42. Eugene Worman, 44. Marjorie Karlson, 47. James D'Errico, 52. Jill Wallach, 54. Jonathan Post, 56. Ellen Wolf.

PRECINCT 2 — NORTH FIRE STATION, EAST PLEASANT ST., 8. Walter Popper, 10. Otto Stein, 12. James Sullivan, 15. Joan Arbetter, 17. Christina Eckhardt, 23. MaryJane Pi-Sunyer, 25. Elaine Mange, 29. Suninder Nehta, 33. Arthur Quinton, 37. Barry Holstein, 40. Edward Kayner, 44. Lynn Nakkim, 45. Nonny Burack, 51. Fred Rogers, 54. Joyce Berkman, 56. Bryan Ruth, 70. William Mullin, 76. Lawrence Shea, 72. Deborah Brown, 78. Saul Rigberg, 80. Margaret Roberts, 81. Michael Sullivan, 83. Marsha Goldman

PRECINCT 3 — MARKS MEADOW SCHOOL (BEHIND SCHOOL OF ED. BLDG.), 2. Beverly Pacheco, 4. Leo Richard, 5. Adam Auster, 7. Donald Coole, 10. Lawrence Gerzog, 11. Armando Parces-Enriquez, 17. Gary Shuster, 18. Scott Wieler, 20. Katherine Ozer, 22. Leverne Thelan, 25. Robert Melia, 32. Richard Murray, 33. Glen Munroe, 34. Steven Leibowitz, 37. Eric Forsgard, 38. Brian Delancy, 42. Thomas Tooley, 47. Susan Hoffman, 48. David Pacheco, 50. Rosemary McCarthy, 51. Richard Scire.

PRECINCT 4 — ST. BRIGID'S CHURCH HALL, NORTH PROSPECT ST., 2. Mark Cavanaugh, 8. Bonnie Aker, 9. Elisa Campbell, 10. Frank Irish, 17. Jim Starr, 25. Christina Platt, 27. Ellen Caracciolo, 30. Leslie Nary, 35. Frank Dorman, 37. Michael Parenti.

PRECINCT 5 — MASONIC HALL, MAIN ST., 2. Louise Johnson, 3. Judith Kopec, 9. Clover Drinkwater, 10. Claudette Gardel, 11. Ira Saleitan, 22. David Russell, 25. Robert Winston, 27. Nancy Hirsh, 32. Mildred Beals, 36. Nora Hertzfeld, 37. Ken Mosakowski, 38. Charlie Rogers, 40. Helen Callery, 41. Harold Kahn.

PRECINCT 6 — FORT RIVER SCHOOL, SOUTH EAST ST., 3. Joan Logan, 5. Paul Gilmore, 10. Carol Scheurer, 20. Ralph Daniels, 21. Judieth Eckhouse, 23. Kathleen Sczerzenie, 24. George McDowell, 26. Clark Roof, 28. George Scheurer, 30. Andrew vonSalis, 32. Rosanna Fallabella, 34. Joseph O'Connor, 36. Edward Zephir, 37. Philip Sczerzenie, 48. James Harrigan, 50. Thomas Swain.

PRECINCT 7 — CROCKER FARM SCHOOL, WEST ST., 20. Jim Picardi, 26. Jim Chamberlain, 28. Fran VanTresse, Nancy Foster, Robert Griffith, Leslie Heath, Gary Jakacky, James Walker, John Ritter.

PRECINCT 8 — MUNSON LIBRARY, SOUTH EAST ST., Alice Epstein, Ann Mallek, Claire Forbier, Joel Saxe.

I also urge you to vote for Ken Mosakowski for the one-year term of selectman.

Gary Shuster

Workshops on South African oppression

To the Editor:

In an effort to make the public more aware of the terrible discrepancies that exist between whites and blacks in South Africa [such as: per capita income for blacks is $117, for whites it is $2373; black trade unions are illegal; blacks cannot vote; blacks must carry identification passes at all times or be subject to arrest] the South Africa Support Committee has planned a day of workshops on April 4th. Topics to be included are:

10 a.m. South Africa, Another Vietnam? presented by the Veteran's Coalition

11 a.m. A National Strategy for Students to Get the U.S. Out of Africa presented by N.S.C.A.R.

12 p.m. Permanent Revolution in South Africa presented by Mike Egan

12:30 p.m. The Effect of The Black Struggle in South Africa on the Black Struggle in the U.S. presented jointly by Plathell Benjamin and David Sebeko.

1 p.m. The Role of African Women presented by Nana Sheshibe

2 p.m. Is Peaceful Change Possible? presented by Bheki Langa

3 p.m. A History of the African National Congress presented by Themba Vilakazi

All of the workshops will be held on the first floor of the campus center with the exception of the 12:30 one which will be given in the Lumumba Hut of New Africa House. There will be a program of speakers in the campus center auditorium in the evening. On April 5th there will be a rally at 12 noon. Assembling in front of New Africa House, we will then march to Whitmore in protest of the U.S. in South Africa [the U.S. is the second largest foreign investor in South Africa] and specifically, UMass investments in American imperialist corporations in South Africa.

We strongly urge that people make the effort to acquaint themselves with the facts by attending the workshops and join with us in a show of solidarity against white racist regimes.

South Africa Support Committee

Get out and vote

To the Editor:

Tuesday, April 5, is election day for the town of Amherst. Contested townwide offices are a one-year term and two three-year terms on the Board of Selectmen, and terms on the School Committee, Housing Authority, Redevelopment Authority, and Elector under the Oliver Smith Will. Uncontested candidates are on the ballot for Town Meeting Moderator, Jones Library Trustees, and a one-year term on the Redevelopment Authority.

In addition, 471 candidates from eight redistricted precincts are running for the 240 Town Meeting seats. The League has collected and compiled information on all candidates, which was published in the March 30 editions of the Amherst Record and the Dollar Saver.

We urge all registered Amherst voters to go to the polls, open from 12 noon to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, April 5, and VOTE.

Kay J. Moran, President
League of Women Voters of Amherst

Asian American struggle

To the Editor:

There have been many important issues on this campus including budget cuts, faculty unionization, student unionization, sexism, racism [black v. white], and political campaigns. More often than not, these issues have been discussed in terms of blacks and whites, and offered from a white perspective, while Asian Americans have been either ignored or forgotten. The University community should be made aware of the fact that Asians do not view the world only in terms of black-white. We do not deny our existence. Because of the limited number of Asian Americans able to afford the costs of higher education, we have had difficulty in organizing, politicizing, and becoming actively involved in all of the University processes.

However, the Asian American Student Association, in existence for four years, has consistently pursued its goals of unity, solidarity, and the maintenance of a positive identity for all Asians. The A.A.S.A. has planned a region-wide Conference to be held on April 8 and 9, 1977 in the Campus Center Auditorium. The theme of the Conference is entitled, "Aspiring to Liberate; Engagement of personal action to Collective Struggle". The purpose of this conference will be to explore the many aspects of Asian American involvement in American society. With this, we hope to provide the community with a basis for greater understanding and insight of the Asian American struggle.

Russell L. Chin

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.

— commentary —

Grad students: Organize and fight back

By STEVE ORAVECZ

Many people on campus are concerned with Governor Dukakis' proposals for level funding. If his program goes through, or if the legislature does not appropriate adequate increases, UMass could face cutbacks in programs similar to those it absorbed two years ago.

For graduate students, this should be especially disconcerting.

The year before the budget cuts, according to figures in Graduate School Factbooks, UMass spent 5.7 million dollars to support graduate students. In 1975 the figure dropped to 5 million. It is essentially the same this year as it was last year.

The total number of grad students receiving support also fell. In 74-75, 2.270 grads received money. In 75-76, only 1,927 received support. In relation to overall enrollment, this represents a drop from 50 per cent to 42 per cent. If level funding goes through, we could be in for similar cuts, unless grad students are organized to fight back.

The picture becomes more alarming if we break these figures down into the different types of support. The Factbooks give figures for Teaching Assistants and Associates (TA's and TO's), Research Assistants and Associates (RA's and RO's), and fellowships, internships and traineeships.

Most people in the last category and most RA's and RO's receive money which comes from federal or private sources. The budget figure appropriated by the legislature does not directly affect the number of positions available in these categories.

However, for TA's and TO's, nearly all of the money is from state funds. If they are cut, the decrease in the number of TA's and TO's could be reduced significantly. And there may not be money from other sources to take up the slack. Two years ago, the most significant cuts were made in appropriations for TO's. Since TO's are already being phased out, the most likely target is TA's.

In addition to job security, level funding also raises the issue of cost of living increases. The provost's guidelines for TA salaries, for example, calls for $3600 a year to be paid for a full time TA. However, due to fractioning of TA's, the average teaching assistant earns only $2600. This is clearly not an adequate living wage.

The last time TA's received an increase was the '74-'75 school year. The time before that was in 1969. These increases come to about 12 per cent. In the same period, inflation has run to about 40 per cent. In effect, TA's have about two-thirds of the buying power they had eight years ago.

No increases are scheduled for next year, but inflation is expected to run at 6 per cent, further eroding our buying power.

Grad students need to demand that the salary for TA-TO's and RA-RO's be raised, especially if UMass receives an increased budget from the legislature.

Grad student employes are now the only professional employees on campus who are not unionized. These other unions are working for cost of living increases. We need to organize to protect our interests.

It's clear that our jobs are not secure. It's clear that we are making less money (due to inflation) than we did three years ago while many TA's do more work.

All grad students, those who are now employed and those who expect to be employed, need to be concerned. Organize and fight back.

Steve Oravecz is a Collegian Commentator.

Supporting the struggle in Azania

By CHARLES BAGLI

Recently a graduate student misleader complained that too much fuss was being made about a country 10,000 miles away — South Africa. The University trustees have invested over $540,000 (non-state) in corporations that have major investments in South Africa. What's all the noise about these investments?

Africa. In elementary school and high school it was always referred to as the "Dark Continent". A very mysterious place. You know, Stanley and Livingston got lost there. Tarzan split on a Madison Ave. job to go hide out in Africa. Thats what we were taught.

However, it seems in the "Dark Continent" there was always enough light for the British, Dutch, Portuguese, and United States colonialists to see. Gropingly, starting hundreds of years ago, they were able to find the natural resources, slaves, cheap labor, cash crops, and the harbors of Darkest Africa and exploit them.

As these colonialists exploited and oppressed the Africans and their resources, the Africans resisted. This resistance led to throwing Britian out of Kenya, France out of Algeria, and more recently, the Portuguese out of Guinea-Bissau, Mozambique, and Angola.

International attention now is focused on southern Africa: Zimbabwe (Rhodesia); Azania (South Africa), and Namibia (Southwest Africa). And to hear tell from the press, the U.S. is finally playing the role of the "good guy". Carter has even sent Andrew Young to Zimbabwe in support of the so-called black majority rule.

Andrew Young stated in a recent T.V. interview that the U.S. stake in southern Africa isn't very significant. We're afraid he's lying through his teeth. U.S. business makes super-profits from its investments in South Africa (an average of 19.5 per cent on investments, double what they make ripping off the labor of workers here in the U.S.) Over 375 American companies have invested $1.6 billion in South Africa alone!

The apartheid system in South Africa has been a gold mine. But apartheid for the Blacks of South Africa is a nightmare of repressive laws and near starvation level wages, brutal working conditions, high unemployment, forced separation of families and miserable health care. It is a system which treats the African majority as foreigners in their own land and denies them all political rights.

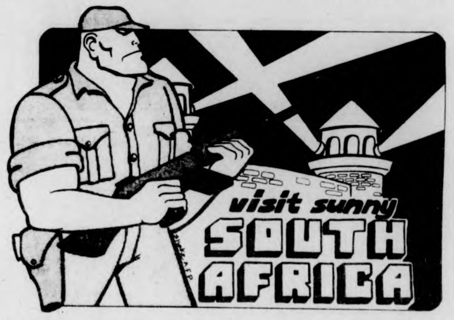
So, one more time, what does this have to do with UMass? Well the problem is that U.S. corporations, in search of greater profits, are in South Africa upholding that brutal regime. UMass trustees, those bankers, those corporate chiefs in the quest for "returns on investments," have invested in corporations without whose support the South African government would fall. This investment condones and upholdes apartheid!

The Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa has demanded that the UMass trustees dump the stock of corporations in South Africa. We feel this is a fair demand.

While the liberation movements of these countries are striking blows against the apartheid and minority rule systems, a world-wide movement of support is developing — helping to cripple these reactionary regimes. Witness: the economic boycott of Rhodesian goods, the sports boycott internationally of South African teams and U.N. resolutions condemning apartheid and minority rule in southern Africa.

Our demand to have the UMass trustees dump the stocks joins with that movement and supports the struggle for liberation. This action may have an economic effect on the corporations and spark students on other campuses to do the same, creating public opinion against apartheid.

But more importantly, this movement helps to cripple these racist regimes. It isolates them politically and limits their ability to call on foreign backers to support them militarily. Without the support of foreign (especially U.S.) imperialism, these regimes wouldn't last more than a few months. And we have the ability to force this country to curtail its support.



When the trustees ask us "oh, we're trying to raise money for the University, you don't want bigger budget cuts, do you?" We're going to have to ask them why it is that under this system, we're always given a choice between different people's needs: support for apartheid versus budget cuts; 18,000 people on the welfare rolls versus a needed pay increase for state employees?

We don't accept "choices". Things don't have to be this way.

We encourage everyone to attend today's teach-in sponsored by the Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa and to come to the demonstration tomorrow.

Charles Bagli is a Collegian commentator.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts · Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Gerard F. Rogers, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

Treasure hunt

By BOB GOLDSMITH

What people are saying about our room simply is not true. I can remember 103 Hamlin being immaculate on at least two occasions, and furthermore, a serious effort to straighten up is made never less than once a year. Still, I'd be the first to admit that my "home" is somewhat less than spotless, the problem centering around a lack of motivation.

In an effort to bring some joy to housework, my roommate (unsuspecting, of course) and I are going to try something new this weekend, that is turn sanitation into a game. The contest, heretofore known as "Janitorial Treasure Hunt", will involve searching for various common and not-so-common items in the room. The catch is as follows: anything picked up, kicked over or run into while hunting must be put away in its proper place. The winner is the one who has accumulated the most treasure before the room is certified as being "totally sterile" by an impartial referee.

Here's the list we're going to use. If you would like to give the sport a whirl, feel free to try it, substituting, of course, for any items which might be unique to our abode.

First some easy ones:

4 matchbooks - all empty
1 pen that will write on a formica desk top
2 matching socks
1 full page of notes, taken by a total stranger
1 living (but non-human) anything. Spiders score bonus points.
6 dead Swedish ivy leaves
2 pencils, both with points and erasers
1 1976-77 UMass telephone directory
1 dirty piece of silverware

Now a few tougher finds:

1 clean piece of silverware
1 salt shaker, not stolen from the dining commons
1 can of fresh tennis balls
1 phone number with "possibilities"
2 syllabuses, syllabusses, or syllabi
3 matching socks
1 current coupon for ten cents off on anything at Stop and Shop, which does not require a $7.50 purchase first 4 coffee stains.

I honestly believe that this idea has half a chance of working. If it does, don't be surprised if you hear about a campus-wide tournament in our room sometime soon. But don't worry; we'll supply the brooms.

THEY NEED YOUR VOTE

-and you need theirs

Many UMass students are running for seats in the Amherst Town Meeting, presumably to represent student interests in such issues as rent control and highway construction. But the only way student interests will be represented in town government is if students registered in Amherst get out and vote.

POLLING PLACES

Precinct 1	- North Amherst Parish Hall (opposite Watroba's store)
Precinct 2	- North Fire Station on East Pleasant Street
Precinct 3	- Marks Meadow School (behind UMass School of Education building)
Precinct 4	- St. Brigid's Church Hall on North Prospect Street
Precinct 5	- Masonic Hall on Main Street
Precinct 6	- Fort River School on South East Street
Precinct 7	- Crocker Farm School
Precinct 8	- Munson Library on South East Street

DIRECTORY OF AMHERST HOUSING BY PRECINCT

Precinct 1

- Brandywine
- Gilreath Manor
- Mill Hollow
- North Village
- Presidential Apts.
- Puffton Village
- Riverside
- Townhouse

Precinct 2

- Butterfield Dorm
- Village Park

Precinct 3

- Central Area Dorms
- Orchard Hill Area Dorms
- Northeast Area Dorms
- Sylvan Area Dorms
- Crestview Apts.
- University Apts.

Precinct 4

- Southwest Area Dorms
- Lincoln Apts.

Precinct 5

- Amherst College
- Crown Point Apts.

Precinct 6

- Colonial Village
- Echo Hill
- Rolling Green
- Swiss Village
- University Park

Precinct 7

- Brittany Manor
- Riverglade Apts.

Precinct 8

- Hampshire College

VOTE TOMORROW
POLLS OPEN NOON—8pm

Check the local newspapers, including the Collegian, to find out who the candidates are and how they stand on the issues. For more information, or to find out what precinct you live in call the Town Clerk's Office at 253-9382.

SGA Director of Communications,

James Gagne

James Gagne

political advertisement

What's Happening

Search for Special Needs children

Massachusetts is conducting a statewide Child Search now through April 8. The purpose of the Massachusetts Child Search is to find all special needs children, ages 3 through 21, who are not in school.

The Massachusetts Child Search public information campaign includes a toll-free number 1-800-882-1424 for parents to call, statewide publicity through daily and weekly newspapers, radio and television stations, and the distribution of more than a million flyers through the local school systems. The flyers are in English and the six other languages most frequently spoken in Massachusetts — Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, Greek, Chinese and French.

In each of the Massachusetts Department of Education's six regions, a Child Search representative will be informing parents of their children's legal right to special educational services and will refer identified children to their local school systems for professional evaluation and individualized program development based on the child's needs.

The 1977 Massachusetts Child Search is required by the new Federal Special Education law.

If you know of a child who is not in school and may be in need of special educational services, call the toll-free Massachusetts Child Search number or write: Massachusetts Child Search, 178 Tremont Street, Boston, Massachusetts, 02111.

Spring blood drive held next week

The annual Spring Blood Drive at UMass will be held April 12, 13, and 14 in the Student Union Ballroom. Hours for the drive are Tuesday 10 a.m. - 3:45 p.m., Wednesday through Thursday 9:30 a.m. - 3:15 p.m. This drive has developed over several years from a one day drive yielding a few hundred pints to a three-day drive held twice a year, once in the fall and again in the spring. Last year about 1547 pints were netted. Volunteers and donors are eligible for Red Cross Blood Bank Insurance.

Registration will take place April 5, 6 and 7 on the Campus Center Concourse between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. In past years so many people have signed up that time has been booked very closely. For their convenience donors are encouraged to make an appointment either by dropping into the Campus Center Concourse during registration week or by contacting Mrs. John Conlon 549-0170. University of Massachusetts faculty can consult the University Weekly Bulletin for a registration form next week. Walkins are however very welcome. Parking is available in the Campus Center Garage.

Teach-in at Mahar on homosexual rights

There will be a teach-in on "gay liberation, lesbianism and socialism" at Mahar Auditorium today at the University of Massachusetts at 8 p.m. The speakers will be: Susan Kayless, a graduate student in Womens' Studies at Sarah Lawrence; John Kyper, a political writer for the "Gay Community News," the major New England gay newspaper; Roz and Banshee, from the Feminist Speakers' Bureau in western Massachusetts; and David Thorstad, past president of the Gay Activist Alliance in New York City and co-author of "The Early Homosexual Rights Movement, 1860-1935.

Dorm searches for committed residents

Butterfield House, a coeducational, cooperative-style dormitory, exists in Central Area at the top of the hill. The dorm houses extensive facilities and specialty areas, including a darkroom, ceramics room, music room, dance room, extensive 16 mm equipment, Mao Tse Tung Memorial Corridor, and an artist-in-residence.

We welcome people who have commitments to dealing with political and social issues and who are open to change. In exchange we have a communal spirit and a desire to grow. Come up and check us out or contact the Head of Residence, Anika Olinga, 546-4538.

Israeli diplomat talks about new US policy

Ra'anan Sivan, the Israeli Consul General in Boston, will be speaking at UMass tomorrow at 4 p.m. in Campus Center 804-808. The topic of his discussion will be "The New Carter Administration and the Old Middle East Deadlock; Is Anything Changing in 1977?

Pro-ball manager exposes $ realities

William Munson, administrative assistant to the vice president and general manager of the Buffalo Bills, will give a lecture in Room 120, School of Business Administration at 4 p.m. today. His topic will be "Realities" of Professional Football." The public is invited to this free lecture.

Expert in Southeast Asia talks Tues.

To find out what is happening with the revolutionary movements in Southeast Asia, and to get information on the increasing role of the United States in suppressing these movements, come to a talk by Southeast Asian specialist Malcolm Caldwell from the School of Oriental and African Studies in London. The talk will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Campus Center 908.

The case against ancient astronauts

Were there Chariots of the Gods? Prof. David J. Van Blerkom of the UMass department of astronomy will discuss the likelihood of ancient visitors from outer space having landed on Earth. The presentation is first in a series of weekly presentations dispelling popular myths.

Van Blerkom will speak tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in the main lounge of Emily Dickinson House on Orchard Hill.

THE HUNGRY-U
PIZZAS & SUBS
"We Deliver"
call 256-0473
103 N. Pleasant St.
FREE CHEESECAKE & SODA
with purchase of Large Combination Pizza
MON 4/4 TO 4/6
FREE SODA WITH A SMALL PIZZA
MON 4/4 TO 4/6

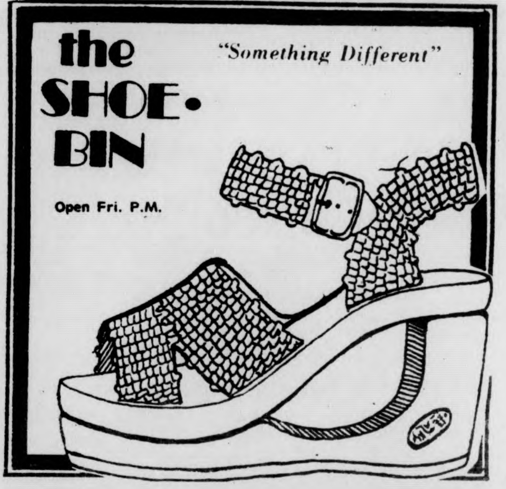
Collegian Staff Meeting

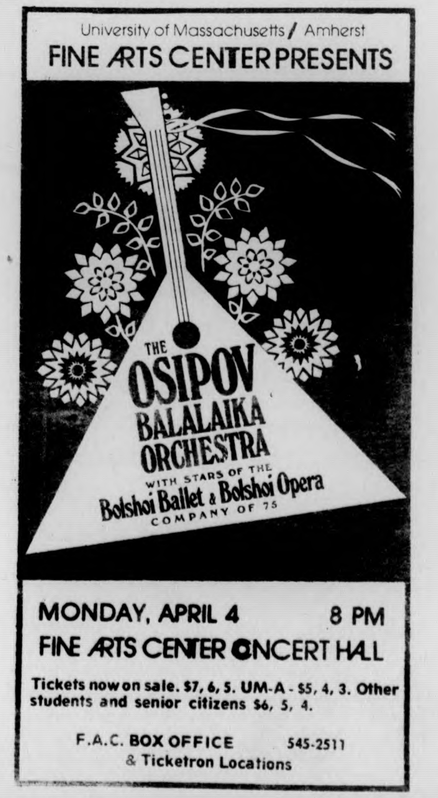
All staff members are urged to attend.

Monday April 4

903 Campus Center

7:30pm.





University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS
THE OSIPOV BALALAIKA ORCHESTRA
WITH STARS OF THE
Bolshoi Ballet & Bolshoi Opera
COMPANY OF 75
MONDAY, APRIL 4 8 PM
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
Tickets now on sale. $7, 6, 5. UM-A - $5, 4, 3. Other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Title IX examines Health Services

The Student Affairs Title IX Self-Evaluation Committee will hold an open hearing to examine and discuss issues relevant to sex discrimination at the University Health Services, tomorrow from 2 - 4 p.m. in HILLS NORTH 222. Title IX is a set of guidelines and criteria established by the U.S. Congress to eliminate discrimination on the basis of sex in any educations program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance. All student, staff and faculty are urged to attend.

Filmmaking workshop offered this summer

UMass, through the Student Activities Office, actively participates as a member of the National Entertainment Conference Activities Association (NECAA). The NECAA, a non-profit organization, is the largest national student-staff association concerned exclusively with aid, information, and education relating to collegiate extra-curricular activites.

Students interested in pursuing some aspect of film-making as a career may apply to participate in the seventh NECAA-Warner Bros. Film Production Workshop. While being basic in design, the workshop necessitates that applicants possess a basic knowledge and background in film making.

The workshop will be conducted at the University of South Carolina at Columbia. A six-week period will be devoted to production of a 16mm sound film. Tentative dates are for either June 6 - July 5 or July 5 - August 16. Selection will be made by May 2, 1977. Applications may be picked up at the Student Activities Office, Rm. 416, Student Union. Applications must be returned before April 12. They will be mailed as a r1om group from the Student Activities Office.

Credit Union now sells food stamps

The UMass Student Federal Credit Union would again like to remind all recipients of food stamps, that Food Stamps are distributed at the credit union.

For your convenience we have designated the first teller window for this purpose. The credit union is open from 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Monday through Friday. We are located in the Student Union Colonial Lounge.

Vincent Harding to speak at Smith

Vincent Harding, president of the board of trustees of the Institute of the Black World, Atlanta, will give the Anna Hunt Billings lecture at Smith College today at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall auditorium at Smith.

Harding, who is currently visiting fellow at the Robert R. Moton Center for Independent Studies in Philadelphia, was active in the Civil Rights movement with Martin Luther King Jr.'s Southern Christian Leadership Conference from 1961 to 1964.

78 candidates for Honorary Degrees?

The Advisory Committee on Honorary Degrees is currently receiving nominations for the 1978 Commencement and is seeking suggestions from the campus community. Candidates for an honorary degree must be men and women of great distinction. Among the factors which will be considered in the granting of honorary degrees are: (a) intellectual attainment of high order in a special field of endeavor, (b) outstanding achievement which the University wishes to recognize, (c) extraordinary contribution to the University and the Commonwealth. Names of outstanding candidates should be sent to Alice Kucinski, Chancellor's Office, Whitmore Building by May 1, 1977. For consideration, nominations must be supported by biographical information.

Veterans Affairs meeting tomorrow

There will be a meeting tomorrow from 7 to 9 p.m. in Campus Center 805 for all veterans and those interested in veterans services and benefits.

New laws and proposed legislative bills that have a great effect on veterans lives and educations will be discussed. Also, the Veterans Affairs Office wants to know what services you would like them to offer to make your life at UMass, and your dealings with the VA, less hectic and more enjoyable.

DC Menu

TODAY

LUNCH — BBQ Beef on a Bun, Link Sausages with Blueberry Pancakes; Basics: Garbanzo Beans and Rice, Vegetable Quiche.

DINNER — Meatloaf Italiano, Baked Ham; Basics: Colache, Fried clams.

TOMORROW

LUNCH — Hot Turkey Sandwich, California quiche; Basics: the same.

Deadline extension for Indian suit

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — President Carter's personal representative in the Maine Indian land claim case says he's confident the Justice Department will seek another extension of the court-imposed deadline on the suit.

William B. Gunter, who recently resigned as a justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, told the Maine Sunday Telegram he'll need two or three more months to sort out the issues in the case and make his recommendation to the President.

The Penobscot and Passamaquoddy Indians claim 12 million acres was taken from them illegally, but have said they will not seek title to private homes or the most heavily populated section of the claim area.

The Justice Department in late February received a continuation of the case until June 1. The delay was to give Carter time to find someone to intervene in the case on his behalf and provide time to try to bring the parties together.

Gunter was Carter's choice and met for the first time Tuesday with the various parties in the suit.

Assistant U.S. Attorney General Peter R. Taft, who heads the Land and Natural Resources Division of the Justice Department, said any request from Gunter for such an extension will be treated very seriously.

The other deadline under which the case is being conducted, the July 18 expiration of the federal statute of limitation for such Indian claims, also may be extended. Taft already has served notice the Justice Department will ask Congress to amend the statute of limitations.

April 22 last chance for pictures

The deadline for senior pictures is approaching fast. Our photographer will not be here after April 22 under any circumstances! Appointment times are filling up fast, so make yours now before it's too late. Call 545-2874 or come to the 9th floor of the Campus Center between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Tired of Eating at the D.C.?

BONANZA RESTAURANT
is now offering a
10% DISCOUNT
On All Their Meals
JUST SHOW YOUR COLLEGE I.D.

Try Our
CATTLEMAN'S CHOICE
ONLY $2.89
Includes
- Choice of Potato or Vegetable
- All the Soup or Salad You Can Eat
- Free Refills on Coffee, Tea or Soda

Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, Mass.
Offer good Mon.-Fri.
(Does not include daily specials)
BONANZA
Open 7 a.m. - 9 p.m.

HP Spring Added Value Days
APRIL 1 THRU MAY 31

An exciting added value when you buy a Hewlett-Packard calculator now.

Free reserve power packs.

During Spring Added Value Days, Hewlett-Packard is adding a free reserve power pack—a $20 value—with the purchase of every HP-21, HP-22, HP-25, HP-25C and HP-27.

It's the best way we know to remind you of the added value you always receive when you buy an HP calculator—like free application books, uncompromising quality, efficient RPN logic system, and exceptional service. Each HP instrument is designed to be the finest of its kind in the world.

New Accessories

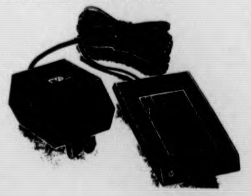
Hewlett-Packard is also introducing two new accessories to increase the value of the HP calculator you may already own:

A DC Recharger/Adapter lets you operate and recharge your HP pocket calculator in cars, boats—wherever a 12-volt DC supply is available.

A Games Pac for the HP-67 and HP-97 includes 19 programs designed primarily for fun but also useful in teaching principles of math, physics and logic.

This special in addition to our regular low prices.
Come in and take advantage of Hewlett-Packard's Added Value Days today!

at the calculator store
the UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
UMass.



Frontier Concerts
Presents
Academy of Music
MAIN ST., NORTHAMPTON

Tom Waits and Leon Redbone
Wednesday, April 13th
Shows 7:30 & 10:30
Tickets: $5 advance, $6 at door

Leo Kottke and Gary Burton & Steve Swallow
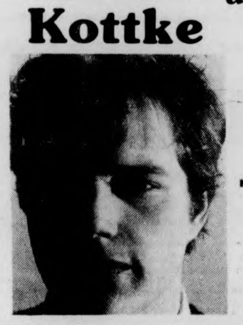
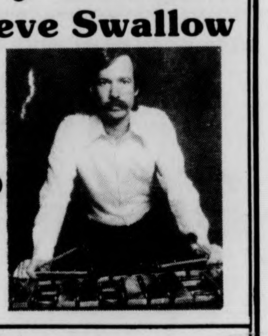
Sunday, April 24th
Shows 7:30 & 10:30
Tickets: $5 advance, $6 at door





Coming May 1st
Jerry Jeff Walker
STEVE GOODMAN

TICKET OUTLETS
Amherst: FACES OF EARTH
SUNSHINE RECORDS
Northampton: TECH HIFI
S. Hadley: GOODBODIES
Springfield: MAIN MUSIC
Hadley: RECORD TOWN
[Mt. Farms Mall]
Greenfield: THE BACKROOM
Chicopee & Westfield:
WAX 'N WANE

★ Candidates

CONT. FROM PAGE 8

10 Claudette Gardel, 177 No. Pleasant St.
45 John P. Gedmin, 598 So. Pleasant St.
33 Shirley M. Gifford, 97 Spring Street
23 Evelyn Goldenberg, 96 Blue Hills Road
18 Robert F. Grose, 147 Woodside Avenue
29 Alfred F. Havighurst, 11 Blake Field
36 Nora A. Hertzfeld, 74 College Street
27 Nancy W. Hirsh, 69 So. Pleasant Street
8 Herbert T. Homme, 260 Amity St.
2 Louise S. Johnson, 9 Grove Street
26 Paul C. Jones, 232 Amity Street
41 Harold E. J. Kahn, 1288 Amherst College
3 Judith A. Kopec, Box 1324, Amherst College
31 James Leheny, 11 Dana Street
37 Kenneth R. Mosakowski, 370 Crown Point Apts.
13 Marion M. Newell, 1 Mattoon Street
44 Norman D. Newell, 1 Mattoon Street
28 John H. Peterson, 37 Spring Street
4 Eleanor D. Quint, 41 Blue Hills Road
38 Charles A. Rogers, 24 Tyler Pl. Apt. No. 4
22 David J. Russell, 49 So. Prospect St.
11 Ira Saletan, 967 Amherst College
17 Janice A. Shumway, 77 No. Whitney Street
21 Richard L. Shumway, 77 No. Whitney Street
6 Helen L. Vivian, 16 South Sunset Ave.
25 R.M. Winston, 55 Gray Street

PRECINCT VI

27 Joan M. Banks, 15 Salem Street
38 H. Oldham Brooks, 32 Hickory Lane
51 Mary E. Carlson, 34 Spaulding Street
49 Neil R. Carlson, 11 Hickory Lane
22 Kenneth D. Cuddeback, 33 Echo Hill Road
35 Ethel Eaton Colt, 115 Heatherstone Road
20 Ralph Daniels, 826 Main Street

The rest of the candidates will appear in tomorrow's Collegian.

Notices

AASA

There will be an important meeting of the Asian-American Student Assoc tonight in Rm 418, New Africa House, at 7:30 p.m. All members are asked to attend as we need help on the upcoming Asian-American conference.

ALL STUDENTS, STAFF AND FACULTY

Are invited to attend an open hearing to examine and discuss issues relevant to sex discrimination in the Health Services tomorrow from 2—4 in 222 Hills North.

ALL HRTA STUDENTS

Are welcomed to attend a seminar led by David Dorf, Director of Education, HSMA Intl. This seminar will take place, today at 1:30 in CC 163.

ARAB STUDENT ORGAN.

Meeting tonight at 7 in CC 915.

BUTTERFIELD FARM CO-OP MEETING

Organ. meeting for all interested in working on student-run farm co-op this spring and summer. Tonight at 9:30 in Butterfield Lounge.

FOUND

Men's wristwatch on East Hadley Rd. Phone 253-7619 and describe.

ISRAELI CONSUL GENERAL TO SPEAK

Ra'anan Sivan will speak on "The New Carter Administration and the Old Middle East Deadlock: Is Anything Changing in 1977." Tomorrow at 4 p.m. in CC 804-08.

LOST

3-Camper stands in Amherst area. Call 549-6084.

FOUND

Near Thoreau. Tell me what it was. 546-7503.

MORTAR BOARD

Meeting to work on selections at 7 p.m. in Skinner 17. Attendance required. Questions call Teresa Wyman at 256-6455.

OUTING CLUB

Tonight in CC 168 at 7 the Outing Club will present a show on the art of rock-climbing. It is guaranteed to crack you up! All are welcome.

PAST AND PRESENT EMERSON RESIDENTS

Storage rooms are being cleaned out. Anything not properly marked by Friday, April 8, will be auctioned.

R.A. POSITIONS

Applications are available for R.A. positions in Washington Upper. Applications can be picked up at the Head of Residence's apt. and are due back by Friday, April 8. Washington Upper is an affirmative-action etc.

RIDE NEEDED

To N. Carolina after Wed. aft. Jill 253-3614.

SAVE THE ST. JOHN

Help save the last wilderness river in the East. CC Concourse tomorrow.

SCUBA SPORT COURSE

Tomorrow in Curry Hicks at 7 p.m. (room 14). Sign up for Sports course.

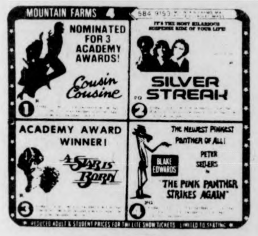
SCHLITZ-A-RAMA

Phi Sigma Kappa will hold Schlitz-A-Rama on Sat., April 30. Get ready for the highlight of Greek week.

SEMINAR ON MEDICINE - Part 4

Tuesday's class will meet in Mahar Aud. at 8 p.m. It is important to get there early (7:30) and to stay after the class is over so attendance can be taken. Guest lecturer is Gregor Mendel, who will speak on Genetics.

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST. NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
SUN-THURS 8:00 ONLY
FRI-SAT 7:00 & 9:10
A MOTION PICTURE HAS NEVER SPREAD SUCH FEAR
The Cassandra Crossing
R
MON-TUES DOLLAR NITES!



MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153
NOMINATED FOR 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
Cousin Cousine
1
SILVER STREAK
2
ACADEMY AWARD WINNER!
A Star is Born
3
THE NEWEST PINKEST PANTHER OF ALL!
PETER SELLERS
BLAKE EDWARDS
"THE PINK PANTHER STRIKES AGAIN"
4
REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI-LITE SHOW TICKETS LIMITED TO SEATING

university of massachusetts arts council presents

TITO PUENTE ORCHESTRA

THURS., APRIL 14 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets now on sale! $6, 5, 4. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

APPEARING TUES & WED
ROOMFULL OF BLUES
AT
The rusty nail Inn
RTE 47
SUNDERLAND
665-4937

Academy of Music
Northampton
NOW at 7:00 & 9:00
(only area showing)
"ONE OF THE YEARS 10 BEST FILMS!"
- Rex Reed
- Time Mag.

a film by
— françois truffaut
small change
No Dollar Nights This Program!

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

Classifieds

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line
Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift Idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

Alto Sax Bundy - special pads & finish. $150 firm. Call Steve 6-9625.

1969 Ford Falcon, blue, 46,000 miles, good running condition. Asking $600.00. 19" Atela 10 speed bicycle - $95.00. 253-7249.

Pentax Spotmatic w-50mm f—1.4 lens & case. Best offer. Call 546-1090. 9 p.m.

Gibson SG std. guitar w-case. Fairly new, in very good cond. $245 or best offer. Call Bob 6-9432.

Gibson ES 330-TD Fender pre CVS amp. Morley fuzz-wah. B. O. 323-4249.

2 14 in. radials. Ex. cond. John, 253-5741.

AUTO FOR SALE

1971 Dodge Demon Slant 6, low mileage, excellent condition. $1700. Al. 549-2854.

'74 Pinto Wgn. 50,000. Ex. cond., 4 spd., std., 4 radials & snws. AM-FM, 8 tr., 4 spkr. $1450. Call eve. 665-3237.

BMW, 1967. Exc. cond. $1200. 256-6459.

'70 Toyota Corona. Ex. cond. Must be seen. $900. Have to sell. 665-3255.

'68 Camaro, vc top, 350 engine, 4v, auto trans., needs work, $400. or best offer. 549-4744.

1976 Dodge Van, custom interior, alarm, rustproofed, more. 1-268-7721.

Volvo parts. 122 & 142. Good prices. 586-0610 anytime.

1968 Ford XL. New tires, good shape. $600 or B. O. 586-0610.

'73 Merc. Capri 2000, green, auto., air, 28,000 mi. Best offer over $1800. 549-6652.

AUTO FOR SALE

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0616 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

1969 Ford Galaxy 500. 78,000 miles. Runs good. $350. 256-8694.

'65 VW Bug. Exc. mech. cond. 35 mpg. $750. 253-3623.

'64 VW Bug. Rebuilt eng. Good cdt. $200. 549-0798.

'68 Volvo 122. Very good shape. $800. 586-0610 anytime.

'66 Dodge Van, rblt. 6 cyl., good tires. $650 or B. O. Kent, 549-1292 after 7 p.m.

1969 Econ 300 Van. $1200. 665-7050.

'68 Buick Skylark. Good condition & good body. $450.00. Linda, 256-0548.

'71 Toyota Corolla. New paint, brakes, valve job. 665-3546 after 10:30 p.m.

'64 Ford Galaxie, mech. v. gd., body lousy. $175. Call 256-8347 after 6.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1970 Kawasaki 500, runs well, very fast. $600. Call 549-1259 or 549-1316.

2 helmets, lock and chain, saddle bags, shields. Call Jeff, rm. 418. 545-0790—91.

'73 Honda 450 CL. 7500 mi. 2 helmets, plus men's and women's brown Harley leathers. All in good cond. $860 or B. O. 549-0179.

'72 Honda 175 in excellent cond. Only 3500 mi. Best offer, 256-0430.

'71 Suzuki TS185. Very good cond. Needs no work. 60 mpg. $345. 256-8074.

FOR RENT

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 + sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

Boston: Ex-large Apt.; 2 bedrm., living, dining, sun porch, front-rear balcony, etc. $260 b.o. June-August—617-426-0871 (days) 782-8015 (nights) Write: Att.: Rob, 147 South St., Boston.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

2 rms. in 2 bdrm. apt. 1 sublet, 1 lease. Puf Vil. June 1. 549-0589.

1 rm. in 2 bdrm. apt. Sund. $100. incl. util. Call 549-1391.

3 br. apt. avail. 5-21 - 8-31. Pool, A-C, ¾ mi. from campus. Call 549-6038.

Apartment: May 23 - Aug. 31. Call: 10 - 2. M-F. Ask for Mike. Leave mess. 545-0189.

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

HELP WANTED

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

HEBREW TEACHER required. Westfield congregation needs a Hebrew teacher beginning Sept. - 1 or 2 afts. a wk. $10—hr. Contact Judy Brown, 7 South St., Westfield, 01085. 562-3224.

Summer jobs — Forest Service, 140 Nat'l Forests. How, where, when to apply. Complete info $3: Mission Mountain Co., Box 727, Polson, Montana 59860.

Non-profit public interest advertising needs photographer to help prepare quality brochure. 25 photo reductions of posters. P. O. Box 476, Northampton.

Waitress needed experienced. Mon.-Fri. days. Apply mornings at the Pub.

Drummer needed for immediate jamming w-guitar, bass, singer. Rock, jazz, blues, anything. Bob 6-9432.

HELP WANTED

$3—hr. Travel Survey on Campus. 4 hr. shifts, 6:30-10:30; 10:30-2:30; 2:30-6:30 p.m. Must be available Wed. 4-13 and—or Wed. 4-20. Call 5-2086 for info.

Small sorority needs pot washer for lunches, dining room worker for lunches, and dinners 5 or 6 days. Meals, plus 2 extra meals. Call 549-1587.

PERSONALS

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

To the girl with the great lips, if they say the first year is only the beginning, then the best is yet to come. —Scoop—

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot: you're alright too. AJF

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

Lizzy F (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie. D.L.

Luxury two bedroom apt. in Sunderland for summer sublet. On UMass bus route, swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low, low rent. Call 665-4729 anytime.

Pay for play! Pay for play! Call Denise G. or Pamela K. 546-1285. Satisfaction guaranteed!

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075

TO SUBLET

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths & terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

1 bedroom apt., Puffton Village, June 1 - Aug. 31. Air cond., pool, tennis courts. Call 549-4789.

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt. at Cliffside in Sunderland, on bus route. Swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low rent. Call 665-4729 and keep trying.

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1 — 8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon., A.C., pool, on bus rt! Call 665-3619.

Boston Summer Sublet — 2 bdrm. apt., lvng rm., kitch. Furn., air cond., reasonable rent. Parking avail. 2 min. from Mass. Transit. Call 546-9709.

3 bdrm. apt. Puf. Vlg. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus route. Approx. grad. - Aug. 31. Pool. Rent neg. Call 256-6051 eve.

4 bdrm. townhouse on bus route. Furn., air cond., pool. June - Sept. 256-0337.

Summer Sublet: 2 bdrm. sunny apt., Northampton Cntr. 15 min. walk to bus. Reasonable. 586-4422.

3 bdrm. Townhouse Apts. June-Aug. $270 or B. O. Call 549-1211 morn., eves.

Summer Sublet: Option to renew. 2 bdrm. Pres. Apt. Walk to campus. 549-5898.

Gorgeous 3 bedrm. apt. 63 Graves St., So. Deerfield, on bus rt. Apt. is very unique, must be seen, call 665-7193.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus rt. Jun. 1-Aug. 31. Semi-furnd., w-w, air cond. Call 549-4766.

2 bdr., Brandywine, exc. bus rt. Beautifully furnished, A.C. pool, 549-4744.

3 bdr., Puff. Vill. On bus rt. 6-1 — 9-1. 549-0748.

AUDIO

Quality components over 130 lines. Reasonable prices. Call Peter, 665-2920.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

Summer and or Fall pl.? Air cond, pool, 5 min. fm. CAMPUS. Stu.-F, 549-1879.

SERVICES

Tune-up and main all AM makes. John 253-5664.

FOUND

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears, cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

Found 3-11 — gold glasses in green case at FAC bus stop. Call 253-3372.

Found nr. Thoreau. Tell me what it was. 546-7503.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

WANTED

Non-smoking, non-drinking, potential veg., very tidy, grad asst. seeks a quiet co-op living situation in Belchertown. $100— inc. Bill 253-7105 or 5-2155.

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

Looking for used quality scuba gear (Lrg.). Call evenings - 253-5410.

LOST

Black vinyl ring binder lost Amherst Environ. Contact owner at 253-7139.

3 golf clubs in S-west fields. Reward. Call Flynt 546-6071.

Gold necklace - chain and charm. Live - Love - Laugh. Sentimental value. Reward offered. 546-8159.

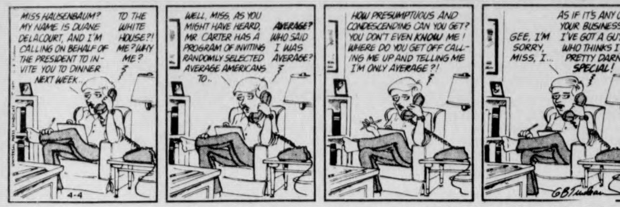
CALCULATORS

New Prices! College Calculators services all T.I.'s for entire warranty! SR-52, $189, SR-56, $82, SR-51, $58; SR-40, $33; Commodore $800, $34.95. All HP's avail! Call and check our prices & service. Call Bob or Linda anytime. 549-1316.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

DOONESBURY by Gary Trudeau

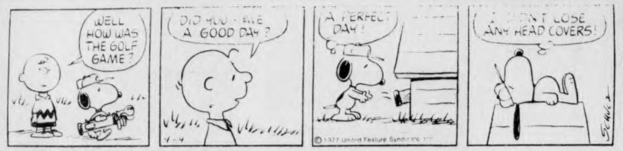
Valley
29 S. Pleasant St
call 2566736
M.-F 10-6 S 10-2



MISS HAUSENBAUM? MY NAME IS DUANE DELACOURT, AND I'M CALLING ON BEHALF OF THE PRESIDENT TO INVITE YOU TO DINNER NEXT WEEK..
TO THE WHITE HOUSE?! ME? WHY ME?
WELL, MISS, AS YOU MIGHT HAVE HEARD, MR. CARTER HAS A PROGRAM OF INVITING RANDOMLY SELECTED AVERAGE AMERICANS TO..
AVERAGE? WHO SAID I WAS AVERAGE?
HOW PRESUMPTUOUS AND CONDESCENDING CAN YOU GET? YOU DON'T EVEN KNOW ME! WHERE DO YOU GET OFF CALLING ME UP AND TELLING ME I'M ONLY AVERAGE?!
GEE, I'M SORRY, MISS, I...
AS IF IT'S ANY OF YOUR BUSINESS, I'VE GOT A GUY WHO THINKS I'M PRETTY DARN SPECIAL!
4-4
GBTrudeau

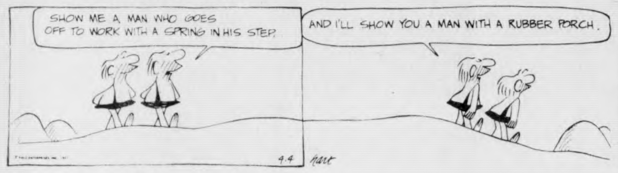
PEANUTS by Charles Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549-5610



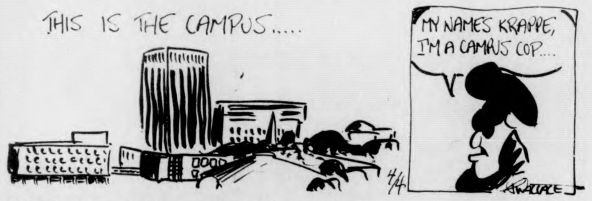
WELL HOW WAS THE GOLF GAME?
DID YOU HAVE A GOOD DAY?
A PERFECT DAY!
I DIDN'T LOSE ANY HEAD COVERS!
4-4
© 1977 United Feature Syndicate
SCHULZ

B.C. by Johnny Hart



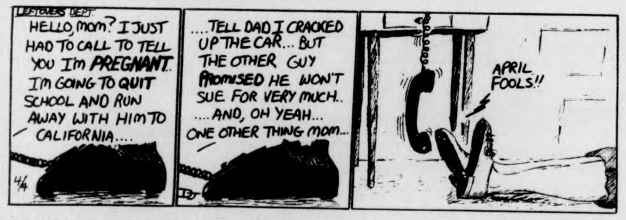
SHOW ME A MAN WHO GOES OFF TO WORK WITH A SPRING IN HIS STEP.
AND I'LL SHOW YOU A MAN WITH A RUBBER PORCH.
4-4
hart

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



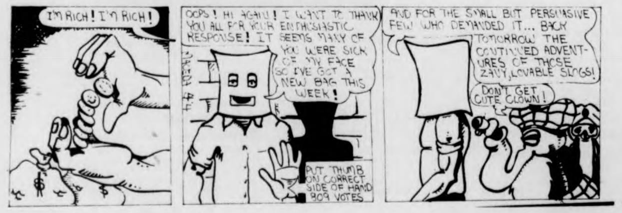
THIS IS THE CAMPUS.....
MY NAMES KRAPPE, I'M A CAMPUS COP....
4/4
WALLACE

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



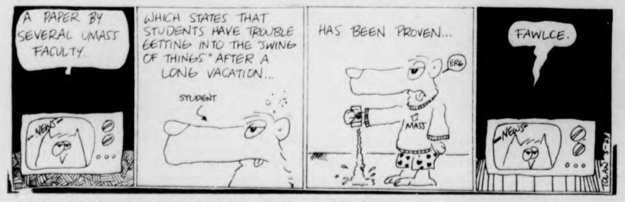
LEFTOVERS DEPT.
HELLO, mom? I JUST HAD TO CALL TO TELL YOU I'm PREGNANT.. I'm GOING TO QUIT SCHOOL AND RUN AWAY WITH HIM TO CALIFORNIA....
....TELL DAD I CRACKED UP THE CAR... BUT THE OTHER GUY PROMISED HE WON'T SUE FOR VERY MUCH.. ....AND, OH YEAH... ONE OTHER THING mom...
APRIL FOOLS!!
4/4

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



I'M RICH! I'M RICH!
OOPS! HI AGAIN! I WANT TO THANK YOU ALL FOR YOUR ENTHUSIASTIC RESPONSE! IT SEEMS MANY OF YOU WERE SICK OF MY FACE SO I'VE GOT A NEW BAG THIS WEEK!
PUT THUMB ON CORRECT SIDE OF HAND 809 VOTES
MACEDA 4/4
AND FOR THE SMALL BUT PERSUASIVE FEW WHO DEMANDED IT... BACK TOMORROW THE CONTINUED ADVENTURES OF THOSE ZANY, LOVABLE SLOGS!
DON'T GET CUTE CLOWN!

THE SCENT OF MAN by Peter Tolan



A PAPER BY SEVERAL UMASS FACULTY..
NEWS
WHICH STATES THAT STUDENTS HAVE TROUBLE GETTING INTO THE "SWING OF THINGS" AFTER A LONG VACATION...
STUDENT HAS BEEN PROVEN...
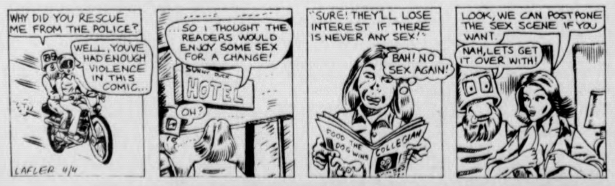
ERG
MASS
FAWLCE.
NEWS
TOLAN 3-29

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



WHY DID YOU RESCUE ME FROM THE POLICE?
WELL, YOU'VE HAD ENOUGH VIOLENCE IN THIS COMIC...
LAFLER 4/4
...SO I THOUGHT THE READERS WOULD ENJOY SOME SEX FOR A CHANGE!
HOTEL
OH?
"SURE! THEY'LL LOSE INTEREST IF THERE IS NEVER ANY SEX!"
BAH! NO SEX AGAIN!
FOOD THE DOG WINS
COLLEGIAN
LOOK, WE CAN POSTPONE THE SEX SCENE IF YOU WANT.
NAH, LETS GET IT OVER WITH!

Local Television

7:00 3 22 40 NEWS
8 CONCENTRATION
18 FESTIVAL OF FAITH
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
27 THE FBI "An Elephant Is Like a Rope"
30 THE CROSS-WITS
38 THE ODD COUPLE
56 STAR TREK
57 AS MAN BEHAVES
7:30 3 THE NEW PRICE IS RIGHT
8 THE GONG SHOW
22 CANDID CAMERA
24 CONNECTICUT
30 THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES
38 DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
40 POLKA
56 FAMILY AFFAIR
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 IT'S THE EASTER BEAGLE, CHARLIE BROWN
8 40 THE BRADY BUNCH HOUR
22 30 LITTLE HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE "Gold Country"
24 57 SIX AMERICAN FAMILIES "The Pasciak Family of Chicago"
27 MOVIE "Alexander's Ragtime Band"
32 NHL HOCKEY
38 IRONSIDE "The Taker"
56 MOVIE "Solomon and Sheba"
8:30 3 RIKKI – TIKKI TAVI
18 POP GOES THE COUNTRY
9:00 3 MAUDE
8 40 MOST WANTED "The Death Dealer"
24 57 THE PALLISERS
38 DOUBLE FEATURE MOVIE "Counterspy" and "The Long Knife"
9:30 3 ALL'S FAIR
10:00 3 THE ANDROS TARGET
8 40 THE FEATHER AND FATHER GANG "Flight to Mexico"
22 30 DEAN MARTIN'S RED HOT SCANDALS OF 1926
24 SOUNDSTAGE
27 NEWS
57 WORLD IN ACTION
10:30 27 JOURNEY TO ADVENTURE
57 WOMAN
11:00 3 22 24 30 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
56 DARK SHADOWS
57 MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN
11:30 3 CBS LATE MOVIE "Kojak: Before the Devil Knows"
8 40 THE STREETS OF SAN FRANCISCO
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
57 CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS
12:30 3 MOVIE "The New Healers"
12:40 8 DAN AUGUST "The King Is Dead"
1:00 22 30 TOMORROW
1:30 3 NEWS, WEATHER
2:00 8 22 30 NEWS

Your Birthday
by Stella Wilder

Monday, April 4— Born today, you are a dreamer at heart -- but one whom life has taught not to trust to dreams for any material success. As a youngster, you may have been the worry not only of your family but of your neighborhood as well, for you were prone to allowing your fancy to get the better of reason and, at times, lead you far astray. As an adult, however, you are careful to keep facts in mind, no matter how interesting the creations of your imagination. You try to save your runaway fancy for your contacts with children, and, in fact, may well develop quite a reputation for children's storytelling.

Your personal relations are more important to you than anything else in life. You will go out of your way to make things right between you and a friend -- even if what has gone wrong can in no way be considered your fault. You will never stand on ceremony with a friend; whatever a friend wishes to have of you is his or hers even without asking. You expect, however, that a friend will have the same strong feelings about you and will go as far in your direction as you will go in his. Should you discover that a one-way street exists, you will object -- but you will not take steps to dissolve the relationship.

Intellectual curiosity is one of the hallmarks of your maturity. Indeed, it is as much a characteristic of your adult years as dreaming was of your youth. You will have to take care, however, that in the exercise of your curiosity you do not give others the impression that you are interfering in their affairs. You are quick and sure in your actions -- but behind the speed and the certainty may be many weeks, perhaps months of decision-making. For although you are one to act swiftly when the time comes, you are not quick to find the moment for action in the first place.

Tuesday, April 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — If you are determined, you can make a good thing from a bad situation today. Morning hours require subtlety.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — There is no need to inconvenience yourself in order to serve another's interests. Serve your own needs first of all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — A desire for a luxury item new on the market may cause you more trouble than you'd bargained for. Be satisfied with things as they are.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A new situation demands a new approach. Don't attempt to conquer new worlds with old weapons; ask the advice of an expert.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may have your feelings hurt early in the day -- but you should be able to feel better than ever by day's end.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — There is considerable good to be found in even the worst of circumstances today. Take an optimistic view of your own future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — If you desire to right a wrong, now is the time! Take care, however, not to expend too much energy celebrating after the fact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Unless you can control your temper, you are in for some difficult hours. Make yourself a figure of admiration at evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — A single failure doesn't signify much. Let it be known that you are willing to try again. Make concrete suggestions for improvement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Take time out of a busy schedule to take some personal inventory. Meditation brings you into contact with a new self.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — If you hope to gain the respect of one who is as ready to turn away from you as toward you, tackle the day's problems directly and speedily.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — It may be hard to tell the difference between what is good for you and what is merely pleasurable. Take the long view.

Copyright 1977 United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Can. Pol. party
5 "Now - --- me down
9 Hard external covering
14 Cafe au ----
15 Moses' death mountain
16 Slow Music
17 Drew
19 John ----- Massachusetts pilgrim
20 Small bird
21 Political events
23 Substantiated as true
25 Blow up one's ego
26 Biblical name
28 Oregon's neighbor
32 Sparkled
37 Replenish
38 A billion years or so
39 Repairs shoes
41 Place kicker's device
42 Popped the question
45 Club or spade: 2 word
48 Party to a rental agreement
50 Lexicographer ---- Webster
51 Corselet part
54 Gives hospitality to 58 Beset with insistent requests
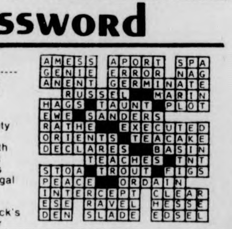
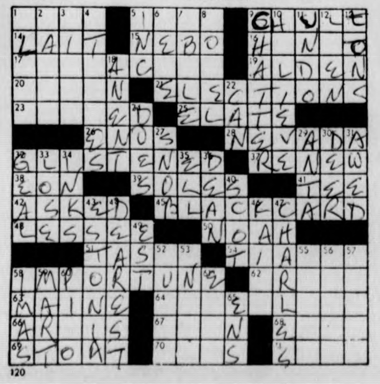
62 Bar by legal means
63 New Brunswick's neighbor
64 Sealed agreement
66 Architectural ridge
67 "Mister," in Malay
68 Ending with div and rev
69 Weasel
70 William S. ----: U.S. admiral
71 Whitlaw ----: U.S. publisher

DOWN
1 Fastener
2 Racehorse Slang
3 Chemical prefix
4 Struggles
5 Business abbr.
6 Quadrille set
7 Aspen
8 Sing in falsetto
9 Noise
10 Make less unpleasant
11 Disassemble
12 Actress Anna ----
13 Cargo units
18 Regarding
22 N. Amer. nation
24 Executes
27 Arrogant person
29 Rectangular pier
30 Cervine animal
31 Strongly impressed
32 Of the earth
33 Mislay
34 Red, Black and India ----
35 Letter
36 Oldest member
40 Macbeth, for one
43 U.S.S.R. republic
44 Highest in price
46 ----- Magnussen: '73 World skating champ.
47 Man's name
49 "C'--- Si Bon"
52 Adapts
53 Listlessness
55 Ending with arm and lite:
56 Trunks of human bodies
57 Send with haste
58 "-- -- corny as Kansas in August"
59 Market
60 Tanoan Indian
61 Holland product
65 Abstract being



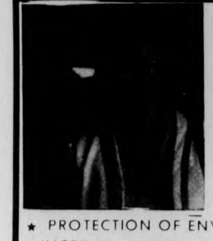


120

rainbow prisms

A fine collection of hand cut strass quality crystal, high lead content and exquisite shapes project color and form when hung in a window. A perfect gift for your home. from $3 to $28.

Faces of Earth
Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.
Next to Amherst Post Office



PLEASE RE-ELECT
NANCY B. EDDY
TO
BOARD OF SELECTMEN
TOWN OF AMHERST
APRIL 5, 1977

NANCY EDDY FAVORS:

★ PROTECTION OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY
★ INCREASED CONCERN FOR HUMAN SERVICES
★ A FAIR RENT COMMISION FOR AMHERST
★ A FAIR HEARING FOR ALL

UNBIASED RESPONSIVE IN ACTION
OPEN TO SUGGESTION

Crewwomen triumphant...

By COLLEEN BURKE

The UMass women's varsity crew team began its spring season Saturday with a surprising win against Brown University, in Providence, Rhode Island.

The race got off to an even start with both boats at a cadence of 40. UMass then settled to a 34, while Brown dropped to a 36.

Even though UMass was overstroked by two, coach Doug Frost, said the varsity's strength in technique and swing easily compensated for it during the 1500 meter race.

Frost, commenting on the poise of the women during the race, said that they were able to keep their heads and did not raise their cadence when Brown jumped the gun to an early sprint. As planned, UMass waited until after the 1200-meter mark to raise its cadence, leaving open water between the two boats. An inexperienced crew would have cracked under the pressure but it didn't, Frost continued.

The varsity squad consisted of coxswain Faye Bloomenthal, Laura Love, stroke followed by Joanne Andreas, Ginny Pebbles, Debbie Quinn, Maureen O'Brien, Robin Willworth, Susan Bassett, and bow, Betty Howley.

The junior varsity team, racing in a driving mixture of sleet and hail, against a headwind, came in seven seconds behind Brown. Frost, however, was very pleased with its performance. While being overstroked by four, UMass, rowing at a 32, stayed with its opponent.

The turning point at the 1200-meter mark had both boats neck and neck. But UMass died and left 3½ lengths open water.

Hopefully the varsity four will be racing against Smith later this week and the JV eight will be traveling to Poughkeepsie, New York to compete against Marist College on the Hudson River.

Levi's
Levi's for feet

End it all

shoes-sandals sneaks-boots

Bolles Shoes
NOW AT 8 MAIN ST.
AMHERST

We come now to the end of your jeans . . . and where Levi's for Feet begin. Like denim, Levi's rawhide leather goes soft with wear. The crepe sole cushions yours. Put on a pair. Levi's for Feet. The end.

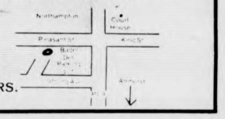
...men win easily

By BILL CARRINGTON
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's varsity crew team scored a decisive victory over the MIT lightweights in a scrimmage race held on the Charles River this past Saturday. It wasn't an official race, but it proved to be an early indication of the speed of the varsity boat. The scrimmage was considered to be low key, as the crew trained right through it.

At the start of the 2000-meter race, UMass took an early two-seat lead. This was an accomplishment, as lightweight crews are considered to be the fastest off the line. MIT could get none of this distance back, as UMass pulled away for the remainder of the race. UMass went on to win by two lengths of open water. It was a satisfying victory, as UMass rowed a controlled race, understroking (rowing at a lower cadence) the MIT crew all the way.

With Mark Lyle at cox, the boat was stroked by Dick Dunne, with Steve Frackleton at seven seat, Mike Partrige at six, Mike Melvin at five, Frank Miconi at four, Jim Clair at three, Rick Edwards at two, and Dave Kumlin in bow seat.



The Bagel Deli
"Everything on a bagel"
BAGELS & OTHER
BAKED GOODS BAKED
DAILY ON THE PREMISES

- N.Y. STYLE DELI
- SMOKED FISH
- CHEESE CAKE
- EGG CREAM
- DAIRY PRODUCTS

OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
HOURS 7 A.M. - 2 A.M. FRI. & SAT.
7 A.M. - 9 P.M. SUN. - THURS.
28 Pleasant St. Northampton

B's win

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Bruins won the NHL's Adams Division title in the final game of the season last night when rookie Stan Jonathan and linemate Gregg Sheppard scored two goals each in a 7-4 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The victory gave the Bruins a final regular season total of 106 points, two more than division rival Buffalo. The victory, Boston's fifth straight, also gave the Bruins the third best record in the league behind Montreal and Philadelphia.

The playoff bound Maple Leafs, who scored three third period goals after trailing 5-1, finished the season winless in their last seven games (0-4-3).

Jonathan scored Boston's first goal and added a third period breakaway tally. Gregg Sheppard added his 30th and 31st goals along with two assists, Peter McNab netted his 38th goal and Brad Park his 12th.

Come to the Indoor Picnic
at the Bluewall
Cafeteria

Wednesday
April 6, 1977

That's right, a real old fashioned summertime picnic

Bar B-Q Spare Rib	1.20
Fried Chicken in a Basket	1.25
Foot Long Hot Dog	.65
Cold or Hot Potato Salad	.25
Baked Beans	.25
Deviled Eggs	.40
Stuffed Celery	.35
Cup Cake	.20
Kosher Dill Pickle	.25

all prices subject to tax

Trackmen place second in season-opening meet

By DAVE RODMAN
Collegian Staff

With a frigid wind as accompaniment; the rain, sleet, snow, and Northeastern University took turns coming down on the Minuteman track team on Saturday, as the Huskies downed UMass by the score of 89-63. Boston University (32 pts.) and Brandeis (12 pts.) trailed.

NU piled up 53 points in the field events and took 10 out of 18 first places. BU, strong in the sprints and hurdles, took four firsts; UMass had three and Brandeis took the last win.

Being the first meet of the season and combined with the horrendous weather conditions, the times and distances were not outstanding. The cold, wet weather particularly bothered the jumpers and increased the possibility of muscle pulls for all the athletes, although none were injured.

There were a few bright spots in the otherwise dreary day. The distance runners got the meet off to a good start as they swept the top five places in the six mile run. All five runners took turns setting the pace and helping each other out, and at the end it was Cliff Staples breaking away from Bob Neil to win by three seconds in 29:24.3. Tom Wolff and Lou Panaccione wrapped up the other two scoring spots while Neal McGrail provided some insurance in fifth place.

NU then won the hammer and long jump, but Toney Pendleton, Ron Williams and Tom Murphy took the other three places in the jump to put UMass on top by 17-11.

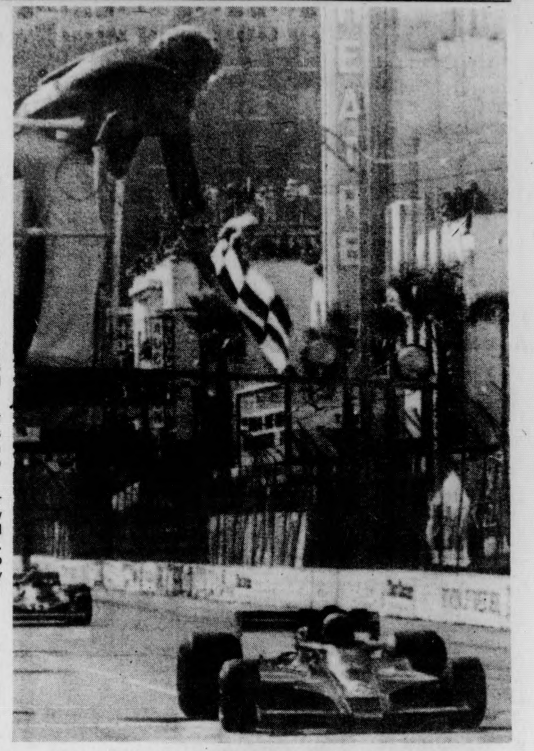
NU built up a lead by sweeping the shot put, finishing second in the 4x110 relay, and taking first and second in the pole vault. UMass got back on top by sweeping the javelin, an expected strong event. Bob O'Neil won with a throw of 192'1''. Completing the sweep were Jim Golonka, Jim Galusha and Bob Hastings.

NU proceeded to outscore UMass over all but two of the remaining events to cement its first win of the outdoor season. One of those two was the 440, which saw Joe Martens explode off the final turn and battle a stiff wind and pelting snow to overtake NU's Frank Mortimer and win in 49.9 seconds. Rich Thompson was third in 52.3. Both times would probably have been faster if the weather hadn't been so inclement.

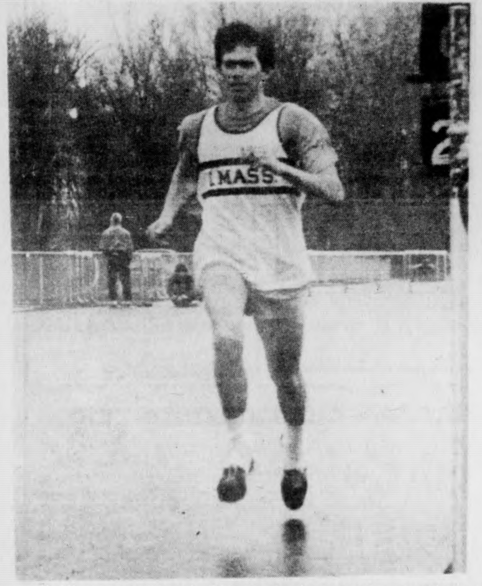
In the 440 intermediate hurdles John Richards and Mark Healy both qualified for the New Englands although they only finished second and third.

Other second place winners for the Minutemen were Bruce Parsons (16.4 secs.) in the 120 yd. high hurdles, and Joe Martens, who cleared 6'4 in the high jump.

The Minutemen will get another shot at the Huskies in the New England championships, which will be held at the Derby Track in May. Before that, UMass will have to travel to Worcester on Wednesday to take on Holy Cross.



Mario Andretti travels through the streets of Long Beach at 86 mph yesterday to win the Long Beach Grand Prix. (UPI telephoto)



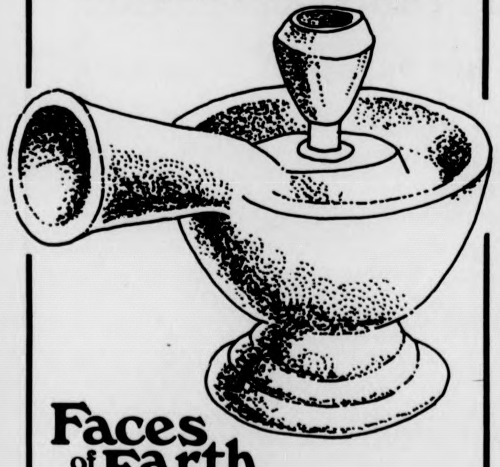
Neither snow, nor hail, nor sleet, nor rain, could stop Cliff Staples from placing first in the six-mile race with a time of 29:24.3. (Staff photo by Marilyn Mankowsky)

READ
THE
COLLEGIAN

WATER PIPES!

Faces of Earth

Next to Amherst Post Office
Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.



CRABS?

Kill them fast without a doctor's prescription.

At first sign of crab lice (intense itching, reddish bite marks, whitish eggs attached to hairs), get A-200 Pyrinate, the No. 1 medicine for crab lice. It stops the itching as it kills crabs and their eggs. Easy to use, just shampoo as directed. Get inexpensive A-200 Pyrinate without a prescription. Liquid or gel.

A-200 Pyrinate®
At all drug counters.

SHERUT LA'AM

You can work in your profession, make use of your skills and, at the same time, experience and understand Israel. Sherut La'am is a two way program — you can give and you get. After an intensive 'ulpan' (Hebrew course), you will live and work in a development town where, unlike a tourist, you become an integral part of the community. Teachers, doctors, social workers, nurses, dentists, urban planners, technicians, etc. — if you have six months to a year and if you want to really know, understand, and experience Israel, join Sherut La'am.

Sherut La'am, American Zionist Youth Foundation
515 Park Avenue,
New York, New York 10022,
(212) 751-6070

36

For information, please send to the above address.

Name ______ Age ______
Address ______
City ______ State ______ Zip ______
University ______
(USD-SL)

• CAMP TRAILS KELTY JAN SPORT • ALPINE DESIGNS SIGG •

Annual Spring
SALE
And Early Buy Promotion
April 1st thru April 16, 1977
Weekdays 9 to 5:30
Thursday and Friday Nights to 9 p.m.
Saturday 9 to 5

HIKING and BACKPACKING EQUIPMENT

Our annual SPRING SALE and EARLY BUY TENT PROMOTION will be held April 1st thru the 16th. Selected items throughout the store will be at special low sale prices and a Early Buy on all our tents will be offered. This might be the best time to come in and browse thru the largest selection of quality camping and backpacking equipment. Free 96 page catalog with a copy of this ad.

Don Gleason's
CAMPERS SUPPLY, INC.
Pearl Street, Northampton, Mass.
Exit 18 I-91
Master Charge Accepted

JASQUE • WHITE STAG MIRRO
WOOLRICH • PETER STORM
• PALCO COLEMAN • NORTH FACE • EUREKA • OPTIMUS •

All-American gymwomen have more action ahead

By LAURA BASSETT
Collegian Staff

MT. PLEASANT, Mich. — For Stephanie Jones and Jill Heggie, the long gymnastics season is not over yet. During the national championships Heggie finished fifth in the all-around competition while Jones tied for eighth. Both of the placings qualified the duo for the World University Games Trials and earned them All-American ratings.

"I didn't really expect to do that well," said an elated Heggie. "It's so exciting and I'm really looking forward to the Trials."

Heggie qualified for the nationals after a tenth place finishing at the Easterns. Her 36.25 Eastern total gave her a ranking of 20th going into the nationals.

Heggie's 36.85 point total at the nationals tied her best performance of the season, however. She received a 9.5 for her Yamashita with a half-twist vault for a second place finishing in that event.

She received a 9.3 for her bar routine which moved her into finals in that event. On the floor she scored a 9.25 for a tie for 4th place but did not make finals. Heggie ran into a little trouble on the beam, suffering a few minor breaks which lowered her score to 8.80.

Jones was ranked tenth with two other gymnasts going into finals and finished eighth with a 36.75 total. Jones qualified for the finals in two events and performed superbly to capture second place on the bars and fifth on the beam.

"I wanted to hit the best I could because I really wanted the team to do well and I guess the best really came," commented Jones.

The World Games Trials will be held this summer with four women and four men making the United States team, which will travel to Sofia, Bulgaria in mid-August for the Games. Joining the top 12 collegiate gymnast will be the top seven elite qualifiers from the club championships to be held later this month.

"I'm really happy that we have two qualifers for the games, Jill and Stephanie were just super," assistant coach John Calabria said.

"It's been a long season but now making the Trials is a great incentive for me to keep working," Jones stated.

"It's such an exciting chance that even though I'm really ready for a rest I want to keep working," Heggie said.

The season's over but the training has just begun!

Batsmen capture SMU tourney title

By JOHN LOWNEY
Collegian Staff

NORTH DARTMOUTH — A 1-0 loss to a freshman, a Tom Nigro shutout, a come from behind 7-6 victory, a ten-run inning, ten scoreless innings by Dave Tewhill, and six Sunday homers, including three by Mike McEvilly, highlighted the UMass win in the SMU Invitational tourney this weekend.

UMass, New Hampshire, Northeastern and Southeastern Mass. played in the bitter cold, in the rain, on a wet field, in the warm sun and in the dark, but the Minutemen, after a shaky opening loss to the host team, overpowered the field.

UMass has had steady pitching throughout this young season, and this weekend was no exception, as Jeff Reardon, Nigro, Tewhill and Chris Kirby were all formidable.

What the Minutemen lacked in Florida were clutch bats, but with the help of a right to left field breeze, they found considerable power in the bats of McEvilly, Leo Kalinowski, John Czerapowicz and Jim Cullen, each of whom homered.

McEvilly, a backup quarterback on the football team, homered in all three UMass victories yesterday. Splitting his duties between right field, designated hitter and first base, the lefty freshman scored six runs and knocked in seven.

McEvilly's biggest home run had to be his game tier against UNH. The Minutemen had already lost to SMU, so another defeat would have knocked them out of the double elimination tourney.

UMass did everything it could to give the game to UNH. The Minutemen committed six errors and left numerous runners on base. Starter Jerry Erb was wild high and surrendered six runs before giving way to Tewhill in the fourth.

Trailing 6-3 entering the final inning, the Minutemen's victory was reminiscent of the Red Sox memorable win in the sixth game of the '75 World Series. With runners on second and third, Bob Alves hit a sacrifice fly, setting the stage for McEvilly's Carbo-like shot to left center.

New Hampshire brought in reliever Dean Kouloris, who had lost two games in the two innings he pitched in the New Jersey tourney. Surely enough, the snakebitten righthander fired one pitch and Kalinowski blasted it down the left field line.

After that comeback UMass was unstoppable. After they were unable to get a single run off SMU freshman Dave Schuler on Saturday, the Minutemen scored ten runs in the first inning against the same Corsairs.

Ed Skribiski began the frame with a bunt single and ended it with a two-run triple. Between his hits there were seven UMass hits, four SMU errors and two walks. Dave Tewhill, who cruised through the final five UNH innings, pitched five more shutout, walkless frames.

UMass continued to shell the SMU pitchers in the second game until darkness put the Division III Corsairs out of their misery. Czerapowicz and Cullen each had two hits while Kirby pitched shutout ball except for a two-run second inning.

Aces Reardon and Nigro threw exceptionally well, but UMass could only come up with one win on Saturday. Then the Minutemen come back to beat UNH before exploding for 13-0 and 10-2 wins over SMU. It's hard to figure, but that's baseball.

"It was just a great comeback," said coach Dick Bergquist, "but I feel like I've never written more lineups in one day. You don't always have the chance to win three in one day."

★ Laxmen

CONT. FROM PAGE 20

would make the initial save and then they'd pick up the rebound and put it in."

On the other side, the Big Red's Mackesey was only called upon to make six saves. You could almost say that Mackesey was a superfluous player for Cornell since UMass only had 15 shots-on-net while the Big Red scored 17 times.

The Cornell goalie might as well have been non-existent when it came to stopping Patterson. Included in the big man's six-goal afternoon was a score that resulted from a steal off the stick of Mackesey directly in front of the Cornell goal.

Basically, though, the game was not a question of goaltending, but speed. Cornell covered almost twice as many ground balls as the Gorillas (94-57) with the Big Red's flashy attackman, Eamon McEneaney, nabbing 11 of them.

The loss drops UMass' record to 0-2; a familiar early-season place for the Gorillas.

"We've been starting out this way for the past four years or so," Garber lamented. "Only this season our next four games are tough ones."

LUNCH-N-COPY
AT THE AMHERST DELI
COMPLIMENTARY LUNCH
WITH COPY ORDERS PLACED AT ETC. COPY CORP.
1. COPY ORDER OF ONLY $10.00 or more
2. Placed between 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM
3. ANY REGULAR SIZE SANDWICH ON THE MENU COMPLIMENTS OF ETC. COPY CORP.

Regular-Size Sandwich
Balogna	.95
Mortadella	1.00
Liverwurst	.95
Salami	1.15
Genoa Salami	1.65
Imported Swiss	1.25
Imported Ham	1.50
Capicola	1.70
Prosciutto	1.85
Turkey	1.60
Pastrami	1.50
Corned Beef	1.70
Roast Beef	1.75
Tuna	1.50
Alaskan King Crab	1.99

Most Copy Order Completed While You Have Lunch
CLEAN, CONCISE, CORRECT COPIES on IBM COPIERS, it looks like your original.
ETC. COPY CORP.
Amherst Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Ma. 01002
549-0566
Call 549-0566 to insure copying up to 12:00 (midnight) Mon.-Sun.
Copy Hours: M-F 9:00-6:00; Sat. 9:00-5:00
Special Hours: Sunday & After Posted Hours

Deutsche Grammophon
Introductory Special
only $4.99
the UNIVERSITY STORE
campus center

WE'RE HERE!

"AN EXCITING EATING EXCURSION"

SUBWAY
STATION NO. 130
FAMOUS Foot-Long Sandwiches

33 EAST PLEASANT ST.
(in front of the Pub)
549-5160
OPEN LATE 7 DAYS A WEEK

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

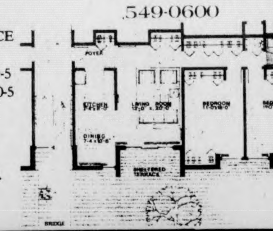
MOVING OFF CAMPUS???

• STARTING AT $240
GAS UTILITIES INCLUDED

50 MEADOW ST.
N. AMHERST
549-0600

• RENTAL OFFICE OPEN
WEEKDAYS 9-5
WEEKENDS 10-5

• ON UMASS BUS RT.
EVERY 10 MIN.



HOUSING EXEMPTIONS

Fall 1977 Housing Exemption Applications are due no later than April 8, 1977.

Applications will not be accepted after this date.

Please submit all applications to the housing office, 235 whitmore. Thank you.

Gymwomen fourth in nation

By LAURA BASSETT
Collegian Staff

Mt. PLEASANT, Mich. — "It's been a long season but it was all worth it!" exclaimed UMass assistant women's gymnastics coach John Calabria on Saturday.

A fourth place finish at the national championships, three gymnasts in the top 15 all -around competitors, two All-Americans, two qualifiers for the World University Games Trials and host of strong performances by specializing gymnasts was "a fabulous way to end the season," according to captain Jill Heggie.

Over the weekend the UMass women's gymnastics team in its best performance of the season and received a record breaking 144.70 point total to capture fourth place at the AIAW National Gymnastics Championships held at Central Michigan University.

The meet began well with UMass getting the best competitive draw of the meet. The gymwomen drew the final rotation in olympic order of events. The gymwomen vaulted first with Jill Heggie, Susan Cantwell, Stephanie Jones and Barbara Burmeister coming up with the counting vaulting scores. An event total of 36.55 started the squad off on the right foot with Heggie's 9.5 score and Cantwell's 9.35 qualifying them for the finals.

The gymnasts moved on to uneven bars where Heggie and Stephanie Jones had 9.3 and 9.4 routines which also qualified them for the finals. Cantwell and Jean Anderson also had strong bar routines for 9.1 and 8.7, which combined for a 36.50 event total. "We were all putting in a lot of extra efforts," said Anderson.

The third event for UMass was the balance beam and again the gymwomen performed strongly for a 35.40 total. During the season the squad was plagued by falls from the apparatus but during both the Easterns and Nationals the team came through.

"Everyone was really sticking to it, really fighting to stay on," according to beam and floor specialist Julie Myers.

The floor exercise was the final event of the team competition. Both Evans and Calabria agreed that the judging was "tight", especially in the case of Cantwell's 8.85 mark, which was protested by the coaching duo to no avail. Heggie and Jones received identical scores of 9.25 to tie for 14th place. Myers had the fourth counting floor routine in "my strongest performance of the season."

In conjunction with the awarding of the team title on Friday, the all-around titles were taken from the gymnasts team performances. Ann Carr of Penn State took the all around championship with a 37.90 total. Jill Heggie finished fifth with a 36.85 while Stephanie Jones tied for eight with 36.75.

Thirteen turned out to be unlucky for Susan Cantwell as she placed 13th in the all-around competition to just miss the cutoff for the top 12 all-arounders to qualify for the World University Games Trials.

Clarion State captured the team title for the second year in a row with a 148.89 point total. Clarion was led by Carrie Englert, 1976 Olympian, Connie Jo Israel defending national all-around champion and freshman Donna Johnson. All three qualified for the World Game Trials. Cal State-Fullerton was second at 146.80, just edging Penn State, which had 144.40. With UMass and USC taking the fourth and fifth places, the East and West coasts continue their dominance of women's gymnastics.

The top ten qualifiers from each event during the team competitions qualified for the finals held on Saturday. Heggie, Jones and Cantwell each qualified in two events. Heggie made the vaulting and uneven bar finals. She vaulted strongly in the finals and finished in a three-way tie for second place with a combination total from preliminaries and finals of 18.80. She ran into a little more trouble on the bars but finished eighth in the nation.

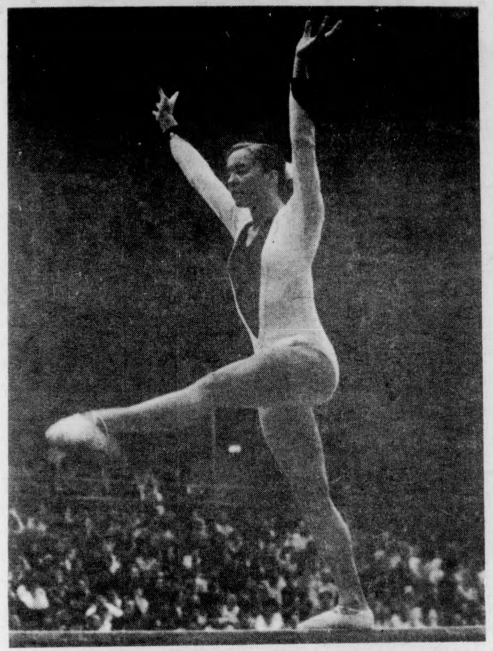
Cantwell was in a six-way tie for ninth going into the balance beam finals but suffered two falls and finished a respectable 13th. She also finished 11th on vaulting with a 18.40 point total from the preliminaries and finals.

Despite a fall from the beam during warm ups, Jones had the strongest finals performance on the team. She was fourth on the bars going into the finals but received a 9.55, the highest score given in bars during the national competition to grab second place on the bars. Jones also had a very strong 9.45 beam finals performance to move her up from a six-way tie for ninth to a share of fifth place with a PSU gymnast.

Karilyn Burdick of Cal State-Fullerton won the vaulting championship. Jeannie Beadle of Louisiana State captured the beam title while Cheryl Diamond of Southwest Missouri took the bars championship. Defending national champion Connie Jo Israel of Calrion won the floor exercise event.

"I was real pleased with our performances. We definitely are capable of bringing home number one and we established that", stated a happy coach Virginia Evans.

"I'm just very very happy with the team's performance," echoed Calabria. "We're a young team, not losing anyone and we should be even stronger next year."



The UMass women's gymnastics team came home from Michigan with a fourth place national finish and two All-Americans. (Staff photo by John Sideropoulos)

Collegian Sports

Kevin Patterson scores one of his six goals (see arrow) for the lacrosse team Saturday against Cornell. Unfortunately for Garber's Gorrillas, more of the same didn't happen often enough as they bowed to the Big Red, 17-9. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Cornell trips Gorillas, 17-9

By BILL EDELSTEIN
Collegian Staff

Both the elements and Cornell threw everything they had at the UMass lacrosse team and goal-tender Don Goldstein, Saturday, and when the smoke, hail, rain, snow and sleet had finally cleared, the brand-new scoreboard outside Boyden Gymnasium read "visitors 17-home 9."

Cornell, the top lacrosse team in the nation, was in control of the game throughout, scoring when it had to break UMass' momentum. Early in the fourth quarter, Kevin Patterson (six goals and an assist) capped off a 4-1 UMass spurt after some pretty passing had opened the middle for him. A quick Cornell penalty put the gorillas in a man-up situation, but Cornell netminder Dan Mackesey sticked-away another Patterson attempt, Cornell stole the ball and fast-breaked for its 14th goal.

The Big Red then banged home three more markers, the last one a blistering, point-blank short-sider, and, as the old saying goes, school was out for the Minutemen of UMass.

It was the first part of the contest, though, which proved disastrous for the Gorillas, as Cornell spent the initial period piling up a 6-0 cushion, before Patterson could answer for UMass in the waning seconds of the quarter.

"This was exactly what we didn't want to happen," said UMass coach Dick Garber. "Our game plan was to try to keep them in range early and set up a slow-down offense when we got the ball. The only problem was, we never got the ball."

This lack of possession was due to the face-off wizardry of Cornell senior midfielder Brian Lasda, who didn't lose a draw all afternoon.

"Face offs are the key to our fast break," said Big Red coach Richie Moran.

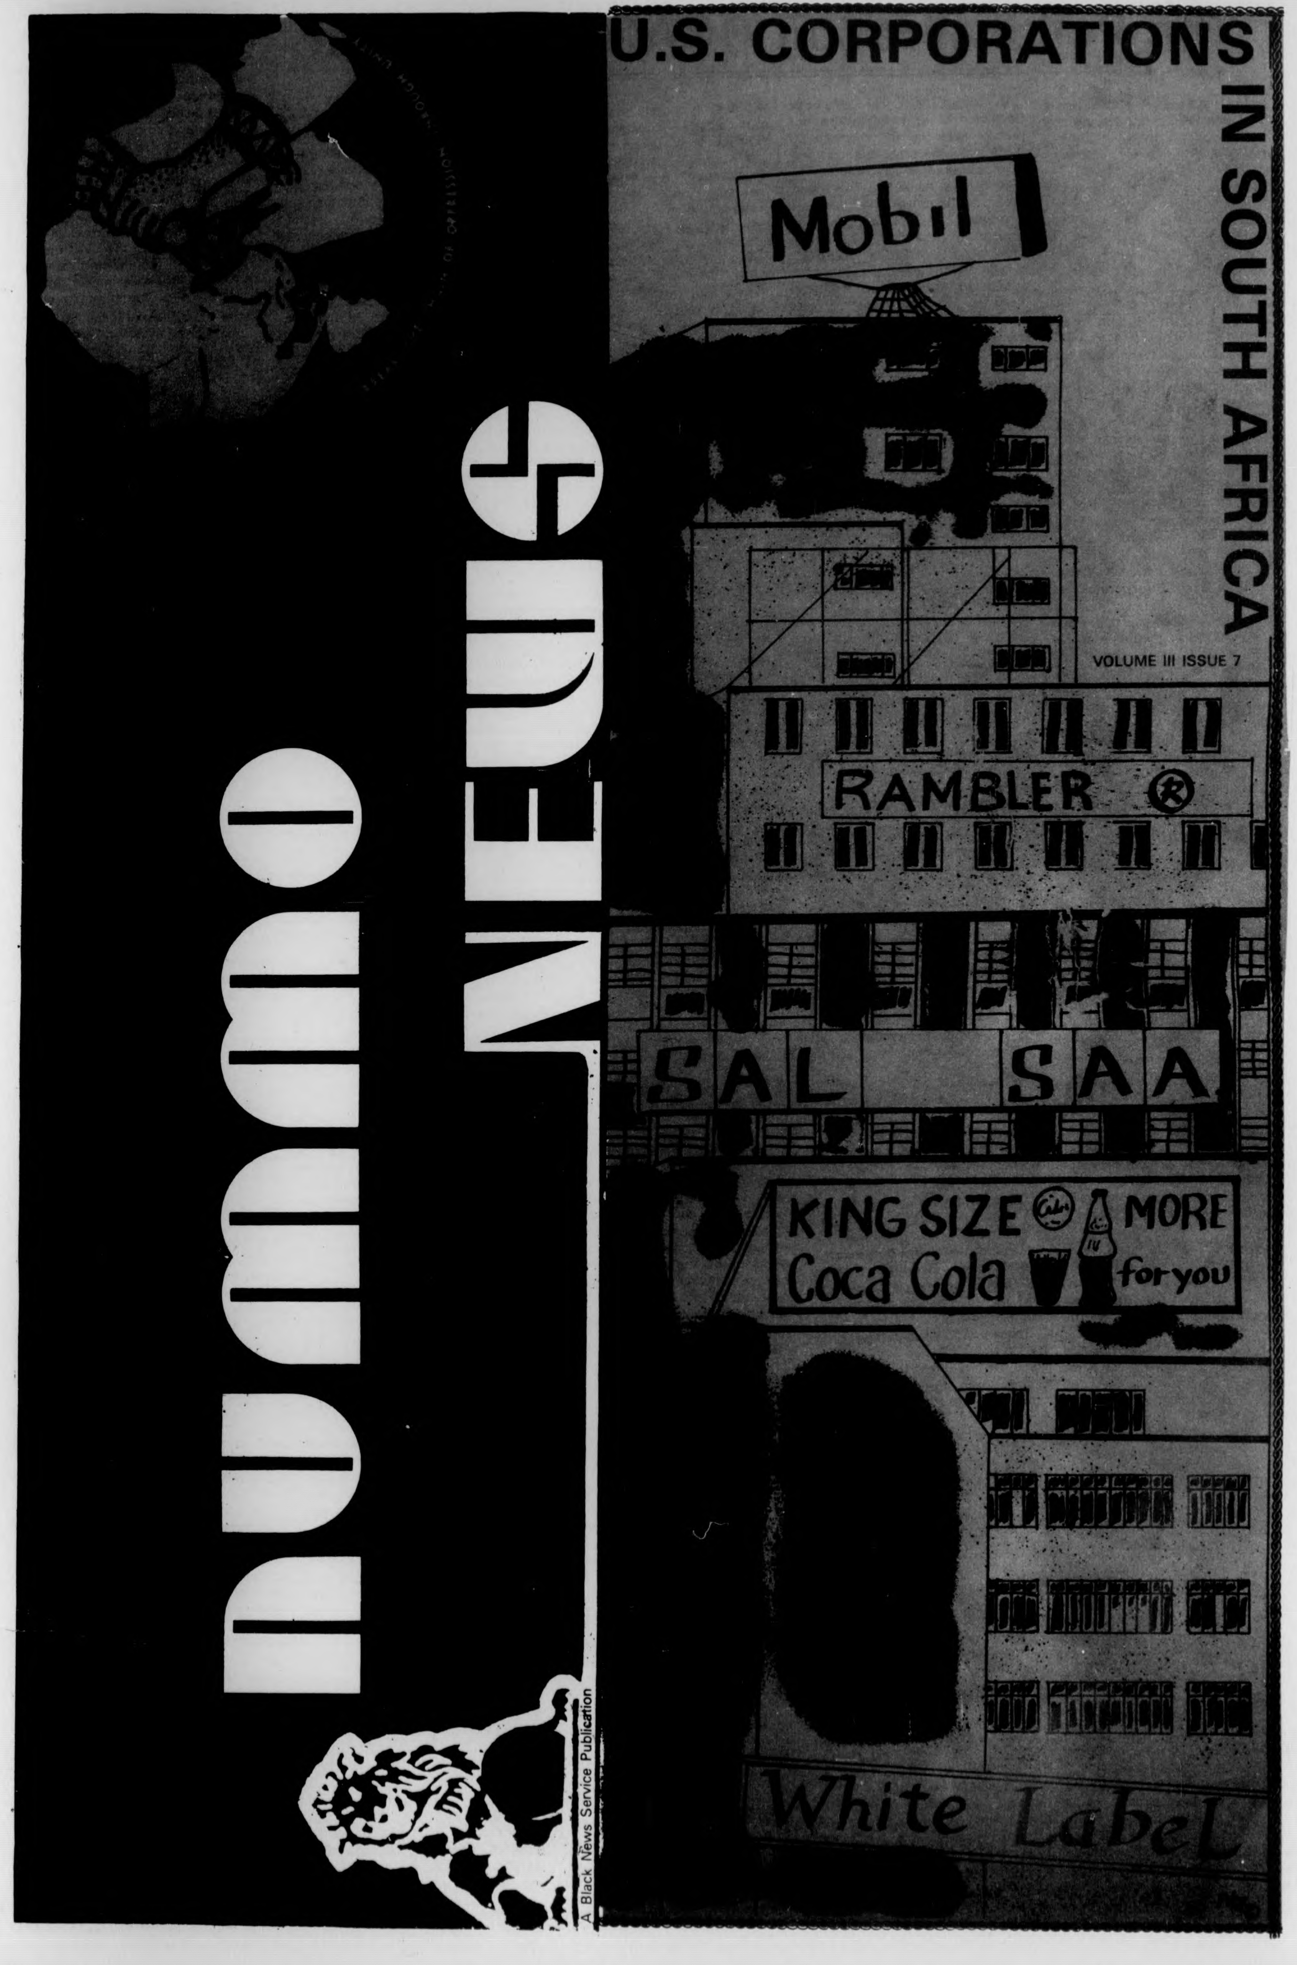
And since the crux of the Cornell attack is the fast break, you can figure out the relationship between the Cornell attack and face-offs by using the transitive property of goalscoring.

UMass opened the second period with two quick tallies by Mickey Menna and Patterson, and Jeff Spooner added another to make the score 6-4, before Cornell flicked its fast-break button into the "on" position and ran in six straight goals to close out the half.

UMass goalkeeper Goldstein was largely responsible for the score being as close as it was at the mid-way point of the contest. In all, Goldstein turned aside 23 shots — as many as his top performance last season, also against Cornell.

"Goldstein was exceptional," enthused Garber. But our back-up help on defense was out to lunch. There were a lot of times when Don

TURN TO PAGE 19



U.S. CORPORATIONS IN SOUTH AFRICA

NUMMO NEWS

VOLUME III ISSUE 7

A Black News Service Publication

The Politicalization Of African Culture

In this new era (70's) of a rising tide of Pan Africanism among the African working class, it is important that all Africans, wherever they may reside, understand the importance of African culture to the Pan African Revolution.

Our culture is rich and can become very revolutionary if properly politicalized. Culture provides the people with continuity. It is part of the super-structure, an institution within itself or any society. Culture is the mass transmitter of ideas and provides the people with the "esprit de corps" necessary to wage a protracted struggle for national liberation.

The cultural revolution that is taking place in all African communities around the world then, is very important. Our cultural revolution must be political and in being political, it must be geared to the complete uncompromising world liberation of all African and all peoples of the world.

So the question is, will African culture be bourgeois or revolutionary?

Being subjugated and oppressed by neo-colonialism, we as a people suffer cultural imperialism; the systematic crushing, manipulating, deluding and controlling our culture to the benefit of the western capitalistic world.

Culture projected by the western capitalists world is exported to propagate the cultural ideas of capitalists mentality-life style.

Observing the rising tide of African Nationalist consciousness of the African masses, the imperialists are moving day and night to capitalize and subvert the Pan African Revolution through the manipulation and control of our culture.

Therefore, it's important that African Nationalist revolutionaries everywhere gain control of our culture and interject clear African nationalist viewpoint in it before our culture is turned into a force for counter-revolution under the guise of Pan Africanism.

El Hajj Malik El Shabazz (Malcolm X) said, when the oppressor sees the Black revolution developing, he creates a counter-revolution, the negro revolution, to fight the real revolution. But this is a very subtle move. The oppressor is presently busy creating a false bourgeois "Pan African Movement", of petty bourgeois middle class intellectuals and c.i.a. agents to fight the real African working class-street force revolution that is brewing in the Harlems, Watts and Detroits of the world.

Real Pan African revolutionaries shouldn't withdraw into a hole just because you see how the "jive" people have the power in the Pan African movement.

We should realize that when the oppressor encourages the middle class to assume the leadership of the Pan African movement, it is because it is weakening and because it is stalling for time.

But this is a good thing as well. We must realize that every thing has it's duality in the historical dialetical sense.

While presently the oppressor is creating a bourgeois cultural revolution in our community, which does not encourage resistance to his power structure, based on a racial and class analysis, it does raise the national pride and self-confidence of our people and helps in the future development of a African Nationalist mass consciousness.

So its important that we understand the relation of present day African culture to our revolution, what happened to it and it's future role.

African culture was suppressed by many slave-colonial regimes in the last 500 years of our enslavement. It was only allowed to flourish when content re-inforced the psychological conditioning of our enslavement. This meant that content was turned inwards, playing to the negative aspects of our destructive mentality and social disillusionment with one another without of course, explaining the root cause — capitalist-colonialist exploitation by a racist state.

Whenever message culture developed, it was suppressed, so message culture had to be well covered which at times, became lost over a period of years.

In the west, this resulted in the formation of a "Blues culture" which has grown into a new Rhythm & Blues (R&B) culture.

For the most part, our culture is still bourgeois, even though there is a conscious movement among African artists to transform it.

To understand the importance of culture in our revolution, we must understand certain things. One is while the forman cultural institutions were for the most part destroyed among "New World" Africans, our culture, in essence, was not totally destroyed, it was suppressed.

So, the re-Africanization of African peoples can be explained in dialetical sense. This is important if we are to understand the "New African Cultural Revolution."

The impact of invasion by Europeans upon Africa in the late 15th and early 16th centuries, lead to the most traumatic era our planet has ever known. We are still in the traumatic era and will not be over it for some time to come, even long after world liberation.

It is becoming obvious to many third world revolutionaries, that when we analyze historical development in a race and class analysis, we see there is a cultural contradiction in the world. That cultural contradiction, historically, has been between European and third world peoples and continues, even today.

So in our case, cultural genocide-imperialism, was the thesis that the European colonialists presented to African peoples particularly those prisoners of war taken to foreign lands.

Resistance; the maintaining of the basic African psych way of life in African communities, was the anti-thesis to cultural genocide.

The westernization of African peoples held in colonial bondage became inevitable, as much as we don't like to admit it. The synthesis is the combination of our historical resistance to the "European experience" and to the positive aspects of our learned experience while under domination of Europeans. This is the essence of the African cultural revolution. To purge ourselves of the negative aspects of our European, capitalistic, bourgeoisization but to deal with objective reality that there are positive aspects of our learned experience which can be used to benefit the building of a Socialist New World.

The role of Black artists in the politicalization of the Pan African Nation: For us to understand the role of African artists, in the Pan African revolution, we must understand the role they play socially-culturally and also historically.

Sometimes this is hard to see because our historical continuity (consciousness, psyche), has been tampered with. African peoples, like most Third World peoples, live in the dual reality of having a colonialized consciousness (mind) and native indigenous mind at the same time.

This dual reality becomes less confusing as the Third World Revolution comes closer to victory.

The African artists is the traditional African priest-priestess, whose role has been transfused in the contemporary situation. The African artist in the African context, is political, social, economic, religious, spiritual leader or spokesman for the nation at the same time. This is because he "feels", "sees", or "hears", the cultural psyche of our people and is able to transmit (reflect) it back to the people, through African context which is Nommo or the word; vibration of the mind, that is in the collective unconscious of African peoples. The African artist times the rhythm within the space (of the people's minds, the tempo of the cultural heartbeat) which produces the syncopation (charismatic connection, interaction) between artist and audience. He, thus, fulfills the role of African priest, his performance being an African experience of call and response from audience. The African artist is the natural charismatic spokesman of our people. He is the symbol of the folk hero and is our cultural nation's representative. But in order to keep from co-opted, the African artist must be a Revolutionary African Nationalist and must reflect the ideology of Revolutionary Africanism Nationalism-Scientific Socialism thru this media at all times. This is important because being that our people, as most African-Asian peoples, have an oral tradition, ideology or the new way of life will be popularized thru Nommo, the oral word.

Being that the vast majority of our people do not master the foreign languages of English, French, Spanish, etc., because these languages are foreign to our experience and have only been imposed on us in the last 500 years, we as a people, have not developed the written or reading tradition. So, the African artist plays a great role in popularizing the ideology of the All-African People's Party.

The African Artist in this light, is the mass transmitter of the African cultural revolution. In order to foster a revolution among African people, the African artist must revolutionize himself, his life style, so that he lives his ideology. Then, and only then, can he be considered revolutionary. This means the new political African culture must start within the ranks of African artists themselves.

African artists are known for starting fads and dances. The fads and new dances started must be highly political. Dances and songs like "Do the Panther" must be created.

Dances that incorporated martial art moves that encourage the development of a new martial African culture must be started. African artists themselves, must return to a revolutionary way of life and repudiate the decadence of western bourgeois culture in their day to day styles.

This is very important because African artists are folk heroes and millions upon millions of African youth world wide, want to be just like them, so what they do and say is very important. Therefore, they must begin to gravitate to the real African revolutionaries, who at this point in history, may not have the popularity of a bourgeois mass media society, because they have engaged in "real" resistance, against the capitalist system. African artists must leave the bourgeois syndrome of middle class Pan Africanists and unite with the coming African working class, street force revolution.

AKBAR MUHAMMAD AHMAD

Idi Amin: Creation Of Western Imperialism

By Chaka Amin

The Western press has been presenting a very sinister campaign to ridicule Black Africa while building consensus for The Apartheid regimes in Southern Africa.

The media has been portraying Idi Amin Dada, a man whom they have labelled The "Hitler of Africa" as a Typical African ruler democratically elected by the people of Uganda. To understand the saga of Idi Amin Dada, one has to examine Western Imperialist intrigues in Africa since The launching of the Euro-African slave trade in the 14th century.

To accomplish this despicable crime against humanity, European slavers set up a network of puppet chiefs in the various lands to assure the viability and smooth operation of the supply of slaves.

These puppet chiefs were armed and advised by Europeans. They even gave them religious advice. The Pope sent priests and missionaries. The major part of the history of Euro-African connection is the establishment of puppet chiefs or governments to ensure the exploitation and oppression of Africa and its peoples.

How does Idi Amin Dada come into the picture? In 1971 the president of Uganda, Milton Obote, was overthrown in a coup d' etat led by Idi Amin Dada, a general in the Ugandan army who was trained by both the British and Israel governments. At the time of the coup d' etat in Uganda. There was an Israeli military mission in Uganda training various sectors of the (Ugandan Armed Forces). The head of the Israeli military mission was one Colonel Bar-Lew; a close friend and advisor to general Idi Amin Dada "Hitler of Africa."

Colonel Bar-Lew bragged about his role in the 1971 Coup d'etat at the time of the Israeli terrorists raid on Uganda. He claims he supported their interest. They acted before Obote by supporting a Coup d'etat lead by their friend, and puppet, General Idi Amin.

There were no denounciation in the Western Press even though some of the present accusations against Amin supposedly occurred during that time.

Why didn't The people in the press echo their cry? The answer is quite simple. A leftist leaving the president was over thrown and a puppet of British and Israeli interest was instituted. This was the interest, same kind of action carried out in Chile, in Brazile, in Iran, in Zaire, in South Korea and on Indonesia. Now that their creation has turned, and his strings are being pulled by other masters the western press begins its lamentations propaganda.

If Idi Amin Dada is The "Black Hitler of Africa" He is the creation of Western Imperialist intrigues in Africa. General Amin is against President Obote because the latter was hostile to Israel and was going to expel the Israelis from his country.

Milton Obote had finally decided that the path to true development for Uganda was socialism. He observed that development in the 20th century only comes through the collective effort of the people. And this can only come about through the social and economic transformation of the society, from one that catered to the will of Western Imperialism to one that served the indigerious needs of the people first, and the international community secondly. The decision by Obote to transform the economy necessitated the establishment of new priorities and new objectives: New friends and new aliances. The Israeli and British interest probably felt that such an overall reexamination of the goals of the country would be detrimental to isn't brought out in the various reportage on Amin. The various reports leave the impression that Idi Amin Dada is a true product of Africa. That he is the natural choice of Ugandans. This the counter insurgency role that the western press play in advancing the objectives of Western Imperialism. While they cement Idi Amin they remain relatively silent on the "White Hitlers of Africa" Jon Voster and Ian Smith.

Turn to Page 4

Univ. Asked To Sell South African Investments

The University of Massachusetts owns stocks and bonds in a number of corporations with major investments in South Africa. These corporations are: General Motors, Johnson and Johnson, General Electric, Motorola, Nabisco, Lilly Pli, Pfizer, Smithkline Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, PMC, Newmont Mining, Honeywell, IBM, Exxon, Eastman Kodak, and Goodyear. The University is also considering purchases of Ingersell Rand and Caterpillar Tractor. The University has spent a total of $540,558.43 on these investments. We arrived at these figures by comparing the account of the University endowment fund of February 18, 1977 with the latest report of the American Consulate General in Johannesburg, Republic of South Africa (Commercial Section).

The South African holdings of these corporations provide material support and legitimacy to a white supremecist regime. The facts of life for black South Africans — such as 53 per cent of all black children dying by the age of five — cannot be altered by these corporations. To the contrary, they are bound by the laws of the land and can only strengthen the apartheid system. In fact, the legalized exploitation of black labor helps these corporations make a 17-19 per cent return as opposed to a world average of 11 per cent. Their material interests makes them resist any real reforms.

We must do more than simply hope for change. Points 3 and 4 of the University's "Guidelines for the Investment of the Endowment Fund" state that: "The University will endeavor to take informed and ethical positions whenever it exercises its voting rights as a stockholder and may communicate directly with management when there is evidence that the corporation is not acting responsibly in the public interest" and "When there is evidence that a corporation in which the University owns stock is persistently engaging in activities that are grossly contrary to these guidelines, the Treasurer, after consultation with investment council, will recommend the sale of that stock." Point 2 states "The University will seek to invest in corporations that have a responsible posture in matters relating to ...public health...(and) equal employment opportunities..." The University's own criteria make these investments unacceptable from a moral and legal point of view.

We therefore request that the University immediately sell its holdings in the above corporations and publicize its reasons for doing so.

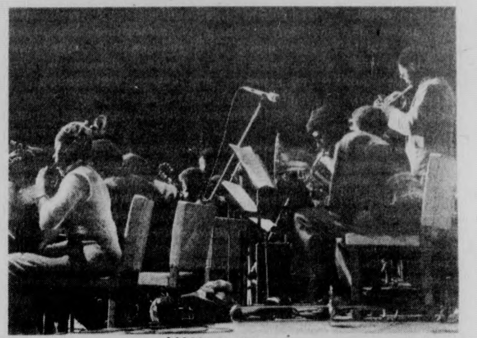
For more information call 545-0794 or 584-3862.

University of Massachusetts
South African Support Committee

Fifth Annual Black Musicians Conference

By JON FRANCIS (Bro. Malik)

Frank Foster



MUSIC INC.

Photo by Jon Francis

Charles Tolliver

Loud Minority

Ms. Robinson

Andy Bey

Once again Black Musicians converged on the campus of UMass. A star studded weekend of creative music took place this past weekend. Thanks to Bill Hasson of the Arts Council. The Strata East All Stars featuring Charles Tolliver and Music Inc. Performed before a packed house this past Friday Eve at the Student Union Ballroom, around 8:10 p.m. the musical expedition started. From Cancellation to Impact the high level of energy was felt throughout the entire audience. Such giant as James Spaulding, displaying complete control of the alto sax and flute, a thing he has done for quite a few years. And then there was Omar Clay congas, his driving African rhythms kept wll up with the up tempo trademark of Music Inc. The melodic string section was the icing on the cake and Charles Tolliver took and kept complete control the entire evening. On Sat. aft. workshops featuring some of the most noted scholars and musicians in the field of music took place at Hampshire College. Only to be followed the same evening with a visit by Frank Foster and Loud Minority a 23 piece band with vocalist Andy Bey.

After an almost 1½ hour delay due to a traffic accident. A Loud Minority finally came and from then on the performance became history. Mr. "Fearless" Frank Foster brought with him such veterans as Bassist Early May, trumpeter Roy Borrows, drummer Charles Prsip and percussionist Roger Blank were just a few. Charles "Mageed" Greenly guest a member of the early Frank Foster sound, being no stranger to the group he made it quite clear when the groove went into a 12 bar blues. The Loud Minority is by far one of the tightest big bands since Fletcher Henderson. The Fifth Annual Black Musicians Conference was a huge success. Charles Tolliver Music Inc., Frank Foster and The Loud Minority will go down in history; this is a fact and Black Classical Music will strive on as long as people like these giants continue to explore and create.

Photo by Jon Francis

Dr. Hellen Armstead Johnson.

James Spaulding

Minority Horn Section

Progressive Film Series

The Progressive Film Series is sponsored by the Commuter Collective, the commuters' area government at U.Mass. The Collective asks for $1.00 donation for each film. The donation covers thoe cost of the film. The proceeds go to Program Support which we then allocate to various programs who come to us seeking funds. A season's ticket will also be available for $7.00.

March 31, 1977 — Angola: The Second War — 50 minutes. In order to week through the confusion around what has taken place in Africa, this film is a must. After 400 years of Portuguese colonialism and a struggle of over 14 years, the people of Angola were liberated from the grips of imperialism. In November, 1975, with the withdrawal of the last Portuguese troops, a co-alition government was established. The government consisted of the MPLA (Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola): the FNLA (National Front for the Liberation of Angola): and UNITA (National Union for the Total Independence of Angola).

The MPLA, the longest standing liberation movement, soon found out that the forces of Portugal and other colonialist regimes (U.S. and South Africa) were still in the country: they were now represented by the FNLA and UNITA who were receiving direct aid from the C.I.A. The declaration of war against MPLA by FNLA in June of 1975 (followed shortly by UNITA) only assured MPLA of the reality that there was still a struggle to be waged for the complete liberation of Angola.

The film presents to us the Angolan people; speaking not only of why they fight, but also of their determination to build a free and independent Angola.

Last Grave at Dimbaza — 59 minutes. Produced by Nana Mahomo, an exiled leader of the South African liberation movement.

At Dimbaza, a resettlement camp in South Africa, children die so quickly and in such great numbers that graves are dug in ADVANCE, so that burial grounds will always be ready to inter their bodies. The film's title refers to those children. The movie also shows how whites in South Africa and some of the largest American firms make huge profits by exploiting Africans as a source of cheap labor, under what the whites call their "civilized labor policy", which forbids a Black from holding a position higher than a white.

April 7, 1977 — Attica — 80 minutes. Written, produced and directed by Cinda Firestone. Attica is a highly dramatic documentary account of the September 1971 Attica Prison rebellion which ended in a massacre. In protest over the conditions in the New York state prison over 1500 inmates (maximum capacity: 800) rebelled, took control of prison, held 35 hostages and set up and governed their own democratically run community. A "Declaration to the People of America" was issued and proclaimed in part: "The entire prison populace, that means each and every one of us here, have set forth to change forever the ruthless brutalization and disregard for the lives of the prisoners here and throughout the U.S. What has happened here is but the sound before the fury of those who are oppressed."

The first part of the film shows the conditions inside Attica and explores the grievances and demands of the mostly Black and Puerto Rican prisoners. The armed assault on the prison is then recreated through the use of footage shot by the State themselves including aerial views from helicopters and special footage photographed through the cross-haired sights of firing rifles.

The second part of the film contains highlights of the hearings and offers compelling evidence of the reprisal beatings, torture and killings that occurred after authorities had retaken the prison.

April 28, 1977 — City at Dawn-Saigon After Liberation — 60 minutes. One of the most beautiful films on Vietnam ever made. City at Dawn opens with a group of artists creating a statue of Ho Chi Minh the day after the fall of Saigon. Already the people are beginning to call this Ho Chi Minh City in honor of the fallen leader. This change in name symbolizes the hope, longing, and aspirations of the people who have kept their hearts set on liberation through the past thirty years of occupation.

In a remarkable transformation from the fighting of the previous day, the organization of the puppet forces is complete. We are shown the remains of the main air base outside of Saigon. What has happened to these puppet troops? Will they be allowed to return to normal life? Contrary to the "bloodbath" stories of the western media, there were no reprisals on the remaining troops. They were rounded up, registered, and released to the custody of their families to return to normal life. The war is over, the country liberated, and their job, although it was on the other side, is over. However, generals are held for ideological orientation as we see it at one of the centers. The extreme poverty and the utter destruction of the country-side are the main problems that face the revolutionary government of the country. The country is returning to normal, a normal that is now based on the people's control over their own destinies. The closing scenes of the students directing traffic and singing patriotic songs are examples of the fire of life that sparked the struggle of the Vietnamese. This will to be free will ensure their success in the future. The entire spirit of the film is summed up by none other than Uncle Ho himself, when he said that, "Nothing is more precious than freedom and independence." A remarkable achievement, City at Dawn will be a memorable experience for us all. We should not hide from the realities of Vietnam, but view it objectively and learn our lessons.

May 5, 1977 — Puerto Rico — 90 minutes. Produced by Cuban Film Institute in cooperation with the Puerto Rican cinema group, Tirabuzon Rojo.

The film is a feature length documentary on that island officially designated as a United States "commonwealth" but which the film contends is actually a colony. The film reveals that almost half of all Puerto Ricans live in New York City, where they serve as a cheap manual labor force. It also shows Puerto Rico's unique situation as a Third World country with heavy industry, with the proposed "Superport" refinery used as an exmaple of how this industrial development primarily benefits the U.S., with Puerto Rico absorbing the resulting chemical pollution. Structurally the movie is divided into two parts. The first part is a socio-economic analysis of the different classes, social groups and political parties; the second part deals with the island's anti-colonial struggle.

All films will be shown at 8:00 p.m. and 10:00 p.m., Herter Auditorium 231 unless otherwise specified.

For further information call 545-2145, or drop by the Commuter Collective Office, 404 Student Union.

Workshops On Southern Africa

The U. of Mass Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa presents two days of events on South Africa-(Azania).

April 4th:

All day workshops.

Evening — Teach-in: c.c. Aud. Speakers: David Sebeko-Pan Africanist, Congress of Azania; Themba Vilakazi-African National Congress; Paul Irish-American Comm Prexy Nesbitt on Africa; Nana Seshibe-Pan Africanist Congress; Plathell Benjamin-Former U. Mass Prof.; Bheki Langa-moderator from Committee of Southern Africa.

April 5th:

March & Rally: 12 noon.

(Assemble front New Africa House) — march to whitmore to demand....

U.S. OUT OF
SO. AFRICA
BLACK MAJORITY
RULE
SELL RACIST UMASS

Workshops on Southern Africa

10 a.m. — Veterans Coalition, Southern Africa, another Vietnam, rm. 168 cc.

Noon — International Socialists, permanent revolution in Southern Africa, rm. 172 c.c.

12:30 — David Sibeko Plathell Benjamin, U.N. Representative to Azania Human Rights Activist, Lumumba Hut, New Africa House.

1 p.m. — Nana Seshibe, Women in Southern Africa, rm. 168 c.c.

2 p.m. — Bheki Longa, Is peaceful change possible, rm. 170 c.c.

3 p.m. — Themba Vilakazi, History of the African National Congress, rm. 172 c.c.

4 p.m. — National Student Coalition Against Racism, A National Strategy to Get the U.S. Out of Southern Africa, rm. 168 c.c.

The Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa will have a table set up all day in the campus center for more information on what we are and how people can become more active.

Continued From Pg 2

What about the thousands of Africans killed by John Voster and Ian Smith in South Africa, Nambia and Zimbagwe? What about the thousands held in their concentration camps, being subjected to the most savage cruelties developed by man? What about the millions rendered practically dead, though alive, because they are being subjected to a system of racial and economic oppression, calculated to trample and exterminate Black people.

Where is the constant cry of Humanism? Where is the lamentations from the press? Relatively absent. Instead we hear about the dangers in the U.S. supporting army and economic embargo against the apartheid regime in South Africa. The Western press seems to fi[illegible] excepti[illegible] crimes ag[illegible] hum[illegible] mitted by whites o[illegible] [illegible]acks, provided that they are carried out in the name of Western Imperialism.

When The "Hitlers of the World" align themselves with Western Imperialism, all is well: but when they are on the other side: Perdiction.

Black Organizers Conference

The Amherst Chapter of the NSBA (National Black Student Association) and the African American Student Society at the University of Mass. is sponsoring a Black Organizers Conference, April 15, 16 and 17th, 1977.

The purpose of the conference is to draw together some of the most active organizers who have survived the 1960's and early 1970's to make an analysis of what is the present condition of black people today and what should be the future directions of the black liberation struggle. Invited guests participants are:

Miss Ella Baker, co-worker of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and SNCC (Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee) adviser.

Joe Walker, Chairman of the African People's Socialist Party based in Florida and Virginia.

Rev. Charles Koen, Chairman of the National United Front of Cairo, Ill., and SNCC activist.

Walter Collins, anti war-prison activist representative of the National Gary Taylor Defense Committee, New Orleans, Louisiana.

General Gordon Baker, Founder of DRUM and League of Revolutionary Black Workers (LRBW).

Robert Williams, ex-president of the RNA Republic of New Africa.

PROPOSED SCHEDULE FOR THE CONFERENCE:

Friday, April 15: Registration 7 p.m. — 9 p.m. Welcoming Remarks. Opening Address: "The Present Condition of Black People in the United States." — Bill Strickland, Prof. UMass. Question and Answer Period.

Saturday, April 16 — 10 p.m. Orientation: Brief Remarks. Workshops: 1. The International Aspects of Third World Struggles in U. S. — Tran VanDinh-Workshop leader. 2. Strategy & Tactics of Mass Mobilization — Walter Collins-Charles Koen. 3. Political Economy and Black Liberation — Bill Strickland-Lloyd Hogan. 4. The Role of Black Workers in the Liberation Struggle — Gen. Gordon Baker.

12 noon — Lunch.

2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Workshops continue.

5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Workshops. 1. Movement Building — Charles Koen-Walter Collins. 2. The Role of Black Workers in the Liberation Struggle — Gen. Baker-Lloyd Hogan. 3. Students and the Politics of Liberation — Joe Waller-Akbor Muhammad Ahmad-Rob Williams.

9 p.m. Presentations — The Significance of SCLC and SNCC to the Black Liberation Struggle — Miss Ella Baker. Mass Organizing — Walter Collins. New Direction of the Black Liberation Struggle — Robert F. Williams.

Saturday Evening: Workshop reports and collective discussion with Conference Panel.

Sunday, April 17th — 11 a.m. Workshops continue. Those workshops conference participants want continued.

1 p.m. Collective Discussion on Conference Objectives and follow-up.

Summation.

The purpose of this conference is to draw together some of the most active organizers to make an anlysis of what is the present condition of black people today and what should be the future direction of the black liberation struggle.

For information call (413) 545-2751, University of Mass., Amherst, April 15, 16, 17, 1977.

Jimmy Carter's Daddy

There is a certain prominent person missing from the realm of prominent people. His wife, sons, daughter-in-law, and granddaughter are very much talked about. I haven't ready any magazine, newspaper articles or heard of him on television or radio. I don't know if he is dead or alive, in an insane asylum or what.

Spread the news folks Jimmy Carter's father is missing! Lillian Carter, his wife gets enormous air time, his son Jimmy is president of these here United States. Billy Carter, another son, is famous for refusing to live up to the social expectations of a man whose brother is president.

Rosylyn, the missing man's daughter-in-law is the first lady. His granddaughter, Amy is the first daughter of a president to go to public school. With all this attention focused on Jimmy Carter's family, how could they possibly ignore Jimmy Carter's father. Where is the man?

Do you think it's possible ... Could it be that ... You don't suppose ... Be very quiet ... Come a little closer, let me whisper in your ear. Take a good look at Pres. Carter's facial features, his big lips, his nose. Do you think it's possible ... Could Jimmy Carter's father be BLACK!!

The African Woman

During the week of April 19 - 25, the Third World Women's Center located at Baker Dormitory will be presenting a series of programs in honor of "The Afrikan Woman". They will begin Tuesday night with a poetry reading at the opening of art show displaying works by Black women in the area. On Wednesday night, Dr. Frances Welsing, a Black psychiatrist, will speak on "The Conspiracy to Make Blacks Feel Inferior". Earlier in the afternoon, she will hold a workshop for Black men and women on campus on "Strengthening the Relationship Between Black Men and Women".

On Thursday, there will be a poetry reading held by local poets. Friday night, Melba Moore will entertain us with her singing. Moving on to Saturday, you will be fortunate to view an original play written by Diane Hale and performed by UMass sisters entitled, "Distant Voices". Don't miss it! But that isn't all! On Sunday, you will experience a completely unique fashion show entitled "360 Degrees of Fashion". This will feature fashions sewn by local seamstresses in a contest of Black history. Bet you've never seen anything like it! While watching this show, you will be eating from a buffet prepared by — none other than you and the rest of the community. Yes, there will be a real multi-cultural community pot-luck dinner held on this day. Last, but not least, Vinnie Burrows will give a presentation on Black history on Monday night.

Please plan to join in on the activities. Look for further details about times and locations of these events.

Free All Political Prisoners

Assata Shakur

"I am, without a doubt, a political human being. I am, without a doubt, committed to struggling for Black liberation and concerned about ending the injustice and oppression that Black people suffer. I have been involved, not only in struggling for decent living conditions for all people. I have been involved in the struggle for human rights all of my adult life. I became involved in the struggle for human rights because Black people are not free and equal in this country. . . ." (From Assata's Opening Statement to the Jury that she was never allowed to give.)

TRIAL UPDATE
HARPER ADMITS
HE LIED

Detective James Harper (the trooper who admits he ran from the scene on the New Jersey Turnpike, May 2, 1973), under cross-examination by defense attorney Bill Kunstler, testified this week that he lied in his only written report. In this report, Harper wrote that Assata reached into her pocket book, pulled out a gun, and shot him. On the stand, he admitted that he had seen no pocketbook, that he never saw a gun in Assata's hand inside the car, and that he assumed that it was she who shot him. He also testified that he was ordered by his superior, Lt. Cain, to write only a very general report on what happened. This was the first evidence in the trial of the police conspiracy to cover up the true sequence of events on the turnpike. Harper's testimony made it clear that whatever really happened, he showed no concern for Trooper Foerster's safety but that he was only interested in firing one complete round and getting away as quickly as he could. In Assata's words from the opening statement she was never allowed to give: "...James Harper is not telling the truth. He is a man with a lot to hide."

MEDIA PLAYS ITS PART IN FRAME-UP

In spite of Harper's admission that he lied when he reported that he saw Assata shoot him from inside the car, the N.J. edition of the Daily News of February 22, 1977, ran banner headlines reading "Joanne Fired First Shot." This is typical of the way in which all the media has been distorting courtroom testimony. And this is just the kind of distorted reporting New Jersey residents had been subjected to when they were being selected for the jury.

APPLEBY ESCALATES
ATTACK ON
ASSATA'S REPORT

On Tuesday, February 22, Judge Appleby threw a Black woman who has consistently worked in Assata's defense out of court for the duration of the trial. As an excuse, the judge used a court guard's unsupported word that she had been passing out literature in the courtroom the day before. When the defense attorneys objected, Appleby replied, "This is my courtroom and I'll do what I want."

APPLEBY TRIES TO SET JURY AGAINST THE DEFENSE

During the week, the judge increasingly lectured defense lawyer Bill Kunstler. Whenever Appleby upheld an objection raised by the prosecuter to something Kunstler said, he would follow up with prejudicial criticisms of the defense in front of the jury. At one point Kunstler tried to pinpoint the timing of Trooper Harper's promotion to Detective Harper after May 2, 1973. Prosecuter Barone objected that this was irrelevant. The judge sustained the objection and angrily lectured Kunstler on his being "a better lawyer than this."

70 PEOPLE DEMONSTRATE IN SUPPORT OF ASSATA

Court was held on Monday, February 21, despite its being George Washington's birthday. To the surprise of court officers who were guarding an otherwise deserted building, over 70 people from New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania assembled at the courthouse. They picketed the all-white jury, the racism of the court, the harassment of supporters, and the railroad of Assata. At noon, they marched through downtown New Brunswick and leafleted holiday shoppers about Assata's case.

Assata's supporters from the Black community are expected to turn out in a demonstration of solidarity on Wednesday, March 2nd.

ASSATA AND SUNDIATA
MEET TO DISCUSS CASE

On Saturday, February 19, after months of fighting the state's efforts to not let them meet, Assata and Sundiata Acoli (Clark Squire) had a meeting with Assata's Lawyers at Middlesex County Jail to discuss the case. This was their first meeting since Assata's case was severed from Sundiata's in early 1974. While the meeting was going on, the area was turned into an armed camp with police helicopters flying overhead. Despite his sentence of life plus thirty years and his current efforts to win a new trial, Sundiata has never waivered in his determination to assist Assata in any way he can. Sundiata's visit was essential to the preparation of Assata's defense. But it was also important because of Assata's almost total isolation of 14 months.

MONEY IS NEEDED
DESPERATELY

We have asked for financial help from readers of this Bulletin. But money is not coming in and expenses are piling up. We don't have the hundreds of thousands of dollars the state has in its attempts to convict Assata. We depend solely on the contributions of those people who support Assata in her struggle for freedom. PLEASE GIVE NOW. This Bulletin may not come out again — Supporters may not be able to go to court — LEGAL EXPENSES MAY NOT BE MET — if you don't make your contribution now. Please make checks payable to the Assata Shakur Defense Committee or, if you want them to be tax-exempt, to the National Conference of Black Lawyers-Assata, 126 W. 119th, NYC, 10027.

For more information, including copies of Assata's Opening Statement to the Jury, please contact us at 339 Lafayette St., NYC 10012, (212) 673-4177.

Clark Squire

NEW JERSEY'S SECRET KONCENTRATION KAMP PROJECT

Hitler was able to build koncentration kamps in Germany by using the "Big Lie" to make the Jewish people the scapegoat for the economic depression that swept Germany during the 30's. The state of New Jersey is using these same tactics today in whipping up public hysteria to send its black prisoners 1500 miles away to federal military koncentration kamp in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. They are using the "Big Lie" against Sundiata Acoli (s-n Clark Squire) to ship him out first.

If they are successful then any prisoner from any state will be liable to the same treatment — not only for shipment to Ft. Leavenworth but also to any other remote place such as Alaska, the Everglades or Death Valley. The prisons are overwhelmingly black.

Almost every black person, no matter how highly placed, has some relative, friend or acquaintance locked away in these dungeons. If the state of New Jersey is allowed to ship Sundiata today, it is only a matter of time before your loved one, relative or friend is shipped out tomorrow...and the day after it could be you or any other black person (as the Jews of Germany well know)...and the day after that it could be any poor oppressed person or ethnic minority in general.

New Jersey has already instituted cruel behavior modification units in its prisons. These units are nothing but secret horror chambers where selected prisoners (95 per cent in units are black) are brutalized, terrorized, experimented upon with mind destroying drugs and injections which have the same effect as electric shocks — and even shot and murdered! All this covered up with the "Big Lie".

Clark Squire

Every black, poor and oppressed or ethnic minority person has a personal stake in halting the transfer of Sundiata to a koncentration kamp — and in the dismantling of all behavior modification type lock-up units in the prison system.

Today it's Sundiata — tomorrow it could very well be you — just ask the Jews in Germany about it.

So write, call, telegram Governor Byrne or Commissioner Mulcahy, Dept. of Corrections — both addresses are — The State House, Trenton, New Jersey and demand a halt in the scheme to transfer Sundiata to a koncentration kamp — and demand the dismantling of the sinister behavior modification units in the New Jersey prison system.

FREEDOM COMMITTEE FOR SUNDIATA ACOLI (Clark Squire)
EAST TRENTON COMMUNITY CENTER
208 N. CLINTON AVENUE
TRENTON, NEW JERSEY 08609

Robert Rice

It's possible you've never heard of
ROBERT RICE

or of the suffering, he and his mother, Mrs. Geneva Rice, have been subjected to. Nevertheless ROBERT RICE and his quest for freedom are important to us all. He is important because his continued imprisonment is the symbol of a society losing sight of its humanity, its justice, its compassion.

ROBERT RICE is the last member of the HARLEM SIX still to be imprisoned. He was just 17 when arrested and has spent almost half his life (THIRTEEN YEARS) in prison.

In 1964 Robert, along with five other boys, was accused of homicide. They were all sentenced to life imprisonment. In 1973, after two appeals and two retrials, four of the youths, who had sécured independent lawyers, won their freedom with a full restoration of all civil rights. The fifth, who had taken a plea on the recommendation of his court-appointed lawyer, was sold out and sentenced to 10-25 years. A strong community campaign finally won him his freedom on parole in 1974.

ROBERT RICE should have been freed in 1973. On July 17, 1973, Federal Judge Harold Tyler declared: "GIVEN THE RECORD IN THIS PROCEEDING AND THOSE INVOLVING THE REST OF THE HARLEM SIX (ROBERT RICE SHOULD BE) RETIRED WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME — SIXTY DAYS FROM THE DATE OF THIS OPINION — OR RELEASED."

But today, almost four years later, Robert Rice is still in prison.

SEVEN CORRECTION OFFICERS at Green Haven State Prison, including a PRISON SUPERINTENDENT there, have written personal letters to Governor Carey imploring Robert's release. One guard says:

"I am coming to you as part of this society where if given the opportunity to return to it, Mr. Rice will be....as constructive there as he has been herein; prolonged incarceration [will] serve no purpose other than disintegration of the human being. DON'T, I pray, let this happen."

Please write Governor Carey today urging immediate executive clemency for Robert Rice. Address: Governor Hugh L. Carey, The Capitol, Albany, N.Y. 12224.

FREE ROBERT RICE

A Letter From Prison

from President Imari Abuakari
Obadele, I
The Provisional Government
Republic of New Afrika

During Kwanza, two days after last Christmas, i returned to jail — now to a densely populated federal prison in the North, rather than to the Mississippi jail cell where i once spent most of two years.

My name is unknown to many persons, but i am Imari Abubakari Obadele, I, and i am the first person in North America ever to be elected president of the subjugated Black Nation by votes of the people taken on the streets of Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., Detroit and Jackson, Mississippi.

I am also one of the Republic of New Afrika-Eleven (the RNA-11), and that is why seven of us, one young woman and five young men besides myself, are today in jails in Mississippi and elsewhere, under sentences ranging to life. I myself have 12 years; the papers delivered to my cell a few days ago informed me that i would not be released until April 1988.

Worse, however, is the fact that one young man serving life at Mississippi's Parchman Prison Farm — Karim Njabafudi (sn Larry Jackson) of New Orleans — was only 15 years old when he went to jail with us on August 18, 1971. Worse than my situation is the fact that Vice President Hekima Ana (sn Thomas Norman) of Milwaukee and Brother Offogga Ar-Rashid Quaddus (sn Wayne Maurice James) of Camden, New Jersey, not only have life sentences imposed on them as on Karim by the State of Mississippi, but have been sentenced to serve 12-year federal sentences AFT[illegible] the li[illegible] tences.

So, as i work and wait here in the federal prison at Terre Haute, Indiana, the feeling that walks with me most often is a feeling of ineffable sadness. Not for myself: like anyone who loves freedom i suffer in jail, but i am at peace with the confidence and the job of knowing that our moment has come, the era of victory for our people is upon us (despite the darkness before brilliant dawn). I am completely certain that long before 1988 We of the Black Independence Movement will be occupying the Governor's mansion in Mississippi.

It is my brothers for whom i feel the sadness: for Karim and Hekima and Offogga, of course, who have not been outside the walls since that fateful morning during the Watergate era — during J. Edgar Hoover's aggressive, lawless, once-secret campaign to "harass and disrupt" Black nationalists — when some 20 FBI agents and Jackson policemen attacked our home in Jackson, Mississippi, and one of them died. All seven people at the house where the attack took place were taken to jail. Hekima and his wife, Tamu (sn Ann Lockhart); Offogga and his wife, Njeri (sn Toni Renee Austin); Karim, and Addis Ababa (sn Dennis Shillingford) of Detroit, who served four years at Parchman and then returned with me at Christmas for 12 years more, and Chumaimari Askadi Ali (sn Charles Stalling) of Milwaukee, who served long months in Mississippi jails before e[illegible] upon five years in federal prison.

Simultaneously that morning at the office where they had sent only a small force a[illegible] [illegible] no [illegible] [illegible], they arrest[illegible] me and the RNA Information

* * *

Minister Aisha Salim (sn Brenda Blount) of Philadelphia and Spade de Mau Mau (sn S. L. Alexander) of Jackson and Tawwab Nkrumah (sn George Mathews) of Boston. And all eleven of us went to jail.

And so the deep sadness which walks with me sometimes is for my sisters too: for Aisha and Njeri and Tamu, at Parchman Prison's maximum security unit with us, where We could not protect them, and for Tamu, virtually in solitary confinement for eight long months at Hinds County Jail.

But, it is, also, and largely, for my brothers here: for hundreds and [illegible] of strong and often brilliant, mostly defiant young men, thrust into this concentration camp for ten and 25 and 75 years — over and over and over the sentences are like that — for bank robbery and th[illegible] [illegible]ain and again and [illegible] the c[illegible] are these).

[illegible] or help.

Voices Of Disengagement

donna nn 9 univ. 0424 10l
Voices for Disengagement

Recent years have seen growing pressure on U.S. Corporations involved in Southern Africa, generated by public exposure of their complicity with the white minority, apartheid and colonial systems of South Africa, Rhodesia, and Portuguese-ruled Africa. Many companies have responded by developing a rationale which seeks to justify their initial investment, continued presence and ongoing expansion in these racially oppressive countries.

The most universal corporate defense raised is the argument that U.S. companies act as catalysts for peaceful and constructive change of the racist systems by investing inside Southern Africa.

There is nothing in the history of South Africa's economic development to bear out these arguments that increasing industrialization must inevitably lead to improvement in the quality of life for everyone. For the black people of South Africa the last 20 years of intensive economic development have also been years of intensifying oppression and exploitation. White-black wage-gaps widened, pass laws were tightened and extended to cover African women as well as the men and the Bantustan design was used to transform the whole African population into a rightless "temporary work force" in the "white" areas. The 10 years between1961 and 1971 set a record for the number of new discriminatory laws passed — 98 of them all based on the intention to perpetuate racial differences.

South Africa now has all the apparatus of a police state...and that framework was being built at the same time as were the great new factories and roads and bridges that heralded economic prosperity.

Despite well-financed attempts by the South African Government and many major corporations to sell the image of the U.S. Corporation as a force for good in Southern Africa the chorus of African and other voices raised to contradict this argument continues to grow. The statements we have quoted below come from people representing a great diversity of background and experience. They have one important common theme — the rejection of the delusion that corporate expansion will lead to significant change in the oppression of the peoples of Southern Africa, and the conviction that the logical response in support of the struggle for self-determination should be immediate disengagement by U.S. business from South Africa.

"RESOLUTION:
1) To reject the involvement of foreign investors in this exploitative economic system..."
Black People's Convention Statement, South Africa.
December, 1972.

"There has been great publicity given recently to moves by South African business circles and foreign investors in South Africa, ostensibly designed to bring about changes within the existing order. It must be pointed out from the outset that these changes which would consist in the improvement of the social policies of the firms, increment in Black wages and vocational training, in no way affect the basic tenets of apartheid. They are but a devious attempt at perpetuating white domination and maintaining one of the highest rates of exploitation in the world the disguise of welfare politics...(the) dubious premise that economic progress and accrued investment will gradually transform and corrode the apartheid system from within...is upheld neither by history nor statis[illegible] Recent statistics show a widening gap between white and black wages. The earning gap between white and black mine-workers rose from 15.2 to 1 in May 1966 to 17.9 to 1 in 1970. Black wages in the mines did not go up once in real terms between 1911 and 1970.
Ambassador E. O. Ogbu, Chairman, U.N. Special Committee on Apartheid 1973.

"Our call for disengagement of foreign investment is supported by a large number of organizations and movements who are against those who advocate violence as the only solution to gain political and social freedom for the millions of oppressed and underprivileged people in South Africa."
Sonny Leon, Leader of the Coloured Labor Party, 1972.

The ANC has long called for the ending of all foreign capital investment in South Africa. We see the economy as essentially structured by a colonial-type relationship between the white minority and foreign capital interests on the one hand, and the African people on the other.

South Africa is an attractive center for profitable foreign investment, precisely because migrant labor in abundance is organized and made easily available to business by the regime as a conscious act of policy...companies are not motivated by the desire to bring employment to the African people or to improve the economic conditions of African workers (but)...largely by considerations of profit, their share of the market and the sources of the raw material supplies they require.
Oliver Tambo, Acting President-General of the African National Congress, South Africa.

"The economic boycott of South Africa will entail undoubted hardship for Africans. We do not doubt that. But if it is a method which shortens the day of blood, the suffering to us will be a price we are willing to pay. In any case, we suffer already, our children are often undernourished, and, on a small scale (so far), we die at the whim of a policeman."
The late Chief Albert J. Luthuli, Nobel Prize winner and President of the African National Congress.

"All investments are a direct contribution to the colonial war. I understand how Gulf can say that investment brings progress. Some even say that after independence Africans will have the fruits of this investment. But this progress is not real for the African population. The increased economic interests of Western countries will bring about a need to defend these interests.

To invest in Angola, Mozambique, and Guinea-Bissau is to delay our independence. We are against it.

At the United Nations we stated that we will consider any agreement between Portugal and these companies invalid. These investments are immoral acts against our people."
Marcelino Dos Santos, Vice President of FRELIMO, New York, October, 1972.

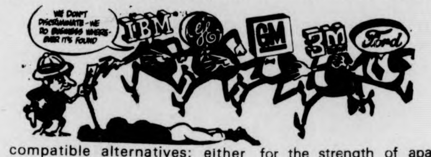
"The apartheid government grows stronger by the day because of its solvency, which it gets from foreign investors. If the government had an economic shock, things might begin to change...."
Mrs. Fatima Meer, Indian Congress of South Africa, January, 1973.

"SASO sees foreign investments as giving stability to South Africa's exploitative regime and committing South Africa's trading partners to supporting this regime. For this reason SASO rejects foreign investments.

Further SASO sees the ameliorative experiments like those of Polaroid as at worst, conscience salving and at best resulting in the creation of a chang[illegible]tant middle class amongst the few blacks employed by foreign firms."
Statement of Policy of the South African Student Organization (the national Black student organization) 1972.

"The Africans accept sanctions as a price for their freedom and declare as our enemy any person who claims on our behalf that sanctions should be withdrawn to alleviate African suffering through lack of employment. The African National Council calls upon the Security Council and all States which support the cause of human freedom to intensify sanctions."
Methodist Bishop Abel Muzorewa, President, the African National Council of Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) before the UN Security Council, January, 1972.

"Disengagement from these territories (Angola and Mozambique) will no doubt mean financial loss to Gulf, but it will at least provide it with moral leadership and set a valuable precedent for social responsibility among other corporations. This leadership will put Gulf in a position of strength especially at this time when African States are beginning to pose incompatible alternatives: either investment in Southern Africa or in independent Africa or in other progressive States, NOT IN BOTH."
Executive Secretariat of the Organization of African Unity at the United Nations, 1970.



WE DON'T DISCRIMINATE-WE DO BUSINESS WHERE-EVER IT'S FOUND IBM
GE
GM
3M
Ford

"The basic fallacy in the argument of those who hold out any hope of political change through economic expansionism is that they fail to understand a single fact of history: in authoritarian societies economic forces are controlled by political forces, not the other way about.

It is naive to suppose that South Africa's white society would give up its power, its privileges and its present system of more rapid economic expansion. The change-through-expansion argument should be seen for what it is — a rationalization to justify what is in the best economic interests of those who employ it. Hard-headed political analysis shows that it is almost certain to be a dangerous delusion."
Colin Legum, born and raised in South Africa and respected author and journalist on African affairs.

"....Reaffirming the inalienable right of the people of South Africa to self-determination and freedom,...Condemns the continued and increasing cooperation of certain States and foreign economic interests with South Africa in the military, economic, political and other fields, as such cooperation encourages the South African regime in the pursuit of apartheid in the defiance of the United Nations;...Requests States members of international agencies and organizations, particularly the members of the European Economic Community, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the International Monetary Fund, to take the necessary steps to deny all assistance and commercial or other facilities to the Government of South Africa so long as it pursues its policies of apartheid and racial discrimination and continues to defy the resolutions of the General Assembly and of the Security Council;...Invites all organizations, institutions and information media to organize...intensified and coordinated campaigns in 1973 w[illegible] following goals:

(a) Discontinuation of all military, economic and political collaboration with South Africa;

(b) Cessation of all activities by foreign economic interests which encourage the South African regime in its imposition of apartheid;"
Extracts; United Nations General Assembly Resolution 2925 E (XXVII) 1972

"I believe that apartheid has to come to an end. I believe that America itself, with its industries and business can no longer underwrite apartheid, whether it be General Motors, Chrysler, Ford, or 300 other companies that are there. The tide is moving in the direction of freedom and opportunity in the world, not in the direction of apartheid, and I am saying that the United States government ought to declare an economic embargo against the Union of South Africa...."
Rev. Dr. Leon Sullivan, Director of General Motors Corporation "Meet the Press", March 7, 1971.

"To the extent that U.S. corporations are agents which support and strengthen the South African economy they are also responsible for the strength of apartheid. A healthy economy strengthens white control, white imperviousness to economic sanctions, white ability to keep blacks oppressed....If indeed U.S. investment in South Africa assists in maintaining the overall system of white control then the only legitimate demand possible by those wishing to challenge that control is that U.S. companies must withdraw from South Africa."
Timothy H. Smith, Executive Secretary, the Interfaith Committee on Social Responsibility in Investments.

"American business as it increases its economic involvement in South Africa becomes a partner of the South African state as it maintains its control over the great mass of non-white people living within its boundaries. This economic aid has helped South Africa on its way to a self-sufficient economy, has and continues to provide important political and psychological support to the racist system, and now helps the South African economy in its process of economic, military and political expansion into the rest of Africa....To think that a few remedial changes made by U.S. corporations allowing a few more Africans to get skilled positions and to allow some increase in wages (even as the cost of living goes up) will challenge the pattern of apartheid and minority control is naivete of the worst order....Some of us oppose this....Thus we take the view that all sorts of pressure must be brought to bear on U.S. companies to get out of South Africa, and urge truly concerned people to look toward the struggle of the liberation movements and the mass of oppressed peoples for fundamental change in South Africa."
George M. Houser, Executive Director of the American Committee on Africa" An Open Letter to Ulric Haynes, Jr.", April 18, 1971.

"...I must report that the idea of doing business in South Africa is totally unacceptable; we could not be true to the basic principles on which we run our business and we should lose our integrity in the process. We should have to operate within a social climate where the colour of a man's skin is his most important attribute and where there is virtually no communication between the races; we should be locked into this system. We should have to operate within an economic climate which is deliberately designed to demoralize and to maintain an industrial helotry; we should in turn profit from such exploitation and ultimately end up with a vested interest in its maintenance."
Mr. Neil Wates, Managing Director of Wates, Ltd. after visiting South Africa in 1970 and rejecting an invitation to invest in that country.

"Most of us believe that American corporations should totally disengage from southern Africa; that the presence of American corporations in which we are shareholders undergirds the system of racism, colonialism and apartheid which prevails in southern Africa...even progressive employment on the part of American companies will not bring the basic changes in society that we support because of our Christian commitment to freedom, justice and self-determination."
from the report by an ecumenical church team of 14 persons who visited South Africa in October-November.

Upcoming Events

Coming Up
TONIGHT

Lecture in commemoration of Dr. King: "Afro-Am Religion: Its Political Sturggles" Dr. Vincent Harding — Smith College Wright Hall at 8 p.m. Reception will follow.

Poet and philosopher Dr. Wilfred Cartey will speak on "Education and Race" Center for Racial Understanding-Moorehouse Faculty Apartment

All day workshops on struggle in Anzania (South Africa) 7:30 p.m. CC Auditorium

Speakers: David Sebeko — Pan Africanist Congress
Thembu Viakazi — African National Congress
Paul Irish, Prexy Nesbitt — American Committee on Africa
Playthell Benjamin — Black Historian
Bheki Langa — Committee on Southern Africa

TOMORROW April 5

Noon rally at New Africa House. March to Whitmore to demand University sell investments in South Africa. Free Earl Brown and Craeman Gethers

"Is Black Still Beautiful" Lecture by Dr. Wilfred Cartey-Butterfield Lounge — 7:30 p.m.

Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Week: Rev. Hosea Williams, Dr. Randolf Blackwell, Ms. Marion Williams — Vocalist 8 p.m. S.U.B.

WEDNESDAY April 7

Book Review Series: Dr. John Bracey will review Oliver Cox's "Race Relations: Elements in Social Dynamics" Smith College-Mwangi Cultural Center, Lilly Hall — 2 p.m.

Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Week: A Freedom Seder — 6 p.m. S.U.B. Film-Let the Church Say Amen — 8 p.m. S.U.B.

THURSDAY April 7

MLK Memorial Week-Gospel Night Vernard Johnson, Jessy Dixon and the Jessy Dixon Singers, 8 p.m. S.U.B.

See the magic of Diana Ramos Third World Theatre Image Ensemble performing Here Now, Great God Almighty and Community Poem. Monday, April 11 — 7:30, Buckley Auditorium-Amherst College.

Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Week!

The Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Lecture Series will be presented by the Distinguished Visitor's Program (D.V.P.) on April 5, 6, and 7, 1977 in the Student Union Ballroom, University of Massachusetts. This is the tenth annual series sponsored by DVP. This lecture series commemorates the life and works of Dr. King (January 15, 1929-April 4, 1968) and is scheduled each year during the anniversary of his death. These events remind us of the goals Dr. King possessed: peace, equality, justice and freedom for all.

Dr. King was no dreamer, but he had a dream. He lived in no ivory tower, but he said he had been to the mountaintop. History marks him as the prime minister of a social movement that shook the conscience of the world. He asked to be remembered only as a drum major. From the Montgomery bus boycott to the assassin's bullet, this national hero showed us what man can be, what man should be, and what man must be.

This lecture series begins on April 5 at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom with a lecture presentation by Rev. Hosea Williams and Dr. Randolph Blackwell and a vocalist presentation by Ms. Marion Williams.

Rev. Hosea Williams has traveled extensively in all parts of the nation as a speaker, lecturer, and civil rights leader. In October 1971, he represented the Southern Christian Leadership Conference on a world-wide Brotherhood Tour visiting Senegal, Liberia, Ivory Coast, Ghana, Nigeria, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Zambia, Tanzania, Kenya and Ethiopia, Africa; New Delhi, India; Saigon and Cahmron Bay, South Vietnam; Hong Kong; and the People's Republic of China. Rev. Williams was invested as the minister of The Martin Luther King, Jr.'s People's Church of Love in 1972. In 1974, he was elected as the Georgia State Representative — 54th District. Rev. Williams worked, marched and suffered with Dr. King during the most difficult days of the 1950's and the 1960's. He is a leader in the struggle for the humanity of all people.

Dr. Randolph Blackwell is the Executive Director of Southern Rural Action, Inc., an organization that helps poverty areas develop a secure economic footing and a reliable source of income, through the establishment of small industries owned by the employees. He has been an associate professor of Social Science, an associate professor of Economics, the Program Director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Dr. Blackwell is the co-author of PRINCIPLES OF ECONOMICS and COLLEGE BUSINESS LAW and is widely published in the fields of civil rights, voter registration, economics and law. He is a board member of the MLK Center for Social Change in Atlanta, Georgia.

Ms. Marion Williams has been described by the Washington Post as the reigning queen of gospel singers. She has a staggering gift of improvising melody and is also a very visual performer. This genuine American artist is scheduled to do a segment before the lecturers and to close the lecture presentation with a gospel presentation.

On April 6, the evening begins with a Freedom Seder in the Student Union Ballroom at 6:00 p.m. The Seder is a symbolic meal in which the Jewish people have for four thousand years celebrated their deliverance from the political oppression of the Egyptian Pharoah; it is also the origin of the Christian Communion or Eucharist. The story will be retold with songs and readings that the struggle for freedom is never-ending, that the Exodus is an on-going event which creates community and calls for commitment to liberation for all people in every age. This two hour program will be sponsored by the M.L.K. Jr., Lecture Series in cooperation with the United Christian Foundation, Hillel and the Newman Center. A fifteen minute presentation will be made during this Seder by Richard Scott Gordon, a UMass student. Richard will recite excerpts from several famous speeches by Martin Luther King, Jr. These excerpts will be taken from such speeches as the Birmingham Jail Speech, the Memphis Garbage Worker's Speech, and the I Have a Dream Speech.

At 8:00 p.m. also in the Student Union Ballroom, a film will be shown sponsored by the Campus Center Program Council. LET THE CHURCH SAY AMEN- a film by St. Claire Bourne. This film is the story of a Southern boy who goes to the seminary in Atlanta. This boy grows up and accepts an appointment in the racist North. It is a story of the dilemma a young black man goes through in the divinity.

The final day for this tenth annual series is Thursday, April 7, GOSPEL NIGHT, also in the Student Union Ballroom at 8:00 p.m. Vernard Johnson will open the evening with his "Saxophone for Christ". Mr. Johnson has been hailed as the greatest gospel saxophonist who has ever lived. He has played with the Edwin Hawkins Singers, Professor James Cleveland, Shirley Caesar and many others. He is the first black student to receive a Master of Church Music and a Doctor of Musical Arts Degree from Southwestern, the world's largest seminary. "His witness by voice and instrument has been a blessing to our fellowship", said the President of Southwestern, Robert E. Naylor.

Jessy Dixon and the Jessy Dixon Singers will also be an integral part of this Gospel evening. The Chicago Sun-Times has described this group as "a tambourine shaking, hand-clapping, roof-raising outfit who shout for joy." The group consists of Jessy Dixon, Elisa Harris, Ethel Halloway, and Aldrea Lenox who provide variations on the call-response of song. This group reaches out into your heart and soul and touch the very essence of your being with their infectious rhythm and absolutely exuberant singing.

The Distinguished Visitor's Program is very excited about this tenth annual Martin Luther Kinn, Jr. Memorial Lecture Series and hope you will come and be part of this celebration. That's April 5, 1977, 8:00 p.m., April 6, 1977, 6:00 p.m., and April 7, 1977, 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom on the University of Massachusetts Amherst campus. All the events will be free and open to the University and community at large. We plan to have a "real good time".

The NE. Sylvan Comparative Racism Program presents South Africa, a panel discussion. Panelists — Andrew Lukele, South African Refugee Lawyer, Political Economy Professor, Activist. Rhodes Qxoyiya, South African Refugee, Activist. Themba Vilakazi, Member of African National Congress of South Africa. Film: There Is No Crisis Here, 7:30 Tues., Dwight Lounge, April.

Mobuto's Racist Regime

By SALVADOR GRAU

The manipulation of the racial issue by the so called "industrialized" nations of the "west" is brought into focus by the recent developments in Zaire, a black ruled African nation. Here, since 1965 Mobutu Sese Seko has ruled with the grace and blessing of the United States, Belgium, and France, among others.

Mobuto, as he is internationally known, started in the 1960's as a colonel in the Zairian army and fought for the independence of the country against Belguim. Then the country was known as the Belgian Congo. As a result of that struggle, a progressive government was formed, lead by Patricio Lumumba, who, on an operative set up by the CIA, as it was later demonstrated, was assassinated and substituted with a regime friendly to the previous ruler's interests. Which by the way, whose interests were the same as the United States (happy coincidence?).

The situation which evolved from this peculiar political arrangement did little to correct the ills which under the previous colonial rule prevailed. The new situation is considered in modern day politics as neo-colonialism.

Today, when beligerence sprouts in two important Zairian provinces, the economic investment of the three countries mentioned above (France, Belgium and the U.S.) amounts to over two billion dollars. Small wonder these three governments were the first to supply the decaying Mobuto regime an injection of arms and money. Not an extraordinary measure in itself, these "industrialized" nations have been materially sustaining the regime since it was put in power, as additional support to prolong its life.

The inharent nature of Mobuto's rule can be best appreciated when one takes into consideration his government; although black on the surgace it colaborated with the racist South African armies against the Movement for the Liberation of Angola. The struggle was waged to ride (Angola) of Portugese colonial rule. The military organization utilized by the Zarian puppet regime to perpetrate the agression against the Angolan Liberation Movement was a so called National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA). This movement was also lead by a black; but financed by the CIA by way of the Mobuto regime.

Mobuto also included troops in the deal, as a progressive regime in the neighboring country would considerably jeopardize the precarious situation of his home rule.

The "industrialized" countries are conscious of the economic importance of the emerging free nations in the African continent and are in a disposition to do all that is in their power to impede the establishment of governments that respond to other forces than their economic interest. They are willing to allow Mobutos to rein throughout, but are committed to using all the tricks in the book (and on the CIA's repertoire), including mass murder and genocide to impede the Agustino Netos and Patricio Lumumbas from coming into power for the well being of their people.

If black "rule" is required, do it. But take your time about it, as in South Africa and Rhodesia to get a s close a ressemplance to Mobuto as possible.

In the local scene the same principle is used.

The main opposing forces are comprised by a progressive movement lead by two excolaborators of Patrice Lummba; Antoine Gizenga and Laurent Kabila. The former ex-vice primier during the Lumumba government, and the latter, former leader of the youth of the Congolese movement, also an ex-Lumumba leadered organization. This armed organization, known as a Lumunbaist movement, operates in the province of Kivu. The political organization operating paralell to this armed movement is the Peoples Revolutionary Party.

During the armed struggle, FNLA struck up an alliance with an organization, receiving South African and CIA support, called UNITA (Unity for the Total Liberation of Angola), which was based in South Africa. The Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), however, with the support of the masses and foreign allies came out triumphant.

The triumph of this neighboring country, along with international economic troubles and the growth of the opposition forces within, has brought to the kneeling position the racist regime of Mobuto.

In the Katanga province, which is the one to have received the most press coverage for two reasons to be brought up shortly, the uprisings have been apparently strict nationalist basis; mainly by katangese who were ousted from the province for political reasons after the Mobuto took over. They are apparently returning from their forced exile in Angola to claim their political rights through armed struggle.

Here the Mobuto army has refused on occasions to confront the insurgents. Morale in the military is reported by the western press as "deteriorating" due to the countries economic woes. The real reason is probably the futility that is observed by the Mobuto troops in clashing with the ascending popular forces.

The reasons we would venture to assume are behind the belittlement of the Lumunbaist movement in Kivu, as opposed to the Katangese are an intermediate range publicity strategy delineated by the real governing powers; in case Mobuto is deposed as the government figurehead, the Lumunbaist will not have been projected as the main force for the forming of a government; and the proximity with Angola, that could well be used to promote the impression that Angola is interfering in the internal affairs of Zaire and there by justifying foreing intervention there.

NEED A JOB?

The Student Activities Office needs a keypunch operator to work 20 hours per week to help out in our office. Typing speed of 60 w.p.m or better required —

If you are interested please come to the Student Activities Office, Room 416 Student Union between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, except Wednesday when we are open 12:30 p.m.-5:00 p.m.

To: Black Affairs
From: Afro-American Student Society
Topic: On Wednesday, April 6, 1977

There will be a film-lecture and demonstration on acupuncture, the Chinese method of healing and health care. How and why it is significantly different from western methods? These and other questions will be answered.

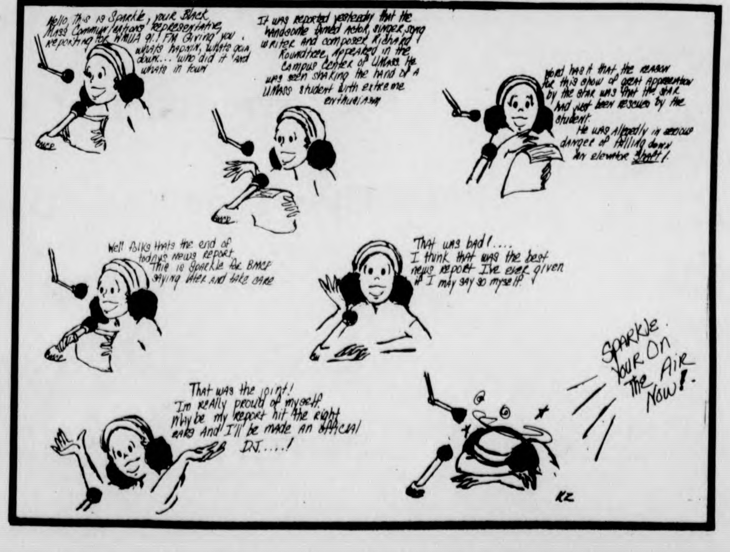
The presentation will be given by Brother Akram Muhammad of the New England school of acupuncture located in Boston.

The film will be acupuncture anesthesia, a very good documentary on the scientific effectiveness of acupuncture over drugs in both minor and major operations.

The second film is on China's Barefoot doctors local medically trained persons, one experienced in China's traditional forms of medicine and in western methods and how they help to provide health care for 80 per cent of China's population.

Time: 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

The Chadbournites by By: Karien Zachery



Hello, this is Sparkle, your Black Mass Communications representative reporting for WMUA 91.1 FM Giving you whats hapnin, whats goin down... who did it and whats in town
It was reported yesterday that the handsome famed actor, singer, song writer and composer Richard Roundtree, appeared in the Campus Center of UMass. He was seen shaking the hand of a UMass student with extreme enthusiasm
Word has it that the reason for this show of great appreciation by the star was that the star had just been rescued by the student.
He was allegedly in serious danger of falling down an elevator shaft!
Well folks thats the end of todays news report. This is Sparkle for BMCF saying later and take care
That was bad!.... I think that was the best news report I've ever given if I may say so myself.
That was the joint! I'm really proud of myself. Maybe my report hit the right ears And I'll be made an official DJ....!
Sparkle. Your On The Air Now!.
KZ

There Cannot Be A Change Within A Nation

MAYBE TOMORROW
This system is against us.
Racism's might-aged jaws clamp down on our flight. The caged bird sings because it is out of tears.
Blinded fools stiffle and blind
those who would be free.
How can we see the light if as ascending
we catch their shit full face?

I am made of blood, bone, flesh, and soul.
All of which I must fight to maintain.
What can They be made of to perceive my existence as being insignificant?
My defiance will never turn to compliance.
I will fight
and answer the systems enigmas
The heat of anxiety will not wilt my soul

Gradualism is climbing on a greased perch slowly — the longer we take the harder the climb.
We must make an all out powerful thrust to reach the top.
For only from this vantage point can we see, understand, and fly.
We will be free when we have collectively become tired of catching hell for being black.

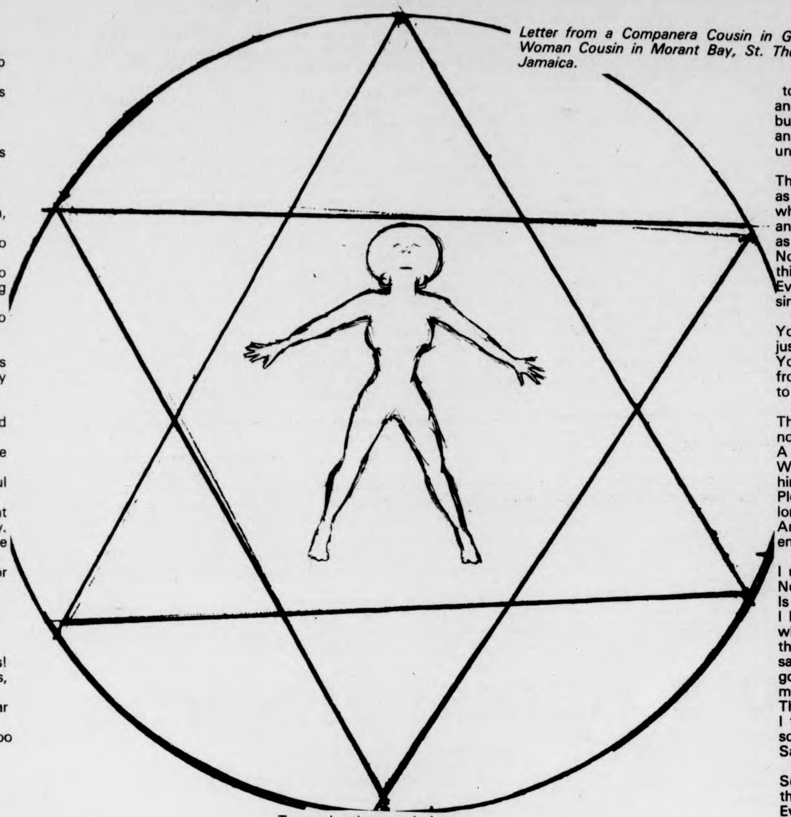
I sit and think about our lives,
lives so full of work and strife.
I ponder immedicable woes,
Wonder, O wonder why life burns!
Knowledge pains, innocence pains,
Life is pain, Life is woe.
But one day soon my soul will soar
and I will be free!
Anthony McAdoo



Letter from a Companera Cousin in Guanabacoa, La Habana, to her Woman Cousin in Morant Bay, St. Thomas, just across the water, in Jamaica.

to be cousins
and all that, Sylvie love, but the distance far, nuh,
and a whole heap o' water under bridge, as them say.

Things, here, not the same as in the wicked ol' days when I lef' you, back there and come to Guanabacoa,
as a li'l gal, long time, now.
No, cousin! The trut' is things change a lot.
Everything change a lot,
since then, you see.

You wouldn't able imagine
just how much.
You would have to be here,
from long time
to know how much.

That long-foot horse not no ordinary horse, you know!
A real chance-taker from way back.
When him say a thing,
him mean it.
Plenty times, him do it,
long before head or body say it.
And you know, that confuse enemy rider and friend, same time.

I used to say him mad, bad, bad.
Now, I know better.
Is so him mind stay, free-up.
I know that is the others who really lost f'them own, those who standing up
same place, not moving go anywhere, same so,
morning, noon and night.
This place is one horse,
I tell you, pure, tough,
so-so horse, all the way.
Salamander country, too.

So, as I was telling you:
things change a lot.
Everything change a lot,
since then, you see.

You wouldn't able imagine
just how much.
You would have to be here,
from long time
to know how much.

Anyway, I can tell you one thing: I feel more like me natural self, now.

How you, these days?
Anything really new,
back there so?
You managing, all right?

Them still advertising
the Island, as if it was free piece o' pussy?
You own schooner,
live shipmate,
crew,
grand grab,
grog,
port o' call,
crabs that don't walk
backways or sideways,
skin-diving,
rapids f'navigate,
exploring, at all hours,
limbo right slap into dawn,
and book in Miami
where you money safe and don't never reach the li'l exotic dirt
in the tropical sun.

Honest, Sylvie,
I don't know how things stay with you, right now, but I can imagine
it must be the same,
like how I don't hear
say that the tune change.

Things tough here, too, yes,
but I can tell you one thing f'sure: all the land belong to we, and, on top o' that,
I feel more like me natural.

How you,
these days?
Andrew Salkey

To my brothers and sisters
By Chaka Zulu
Those of you who say that other black people are stuck-up because, they see you everyday, or walk by you without speaking, I have a question for you: Have you ever considered speaking first?

As the cool majestic wind blows evenly over our ebony faces, our thoughts begin to flow rhythmatically one to another, carrying the same refreshing substance as the breeze encompassing us.
I become elevated with the smoothness of your being,
and your face beams in the presents
of my lift.
A fire rages within us
with flames of the purest colors;
knowledge, truth and understanding.
The constant wind maintains its persisting breeze, causing our spirits to rage and we quickly set a blaze those around us, bringing our ebony smiles that reflect the beauty of a rich earth.
Allah grows and flows and we become wholesome.

Give
the world a little gift
today.

They Wanted It All

They Wanted Our Minds

They Played With Our Spirit

They Tried To Copy Our Arts

They Wanted To Be Black

When They Died They Died White

And Wanting

Annie Carpenter
© 1977

Without A Change Within Awareness

Simmering Senate ousts DiCarlo, 28-8

BOSTON (UPI) — After nearly four hours of emotional debate, the Massachusetts Senate voted 28-8 yesterday to expel Joseph J.C. DiCarlo of Revere, one of two senators facing one-year prison sentences on federal extortion convictions.

Expulsion of DiCarlo, who stepped down as majority leader after conviction, was recommended Friday by the Senate Ethics Committee after the second senator convicted in the same extortion scheme, Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington, resigned.

The Senate is expected to move quickly to set up special elections to fill the two vacant seats.

"I have every intention of running in the special election," DiCarlo said afterward. "I am not questioning the integrity, or the motives or the vote of the Senate."

DiCarlo said it was "certainly an understatement" when asked if any of his former colleagues voted to expel him because of voter pressure.

He said "there might well be a court challenge" to the process used by the Senate and the Ethics Committee.

Voting against expulsion were Sens. Alan D. Sisitsky, D-Springfield; Daniel J. Foley, D-Worcester; Bill Owens, D-Boston; Joseph B. Walsh, D-Boston; Denis L. McKenna, D-Somerville; Walter J. Doverini, D-Lynn; Michael LoPresti Jr., D-Boston and James A. Kelly Jr., D-Oxford.

Senate President Kevin B. Harrington, D-Salem, did not vote and declined to comment on the action. Also not voting was Sen. Anna P. Buckley, D-Brockton, who was reported to be on vacation.

Debate opened at 1 p.m. with an amendment offered by Sisitsky calling for DiCarlo's suspension rather than expulsion.

The amendment was defeated 20-16 after nearly three hours of debate.

DiCarlo and MacKenzie were convicted in February of extorting $40,000 from McKee-Berger-Mansueto, Inc., a New York construction management firm that had a lucrative contract to oversee construction at the Boston campus of UMass.

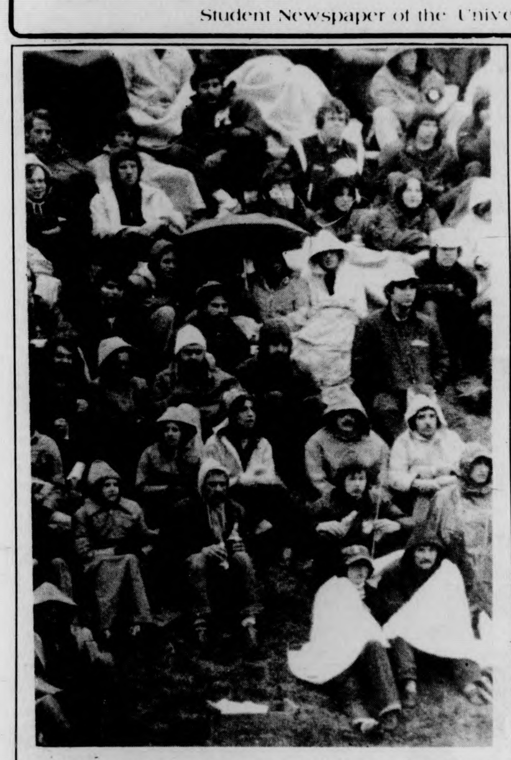
Yesterday's Senate debate marked the first time in 200 years the Senate has considered expelling one of its own.

Under special rules adopted Friday, a two-thirds vote was required to expel DiCarlo. The vote on suspension required a simple majority to carry.

DiCarlo addressed his colleagues briefly. He criticized the Senate for not permitting him to present evidence or giving him a full trial.

"There is little more I can do or say," he said. "My hands are tied... I register my strong protest."

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 115 TUESDAY, APRIL 5, 1977
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500



Get the message? There will be enough April showers today to keep you clean for a week. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

No one signed yet for Spring Concert

By NIKKI ARONSON
Collegian Staff

Pinky Batiste, Student Government Association co-president, warned the Collegian yesterday "we might as well forget about a big Spring Concert."

Batiste said Concert co-chairperson David Kantor "hasn't booked anyone" for the Spring Concert scheduled May 7.

Kantor said that he and co-chairperson Bruce Wingate and David Lombardi had contacted "over 500 name band groups in the past few months."

"We contacted agents who handle a hundred promoters, but quite a few artists are playing games with us."

Some names mentioned in a Student Senate meeting at which initial proposals for the concert were discussed were Stevie Wonder and Bruce Springsteen.

Speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate Brian DeLima called the situation a trying one and said yesterday in a Collegian interview "We might have (Jeff) Beck maybe he'll call back this afternoon and tell us the concert's still on, but we don't have him now."

The Student Senate encumbered $67,000 "to secure a major artist" on January 26.

Kantor said the money was to have been repaid in the form of ticket sales brought by "four or five name groups." Among those under consideration as of last week were Beck, Procol Harum and The Ohio Players.

Both Wingate and Lombardi denied knowledge of any possible negotiations with Beck.

DeLima said, "We had George Benson and we offered him $10,000 but New York made him a better offer. Marshall Tucker wanted a percentage of the gross that would have totalled $50,000."

"Although the initial proposal was that we present students with major talent, today we are forced to find an alternative with a free concert." said DeLima.

"I haven't heard anything from Kantor for more than a week," said Lombardi yesterday. Lombardi sought a retraction of his name from an article on Spring Concert that appeared in yesterday's Collegian.

"I wasn't sure I wanted my name associated with this whole mess," he said.

Kantor said he had spoken to Lombardi and Wingate on his proposed, "State of the Concert Address" to be delivered before the Senate tomorrow night. The address will recommend that the Senate give the Committee "$20,000 to $25,000 scot-free for a Spring Concert."

He said he feels the money should come out of student activities fee "because this is a student activity."

Kantor said Wingate was with him on his proposal but that Lombardi had expressed doubts as to the wisdom of the plan.

Both Wingate and Lombardi denied any knowledge of the speech and said Kantor had not spoken to them on the matter of an alternative concert design.

Kantor cited one of the reasons prompting his recommendation to the Senate as being, "as a student service, the concert is something students want. We don't want to get their expectations up for a big name artist. The farce such as that Steve Wonder article is something that students don't want."

Kantor was referring to the lead story in the Collegian on April Fool's Day which reported that Stevie Wonder would be coming to UMass for the Spring Concert.

The past two years money for the concert have come from the combined efforts of the Student Senate and area governments. Prior to those years monies were donated from respective alumni classes.

Kantor said he could not expect money from classes of past years as "they have no money." Kantor did not comment as to whether he had tried to contact any alumni or area governments.

Both Wingate and Lombardi said they "knew nothing of Kantor's plans for tomorrow night; but said they intended to contact Kantor to "find out what is going on."

The position of Committee Chairpersons was secured in January when applications were made available by DeLima and Student Senate Treasurer Thomas J. Kerrins. Kantor, a student senator, expressed interest before applications had been made available and took a position on the committee over January Intercession.

Approval of candidates was made by DeLima, Kerrins and Kantor.

Kantor said he was paid $2.50 per hour for his services on the Program Council over intercession. Though he could receive academic credit for his work on the concert, as he has "done in other concert work as approved by his advisor," he said he needs no extra credits as he has enough and is working for the pleasure at the end of a concert.

Kantor felt the Senate will approve his proposal. He cited "astronomical prices and lack of time" as the problems necessitating recommendations for free concert.

"The structure of the concert should be changed," he said. "The Senate should finance a show reminiscent of years past." Kantor explained the past two years have produced "second rate talent." He said he wanted "name talent of past years such as Springsteen and Aerosmith.

Program Council Communication Committee Chairperson Bonnie Levitan said yesterday she didn't want any "cult artists" on the concert program.

Kantor said he would remind the Senate of past concerts while asking for money to spend on artists whose prices range from "$2,500 to $5,000."

He said he rejected any suggestion of bringing in a professional promoter to assure name talent for Spring Concert.

"If you let someone like Don Law (a Boston promoter) into the University, he will soon take over all the big programs. Kantor explained that promoters like Law "are only after a profit." He said that after taking charge of a Spring Concert, promoters would "be into the Fine Arts Center shows, ballroom shows and other campus events."

It is a learning experience for all those involved "with the planning of the concert," said Kantor.

MSP wants recognition

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

Members of the faculty union will be winding up their efforts today to convince the University trustees to reverse their March decision ignoring their newly elected unit.

Larry S. Roberts, President of the Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP), the Amherst campus' local, yesterday said the union will be hosting a cocktail hour today for trustees at Boston's Parker House hotel and restaurant.

The event will finish up several weeks of informal talks and telephone calls between trustees and union members before the full board convenes tomorrow at the Worcester Medical School.

At the trustee meeting the union will present a list of about 1000 faculty signatures asking the trustees to change their vote to ignore the unit and begin negotiating a contract with faculty.

The trustees voted to ignore the union on the grounds that it was "too complex." The trustees objected to the inclusion of department chairpersons, certain part-time faculty and certain visiting faculty in the unit.

The union is also asking faculty to drive to Worcester tomorrow to attend the trustee meeting as an expression of their interest in the matter, Roberts said.

The union also held a joint meeting with representatives from the MSP and the Boston local, the Faculty Staff Union, at the MSP's office on North Pleasant St. yesterday to discuss options open to them in the event the trustees do not reverse their decision.

Roberts, in a statement made after the meeting, said the union is not optimistic about a reversal, since the initial decision was a public one.

The union will be holding a meeting in the Worcester Sheraton-Hilton directly after the trustees meet to decide on a course of action, he said.

In addition to the legal option of sueing the University on unfair labor practice charges, which would involve the union and administration in lengthy negotiations, Roberts said there are still a few political avenues the union could use.

Representatives of other state employe unions have written to UMass President Robert C. Wood asking him to request the trustees reverse their vote.

The trustee vote places the impetus on the faculty union to sue the University on unfair labor practice charges. Because the Massachusetts State Labor Relations Commission determined which positions would be in the unit last October, the only way the administration can challenge its composition is for the faculty to bring them to court.

Teach-in explains US racism

By MARY ELLEN LOWNEY
Collegian Staff

One woman and six men addressed a group of 100 people in the Campus Center Auditorium last night on the political, social, and economic situation in South Africa and what the United States has been doing to promote the racist actions in those countries.

David Sebeko, from the Pan Africanist Congress of Azania, addressed a group in the Campus Center Auditorium...

The teach-in, part of a two-day program to make students aware of the University's financial involvement in multi-national corporations that propogate racism, was sponsored by the UMass Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa.

Plathell Benjamin, a former UMass professor, opened the series with a speech entitled "Crisis in Southern Africa," in which he denounced President Jimmy Carter and his cabinet as a "classic example of the hypocrisy that exists in the politicians of this capitalist system." Carter, according to Benjamin, broke many of the promises he made to American blacks while running for president.

"In his campaign, he spoke of the violation of human rights," he said, "and yet the only counnry he refers to in this respect is the Soviet Union. The only African country he speaks of is Uganda." Idi Amin, the Prime Minister of Uganda, is "being used as a subterfuge, as a smokescreen," said Benjamin.

The pathetic conditions the black people of South Africa are forced to live with will "eventually throw all of these countries in a racial war," he concluded, adding that "violence against an oppressor in therapeutic."

Nana Seshibe, from the School of Education and also associated with the Pan Africanist Congress, spoke of the plight of the African woman.

Traditions, she said, are supposedly the products of women. "The women of South Africa are revolting against these traditions," she said.

The quality of education for the children as well as working conditions for women are deplorable, said Seshibe, and encouraged students to get involved in the march and rally to be held today at noon.

Jay Martus, former SGA co-president, addressed the audience on his recent investigation of the University trustees, in which he discovered their investment of over $54,000 in corporations having major investments in South Africa.

Martus, along with the Revolutionary Student Brigade and the UMass Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa, are asking the trustees to write letters to the corporations and partake in "shareholders resolutions, or withdraw our investments with them."

Also featured at the teach-in were David Sebeko, from the Pan Africanist Congress of Azania, Paul Irish, American Committee on Africa, Andrew Lukele, of Karabo, a group of South African political refugees who are presently residing in the U.S., and Prexy Nesbitt, from the American Committee on Africa.

Sebeko described the situation in South Africa as a "legitimate struggle for national liberation," and said "the people have no other option than to utilize the final resort, open war."

The CIA, according to Sebeko, has for many years been and is still involved in setting up puppet governments to satisfy native Africans.

...along with Plathell Benjamin, former UMass professor, on US involvement in South Africa. (Both staff photos by David Olken)

Paul Irish called the United States corporations in Africa, such as IBM and Kodak, "participators in a cheap exploitive labor force in which whites are sure to gain and blacks are destined to lose."

Prexy Nesbitt urged students to "be ready to be mobilized for the march tomorrow," emphasizing the need "to move and struggle toward supportive contribution" to those in South Africa.

Central Council reschedules election

By JOE QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

Pending the approval of Government Affairs and the Student Government Association (SGA), Central Area Council (CAC) will be holding a special election for CAC officers on April 21.

This decision was made last night at the weekly council meeting after 70 per cent of the area's dormitory house councils ratified two amendments to the CAC constitution during the past week.

CAC also tabled four monetary petitions from various organizations, until next week; and listened to reports on the Amherst town meeting elections and the Central-Orchard Hill spring concert.

The CAC elections were originally scheduled for March 28. However, CAC officers followed the advice of Student Attorney General Paul Yanowitch and voted to change their electoral process from a restricted council vote to an area-wide popular election.

For this special election, nomination papers will be available for candidates this Thursday at the CAC offices at 123 Baker. Deadline for filing these papers is Monday, April 18, during the CAC meeting. Polls, open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. April 21, will be centrally located at the Franklin Dining Commons. CAC Treasurer Rob Cannon noted that campaign funds, a maximum of $15, will be allocated to each candidate.

People seeking money from CAC last night included:

— Angela Thomas from Butterfield for $155 for an April 23 Third World coffeehouse at Butterfield.

— Norman Burger, a leisure studies major, for $100 to help finance the two-day New Games Tournament at the Campus Pond on April 27-28.

— Steven Latter and Mark Dallas of White Roots of Peace, a native Indian-American organization, for $100 to support a three day, Five-College appearance of WRP cultural seminars.

— Rick Galipault, manager of Greenough snack bar, for $190, for capital expenses this semester.

These financial petitions were tabled until week.

Gary Schuster, of the Central-Orchard Hill spring concert planning committee, told CAC that three bands have so far expressed interest in playing: Ellis Hall, Bailey Brothers, and Atlantics.

Shuster also requested $10 from the CAC for campaign fliers about today's Amherst town meeting elections. CAC voted to pay the money, pending an opinion of legality from Attorney General Yanowitch.

Squad car sideswiped; cops shaken

By MICHAEL McHUGH
Collegian Staff

Three members of the UMass Department of Public Safety were hospitalized last Saturday night when their cruiser was struck on the left side by a car crossing over the traffic lines on Meadow St.

Sergeant Mary Dumas was treated at the infirmary for lacerations of the head, and released. Patrolman Jerome Yezierski was examined and released. Auxiliary Patrolman Ethan Howard was checked for neck injuries and released. The driver of the car, whose name was not given was not injured in the crash.

Chief Robert Joyce explained that the cruiser had been in pursuit of a motor vehicle that had been speeding in back of North Village. As the cruiser approached North Pleasant St. while still on Meadow St., a vehicle crossed over the traffic line and crashed into the cruiser. The speeding car got away but Joyce says the Department has a good description of it. He added that the driver of the vehicle involved in the collision was cited for failure to stay in the marked lanes. Sergeant Richard Buckley and Charles Bray of the Amherst Police Department are investigating the incident.

The Department of Public Safety received a complaint of an assault in progress on April 2 around 1:30 a.m. at MacKimmie dormitory lobby. The Department reported that the arriving officer found the complainant in a highly disturbed state. The person claimed that a knife had been thrown at him and that it had struck him in the head. The officer found no visible wound but searched John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and Washington for a possible suspect. The Department has the knife and a description. The incident is still under investigation.

On April 2, around 1:30 a.m. MacKimmie's lobby was the scene of another disturbance. An intoxicated person was asked to leave the lobby, and he refused. The Department reports that the individual was placed in protective custody for drunkenness.

James T. Gregorio, 18, of 178 Locklind Ave., Framingham, and Robert D. Marcoaldi, 21, of 58 Meadow St., Framingham, were arrested last Saturday night on University Drive. The Department reported that Gregorio's 1968 Buick was off the road up to the axle and upon questioning from an officer, he became belligerent. Gregorio started wrestling with the officer, who managed to control Gregorio until back-up units arrived. Gregorio was charged with failure to produce a license, disorderly person, malicious destruction to state property, and assault and battery on a police officer. Marcoaldi was charged with disorderly person. Both were arraigned at Hampshire County Court House yesterday.

Two UMass students, riding on the outside of a car, fell off the car when it made a turn off North Pleasant St. on April 2 around 4 a.m. The UMass Department of Public Safety reported that an officer went to the aid of the students only to be yelled at by them. The two were placed in protective custody for drunkenness and the driver of the car was cited for driving to endanger.

A UMass student was arrested on April 2, at 3:53 a.m., for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol. The Department reported that an officer witnessed the student's car going over the curb, just missing a fire hydrant, and coming to a stop in the north bound lane of North Pleasant St. adjacent to the School of Education. The student was arraigned the next morning at Hampshire County Court House.

The Department received a report of a disturbed person at Leach dormitory on April 2 around 12:40 a.m. The subject was removed from the dormitory and referred to Mental Health.

A color television valued at $500 was stolen from the basement of Chadbourne Dormitory and was reported missing by the head of residence on April 2. The TV had been locked and bolted to the shelf. The lock system was in place and the only evidence of crime was a cut antenna wire, according to the UMass Department of Public Safety.

A Massachusetts license plate was stolen from Lot 21 on April 3 around 2:15 a.m. The Department entered the plate's number on teletype and received a quick response from Easthampton police, who had two subjects. The two subjects are UMass students. Complaints are being drawn up in court against them.

There was a report of a broken window in Patterson Dormitory during the morning of April 1. The value of the window hasn't been determined but criminal complaints have been brought against a UMass student, who broke the window.

A CB radio was stolen from a motor vehicle in Lot 22 between April 1 and 2. There was also an attempt to steal an 8-track tape player, according to the Department. The CB is valued at $189.

The Department reported that there was a hit and run in the Campus Center Garage during the morning of April 2 to a 1972 Plymouth. The damage to the car is estimated at $175.

There was breaking and entering and larceny on a 1965 Oldsmobile in Lot 65 on April 3. A stolen tape deck and broken vent window amounted to $155 damage.

On April 1 around 4:30 p.m., a person entered the fourth floor of John Quincy Adams dormitory and stole $157.29 worth of materials from two different rooms. A pocketbook with contents worth $120 was stolen from one room and a ring and carton of cigarettes valued at $37.29 were stolen from another.

The Department reported that a watch, camera, stereo head phones, and men's shoes were stolen from Brett Dormitory on April 3 around 1 p.m. The goods are valued at $135.

Careless disposal of smoking materials led to a trash barrel fire at Brown Dormitory on April 2, according to the UMass Department of Public Safety. The sprinkler system extinguished the fire.

TODAY'S STAFF
Issue Editor Thomas Crowley

Assistant Issue Editor	Paul Blumberh
Day Layout	Sue Zoino
Copy Desk	Ann Murphy
Editorial Layout	Debbie Alliegro
Sports Layout	Fran Sypek
Head Darkroom Tech	David Olken
Head Graphics Tech	Dan Schindler, Philip Milstein
Ad Layout	Leith Illinith
Wiseass Remark	Don't get lost in thought; it's unfamiliar territory.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Speakers discuss gays and capitalism

By D.A. CLARK
Collegian Staff

Five short speeches were given last night by the Socialist Education Committee Forum on lesbianism, gay liberation, and socialism at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

The speakers were David Thorstad, former president of the Gay Activist Alliance (GAA) in New York City and co-author of "The Early Homesexual Rights Movement, 1860-1935", John Kyper, a political writer for the "Gay Community News", Molly O'Neil of UMass, Susan Kayless, a graduate student in Womens' Studies at Sarah Lawrence University and Roz, from the Feminist Speakers' Bureau in western Massachusetts.

"What needs to be discussed and explained is not homosexuality, but the taboo of homosexuality," said Thorstad. "Its cultural roots can be traced back to the early Hebrews.

"The development of homosexuality went hand in hand with the development of the patriarchal society.

"The marxist view provides the necessary tools for understanding gay liberation," Thorstad said, explaining his political views. "Marxism sees things in a historical perspective. The non-marxist view tends to treat it (homosexuality) as some sort of accident, whether with the individual or society."

Society wants to correct these "accidents" he said. "Clearly, much more is involved here than mere accidents. We have learned from the combined sciences... that nothing is inherently heterosexual.

"For marxists, the struggle against homosexual oppression is a revolutionary struggle." Thorstad advocated the destruction of the present patriarchal society and replacing it with what he called a more human society.

"Society urges its children to behave like members of their own sex, to be a real man, to be really feminine. Those that do not fit these roles are labelled 'queer'.

"Sex sterotypes are used to sell consumers products and to keep people in line.

"We want liberation. Not liberation in a sick heterosexual society, but in a society where artificial barriers between heterosexuals and homosexuals will be torn down. The only way to rid the system of its inequities is to tear down the system.

"Do not sell your freedom cheap," Thorstad said. "This is a lesson all oppressed groups must learn.

"The Democratic party is responsible for maintaining our oppression. Gay liberation gets lost in the politics of oppression.

"We must have no illusions of the system we are fighting. The politics of liberation aim to give hope to the oppressed. We seek to mobilize the oppressed. We must build a movement for liberation.

"We must make a clean break of capitalist politics," he said. "Supporting civil rights of homosexuals is necessary, but it is not enough. We must be able to determine our own future. Above all, we must never relinquish control of our liberation," Thorstad concluded.

John Kayser discussed the contradictions within the gay male society. "Many parallels can be drawn from other minorities," he said, when speaking of the vindictiveness and cattiness which is often the product of the upward mobility of a few. "It is a sign of self-hate." Homosexuality is often not brought out in the open, he said, because it may alienate potential supporters.

Molly O'Neil spoke of how the University functions in the life of a revolutionary. "Contradictions are continuously created in our lives here. Straight society has the tendency to use gayness in only its sexual aspects, creating a culture by our sexual preference. Our lives are not ruled by voyeuristic bedroom scenes," she said.

O'Neil also spoke about rape and wife-beating. "They are symptoms of a sick society. Our lives are entirely permeated by acts of violence on us." She said they are perpetuated by the male society seeing women as property "and property can be exploited."

"The lesbian bonding is threatening the very cornerstone of the capitalistic society."

Roz discussed the ideology of heterosexuality in regards to patriarchy.

"We are told that heterosexual is the way to be... it is a whole set of beliefs maintaining men over women. Men remain in dominant power positions in all their relationships."

Roz said that "Being a lesbian is a political right... not just a sexual preference." Patriarchy she explained, "is a woman-defined contradiction considered irrelevant."

Susan Kayless said, "There is no gay movement as such to my mind. Women are oppressed in the gay movement as well as in society as a whole.

"The oppression of lesbians is intricately tied to the oppression of other groups."

Here is a church, here is a steeple. Open it up, and see all the musicians. (Staff photo by David Olken)

Notice

The list of so-called "progressive" candidates appearing in yesterday's Collegian was not a slate. Some of the candidates are a group who have been working together for the elections, but some names are merely candidates who have been endorsed by this group as having "progressive" voting records on some issues. Voters are advised to check the voting record of candidates.

Cable group enfranchised

By BRAD GOVERMAN
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Board of Selectmen voted 4-0 to grant an operating license to Center for Community Access Television (CCATV). The vote culminated an intensive work campaign by Selectman Michael J. Sullivan to settle disputes which have been going on with the franchise for over a year and a half.

The Board issued the license valid through June 30, 1986 contingent upon the agreement of the franchise to comply with stipulations proposed by the board, which regarded the access and extension of services.

A representative from CCATV acknowledged that the franchise office in Texas verbally agreed to the terms of the Board and would send a written statement to that effect pending clearance by their lawyers over the wording of the Board's proposals.

The Board's decision to issue the license will have no immediate effect on the University because the license provision limits the service to outside the campus. However, according to David Skillicorn, coordinator of the UMass video project it opens up the possibility that CCATV will push harder in the future to open the cable service to the University.

The CCATV was Sullivan's last proposal as a selectman and in appreciation for his diligence in settling the license issue the Board and meeting members offered a warm applause.

In other business, the tax increase for the Town of Amherst was estimated at $2.50 per thousand according to figures supplied in a memorandum from Town Manager Louis Hayward.

Hayward's memorandum revealed that the proposed town budget was reduced by a total of $205,175 including reductions made by the town manager and the finance committee. Several reductions were made by recommendation of the Board.

It was noted by Hayward that the increase does not include any reduction which may occur in the Regional School District assessment.

Hayward asked the Board to make recommendations on budget items appearing in the town warrant to be presented at the Town Meeting May 2, at 7:30 p.m. at the Regional Junior High School.

Chairman Nancy Eddy replied that the board should not make stands on the articles in the warrant but should just give feedback to the finance committee if there were disagreements in their positions on the article in question.

Charity pledge doubted

By JOE QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

The mud-slinging campaign battle between newly elected SGA co-presidents Jon Hite and Pinky Batiste, and unsuccessful rivals John Foley and Herb Tyson is still alive in the Undergraduate Student Senate, according to Gail Syphers, former Sylvan area president.

Syphers and Joseph M. Abel, as partners in last weekends' Multiple Sclerosis (MS) dance-a-thon, had requested a $500 pledge from the SGA on March 30. The petition was refused.

The pair also brought a $300 donation from the Southwest Assembly (SWA) on March 29. While SWA granted the money, a student judiciary has since ordered an injunction against SWA's allocation, pending a full hearing this Thursday night.

This court order, based on substantial evidence that an illegal act could have occurred, was made by the tribunal of Marcus Hathway, Dawn Barnes, and Ronald Watkins.

A petition for an injunction hearing was filed by Donald Bishop of the government affairs committee. Bishop told the Collegian he stated the petition as an interested student who questioned the legality of the SWA grant after SGA's refusal to pledge the $500.

SGA's decision not to fund Syphers and Abel came after debates between Hite-Batiste media coordinator Bryan Harvey and Foley-Tyson campaign coordinator Brian M. Harrington. Syphers charges that Harvey objected to funding because he associated her — also on the defunct Foley-Tyson bandwagon — with Harrington.

Harvey denies the allegation, saying he didn't support the charity allocation because it "was not a good idea."

The original motion for the funding would have given the money to MS through the dancing pair of Abel-Syphers. SGA finance committee co-chairperson Michael Lorigan said his committee changed the wording to donation of $500 to MS through Phi Mu Delta, the fraternity which sponsored the event.

Lorigan said the committee was not against giving money to a good cause, but it did not approve the "pretty sleazy method" by which Abel-Syphers was seeking a pledge.

He explained that the pair who collected the most money in pledges for the dance-a-thon would receive a free trip sponsored by an airline to either Europe or Montego Bay.

As a Foley-Tyson supporter himself, Lorigan told the Collegian he did not think the committee's action, or the senate vote, was along partisan lines. He added that there was also a precedent on the senate floor of "having never given money to charity."

Speaker Brian J. DeLima agreed with Lorigan if the vote was along partisan lines, the money would have been allocated.

Syphers said the SGA debate and vote, which lasted for an hour, really upset her.

However, while he said he cannot see Student Attorney General Paul Yanowitch's agreement for an injunction against campus-wide funding by SWA, Durkin admits he can understand how someone could question the "personal benefit" derived by recipients of such an allocation.

Both Syphers and Abel deny the trip is the main reason they entered the dance-a-thon.

CLIP OUT AND TAKE TO POLLS

Amherst Elections Form

Moderator, 1 year vote for one

_William F. Field

Selectmen, 3 years vote for two

_Nancy B. Eddy
_Nathaniel Reed
_Chauncy T. Simmons, Jr.

Selectman, 1 year vote for one

_Roger C. Jacque
_Kenneth R. Mosakowski

Elector Under Oliver Smith Will, 1 year vote for two

_Gordon F. Neylon
_Rosemary Sprague

Jones Library Trustee, 3 years vote for two

_Herta Paulsen
_H. Hills Skillings

Redevelopment Authority, 5 years vote for one

_Steven P. Puffer, Jr.
_Willard T. Weeks

Redevelopment Authority, 1 year vote for one

_Rick N. Fitzimmons

Housing Authority, 5 years vote for one

_James P. Sullivan
_Margaret J. Zube

School Committee, 3 years vote for two

_Ralmon Jon Black
_Betty A. Brace
_Nancy M. Gordon
_Casey Clark

Seder celebrates freedom

By MARK BERENSON
Collegian Staff

A freedom seder will be held tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom to celebrate Passover, Holyweek and Martin Luther King Week.

Rev. Frank Dorman of the United Christian Foundation and head of residence of Kennedy Upper said, "This event... commemorates two accounts of a successful determination for freedom in history and also ...I hope it will serve to create a bond of unity and solidarity among the diverse groups on campus with different perspectives of liberation but who share common goals."

The seder is sponsored by the Ecumenical Ministeries at UMass which is composed of Hillel, the Newman Center, the United Christian Foundation and the Ark (Episcopal).

The seder was organized on the premise that there is a closely related role between Moses leading the children of Israel from Egypt and Martin Luther King leading the blacks to freedom in the United States.

The source of material for the program is Arthur Waskow's The Freedom Seder which was inspired by the life of Martin Luther King. It retells a biblical story and brings it up to date with references to modern political and cultural oppressions.

The seder is a symbolic meal eaten by Jewish people to celebrate their deliverance from the hands of the Pharaoh in Egypt.

The program will also commemorate the origin of the Christian communion or Eucharist. The seder will be divided into discussion sessions.

A movie about the Black Church will follow entitled, "Let the Church Say Amen" at 8 p.m. There will also be freedom songs led by the New Africa House Choir. Students are reminded that this is not a full meal but a symbolic commemoration.

Orchard may look greener

By JOE MAGLITTA
Collegian Staff

Santa Claus came early this year for a UMass agricultural group planning to revitalize the neglected Orchard and organizers say it may be hoe, hoe, hoe before too long.

Edward Pachico, co-coordinator of the Coalition for Alternative Agriculture and Self-Sufficiency, said last night chances for a bill which would encourage farming by groups on state institutional grounds looked favorable.

"If the bill is passed, it would provide a legal justification from the state level for what we're trying to do up in the orchard," Pachico said.

Pachico said a legal aid for Rep. Melvin King (D-Boston), one of the Bill's sponsors, told him last night that reports from a March 14 hearing before the State Administration Committee looked "very favorable".

State House Bill 1302 would form a committee to investigate the possibility of awarding preferential food contracts at State Institutions to farmers growing food within the state and on public land.

"Things could really take off," said Pachico. Pachico said the Coalition got another boost recently when the Institute of Man and Environment awarded a $200 grant to construct a waste recycling system for use at the Orchard.

The system, known as a methane digester, would convert solid waste normally used for landfill into a high quality fertilizer. Methane gas produced during the process would be used as a supplemental energy source for a planned solar greenhouse. Pachico said the coalition is in the process of collecting materials for the digester, which is expected to be completed in early May.

Ross Whaley, Dean of the College of Food and Natural Resources, gave the Coalition an official endorsement last month and appointed a faculty task force to investigate and act as advisors to the revitilization.

"This is a significant move. People from every department of the College of Food and Natural resources are ready to discuss, make decisions, pass judgement and provide recommendations. We consider this to be an official initiation of the project's concept," said Coalition Coordinator Sanford Matathia.

Matathia said pruning and cleanup is being done in the orchard and the groups efforts will be expanded over the next few weeks.

St. John river savers at CC

By JAMES DALTON
Collegian Staff

In cooperation with the national effort to save the St. John River, the Coalition on Environmental Quality (CEQ) will be operating an informational table dealing with the proposed Dickey-Lincoln hydroelectric project in the Campus Center today.

The action is being locally coordinated by Joe Barkett, a member of Friends of the St. John, a nationwide association of environmental and community organizations with a membership of 3,740,000.

The group is opposed to any further funding of the Dickey-Lincoln project proposed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The project, if approved, would be the first public power facility in New England.

The two dam project was originally approved in 1965, but funding was discontinued in 1967, only to be renewed in 1974. Preconstruction studies are still being done by the Corps of Engineers, with costs running about one million dollars a year, part of which is being used for an environmental impact study.

The St. John River, located in the uppermost portion of Maine, has been called "the finest wild river left in the Northeast." The proposed dam would flood 89,000 acres of the Maine wilderness.

The UMass Outing Club is planning to send a telegram to President Carter inviting him to accompany the UMOC canoe trip down the St. John, scheduled right after the semester ends.

In addition to information on the pros and cons of the Dickey-Lincoln issues, which include energy, environment, unemployment, and flood control, the CEQ table in the Campus Center will have a petition to be sent to President Carter and blank prestamped postcards to be sent to New England legislators, informing them of voter opinion towards the project. The CEQ is funding the local "Save the St. John" effort.

Tired of Eating at the D.C.?

BONANZA RESTAURANT
is now offering a
10% DISCOUNT
On All Their Meals
JUST SHOW YOUR COLLEGE I.D.

Try Our
CATTLEMAN'S CHOICE
ONLY $2.89
Includes
- Choice of Potato or Vegetable
- All the Soup or Salad You Can Eat
- Free Refills on Coffee, Tea or Soda

Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, Mass.
Offer good Mon.-Fri.
(Does not include daily specials)
BONANZA
Open 7 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Beat the high price of PRECISION HAIRCUTS
Our 2nd Anniversary Special
Includes:
FIRST: a professional consultation on what haircut would be best for your facial structure and hair texture.
SECOND: a precision style cut selected individually just for you.
THIRD: our stylists will show you how to take care of your hair and what professional products you should use on your hair and skin.
All For $7.50 ON TUE & WED ONLY
($8.50 on Thur. & Fri.)
Styles by Deborah
Call for appt. 549-5610

clip and save
SIGMA DELTA TAU cordially invites all university women
to our
SPRING RUSH '77

WEEK I
Tuesday, April 5 - Hawaiian Night, 7-8pm
Thursday, April 7 - Coffee House, 7-8pm

WEEK II
Monday, April 11 - Pizza and Beer Dinner, 5:30pm
(Please RSVP by Mon, 3pm)
Wednesday, April 13 - Singdown, 7-8pm

WEEK III
Wednesday, April 20 - Make your own Sundae, 7-8pm

For rides and info. call 545-0527.
clip and save

dvp presents:
Martin Luther King, Jr.
Memorial Week:

Tues., April 5:
Rev. Hosea Williams
Dr. Randolph Blackwell
Ms. Marion Williams, Vocalist
8 p.m. S.U.B.

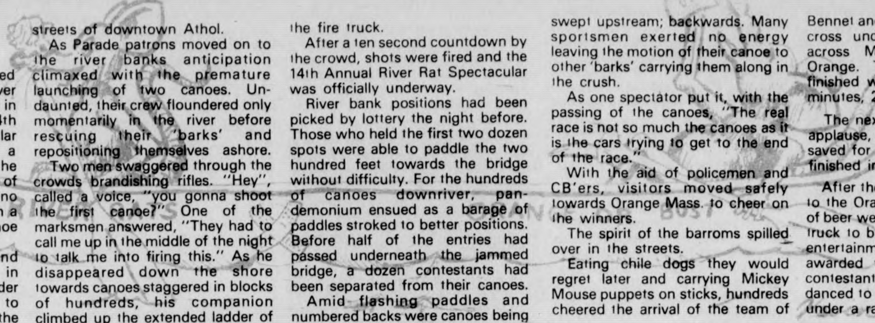
Wed., April 6: A Freedom Seder
6 p.m. S.U.B.
"Let the Church Say Amen," a film
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Thurs., April 7: Gospel Night
Mr. Vernard Johnson
Jessy Dixon & the Jessy Dixon Singers
8 p.m. S.U.B.

All events are free and open to the university and community at large.

14th annual spectacular

River Rat canoe race makes a big splash



By NIKKI ARONSON
Collegian Staff

Atop a laddered fire truck parked on the left bank of Old Millers River off the South Main Street Bridge in Athol, the announcer for the 14th Annual River Rat Race Spectacular exchanged his beer for a microphone. "Now remember," he bellowed to the hundreds of contestants lining the shore, "no hitting a guy over the head with a paddle if he grabs onto your canoe to right himself, help him out."

Hundreds of paddles and clenched beer cans waved in response. 379 canoes waited under last Saturday's blustery skies to begin the 7 mile race along the meandering waterway between Athol and Orange.

With a good half hour before the 1 p.m. starting time, the announcer turned to the crowd of 10,000, "and what's the beer to have when you're having more than one?" he coaxed.

Thousands of voices rang out the words to the commercial for Shaefer beer, sponsor of the year's event.

One race historian, perched on the bridge gestured wildly towards the announcer. "Back in '64," he screamed to no one in particular, "they ran out of ice at the Silver Front Cafe, so one guy challenged another to a race from here to Orange along Old Millers." Listeners raised their cans in appreciation of the wisdom of the Rat Race forefathers.

Preparations for the event had begun before dawn. Visitors arrived in early morning to witness the 10 a.m. River Rat Parade along the streets of downtown Athol.

As Parade patrons moved on to the river banks anticipation climaxed with the premature launching of two canoes. Undaunted, their crew floundered only momentarily in the river before rescuing their 'barks' and repositioning themselves ashore.

Two men swaggered through the crowds brandishing rifles. "Hey", called a voice, "you gonna shoot the first canoe?" One of the marksmen answered, "They had to call me up in the middle of the night to talk me into firing this." As he disappeared down the shore towards canoes staggered in blocks of hundreds, his companion climbed up the extended ladder of the fire truck.

After a ten second countdown by the crowd, shots were fired and the 14th Annual River Rat Spectacular was officially underway.

River bank positions had been picked by lottery the night before. Those who held the first two dozen spots were able to paddle the two hundred feet towards the bridge without difficulty. For the hundreds of canoes downriver, pandemonium ensued as a barage of paddles stroked to better positions. Before half of the entries had passed underneath the jammed bridge, a dozen contestants had been separated from their canoes.

Amid flashing paddles and numbered backs were canoes being swept upstream; backwards. Many sportsmen exerted no energy leaving the motion of their canoe to other 'barks' carrying them along in the crush.

As one spectator put it, with the passing of the canoes, "The real race is not so much the canoes as it is the cars trying to get to the end of the race."

With the aid of policemen and CB'ers, visitors moved safely towards Orange Mass. to cheer on the winners.

The spirit of the barroms spilled over in the streets.

Eating chile dogs they would regret later and carrying Mickey Mouse puppets on sticks, hundreds cheered the arrival of the team of Bennet and Zeveral (No. 41); first to cross under the cable stretched across Millers River Bridge in Orange. The New Yorkers had finished with a record time of 36 minutes, 2 seconds.

The next thirty canoes met with applause, with the greatest ovation saved for the women's teams that finished in the top fifty.

After the race, the throng moved to the Orange Armory where kegs of beer were being transferred from truck to building for the evening's entertainment. Money prizes were awarded to the top thirty place contestants, while 2,000 persons danced to The Ellington Alley Band under a rain of paper airplanes.

Candidates for May Town Meeting

The following are the remaining candidates running for the 240 town meeting seats up for election today. Yesterday's Collegian listed the names and addresses of candidates in the first five district and part of the sixth district. There are 419 candidates in all.

PRECINCT VI

51 Mary E. Carlson, 34 Spaulding Street
49 Neil R. Carlson, 11 Hickory Lane
22 Kenneth D. Cuddeback, 33 Echo Hill Road
35 Ethel Eaton Colt, 115 Heatherstone Road
20 Ralph Daniels, 826 Main Street
27 Joan M. Banks, 15 Salem Street
44 Evangeline R. Darity, 105 Heatherstone Road
7 Carl Dennler, Jr., 18 Emerson Court
21 Judith G. Eckhouse, 240 Alpine Drive
39 John P. Eysenbach, 474 Station Road
32 Rosanna Falabella, 95 Colonial Village
45 Frederick A. Filios, 69 Pelham Road
41 Paul G. Filios, 69 Pelham Road
17 Ella M. Finch, 136 Alpine Drive
52 Harold B. Gatslick, 200 Heatherstone Road
5 Paul T. Gilmore, 95 Colonial Village
8 Jonathan B. Greenberg, 610 Station Road
48 James M. Harrigan, 57 Shumway Street
19 James B. Harrington, Jr., 163 Heatherstone Road
54 Richard A. Heath, 300 North East St.
46 Stephen E. Keedy, 37 Salem Street
29 Wendy M. Kohler, 15 Ash Lane
25 Everett A. Kosarick, 34 Shumway Street
12 Mark Kosarick, 34 Shumway Street
11 Raymond P. Kucinski, 77 North East Street
3 Joan Ross Logan, 170 Rolling Green
9 Robert B. Lovell, 29 Pelham Road
42 Susan C. Lowance, 18 Echo Hill Road
4 Arthur J. Lyman, 27 Heatherstone Road
24 George R. McDowell, 34 Hickory Lane
34 Joseph M. O'Connor, 117 Colonial Village
31 Judith F. Owen, 264 Harkness Road
40 Doris D. Peterson, 78 Stony Hill Road
33 Arthur B. Pickering, 820 Main Street
26 W. Clark Roof, 7 Laurel Lane
2 Henry F. Scarborough, 650 Main Street
10 Carol A. Scheurer, 53 Colonial Village
28 George B. Scheurer, 53 Colonial Village
23 Kathleen E. Sczerzenie, 148 Colonial Village
37 Philip J. Sczerzenie, 148 Colonial Village
43 Jon L. Sicks, 305 Pelham Road
15 Lawrence J. Sisko, Jr., 77 Colonial Village
6 Morton M. Sternheim, 72 Heatherstone Road
14 Michael P. Sullivan, Jr., 76 Stony Hill Road
50 Thomas D. Swain, 197 Colonial Village
1 Donald E. Thayer, 29 Salem Street
30 Andrew vonSalis, 38 Colonial Village
13 Henry J. Walas, 132 Belchertown Road
18 William H. Weaver, 2 Thistle Lane
53 Fred A. Wentworth, 153 Stanley Street
16 Bard F. White, 180 Aubinwood Road
47 Jacqueline A. Wisneski, 260 Belchertown Road
36 Edward W. Zephir, Jr., 15 Swiss Village

PRECINCT VII

31 Jake E. Bishop, 535 South Pleasant Street
35 Isabelle M. Callahan, 65 Farmington Road
26 James M. Chamberlain, 165B Brittany Manor
41 Vincent J. Cleary, 17 Chesterfield Drive
15 Charles F. Cole, 21 Columbia Circle
40 Emma-Jean Cole, 21 Columbia Circle
3 George E. Como, 22 Kamins Circle
7 Elizabeth B. Cramer, 425 South Pleasant Street
8 Susan W. Curran, 98 Riverglade Apts.
10 Robert H. Davis, 71 West Pomeroy Lane
14 Stephen M. Dimock, 43 Deepwoods Drive
29 Stevenson W. Fletcher, 90 Glendale Road
2 Nancy E. Foster, 85 Hillcrest Place
39 William D. Gleason, 121 Glendale Road
12 Robert W. Griffith, 32 Jeffrey Lane
6 Louise R. Hammann, 98 Glendale Road
37 Leslie D. Heath, 11 Greenwich Road
1 John P. Hewitt, 181 Pondview Drive
16 Myrna L. Hewitt, 181 Pondview Drive
25 Elsa D. Hornfischer, 279 West Street
27 Irving Howards, 28 Columbia Circle
13 William A. Hutchinson, 52 Jeffrey Lane
43 Deborah G. Jacque, 145 Columbia Drive
23 Mitchell A. Jacque, 569 South Pleasant Street
22 Raymond A. Jacque, 593 South Pleasant Street
30 Roger C. Jacque, 575 South Pleasant Street
32 Ronald A. Jacque, 145 Columbia Drive
47 Gary J. Jakacky, 127C Brittany Manor
46 Gordon A. Jones, 18 Greenwich Road
4 Mona S. Keedy, 79 Tracy Circle
36 David T. Keenan, 6 Riverglade Apts.

PRECINCT VIII

38 William A. Lambert, 111 Tracy Circle
9 Phyllis Lehrer, 197 Pondview Drive
44 Charles H. Livens, 235 East Hadley Road
33 Eileen Manes, 40 Jeffrey Lane
11 Judith D. Mawson, 161 Pondview Drive
42 John J. Murphy, 31 Greenwich Road
24 Anton M. Mushovic, 113 Glendale Road
17 Judith M. Ortiz, 95 Columbia Drive
19 Gary S. Paul, 160D Brittany Manor
20 James P. Picardi, 165D Brittany Manor
21 John E. Ritter, Jr., 113 Pondview Drive
34 William L. Start, 119 Columbia Drive
28 Frances L. Van Treese, 17 Riverglade Apts.
45 James F. Walker, Jr., 19 Applewood Lane
5 Arthur A. Wentworth, 36 Greenwich Road
18 Eugene P. Whitney, 70 Columbia Drive

PRECINCT 8

7 Jean C. Barker, 1006 South East Street
41 Mary Elizabeth D. Bernhard, 35 Station Road
36 Albert G. Brace, 464 Bay Road
3 Norman D. Brown, 541 Station Road
17 Linwood G. Buczala, 186 Bay Road
20 Michael A. Cann, 181 Mill Lane
31 Homer W. Cowles, 1178 South East Street
22 Robert B. Cowles, 1178 South East Street
18 J. Timothy Curran, 1236 Bay Road
15 Ruth E. Curtis, 233 Shays Street
38 Alice H. Epstein, 37 Bay Road
32 Claire M. Fortier, 1070 Bay Road
24 Paul R. Friend, 41 Carriage Road
14 Bradlee E. Gage, 1025 South East Street
37 Gerlad J. Grady, 375 Shays Street
27 Harold W. Gould, 1371 South East Street
12 Loren S. Howell, 460 Middle Street
26 Philip T. Ives, 1095 West Street
13 Stanley W. Kielbasa, 190 West Bay Road
28 Robert L. Klein, 71 Mount Holyoke Drive
34 Ann H. Mallek, 15 South Orchard Drive
40 Louis R. Mannheim, 374 Middle Street
11 Alfred H. Mathieson, 285 Shays Street
35 George B. May, 365 Shays St.
6 Patrick D. McCabe, 10 Barry Circle
19 J. Tracy Mehr, 230 Mount Holyoke Drive
23 Richard M. O'Daniel, 31 Valley View Circle
9 Rosalie F. Rainford P. Porter, 105 West Street
21 Alan F. Rainford, 1309 Bay Road
16 John L. Reynolds, 185 Middle Street
4 Frederick Q. Rice, 274 Shays Street
5 Robert L. Rivers, 720 South East Street
30 Dorothy S. Robinson, 1351 Bay Road
33 Joel Saxe, Box 1163, Hampshire College
1 Charles L. Scherpa, 46 Elf Hill Road
29 Allen L. Torrey, 1110 South East Street
8 Ann Vonderlippe, 51 Mount Holyoke Drive
25 Richard S. Warner, 916 West Street
2 Gregory W. Webb, 1016 South East Street
39 Robert R. Wellman, 60 Valley View Circle
10 Howard Wiarda, 65 Chapel Road

Political Advertisement
Please Support
BETTY BRACE
for Amherst School Comm. on Tuesday
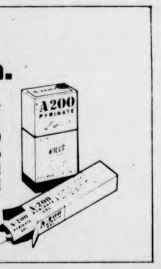
APRIL 5th

Lexington High School - Class of 1958
UMASS/Amherst BA Government 1963
Full-time service to University community for 10 years.
Department Head, University Library 4 years.
"I believe in the philosophy of high quality public education and actively support it at every level of opportunity."
Committee to elect Betty Brace



Kill lice without a doctor's prescription.

At the first sign of head or crab lice (intense itching, reddish bite marks, whitish eggs attached to hairs), get A-200 Pyrinate,* No. 1 lice medicine. Shampoo as directed. A-200 works quickly to kill lice and eggs. Inexpensive. Liquid or gel form. No prescription needed.

A-200 Pyrinate®
At all drug counters.

"ASPIRING TO LIBERATE:
PERSONAL ENGAGEMENT TO COLLECTIVE STRUGGLE"
解放
- SPEAKERS
- FILMS
- WORKSHOPS
- COFFEE HOUSE
- DISCO

FRIDAY, APRIL 8 & SATURDAY, APRIL 9
Registration: Friday 4-6 pm, Arcon Desk (Lower level CC)
Saturday 9:30-11 am, Room 1009 C. cc.
Sponsored by Asian American Student Assoc. of UMass

Amherst Auto Parts
Used car parts
Junk Car?
We pay $10 and up.
Replace Glass
Buy and Sell Cars
Located ½ mile past the Rusty Scupper on Rt. 9, behind Amherst landfill.
Phone 256-6409

Attempted crash landing has fiery end

NEW HOPE, Ga. [UPI] — A Southern Airways DC9 with 85 persons aboard, trying to crash land with both engines flamed out, roared down a two-lane highway "like a tornado" yesterday, disintegrating cars and demolishing a store before it exploded.

At least 68 persons were killed in the holocaust. Three hours after the crash area hospitals reported 23 injured, most of them burned.

A grocery store was demolished and there was not enough left of the cars and trucks in the plane's path to tell how many were involved.

The largest piece of Southern Airways flight 242 remaining was the tail section, upside down on Highway 92 in this little village 30 miles west of Atlanta. But not all the 81 passengers and four crewmen were killed.

Paulding County Sheriff Bob Shipp said there were 59 bodies wrapped in sheets and that bags had been brought to a makeshift morgue near Dallas three hours after the crash. Area hospitals reported nine more dead on arrival.

At Fort McPherson Army Hospital in Atlanta, Capt. Ken Elliott said, "We have three persons, none of them apparently badly injured. Two of them, I believe, are soldiers. They were all on the plane."

The plane was en route from Huntsville and Muscle Shoals, Ala., to Atlanta.

Massive traffic jams and communications blackouts caused by the plane's death trip across state highway 92 slowed the evacuation of the injured. Many were reported critically burned.

The plane was Southern's flight 242 from Huntsville and Muscle Shoals, Ala., to Atlanta. Southern said it carried 81 passengers and a crew of four.

At least 10 of the passengers, according to government sources, were from the Marshall Space Flight Center and the Redstone Arsenal Research and Development Command at Huntsville.

The more severely injured were being flown by helicopter to area hospitals. Two hours after the plane crashed at about 4:20 p.m. EST,a tornado warning was issued for the crash area. It already appeared as though a tornado had ripped through it.

The plane fell on Highway 92 four miles east of Dallas at the village of New Hope.

Mrs. Marie Clayton said she was working in her front yard with her two daughters, watching a storm appearing to build, when "we heard a big roaring sound."

"It sounded like a tornado and I screamed for everyone to run and I looked back down the highway and here come a jet plane.

"It hit Mr. Newman's store and killed his daughter and two grandchildren. It was breaking apart all down the road. It was throwing pieces up in the air and they were exploding.

"I ran into the house with my kids and tried to use the phone but it wouldn't work. I ran out and started helping people who were hurt and saw 40 or 50 people lying on the ground and not moving.

"The police came and asked me if I had any sheets. I got them all I had and they started covering up people."

According to Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barber, the plane was trying to crash land on Highway 92.

"At 4:16 p.m. Eastern time," Barker said, "the pilot was talking to the Atlanta Air Route Traffic Control Center and reported a

TURN TO PAGE 12

At least 15 killed

Twisters ravage; flatten homes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. [UPI] — Tornadoes cut a path of destruction across northern Alabama yesterday, killing at least 15 persons and leaving survivors wandering around in a daze searching their flattened homes for loved ones.

"It sounded like a big airplane coming through and then it just covered the entire area," an hysterical woman said as she wandered through the Smithfield Estates subdivision where at least 40 homes were destroyed.

Authorities said at least 12 persons were killed in the mostly black subdivision on the northern edge of Birmingham. Two others were fatally injured in the nearby suburb of Fultondale and an Ashville woman was killed by a twister in St. Clair County.

"This is unbelieveable," said one unidentified resident. "It looks like a hurricane instead of a tornado."

The twister flattened virtually every home in an area several blocks wide.

Residents of the Smithfield Estates area wandered through the streets in shock, hunting relatives who may have survived the storm. Rescue crews dug through the remains of the residential areas looking for more victims.

The tornado was one of several reported yesterday as a series of violent thunderstorms packing high velocity winds rumbled across north Alabama.

Tornadoes also touched down at the Section community on Sand Mountain in northeast Alabama and in Gordo in west Alabama. The twister at Section heavily damaged about eight homes but caused only one minor injury and the one at Gordo unroofed two barns and uprooted trees.

The tornado hit at midafternoon, destroying at least 20 homes in the Fultondale area and blowing a school bus carrying students from Fultondale High School to the edge of busy U.S. 31 north of Birmingham. It did not injure any of the youngsters.

"We got off the bus and I started walking to my house," said Charles Dixon, a 15-year-old student. "The wind started picking up and then I saw this brown thing whirling leaves and signs from the highway and I started running.

"I pushed my brother in through the front door and we just fell to the floor in the hall," he said. "The thing hit and shook the whole house."

He said it toppled several trees in the yard, blew down a carport and damaged the roof of the home.

Grace Parker, 80, was killed when the tornado hit her home on a hill on Fultondale and Edna Davis of Ashville was fatally injured when a tree fell across a storm shelter at her home along U.S. 411 in St. Clair County. She apparently had just entered the shelter when the tree crashed through its roof.

Botulism plagues restaurant patrons

PONTIAC, Mich. [UPI] — The number of cases in the nation's worst outbreak of botulism climbed to 35 yesterday. One of the victims sued the Mexican restaurant that served the tainted food.

Health officials estimated that perhaps 10 or 15 more cases would emerge by late Friday, when the eight-day incubation period for the disease expires.

They said hundreds of restaurant patrons were still in danger — including some believed to have left the state.

Dr. Robert Locey, Oakland County health director, expressed optimism "that somehow we can come out of this without any deaths." He said the fact that no one had died "is a very bright sign."

The class action damage suit was filed by Sally Koskey, 23, of Pontiac, a surgical nurse at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, whose employes often frequented Trini and Carmen's restaurant just down the street. Like the others, Miss Koskey remained hospitalized with the disease.

Oakland County Circuit Judge Francis X. O'Brien, who will consider the case, issued an injunction ordering preservation of all the evidence — including the 147 jars of home-canned peppers blamed for the outbreak.

Dr. William Terranova, investigating the incident for the national Center for Disease Control at Atlanta, said the outbreak was an "historic event's because it gives experts their first on-the-scene opportunity to study botulism.

Appearing
Tues. & Wed.

Roomfull Of Blues

at

The
rusty
nail
Inn

Rte 47, Sunderland
665 4937

ENGINEERING & COMPUTER STUDENTS

AIR FORCE VS. CIVILIAN PAY

A RECENT REPORT OF THE U.S. SENATE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE PEGS THE TOTAL COMPENSATION OF THE NEW OFFICER AT $13,600 ANNUALLY TO START WHEN PAY AND BENEFITS ARE CALCULATED. THAT FIGURE SURGES TO $24,100 IN 4 SHORT YEARS.

COMPARE:

- AIR FORCE VS. CIVILIAN PAY

CHECK OUT:

- EXCELLENT ON-CAMPUS SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM
- MASTER'S DEGREES AT AIR FORCE EXPENSE
- $100.00 A MONTH SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCE

CONTACT

- MAJOR RICHARDSON 5-2437

Let's band together to raise some funds

PHONOTHON
77
ROSO

for the Marching Band, BOIC, Athletics, Fine Arts, Scholarships, Honors, and other enriching Programs. Join us for the 4th Annual UMass Student Phonothon. We provide Free Dinner, Beer, and Munchies; You spend an evening on the phone calling alumni for pledges. So come join us at Memorial Hall and do something nice for yourself midst good food, good drink, and good people. March 7-10, 14-17, & 28-31. April 4-7 & 11-14. Starts at 6PM. FOR MORE INFORMATION, CONTACT JOSEPH OR MARYELLEN AT 545-2317.

THEY NEED YOUR VOTE
-and you need theirs

Many UMass students are running for seats in the Amherst Town Meeting, presumably to represent student interests in such issues as rent control and highway construction. But the only way student interests will be represented in town government is if students registered in Amherst get out and vote.

POLLING PLACES

Precinct 1 - North Amherst Parish Hall (opposite Watroba's store)
Precinct 2 - North Fire Station on East Pleasant Street
Precinct 3 - Marks Meadow School (behind UMass School of Education building)
Precinct 4 - St. Brigid's Church Hall on North Prospect Street
Precinct 5 - Masonic Hall on Main Street
Precinct 6 - Fort River School on South East Street
Precinct 7 - Crocker Farm School
Precinct 8 - Munson Library on South East Street

DIRECTORY OF AMHERST HOUSING BY PRECINCT

Precinct 1	Precinct 2	Precinct 3	Precinct 4
Brandywine	Butterfield Dorm	Central Area Dorms	Southwest Area Dorms
Gilreath Manor	Village Park	Orchard Hill Area Dorms	Lincoln Apts.
Mill Hollow		Northeast Area Dorms
North Village		Sylvan Area Dorms
Presidential Apts.		Crestview Apts.
Puffton Village		University Apts.
Riverside
Townhouse

Precinct 5	Precinct 6	Precinct 7	Precinct 8
Amherst College	Colonial Village	Brittany Manor	Hampshire College
Crown Point Apts.	Echo Hill	Riverglade Apts.
	Rolling Green
	Swiss Village
	University Park

VOTE TODAY
POLLS OPEN NOON—8pm

Check the local newspapers, including the Collegian, to find out who the candidates are and how they stand on the issues. For more information, or to find out what precinct you live in call the Town Clerk's Office at 253-9382.

SGA Director of Communications,

James Gagne

James Gagne

political advertisement

New drug is useful for cancer treatment

SARASOTA, Fla. [UPI] — New Patient rescue procedures developed for a powerful but dangerous anticancer drug may expand its use to cancers that fail to respond to more conventional treatment, a Pennsylvania doctor reported yesterday.

The new "super rescue" therapy is not necessarily seen as a possible cure, but rather as a potential way to shrink tumors and prolong and improve the quality of life for people with some kinds of advanced cancer.

The drug is called methotrexate and, to be most effective, it must be given in intravenous doses strong enough to kill the patient as well as his cancer. Doctors save the patient by administering an antidote later, after methotrexate has poisoned the cancer cells.

The technique with normal antidote use has been employed successfully by a number of specialists for several years to treat a childhood bone cancer called osteogenic sarcoma and cancer of the lymphatic system. In some cases, doctors say, cures may result.

But Dr. Isaac Djerassi of Mercy Catholic Medical Center at Darby, Pa., said the use of methotrexate to fight other tumors has been limited by the risk that sometimes an antidote doesn't work and the patient dies.

Djerassi told an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers that two new techniques have been developed in the last two years to rescue a patient from methotrexate poisoning.

One uses a charcoal filter originally developed to remove barbiturates from the bloodstream. The other uses massive doses of the antidote. Djerassi said the new rescue methods already have saved patients who otherwise would have died from the treatment.

With this new rescue capability, he said it is now safe to try larger doses of methotrexate in types of cancer that do not respond well to other therapy. Even if methotrexate didn't work, Djerassi said he could still be assured the drug wouldn't kill the patient.

He thus started treating persons with advanced ovarian and prostate cancers six months ago and the treatment so far looks particularly promising for the ovarian tumors.

GREAT NEWS
FOR
COOKIE MONSTERS
AT MUNCHYS

CUT ALONG DOTTED LINE

10ᶜ 10ᶜ OFF 10ᶜ
CHIPS AHOY
CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES
AT ALL MUNCHYS
10ᶜ APRIL 5-10 10ᶜ

BIG AUTO PARTS

We've got auto parts for foreign cars.

WORLDPARTS
WORLDPARTS

Auto parts for foreign cars — quality-made replacement parts for the most popular foreign cars in town. Worldparts are made by world famous manufacturers such as Maremont . . . Bosch . . . Lange . . . Boge . . . and more than 60 others.

When your foreign car needs repairs, have your garage or service station man call us for Worldparts. Or we can give you the name and address of a foreign car expert near you.

AMERICAN PARTS

Allied Motor Parts
319 Main Street, Amherst
256-8341

SHOP SERVICE AVAILABLE
Hours: 8-5:30 M-F, 8-5 Sat.

Come to the Indoor Picnic
at the Bluewall
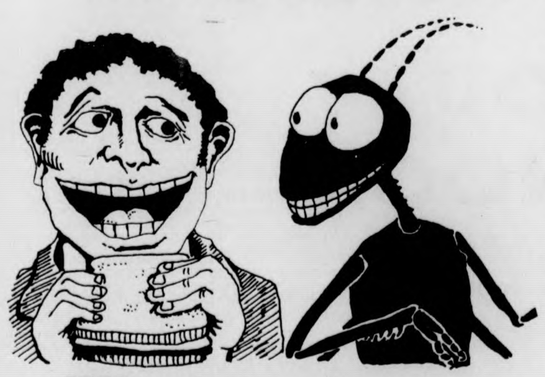
Cafeteria



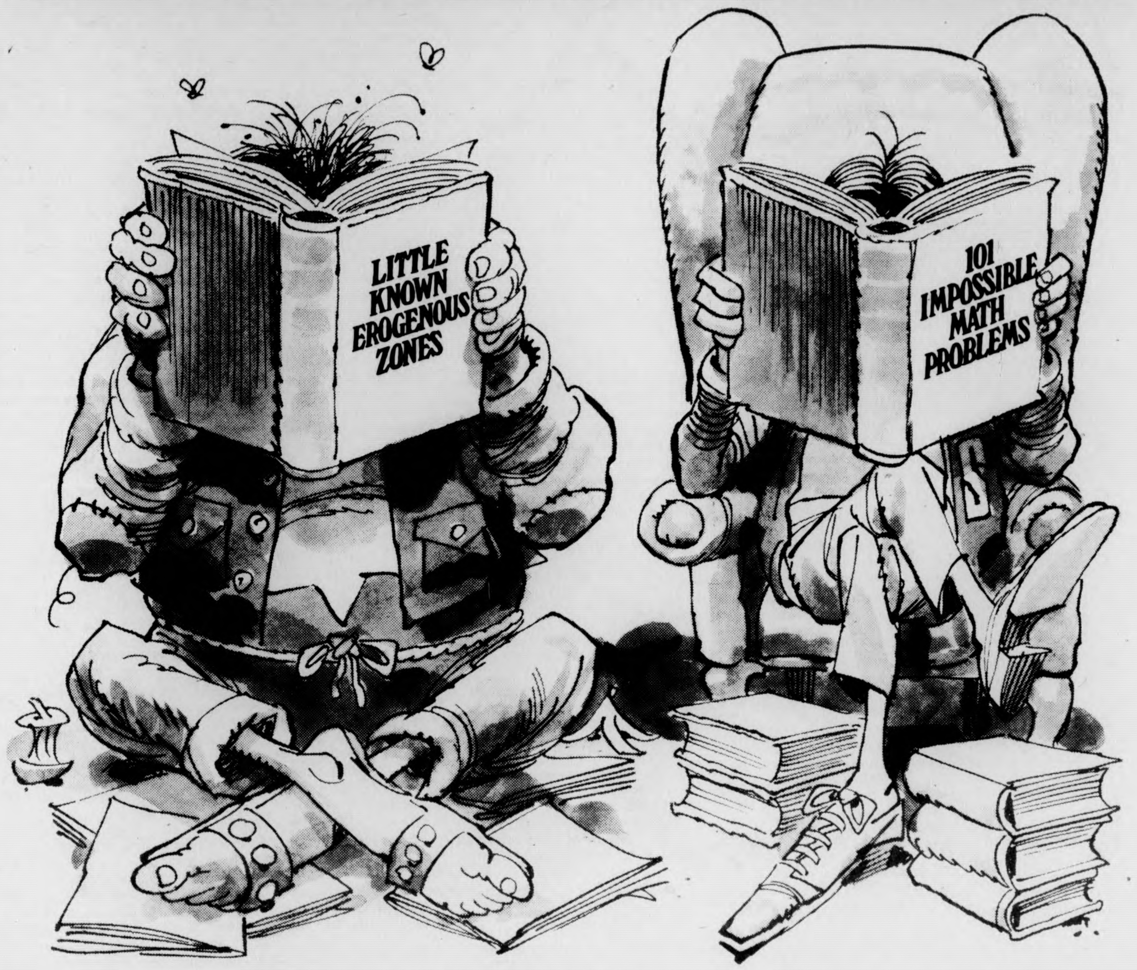
Wednesday
April 6, 1977

That's right, a real old fashioned summertime picnic

Bar B-Q Spare Rib	1.20
Fried Chicken in a Basket	1.25
Foot Long Hot Dog	.65
Cold or Hot Potato Salad	.25
Baked Beans	.25
Deviled Eggs	.40
Stuffed Celery	.35
Cup Cake	.20
Kosher Dill Pickle	.25

all prices subject to tax

SCHMARTS VS. BRAINS



Make use of your useless knowledge in the First Annual (hopefully) Schmidt's Trivia Contest.

There are two kinds of intelligence. There's the kind that will make you famous, respected and a model to little children everywhere.

And there's Schmarts.

Well, the humanitarians at Schmidt's think your fun facts should do you some good, too. Ergo, the Contest.

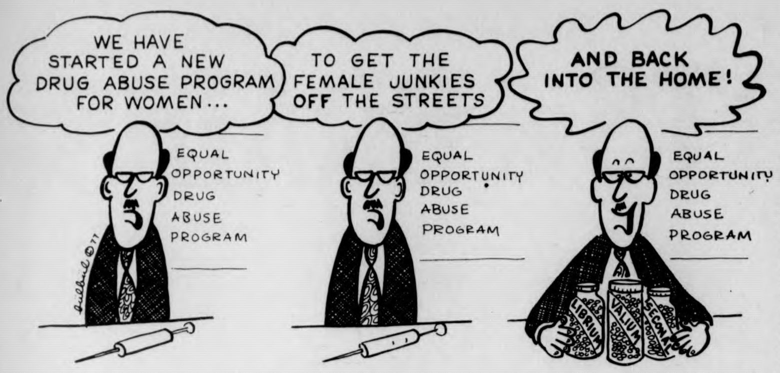
Here's your chance to impress your friends, have more fun than you should on a week night, and maybe even win prizes.

So get ready for The Big One. You'll find all the details at your local pub, saloon or watering hole.

There's no purchase necessary.

Just skill.

Schmidt's
The beer that might make Philadelphia famous.



WE HAVE STARTED A NEW DRUG ABUSE PROGRAM FOR WOMEN...
TO GET THE FEMALE JUNKIES OFF THE STREETS AND BACK INTO THE HOME!
EQUAL OPPORTUNITY DRUG ABUSE PROGRAM
EQUAL OPPORTUNITY DRUG ABUSE PROGRAM
EQUAL OPPORTUNITY DRUG ABUSE PROGRAM
LIBRIUM
VALIUM
SECONAL

letters

To be or not to be - censored

To the Editor:

While none of us wishes to see Dick Janssen's cartoon strip censored, it is nonetheless important to examine the types of subtle censorship which are an ongoing and pervasive aspect of how the media in the United States are run. Consider for a moment the fact that virtually all of the wide circulation printed and electronic media carry commercial advertising for American corporations and businesses. These concerns have a strong vested interest in making sure that the present economic, political, and social order is maintained, for without the present order the level of profits would be diminished. But, of greater importance is the fact that both the media and the corporations are dominated by white, heterosexual males who, for reasons of their socialization, education and political beliefs perpetuate the current order.

Even the so-called Public Television network is not immune to criticism along these lines. That most of the programs seen on Channels 2 and 57 are sponsored by wealthy American corporations indicates the degree to which our supposed "alternative" is dominated by interested which are antithetical to human liberation.

Or, take a look at "Upstairs, Downstairs." This BBC program, which has received wide critical acclaim, reenforces both prevailing sex role stereotypes and the class system. These same stereotypes are also perpetuated in advertising in both the print and electronic media. Women and blacks are more often than not shown in traditional subservient positions to white males, i.e. in the kitchen for women, and in somewhat menial roles for blacks. The absence of gay men or lesbians in any advertising speaks eloquently about how homosexuals are not even considered worthy of having advertising directed at them.

Another indicator of the subtle censorship which characterizes the media is the lack of any widespread dissemination of views which are in sharp contrast to the prevailing social, political and economic ideologies of our society. We speak here about the complete absence of any wide circulation of socialist or anarchist ideas or philosophy in the United States.

In order for the capitalist system to perpetuate itself, contradictory views must be given as little exposure as possible without risking charges of active censorship; hence the subtle or passive censorship which we see most everywhere in the media, a censorship which is masculinist in character and which reinforces past and current sex and race role stereotypes. Dick Janssen's cartoon strip is but one small bit of evidence, albeit blatant, of how these interests dominate the American media.

The Heads of Residence of Orchard Hill and Central

Humorous responsibilities

To the Editor:

One statement of Dick Janssen's bothered me in particular in recent letter to the Editor [others who feel "oppressed by censorship" take note]: "What the individual reader wants to read into it, I cannot control. Interpretation is a wide open field."

What you write is what the reaction is going to be. Start thinking about "interpreting" things in a way which can control what the "individual" will read into your cartoons. If you are lucky, your personal views will coincide with this interpretation. If not, I wish you luck in the future because you will need it.

Humor is great, but take some responsibility for it.

Rob Thayer

Democracy in representative government

To the Editor:

Two weeks ago a woman on the Rents and Fees Committee of the Student Senate wrote to the Editor in complaint of Brian DeLima's behavior.

Does Brian DeLima, speaker of the Senate, want to complain about this woman's behavior? Besides DeLima's impatience, the recurring theme in the letter was her own lack of information. DeLima's demeanor is perhaps a result of this ignorance. As a member of Rents and Fees she should not be uninformed about the essential facts of the S.A.T.F. increase. Yet, she closes her letter saying she doesn't want to be taken for granted.

I consider this woman's behavior to be the most subtle, pervasive and harmful form of apathy on campus. Criticize others and console yourself. People are taken for granted when they do not have the initiative to get informed on their concerns. Equality comes from respect which is best as a result of performance. This explains, not justifies, Mr. DeLima's "cynicism, condescension and impatience," with such ignorance. He is one of the most devoted, assiduous workers in the Student Senate and probably the entire student body.

The harm comes when students in high positions confuse their apathy with someone else's overzealousness. Mr. DeLima wants the student representation to do its job. Their job is to sacrifice, find information, think clearly and represent the best interests of their constituency. It is called a democracy and can work.

The woman's attack on Mr. DeLima is detrimental to the progress of students and their government. The Student Senate has an abundance of individuals inflicting their egocentricities on every issue just so they will not be "taken for granted." We need to put aside large, Washington-size egos and remember our role as representatives... of all the people. We must get ourselves informed, subjugate our personal hurts and appetites to the unity of students.

If all students cared about the S.A.T.F. facts there would be no problem — but they don't. Therefore, the students who do care should get together and make the best solutions for the most people possible. There should not be 60 minutes of debate in the Senate over an S.A.T.F. fact sheet. We need fewer egos and more honest government!

Peter R. Reynolds
Greenough House Senator

commentary

Carter the Moralist

By GEORGE SOMMERS

The activist nature of the presidency of Jimmy Carter is a welcome change after the honorable, honest though unimaginative semiterm of Gerald Ford and, of course, the scandal-ridden administration of Richard Nixon. Granted, some of Carter's actions thus far have been for show business purposes only; notably the Clinton trip, the "Meet the Press" radio show, and cutting down on White House use of limousines. Other actions taken by Mr. Carter, however, seem to indicate both symbolic reassurance and a genuine populist way even if it means temporarily ruffling a few feathers. The pardon of draft evaders, for example, not only heals one of the remaining scars of Vietnam, but also seems to compensate for the pardon of a certain ex-president. The pressuring of Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter for the long overdue Equal Rights Amendment, the president's call for a reduction in the international nuclear arsenal, and his proposed decriminalization of marijuana on a federal level also come to mind as examples of the new administration's activism.

Perhaps the most noble aim of President Carter can be summed up in a statement he recently made, "No member of the United Nations can claim the mistreatment of its citizens is solely its own business." This is Carter's "open mouth" policy of calling for civil liberties and human rights throughout the world.

Critics contend that this policy will lose the U.S.A. ground in dealing with the Soviets. However, after the grain deal, the Helsinki Agreement, and the growing nuclear imbalance on the part of the Soviets, there is not a hell of a lot of ground left to be lost. Mr. Carter's immediate predecessors turned their backs on the plight of the Soviet Jews, the dissidents, and the others, with Ford actually going so far as to suggest that there is no Soviet domination over Eastern Europe.

Thus, it comes as a vast relief to see Carter not only denoucing publicly the inhumane actions of the Communists, but also those of such right-wing ruled countries as Argentina and white minority ruled South Africa. Black Africans, who have tended in the past to dismiss the U.S. as racist and imperialist and oppressive to Third World countries, now know they have a powerful friend they can trust in United Nations ambassador Andrew Young. Young openly advocates a change to black rule in Rhodesia and South Africa. For the first time in a long time, it seems as if the U.S. is fighting on the side of the good guys; who also happen to be the underdogs. Young does not restrict his criticisms to the abuses of white ruled Africa. He deplores the governments of Ethiopia and Uganda, referring to Idi Amin as "one of the world's Hitlers".

Predictably, some of the nations which Carter and his cabinet have criticized are beginning to retaliate. Argentina is threatening to impose economic and diplomatic sanctions against the U.S. The fact is that we can get along much better without them than they can without us. Leonid Brezhnev recently accused President Carter of meddling in affairs he had no right to meddle in. It has been too long the case, though, that in the name of detente, America has been given the short end of the stick by the Russians. It is high time for the Soviets to make a few concessions to America.

It can justifiably be argued that the U.S.A. does not exactly have a spotless record in dealing with certain groups — ethnic, racial, and particularly women. The difference is that here, the oppressed have the right to vocalize their opposition. Dissidents in Russia are usually declared insane and are given a one-way ticket to the Siberian work camps. Other governments torture, jail, and murder political prisoners. Certainly, America has made more than its share of blunders, what with discrimination against blacks, Watergate, and the Vietnam fiasco, to name a few. However, with the kind of compassionate, decent leadership which Jimmy Carter so often promised us and which so far he has delivered, these mistakes may be rectified, and once again, this country can be on the move.

George Sommers is a Collegian Commentator.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Dorothy A. Clark, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

---

jerry rogers

Student power:

A group action

Student unionization, student power and a unified student government are all goals we've held in high esteem for quite some time. But, despite the expenditure of thousands of dollars of student money and the use of thousands of person-hours in the attempt to organize the student body, we remain, as a whole, apathetic and convinced of our inherent weakness as a group.

The subject was a crucial one in the recent SGA presidential elections as each co-candidacy outlined in depth the path they thought would most surely bring us to the point where we would have organized power. We elected Pinky Batiste and Jon Hite hoping that they would use their (sic) "knowledge, guts and experience" to organize us and grant us such organized power.

I remain skeptical about their ability to do so, or any other student politician's ability to do so. Bryan Harvey, former communications director of the student senate, explained to me one day while we were playing pinball (on Air Aces) before the election, that the "screaming student radical" approach to dealing with the administration and trustees had been tried and would not work. He also said the "overwhelm - them - with - information" approach had been tried and this had not worked either. He seemed resigned to the "work - within - the - system" approach, though he was by no means ecstatic about this prospect.

Perhaps he was less than ecstatic because he realizes, more than most students, the potential there is for students to be co-opted when they work within the system. But, nevertheless, the newly elected co-presidents will be bringing their "fresh, new" approach to working within the system. As I said, I remain skeptical.

But, fear not, for I will not end on such a depressing note. There is a viable solution to the existing lack of student power. We must make the achievement of student power the subject of a group project.

Group projects are used only sparingly in high school, and even then only by the most daring teachers. The fear held by high school administrators and faculty is that students will realize how the dynamics of a group project can be applied to any type of organizing effort. Students still have not been fully acculturated into the "working - within - the - system" means of dealing with bureaucracy, which is one of the important requirements of a high school education.

By the time we begin our college education, we are expected either to have become fully acculturated or to accept the idea that group projects are bureaucratic in origin and only meant to foster student divisiveness by having us squabble over trivialities associated with the project.

However, who's to say that we can't learn from this bureaucratic "trick"? Successful group projects are the result of a realization by the students contributing to the project that it can be beneficial to them and more to their educational benefit than a bureaucratic tool. It all comes down to the point of whether the students look at the end result (the work produced) or the means to that end (the group work) as more important.

Most group projects inevitably degenerate to the level where work is divided up and then thrown together to form the final product. A precious few projects take a long time to get off the ground and find the students involved more concerned with keeping the group working successfully together.

The result may be a smaller quantity of work to be handed to the professor, but is certainly much more deserving of the label "group work" than a mish-mash of individual work thrown together. And the students have certainly learned something about cooperation and sublimation of ego for the maximum benefit of the group.

According to our traditional definitions of group work, 24,000 students are far too many to work successfully in a group. However, if each and every one of us could understand the dynamics of a successful group project, namely, cooperation and the sublimation of the individual, we would be far more helpful in any attempts to develop a student consciousness. And any attempts to organize students into a powerful group hinge on these ideas and the development of a student consciousness.

Jerry Rogers is a Collegian Columnist.

letter

Battered women's needs

To the Editor:

Representative Elaine Nobel-Boston has introduced a bill to the Massachusetts State Legislature which would give battered women priority in receiving emergency public housing assistance. We urge all UMass students and women's groups to write to Rep. Nobel urging her of your support for the bill.

At present, there are only three shelters in Boston [consisting of only 22 beds — there are more shelters for animals!] We feel that this piece of legislation is important because many women who have been abused by either their husbands or lovers will not leave or seek treatment if they have nowhere to go. If this legislation is passed, the emergency priority rating for battered women would at least be a beginning for the state to look at the special housing needs that women tenants have.

Joanne R. Levenson and Bob Forrant,
Off Campus Housing
Lucia Bruno, Commuter Collective

mark wilding

Writing from Mudville

I have spent the better part of my life shadowed by the sobriquet "loser". Losing has been a tradition that came down to me from my mother's side. She drew straws at the maternity ward, lost, and had to take me home.

I loved all sorts of sports as a child, though there was an incident that happened to me when I was eight that portended the future course of misery my sports life would pave for me. I had the good fortune to visit a Bozo show with some schoolmates of mine. At length, I was chosen by Bozo, along with seven others, to participate in a kiddie contest. We were divided into teams of four and were told that the object of the game was to throw tenpins into a bucket. Once the person ahead of you had managed to throw all his tenpins into the bucket, you would run to the bucket, grab the tenpins, run back, and start tossing. Saving me for last (much as swim and track relay teams save their best for last) we kicked into an early lead and had stretched it to a bucket and a half when my turn came. I rushed to gather the tenpins and in a fit of zealous ineptitude, kicked out with my right foot and sent the whole lot for six. I still have the consolation prize — a Bozo record.

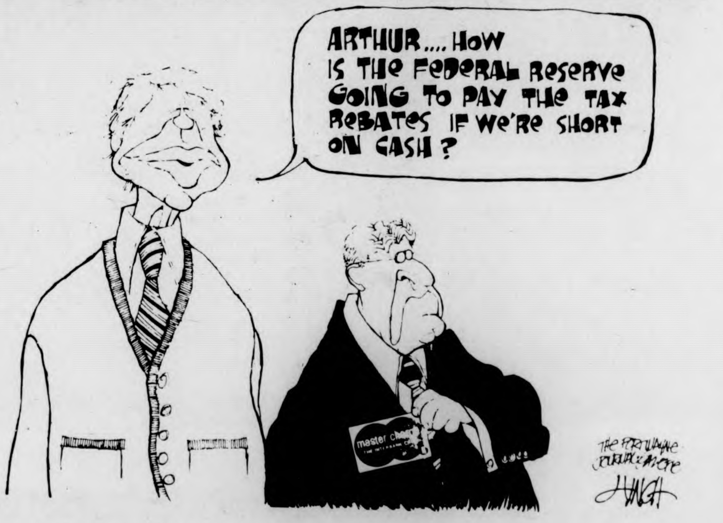
I had tasted goatdom, and clearly not satisfied, I joined Little League in fourth grade. For a year, I toiled in mediocrity. Then my big break came in fifth grade — the team's first-string catcher moved away! I moved up to his position and led the team to a tie for first place. A play-off game would decide which team was to be league champ. Sure enough, the game came down to the last half of the final inning with both teams tied at four runs apiece. They had advanced a man to third base with two outs. Up came the scrawniest player on either team. He was a skinny little wretch whose batting average was less than his weight. Well, on the first pitch, Mickey Mantle ekes out a bunt that comes to rest half a dozen feet in front of me. I leaped on the gift-wrapped Rawlings and calmly tossed it into right field. End of game. End of season. End of my ball-playing days.

During high school, I took up golf and became proficient enough at it to make the school squad. Our coach was a straight and narrow biology teacher who always cautioned us against the use of "invectives" while playing. In only one of my matches did the "invectives" fly. It was late in the season and we were playing a match against our cross-town rival. We thought the scoring would be close and it was. I was playing number four man that day and through seventeen I was even with my opponent. As we stood on the eighteenth tee, my coach came up and told me that our number two and three men had lost while our number one man had thrashed his counterpart. Hence, we were behind two to one. If I won this hole, we would even up the score at two to two and clinch the lower team total which was worth another point (meaning we would win 3-2). I hitched up my trousers, like Arnie, and swung hell for leather at the dimpled baby. It flew out straight and then slowly, agonizingly curved toward a grove of pines and plopped into oblivion. I finished with an inglorious eight while he came home with a five. I spent that night cuddled up with a bottle of Seagrams.

The culmination of my career as a choke came a month ago when I led my 0-4 intramural basketball squad into battle against an assortment of dwarfs, klutzes, and eunuchs that dared to call themselves a team. We snatched a ten-point lead from the buffons and let it slip away until with a second and a half left we found ourselves a point behind with the ball at midcourt. Calling a time-out, it was decided that the ball would be shuffled to me at the key. Sure enough, my roommate threw me a perfect pass. I turned around, measured the four-foot jumper, and tossed the ball hoopward. It lay on the rim for an eternity and dropped — towards me. Once more, mighty Casey had struck out.

P.S. — I have taken up backgammon.

Mark Wilding is a Collegian Columnist.



ARTHUR.... HOW IS THE FEDERAL RESERVE GOING TO PAY THE TAX REBATES IF WE'RE SHORT ON CASH?
master charge
THE FORT WAYNE JOURNAL-GAZETTE
HUGH

Rally today against racist investment

Since the Soweto massacre of June 16th, the lid of apartheid has been blown off revealing the activities of the most racist and fascist regime in existence, the Republic of South Africa. The struggle there is clearly a matter of life and death for the oppressed people of South Africa.

The University of Massachusetts, interested in profit not people, found it fitting to invest over one million dollars in apartheid and is listed as being one of the major investors in the Johannasburg Chamber of Commerce.

This may not surprise Third World students here who have already witnessed the unjust incarceration of Earl Brown and Craemen Gethers just two years ago. The silence of the administration in this case clearly demonstrates their hostility towards Black and Third World students trying to receive an education in Amherst.

Some people have suggested that the Third World population is "overly sensitive" and that there really are no bad feelings towards people of color in Amherst. One cannot help but wonder what the implications of investments in apartheid, legal frame-ups and acts of aggression against the Third World Community mean.

All Black, Third World and progressive people in Amherst are urged to be seen and heard at tomorrow's noon rally in front of New Africa House. We will march to Whitmore at 12:30 to demand that the University sell its racist investments and free Earl Brown and Craeman Gethers. Your participation is imperative!

Committee for the Liberation of Southern Africa
Earl Brown-Craeman Gethers Defense Committee
South African Support Committee
W.E.B. Dubois Department of Afro-American Studies
New Africa House Steering Committee
Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black Students
Malcolm Center

Center for Racial Understanding
Nummo News
Black Affairs
Drum Magazine
Black Mass Communications Project

Puerto Rican Socialist Party
Venceremos Brigade
Comparative Racism Program at N.E.-Sylvan
MacKimmie Humanity House
Third World Caucus of the Student Senate

Sylvan Cultural Society
Third World Center
Third World Woman's Center
New World Center
Afro-Am Society
Salsa-Soul Medicine Show

★ Plane crash

CONT. FROM PAGE 6

windshield failure and one engine flamed out.

"And then he reported the flameout of the second engine. He then switched over to the Atlanta Tower and said he would try to set it down on a road."

The plane came in low over New Hope elementary school and roared down Highway 92 like a juggernaut, scything down telephone poles and trees, spewing fuel and pieces right and left. Only the tail section remained intact after firemen put out the fire.

John Clayton, chief of the New Hope Volunteer Fire Department, said he was also in his yard and thought he was hearing a tornado. Then he saw the plane.

"It dipped first, and came down before it got to the New Hope community and then got airborne again, and then as it touched down one of the first things it clipped was the telephone poles and electrical lines of the New Hope Fire Department.

"Then the Newman's grocery store, and vehicles. It came on down and started clipping the trees and the fuselage — at that point, in front of Mrs. Irene Craton's and Mrs. Ruth Bell's house, the fuselage turned a somersault and landed in the yard of Mr. Meory Burkhalter, directly across from my home."

"We actually saw the fuselage slipping, the wings disintegrating and bodies going through the air. Debris, all kinds of articles being flung from the airliner."

Clayton said he personally saw at least 25 lifeless bodies.

At Kennestone hospital in Marietta, spokesman Kay Cagle said, "We have had a total of 14 injured come in so far. All are burn patients.

"We've transferred five in critical condition to the Grady Burn Center in Atlanta. We have been led to believe they are from the plane, but we just don't know for sure."

MARIETTA, Ga: Hospital attendents rush a victim of the Southern Airways DC-9 crash to emergency room treatment. (UPI)

DALLAS, Ga.: Rescue teams search the burned wreckage of the Southern Airways DC-9 for victims. (UPI)

Major air disasters

—March 26, 1977: KLM Boeing 747 taking off crashed into taxiing chartered Pan-Am 747 at Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Canary Islands, Spain, killing 576 persons — 328 aboard the Pan Am plane and 248 aboard the KLM craft.

—March 3, 1974: Turkish DC10 jet crashed at Ermenoville, near Paris, killing 346.

—Dec. 4, 1974: Dutch-chartered DC8 jet, crashed in storm near Colombo, Sri Lanka, killing 191.

—Aug. 3, 1975: Chartered Boeing 707 jet hit mountainside at Agadir, Morroco, killing 188.

—Oct. 13, 1972: East German airline Aeroflot Ilyushin 62 crashed near Moscow, killing 176.

—Jan. 22, 1973: Chartered Boeing 707 jet burst into flames during landing at Kano Airport, Nigeria, killing 176.

—Sept. 10, 1976: British Airways Trident 3 jet and Yugoslav-chartered DC9 jet collided near Zagreb, Yugoslavia, killing 176.

—April 4, 1975: U.S. Air Force Galaxy C58 jet carrying load of orphans crashed after takeoff near Saigon, Vietnam, killing 172.

Ride needed to North Carolina tomorrow afternoon or Thursday morning
call Jill 253-3614

god doesn't make junk

You have something to share with the people of the rural South and Appalachia — yourself. Find out how you can help, as a Catholic Brother, Sister, or Priest. Your request will be treated confidentially.

■ I'd like information about opportunities with the Glenmary Missioners.

Glenmary Missioners
Room 23-32
Box 46404
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246
Name________
Address________
City________
Zip________
State________
Age________

Test Prep Services
358 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 549-5136

LSAT

6, 4-Hr. meetings covering cases & principles, practical judgement, evaluation of facts, various logic sections, data comparison, writing ability, new question types.
Meeting times:
Thurs. 1:30-5:30, 6:00-10:00

MCAT

6, 4 Hr. meetings covering biology, chemistry & physics as well as the new MCAT skills analysis question types.
Meeting days and times
Wed., Thurs.
6:00-10:00 p.m.
Sat. classes scheduled for April

TPS' flexible programs permit you to arrange classes around your schedule, not vice versa. Most courses are held continuously throughout the year and all make-up sessions are LIVE. Weekend crash courses scheduled the two weekends prior to each exam. You can always count on a TPS program to meet your needs. Our 24-Hr. courses, plus 11 hrs. of extras lets you take advantage of 35 hours of live instruction with a top-scoring specialist.

Call to reserve a place in our weekly
FREE INTRODUCTORY CLASS
Held every Tues. evening 6:30 to 9:30

ring day
JOSTENS

Seniors !
Last ring days before graduation!!
Tues. April 5
Weds. April 6
10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
at the
University Store
U. Mass.

Just in Time for Warm Weather
ORDER NOW

$4.95

IF you dare...
"Biggest" MAN ON CAMPUS
Your DORM ...OR Mine?

SEND TO:
HOLLAND COOKE
P.O. BOX 328
SEEKONK, MASS. 02771
PLEASE PRINT
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP
HOW MANY OF EACH?
"Biggest Man" XL___ L___ M___ S___
"Your Dorm" XL___ L___ M___ S___

DYNOMITE

ATTENTION • • • ALL UMASS. STUDENTS.

YOUR NEWSPAPER—THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN—IS LOOKING FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK THEY CAN SELL. WE HAVE POSITIONS OPEN FOR THE COMING SEMESTER. THIS IS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO EARN EXTRA MONEY AND ACQUIRE GREAT JOB EXPERIENCE.

Interested?: Drop this coupon off to Steve Lesser, Ad Manager, at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center, or call 545-3500.

WHEELS ARE NECESSARY!

I'm interested in becoming a Collegian Ad Rep:
Name:________
Address:________
Telephone:________
Any selling experience?
( ) Yes ( ) No
Do you have a car?
( ) Yes ( ) No

NATIONAL & WORLD BRIEFS

Kearney named new sheriff

BOSTON [UPI] — Rep. Dennis J. Kearney, an East Boston Democrat, yesterday was named by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis to be sheriff of Suffolk County.

Kearney, 27, replaces Thomas Eisenstadt who recently resigned under pressure during state and county investigations concerning his alleged misconduct. Kearney will receive $28,962 a year in his new position.

In appointing Kearney Dukakis said he will "bring honesty, intelligence, independence and hard work to the job. He has proven he is his own man."

Poor Richards
TUESDAY
25¢ Drafts
$2.00 pitchers
ALL NIGHT

Funds awarded for disadvantaged

BOSTON [UPI] — Massachusetts will receive $18.6 million in federal funds for jobs for disadvantaged youths this summer, 26 per cent more than last year, Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill said yesterday.

Priority will be given to minorities, the handicapped, juvenile offenders and welfare recipients.

Sadat hoping for Palestinial state

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat told President Carter yesterday his human rights stand compelled the United States to use "this golden opportunity" to work for establishment of a Palestinian state.

Carter and Sadat reaffirmed during a 100-minute meeting in the White House Oval Office they will work toward reconvening the Geneva conference on the Middle East "in the second half of 1977."

Striking workers ordered to return

CONNECTICUT CORRECTIONS WORKERS STRUCK Monday, but the state's prisons ran on a normal schedule and a judge ordered the workers back to their jobs.

State officials, who brought in state police to man the prisons, said they did not know if the union would honor the court order.

Mobster killed in revenge attack

SOMERSET, Mass. [UPI] — Underworld figures had a motive to kill mobster Dennis "Danny" Raimondi because a book he wrote attracted too much publicity, a federal official said yesterday.

Raimondi, 53, was found Sunday lying face down in the kitchen-dining area of his ranch home. State police said he was executed gangland-style with several small caliber gunshot wounds in the back of his head and one in his chest.

Secession of islands is questionable

NANTUCKET, Mass. [UPI] — The question of secession from Massachusetts was an issue at town meetings throughout Nantucket Island and some communities on Martha's Vineyard yesterday.

Town referendums and resolutions gauged voter feelings on the matter.

David and Andrea Whitman are pleased to announce a Spring Promotion
for their Amherst Salon

We are now a
FULL SERVICE salon

- hair cutting
- coloring
- henna
- permanent waving
- hair & skin treatment
- cosmetic & make-up application

BIBA COSMETICS is proud to present a FREE Biba Cosmetic Clinic April 8 & 9. Ms. Lauretta & Ms. Millicent will assist you in the latest make-up techniques.

THIS WEEK ONLY! 10% OFF
ON ALL RETAIL MERCHANDISE

A Professional 1000 Watt HAIR DRYER reg. $17.95 THIS WEEK ONLY $13.95

David Whitman Hair Shack
124 Amity Street
Amherst, Mass.
549-5111

rainbow prisms

A fine collection of hand cut strass quality crystal, high lead content and exquisite shapes project color and form when hung in a window. A perfect gift for your home. from $3 to $28.

Faces of Earth
Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.
Next to Amherst Post Office

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Zoology professor does impersonations

A lecturer whose impersonations of history's great scientists has made him nationally famous today and tomorrow. Zoology Prof. Richard Eakin assumes the manner and the costumes of famous scientists, combining a flair for acting with scientific expertise. He lectures as Charles Darwin, Gregor Mendal, Louis Pasteur and others.

Dr. Eakin will lecture today as Gregor Mendel, the 19th century Augustinan monk who is recognized as the founder of genetics. The lecture is at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium, and is open to the public without charge.

His lecture tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. in Morrill Auditorium will not be an impersonation. It will be on "The Pineal," an appendage of the brain in vertebrates, and will be open to all interested members of the Five College community.

Section of Lot 32 to temporarily close

The section of Lot 32 across from Whitmore will temporarily lose three rows of spaces on the Lincoln Avenue end. The entrance and exit will also be obstructed. Those who normally park in this section of Lot 32 should use the adjacent Lot 34 entrance and exit. Vehicles registered for Lot 32 will be allowed to overflow into Lot 34.

Construction is scheduled to begin April 11 and it is anticipated that the construction will be completed in mid-July.

Tickets on sale for Pilobolus dance

Tickets are now on sale at the Fine Arts Center Box Office for the Saturday, April 9, performance by the Pilobolus Dance Theatre. This UMass Arts Council dance series event, originally scheduled for Saturday, February 26, had to be rescheduled because one of the dancers was injured during a lecture-demonstration by the ensemble. The performance is scheduled for 8 p.m., and all original tickets will be honored.

TURN TO PAGE 15

Secession favored

(UPI) — Residents in the Martha's Vineyard island town of Chilmark and voters on the 13 Elizabeth Islands off the Vineyard, drawing from the revolutionary zeal of their ancestors, voted Friday to secede from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The Chilmark vote was 132-31 and the balloting in the Elizabeths went 63-2.

The rebellious vote on a non-binding referendum came after plans were unveiled to strip the Vineyard and a bundle of other tiny island communities of their representatives in the state legislature.

A number of island officials proposed secession after a legislative redistricting proposal was disclosed.

The plan was drawn up after voters throughout the state approved a reduction in the number of Massachusetts House seats. Under the redistricting plan, the islands would be combined in a legislative district with Cape Cod.

Currently, the islands have a representative in the state House and many islanders want it to stay that way.

Read the UMass Collegian

university of massachusetts arts council presents
THIS TIME FOR SURE!
PILOBOLUS DANCE THEATER
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY MASS
1
NOMINATED FOR 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
Cousin Cousine
R
Friday — 5:00, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:30-5:00; Sat. — 2:15, 5:00, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:30-5:00; Sun. — 2:15, 6:00, 8:15, twi-liter 5:30-6:00.
2
IT'S THE MOST HILARIOUS SUSPENSE RIDE OF YOUR LIFE!
GENE WILDER
JILL CLAYBURGH
RICHARD PRYOR
SILVER STREAK
PG
Friday — 4:45, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sat. — 2:00, 4:45, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sun. 2:00, 5:45, 8:00, twi-liter 5:15-5:45.
3
ACADEMY AWARD WINNER!
A STAR IS BORN
R
Friday — 4:30, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:00-4:30; Sat. 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30, twi-liter 4:00-4:30; Sun. 2:00, 5:30, 8:00, twi-liter 5:00-5:30.
4
THE NEWEST, PINKEST PANTHER OF ALL!
BLAKE EDWARDS
PETER SELLERS in
"THE PINK PANTHER STRIKES AGAIN"
PG
Friday — 4:45, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sat. 2:15, 4:45, 7:15, 9:45, twi-liter 4:15-4:45; Sun. 2:15, 5:45, 8:15, twi-liter 5:15-5:45.
ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI LITE SHOW TICKETS LIMITED TO SEATING

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
NOW at 7:00 & 9:00
(only area showing)
"ONE OF THE YEARS 10 BEST FILMS!"
- Rex Reed
- Time Mag.

a film by
françois truffaut
small change
No Dollar Nights This Program!

University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS
JULIE HARRIS in
THE BELLE OF AMHERST
A new play based on the life of Emily Dickinson
Thurs, April 7
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL 8PM
Tickets now on sale. $7, 6, 5. UM-A - $5, 4, 3. Other students and senior citizens $6, 5, 4.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511 & Ticketron Locations

university of massachusetts arts council presents

Minnesota Orchestra
Stanislaw Skrowaczewski
Music Director
TUES., APRIL 19 8 PM
Tickets now on sale! $7, 6, 5. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500

party
Everyone should enjoy the party even when it's over. They will, too, if you offer non-alcoholic as well as alcoholic drinks, serve food and provide rides home or a place to sleep for those who've drunk too much to drive safely.
Alcohol Education Project
Room-to-Move and Health Education
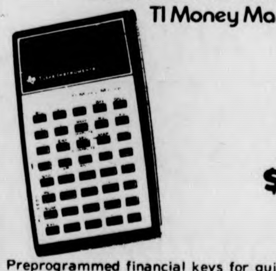
549-2671

university of massachusetts arts council presents
KARR-LEWIS DUO
Double Bass & Keyboard
WED., APRIL 6 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Texas Instruments
electronic calculator
TI Money Manager



only
$22.95
Preprogrammed financial keys for quick, easy answers to more complex money problems as well as statistical and log functions at the calculator store.
The University Store
Campus Center
UMass.
Mon.-Fri. 9am-5pm
Sat. 11am-4pm

CONT. FROM PAGE 14

Attention vets: G.I. Bill changes

A change in GI Bill payment procedures, effective June 1, 1977, will bring checks at the end of the month rather than at the beginning to 1.5 million veterans, dependents and service members enrolled in Veterans Administration (VA) education programs. These and other changes are explained in a "stuffer" to be sent with April and May checks.

Another June 1 change, brought about by law, modifies an arrangement which in the past automatically gave trainees a two-month money advance at the start of school.

Ending of the prepayment system will have the most noticeable effect on veteran-students continuously enrolled this summer. They will receive their last VA check under the prepayment system on May 1, covering enrollment for May.

The next check, covering June enrollment, will be issued July 1. Subsequent VA checks will follow each additional month of enrollment. A student whose enrollment ends in June will receive the payment for June on July 1.

The modified advance payment procedure permits advance payment at the beginning of a school term for the first month or partial month, plus the following month only if the student makes a written request and the school agrees to process the advance payment. Prior to this new legislation, all students got advance payments automatically.

Honors Program needs new director

The term of George J. Armelagos as director of the University Honors Program ends this semester. A new director for the program must be selected before the end of the Spring 1977 semester.

The position requires extensive knowledge of campus-wide administrative and counseling procedures. Aside from serving in the capacity of a Special Programs Academic Dean, the honors program director serves as: (1) a representative to the Faculty Senate, and on the Senate Curriculum Committee (2) a member of the Special Programs Directors Council and (3) chairperson of the University Honors Council.

If you are interested or would like to nominate someone you feel is interested and qualified, please write or call the Honors Program. We would be pleased to discuss this position with any serious tenured faculty member or concerned student group.

Video Sidewalk presents own films

The Student Video Project is featuring three of their own productions on Video Sidewalk this week. On "Improvisions," the weekly TV magazine show, we'll visit with UMass Outing Club, The Roseman, Easyrider, and much more. On "The Strive of Life," the soap opera about UMie life, we'll see what's happening in the lives of our favorite soaper students. The "Towards Tomorrow Fair 1976" series will also be presented. Join us Tuesdays on the Campus Center Concourse, and Wednesdays in the back of the Hatch from 11:30-2:30 p.m. every week.

Panel discussion scheduled tomorrow

The Mortar Board will sponsor a panel discussion by the University Rape Task Force tomorrow at 3 p.m. in Skinner Hall. The panel will discuss the basic information regarding health care and counseling for rape victims, police protection, and where to go for help if you are raped. All are invited to attend. The Mortar Board will appreciate any voluntary donations to their fund for children's playground equipment.

Project Self offering April workshops

Project Self, a series of workshops by and about women, is offering three weekend workshops in April. Weekend workshops are quickly filled so please register early; deadline for registrations is April 20. The following workshops will be offered:

Introduction to Assertiveness: This workshop is a basic, skill-oriented introduction to the concept of assertiveness and its applications. The cost of this workshop is $20 and will run April 23 from 10-4 and April 24 from 1-5 p.m.

TURN TO PAGE 16

university of massachusetts arts council presents

national black theatre
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

university of massachusetts arts council presents
TITO PUENTE ORCHESTRA
THURS., APRIL 14 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $6, 5, 4. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Classifieds

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift Idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve 546-9653.

Alto Sax Bundy - special pads & finish. $150 firm. Call Steve 6-9625.

1969 Ford Falcon, blue, 46,000 miles, good running condition. Asking $600.00. 19" Atela 10 speed bicycle - $95.00. 253-7249.

Pentax Spotmatic w-50mm f—1.4 lens & case. Best offer. Call 546-1090. 9 p.m.

Gibson SG std. guitar w-case. Fairly new, in very good cond. $245 or best offer. Call Bob 6-9432.

Gibson ES 330-TD Fender pre CVS amp. Morley fuzz-wah. B. O. 323-4249.

2 14 in. radials. Ex. cond. John, 253-5741.

Semi-pro bike. All alloy components. Fiammi, Sugino, etc. Superb cond. 6-6909.

Soprano sax — great cond. 2 Pentax lenses. 256-0223. Mel.

25" 10 spd. bike. $125 — best offer. Vista Criterium. 3 mos. old. 256-6782.

Electric typewriter — Olevetti. $150—B.O. Excellent condition. Was $300 new. 256-6782.

AUTO FOR SALE

1971 Dodge Demon Slant 6, low mileage, excellent condition. $1700. Al. 549-2854.

'74 Pinto Wgn. 50,000. Ex. cond., 4 spd., std., 4 radials & snws. AM-FM, 8 tr., 4 spkr. $1450. Call eve. 665-3237.

BMW, 1967. Exc. cond. $1200. 256-6459.

'70 Toyota Corona. Ex. cond. Must be seen. $900. Have to sell. 665-3255.

'66 Plymouth Belvedere, auto., good body, runs well. $175. Call Mark 549-2824.

'74 Vega GT. AM-FM, lo miles, exc. cond. and best offer. Call Ken 253-2909.

VW Bug. 1965. Good for parts or a project. Can be driven. $75.00. Call Nick Elliot, 545-2642.

AUTO FOR SALE

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0616 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

'65 VW Bug. Exc. mech. cond. 35 mpg. $750. 253-3623.

'64 VW Bug. Rebuilt eng. Good cdt. $200. 549-0798.

'68 Volvo 122. Very good shape. $800. 586-0610 anytime.

'66 Dodge Van, rblt. 6 cyl., good tires. $650 or B. O. Kent, 549-1292 after 7 p.m.

1969 Econ 300 Van. $1200. 665-7050.

'68 Buick Skylark. Good condition & good body. $450.00. Linda, 256-0548.

'71 Toyota Corolla. New paint, brakes, valve job. 665-3546 after 10:30 p.m.

'64 Ford Galaxie, mech. v. gd., body lousy. $175. Call 256-8347 after 6.

Volvo parts. 122 & 142. Good prices. 586-0610 anytime.

1968 Ford XL. New tires, good shape. $600 or B. O. 586-0610.

'73 Merc. Capri 2000, green, auto., air, 28,000 mi. Best offer over $1800. 549-6652.

'68 Camaro, vc top, 350 engine, 4v, auto trans., needs work, $400. or best offer. 549-4744.

'71 Ford Van. Runs well. AM-FM, 8 trak stereo, new tires, mattress, curtns. 253-3012.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1970 Kawasaki 500, runs well, very fast. $600. Call 549-1259 or 549-1316.

2 helmets, lock and chain, saddle bags, shields. Call Jeff, rm. 418. 545-0790—91.

'73 Honda 450 CL. 7500 mi. 2 helmets, plus men's and women's brown Harley leathers. All in good cond. $800 or B. O. 549-0179.

FOR RENT

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 + sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477 NHampt. 6-8 only.

Boston: Ex-large Apt.; 2 bedrm., living, dining, sun porch, front-rear balcony, etc. $260 b.o. June-August—617-426-0871 (days) 782-8015 (nights) Write: Att.: Rob, 147 South St., Boston.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

2 rms. in 2 bdrm. apt. 1 sublet, 1 lease. Puf Vil. June 1. 549-0589.

1 rm. in 2 bdrm. apt. Sund. $100 incl. util. Call 549-1391.

3 br. apt. avail. 5-21 - 8-31. Pool, A-C, ¾ mi. from campus. Call 549-6038.

Apartment: May 23 - Aug. 31. Call: 10 - 2. M-F. Ask for Mike. Leave mess. 545-0189.

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

HELP WANTED

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

Summer jobs — Forest Service, 140 Nat'l Forests. How, where, when to apply. Complete info. $3: Mission Mountain Co., Box 727, Polson, Montana 59860.

Non-profit public interest advertising needs photographer to help prepare quality brochure. 25 photo reductions of posters. P. O. Box 476, Northampton.

Waitress needed experienced. Mon.-Fri. days. Apply mornings at the Pub.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

Grad student to share 2 bedroom apt. with same. $110—mo. incl. util. 256-6712.

PERSONALS

Astrology: Charts & readings. 9 yrs. professional. Call Louis Neubel 549-6425.

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

To the girl with the great lips, if they say the first year is only the beginning, then the best is yet to come. —Scoop—

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot; you're alright too. AJF

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

Lizzy F (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie. D.L.

Luxury two bedroom apt. in Sunderland for summer sublet. On UMass bus route, swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low, low rent. Call 665-4729 anytime.

TRAVEL

Free tuition for 1 or 2 yrs. at any one of 140 univ., tech. schools and Yeshivas in Israel. Fully accredited programs for Jr. year and Grad study. Enrollment — min. 2 yrs. in advance, benefits from 1979 - 1989. Please contact: The Gift of Education, Dept. MA, Suite 710, 10 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020; 212-541-7568.

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075.

TO SUBLET

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan. 90's West Hi Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths & terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

1 bedroom apt., Puffton Village, June 1 - Aug. 31. Air cond., pool, tennis courts. Call 549-4789.

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt. at Cliffside in Sunderland, on bus route. Swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low rent. Call 665-4729 and keep trying.

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1 — 8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon., A.C., pool, on bus rt! Call 665-3619.

Boston Summer Sublet — 2 bdrm. apt., lvng rm., kitch. Furn., air cond., reasonable rent. Parking avail. 2 min. from Mass. Transit. Call 546-9709.

3 bdrm. apt. Puf. Vlg. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus route. Approx. grad. - Aug. 31. Pool. Rent neg. Call 256-6051 eve.

Summer Sublet: 2 bdrm. sunny apt., Northampton Cntr. 15 min. walk to bus. Reasonable. 586-4422.

3 bdrm. Townhouse Apts. June-Aug. $270 or B. O. Call 549-1211 morn., eves.

Summer Sublet: Option to renew. 2 bdrm. Pres. Apt. Walk to campus. 549-5898.

Gorgeous 3 bedrm. apt. 63 Graves St., So. Deerfield, on bus rt. Apt. is very unique, must be seen, call 665-7193.

2 bdr., Brandywine, exc. bus rt. Beautifully furnished, A-C, pool, 549-4744.

3 bdr., Puff. Vill. On bus rt. 6-1 — 9-1. 549-0748.

1 br. in 3 br. Puffton Vill. Apt. Furn., pool, tennis courts. 549-0611. May 31 thru August 31.

2 br. apt. w-huge yard-garden. On bus rt. June 1 - Sept. 1. 253-2819. Keep trying.

2 bdrm. apt. Brandywine 6-1—8-31. Bus route, pool, pets. Rent neg. 549-1517 aft. 5.

June 1 - Aug. 31. Colonial Village. Bus rt. 2 bdrms., semi-furnished. Call 253-3684.

2 bdrm. apt., Squire Vill., bus rt., 1½ baths, LR, DR, kitch., avail. now. Call 665-2203 or 665-3985. Anytime.

AUDIO

Quality components over 130 lines. Reasonable prices. Call Peter, 665-2920.

SERVICES

Tune-up and main all AM makes. John 253-5664.

FOUND

Found nr. Thoreau. Tell me what it was. 546-7503.

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears, cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

WANTED

Non-smoking, non-drinking, potential veg., very tidy, grad asst. seeks a quiet co-op living situation in Belchertown. $100— inc. Bill 253-7105 or 5-2155.

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

Looking for used quality scuba gear (Lrg.). Call evenings - 253-5410.

LOST

Black vinyl ring binder lost - Amherst Environ. Contact owner at 253-7139.

3 golf clubs in S-west fields. Reward. Call Flynt 546-6071.

Gold necklace - chain and charm. Live - Love - Laugh. Sentimental value. Reward offered. 546-8159.

CALCULATORS

New Prices! College Calculators services all T.I.'s for entire warranty! SR-52, $189; SR-56, $82; SR-51, $58; SR-40, $33; Commodore 1800 Scientific, $34.95. All HP's avail! Call and check our prices & service. Call Bob or Linda anytime. 549-1316.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

CONT. FROM PAGE 15

Backpacking: How to Begin: The first day we will discuss food, clothing, the various kinds of equipment, the qualities of expensive and improvised backpacking gear. Our route, equipment and menu planning will be decided this year. The two day weekend will include getting acquainted with the techniques of hiking, reading the landscape, weather watching, fire craft, outdoor cooking, edible wild plants, star gazing, map and compass reading, and learning about wild animals. This workshop is open to all women and no previous backpacking experience is necessary. Women can expect to spend $2 to $3 extra for the expense of food. The cost of this workshop is $25 and will take place on April 16 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and April 23-24 overnight.

These workshops are open to all University and community women. For more information and for a registration form please call 545-0883 or stop by Everywoman's Center, in 506 Goodell Hall.

Double bass player performs tomorrow

Gary Karr and his 6-foot tall double bass will be appearing in concert at the Fine Arts Center accompanied by David Harmon Lewis on keyboard tomorrow.

The 33-year-old Karr has brought the double bass from the back of the orchestra to center stage, and philosophically regards previous neglect of the instrument as an advantageous challenge. One critic even suggested that Karr may be for the double bass what Segovia has been for the guitar.

Tickets for the Karr-Lewis concert are on sale at the Fine Arts Center Box Office and at all Ticketron outlets. Prices are $3, $4, and $5 for the general public; half price for UMass students; $1 off the regular price for senior citizens and other students. The Box Office at the Fine Arts Center is open from 9 to 4 daily, Monday through Friday.

Tito Puente to perform in FAC

Tito Puente, undoubtedly the best-known Latin orchestra leader in the world, will bring his orchestra to the Fine Arts Center for a single concert on Thursday, April 14.

The event is the final concert in the Council's Contemporary Music Series for the 1976-77 season.

In the course of his career, Tito has produced 80-plus albums, many of which are among the biggest sellers of Salsa, including "Dance Mania", probably the biggest selling Salsa LP of all time.

Tickets for the Puente Concert are now on sale at the Fine Arts Center Box Office and all Ticketron outlets and are priced at $4, $5 and $6 for the general public: one-half price for UMass-Amherst students: $1.00 off the regular price for other students and for Senior Citizens. The Fine Arts Center Box Office is open from 9 to 4 each day, Monday through Friday, 545-2511.

Legal aides needed for internships

Western Mass. Legal Services is again seeking qualified students for Summer and Fall internships as legal aides. The program is currently in its fifth year, and has been a success both from the students' and the agency's point of view.

Legal aides assist in the process of counseling and preparation of many disadvantaged people in Western Mass. who are in need of legal help. There are offices in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke, Springfield, North Adams and Pittsfield with openings in the areas of housing, welfare, family and consumer law.

Look for the table in the Campus Center Concourse today, tomorrow and Thursday for more information. This program is sponsored by the Office of Internships, Goodell Bldg., 5-0727.

Notices

ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Come up and meet the sisters of Tri-Sigma in Fraternity-Sorority Park. Thursday at 8:30 p.m. Call for info and rides 253-2607 or 545-0046.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS

There will be a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 172. Cecil Leonard from Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. will be the guest speaker. All welcome.

ATTENTION POLOISTS AND INTERESTED PERSONS

Both the men's A and B teams and the women's team will be in action this weekend the 9th and 10th at Boyden. Check out the schedule and come on down!

ATTENTION GERBIL LOVERS

Free baby gerbils to good home. Healthy, affectionate, curious and rather happy-go-lucky. Well-adjusted. Heidi 533-9400 aft 6 or leave message in SU 302.

BETA ALPHA PSU

Election of officers on Campus Center. All members should attend in CC at 7 p.m. tonight.

BICYCLE CO-OP

The Co-op meets tonight at 7 in CC 901 to discuss coordination with other groups and spring activities.

BIBLICAL EXPLORATION

Tonight from 6:45 to 7:45 an open search of REV. 13, that famous theological and political statement from one of the more puzzling and fascinating books of the Bible.

BREAD AND WINE

Simple candle-light communion in the round, for anyone of any persuasion for a warm and deep experience of the Presence: you are welcome. Tonight from 7:45 until 8 in SU 422.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

Meeting tonight 6:30-7:30, CC 802, everyone welcome. See the falsity of material existence to your true identity.

JEW WITH NON-JEWISH PARTNERS

Rap group to explore difficulties of inter-faith dating. Also to clarify and deepen understanding of one's possible solutions. Today at 4:30 CC 902.

POLITICAL SCIENCE MAJORS

A planning meeting for all students who want to work on forming a council in the Pol Sci Dept. SU 426 today at 2:30.

SEMINAR ON MEDICINE PART 4

Tonight's speaker will be Gregor Mendel, the world famous geneticist. Mahar Aud at 8 p.m. — get there early. Please stay after for attendance taking.

SAILING CLUB

Meeting CC 902 at 7 p.m. tonight. Discussion of the Regatta at Coast Guard this weekend. For more info contact Tim 6-4180.

SCUBA CLUB

Free swim tonight in Curry Hicks at 6 p.m.

SICK OF DC FOOD?

Come for a free dinner and beer at Memorial Hall, while calling alumni at Phonothon '77. The funds raised go toward scholarships, academic programs, and other projects. So help and have a good time, too! For more info, call Joseph or Mary Ellen at 5-2317.

SOFTBALL

Male or female, if you want to become a member of the UMass softball club and to compete on a regular basis, call Neil or Andrea at 253-2059. Competition begins in 2 weeks.

RAPE

Looking for women who have undergone rape counseling and health care in order to put together a study on responsiveness to womens' needs. Call Jaymie Sawyer 253-5760.

STUDENT ART COLLECTIVE

Meeting to reorganize and to plan for 1977-78. Will explore work-study possibilities and academic tie-ins. Tomorrow night at 7:30 in CC 902.

UNDERGRADUATES OF HAPPS CLUSTER

Meeting tonight of the Human Services, Juvenile Justice, and Exploration Programs to discuss policies within the dept., everyone urged to attend. Wine and cheese will be served. 7:30, 4th floor lounge Hills South.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Are sponsoring arts and crafts sale and show to be held Nov. 1977. The show will be reviewed by a qualified staff of judges. Persons interested in displaying their work are encouraged to contact Maryann Stackpole 549-4579.

DC Menu

TODAY

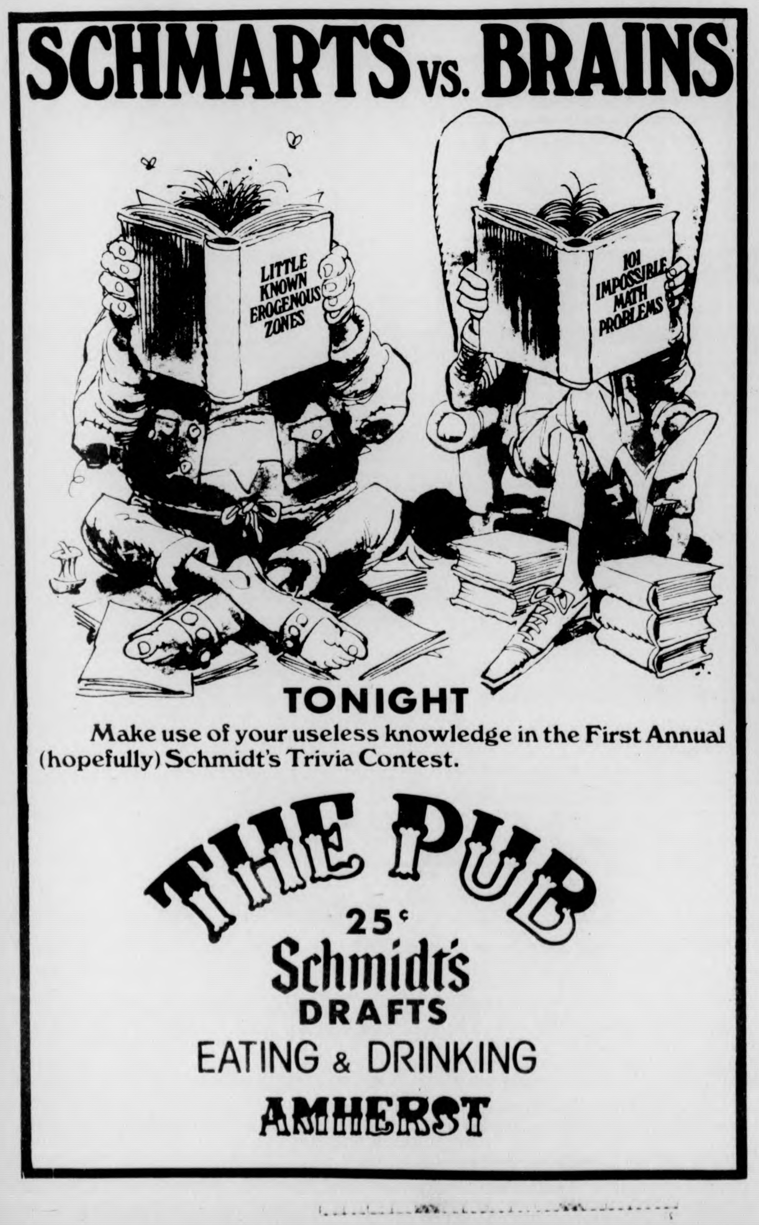
LUNCH — Hot Turkey Sandwich, California Quiche; Basics: Hot Turkey Sandwich, California Quiche.

DINNER — Stuffed Shells with Meat Sauce, Mini-Egg Rolls, Chicken Chow Mein; Basics: Stuffed Shells with Tomato Sauce, Chicken Chow Mein, Mini-Egg Rolls.

TOMORROW

LUNCH — Cheeseburgers, Chicken Ham Roll-ups; Basics: Vegetable A La King, Tuna Salad on a Bun.

DINNER — Roast Beef, Eggplant Parmigiana; Basics: Baked Fish, Fettuccini Alfredo.



SCHMARTS VS. BRAINS
LITTLE KNOWN EROGENOUS ZONES
101 IMPOSSIBLE MATH PROBLEMS

TONIGHT

Make use of your useless knowledge in the First Annual (hopefully) Schmidt's Trivia Contest.

THE PUB

25¢ Schmidt's DRAFTS

EATING & DRINKING

AMHERST

AN OPPORTUNITY TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT THE NEW

FOOD ENGINEERING B. S. PROGRAM AT THE UNIVERSTIY OF MASSACHUSETTS

ROOM 803 CAMPUS CENTER

7:30-9:30 PM THURSDAY APRIL 7

REFRESHM ENTS

SEE THE BALL LINER FLOAT ACROSS THE PAGE IN ELEGANT "FOUNTAIN PEN-LIKE" STROKES!
MARVEL AS THE BALL LINER RECAPTURES ALL THE GRACE OF THOSE GREAT PENS OF YESTERYEAR WITH THE INK-ACTION OF TODAY'S MARKER PENS!
Pilot Corporation of America Presents...
SON of FOUNTAIN PEN
STARRING THE PEN THAT COMBINES THE BEST OF THE OLD AND NEW. THE ONE AND ONLY BE AMAZED WITH THE STURDINESS OF THE BALL LINER AS IT WRITES THROUGH CARBON PAPER JUST LIKE A HARD BALL POINT!
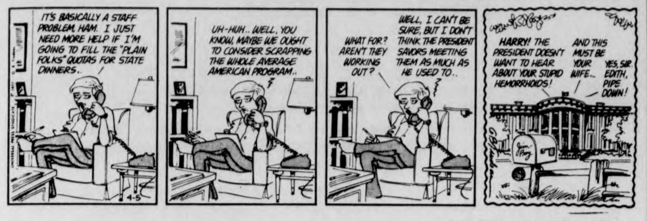
PILOT
Ball Liner

THE PILOT BALL LINER: A MAGNIFICENT STEP BACKWARD IN WRITING 89¢

NOW APPEARING AT YOUR BOOK STORE

DOONESBURY by Gary Trudeau

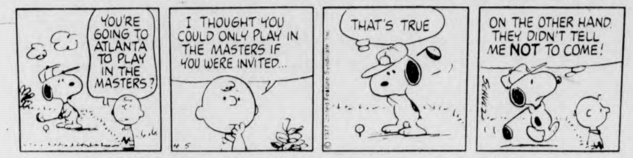
Valley
29 S Pleasant St
call 2566736
M-F 10-6 S 10-2



IT'S BASICALLY A STAFF PROBLEM, HAM. I JUST NEED MORE HELP IF I'M GOING TO FILL THE "PLAIN FOLKS" QUOTAS FOR STATE DINNERS..
UH-HUH.. WELL, YOU KNOW, MAYBE WE OUGHT TO CONSIDER SCRAPPING THE WHOLE AVERAGE AMERICAN PROGRAM..
WHAT FOR? AREN'T THEY WORKING OUT?
WELL, I CAN'T BE SURE, BUT I DON'T THINK THE PRESIDENT SAVORS MEETING THEM AS MUCH AS HE USED TO..
HARRY! THE PRESIDENT DOESN'T WANT TO HEAR ABOUT YOUR STUPID HEMORRHOIDS!
AND THIS MUST BE YOUR WIFE...
YES, SIR. EDITH, PIPE DOWN!

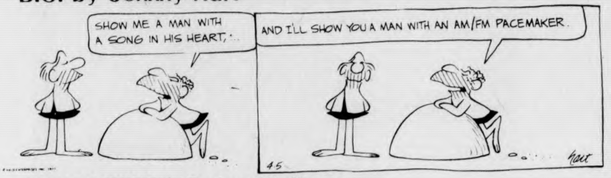
PEANUTS by Charles Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



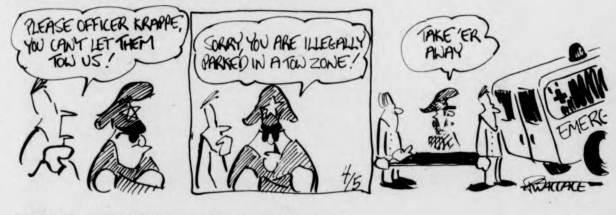
YOU'RE GOING TO ATLANTA TO PLAY IN THE MASTERS?
I THOUGHT YOU COULD ONLY PLAY IN THE MASTERS IF YOU WERE INVITED...
THAT'S TRUE
ON THE OTHER HAND, THEY DIDN'T TELL ME NOT TO COME!

B.C. by Johnny Hart



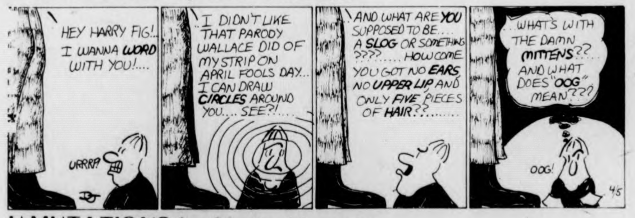
SHOW ME A MAN WITH A SONG IN HIS HEART, ...
AND I'LL SHOW YOU A MAN WITH AN AM/FM PACEMAKER.

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



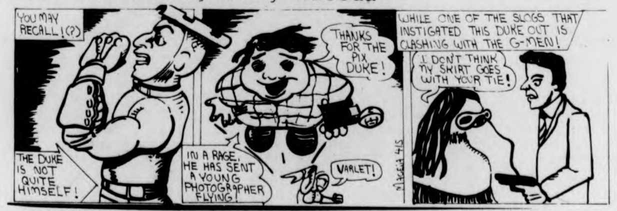
PLEASE OFFICER KRAPPE, YOU CAN'T LET THEM TOW US!
SORRY, YOU ARE ILLEGALLY PARKED IN A TOW ZONE!
TAKE 'ER AWAY
EMERG

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



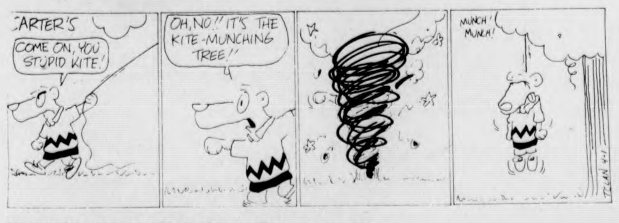
HEY HARRY FIG!.. I WANNA WORD WITH YOU!...
URRRP?
I DIDN'T LIKE THAT PARODY WALLACE DID OF MY STRIP ON APRIL FOOLS DAY... I CAN DRAW CIRCLES AROUND YOU.... SEE?!....
AND WHAT ARE YOU SUPPOSED TO BE.... A SLOG OR SOMETHING ????..... HOW COME YOU GOT NO EARS, NO UPPER LIP, AND ONLY FIVE PIECES OF HAIR??........
...WHAT'S WITH THE DAMN MITTENS?? AND WHAT DOES "OOG" MEAN???
OOG!

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



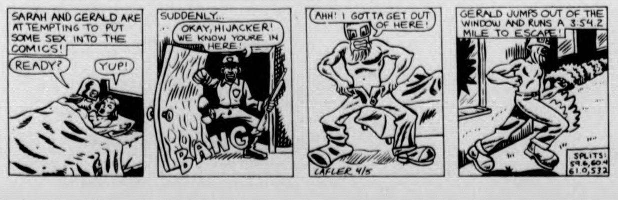
YOU MAY RECALL!(?)
THE DUKE IS NOT QUITE HIMSELF!
THANKS FOR THE PIX DUKE!
IN A RAGE, HE HAS SENT A YOUNG PHOTOGRAPHER FLYING!
VARLET!
WHILE ONE OF THE SLOGS THAT INSTIGATED THIS DUKE OUT IS CLASHING WITH THE G-MEN!
I DON'T THINK MY SKIRT GOES WITH YOUR TIE!

THE SCENT OF MAN by Peter Tolan



CARTER'S
COME ON, YOU STUPID KITE!
OH, NO!! IT'S THE KITE-MUNCHING TREE!!
MUNCH! MUNCH!

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



SARAH AND GERALD ARE ATTEMPTING TO PUT SOME SEX INTO THE COMICS!
READY?
YUP!
SUDDENLY...
OKAY, HIJACKER! WE KNOW YOURE IN HERE!
BANG
AHH! I GOTTA GET OUT OF HERE!
GERALD JUMPS OUT OF THE WINDOW AND RUNS A 3:54.2 MILE TO ESCAPE!
SPLITS: 59.6, 60.4 61.0, 53.2

Local Television

6:00 3 8 22 30 NEWS
24 TV COMMUNITY COLLEGE — MAN BUILDS, MAN DESTROYS
40 GUNSMOKE "The Wedding"
57 ZOOM
6:30 8 22 30 NEWS
24 STUDIO SEE
57 REBOP
6:55 40 NEWS
7:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS
18 FESTIVAL OF FAITH
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
30 THE CROSS-WITS
57 IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS
7:30 3 CELEBRITY SWEEPSTAKES
8 THE TEN PIN PICK-UP
22 HOLLYWOOD SQUARES
24 CONNECTICUT
30 $100,000 NAME THAT TUNE
32 BOSTON CELTICS BASKETBALL
40 THE GONG SHOW
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 WHO'S WHO CBS News
8 40 HAPPY DAYS
22 30 NBC MOVIE OF THE WEEK "When the North Wind Blows"
24 57 THE AMERICAN SHORT STORY
8:30 8 40 LAVERNE AND SHIRLEY "Citizen Krane"
9:00 3 M-A-S-H
8 40 EIGHT IS ENOUGH "Turnabout"
18 NASHVILLE ON THE ROAD
9:30 3 ONE DAY AT A TIME
24 57 COUSTEAU: OASIS IN SPACE "Visions of Tomorrow"
10:00 3 KOJAK
8 40 FAMILY
22 56 ORAL ROBERTS EASTER SPECIAL
24 HAGGADAH: A SEARCH FOR FREEDOM
27 NEWS
30 POLICE STORY "Prime Rib"
57 LOWELL THOMAS REMEMBERS
10:30 27 THE JOE HYDER SHOW
57 CONSUMER SURVIVAL KIT
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
27 MOVIE "The Underworld Story"
38 THE HONEYMOONERS "The Sleepwalker"
56 BEST OF GROUCHO
57 MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN
11:30 3 CBS LATE MOVIE "The Night Visitor"
8 38 COLLEGE ALL-STAR BASKETBALL
18 DR. GENE SCOTT
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
40 TUESDAY MOVIE OF THE WEEK "Guess Who's Sleeping in My Bed?"
56 NIGHT GALLERY
57 CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS
12:30 18 HIGH ADVENTURE
1:00 22 30 TOMORROW
40 NEWS
1:30 3 8 NEWS, WEATHER

Your Birthday by Stella Wilder

Tuesday, April 5— Born today, you are not an especially open individual. You find it difficult to let others into your confidence, even when it is necessary that you do so in order to gain the help you need at a given time. Still, you do not regret whatever it is about you that keeps you apart from other people, for the same thing that keeps from getting too close to others necessitates you coming to a very clear understanding of your own position in the world. You will have to learn to act independently of others; more important, you will have to learn to make the decision to act independently. This done, you will be able to live your life in your own way with a tremendous return on your effort.

You will have to be careful, however, that you do not give the impression of being cool, aloof, calculating or completely self-oriented. You may not feel free to ask others to help you -- but you are concerned that others always feel comfortable about asking aid from you. Such will not be the feeling unless you are capable of exuding a degree of welcome, perhaps even a degree of warmth. It should never be necessary for you to go against your own feelings in order to make another welcome; if it is, then you have not done as good a job of maturing as you might hope.

You are witty, but you often waste your wit upon the air, for you are often too shy to express aloud the response that springs to your lips. You laugh often -- but others do not often know what you are laughing at. On the other hand, you are not one for tears.

* * *

Wednesday, April 6

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Make an effort to remain unconcerned when others attempt to stop your progress. Silently, quietly, go your own way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Allow your new interest full scope. Don't expect help from the opposition; rely instead on those whose support you've recently solicited.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You can count on a good friend to come to your rescue -- but don't test loyalty too often. This is a good time to learn to help yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Several who would like to take advantage of your new situation may try to sweet-talk you into granting favors. Hold your own!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Others will probably judge you on moral grounds today. Make certain to present a picture of honor, courage, grace and self-determination.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Demonstrate your enthusiasm for another's idea. This is a rewarding day both for you and for all involved in a new home situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — No matter what goes wrong, maintain your equilibrium. Children may cause you some concern toward day's end.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You may have to make a sustained effort to accomplish routine chores today. Don't expect gains as usual; settle for less.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Radiate cheerfulness on the home front. Office matters make this an exceptional day in the realm of self-motivation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Take a position of leadership -- and authority -- on the home front. Loved ones depend upon you to guide them through difficult hours.

AQUIRIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — An added purchase at this time could land you behind the financial eight-ball in a hurry. Keep purchase power in your pocket.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — If you must entertain today, do so in an easy, casual, light manner. Small numbers of people make conversation easy rather than quarrelsome.

Crossword

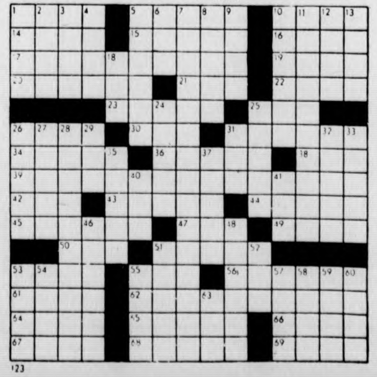
ACROSS

1 Shield
5 Peter Mark ----- Thesaurus author
10 Streetcar
14 Brit. title
15 Performance set to music
16 Assumed function
17 Heliotrope
19 Issue with authority
20 Ottawa legislative body
21 Reluctance unit
22 Floor covering pieces
23 Male animals
25 "It weighs a ---!"
26 Prefix with pert or prop
30 Compass point: Abbr.
31 Wooded area
34 ----- Ike
36 Means of ascent
38 Ravaged
39 Southern city: 2 words
42 Summer in Paris
43 Entrance hall
44 Door members
45 Literary work reciter
47 Urge to chase
49 Boundary line
50 Mongrel
51 Voice
53 Popular plays
55 Scottish name prefix
56 Splendid residence
61 Review and amend
62 Changed in attitude
64 Liliaceous plant
65 Old-time actor ----- Blue
66 Set right
67 Be inclined
68 Issue a command to
69 Nick Charles' dog

DOWN

1 Recedes
2 Boat owner's concern
3 Golf club
4 Greek portico
5 Brazil reds
6 Optional: Abbr.
7 English king: 3 words
8 Sea eagles
9 Asian weight unit
10 Quick shaking
11 Empire symbol of old: 2 words
12 Got off a horse
13 New York team
18 Drunkard's fear: Informal
24 Analyze
25 Toreador's antagonists
26 Electrical amplifying device
27 Winged
28 Sport telecast feature: 2 words
29 Arab cloak
31 Interjection of shock
32 Dock support
33 Annoy
35 Deduce
37 Smiling
40 Not either
41 Edge
46 Did housework
48 Aircraft: Informal
51 Small drum
52 U.K. fighting force: Abbr.
53 Excessive warmth
54 Not working
55 Extinct Hawaiian bird
57 Tibetan monk
58 Makes a hole-in-one
59 10 mills
60 Norse saga
63 Early Utah inhabitant

```
CONS ILAY CRUST
LAIT NEBO LENTO
ATTRACTED ALDEN
SERIN ELECTIONS
PROVED ELATE
ENOS NEVADA
GLISTENED RENEW
EON SOLES TEE
ASKED BLACKCARD
LESSEE NOAH
TASSE TREATS
IMPORTUNE ESTOP
MAINE INDENTURE
ARRIT TUAN ERSE
STOA SIMS REID
```



123

SOCIAL WORKERS

DON'T SACRIFICE YOUR EDUCATION JUST TO GET A JOB

Israel Offers Careers in Social Work. Immediate Positions Open.

The State of Israel has long been a model of successful integration. Drawing its population from every country in the world quite naturally presents myriad social work problems and appreciated, challenging case work.

Two Programs are currently being offered to people with a Hebrew background who would enter the Social Work Profession as a permanent resident of Israel.

I. Orientation Program for M.S.W. Holders

A 7-9-month carefully planned orientation program which includes intensified Hebrew Language study. Interviews will be conducted in March for MSW's who wish to continue their careers as a permanent resident of Israel.

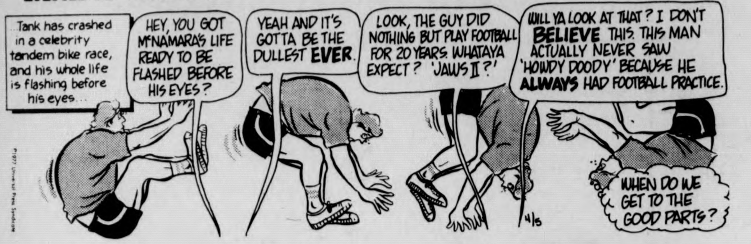
II. Social Work Retraining

Course specially designed for college graduates who did not major in social work. Bar Ilan University program will prepare you for a meaningful career in Israel.

For further information on these programs, contact us immediately. Preliminary interviews will be conducted by Regional Directors.

ISRAEL ALIYAH CENTER

TANK McNAMARA by Jeff Millar & Bill Hinds



Tank has crashed in a celebrity tandem bike race, and his whole life is flashing before his eyes...
HEY, YOU GOT McNAMARA'S LIFE READY TO BE FLASHED BEFORE HIS EYES?
YEAH AND IT'S GOTTA BE THE DULLEST EVER.
LOOK, THE GUY DID NOTHING BUT PLAY FOOTBALL FOR 20 YEARS. WHATAYA EXPECT? 'JAWS II?'
WILL YA LOOK AT THAT? I DON'T BELIEVE THIS. THIS MAN ACTUALLY NEVER SAW 'HOWDY DOODY' BECAUSE HE ALWAYS HAD FOOTBALL PRACTICE.
WHEN DO WE GET TO THE GOOD PARTS?
4/5
©1977 Universal Press Syndicate

Ruggers roll, 99-6

By RICHARD MOORE
Collegian Staff

Neither rain nor sleet nor snow could prevent the UMass Rugby Football Club from running around, over and through Norwich University Saturday afternoon to the tune of an overall 99-6 final score.

A supposedly tough Norwich squad found the Minutemen more hostile than the weather in the first of the days three games, as the UMass B side rolled to a 28-6 win. Rugby newcomers — a side is a 15 man rugby squad.

Gary "Diz" Daviau, B side number eight player, scored the seasons first try on a pushover from five yards out and UMass led 4-0. The cold and rain bogged both sides down in the first half, but with the Minutemen leading 8-6 UMass winger John Mulray dashed down the right sideline, got hit and pitched back to center Larry Tympanick, who barreled in for the try and a 12-6 halftime lead.

Two Andy Middleton penalty kicks and short trys by Mark Baldwin and Chuck Momnie in the second half accounted for the 28-6 final score.

"The difference for the whole weekend was we were better drilled than them," UMass coach "Doc" Laurence said.

"Jack Richman, the hooker, and Bruce Gordon at prop got the ball in close for us all day. Every time there was a stop of play Jack got the ball," Laurence added.

As the weather got bleaker so did the Norwich fortunes. The UMass A side, led by Larry "Too Tall" Tebo's hat trick, bombed the military school men 35-0.

The Minutemen forwards were outstanding, setting up nearly all of UMass' seven trys. Andy Sirica and Tebo scored push over trays from five yards out for a 8-0 lead, and then Barry Stewart slithered through most of the Norwich team for a 20-yard try and a 12-0 UMass lead. Tebo picked up a loose ball and squeezed in for his second try and a 16-0 halftime lead.

"Our forwards dominated the game," Laurence said, "they were stronger and more intelligent."

In the second half the UMass defense was sterner than the driving sleet and Norwich never crossed midfield. Wing-forward Henry Brown, "clown of renown", scored a pushover try and Tebo cut back to the inside for his third score.

Number eight Hugh Chester-Jones kicked the conversion on both trys. Captain Rick Lopes scored the last UMass try on a nice pitch out from Brown.

Lopes, a talented player with a history of injuries, suffered a fractured cheekbone in the contest and will be out for two to four weeks.

"Forwards Dave Whaley, Dan Geogianna and Mark McCabe played great ball. Brian Coolbaugh and Henry Brown were stone walls on defense and Tebo played his usual good game," Laurence said.

"It hurts to lose Ricky," he continued, "he must have a Jonah somewhere because he can't seem to avoid the injuries."

"The only other disappointment was the offensive play of the backs," Laurence said, "they were trying to break through the centers too much."

The Norwich squad was totally demoralized by now, and the UMass C side dished out the days worst shellacking, 36-0. Minutemen number eight Paul Chakoian, scrum half Alistar Lamond and fly half Chris Kiser led the way, scoring two trys apiece.

UMass led 12-0 on three short trys when Kiser took the ball 20-yards out and weaved through a gang of would be tacklers for the score. After two goal kicks center Dave Pallozola romped in from the thirty, carrying a Norwich defender with him the last five yards.

The score was 26-0 when Kiser scored again, streaking downfield to cover Lamond's fine kick. Finally a 20-yard bolt by Sean Powers ended the Minutemen onslaught.

"There were 20 trys scored," Laurence said, "and that's like 20 touchdowns in football, so these weren't simple defeats, they were routs."

"I don't know how good a measure that is of our teams talent," he added, "because Norwich was weaker than we expected."

"Norwich came on confident they would do us in, but they lost some of it when our B side beat them."

One area the Minutemen had problems in was conversion kicks, missing a total of 15, many of them easy attempts.

"This week in practice we do a lot of kicking," Laurence said.

Scrum Scrapes — C side number eight Chakoian is an acknowledged garbage man — This is the fourth season in a row Lopes has missed action due to injury — A frustrated Norwich man was overhead to say in A game "My hands would be a hell of a lot warmer if I got them on the ball once in awhile" — Rumor has it Norwich outdrank UMass in post game party, but why not, they had a lot to forget.

Bruins get needed rest

BOSTON (UPI) — And on the first day, they rested. The Boston Bruins, five points out of first place on March 26, earned their day off Monday by winning the final five games of the regular season and overtaking Buffalo for the NHL's Adams Division title.

Some veterans also will have Tuesday to rest before coach Don Cherry pulls out his practice whip and makes them resume the backbreaking style that got them to the Stanley Cup Playoffs. The Bruins, with the third best record in the league, most likely will open the Cup quarterfinal series at home next Monday night against a survivor of the best-of-three preliminary round.

"I'm glad we won our division because I need the rest more than anyone," said goalie Gerry Cheevers, who backstopped four of the final five victories and registered a 10-1-1 record in his last 12 games.

"Does having a whole week off bother me? No, I'd like three weeks off if I could."

Finnish rookie Matti Hagman said he would prefer to play this week, rather than get rusty waiting to play. "But if we played this week we might get knocked out so that's not so good," he said, adding as an afterthought: "Besides winning the title means more money (guaranteed $5,000 per player) and that's the best thing, when you think about it."

Money is the farthest thing from Cherry's mind. He was looking forward to resting Monday, only his fourth day away from a hockey rink since early August.

"I think the two days off will really help us, but I've got to think of some fancy drills to keep them working hard.

"I don't like having a full week off but I remember reading that one time somebody asked Winston Churchill about feeling old. He said, 'consider the alternative.'

"So, considering the alternative, I'm happy."

Sports calendar

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS
None
TODAY
VARSITY BASEBALL — vs. Holy Cross Home 3:00
WOMEN'S TRACK — vs. UConn-Vermont at UConn 2:30
VARSITY SOFTBALL — vs. Lowell Home 3:30
WOMEN'S WATER POLO — vs. Boston College Home 6:00

TOMORROW
VARSITY MEN'S LACROSSE — vs. UConn Home 3:00
MEN'S TRACK — vs. Holy Cross Away 2:00
VARSITY TENNIS — vs. Williams Away 3:00
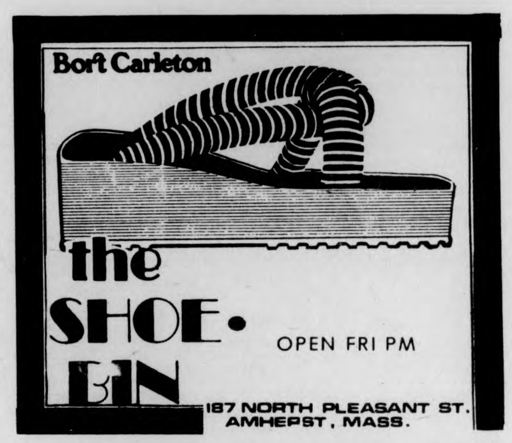
JUNIOR VARSITY MEN'S LACROSSE — vs. Yale Home 3:00

Need A Job?

The Student Activities Office needs a keypunch operator to work 20 hours per week to help out in our office. Typing speed of 60 W.P.M. or better required — previous experience on a key punch machine helpful but not necessary.

If you are interested please come to the Student Activities Office, Room 416 Student Union between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, except Wednesday when we are open 12:30 p.m.-5:00 p.m.

The Student Activities Office is an Affirmative Action—Equal Opportunity Employer.



Bort Carleton
the SHOE·BIN
OPEN FRI PM
187 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MASS.

VISITING STUDENTS INVITED
The Summer Place '77
© 1977 C.W.P.
It's all here at C.W. Post: a beautiful 350-acre campus, less than an hour from midtown Manhattan and the Hamptons, minutes from beaches and golf courses . . . residence halls, theaters, sports facilities.

It's The Summer Place . . . to accelerate your education, enrich your life, meet your career/life style objectives.

A full range of undergraduate, graduate, weekend college and continuing education (non-degree credit) courses . . . plus special institutes and workshops.

3 Summer Sessions (day and evening):
May 20-June 23/June 24-July 28/July 29-Sept. 1
Weekend College Session begins June 25,
July 9 or 10

Summer courses are also available at the Suffolk Branch Campus, Brentwood, L.I. • (516) 273-5112
For the Summer Bulletin, phone (516) 299-2431
or write: Office of Special Programs, Box C LONG ISLAND UNIVERSITY
c.w. post center
GREENVALE, NEW YORK 11548

'HAHJEE'S 'PLACE'
Crepes - Milano, Cheese, de la Mer
Persian Specialty Cooking - Lamb Dishes
Vegetarian Dishes - Baba Ganuche, Homoose
Specialty Desserts - Baklavah, Crepe Portugal
Variety of Beers & Wines
All prepared as only Hahjee knows how...
11-11 weekdays Rt. 9, Hadley 584-9797 Fri & Sat. till 1 a.m.

FINANCIAL AID

Get excellent commissions and sales experience as a Carpet Cat mini-floor and carpet sweeper representative. No fees or quotas required to get started. For details: Scott Annand 6-6926

Softball opens

The 1977 edition of Minutewomen softball will open its cover today at 3:30 when the women take on the University of Lowell at NOPE Field.

The diamondwomen are coming off a 4-7 season, but first-year-coach Dianne Thompson is very optimistic about her team. Thompson said that the women have "played well scrimmaging amongst themselves, but they need to get a ballgame under their belts to gain some confidence.

Senior co-captain Gail Matthews will handle the pitching duties for the women. Matthews was the only pitcher to win for the Minutewomen last year, compiling a 4-3 record. Coach Thompson said that if Matthews had problems, either Gail Carter or Sue Peters would come in for relief work.

The infield will have co-Captain Heidi Dickson at first base, Rhonda Mcmanus at second, Sue Dirocco at shortstop, and either Chris Verdini or Elaine Howle at third base. Verdini is expected to start, but she has a knee injury and may not be able to play.

Starting in the outfield will be Rita Riley in left field, Carol Bruce in center, and either Pat Oski or Lynn Barry in right field.

Senior Cheryl Meliones will be behind the plate.

Thompson said that "The team will be strong defensively, but the hitting in the practices has been weak." She said that the women had been concentrating mostly on improving their hitting in the last few practices.

Thompson said that the team will "try some base running that will shock people", but the number one thing is to get people on base.

This is the first time the Minutewomen have faced Lowell, and coach Thompson knows little about the team, but if optimism has anything to do with the outcome of the game, the women will come on top no matter what kind of team Lowell has.

Bowlers in tourney

Texas, here we come! — The UMass women's bowling team won its most important tournament of the year this past weekend. The team, comprised of Fran Griffin, Beth Schneider, Patty Melanson, Amanda Garcia, and Karen James, will travel to San Antonio, Texas on May 3-7 to compete in the National Bowling Spectacular.

The other teams bowling in the women's division this weekend were Central Connecticut State, which was in second place in Region I, Lowell University, an invited team from the Tri-State Bowling Conference, SUNY A&T at Farmingdale, which was in first place Region II and Temple University, which was in second place in Region II. So there was tough competition for the Region I champs. In fact, it wasn't until the sixth game that UMass finally took the lead, never to be lost.

The Sectional Tournament consisted of nine games in three separate sets. After the first set was bowled Friday, the women were down by 84 pins to SUNY. But bright and early Saturday morning, the keglers came alive and gradually brought that 84 pin deficit to a mere eight pins going into the sixth game.

The team then bowled two straight super games of 893 and 914 series. After these it was "clear sailing" for the lead as UMass was extended to 264 pins over the second place Temple University. Although Temple came back in the last two games to cut the lead, it was not enough to win as UMass won by 149 pins over the rest of the field.

To get to the Nationals, the women's team had to win the ACU-I Regionals and also the Sectionals. The ACU-I's (Association of College Unions — International) is an organization of college unions which sponsors various tournaments and activities around the country not only to do with bowling but anything 'associated with college student unions.'

Besides winning the chance to go to the nationals, the UMass women's bowling team won first place in the Tri-State College Bowling Conference: took first, second, and third places in the EIBC doubles tournament; and has won various tournaments all year.

Everyone pulled through in a great team effort at the Sectionals. The final total score was 7278 for nine games, for a 160 team average.

Bosox down Expos

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer as the Boston Red Sox scored six runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Montreal Expos, 8-2, Monday.

The Red Sox did their damage against Bill Atkinson, who had not been scored against in four earlier spring outings and had appeared to have won a spot in the bullpen.

In one and two-thirds innings, Boston managed eight of its 14 hits against the Chatham, Ont. hurler.

RAY FLOYD
RAM

Ray Floyd, defending Masters champion, works on his short irons during a practice session yesterday in Augusta, Georgia. Floyd, Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Ben Crenshaw are listed among the favorites in this year's competition. (UPI photo)

Fidrych furious at Falls

DETROIT [UPI] — Pitcher Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers, obviously frustrated by four days of inactivity, lashed out at a newspaper columnist Monday in his first public appearance since knee surgery last week.

"I was going to write a speech (about you)," Fidrych said of a column written by Joe Falls of the Detroit Free Press, "but I decided it wasn't worth it."

Falls had written that Fidrych's knee injury, which put him out of Thursday's opener against Kansas City, may have been a blessing in disguise because it took off the pressure and gave him a built-in excuse if he flops this season.

"I've given you stories before, Joe," the No. 1 box office attraction of the 1976 baseball world said, his wounded left knee propped up on a pillow as he sat in a wheelchair, "and I'll still give you stories... because I'm a good guy."

At the start of his news conference, Fidrych exploded: "I'm just looking forward to getting back to playing baseball. I can't believe there's no pressure on me. I could have taken getting shelled out there (opening day) a lot easier than having my knee cut on."

Fidrych's talking-to-the-ball antics, refreshing personality and enthusiasm made him an almost instant folk hero with the American public. His won-lost record of 19-9 with a 2.34 earned run average was the best in the majors and earned him the American League's 1976 Rookie of the Year honor.

"Being laid up stinks," said Fidrych, part of his face showing the effects of a four-day rest from a razor. "I got claustrophobia. I can't just sit around. I might as well be home.

"It's like being lonely. You can't be out at the ballpark with your friends.

"Like the last day I was there, Ron LeFlore (Detroit's centerfielder) was saying, 'How you feeling? Lonely?' he's been through it, too.

"But what the heck, this is like my 22-year-old checkup. My knee just went in for a lube job."

Fidrych said he was more worried about the possibility of hurting his arm due to the effect of the knee injury than he was about the knee not being healthy when he begins working out.

UNIVERSITY PIZZA
WE MADE YOU A PIZZA
YOU COULDN'T REFUSE!
NOBODY DID REFUSE
THE SPECIAL WENT SO WELL, WE WILL REPEAT IT
THIS WEEK ORDER OUR
NEW 16" PIZZA OR
2 OR MORE SUBS.
and get a free quart of Coke, Tab,
Root Beer or Sprite on us!
OFFER GOOD UNTIL APRIL 7
Call 549-5592
Across from Southwest Dorms.
HOME OF THE STEAK & CHEESE SUB!

TENNIS FOR LESS!

The Southwest Tennis Center has high-quality Wilson tennis products at the lowest cost in the Pioneer Valley. And weekly specials on demo racquets. Our racquet restringing is the best for less, guaranteed and ready within 24 hours. See us before you spend another penny on tennis. We're at:

Coolidge Tower Lobby Room 3
Tues-Thurs 2-5 PM
Call 545-3520
Sponsored by Southwest Assembly

UMass nine hosts HC

By RICH ECKEL
Collegian Staff

The UMass baseball team, looking to continue the torrid hitting that it displayed on Sunday, returns to the friendly confines of Earl Lorden field today for its first home game of the season against Holy Cross at 3:00 p.m.

The Minutemen, now 7-7, (4-1 in northern play) captured the Corsair Tournament at SE Mass. Univ. this past weekend with a surprising display of power. UMass lost the initial game of the tournament when SMU's Dave Schuler, blanked the Minutemen, 1-0. However, the team rebounded to win its next four games and outscored its opponents by an aggregate total of 38-8.

"I was really pleased with our overall performance in the tournament," said a happy, but reserved coach Dick Bergquist. "We had our backs up against the wall on Saturday, then came back on Sunday. The bats really woke up."

Bergquist's optimism was tainted by the report that freshman starting pitcher Doug Welenc has contacted an unknown back ailment. Welenc, reported to a physician yesterday afternoon, but his status is still unknown. If Welenc should be lost to the team for any length of time an increased burden would fall on the Minutemen's pitching staff.

Senior righthander Jeff Reardon and junior Tom Nigro are slated to hurl for the Minutemen this afternoon. Reardon lost a tough 1-0 decision on Saturday, while Nigro fired a brilliant shutout against Northeastern to up his record to 2-1 on the year.

"I wish they had another day's rest," said Bergquist, who gave the team yesterday off after playing three games on Sunday. "Both pitched on Saturday and that's only two days rest."

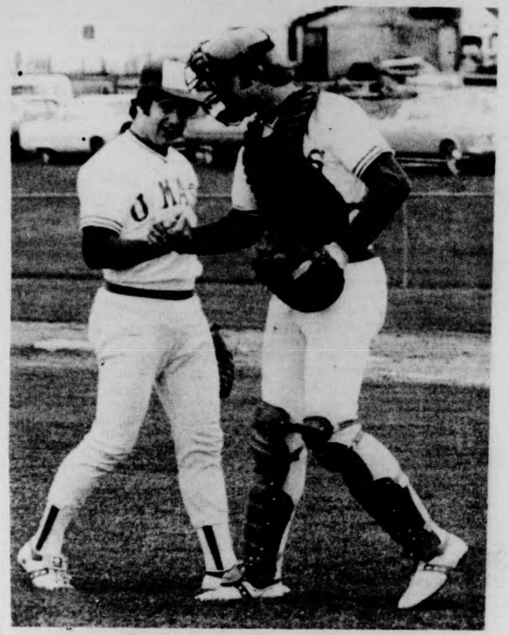
Reardon and Nigro will be facing a 1-4 Crusader team that lost to Connecticut, 12-8, in the snow on Saturday. Holy Cross attributes its early campaign woes to the fact that it did not head south this spring. Coach Jack Whalen's team, which finished last season with a 13-17-1 mark, has practiced mainly indoors, and just received the services of basketball sensation, freshman Ronnie Perry. Perry, who went 0-4 against Connecticut, has recovered from the ankle injury that forced him out of the NCAA basketball tournament, and will start at shortstop for the Crusaders.

Holy Cross will troop to the mound either righthander Ken LeBlanc, or lefthander Joe Sinkewicz, both 0-0 thus far, against the Minutemen. Another player of basketball fame for Holy Cross who will take to the diamond is senior first baseman — outfielder Bill Doran. Doran currently leads the Crusaders in hitting with a solid .375 average. Following Doran in the hitting column are centerfielder Ted Rockwell, third sacker Neil Soloman and rightfielder John Holiver, all of whom are batting a consistent .333.

Last season the Minutemen squeezed by the pesky Crusaders 2-1, as Dave Tewhill came out of the bullpen to preserve the victory for UMass. Tewhill probably won't be able to repeat his performance since he fired nine innings of shutout ball this weekend.

UMass' lineup has not been finalized by Bergquist, whose hand is still sore from filling out the assorted scorecards this past weekend. So far Bergquist has shuffled and reshuffled his lineup trying to deal himself a full house. Sunday's starting squad came close, as the Minutemen pounded out five home runs (three by freshman Mike McEvilly) en route to the championship.

Further juggling of the team's positions will depend upon the status of Dale Stone, John Czerapowicz and McEvilly, all of whom are hampered by sore arms. But while the hitters drool for another shot at bat, the pitching staff is not so anxious. An extra days rest would be a welcome relief.



Junior pitcher Tom Nigro, shown here being congratulated after a victory last season, is slated to be one of the UMass varsity baseball team's pitchers this afternoon when the Minutemen host Holy Cross in a 3:00 game at Lorden Field. (Staff photo by Dan Smith)

Goldstein was 'super'

By BEN CASWELL
Collegian Staff

When the best uses superlatives when speaking of his peers one does best themselves to listen closely.

The best in this case, Dan Mackesey, the all-American (i.e., best in the country) lacrosse goaltender for the Big Red of Cornell University, used quite a few superlatives to describe the play of his UMass lacrosse team counterparts after his team's 17-9 snow-flaked victory over UMass on Saturday.

"You played super," is what the hardly-tested Mackesey said to UMass goaltender Don 'Duck' Goldstein at the foot of the bottle and cup strewn hill after all of the crowd which had braved the elements of the second half had left.

UMass lacrosse coach Dick Garber had just previously embraced the "Duck" on the other side of the field and uttered almost those exact words. "Super Duck, super", Garber said.

Goldstein then broke away to catch Mackesey as he left the field to, as the 'Duck' put it, "get some tips from the greatest".

"You handled a lot of shots," said Mackesey, "and against our guys when they move the way they want that is very tough."

Goldstein, a sophomore at UMass, made his first start in a UMass uniform one year ago against the same Cornell University Big Red. In that game the 'Duck' had 23 saves against the likes of all-American scorers Jim French and Jon Levine, who were teamed up with Eamon McEnaeney, this year's high scorer in the game with four goals and four assists.

With losses of two of the team's top scorers from the attack position from last season Cornell University coach Richie Moran planned to make his team's running game even more prevalent than it was last year. With Tom Marino and McEneaney running and passing the Cornell attack to scoring opportunities galore Goldstein had his work more than cut out for him and it was his play which kept UMass as close as it was to the defending major college lacrosse national champions.

Cornell's Mackesey had a few other choice words regarding another UMass player's play in Saturday's game. These words, also superlatives, had a bit of a different tinge to them, not possessing the friendly goaltenders allegiance the kudos for Goldstein seemed to have.

"Patterson was amazing," said Mackesey in reference to UMass' giant crease attackman, Kevin Patterson, who had a giant day against the best team and the best goalie in the nation as he hit for six goals and one assists.

"With a guy that tall you know he'll go over you," continued Mackesey, "but he went low on me just as well as he did high. For a guy his size he moved very well in tight around the crease."

Patterson, usually referred to affectionately by his teammates and coach as the "Chief" in reference to his Tuscarora Indian heritage, was immense in more ways than one against Cornell. Helped out a bit by the elements which slowed down more fleet a foot players than himself, Patterson was able to move well inside around Cornell's goal mouth and all day was baffling to Mackesey.

As Garber put it, "when you have guy on your team who can score like that you have to give him the ball even more than we did. You know if you have Jabbar on your team, what good is he if you don't give him the ball?"

Mackesey then set off up the hill to his Curry Hicks locker room and then on the bus and on to southern climes where Cornell will take on Mt. Washington lacrosse club, the best club team in the nation, in an exhibition game in Baltimore.

Kevin Patterson, (33) ... received praise from Cornell Goalie Dan Mackesey (30). (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Judy Van Handle

Carl Yastrzemski, a job well done

He will walk out onto the Fenway Park field Thursday afternoon as he has done so many times in the past.

He will probably shag a few fly balls, take a few swings in the batting cage, and jog a few laps around the outfield.

He will then wait in the dugout until his name is called, run out onto the field, and take his place along the first base line with the rest of his teammates.

And then the game will begin. He will either take his place in left field, or wait on the bench for his turn to bat as designated hitter.

His name — Carl Yastrzemski.

The man will turn 38 this August, but he still plays the game of baseball better than most men half his age. He had one of the best seasons of his 16-year career in 1976, lending some class to a team sorely in need of it. And yet he still does not get his just due.

Oh sure, people finally realized last season that he was a true superstar, but what of the early '70's? Why was the best all-around player in the American League treated like a man who had tried to plot the overthrow of the ggvernment?

The answer is fairly easy. After 1967, a season when everything fell into place for both Yaz and the Sox, absolutely everything else he did later dimmed in comparison.

No one could have humanly expected Yastrzemski to match his .326, 44 home runs, and 121 RBI season again. The man was awesome. He came up with the clutch hit it seemed, every time it was needed. He made the 'big play' defensively while winning the Golden Glove. He was Mr. Everything.

Despite another fine season in 1968, when he won the batting title again, a 40-homer season the next year, and a near-miss for another title in 1970, Yaz bore the brunt of the fans at Fenway. Continually being booed while coming up with fine game after fine game, he still went about his job professionally, diligently, and above all, exceptionally.

Perhaps people were resentful of his big salary. Perhaps they didn't like his sometimes-aloof manner. But whatever the reason, he was definitely not a Fenway favorite.

And while the Billy Congiliaros, the Joe Lahouds, the Ben Oglivies, the Reggie Smiths, and the Jose Tartabulls have come and gone, Yaz has remained a constant, a mainstay, and a man who lends a measure of stability to the Sox.

Many people have accused Yaz of being an egotistical player, who thinks of himself first and the team second. All I can offer in his defense is the 1973 season.

You may recall that the Sox third base position was in serious trouble that year. Rico Petrocelli had been injured, and Eddie Kasko (remember him?) was in desperate need of a fill-in. Guess who did it?

Even though he hadn't played third since his sandlot days, Yaz volunteered his services. The experiment was a dismal failure, but Yastrzemski at leave gave it his best.

I wonder how many newly-minted millionaires today would have done that?

Carl Yastrzemski may be getting old, and maybe it is too much to expect him to repeat last year's performance. But don't be surprised if he does. Yaz is that kind of player.

So if you're going down to Fenway for opening day or any other time this year, be sure to keep an eye on number eight. Because one day, that man will be in the Hall of Fame.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 116 WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 1977
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA. 01003 (413) 545-3500

Marchers protest S. African holdings

By ANGELA THOMAS
Collegian Staff

In spite of inclement weather, about 175 UMass students marched from New Africa House to Whitmore yesterday to protest the University's investments in 17 corporations that operate in South Africa.

The purpose of the march was to demonstrate student support of the liberation movement against apartheid in South Africa by asking the University to sell these stocks.

Stanley Kinard, a representative of the South African Support Committee, said, "We want to show the administration that there is a strong viable force against the holding of stock in South Africa, and the support this provides for the supremacist regime."

Shouts of, "What's the word? Johannesburg," and "What's the call? South Africa must fall," were chanted by students as they proceeded to the Student Union Ballroom. Against the background of music in the Hatch, UMass student Elliot Kass delivered a brief speech to students as information on stocks held in South Africa by the University was distributed to onlookers.

Leaving the Hatch, the demonstrators marched to the Collegian office to express their dissatisfaction about the lack of news coverage given to the rally. Kinard told Collegian editors the march was supported by 23 Third World organizations on campus, and the only coverage given it by the paper yesterday was a small article that appeared on the editorial page.

Kinard also mentioned that some of the most significant leaders of the South African liberation movement were present at the teach-in on U.S. racism held at UMass Monday. Among these was David Sebeko, ambassador to the United Nations.

"If any other ambassador were to visit the campus, they would have received front-page coverage," he said. The fact that the Collegian did not acknowledge the importance of this issue shows a lack of respect to both the ambassador and those who sponsored the event," said Kinard.

Around 1:30 p.m., students converged upon Whitmore chanting, "Down with Apartheid, U.S. out now!" and "Apartheid system, we say no; UMass stocks have got to go."

Not trying to enter the building, students lined up along the ramp leading to Whitmore while listening attentively as former Student Government Association co-President Jay Martus discussed plans to pressure the other four area colleges to divest their assets in South Africa.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery was scheduled for meetings all day and was not able to make an appearance, so Vice-Chancellor Robert L. Woodbury addressed the crowd. Woodbury informed the crowd that UMass's investment policy was on the agenda to be discussed at today's Board of Trustees meeting. When asked his personal opinion on the South African situation, Woodbury remarked, "It is a difficult issue to answer, and I understand to some extent, what is at stake." The vice-chancellor went on to say he could not "speak for the administration."

A demonstrator from the crowd declared, "The South African situation is connected to racism in the U.S." He then asked Woodbury, "What is the University's stand on the Earl Brown and Craemen Gethers case? Woodbury replied, "no comment."

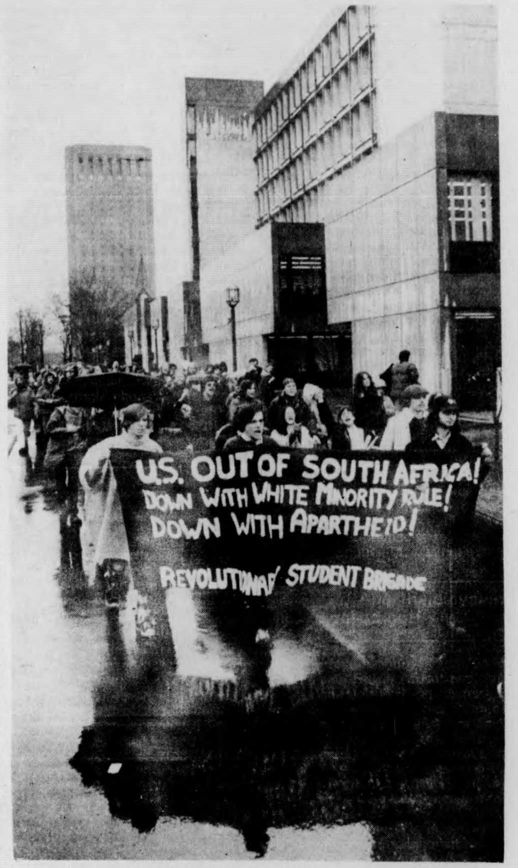
The demonstrators then requested a written statement by the administration.

The specific corporations whose stock the group asking the University to sell include: General Motors, Johnson & Johnson, General Electric, Motorola Inc., Nabisco, Lilly, Fli & Co., B. Pfizer Inc., Smithkline, FMC, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, Newmont Mining Corp., Honeywell Inc., International Business Machines, Exxon Corp., Eastman Kodak Co., and Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

The total book value of the common stock held in these corporations by the University is $540,559.28 according to figures listed in the UMass Endowment Fund Account on Jan. 7, 1977.

"Apartheid system, we say no; UMass stocks have got to go!"

See related story, Page 2.



U.S. OUT OF SOUTH AFRICA!
DOWN WITH WHITE MINORITY RULE!
DOWN WITH APARTHEID!
REVOLUTIONA STUDENT BRIGADE

175 people marched to Whitmore in the rain yesterday to protest UMass financial involvement in South Africa. (Staff photo by Dan Smith)

'Progressives', students take precinct three

By TERESA M. HANAFIN
Collegian Staff

All of the "progressive candidates from Precinct Three were elected to the Amherst Town Meeting last night, showing that being associated with what some termed a "slate" doesn't necessarily mean defeat in this town.

With a strong student showing in the campus precinct, the candidates elected foreshadow a heated and controversial town meeting in May — and one of the most liberal ever.

In selectmen elections, Kenneth R. Mosakowski went down to defeat to opponent Roger C. Jacque in the one-year race by a closer margin than had been predicted, 1897-1553.

Incumbent Nancy B. Eddy easily swept to victory in the three-way race for two three-year seats. Eddy was way in front with 2399 votes, Nathaniel Reed captured the other seat with 1905, and Chauncy T. Simmons came in third with 1503.

Mosakowski, however, did win a three-year term to the town meeting in his district, precinct five.

He said last night that the next step for the candidates who have been referred to as progressive is to organize and familiarize themselves with the issues and all the articles on the town warrant.

"My personal projection is that there are going to be a lot of fights at the May town meeting. It will be a town meeting which is much more liberal than the selectmen."

Citing the election of many students from precinct three, Mosakowski said that the increased representation of students should "bode well for the more controversial issues."

Candidates elected in precinct three include Laura Mae Alpert, 407 Dickinson; Adam Auster, 409 Dickinson; Sonya Bergquist, 48 Van Meter Drive; Robert S. Bond, 102 Harlow Drive; Shirley S. Brown, 94 Van Meter Drive; Donald W. Coole, 309 Webster; Richard A. Damon, 120 Van Meter Drive; Brian K. DeLancey, 412 Webster; Eric C. Forsgard, 322 Wheeler; Jean M. Fox, 676 East Pleasant Street; Lawrence D. Gerzog, 707B Cashin; Susan J. Hoffman, 422 Dickinson; Steven M. Leibowtiz, 503D MacNamara; Donald R. Marion, 12 Hartman Road; Rosemary McCarthy, 621 Webster; Robert M. Melia, 209D Brown; Glen Thomas Munroe, 408 Dickinson; Richard J. Murphy Jr., 11C Brown; Katherine A. Ozer, 627 Dickinson; Beverly J. Pacheco, 26 Crestview Apts.; David J. Pacheco, 26 Crestview Apts.; Armando Parces-Enriquez, 408 Dickinson; William N. Rice, 115 Van Meter Drive; Leo T. Richard, 309 Brooks; Richard S. Scire, 309 Hamlin; Gary Schuster, 319 Webster; Leverne J. Thelen, 208 Rolling Ridge Rd.; Thomas P. Tooley, 436 Baker; Scott A. Wieler, 726 Webster; and Albert L. Wrisley Jr. 132 Van Meter Drive.

Many candidates' names had appeared on flyers listing them as having progressive voting records on a number of issues. All 22

TURN TO PAGE 8

Special Issue:
16 pages of fiction
and poetry by students
In Tomorrow's
Below The Salt

Bromery cancels meeting with faculty union reps

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

A disagreement over semantics caused the cancellation yesterday of an informal meeting between UMass faculty union representatives and Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery.

The meeting, originally scheduled for 9 a.m. in the chancellor's offices, was cancelled because the union representatives "wanted" to meet with Bromery as "legally elected faculty representatives", while Bromery maintained he could not see the group unless they agreed to refer to themselves as "colleagues".

The disagreement over what to call the two professors and one representative of the UMass unit's state affiliate, the Massachusetts Teacher's Association (MTA), stems from the Board of Trustee's March decision to ignore the newly-elected faculty union.

At their March meeting, the trustees voted to disregard the unit, which included both the Amherst and Boston campuses, saying they disagreed with certain positions that the Massachusetts State Labor Relations Commission included in it.

The faculty have not yet decided to bring the University to court on unfair labor practice charges, which would allow the trustees to challenge the commissions ruling. The administration cannot take the

TURN TO PAGE 8

Trustees to review union, stock policy

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

The UMass Board of Trustees will be asked today to reconsider their March vote to ignore the recently-elected faculty union and to initiate a review of University held stock in corporations with holdings in South Africa.

At their monthly meeting, being held at the Worcester Medical School, the trustees are expected to hear requests from the Boston and Amherst faculty representatives to the board, asking them to agree to hear statements from faculty union officials asking the trustees to reverse their decision.

Since the board voted to disregard the faculty unit, union representatives have been meeting trustees informally explaining the faculty's view of the union.

The University administration's refusal to recognize, according to University officials, means a delay in beginning negotiations with faculty.

The trustees voted to ignore the union because they said they disagreed with the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commissions ruling on which positions should be included.

Union officials say, however, that legal arrangements can be made so that the negotiations process can begin even if the union chooses to file an unfair labor practice charge against UMass.

The faculty union will have a joint meeting at the Worcester Sheraton-Hilton directly after the trustees meeting. The faculty will then decide on a course of action based on the trustee meeting.

Student Trustee Pinky Batiste will also ask the trustees to hear a statement read by former Student Government Association (SGA) President Jay A. Martus against the University's stock holdings in South Africa in light of current apartheid practices there.

Martus, in an interview yesterday, said he will ask the trustees to propose shareholders resolutions at stockholder's yearly meetings, asking the corporations to withdraw from South Africa.

UMass currently has $540,500 invested in corporations with holdings in South Africa.

After introducing these resolutions at the yearly meetings, usually held in April and May, the University should write letters to these corporations expressing their disatisfaction with the companies for their holdings.

Finally, Martus said, he will ask the trustees to sell the stock. Current trustee policies provide for such action, he said.

The board is also expected to hear a budget report from UMass President Robert C. Wood and to deliberate the confirmation of Randolph W. Bromery as acting executive vice-president in charge of formulating policy for collective bargaining.

The Russian Osipov Balalaika Orchestra enchants an audience in the FAC Concert Hall Monday night. (Staff photo by Michael Chan)

NEAG elects co-presidents

By PAUL McCANN
Collegian Staff

The new Northeast Area Government (NEAG) Co-Presidents Diane Lauricella and David Goodhue will be seeking to improve communications within the area and establish a stronger cultural life they said after the NEAG elections held last Thursday night.

Lauricella said, "We will try to unify the quad." They plan to have all the area dorm counselors meet at least once a month. They feel they can receive a better response to how the people feel by talking with the counselors. In conjunction with that move, Lauricella and Goodhue will seek to unify the quad senators and dorm presidents.

Improving the cultural atmosphere of Northeast will be important to this new administration. Lauricella said, "We will be looking into the renting of buses for trips to sporting events and museums."

Other officers elected last Thursday were Vice-President, Paul Goldman: Treasurer, Jeff Shapiro; and Secretary, Carol Nunley. The new officials will take office next fall.

The quad semi-formal will be held on Friday, April 22 at the Campus Center. Tickets are available at Tix (beside the lecture note service). The price is $5 per person. The band "Landslide" will provide entertainment.

Norman Burger, a UMass student, made an appeal for financial support for "New Games", a two-day event that is planned for April 28 and 29. "New Games" will be an outdoor celebration with all UMass students encouraged to participate in an assortment of People Games. Referees for these games will be randomly selected from the UMass population. A decision will be made this week.

Treasurer Jon Gross suggested some of the area's Program Support Funds (PSF) be used for hiring a darkroom director. The darkroom is currently located in Knowlton house.

In related areas, bids for a Northeast Area pottery room are now being accepted. Also, bids are open for any Northeast area dormitory that wishes to sell refreshments at the Quad Day festival. President Beth Tibbets reported the area's volleyball net was stolen and another one has been purchased. In order to use it, it may be picked up at her room, 318 Dwight. An I.D. is required.

This week's NEAG meeting time and place has been changed to Wednesday night at 6:30 p.m. in Dwight house.

Planning for Quad Day is underway. The Quad Day committee is working with "Natural Act", the group that hires talent for the Bluewall. A three band combination is currently scheduled.

SWA defeats bill to increase salaries

By LARRY COHEN
Collegian Staff

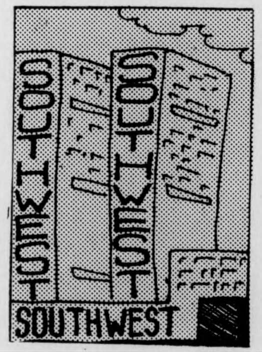
The Southwest Assembly (SWA) last night defeated a proposal to raise the salaries of the executive committee by $200 a year.

Vice-President Diana Fessenden spoke against the bill. "Anyone running for an office should run knowing they might be putting in more hours than they are being paid for," she said. "The raises would amount to $1,000, and that would be much less for programs, and that's what we're here for."

The bill, which would have raised the president's pay to $1,000 a year, and the vice-president's, co-treasurers' and communications co-ordinator's salaries to $800, has been proposed every year for at least three years, said President Chris Durkin, who added "the defeat was a very good move on the part of the Assembly."

In other business last night, the SWA allocated $300 towards a Native American educational program entitled "White Roots of Peace". The program, to be held May 5 through 7, will consist of speakers, cultural presentations, and two movies.

Also last night, Durkin appointed Paul Banks chairperson of the Election Committee. This committee will consist of a chairperson and six others and will oversee all SWA elections and referenda in Southwest. The committee is open to all members of Southwest. Anyone interested in joining should contact Banks at 549-5410.



The Southwest Constitutional Convention will be held next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Hampden Student Center. All resident houses in Southwest must appoint a delegate to join their SWA house representative at the convention.

UMass debators set for national tourney

By CAROL COULTAS
Collegian Staff

The UMass Debating Union has qualified for the National Debate Tournament at Southwest Missouri College next week, beating rivals such as Boston College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of New Hampshire, and University of Rhode Island for one of only four slots in District 8 competition.

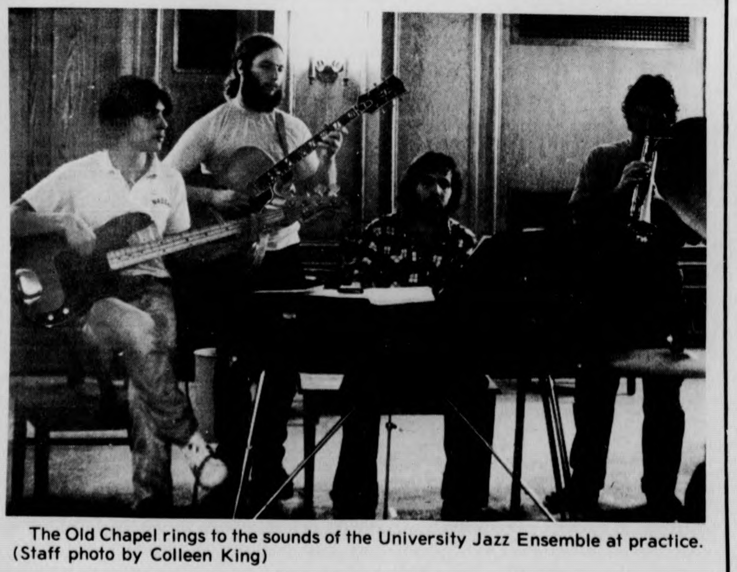
This is the fourth straight year UMass has qualified out of about 64 teams for this honor. Bates, Army and Harvard are the other three contenders from this district.

The Union feels very proud to have accomplished this stature in a year in which they are rebuilding due to the loss of their two top teams through graduation.

Excellent performances from novice teams of Sheehan-Skelton, Smith-Jacobs, Barrett-Williams and Cox-Smith have strenghthened UMass' position in the debating circles. Varsity members Rocco DeFrascio, Nick Burnett, Allen Rosenbloom, Ed Panetta, and Marie Malley have competed in top rank tournaments and consistently have had impressive showings or have placed. In February, for example, they competed at Dartmouth, one of the very toughest tournaments and made the bi-octas, winning over Cornell, Dartmouth, and Harvard.

There was, however, some doubt as to whether or not the Union, once qualified, could compete due to lack of funds. The reason for this, cites speaker Rosanne Hynes, is the Debating Union receives no money other than that from the Alumni Association. They entered a request for $600 to the Student Senate this year and were denied on the basis that they were not a student or public service. Hynes considers this to be very unjustified since the Union has had a Public Debate Program all semester which is a community and campus resource.

The Debating Union will debate any issue for high school classes, rhetoric classes, or anyone else that's interested. They have already performed for an audience of over 3500 and expect another 1000 before the end of the semester. Hynes also stresses that the Debating Union is a resource for anyone interested in public speaking and training in argumentation and that it's membership is open to all.



The Old Chapel rings to the sounds of the University Jazz Ensemble at practice. (Staff photo by Colleen King)

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor P.A.M.i.l.s.t.e.i.n

Day Layout	Debbie Walters
Wire Layout	Paul Blumberh
Editorial Layout	Casey Eagle
Copy Desk	Joe "Frosh" "Flash" Quinlan
Head Darkroom Tech	Danny Smith
Photo Staff	Nancy Bernetich
Head Graphics Tech	Susan Dvorachek
Ad Layout	Ellyn Faber
Typo	Rich LaFausi
Wiseass Remark	"All aboard for Funtime"

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus delivery	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$ 9
Newsstand price	$.10
Faculty staff	$.05

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst and additional mailing in Ware, Mass. 01082. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Duke files new reorganization bill

Governor Michael S. Dukakis will file legislation today to restructure governance boards within the state college system.

The legislation would let Dukakis take authority from the independent trustee boards now governing the 30 state institutions in the Massachusetts system.

Dukakis has proposed a 15-member Board of Overseers to replace the existing Board of Higher Education. The new board would consist of 14 private citizens appointed by the governor and the state secretary of educational affairs.

The board would then take two years to draft a master plan for total reorganization of the public higher education system.

It would be granted the authority to set tuitions — a power now in the hands of the boards of trustees — and would play a key role in approving college budgets.

The Board of Overseers also would have authority to approve any new programs offered by a school, and by a two-thirds vote could scrap any of the existing programs.

The legislative aides to the governor have said the new board would be more independent that the Board of Higher Education.

Last April the governor, Minority Leader Francis W. Hatch Jr., R-Beverly, then Rep. Peter Lappin, D-Springfield and Senate President Kevin B. Harrington submitted separate packages to restructure Massachusetts public higher education.

The principal foes in last year's struggle were Harrington and Dukakis. UMass President Robert C. Wood sided with the senate president. Aides to Dukakis said Harrington has reserved comment on this year's proposal.

During a February visit to the Amherst campus, Dukakis called his bill the "first real consensus reorganization bill," but admitted that neither Harrington nor House Speaker Thomas McGee had commented on his rough draft.

Dukakis originally wanted to strip budgetary control from the boards of trustees of the various colleges and give that power to his appointee, Secretary of Educational Affairs Paul Parks.

Wood, who at the time said he was speaking for himself and not the University trustees, supported the Harrington plan. He called it "the thoughtful, considered work of a wise friend of education."

The Massachusetts Teachers Association, (MTA) the affiliate of the newly elected collective bargaining unit on the UMass campuses, the Massachusetts Society of Professors, (MSP) endorsed the Harrington plan.

Opening a three-day Martin Luther King Memorial Lecture series, gospel singer Marion Williams captivates a surprisingly sparse crowd last night in the SUB. (Staff photo by Nancy Bernetich)

Former aide to Dr. King addresses SUB audience

By ARNOLD WARSHAW
Collegian Staff

"Black power may have awakened the black man's consciousness, but it did not awaken the white man's consciousness. Martin Luther King came up with a weapon that shook the conscience of this country and they couldn't deal with it," said the Rev. Hosea Williams last night, an aide to the late Dr. Martin Luther King.

The Rev. Williams, along with Dr. Randolph Blackwell, executive director of Southern Rural Action Inc. spoke and gospel singer Marion Williams spoke and performed before 50 people in the Student Union Ballroom (SUB) last night, in the first of three consecutive programs in the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Lecture series.

Both The Rev. Williams and Blackwell emphasized the enormous impact that King made on the United States and the rest of the world.

"Had Martin not lived," Blackwell said, "this would have been a different nation entirely; if Martin had not lived, it would have been a different world.

"He started this nation back up hill. He resurrected the right to protest, he gave back to us the right of freedom of speech."

The Rev. Williams, who worked with King during the 1950's and 60's, felt the black struggle was lost when King was assassinated.

"When they murdered Dr. King, I gave up hope," he said.

The Rev. Williams took a six month trip around the world after King's death.

He said in all the countries he visited, including China, he was greeted with a great deal of respect when his host's realized that he was a friend and associate of King.

"He died not knowing the influence that he had in the world," said The Rev. Williams.

"He forced people to change deeply ingrained attitudes. He has pointed the way to the promised land, but we must keep marching-suffering-picketing."

Blackwell said the reason for King's success was "his willingness to sacrifice and the willingness of the people associated with him to be beaten for what they believed in; his willingness to sacrifice and the willingness of the people around him to die."

One of the highlights last night at the SUB was the singing of Marion Williams.

She opened and closed the evening's activities with electrifying performances that had the audience cheering and clapping.

Parole board hears Earl Brown today

By MARY BETH ALLEN
Collegian Staff

Robert Earl Brown, a UMass student convicted in August, 1974 along with former UMass student Craeman Gethers of the armed robbery of the Route 9 MacDonalds, will appear before the Massachusetts Parole Board today.

Brown is currently being held in the Northampton House of Corrections, a county jail. He is on an Education-World Release program, and attending classes at UMass. He is on campus during the day, and spending his nights at the jail.

Brown began his sentence at Walpole State Prison on October 29, 1975. He has moved to Norfolk State Prison on January 5, 1976, and on February 5 of that year he was transferred to the Northampton facilities after being granted study release.

"They look at what you have to offer if they let you out," said Brown concerning the Board's criteria for granting parole. "They will look at what my performance has been so far." The board consists of seven members.

Brown is involved in an effort to secure a new trial for himself. The new trial hearing has gone on for several days, and will be continued yet another day. Judge Paul Tamburello has not yet set a date for the continuation of the hearing.

"If I'm granted parole it should have nothing to do with the motion for a new trial per se," said Brown.

If granted parole, Brown plans to go and see his parents, whom he has not seen for two years. "I want to finish up my education and enjoy my freedom," added Brown.

'Godspell' 'sensational'

THEATRE REVIEW

By NANCY BERNSTEIN
and GAIL GOLDBERG

The University of Massachusetts Music Theater Guild opened their four day run of GODSPELL on March 31 in Bowker Auditorium with a sensational performance. This student organization demonstrated their talents and abilities with a professional and fresh interpretation of this show. It is one of the finest University productions.

GODSPELL is a musical, based on the gospel according to St. Matthew. The show is a fantastic blend of music, dance and movement, humor and a bit of sadness as viewed through the eyes of Jesus, expertly portrayed by Eugene Niles. Through the use of parables, he helped his followers to teach each other the lessons of brotherhood, sharing and honesty. During the course of the show, they became more and more captivated and enchanted by his words and we were led to believe that they were faithful. In the end, however, Jesus was betrayed, not only by the one who was subtly rebellious throughout, but by the entire group of disciples. This reversal climaxed with a crucifixion of Jesus onto the tree which had been a background for their jubilation, earlier. His most important teaching was forgiveness, which he exemplified prior to his crucifixion.

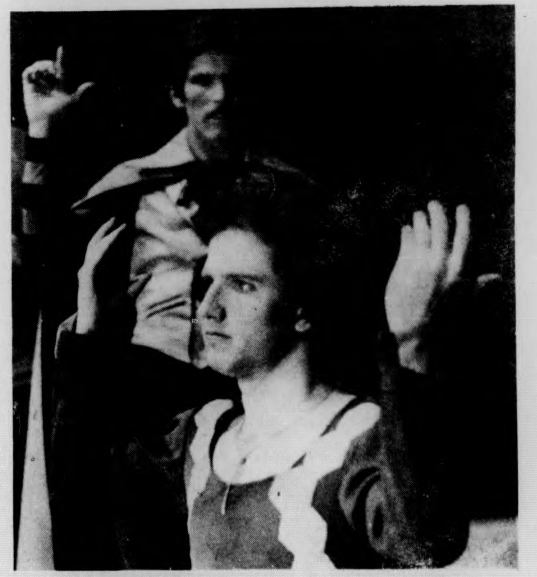
GODSPELL had an energy about it which was contagious, as the cast was very much aware of the audience and drew them in. The energy was constant. The cast worked tightly together, knowing and responding well to each other's actions.

Individually and collectively, the performances were excellent. The numbers performed by Deborah Lui, Robert Putnam, Larry Geller and Charles McCarthy were very strong, musically and theatrically. Fine performances by Carolyn Smith, Mary-Ann Williams, Jay Funk, Marsha Gillette and Susan Kowal rounded out this well-chosen cast.

The joyousness and celebration were enhanced by the bright costumes, unusual special effects and magic. The simple set was embellished by this sparkle. Contemporary language, added to the more traditional format of the musical, helped to make it more pertinent. The band was an asset to the production in its contribution to pace and mood. They particularly excelled in the final scene with their powerful dramatic score.

The one major flaw in this production was the speed at which some of the narrative was delivered. At times, the mood called for a quickening of the pace, however this often resulted in an incomprehensible jumble of words. This difficulty did not greatly subtract from the overall enjoyment of the production.

GODSPELL's magic was captivating. Those who saw it came away with uplifted spirits. This gifted group of performers and production staff combined all their resources and gave a performance which will long be remembered.



Charles McCarthy (front) and Robert Futman raise a point during the Music Theatre Guild's performance. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Black Affairs

Authority on slave life and black culture to speak here

John Blassingame of Yale University will speak at the University of Massachusetts Thursday afternoon, April 7th, on "AFRICA, SLAVERY AND CONTEMPORARY BLACK CULTURE." The address will be at 4 p.m. in 227 Herter Hall. Professor Blassingame is a distinguished scholar of Afro-American culture. His publications include The Slave Community (1972) and his recently-published Slaves Testimonies: Two Centuries of Letters Speeches, Interviews and Autobiographies (1977).

Blassingame's The Slave Community has been widely acclaimed as "indispensable" ... and as a work that "succeeds in demolishing the prevailing stereotypes which continue to influence popular discussions of American racial problems. For the first time," writes David Brion Davis, an authority on slavery who teaches at Yale, "we have a scholarly treatment of slavery seen, essentially, by slaves and ex-slaves." Drawing on a rich variety of sources, both traditional and new, the book describes and analyzes slavery in the pre-Civil War South. Blassingame treats slave family life, culture, role-playing, resistance, and personality formation. He gives the reader an account of slavery from the inside and from the bottom up.

Professor Blassingame teaches in the Afro-American Studies Department at Yale. His lecture is sponsored by the University's History Department. This is an important opportunity to hear a scholar who has worked carefully through a multitude of materials that come directly from black and slave sources in nineteenth-century America. The public is cordially invited.

ROBERT EARL BROWN — If this man is an example of American justice, is anyone safe?

Thoughts:

the amerikkkan dream is an afrikan nightmare from south carolina to south africa!

VIEWPOINT

Editor's Note — Viewpoint is a column designed for our readers to express their views on various subjects. In this manner, the staff of Black Affairs hopes to establish an open line of communication between our readers and us. Viewpoint does necessarily represent the views of the staff of Black Affairs. All articles must be typed.

University of Massissippi Black students, wake up!

By KATHE SANDLER
Black Affairs Staff

There was once a place in Massachusetts where the sun refused to shine. It rained and snowed and if one was not careful, the wind would blow them away.

There was a small group of people there who called themselves, "The Third Universe." They were first of all unaware, second, down and out, and third, incommunicable in all senses of the word.

Once two innocent, young men of color were taken to trial and locked up. It was a gesture, some say, of the Controllers who wanted to tell The Third Universe that they were unwelcome in the land where the sun didn't shine, the rain fell hard and the wind did blow some people away.

For a little while The Third Universe was angry and yelled up at the towers where the Controllers controlled. The Controllers watched from high above and laughed to themselves saying, "they will soon tire and forget this. We have things under control."

And sure enough, soon The Third Universe got tired, and got high, partied in their down and out way and business went on as usual.

The Third Universe were the people who talked at each other, instead of to each other.

One day, in the second year of confinement of the two, innocent young men of color, someone discovered that the Controllers were part of a plot to wage war on people of color in Africa. The Controllers paid one-half million dollars to kill children in Soweto.

Stories were printed and conferences were held. And where was The Third Universe? As usual that were floating around, not hearing or caring or even relating the innocent young men of color to the killing of children in Soweto. The Controllers were once again unworried, in a land where the sun refused to shine, the rain fell hard, and the wind was blowing plenty of people away.

Yesterday it rained in Amherst and a rally was held to protest UMass investments in South Africa, and the incarceration of Craeman Gethers and Earl Brown. The number of people of color present, could have been counted on two hands.

Some people say they didn't know about the rally. They must have not read the papers, seen the posters, or heard the announcements. Or are the Third World people of Amherst such zombies that they must have things hammered into their brains before they realize what's happening?

What is the relationship of Earl Brown and Craeman Gethers to the Third World community of Amherst, and how does that relate to the University's investments in apartheid?

Does it take a murder or a rape to wake people up to the fact that Amherst is a grave yard for Black, Brown and Yellow people who cannot grasp the meaning of struggle.

Shame on you Black Students of the University of Massissippi.

Earl Brown and Judge Tamburello

By JAMES LEWIS
Black Affairs Staff

NEWS ANALYSIS

People caring anything about the Earl Brown case should be concerned with the ability of Judge Tamburello to deny Earl Brown his right to a new trial.

On August 7, 1974, McDonalds was robbed of $1,100 by three Black men.

Earl Brown was convicted of robbing McDonalds. His attorney did not provide an adequate defense. Judge Tamburello was the judge during the trial who sentenced Earl Brown with the jury's conviction. Brown was sentenced to 3 to 5 years imprisonment. He is now on work release, with his record stating an armed robbery conviction.

Jerome Farrell did not provide Brown with an adequate defense. If he had, Brown would not have been convicted. Brown's evidence or proof to contradict the verdict is clear. It was up to his attorney to present the facts in favor of Earl Brown.

On February 4th, 1977 Jerome Farrell was put on trial to account for his performance of Brown's hearing. The facts were very obvious that Farrell did not provide an adequate defense.

Tamburello, protected Farrell's defense for Earl Brown. They even went out to lunch together as if to say that Farrell was doing fine with the case, or that he had nothing to worry about.

Brown said, "The whole attitude of Tamburello warrented some bias on his side to keep my lawyer within the framework of a new trial. Tamburello repeatedly maintained that information was irrelevant or that it veered far from making a dent in the motion."

If Brown's attorney presents information and Tamburello states the information is irrelevant, then Tamburello is overriding the law and controlling the defenses' right to defend himself.

One example of this is with Debra Cook's testimony. She identified a Robert Brown from photos as one of the robbers. The police arrested the wrong person. When they found they had identified the wrong person from the wrong photo, a picture of Earl Brown was found to match. When Jean Baker proceeded to ask trooper Ford about the picture Cook picked out on August 14th, Tamburello asked why how is this question relevant? When Baker (one of Brown's attorneys) also asked Ford if he thought Brown was armed, Tamburello wanted to know why she asked that.

The prosecuting attorney can protest at Brown's defense unjustly and if Tamburello decides to make use of the protest of the prosecution, he can influence the proceedings of the trial and thus the decision of the jury.

There was an attempt toward the end of Brown's trial to take Farrell off the defense and provide Brown with a new attorney.

Tamburello, in his remarks before the sentencing of Brown, stated, 'You want to prevent Mr. Farrell from making any recommendations or speaking on sentence, which means that you wish to supplant him as counsel. I am not allowing you to do so.'

If Farrell did not provide an adequate defense, then Brown's conviction has no grounds. Tamburello said 'The courts are under a constitutional duty to provide the defendants with a full and fair trial, making sure that all constitutional guarantees are provided for the defendant going to trial.'

Brown is trying to get a new trial. The facts state that he should have one. In his recent hearing for the new trial, Ellen Roy, the surprise new witness contradicted the previous testimony of Debra Cook, Trooper Ford, and Cathy Clark, the three main prosecuting witnesses. Tamburello should not deem the facts irrelevant, but should look at their meaning and grant Brown a new trial. If he does not, he is violating his representation of the law in denying Brown his rights to live free from the impregnated lie of racism. Brown should not be a victim of racism, he should be able to pursue his rights to life as any other human being.

• CAMP TRAILS KELTY JAN SPORT • ALPINE DESIGNS SIGG •
JASQUE • WHITE STAG • MIRRO
WOOLRICH • PETER STORM

Annual Spring
SALE
And Early Buy Promotion
April 1st thru April 16, 1977
Weekdays 9 to 5:30
Thursday and Friday Nights to 9 p.m.
Saturday 9 to 5

HIKING and BACKPACKING EQUIPMENT

Our annual SPRING SALE and EARLY BUY TENT PROMOTION will be held April 1st thru the 16th. Selected items throughout the store will be at special low sale prices and a Early Buy on all our tents will be offered. This might be the best time to come in and browse thru the largest selection of quality camping and backpacking equipment. Free 96 page catalog with a copy of this ad.

Don Gleason's CAMPERS SUPPLY, INC.
Pearl Street, Northampton, Mass.
Exit 18 I-91
Master Charge Accepted

• PALCO COLEMAN • NORTH FACE • EUREKA • OPTIMUS •

Black Affairs

Martin Luther King lecture series

As a continuation of the Martin Luther King Jr. lecture series, there will be a Freedom Seder at 6 p.m. tonight in the Student Union Ballroom. The Seder is a rymlalic meal which Jewish people have celebrated for thousands of years.

At 8 p.m. in the Ballroom the film, Let the Church Say Amen will be presented. It is the story of the dilemma of a young black man as he goes through divinity.

Thursday night the King lecture series ends with Gospel Night, featuring Vernard Johnson, Jessy Dixon and the Jessy Dixon Singers. Gospel Night will begin at 8 p.m. in the Student Ballroom. All events are free and everyone attending is promised a "real good time."

Special Donation to the Craemen Gether's Defense Fund

"Tiny Pyramids" a choreopoem directed by Melinda "Goody" Goodman and Sister Freida Jones will take place at Emily Dickinson Hall, Division IV Theater located at Hampshire College. The show will be presented on April 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th at 8 p.m. A special collection will be taken for the Craemen Gethers Defense Fund at each show. On April 9th, a late night show for the Defense Fund will be held on April 9th at 11 p.m.

Parole Hearing for Earl Brown

On Wednesday, Brother Earl Brown, who was illegally convicted of the McDonalds robbery on October 29th, 1975, will see the Massachusetts Parole Board. Brown is currently asking for a one-third consideration. He has already served eighteen months for this gross injustice. The parole hearing will be held at the Northampton jail. It will not be open to the public, but people should contact BMCP for the result. Parole will only give Earl some temporary relief in his fight to overturn the case. We are all wishing Earl the best of luck. But at the same time we can never forget Brother Craemen Gethers, who is still incarcerated in the Norfolk State Prison.

Craemen Gethers; Box 43; MCI Norfolk; Norfolk, Mass. 02056.

Black candidates angered by defeat, stage write-in ST. LOUIS [UPI] — A write-in campaign by black candidates angered by defeat in last month's primary highlighted Tuesday's race for mayor and comptroller.

State Sen. James F. Conway, who won the Democratic primary over former Mayor Alfonso J. Cervantes, was considered the frontrunner against Republican James Stemmler, but the effect of Rep. William L. Clay's write-in candidacy was uncertain in the traditionally Democratic city.

Clay joined incumbent comptroller John F. Bass in the independent campaign after Bass lost in the primary. Clay and Bass charged that blacks were being treated unfairly by the regular Democratic organization.

Helen Savio, a public school teacher, was the candidate for the Socialist Workers Party. She said she did not expect to win but wanted to give her party's views on the issues.

Mayor John H. Poelker is retiring after one term.

Sheriff Raymond T. Percich, a Democrat, opposed Republican alderman Leonard H. Burst for comptroller, joining Bass and Socialist Worker Party candidate Mary Pritchard in the race.

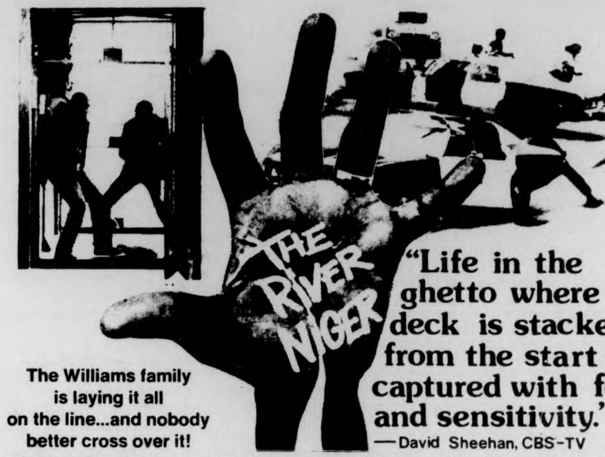
Two Justice Department agents were called in to observe the election on the request of Margaret Bush Wilson, chairman of the board of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

BMCP Meeting

There will be a Black Mass Communication Project (BMCP) meeting this Thursday, April 7, at 7 p.m. in New Africa House. The meeting will involve the discussion of many topics, among those is the election of next year's officers.

"LET GO MY NIGGER TOE!"

Jeff Williams, age 23



The Williams family is laying it all on the line...and nobody better cross over it!

"Life in the ghetto where the deck is stacked from the start is captured with force and sensitivity."
—David Sheehan, CBS-TV

Tonight at 7 and 9 p.m., Afro-Am presents the film, The River Niger, starring Cicely Tyson, James Earl Jones and Lou Gossett. The movie will be shown at Mahar Auditorium and admission is free. Aro-Am urges all to come and check it

Afro Am Presents Film lecture demonstration on acupuncture

On Wednesday, April 6, there will be a film lecture and demonstration on acupuncture, the Chinese method of healing and health care.

How and why is it significantly different from western methods? These and other questions will be answered.

The presentation will be given by brother Akram Muhammed of the New England School of Acupuncture, located in Boston.

The film will be Acupuncture Anestisisa, an excellent documentary on the scientific effectiveness of acupuncture over drugs in both minor and major operations.

The second film is on China's Barefoot doctors, local medically trained peasants experienced in China's traditional forms of medicine (and in Western methods) and how they help to provide health care for 80 per cent of China's population.

Time — 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on the second floor lounge of New Africa House.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT THE NEW FOOD ENGINEERING
B. S. PROGRAM
AT THE UNIVERSTIY OF
MASSACHUSETTS
ROOM 803 CAMPUS CENTER
7:30-9:30 PM THURSDAY APRIL 7
REFRESHMENTS

DID YOU KNOW THAT THIS NEWSPAPER IS PRINTED ON 100% RECYCABLE PAPER?

THE RECYCLING PROJECT REMINDS YOU TO PLEASE RECYCLE YOUR PAPER AND GLASS

FOR INFORMATION
CALL THE RECYCLING PROJECT
545-0618

BLACK AFFAIRS NEEDS WRITERS AND POETS.

All interested students should contact
Nasser Ega
or Angela Thomas
at the Collegian
(545-3500)

Tired of Eating at the D.C.?
BONANZA RESTAURANT
is now offering a
10% DISCOUNT
On All Their Meals
JUST SHOW YOUR COLLEGE I.D.

Try Our
CATTLEMAN'S CHOICE
ONLY $2.89
Includes
- Choice of Potato or Vegetable
- All the Soup or Salad You Can Eat
- Free Refills on Coffee, Tea or Soda

Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, Mass.
Offer good Mon.-Fri.
(Does not include daily specials)
BONANZA
Open 7 a.m. - 9 p.m.

spring sale!
• WOVEN SOLIDS
poplin, linen-types, chino, all spring colors 44-45" wide, cotton blends reg. to 3.98
Now 1.99 yd.
• MINI FLORAL PRINTS
great for quilting blouses, dresses 44-45" wide
50% cotton, 50% polyester reg. to 2.98
NOW 1.59 yd.
• all ginghams 20% OFF
• cotton velour 60" wide
20% OFF many spring colors
— welcome in Spring!
natural textiles
"Amherst's Fabric Center"
228 TRIANGLE ST. AMHERST
HOURS: 10-6 MON.-SAT. 549-3853

NEWS IN BRIEF

Soviets violate fishing limits

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The United States protested to the Soviet Union yesterday that Soviet vessels have violated U.S. territorial water laws three times in the last week and demanded Moscow take "immediate measures" to stop such violations.

The protest followed disclosure Coast Guardsmen boarded a Russian ship off New England Monday for the third time since March 29 and were ordered, for the third time, by higher ups to let the offending vessel go.

Carter keeps Ft. Devens open

WASHINGTON [AP] — President Carter decided Tuesday to keep Ft. Devens in Massachusetts open because it would not be effective to close it.

Carter's decision was announced by members of the Massachusetts congressional delegation, who said the President wanted no political credit for his decision because the economic benefits stood on their own merits.

Reps rap auto insurance rates

BOSTON [UPI] — A group of Greater Boston legislators yesterday filed suit in U.S. District Court challenging the constitutionality of Massachusetts auto insurance laws in which rates vary drastically between territories.

Rep. Royal Bolling, D-Boston, one of those who filed the suit, said it claims the territorial system is discriminatory and asks for flat statewide auto insurance rates. The suit has been referred to Judge W. Arthur Garrity.

Insurance industry spokesmen have opposed flat rates. Insurance Commissioner James M. Stone and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis have not publicly taken a stand on the issue, but have announced plans to file legislation which heads in the direction of partially flat rates.

State house favors saccharin sale

BOSTON [UPI] — The Massachusetts House yesterday adopted a resolution urging the federal government not to implement its proposed ban on saccharin.

The resolution, adopted voice vote, was offered by Assistant Republican Leader Andrew H. Card of Holbrook.

"Any human being who drinks 800 bottles of diet soft drink a day is bound to get sick," Card said. "But because rats got sick is certainly no conclusive evidence that normal human intake would have the same effect.

"But there is conclusive and obvious evidence that banning saccharin, a widely available sugar substitute, would cause hardship and have an adverse health effect on persons afflicted with diabetes, high blood pressure and obesity."

Carter wants food stamp plan

WASHINGTON [AP] — President Carter asked Congress yesterday to stop charging food stamp recipients for the stamps.

But about $450 million in food stamp aid to families with incomes above the poverty lines would be taken away under Carter's proposal.

The President promised to veto any congressional changes in his proposal that would increase by more than $100 million a year the program's current projected budget of about $5.5 billion annually.

The authorizing legislation for the program, which now helps about 5.44 million families buy groceries each month, expires Sept. 30. Two congressional committees have until May 15 to decide what kind of new program to approve.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland told the House Agriculture Committee that Carter's two-year proposal is fiscally responsible, would benefit the truly needy, help reduce fraud and curtail paperwork for recipients and local welfare offices.

After two years, he said, reform of all federal welfare programs should be on its way "and that will be the end of the food stamp program as we now know it."

On the average, an eligible family now has to pay about 44 cents for every $1 in food stamps. Those with incomes below $30 a month already get the aid free.

Woman raps Krishna cult movement

BOSTON [UPI] — A former member of the Hare Krishna religious cult told a Massachusetts legislative panel yesterday the group turned her and other female followers into "dogs and slaves."

"The Krishna Consciousness movement is antihuman, chauvinistic, sexist and anti-female," said Susan Murphy, 18, of Weymouth, Mass., who lived with the cult for three and one-half years.

"Women were subordinated to men," she said. "We ate only when the men were finished. They threw us scraps on the floor, we were literally treated and fed like dogs."

"I AM VERY LUCKY TO HAVE ESCAPED. The Krishna Consciousness movement had turned us into dogs and slaves," she said.

She stressed the abuses were mental, not physical and that all members were celibate.

She spoke to the Commerce and Labor Committee in support of a bill to create a commission to investigate religious cult practices.

Nantucket islanders vote strongly for secession

NANTUCKET, Mass. [AP] — Angered by the threat of losing their lone state representative, Nantucket islanders have voted overwhelmingly to secede from Massachusetts.

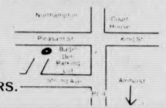
Monday's vote was 1,725 to 404 in favor of secession.

State Rep. John S. Conway, R-Nantucket, said he and Rep. Terence McCarthy, an independent from Martha's Vineyard, would ask to meet Gov. Michael S. Dukakis to find out what he plans to do about representation of the two islands in the face of the overwhelming vote for secession.

But no one was sure what would happen next since there is no legal way to quit the state without legislative approval.

The vote set up a real life situation reminiscent of the old movie, "The Mouse That Roared," the story of a tiny island which declares war on the United States in hope of getting foreign aid.

There are more than 3,000 registered voters on this summer playground.



The Bagel Deli
"Everything on a bagel"
BAGELS & OTHER
BAKED GOODS BAKED
DAILY ON THE PREMISES
- N.Y. STYLE DELI
- SMOKED FISH
- CHEESE CAKE
- EGG CREAM
- DAIRY PRODUCTS

OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
HOURS 7 A.M. - 2 A.M. FRI. & SAT.
7 A.M. - 9 P.M. SUN. - THURS.
28 Pleasant St. Northampton

dvp presents:
Martin Luther King, Jr.
Memorial Week:

Tues., April 5:
Rev. Hosea Williams
Dr. Randolph Blackwell
Ms. Marion Williams, Vocalist
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Wed., April 6: A Freedom Seder
6 p.m. S.U.B.
"Let the Church
Say Amen," a film
8 p.m. S.U.B.

Thurs., April 7: Gospel Night
Mr. Vernard Johnson
Jessy Dixon & the
Jessy Dixon Singers
8 p.m. S.U.B.

All events are free and open to the university and community at large.

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
60 day advance payment required

"ASPIRING TO LIBERATE:
PERSONAL ENGAGEMENT TO COLLECTIVE STRUGGLE"
解放
- SPEAKERS
- FILMS
- WORKSHOPS
- COFFEE HOUSE
- DISCO

FRIDAY, APRIL 8 & SATURDAY, APRIL 9
Registration: Friday 4-6 pm, Arcon Desk (Lower level CC)
Saturday 9:30-11 am, Room 1009 C. cc.
Sponsored by Asian American Student Assoc. of UMass

HOUSING EXEMPTIONS

Fall 1977 Housing Exemption Applications are due no later than April 8, 1977. Applications will not be accepted after this date. Please submit all applications to the housing office, 235 whitmore. Thank you.

AFL-CIO treasurer raps Carter's economic work

WASHINGTON [UPI] — AFL-CIO Secretary Treasurer Lane Kirkland lashed out at President Carter yesterday, suggesting that labor may have been duped by his campaign promises — including the promise for full employment.

In the most bitterly worded AFL-CIO speech yet delivered against the new administration, Kirkland said the early decisions by Carter have been a triumph for business — not labor.

Kirkland, considered the heir apparent to AFL-CIO President George Meany, specifically criticized Carter's cabinet selection, economic stimulus package, minimum wage proposal and shoe imports decision. Referring to the economic package, he said:

"On the bottom line of that package you can read the message: 'there ain't gonna be no full employment here for the next four years.' Chalk up another one for business. Scratch another promise."

Kirkland charged that Carter's Cabinet gives disproportionate representation to big business. He said the Cabinet search was "masked by a conspicuous search for minorities and women" — also from the business community.

"The process reminds us again that, in national and world affairs — whether the winds blow left or right, cold war of detente, Republican or Democratic — big business adapts and comes to winning terms," he said.

Authorities blame hailstorm for Southern Airways crash

NEW HOPE, Ga. [UPI] — Hail that shattered the plane's windows and clogged its big jets was blamed yesterday for throwing a Southern Airways DC-9 into a death glide that brought it crashing to earth on a Georgia highway.

Sixty-eight persons, including eight on the ground, were killed and 27 others were injured in the Monday afternoon crash, the state Highway Patrol reported.

Many of the victims were badly burned and FBI experts worked throughout the day trying to identify the victims.

The flight, No. 242, bound from Huntsville, Ala., to Atlanta, was less than a half hour short of its destination when pilot Capt. William F. McKenzie, 54, LaPlace, La., radioed the Atlanta control tower that his windshield was "busted."

A minute later he radioed to say his left engine had flamed out — and a minute after that he reported he had lost his remaining right engine and was going to try to set the huge craft down on "a road."

McKenzie did not explain what had broken his windshield, but two stewardesses — the only two crewmembers to survive — later said the plane had been bombarded with violent hail and that many windows were broken.

A Southern spokesman said Tuesday that the plane apparently lost power because hail had been sucked into both the jet engines.

"Early indications are that the storm caused the ingestion of hail into the JT8D engines," causing a flame-out, the spokesman said.

The lumbering plane came gliding down on the little community of New Hope, scene of one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War, at 4:23 p.m. It clipped trees and power poles, crushed a truck and a car and slammed into a grocery and gasoline station.

Bodies of the victims and pieces of wreckage flew from the broken aircraft as it bounded crazily for 300 yards through the little community of 150. After hitting the grocery, it took one final, wild bounce and landed in a wooded area, a mass of flaming debris.

Storm sweeps South

United Press International — A savage spring storm which raked the South with deadly tornadoes and stream-swelling rains powered floods which drove thousands from their homes in the Appalachians yesterday.

The two-day weather death toll rose [illegible] at least 103.

Floods claimed at least 12 lives — 4 each in Kentucky and West Virginia and 2 each in Virginia and Alabama. Hail was the apparent cause of the crash of an airliner in Georgia which killed 68. Tornadoes in three states killed 22 and a weather-related death in Tennessee added to Monday's count.

In the flood belt, National Guardsmen, Civil Defense workers and volunteer rescue crews — using helicopters, amphibian vehicles, trucks and rafts — struggled to rescue scores of stranded persons from trees, second floor rooms, flood-surrounded stores and marooned automobiles.

UNIVERSITY PIZZA
WE MADE YOU A PIZZA
YOU COULDN'T REFUSE!
NOBODY DID REFUSE
THE SPECIAL WENT SO WELL, WE WILL REPEAT IT
THIS WEEK ORDER OUR
NEW 16" PIZZA OR
2 OR MORE SUBS.
and get a free quart of Coke, Tab,
Root Beer or Sprite on us!
OFFER GOOD UNTIL APRIL 7
Call 549-5592
Across from Southwest Dorms.
HOME OF THE STEAK & CHEESE SUB!

The Great
INTERNATIONAL
MATH ON KEYS
BOOK
4.95
TEXAS INSTRUMENTS
TI-30
TI-30 student math kit
ONLY
$22.95
- The TI-30 Student Math Kit helps equip you for solving tough math problems in college, home and career. Includes powerful TI-30 calculator, denim-colored vinyl carrying case and fun-to-read 224-page manual packed with how-to information and facts.

at the calculator store
THE UNIVERSITY STORE
campus center U-Mass

APPEARING TONITE
ROOMFULL OF BLUES
THURS-SUN
FAT
AT
The rusty nail Inn
Rte. 47. Sunderland
665-4937

Wildlife Soc. finishes second

By DOUG SURETTE
Collegian Staff

The UMass student chapter of the Wildlife Society placed second in academic competition last weekend at the 1977 Northeast Student Wildlife Conference sponsored by the University of New Hampshire at Durham.

Nearly upsetting the University of Maine — Orono, the perennial "Wildlife Bowl" champion, the UMass chapter pulled within five points, 95-100, only to be stopped short of victory by the fifteen minute time limit. UMass had defeated Rutgers and the University of New Brunswick to reach the finals.

UMass chapter president Steve Demarais expressed "extreme satisfaction at having nearly beaten Maine, especially when they prepared so seriously to keep the title. Our overall objective was to enjoy ourselves, with the competition coming second."

The team's success was attributed to Seth Mott and Tom Rawinski in species identification, Bob Gilbertson in comparative anatomy, and Steve Demarais in parisitology.

The Wildlife Conference is an annual affair designed to bring wildlife biology students from across the nation together to exchange ideas on the future of our natural resources. It is supported by The Wildlife Society, an international organization which supports the conservation of natural resources.

★ Bromery—union

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

faculty to court. Union representatives have not met with the administration for any discussions since they were elected to represent the faculty in collective bargaining on Feb. 8 and 9.

Prof. Larrv S. Roberts, president of the Amherst local of the Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP), said that he, along with the Boston local's president and a MTA official, met with staff attorney Sidney Myers, who explained that Bromery could not meet with them on their terms.

Roberts, in an interview after the meeting with Myers, said the three wanted to discuss five issues with the chancellor, and had sent an agenda to him on April 1.

Among the items for discussion were "the identity" of the faculty union, the position of the two parties for on-campus office space for the union, dues check-off on University pay checks, a possible timetable for negotiations and the possible establishment of administration — faculty discussion groups on pressing governance issues, he said.

Bromery, who is also serving as acting executive vice-president in charge of faculty collective bargaining, said in a telephone interview last night that the presence of a MTA representative, and the faculty members' refusal to be referred to as colleagues, forced him to cancel the meeting since it could be construed as being "technical recognition", of the unit on the part of the University.

Bromery said he will be glad to meet with Roberts as a "colleague" and will be sending him a letter shortly expressing his willingness to meet and discuss any issues which would not be construed as a recognition of the group.

★ Elections

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

candidates listed on the flyers from precinct three were elected last night. Other results were not available at press time.

The voter turnout was termed moderate by Town Clerk Estelle M. Matusko.

In another election, Williams F. Field, UMass dean of students, was unopposed in his bid for re-election to moderator of the town meeting.

A complete listing of all town meeting election results will be printed in tomorrow's Collegian.

Appearing
Tues. & Wed.

Roomfull Of Blues

at

The rusty nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665 4937

THE BARLEYCORN TAVERN
at THE GRIST MILL RESTAURANT
253-2843 Rt. 116, South Amherst

GREAT SANDWICHES

CRISP SALADS, FRESH SEAFOOD, HOME-MADE FRENCH FRIES & other favorites

frosted HEINEKEN drafts

WRITE ON!
at
A. J. HASTINGS writing paper
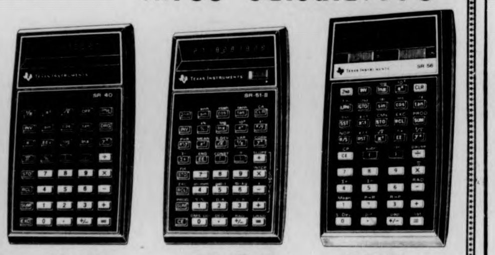
note paper
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St.

$3.00 OFF with coupon
on any of these three calculators



SR 40 ~~$34.95~~ $31.95
SR 51-II ~~$59.95~~ $56.95
SR 56 ~~$84.95~~ $81.95

GOOD THRU APRIL 15th ONLY

$3.00 OFF COUPON
☐SR 40 ☐SR 51-II ☐SR 56
NAME ____________
THE UNIVERSITY STORE
Offer Expires 4-15-77

clip and save

at the calculator store
THE UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
UMass/Amherst

Brandeis Summer
June 6 - Aug. 12
1977
647-2172

Courses in the following fields:

Biology
Chemistry
Education
English
Fine Arts
German
Legal Studies
Physics
Politics
Pre-medical Psychology
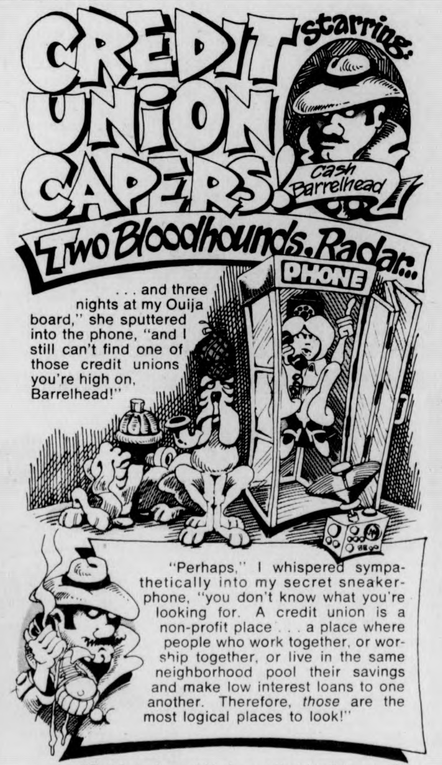
Spanish

The Summer Program offers selected courses generally given at Brandeis during the traditional academic year, and all are taught by fulltime Brandeis faculty members. Students have the advantage of studying at a suburban campus, without the cares of parking and other problems encountered in an urban setting. Summer students have full use of all Brandeis facilities, including tennis courts and indoor swimming. The University's apartments, offering two and three bedrooms with kitchen facilities, are also available. Registration opens May 2. For additional information, call 647-2172 or write to the Brandeis Summer Program, Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass. 02154.



. . . and three nights at my Ouija board," she sputtered into the phone, "and I still can't find one of those credit unions you're high on, Barrelhead!"

"Perhaps," I whispered sympathetically into my secret sneaker-phone, "you don't know what you're looking for. A credit union is a non-profit place . . . a place where people who work together, or worship together, or live in the same neighborhood pool their savings and make low interest loans to one another. Therefore, those are the most logical places to look!"

"But I don't work!" she replied in dismay. "I'm a convert to Zoronostracism (and a small sect at that), and I'm afraid to go anywhere in my neighborhood!"

"In that case," I replied, already reeling from the aroma of my sneaker-phone, "look in the Yellow Pages under CREDIT UNIONS. Call one and ask for help. That's their thing, and they won't let you down."

Mercifully, the operator cut us off. But, since I never heard from her again, I guess she found her credit union. It was a simple case, actually, and I was glad to help another lost soul find a credit union — even though the odor from my sneaker-phone almost did me in.

Acrid Rescue may we help you ......hello..

University of Massachusetts
Student Federal Credit Union
Colonial Lounge — Student Union
Phone 545-2800

TV's replacement: Kids drama

By LINDSEY LANE
Collegian Staff

All of us encounter experiences in our lives that stick with us and shape the goals and-or livelihoods we may choose later to pursue. For Ricky Mazor, it was seeing the Paperbag Players in New York City that increased her enthusiasm for creative drama or, as she calls it, "the creation of drama with the audience."

She works on the creation of drama from storybooks and folktales, retaining their main storylines. The important thing, according to Ricky, is "to heighten the crisis points in the story in order to bring the audience closer to the main character's problems."

What she aims for in her creative folklore-dramas is to reveal an "artistic truth" in the simplicity of the story itself and in its dramatic recreation. She alters the stories frequently "in order to find the reality of the theatrical moment between the performer and the audience."

In laying bare the artistic truth, she hopes to strike different chords of emotional truths in her audience, and spur them into participating in the drama of the story. The idea is to steer kids away from the passivity of TV by giving them an opportunity to help create drama and share in collective emotions.

Besides keeping the story-line to a minimum, she avoids the use of a lot of props, costumes, and musical instruments. This simplicity in the use of props and music lessons the gap between the audience and performer that might be evident with too much built-in fantasy.

In July 1976, Ricky began working with a sophomore at Amherst High School, Alison Aune, 15. Ms. Mazor's older daughter, Shari, played flute to accompany their performances until September. Then her younger daughter, Marya Mazor, 12, who attends the Crocker Farm School, took up the musical accompaniment and now does some acting. They perform throughout the area in schools, parks and the City Studio Theater in Northampton.

Alison is a serious enthusiast about this kind of drama. She enjoys acting and intends to continue with it. "Children's theater is really important," she says, "because it gets children (usually first and second graders) into the creative process of art which they can't do with TV."

Fantasy and pretending is important. Marya Mazor feels "they just don't do it anymore," and television becomes an easy outlet.

Parents attend performances and sit on the floor with their children, sharing the experiences of Ricky, Alison and Marya's repertoire of "Tattletales." Even though parents may view this drama at another level, they are sharing in a creative process, said Ricky. More often than not, the stories will convey an 'artistic truth' for them.

After getting these credentials she worked with the now defunct Aesthetics Center at UMass, trying to create programs combining education and drama in the theatre. When the center closed, she set off on her own. Ricky worked from 1972-74 as the creative drama teacher in Holyoke at the West Street School for Title 7: Bilingual Project.

Ricky also works at the Amherst Adult Day Center where older people come from their homes to participate in what she calls "Drama therapy." Telling them a story like Isaac Singer's "The Big Schlemeel", she hopes they will talk or act out their feelings about problems, or life changes, and how they confront them on a personal or social level.

Next fall, Ricky will be conducting a course in Southwest on the theory of children's drama and its educational and therapeutic uses.

Congressmen unite to create working people's caucus

PROVIDENCE, R.I. [UPI] — Vowing not to forget what color their collars were before they went to Washington, 11 congressmen officially launched a working people's caucus yesterday.

"We may not always agree on some issues, but the blue collar people of this country will know that we're here, we're working for their interests, and we're ready to be a voice for the working man and woman," said Rep. Edward P. Beard, D-R.I., leader of the Blue Collar caucus.

Beard, a former housepainter who always carried a well-worn paintbrush in his suit pocket. used to boast he was "the only working man in Congress." He recently looked around and discovered he had some colleagues.

They got together for a Washington news conference yesterday.

"I would hope the formation of the group will encourage other blue-collar men and women in this country to consider participation in the political process," Beard said in a statement from his Rhode Island office. "There aren't many of us in the Congress but there are millions of us out there."

"WE'RE GOING TO GLORIA STEVENS FOREVER"

Lorna Halpern and her daughter, Susan, 21, exercise daily at a Gloria Stevens Figure Salon. They go to Gloria Stevens not because they had to lose weight but because, with daily exercise: "we feel so good." Susan is a senior at the University of Massachusetts, majoring in elementary education. Mother and daughter both say: "We're going to Gloria Stevens forever."

INTRODUCTORY OFFER
6 weeks for $25
*At All Participating Salons
Fun Exercise Plan ★ No Contracts to Sign
Diets Compiled Exclusively by Our Dietitian
No Disrobing ★ Individual Programming

Gloria Stevens®
FIGURE SALONS
New England's Largest Franchised Weight Control System
Mountain Farms Mall
Rt. 9 Hadley
CALL NOW
584-0105
Hours Mon. thru Fri. 9 to 9 Sat. 9 to 3

DANSKINS
ARE DANSKIN

NOW AVAILABLE
in the Clothing Dept.
at University Store.
Campus Center

To consider
the destruction of human life through abortion
Vigil-Fast
HOLY WEEK
170 University Drive
April 4-8, 9am-5pm

Shed some light on your future

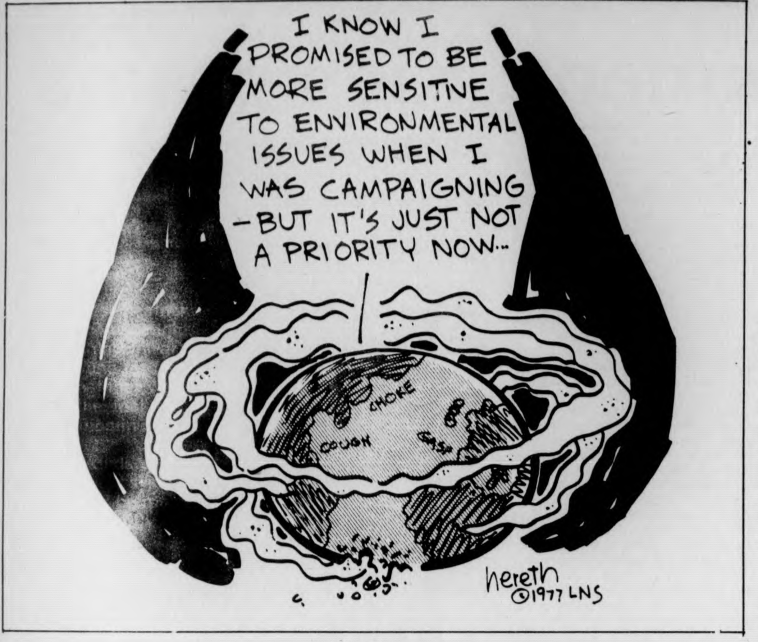
After college, what will I do?

That's a question a lot of young people ask themselves these days.

But a two-year Air Force ROTC scholarship can help provide the answers. Successful completion of the program gets you an Air Force commission along with an excellent starting salary, a challenging job, promotion opportunities, and a secure future with a modern Air Force. If you have two academic years remaining, find out today about the two-year Air Force ROTC Scholarship Program. It's a great way to serve your country and a great way to help pay for your college education.

Call Major Richardson
at 545-2437

Air Force ROTC



I KNOW I PROMISED TO BE MORE SENSITIVE TO ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES WHEN I WAS CAMPAIGNING —BUT IT'S JUST NOT A PRIORITY NOW..
CHOKE
COUGH GASP
hereth ©1977 LNS

letters

All are responsible for affirmative action

To the Editor:

We strongly urge that all students and employees who talk about Affirmative Action assume responsibility for knowing the law and its underlying principles. In an effort to promote a greater general understanding of Affirmative Action we offer the following definition and explanation found in "The School Law Newsletter", Vol. 3, No. 1, August-September 1974, pages 151 and 152: "Affirmative Action is a method for tapping a wealth of human resources in our society. It is a tool that implements programs for hiring minorities and women, for bringing minority and women students into educational institutions, and for preventing discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. It is a concise, deliberate, and dynamic commitment by an institution to change attitudes and to build an institutional ratio of minorities in proportion to the total work force."

The Newsletter goes on to discuss the two underlying concepts implicit in The Executive Order; those of "nondiscrimination and Affirmative Action". "1 — Nondiscrimination requires the elimination of all existing discriminatory conditions, whether purposeful or inadvertent. An educational institution must carefully examine its employment policies to be sure that they do not operate to the detriment of any persons on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. 2 — Affirmative Action requires the contractor to do more than insure employment neutrality with regard to race, color, religion, sex, and national origin. Rather, it requires the employer to make additional efforts to recruit, employ, and promote qualified members of groups previously excluded, even if that exclusion cannot be traced to particular discriminatory actions on the part of the employer. Unless positive action is undertaken to overcome the effects of institutional exclusion and discrimination, a benign neutrality in employment practices will tend to perpetuate the status quo indefinitely."

The Heads of Residence of Orchard Hill and Central

Letter's message twisted

To the Editor:

Last Thursday, I handed Collegian Executive Editor Bill Sundstrom a very short letter to the editor in response to a statement by Dick Janssen which appeared in Thursday's paper. Friday, I was told, would be the April Fool's edition so the letter would have to wait until Monday. Fine.

Along came Monday, and nowhere, in that massive bundle of news stories, editorials, and advertising, could I find that little two and a half inch letter. So I called up Bill Sundstrom. The other letters related to more "immediate" issues, I was told, so mine would have to wait until Tuesday's paper. Fine.

And goddamnit, when the little two and a half inch letter came out in Tuesday's paper it was altered. And I say altered because the impression conveyed by that little two and a half inch letter was altered by two things: 1] a headline which twisted the message into meaninglessness and 2] the censorship of the last line of that letter. And I say censored because that line was censored. It read, "Former Collegian 'objective' reporter", because that is what I am.

In the previous letter, I tried to convey what I considered to be a simple message in a short space. I was prevented from doing that. That message was: the myth of the neutral, "objective" journalist, be that a cartoonist like Dick Janssen or what have you, is just that — a myth. But in that last letter, I was using Dick Janssen's attitude ["I can't control what the individual reads into it"] as an example of a prevalent attitude in journalism that has, and will, lead us astray. I hesitated to extend my criticism of Dick Janssen to the Collegian as a whole, because I know that there are some very good writers there and that I have a lot of friends there, although I certainly had taken that step in my mind. I now do so on papers.

Never again will I criticize an individual such as Dick Janssen for an attitude which embraces a larger segment of society than the "individual". The larger segment must, and will, be held responsible. I am now aware of how clearly one has to express oneself in order to be heard.

Rob Thayer

The solar reactor

To the Editor:

Read with interest Malcolm Quint's stint on Solar Energy in New England. I think the government's part is being done admirably, judging from the packet on house heating I received. It contained reprints from Mother Earth and from other really practical "low-tech" sources, including the Thomason trickle-down system. They also have a free hot-line [800-2929] for anyone to use when they get stuck on solar.

I am working with my own funds and have risked ridicule for the satisfaction of doing it myself. So I think I'm in a position to give this advice: —Read pieces from the countries that have been using solar water-heaters for many many years, like Australia and Israel. Northern Australia is closest to our temperature zone. Many U.S. articles are well meant, especially in Popular Mechanics, Popular Science, Alternate Sources of Energy and Mother Earth, but only until you, yourself, get a flood of water all over your floor, break a few panes of glass and waste a few hundred hours, do you fully appreciate these articles written from long experience.

I got my Aussie source from an EARS, University of Colorado reprint service, and free and non-profit organizations, like the United Nations are best. Even the Thomason system which I admire in theory, held back all the difficulties he ran into in operating his first two houses. It was in a back issue of Solar Age that he reported the bugs that had developed, nothing catastropic but they should have been included in their sales literature. Most U.S. literature is so anxious to convince you that it doesn't want to give you the realistic facts; i.e. the conditions for success.

For example, I had read widely on water heating, but it took a United Nations publication and also an Aussie piece to stress the need for having a wide header pipe [three-quarter inch]. That's the highest point of your system where the hot water goes into the storage tank. Other U.S. pieces slight this fact by not even mentioning it. If the pipe is too narrow, the water will not flow into the tank — "failure". I could mention many other sins of omission. There is another non-profit source in Canada, the Brace Institute, though I haven't seen anything from there yet. Get with it and enjoy solar free heat.

V. Richardson

from our perspective

What's the word?

If you happened to have been out in the foulest weather of the young spring season yesterday afternoon, you might have noticed a large group of students marching toward Whitmore, chanting and cheering as they swung through campus. And if you happened to listen in on what they were chanting, you know they were protesting the fact that UMass holds securities in corporations operating in South Africa.

Most people are fairly familiar with the kinds of injustices that take place under the racist apartheid system of South Africa. Indeed, a good argument could be made that the South African regime is the most blatantly oppressive one since Nazi Germany.

Apartheid is upheld by and in turn upholds the South African economic system, which relies on wage rates that are reminiscent of slavery. It is for this reason that American multinationals have found South African investments and operations so profitable, and thus so desirable. Included among those corporations are some in which the UMass Trustees have invested.

Ironically, or perhaps tragically, the Trustees have a written policy (in their investment guidelines) stating that they will not invest in corporations which are not acting "responsibly in the public interest", or that if such investments are held the Trustees may recommend their sale.

The campus South African Support Committee is suggesting that the Trustees recognize their own guidelines and start following them. We agree. It is deplorable that an institution supposedly committed to free thought and human justice lends financial support to a fascist and racist state.

Students should not assume that just because South Africa is so geographically distant the struggle it represents is equally distant. The battle for liberation in Africa is closely linked to efforts in our own country. We can hardly expect to clean up our own house when we actively support oppression elsewhere.

The Collegian endorses the efforts of the Support Committee and urges all students to become involved. At long last apartheid is falling. Let's be able to say we gave it a little shove.

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of a majority of the Collegian Board of Editors.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Dorothy A. Clark, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

richard caplan

Strange tales

All right boys and girls, it's time for you to gather 'round and sit quietly by the fireside while I tell you a bizarre, frightening story that's guaranteed to scare you to death! This week, I'll be telling you about a family so weird that no one could even talk to them. The title:

THE FAMILY THAT DIDN'T WATCH TELEVISION

The Jones family was thought to be very unusual. Each night they could be seen together on their front porch, or while taking a walk through the neighborhood. The other families would see them go by and make comments:

"There's that Jones family out walking again. You'd think they'd stay in once in a while and watch television."

"Will you shuttup! I can't hear the commercial!"

"I wonder what they talk about."

"Hey, get me a beer wouldja."

Even when Mr. and Mrs. Jones would go to a neighborhood party, it made other people very uncomfortable.

"Hi Mr. Jones. How you doing?"

"I'm fine, Bill, but I wanted to talk to you. You seemed a little sad the other day and I was wondering if..."

"Say, did you see the fight on T.V.?"

"Uh, no I didn't."

"How about the game last night?"

"I didn't see that either."

"Well, do you at least see Mary Hartman?"

"Who?"

The experience with Mrs. Jones was equally confusing.

"...And then Rich said to Nancy that he was leaving unless she did something with her kid. Of course Cynthia wanted Heather all to herself and so wrote the blackmail note to Rocky."

"It sounds like someone's in a lot of trouble. Are you speaking of your family?"

"Well, sort of. They're my television family. You know, As the Face Breaks."

"No, I don't know that one."

"How about The Guiding Trout?"

"Not that one either."

"Which ones do you watch?"

"We don't watch any television at all."

The horrible truth was out! They didn't watch television! No wonder they couldn't communicate with anyone. Even their kid was strange.

"Hey little Jones, look what I got!"

"What is it?"

"My secret decoder compass whistle."

"Pretty neat. Where'd you get it?"

"Out of my package of skin-popped frosty bits that my mom got me."

"I never heard of it."

"Didn't you see the commercials?"

"I don't watch T.V."

"Boy, you're weird!"

The neighborhood was facing a dilemma; how to deal with the Jones family. Sometimes, they'd call up and want to come over the same night Charlie Angels were on. They had to do something!

A few months later, everything was back to normal. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Jones were found to be insane and were sent away. Their son was put in a home for wayward children where they've started him on an intense program of television watching in hopes that he'll catch up to the other children his age.

As for his parents, well, there's little hope for them. The mental hospital tried to get them to watch an old I Love Lucy episode but they ran out the door screaming. They were never heard from again.

What of the neighborhood, you say? Well, the family that moved in the Joneses' house fits right in. The whole family watches television 14 hours a day and they never speak to each other. Just like everyone else.

Well, that's tonight's story. I hope you enjoyed it. But remember, the next time you're watching the 300th repeat of a twenty year old program and you hear screaming, relax and go back to your show. It's only the Joneses.

Richard Caplan is a Collegian Columnist.

commentary

Bargaining rights for students

By GREG TARPINIAN
Collegian Staff

Like students, the faculty has had little say in the policy-making at the University. For the last three years their salaries have been frozen — they had no say. The ways in which the administration has decided on the issues of firing, hiring, and tenure have often seemed arbitrary. The faculty hasn't had much in the way of influence on the decisions made by the administration — decisions which have profound effects on their lives and those of their families. We can hardly fault the faculty then for their recent move to unionize. We should, however, recognize the effects such a maneuver will have on our lives as students.

The job of a union is to press hard for the interests of those it represents; such will be the case with the faculty union. The faculty union is likely to bargain over things such as research, tenure, salaries and benefits, and just plain rights.

The University is comprised of various groups, students and faculty being a couple. We should note that the actions of one group will very often affect another. With the impending cuts it is pretty clear that the demands put forth by the faculty union will have adverse effects on the condition of students. When the faculty demands less teaching-time so as to have more time for research class sizes expand. When they push for tenure guarantees, questions of seniority dominate those of teaching ability. When salaries are increased the money must come from somewhere — increasing student tuition seems to be the likely approach. A faculty union is not likely to take a positive stand towards student involvement since we're after some of the same things. So, faculty unionization seems to promise to make things less desirable for students on this campus.

By choosing unionization the faculty has decided to deal with the administration one-on-one, thus slighting students in the process. It is necessary for us to try and get collective bargaining rights so that we too can have some influence at the bargaining table.

There are several appropriate short-term responses to faculty bargaining, none of which, however, elevate students to a position of equal power with the administration and faculty; nor do they give students the right to bargain the terms and conditions of their relationship with the University, such as, tuition, housing requirements, and overall academic priorities. We do have a basis upon which to bargain: How is it that a University will exist without tuition paying students?

Across the country, the student perspective sees unionization as a viable response to attacks on quality education. The concept of student unionization is gaining a new life as the need for equal student-power seems necessary in the wake of cuts and faculty unionization. The rise of the faculty union makes it difficult to overlook the rights of students to press for their interests. The fact that student collective bargaining has not been the case in the past is not particularly germane to the present situation. The situation between the administration and students should no longer be viewed as a parental relationship but as a contractual one.

With bargaining rights students will have the opportunity to meet with the administration at the bargaining table to come to terms over the various conditions of life at UMass, that is to say, students will no longer be the recipients of unilateral decision-making; decisions which are made without the consent of the student body. The University will be legally bound to negotiate with students over university policy that affects students. The union idea does not offer students a utopian-like vision, but an opportunity to rid ourselves of the frustrating cloak of powerlessness over the direction and conditions of our lives.

Greg Tarpinian is a Collegian Commentator.

lisa melilli

Self-defeating education

Education. It comes in a surplus package. Everyone is required to spend up until age 16 in some educational institution and for many, particularly in our generation, the student career can last up until age 21 and even longer for those who opt for professional and grad school education. It's a main topic in life — this package most of us first opened one September day when only five. Since then we have been peering into the package, examining the contents, hating the contents, loving the contents, learning and not learning, growing and sometimes staying the same, trying to understand and find some meaning in the contents of this package: education.

And I've been shuffled into this whole thing with the rest to learn what being an "educated person" is and try to be one — somehow — and looking back at the system I've been in, I realize how this system hasn't played its part in helping me attain this goal. What I've come to realize is that this system has actually discouraged me from learning and has not informed me of the purpose and meaning of my education because they, the educators, have not figured out the meaning of education themselves.

Everyone has mental blocks about learning or studying a certain subject, but it's odd that such blocks should come from a teacher or a school system. But that's how it is with most of us. The problem is that educators have set-up a system of testing and a system of discipline for certain purposes. These primary purposes have somehow been lost in the shuffle and what is left is a system which works against educating a person.

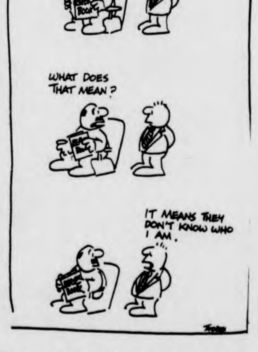
The purpose of education is to "learn" and to be taught how to be a responsible adult. But what do educational institutions, particularly grammar and high schools, throw out? — tests, academic pressure, and rules, rules, rules that make it impossible for a student to go anywhere without a pass, trapping students instead of educating them.

First of all, tests are really a form of exercise, a part of learning to use your knowledge and combine skills to come to a fuller understanding of the subject matter. Tests are also ways of informing the teacher how well s-he is doing in instructing you and how well you are doing as a student in learning the subject matter. But somewhere along the line, they forgot to tell a few teachers. So many times I have studied, learned what I should and have been stumped by insignificant questions included on a test just to stump me and others. And I've been taught all too often to simply memorize and not really think about the subject at hand — to just regurgitate and not analyze. And after, everything memorized is forgotten. Teachers all too often look at tests as "trickster methods" to make sure they don't give out too many A's for the semester. They forget the little business called "learning" and what happens is no one really does learn because they are forced to play the test game.

What am I graded on? How much more intelligent I am than anyone else in the class? Since classes present a heterogeneous group, wouldn't it be wiser to evaluate each student on whether or not they are performing to their own utmost ability in the class? There is nothing more discouraging for a person than to be sitting in a classroom of students who understand material that s-he doesn't. There is nothing more discouraging than being marked in comparison to the other students in the class. It makes education more of a race than a process which teaches you how to teach yourself and to enjoy learning. Instead, it discourages you from learning.

Nobody will ever be responsible unless they are held responsible. Unless a person is challenged to be responsible for doing certain things, s-he never will behave in a responsible manner. Schools have the responsibility to teach students how to be responsible adults. But instead of challenging these students to discipline themselves, they force discipline down their throats and all students learn is how to get around all these rules and what fun it is to do so. Enforced discipline, in fact, discourages students to discipline themselves.

Educators have become so intent on keeping "order's, that they forget to give students responsibilities. They forget to encourage students to learn. They forget the meaning of education — or maybe they were never taught? I wouldn't be surprised. If educators cannot successfully instruct and derive a system of education for high school students, I'm sure educators cannot do the same for other educators. Education — a system that works against itself.



IT SAYS YOU ARE A SATISFACTORY STUDENT.
REPORT BOOK
WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?
IT MEANS THEY DON'T KNOW WHO I AM.

But then, Mark Twain says real knowledge is everything you know after you've forgotten everything you've been taught. Maybe that's a better way to look at it!

Lisa Melilli is a Collegian Columnist.

Letters Policy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Open hearing on sex discrimination

All members of the University Community are invited to attend an open hearing to discuss issues relevant to sex discrimination within the School of Engineering. The hearing will be tomorrow Marston Hall 118 between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Anyone unable to attend is invited to send written statements to Nancy Eddy, department of Industrial Engineering-Operations Research, Marston Hall 123.

Cello, piano recital tonight in Bowker

Cellist Leopold Teraspulsky and pianist Eugenie Malek will be featured tonight at 8:00 in a faculty recital of compositions for cello and piano from the Classical and Romantic periods. The rectial will be held in Bowker Auditorium and is free to the public.

Afro-Am Scholar to lecture in Herter

John W. Blassingame, a scholar of Afro-American culture at Yale University, will speak on "Africa, Slavery and Contemporary Black Culture," today at 4 p.m. in Herter Hall 227. His publications include "The Slave Community" (1972) and his recently-published "Slave Testimonies: Two Centuries of Letters, Speeches, Interviews and Autobiographies" (1977).

Workshop for artists offered tomorrow

The Arts Extension Service will offer a workshop for performing artists tomorrow to help them get more bookings. It will take place from 3 to 6 p.m. in Herter Hall 231.

Speakers will be: Joan Lettvin, from Performing Artists Associates in Boston; opera singer Cheryl Cobb; Jeffery Hubberman, of the UMass Theatre Department; Gail Sanderson, field representative for Affiliated Artists, Inc.; and Robert Lynch of the Arts Extension Service Staff.

This program is offered free of charge. More information can be obtained by calling the Arts Extension Service at 545-2013.

Energy sources internships offered

The Office of Internships announces the opportunity for students interested in doing field work in the area of alternative energy sources. The Center for Human Ecology Studies in Freeport, Maine offers a package of research, field work and seminars in order to scientifically evaluate a new technology and learn the process of its implementation from an individual, economic and political viewpoint.

Interested undergraduates are invited to meet with a representative from the Human Ecology Studies Center Wednesday at 1:30 in Campus Center 176. If you cannot attend, please contact the Office of Internships, Goodell 409, or call the office at 545-0727 for information.

Freedom — Seder tonight in SUB

In celebration of Passover, Holy Week and Martin Luther King Week, a Freedom-Seder is scheduled tonight at 6:30 in The Student Union Ballroom. The sponsors envision this Seder as an event the whole human family can celebrate the nature and source of freedom; solidarity in the face of oppression enlivens the hope for freedom and enpowers us to move ahead toward that goal in unity.

FINANCIAL AID

Get excellent commissions and sales experience as a Carpet Cat mini-floor and carpet sweeper representative. No fees or quotas required to get started. For details: Scott Annand 6-6926

Art collective plans meeting to organize

There will be a meeting of students interested in organizing student-art activities during 1977-78 tonight at 7:30 in Campus Center 902. Last semester, efforts to plan a festival were unsuccessful because no one could devote enough time to the planning, so now the primary topic of discussion will be what kind of group-structure could result in events such as carnivals of student art and multi-sensory extravaganzas.

Possibilities of work-study and academic credit will be explored, as well as potential sources of funding. The meeting will be conducted by John Furbish, artist-in-residence of the Student Video Project (SVD), and those who cannot attend are urged to leave their name and phone-number for him at the SVP office behind the Student Center for Educational Research in the Student Union.

POOR RICHARDS
Wednesday
50¢ for most drinks all night

Are you . . .

☐ a woman
☐ a handicapped student
☐ third world
☐ a foreign student
☐ gay

If so, and if you are

☐ a graduate

then you could/should be

☑ an Officer

in next year's

Graduate Senate

ELECTIONS: April 20th
DETAILS: available Rm' 919 CC

The Great Pretenders

THURSDAY NIGHT - APRIL 7 - $1 COVER
at the Hatch

Resident pets cause health problem in dorms

Animals in residence halls have become an important environmental health problem on campus, even though University regulations prohibit the keeping of pets. Many students don't realize that keeping pets in group living arrangements may present health problems very different from those in the home. The influence of animals on the comfort and health of other residents should be a matter of concern to all students and be considered above the personal satisfaction of keeping a pet.

Many persons are known to be allergic to animal hair, scurf, or urine; cats seem to be a special problem in this regard. Some persons with an intense allergy need only to enter a room where animals have been kept to have an acute attack.

Diseases transmitted between animals and humans are called zoonoses and approximately 100 of these are known. Here are a few representative ones: Salmonellosis — probably the most important public health-animal health problem is transmitted to humans either directly from animals or indirectly through contaminated products of animal origin. Companion pets (dogs, cats) and other household pets (turtles, birds) have been found to be carriers of these bacteria. Acute gastroenteritis is the most common human involvement. Leptospirosis — many veterinarians consider it a serious problem among dogs. In humans, illness varies from inapparent to very serious, with liver and kidney damage. The responsible agent is shed in the urine of infected animals. Cat-Scratch Fever — mysterious illness caused by scratching, biting, licking, etc. — many times infected cats, especially kittens, show no evidence of illness. Human infection may be mistaken for mono, but it is more serious, causing prolonged disability. There is no known effective treatment. Toxoplasmosis — a protozoan disease originally associated with undercooked or raw meat, yet now associated with dogs and cats. Cats have been specifically implicated, eliminated the organism in feces. In appears that the agent may be responsible for many human congenital malformations, with damage occurring in the last six months of pregnancy. Pets carry many other parasites (various worms) and vectors (fleas and ticks) which could cause disease. Because of their intimate association with humans, the dog and cat are probably more important as reservoirs than other animal pets.

Discussion group on diabetes tomorrow

There will be a meeting of the Diabetes Learning and Discussion Group tomorrow night at 7:30 in Clinic 1 of the University Health Services. There will be discussion topics and a recipe exchange. Any questions call 549-2671.

Finast SUPERMARKETS
Flowers for Your Easter enjoyment! available starting Tuesday

FREE one quart bottle Regular or Sugar Free Sprite
With this coupon. Limit one. Valid April 3-9, 1977 H-989 TX MFG

5 lb bag Gold Medal Flour 58¢
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid April 3-9, 1977 H-992 FN

30¢ off one dozen Finast Fresh Large Size Eggs
With this coupon & purchase of $7.50 or more. Limit one. Valid April 3-9, 1977 H-995 FN

Easter Lilies 4 blooms or more 5½ inch pots 3.79 ea
U.S. Brand Confectioners Sugar also Light Brown 3 1-lb pkgs $1

Holiday Specials this Week!
Finast Soda all Flavors 3 28 oz btls 89¢
Mashed Potatoes Big Tate-equivalent to 10 lbs of Potatoes 28 oz pkg 99¢
Sweet Mixed Pickles Finast Brand qt jar 99¢
Carnation Coffee-mate 22 oz jar 1.39
Trailer Sweet Peas 9 8 oz cans 1.00
Nabisco Oreos Creme Sandwich also Oreo Swiss 15 oz pkg 79¢
Cranberry Sauce Ocean Spray Jellied 3 16 oz cans 1.00
Dole Pineapple Chunk or Sliced 20 oz can 55¢

Trellis Corn Cream Style or Vac Pak 9 8½ oz cans $1

6 bulbs per pot Tulip Plants 6 inch pots 2.99 ea
6 inch pots Azalea Plants 3.99 ea
Mum Plants Assorted Colors 6 inch Pots ea 3.79
Cinneraria Assorted Colors 6 inch Pots ea 3.99
Hydrangeas Pink, Blue, Purple 2 to 3 Blooms ea 4.99
Orchid Corsages Single Flower ea 1.69
Hyacinth Assort Colors-6 inch Pots 3 blooms ea 2.99
Bouquets Freshly Cut Pom Poms, Carnations, Statice & Greens ea 1.79

BONUS BARGAINS
Hawaiian Punch All Flavors 46 oz can 49¢
Hi-C Fruit Drinks 2 46 oz cans 89¢
Green Giant Whole Kernel or Cream Style Corn 3 17 oz cans 1.00
Hormel SPAM Luncheon Meat 7 oz can 59¢
Spaghetti-O's Franco American 4 14¾ oz cans 1.00
Spaghetti Sauce Progresso 16 oz jar 53¢
Tomato Paste Contadina 4 6 oz cans 1.00
B&M Pea Beans 21 oz can 59¢
Kraft Mayonnaise Imitation pt jar 59¢

Frozen Foods for the Holiday!
Tree Sweet Orange Juice 5 6 oz cans $1
BreadDough Rhodes 5 lb pkg 99¢
Vegetables Finast Peas, Corn or Peas and Carrots 24 oz pkg 59¢
Sliced Strawberries Sun Fresh 10 oz pkg 39¢
Creem Whip Finast Topping 9 oz ctn 49¢
Pound Cake Chock Full O' Nuts 16 oz loaf 99¢

Fully Cooked Hams Shank Portion 79¢ lb
Butt Portion lb 89¢
Whole or Shank Half lb 89¢ Butt Half lb 99¢

MEAT STREET U.S.A.!

Oven Ready Rib Roast First Cut 9th to 12th Rib USDA CHOICE 1.69 lb
Formerly 1st to 4th Rib

Fully Cooked Portions Water Added
Semi-Boneless Hams 1.49 lb
USDA Choice Beef Large End Bone In
Extra Trim Rib Steak 1.79 lb
Arm Picnic-US Government Inspected
Fresh Pork Shoulder 68¢ lb
Boneless USDA Choice
Beef Rib Eye Steak 2.59 lb
Average Weight 10 to 12 lbs (Half Rib Eye 2.39 lb)
Whole Beef Rib Eye 2.19 lb

Fresh Hams Whole or Shank Portion (Butt Portion lb 1.09) lb 99¢
Fresh Pork Roast Boneless Boston Butt lb 1.09
Pork Blade Steaks Fresh Bone In lb 1.09
Fresh Pork Butts Bone In Whole lb 99¢
Ham Portions Boneless Herrud Brand lb 1.79
Ham Steaks Boneless Herrud Brand lb 1.99

Porzio's "Snow White" Fancy Veal!
Veal Scallopini 2.58 lb
Leg or Rump of Veal 1.28 lb
Shoulder Veal Chops lb 1.28
Rib Veal Chops lb 1.48
Loin Veal Chops lb 1.68

USDA A GRADE Fresh Hen Turkeys 8 to 14 lbs 58¢ lb
also Finast Frozen Hen Turkeys with pop-up thermometer 5 to 9 lbs

Seafood Specials this Week!
Turbot Fillet Frozen Greenland 99¢ lb
RedSilverSalmon Whole or Half (Sliced lb 1.99) lb 1.79
FrozenDressedWhiting lb 49¢
FrozenShrimp Ideal for Cocktails Peeled and Deveined lb 1.99
Jumbo Shrimp Frozen Peeled & Deveined lb 5.89
Stuffed Clams Large Frozen 30 oz pkg 1.69

Mr. Deli Favorites!
Roast Beef Cooked Freshly Sliced to Order 1.99 lb
Redi Baked Virginia Baked Ham Whole or Half 1.99 lb
Domestic Cooked Ham 1.99 lb
Easter Kielbasa Hillshire Farms lb 1.29
Carando Pepperoni lb 1.79
Genoa Salami Carando Whole or Half lb 1.59
Hard Salami B/C Whole or Half lb 1.59
Domestic Provolone for Slicing lb 1.69
Imported Swiss Cheese lb 1.99
Sour Dough San Francisco 1-lb loaf 59¢
Butter Cookies Danish Imported 1-lb tin 1.99
Available Only in Finast Stores with Mr. Deli Depts

Fresh California Asparagus 69¢ lb
FIRST O' THE FRESH
Oranges 9 $1
Grapefruit Seedless 5 $1
AnjouPears 10 79¢
Fresh Pascal Celery 49¢
California Carrots 3 89¢
Idaho Potatoes 5 89¢
Holiday Fruit Tray 2.49

Fresh from Baker Street!
Big Round Top White Bread Finast Fresh 3 20 oz lvs $1
Fresh Rolls Finast Salad or Cloverleaf 2 pkgs 89¢
English Muffins Finast 3 pkgs $1
Hot Cross Buns Finast Fresh 14 oz pkg 79¢
Babke Cake 18 oz pkg 1.09

Finast Welcomes FOOD STAMP CUSTOMERS

For Your Health & Beauty!
Listerine Mouthwash 1.59
Bayer Aspirin Tablets 89¢
Alka Seltzer 99¢
Prell Shampoo 1.29
Flex Conditioner 1.39

Sunrise Fresh Dairy Values!
Blue Bonnet Margarine Quarters 2 1-lb pkgs 89¢
Cheese Kraft Deluxe American Slices pkg 99¢
Finast Mozzarella 69¢
Ricotta Cheese Whole Milk 1.89
Finast Sour Cream 16 oz ctn 59¢
Buttermilk Biscuits Finast Brand 8 8 oz ctns $1

Not Responsible for Typographical Errors
Prices effective April 3 thru April 9, 1977
We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

Notices

ALPHA ZETA

There is a very important meeting today in room 163-173 CC at 6:30. All members must attend. Banquet, initiation and current activities will be discussed. Refreshments will be served.

ALTERNATIVE HEALING SEMINAR

There will be a lecture given on Psychic healing and medical dowsing on April 6 in the lounge of the FPH at Hampshire College at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

ASTRONOMY CLUB

Meeting tonight in Hasbrouck 22 at 7. The observatory is now in operation so we will discuss plans for a star party.

BOWLING TEAM MEETING

Mandatory men's and women's team meeting at Boyden at 4:15, Thurs., April 7. Be there.

BRIDGE PLAYERS

We're playing in the back of the Hatch. Enter by the Commuter Assembly for 7:15 game. We have a partner if you need one.

BUDDIST MEDITATION

Sitting meditation followed by study and discussion of Buddist psychology with students of Chogyam Trungpa Rinpoche tonight at 7:30 in the Campus Center. For further information call John Gorman at 569-5663.

CAMPUS SCOUTS

There will be a meeting tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m. in Rm 801 CC. Please come!

CHESS

The Chess Club will meet at 7 p.m. tonight in CC 171. The club has boards, sets, and clocks that anybody who wants to play can use.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB

Meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. CC 903.

COLLEGE LIFE

Have you ever considered how the Resurrection of Jesus Christ is relevant to your life? Come tonight in order to find out and enjoy meeting students who know the relevance of a personal relationship with Christ. 9 p.m. Rm 163 CC.

CONSUMER ECONOMICS MAJORS

Important meeting on Wed., April 6 in Skinner Hall lounge, 6:30 p.m. Nominations for officers will take place and elections will be discussed.

EDUC. HONOR SOCIETY — KAPPA DELTA PI

Wine and cheese get together April 13 at 7:30 p.m., 903 CC. Hope to see y'all there.

DON'T MISS THIS ONE!

An entire issue of student written fiction and poetry in Below the Salt tomorrow. Well worth your attention!

FICTION AND POETRY

In tomorrow's issue of Below the Salt. You'll want to save this one, with the best of student written fiction and poetry.

FOUND

Pair of glasses in Tobin Hall, Saturday during Rugby game. Contact Bill Sundstrom at the Collegian, 5-3500.

FOUND

Denim jacket found with contact lenses in pocket. Found in Hasbrouck, call 545-0824.

FREEDOM SEDER

Tonight at 6:30 p.m. in the SU Ballroom, a Freedom Seder open to the whole Univ. community. Sponsored by Ecumenical Ministries of UMass, Martin Luther King Week Committee and others. Come celebrate solidarity for goal of freedom from oppression.

GRAD STUDENT SENATE

Discussion of proposed amendments to the Graduate Student Senate Constitution and By-Laws. All senators and graduate students are urged to come Thurs., April 7 at 7 p.m. in CC 919.

GREEK AMERICANS ATTENTION!

The Hellenic American Assoc. is having a very important meeting tonight in room 162-175 CC at 7:30. The international fair and our social activities for the rest of the semester will be discussed, so please attend.

HOME ECONOMICS SYMPOSIUM

"Clothing: Quality is Price" which deals with getting the best product for the best price will be held on Mon. April 18 in the CC. Don't forget to mark it on your calendar. Get your registration form in Skinner Hall. Deadline for registration is April 8.

ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION

There will be an organizational meeting for Israel Independence Day, tonight April 6 at 8 p.m. in SU 302. For more information call 6-8138. Israel Independence Day is April 24.

J.P. STEVENS BOYCOTT ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING

Stevens Boycott Committee will hold a meeting to structure boycott work for this Spring, in 174-176 CC tonight at 8 p.m.

LE SPECTACLE MOLIERE

The French Corridor is sponsoring a production of "Le Spectacle Moliere" by the French Theater of Boston, Compagnie Bernard Uzan, Tues., April 12 at 7:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets $2.

LOST

Small black address book. Please call 549-0363 and ask for Rich or leave message.

MEETING — HORSE JUDGING TEAM

Meeting Thurs. at 4 p.m. at Tilson Farms. All interested are welcome.

MONDAY NIGHT FOLKDANCING

Once again we are starting up Monday night folkdancing. It will start this coming Monday, April 11 from 8-11:30 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge, SU. Lots of requests, dancing for all levels and some teaching on an intermediate to advanced level only. Please come early. Any lack of attendance will result in permanent cancellation of Monday nights. Our success depends on you!

NORTHEAST AFFAIRS

Northeast Area Government will be having a meeting tonight in Dwight at 6:30. Anyone interested is welcome. Please come and share your ideas!

ROISTER DOISTER MEETING

There will be a meeting tonight at 5:30 in CC 802. Many articles of business will be discussed including upcoming elections for executive board positions.

SECOND SEMESTER SOPHOMORES

Interested in designing an interdepartmental major through BDIC? Stop by Goodell 416. Academic counselors are available to discuss your ideas. Deadline for fall 1977 applications is counseling week.

SELF EXPLORATION WORKSHOP: SEXUALITY

Room to Move is sponsoring a free workshop tonight entitled "A Question of Self Awareness: Sexuality". It will run from 7:30-9:30 tonight in CC 811-815.

SPECTRUM DEADLINE TODAY!

Bring your submissions down to 106 CC by 3 p.m. today. Spectrum meeting tonight 5:30 106 CC.

SOLAR GREENHOUSE MEETING

All people interested in the construction of a solar greenhouse, please come to SCER Thurs. eve at 6:30. Everyone is urged to attend.

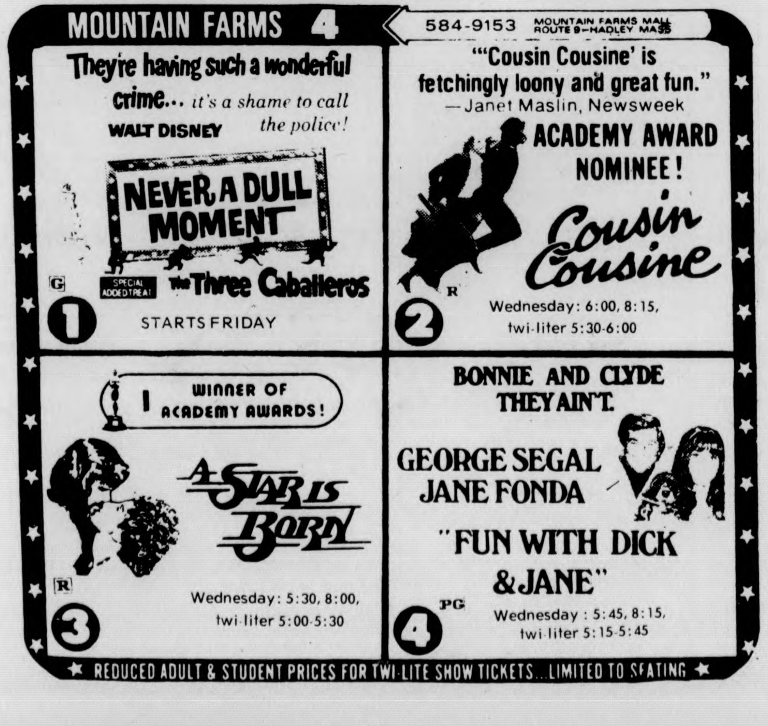
CALVIN NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW... EVERY EVE AT 7:00 9:00
SISSY SPACEK
PIPER LAURIE
MONDAY and TUESDAY DOLLAR NITES!
"CARRIE"
If only they knew she had the power.
R

Showcase Cinemas
ROUTE 5
RIVERDALE RD.
West Springfield
733-5131
BARGAIN $2.50 till 2:30
MATINEES WED. SAT. SUN
ROCKY PG United Artists
MGM presents NETWORK R United Artists
AIRPORT '77 A UNIVERSAL PICTURE TECHNICOLOR PANAVISION PG
REDFORD/HOFFMAN "ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN" 8 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS PG
LATE SHOW PG
A STAR IS BORN R
BLACK SUNDAY R
A RALPH BAKSHI FILM WIZARDS PG
PLEASE CALL THEATRE FOR SCREEN TIMES

University of massachusetts arts council presents
TITO PUENTE ORCHESTRA
THURS., APRIL 14 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $6, 5, 4. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

University of massachusetts arts council presents
Minnesota Orchestra
Stanislaw Skrowaczewski
Music Director
TUES., APRIL 19 8 PM
Tickets now on sale! $7, 6, 5. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

University of massachusetts arts council presents
national black theatre
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations



MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY MASS
1 They're having such a wonderful crime... it's a shame to call the police! WALT DISNEY NEVER A DULL MOMENT G SPECIAL ADDED TREAT The Three Caballeros STARTS FRIDAY
2 "'Cousin Cousine' is fetchingly loony and great fun." —Janet Maslin, Newsweek ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE! Cousin Cousine R Wednesday: 6:00, 8:15, twi-liter 5:30-6:00
3 WINNER OF 1 ACADEMY AWARDS! A STAR IS BORN R Wednesday: 5:30, 8:00, twi-liter 5:00-5:30
4 BONNIE AND CLYDE THEY AIN'T. GEORGE SEGAL JANE FONDA "FUN WITH DICK & JANE" PG Wednesday: 5:45, 8:15, twi-liter 5:15-5:45
REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI-LITE SHOW TICKETS...LIMITED TO SEATING

Academy of Music Northampton
only area showing
NOW, ends Tuesday!
at 7:00 & 9:00
a film by françois truffaut
small change
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

University of massachusetts arts council presents
KARR-LEWIS DUO
Double Bass & Keyboard
WED., APRIL 6 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

University of massachusetts arts council presents
THIS TIME FOR SURE!
PILOBOLUS DANCE THEATER
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

Classifieds

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line
Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

23 ch. C.B. & new ant. $49. 549-4789.

Baritone Sax — Buescher. Ex. cond. $425 or will trade for camera & money. 586-1556.

Automatic radio, 8 track auto. tape deck — FM radio. $60 or best offer. Call Mike 253-5366.

Panasonic stereo system receiver with 8 track play-record, Garrard turntable, walnut cabinet, speakers. $300 or best offer. Call Mike 253-5366.

Waterbed - raised frame, heater. $125. 584-5614, nights.

10 speed Schwinn. $65. John, 549-3812.

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

1969 Ford Falcon, blue, 46,000 miles, good running condition. Asking $600.00. 19" Atela 10 speed bicycle - $95.00. 253-7249.

Gibson SG std. guitar w-case. Fairly new, in very good cond. $245 or best offer. Call Bob 6-9432.

2 14 in. radials. Ex. cond. John, 253-5741.

Semi-pro bike. All alloy components. Fiammi, Sugino, etc. Superb cond. 6-6909.

Soprano sax — great cond. 2 Pentax lenses. 256-0223. Mel.

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Chev. Impala. $1650. firm. 246-0642.

'65 Spitfire, complete. $100. 203-745-6764, evenings.

'73 Toyota Corolla, gd. cond., AM-FM radio, auto. trans. Call 665-3686 after 4:30.

'63 Buick LeSabre wagon. One owner. Runs well. $200 or best offer. 546-5758.

'66 VW Bug. Good engine, crummy body. First $100. Charlie 209 Draper, days.

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!.

Triumph Spitfire 1964 - nice condition, many new parts, needs clutch. Best offer. Mark, 665-3670.

1969 VW Squareback, fuel injection, good condition, extras. $599. 549-5070.

'68 Camaro, vc top, 350 engine, 4v, auto trans., needs work. $400. or best offer. 549-4744.

'71 Ford Van. Runs well. AM-FM, 8 trak stereo, new tires, mattress, curtns. 253-3012.

1968 Ford XL. New tires, good shape. $600 or B.O. 586-0610.

AUTO FOR SALE

'74 Pinto Wgn. 50,000. Ex. cond., 4 spd., std., 4 radials and snws. AM-FM, 8 tr., 2 spkr. $1450. Call eve. 665-3237.

BMW, 1967. Exc. cond. $1200. 256-6459.

'70 Toyota Corona. Ex. cond. Must be seen. $900. Have to sell. 665-3255.

'66 Plymouth Belvedere, auto., good body, runs well. $175. Call Mark 549-2824.

'74 Vega GT. AM-FM, lo miles, exc. cond. and best offer. Call Ken 253-2909.

VW Bug. 1965. Good for parts or a project. Can be driven. $75.00. Call Nick Elliot, 545-2642.

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0610 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

'68 Volvo 122. Very good shape. $800. 586-0610 anytime.

'66 Dodge Van, rblt. 6 cly., good tires. $650 or B.O. Kent, 549-1292 after 7 p.m.

1969 Econ 300 Van. $1200. 665-7050.

'68 Buick Skylark. Good condition and good body. $450.00. Linda, 256-0548.

'64 Ford Galaxie, mech. v. gd., body lousy. $175. Call 256-8347 after 6.

Volvo parts. 122 and 142. Good prices. 586-0610 anytime.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

Strong cable lock, $35 new, want $20. '72 Honda 350CB, pft. cond. $650 — B.O. $150 of extras included. Dave 549-1374.

1970 Kawasaki 500, runs well, very fast. $600. Call 549-1259 or 549-1316.

2 helmets, lock and chain, saddle bags, shields. Call Jeff. rm. 418. 545-0790—91.

'73 Honda 450 CL. 7500 mi. 2 helmets, plus men's and women's brown Harley leathers. All in good cond. $800 or B.O. 549-0179.

AUDIO

Quality components over 130 lines. Reasonable prices. Call Peter, 665-2920.

HELP WANTED

Summer jobs — Forest Service, 140 Nat'l Forests. How, where, when to apply. Complete info. $3.: Mission Mountain Co., Box 727, Polson, Montana 59860.

Summer work available. Call for an interview — 253-2598.

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

FOR RENT

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 plus sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

Boston: Ex-large Apt.; 2 bedrm., living, dining, sun porch, front-rear balcony, etc. $260 b.o. June-August—617-426-0871 (days) 782-8015 (nights) Write: Att.:Rob, 147 South St., Boston.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

2 rms. in 2 bdrm. apt. 1 sublet, 1 lease. Puf. Vil. June 1. 549-0589.

1 rm. in 2 bdrm. apt. Sund. $100. incl. util. Call 549-1391.

3 br. apt. avail. 5-21-8-31. Pool, A-C, three-quarter mi. from campus. Call 549-6038.

Apartment: May 23-Aug. 31. Call: 10-2. M-F. Ask for Mike. Leave Mess. 545-0189.

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

Grad student to share 2 bedroom apt. with same. $110— mo. incl. util. 256-6712.

Roommate wanted. Own bdrm. in 2 bdrm. Colonial Vill. Apt. F pref. on bus, laundry, furnished. $75—mo. incl. util. May 20 - Aug. 31. Call Sue 256-6169.

WANTED

Non-Smoking, non-drinking, potential veg., very tidy, grad asst. seeks a quiet co-op living situation in Belchertown. $100—inc. Bill 253-7105 or 5-2155.

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

Looking for used quality scuba gear (Lrg.). Call evenings - 253-5410.

To buy, dbl.—twin bed. Eves. 253-9776.

TO SUBLET

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths and terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

1 bedroom apt., Puffton Village, June 16-Aug. 31. Air cond., pool, tennis courts. Call 549-4789.

Shutesbury — 2 bdrm. apt. Sublease Fall option. $225, heat incl. Call 256-0575.

2 br. apt., furn., pool, pets. June 1 - Aug. 31. ½ of May free $150 - mo. Squ. Vil. 665-2904.

3 bdrm. townhouse 3/4 mi. to campus Jun-Sept. 1. 2 bus rtes. Call 549-4955.

TO SUBLET

3 bdrm. Twnhse. apt. on bus rt. Semi-furn., air cond., pool. 6-1—8-31. Rent neg. 549-6919.

2 bdr. Brandywine, furn. 5-22 to 9-31 with optn. to renew lease. Rent neg. Call 549-0915.

2 bdrm. in twnhse. 6-1—opt. to rnw. 665-4230. $185.

2 bdrm. Twnhse. on bus rte. Avail. 6-1—8-31 with option for leasing 9-77. Air cond., pool. Call 253-7410.

4 bdrm. apt. Rol. Green. June-Aug. 6-7161.

2 bdrm. apt., avail. 6-1. Opt. renew. Good loc. Call 253-2841.

Two bedroom apt. at Cliffside in Sunderland, on bus route. Swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low rent. Call 665-4729 and keep trying.

Sublet—2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220-mon., A.C., pool, on bus rt! Call 665-3619.

Boston Summer Sublet — 2 bdrm. apt., lvng rm., kitch. Furn., air cond., reasonable rent. Parking avail. 2 min. from Mass. Transit. Call 546-9709.

3 bedr. apt. Puf. Vlg. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus route. Aprox. grad.-Aug. 31. Pool. Rent neg. Call 256-6051 eve.

Summer Sublet: 2 bdrm. sunny apt., Northampton Cntr. 15 min. walk to bus. Reasonable. 586-4422.

3 bdrm. Townhouse Apts. June-Aug. $270 or B.O. Call 549-1211 morn., eves.

Summer Sublet: Option to renew. 2 bdrm. Pres. Apt. Walk to campus. 549-5898.

Gorgeous 3 bedrm. apt. 63 Graves St., So. Deerfield, on bus rt. Apt. is very unique, must be seen, call 665-7193.

3 bdr. Puff. Vill. On bus rt. 6-1—9-1. 549-0748.

1 br. in 3 br. Puffton Vill. Apt. Furn., pool, tennis courts. 549-0611. May 31 thru August 31.

2 br. apt. w-huge yard-garden. On bus rt. June 1-Sept. 1. 253-2819. Keep trying.

2 bdrm. apt. Brandywine 6-1—8-31. Bus route, pool, pets. Rent neg. 549-1517 aft. 5.

June 1-Aug. 31. Colonial Village. Bus rt. 2 bdrms., semi-furnished. Call 253-3684.

2 bdrm. apt., Squire Vill., bus rt., 1½ baths, LR, DR, kitch., avail. now. Call 665-2203 or 665-3985. Anytime.

PERSONALS

My dearest prince — one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

Lizzy F. (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie, D.L.

Luxury two bedroom apt. in Sunderland for summer sublet. On UMass bus route, swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low, low rent. Call 665-4729 anytime.

PERSONALS

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

To the girl with the great lips, if they say the first year is only the beginning, then the best is yet to come. —Scoop—

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot: you're alright too. AJF.

To Joe the aspiring journalist: Happy Birthday ! From Ellen.

TRAVEL

Free tuition for 1 or 2 yrs. at any one of 140 univ., tech. schools and Yeshivas in Israel. Fully accredited programs for Jr. year and Grad study. Enrollment — min. 2 yrs. in advance, benefits from 1979-1989. Please contact: The Gift of Education, Dept. MA, Suite 710, 10 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020: 212-541-7568.

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075.

Disco Inferno, Fri., April 8, 9 p.m. - 1 a.m. 10th fl. Campus Center, Adm. $1.

SERVICES

Tune-up and main all AM makes. John 253-5664.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

FOUND

Found nr. Thoreau. Tell me what it was. 546-7503.

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears. cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

LOST

Black vinyl ring binder lost - Amherst Environ. Contact owner at 253-7139.

3 golf clubs in S-west fields. Reward. Call Flynt 546-6071.

Gold necklace-chain and charm. Live-Love-Laugh. Sentimental value. Reward offered. 546-8159.

CALCULATORS

New Prices! College Calculators services all T.I.'s for entire warranty: SR-52, $189; SR-56, $82; SR-51, $58; [illegible] 523; Commodore 1800 Scientific, $[illegible]. All HP's avail! Call and check our prices and service. Call Bob or Linda daytime 549-1310.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

CONCERT REVIEWS

Glass In Hartford

By ANDY MACKENZIE
Below the Salt Staff

I'll have to use a sort of jerry-rigged image to describe the way Phillips Glass' music seemed to me at a concert in Hartford last week: The image I'm looking for is something comparable to an extremely powerful whirlpool, drawing the listener smoothly but inescapably toward its center, where there is no motion and yet where all that energy is focused. But using the whirlpool image carries the idea of being drawn to the center and downward; what's needed is something which will express that same kind of force being channeled upward.

More than likely this image was suggested to me by the fact that the seven members of the Glass Ensemble sat facing each other in a circle, so that the actual physical sound seemed to have a circular motion and at the same time to sort of erupt upward and out as if propelled by centrifugal force. The music too, as suggested, is built in a similar fashion, not of note strung to note in a line stretching from the beginning to the end — the standard approach to composition — but of note-blocks, each block being a short musical phrase. This basic element is used cyclically — that is, in repetition like a chant or tape loop, but what makes it interesting is the fact that there are several different cycles and variations on cycles going on simultaneously. In other words, the listener is not drawn to the contents of the note-blocks but to the changing relationships between them. It is, in some respects, like listening to a raga — the use of one pitch in relation to another for hypnotic effect, the surrender to a flow of texture rather than the expectation of key changes, counterpoint, etc.

It is also like listening to a fugue, which is built from one short musical phrase, into endless combinations and variations. Since Glass has worked and studied with both Western composers and the likes of Ravi Shankar, it might be expected that he would come to this energizing synthesis, a sort of Eastern music for the Western culture-oriented. His new record on Virgin, North Star, doesn't have the same impact as his performance at the University of Hartford last week due to the fact that the pieces on the lp had to be edited down considerably, but is still a good introduction to his sound. Go see his opera, Einstein On The Beach, if you get a chance. Powerfully uplifting music, a good massage for the id.

Tull In Boston

By DAVID SANTOS
Below the Salt Staff

There are few rock bands that command such love and adoration from their fans as Jethro Tull does. Tull's recent "comeback" Boston Garden concert affirmed that quite clearly; the mere presence of Ian Anderson on stage drew maniacal applause; it is rumored that one fanatical Tullite dressed up as a Western Union Telegraph man to meet Anderson after the show. And I find this quite amazing; considering the general decline over the past three years, most fans would have given up by now.

It must be Anderson's drive that keeps Jethro Tull popular and vital. Anderson may have some bad points, but no one works his ass off on stage more than him. The two huge white balloons he threw out over the crowd proclaiming "It's For You" — "So Is This One" isn't some cheap concession to the Tull legions. Ian and the band bask in this type of "love-in", safe for the time being from the senseless barbs of critics who care less, but see fit to hate him anyway.

The show was Jethro Tull's typical professionalism, thoughtful, well-planned and executed. This was not however the cold, precision-like Warchild or last summer's tours, but a warm, grateful projection. True Ian has not lost his penchant for snide, cynical remarks — but this time around he doesn't come off as a contemptuous egotist. A welcome relief indeed from the somewhat justifiable "martyr complex" he's taken of late.

At any rate, this was a show for the fans — no support act, just Tull for two hours. Looking smart in an outfit topped off by a bright red derby hat, Anderson strolled out to perform two acoustic numbers — "Wondering Aloud" and "Skating Away On The Thin Ice Of New Day". Both were performed with the utmost grace and one wonders by Anderson's acoustic guitar work doesn't get praised more often. The other five members of the band strolled on stage for "Skating Away", switching various instruments with relative ease.

Up next came a new song, the wistful "Jack In The Green" from the new album, Songs From The Wood. This was quickly followed by a song Anderson introduced as "Whole Lotta Brick", but quickly deduced by the UMASS contingent as the ageless "Thick As A Brick" medley. It was here that Tull started turning towards their infamous electric ensemble chamber rock. The medley was highlighted by a truly stunning flute-guitar sortie, the first in what proved to be an endless succession of missions the Anderson-Barre axis provided that night. The first set was capped off perfectly by "Songs From The Woods" (with backing tapes) and a classic medley of "To Cry You A Song" and "A New Day Yesterday".

The second set consisted of a well balanced mix of songs that ranged from "Velvet Green" to "Minstrel In The Gallery", not forgetting some proven winners like "Cross Eyed Mary" and "Aqualung". Unfortunately, nothing was heard from A Passion Play. The two encores concluded the night in dizzying fashion by way of a 30 minute medley of "Wind Up", "Back Door Angels" and "Locomotive Breath".

Throughout the night, Tull performed with spirit and energy that's been missing in past tours. Their recent lp, Songs From The Wood, has brought them back to earth. New bassist John Glascock has improved admirably, as well as being a new source for Anderson's "somewhat" condescending remarks. And a special award must go to one John Evans, who's erratic behavior takes on new dimensions of sillyness. (Supposedly it was John's birthday).

On the whole, '77 Jethro Tull performed quite well. Don't get me wrong — this show had its bad points: excessive soloing and the dubious inclusion of "Too Old To Rock 'n' Roll: Too Young To Die" and, "Minstrel In The Gallery". However, in light of the state of Tull recently, this is more than I expected. If Anderson sees fit to throw away these notions then he should play what critics and audiences want, he'll resurrect the Tull that had few peers. Songs From the Wood and this tour is a giant step forward for Jethro Tull. And yes Ian, "It's good to be back home with you".

SAVE-ON-TIRES, Inc. ROUTE 9, HADLEY 3 Miles from Northampton 3 Miles From Amherst

OPEN MON. & THURS 9 to 8 P.M. TUES., WED. & FRI. 9 to 6 P.M. SAT. 9 to 4

FIRESTONE-MICHELIN-LEE-GENERAL-ARMSTRONG
B.F. GOODRICH — PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS

TIRES CASH 'N-CARRY Wholesale to the Public

If you need tires — before you buy elsewhere, see our prices that can't be beat!

4 PLY POLYESTER

LEE OF CONSHOHOCKEN TIRES First Quality

SIZE	Sale Price
A78x13	$18.95
B78x13 C78x14	$20.95
E78x14 F78x14	$22.50
G78x14 G78x15	$23.50
H78x14 H78x15	$25.50
L78x15	$28.95

XL-200

WHITEWALLS ONLY 77¢ MORE Plus F.E. Tax

40,000 MILE WEAR GUARANTEE

MICHELIN X FOR AMERICAN CARS

STEEL RADIAL

WHITEWALLS	REPLACES	Reg. Price	Sale Price	FET
165x13	A78x13	59.17	44.38	1.77
175x13	B78x13	62.66	46.99	1.99
175x14	C78x14	66.37	49.78	2.13
185x14	E78x14	71.17	53.38	2.30
195x14	F78x14	75.46	56.59	2.51
205x14	G78x14	81.67	61.25	2.66
215x14	H78x14	88.81	66.61	2.95
205x15	G78x15	86.40	64.80	2.84
215x15	H78x15	91.70	68.78	3.13
225x15	J78x15	95.56	71.67	3.29
230x15	L78x15	109.04	81.78	3.33

DOUBLE STEEL BELTED RADIALS

First Quality 2-Steel-Plus 2-Polyester • 78 SERIES • WHITEWALLS

Made By ARMSTRONG

Size	Price
BR 78 x13	$29.95 Each plus F.E.T.
DR 78x14 ER 78x14 FR 78x14	$36.95 each plus F.E.T.
GR 78x14 GR 78x15 HR 78x15	$39.95 each plus F.E.T.
LR 78x15	$45.00 each plus F.E.T.

MICHELIN ZX IMPORTED AND SPORTS CARS BLACKWALL TUBELESS

STEEL RADIAL

Size	Reg. Price	Sale Price	F.E. Tax
155x12	45.53	34.15	1.39
145x13	41.69	31.27	1.23
155x13	46.60	34.95	1.48
165x13	51.77	38.83	1.61
175-70-13	58.75	44.06	1.72
185-70-13	65.01	48.76	1.95
165x14	56.97	42.73	1.70
175x14	59.82	44.86	2.01
185x14	62.37	46.78	2.24
155x15	54.59	40.94	1.66
165x15	60.45	45.34	1.82
175x15 Wht	82.04	61.53	2.18

FOREIGN CAR RADIALS First Quality

165x13
165x14
165x15

ONE PRICE ANY SIZE $28.95 Plus F.E. Tax

FIBERGLASS BELTED

Made by MAJOR U.S. TIRE MFGR. SAME QUALITY AS NEW CAR EQUIPMENT

WHITEWALLS

Size	Price
A 78 x 13	$22.50 Plus 1.77 Tax
B78x13 C78x13 C78x14	25.95 Plus F.E.T.
E 78x14 F78x14 G78x14 G78x15	28.95 Plus F.E.T.
H78x14 H78x15 J78x15 L78x15	32.95 Plus F.E.T.

FIBERGLASS BELT FIBERGLASS BELT TWO BIAS PLIES OF POLYESTER CORD

MADE BY PIRELLI FIRST QUALITY

560x15 VW 18.95 ea. + F.E.T.

REGULAR RECAPS

YOUR CHOICE - ANY SIZE

14.95 ea. Plus F.E.T. WHITEWALLS only 77¢ more.

WIDE TRACKS

HI PERFORMANCE - DOUBLE GLASS BELTED "SUPER PROWLER" - RAISED WHITE LETTERS

SIZE	REG. PRICE	SALE PRICE	F.E. TAX	TIRE WIDTH
F60x14	51.19	38.95	2.82	8.25"
G60x14	53.41	39.95	3.07	8.25"
L60x14	60.14	42.95	3.56	10.25"
G60x15	54.30	39.95	3.08	8.25"
L60x15	62.06	45.95	3.70	10.25"
A70x13	40.88	28.95	1.96	6.00"
E70x14	44.06	32.95	2.47	6.75"
F70x14	46.24	34.95	2.61	7.00"
G70x14	47.70	35.95	2.78	7.25"
H70x14	51.33	39.95	3.04	7.25"
G70x15	48.77	36.95	2.84	7.25"
H70x15	51.95	39.95	3.08	7.50"

Tested by "Car and Driver Magazine" As The Highest Scorer Of All The Non-Radials

SAVE-ON-TIRES, INC.

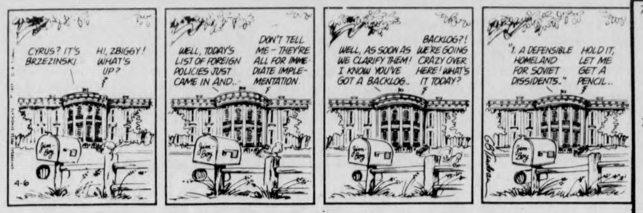
ROUTE 9 HADLEY
Cash and Carry or BankAmericard Master Charge
586-2544

HOURS:
MON & THURS 9 to 8 P.M.
TUES WED & FRI 9 to 6 P.M.
SAT 9 to 4

1 MILE WEST ON THE SAME SIDE OF RTE. 9 FROM HADLEY DRIVE-IN THEATRE

DOONESBURY by Gary Trudeau

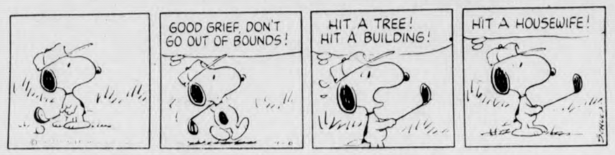
Valley
29 S Pleasant St
call 256-6736
M F 10-6 S 10-2



CYRUS? IT'S BRZEZINSKI.
HI, ZBIGGY! WHAT'S UP?
WELL, TODAY'S LIST OF FOREIGN POLICIES JUST CAME IN AND...
DON'T TELL ME - THEY'RE ALL FOR IMMEDIATE IMPLEMENTATION.
WELL, AS SOON AS WE CLARIFY THEM! I KNOW YOU'VE GOT A BACKLOG..
BACKLOG?! WE'RE GOING CRAZY OVER HERE! WHAT'S IT TODAY?
"1. A DEFENSIBLE HOMELAND FOR SOVIET DISSIDENTS."
HOLD IT, LET ME GET A PENCIL..
Jim-Boy
4-6

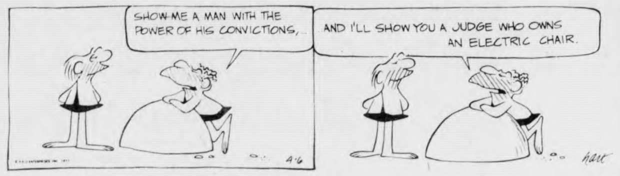
PEANUTS by Charles Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



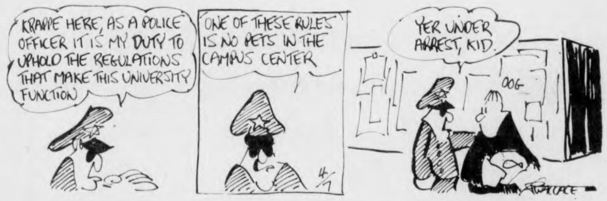
GOOD GRIEF, DON'T GO OUT OF BOUNDS!
HIT A TREE! HIT A BUILDING!
HIT A HOUSEWIFE!

B.C. by Johnny Hart



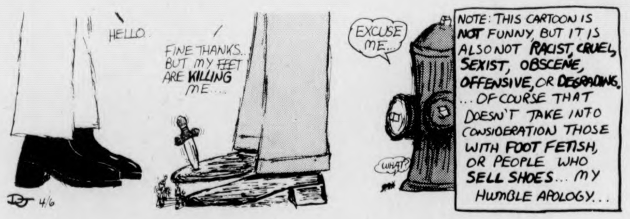
SHOW ME A MAN WITH THE POWER OF HIS CONVICTIONS, ...
AND I'LL SHOW YOU A JUDGE WHO OWNS AN ELECTRIC CHAIR.
4-6
hart

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



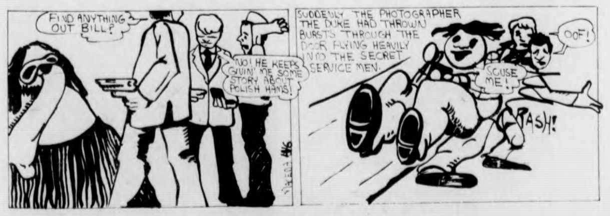
KRAPPE HERE, AS A POLICE OFFICER IT IS MY DUTY TO UPHOLD THE REGULATIONS THAT MAKE THIS UNIVERSITY FUNCTION
ONE OF THESE RULES IS NO PETS IN THE CAMPUS CENTER
YER UNDER ARREST, KID.
DOG
4/7
WALLACE

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



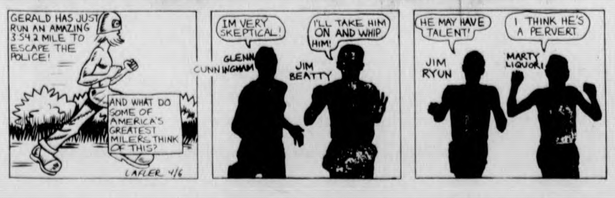
HELLO.
FINE THANKS.. BUT MY FEET ARE KILLING ME....
EXCUSE ME...
WHAT?
NOTE: THIS CARTOON IS NOT FUNNY, BUT IT IS ALSO NOT RACIST, CRUEL, SEXIST, OBSCENE, OFFENSIVE, OR DEGRADING. ...OF COURSE THAT DOESN'T TAKE INTO CONSIDERATION THOSE WITH FOOT FETISH, OR PEOPLE WHO SELL SHOES... MY HUMBLE APOLOGY...
DJ 4/6

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



FIND ANYTHING OUT BILL?
NO! HE KEEPS GIVIN' ME SOME STORY ABOUT POLISH HAMS!
SUDDENLY THE PHOTOGRAPHER THE DUKE HAD THROWN BURSTS THROUGH THE DOOR FLYING HEAVILY INTO THE SECRET SERVICE MEN.
OOF!
SCUSE ME!
CRASH!

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



GERALD HAS JUST RUN AN AMAZING 3:54.2 MILE TO ESCAPE THE POLICE!
AND WHAT DO SOME OF AMERICA'S GREATEST MILERS THINK OF THIS?
LAFLER 4/6
IM VERY SKEPTICAL!
GLENN CUNNINGHAM
I'LL TAKE HIM ON AND WHIP HIM!
JIM BEATTY
HE MAY HAVE TALENT!
JIM RYUN
I THINK HE'S A PERVERT.
MARTY LIQUORI

Local Television

7:00 3 22 40 NEWS
8 CONCENTRATION
18 THE 700 CLUB
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
27 EASTER IS
30 THE CROSS-WITS
38 THE ODD COUPLE
56 STAR TREK
57 AS MAN BEHAVES
7:30 3 $25,000 PYRAMID
8 BREAK THE BANK
22 THE BIG MONEY TV GAME
24 CONNECTICUT
27 TAX TIPS
30 MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S WILD KINGDOM
38 DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
40 EASTER IS
56 FAMILY AFFAIR
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 GOOD TIMES
8 40 THE EASTER BUNNY IS COMIN' TO TOWN
22 30 THE LIFE AND TIMES OF GRIZZLY ADAMS "The Rivals"
24 57 NOVA "The Wolf Equation"
27 MOVIE "Clive Of India"
56 MOVIE "David and Bathsheba"
8:30 3 LOVES ME, LOVES ME NOT
9:00 3 CBS SPECIAL "Something for Joey"
8 40 BARETTA "Guns and Brothers"
18 WILBURN BROTHERS
22 30 JACKIE GLEASON HONEYMOON SPECIALS
24 57 GREAT PERFORMANCES "Easter Chester Mystery" Play
38 DOUBLE FEATURE MOVIE "Ghost Ship" and "The Key Man"
9:30 18 THE PTL CLUB
10:00 8 40 THE BARBARA WALTERS SPECIAL
22 30 KINGSTON: CONFIDENTIAL "Seed of Corruption"
24 57 SCENES FROM A MARRIAGE "The Illiterates"
27 NEWS
56 LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE
10:30 27 BIG MONEY
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
27 MOVIE "Tin Pan Alley"
38 THE HONEYMOONERS "Tv or Not Tv"
56 BEST OF GROUCHO
57 CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS
11:30 3 CBS LATE MOVIE "The Thousand Plane Raid"
8 40 THE ROOKIES MYSTERY OF THE WEEK
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
38 THE BOLD ONES "In Sudden Darkness"
56 NIGHT GALLERY
57 CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS
1:00 22 30 TOMORROW
18 THE 700 CLUB
1:30 3 NEWS, WEATHER

Your Birthday by Stella Wilder

Wednesday, April 6— Born today, you are not one to be fooled by any false display when and where others are trying to sweet-talk you, whether by word or deed, into granting a favor. Generally speaking, when such a situation arises, you are careful to look to your own interests, for experience has taught you that it is when you are being most unselfish about your own work and progress, when you are giving your all in the service of the work and progress of others, that you are most vulnerable. You do not enjoy holding back your aid; indeed, you derive your greatest pleasure from helping another succeed. What you have to be careful about is discerning between those who truly need your help and those who merely want to take advantage of you.

You do not criticize others quickly or easily. Even when called upon to do so, you find it difficult to point out to another the weakness in his accomplishment, no matter where it should happen to be along the line between inception and completion. And just as you cannot criticize others well, so you cannot accept criticism from others with any degree of grace. Even when you know from an intellectual standpoint that faults are present, you cannot bring yourself to be objective about them when they are pointed out by others.

You enjoy taking part in conversations and never lack for something witty and reasonable to contribute. You are careful, however, not to assume the air of an expert -- and this is true even when you are an expert at the subject at hand --for you realize how thin a line this would force you to tread between self-assertion and bragging. That you succeed in not appearing immodest is attested to by your popularity.

* * *

Thursday, April 7

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Today provides an excellent opportunity to demonstrate how well you can be trusted with another's secrets. Keep silent at evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your determined air may cause resentment in some; it should, however, create considerable admiration for you in others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You and your wit should be welcome wherever you go today. Make certain that you are not riding on another's coattails at evening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — If you are to be truly satisfied with your progress today, discover in yourself harmony. Look at another's accomplishments without jealousy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Don't allow yourself to be bothered by another's insistence that he can do better than you. Let him prove his assertions first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — There are letters owed friends and family that cause pain through being lacking. Sit down at once and write!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Don't allow another's fears to interfere with your progress. If you can, gain the support of one who could ultimately be a partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22-Nov. 21) — The more susceptible you are to the power of suggestion, the unhappier you will be by day's end. Try to remain independent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Don't allow another to lead your life for you. Know what you want -- and figure out a peaceable and practical way to get it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Keep your wits about you when chaos threatens to take over on the employment scene. Advancement depends upon it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Make no promises you cannot keep. Children are especially suggestive today; put a guard on your tongue.

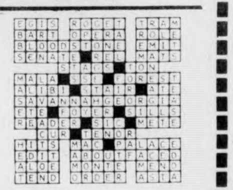
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — So long as you go about getting what you want in a tactful, subtle way, no one should object. You may have to take no for an answer.

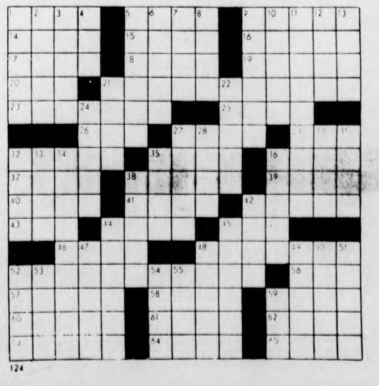
Copyright, 1977 United Feature Syndicate Inc.

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Add zest to
5 Limited time period
9 Broad piece of wood
14 Small group
15 Trojan War hero
16 Reticent
17 Undersized animal
18 Guido ---- It painter
19 Rajah's wife
20 Presidential nickname
21 North of Canada 2 words
23 Low protective railing
25 Away from the wind
26 Garden plot
27 Remove water in a way
29 Implement decisions
32 Did some gardening
35 ---- lease
36 Stare at amorously
37 Fail to include
38 Chairs, e g
39 Of zero curvature
40 Monsieur Abbr
41 Accumulated traditions
42 Swelters Informal
43 Work unit
44 Cause to cohere
45 Female rabbit
46 "Chic" ---- Amer humorist
48 "Sing You -------"
52 Meetings
56 Large vessel
57 Harangue
58 Mob violence
59 ---- earner Breadwinner
60 In a compact mass
61 4,840 sq yds
62 Principle
63 Unique things
64 Eye slyly
65 Bacterium

DOWN
1 Long narrow strip
2 W. Indies island
3 Hit in baseball
4 Infant
5 ------ and feathered
6 Evict
7 Exclaim with violence
8 11th century date Roman
9 Dead Sea ------
10 Set
11 Lindbergh 2 words
12 Cruising
13 Numerical suffix
21 Did the same
22 Muslim officials
24 Instigates
27 Growth of hair
28 Sweeten the kitty
30 Nail
31 Asian holiday seasons
32 Vatican City site
33 God of love
34 N Amer reptile 2 words
35 Spanish region
36 Frequently
38 More cunning
42 The "S" of "S A R"
44 Extorts money from
45 Calorie watcher
47 In the rear
48 A debt
49 Escape by deceit
50 Violent person
51 Power
52 1970 Broadway hit
53 Algerian seaport
54 Epochal
55 Appealing
59 Kind of headpiece





124

UNITED TRANSMISSION EXCHANGE, INC.

ALL MAKE CAR AND TRUCK TRANSMISSIONS

REPAIRED
REBUILT
EXCHANGED

KING STREET NORTHAMPTON
584-6790

ring day
JOSTENS

Seniors !
Last ring days
before
graduat[illegible]!
Tues. A[illegible]5
Weds. April 6
10 a.m. - 4 p.m.
at the
University Store
U. Mass.

Sports calendar

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS
Varsity Baseball — vs. Holy Cross — Postponed
Women's Track — vs. UConn-Vermont — Postponed
Varsity Softball — vs. Lowell — Postponed
Women's Water Polo — Boston College 8 UMass 6

TODAY
Varsity Baseball — vs. Holy Cross Home 3:00
Varsity Men's Lacrosse — vs. UConn Home 3:00
Men's Track — vs. Holy Cross Away 2:00
Varsity Tennis — vs. Williams Away 3:00
JV Men's Lacrosse — vs. Yale Home 3:00

TOMORROW
None

Yanks' bucks Dent Chisox

NEW YORK [UPI] — The New York Yankees yesterday accomplished their longtime goal of acquiring shortstop Bucky Dent from the Chicago White Sox in a deal involving three other players and a sizeable amount of cash.

The Yankees immediately announced that Dent had signed a three-year contract estimated at $200,000 annually.

In exchange for the 25-year-old Dent, a lifetime .266 hitter, the Yankees sent outfielder Oscar Gamble, minor league pitchers Bob Polinsky and Dewey Hoyt to the White Sox along with more than $250,000 in cash.

The Yankees, who were foiled at the winter meetings in their attempts to obtain Texas Rangers shortstop Toby Harrah, have been after Dent for nearly four months. Dent, an American League all star two years ago, became available this year when he failed to come to contract terms with White Sox owner Bill Veeck.

Dent, who received $50,000 last year, rejected an offer from the White Sox which would have given $500,000 for the next three years.

Although Dent batted only .246 last year and has fallen off steadily in three major league seasons, he missed only three games and ranked among the top defensive shortstops in the majors. In each of his three seasons as a regular with the White Sox, he has been among the league leaders in total chances accepted and in 1974 and '75, he tied for the league lead for double plays by shortstops.

Dent's best season was in 1975 when he led the league in fielding (.981) in putouts (279), in assists (543) and in total chances (838) while making only 16 errors. He also hit .264 that season.

During negotiations for Dent's contract this spring, his agent, Nick Buoniconti, former linebacker with the Miami Dolphins, said: "It's obvious the White Sox can't afford Dent. He is one of the best shortstops in the American League and he should be paid like one."

The Yankees went most of last season with Fred Stanley as their regular shortstop and while he made only seven errors, he hit just .238 and owner George Steinbrenner was convinced that the club could not win without a proven shortstop.

Gamble, 30, was one of the Yankees' best clutch hitters last year. He hit only .232 but slammed 17 homers and drove in 57 runs in only 110 games. The Yankees acquired him the winter before from Cleveland for pitcher Pat Dobson. Gamble, who has a .256 lifetime average with 80 homers, had left himself available to be traded since he also is unsigned.

Sox deny charges

BOSTON [UPI] — The Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination yesterday released details of a minority hiring plan for the Boston Red Sox covering just about every job associated with the club, except for the players.

The first page of the plan states the baseball club "denied that it has violated the statute (banning discrimination) as alleged, but has agreed to cooperate with the commission in conciliating this matter."

Red Sox officials were absent from the news conference announcing the Affirmative Action Program. Commission chairperson Jane Edmonds said Red Sox representatives were invited.

Club Manager Dick O'Connell was not immediately available for comment.

Commission Lawyer Mark Screiber said players were not included because there are "special aspects, primarily because of baseball rules and because it would be difficult to implement."

The 31-page negotiated agreement is the first Affirmative Action Plan for a Major League sports team in the United States that is enforceable in superior court, the commission said.

The plan was the culmination of two complaints filed by the commission against the Red Sox in March 1974.

"It's a perfect example of voluntary compliance," Ms. Edmonds said. She said the plan was developed after "several years of deliberation and pushing."

The agreement states the Red Sox will report to the commission twice a year for the next five years on how its minority hiring policies are progressing.

The plan covers almost all aspects of Red Sox' hiring, including major and minor league managers, coaches and scouts, front office personnel, office and clerical workers and full and part-time service workers.

The commission said the Red Sox will review all existing union and vendor contracts to eliminate discriminatory barriers, if any, and will urge present suppliers and unions to adopt comparable practices for women and minority employes.

The club also has agreed to contact in writing a number of national and community groups to recruit minorities and women, the commission said.

CHEQUERS
Wednesday is
Mich Nite
Happy Hour never stops!
4→closing
Cheese and Crackers early
hot dogs and sauerkraut late
COME AND ENJOY!

LUNCH-N-COPY
AT THE AMHERST DELI
COMPLIMENTARY LUNCH
WITH COPY ORDERS PLACED AT ETC. COPY CORP
1. COPY ORDER OF ONLY $10.00 or more
2. Placed between 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM
3. ANY REGULAR SIZE SANDWICH ON THE MENU COMPLIMENTS OF ETC COPY CORP.

Regular Size Sandwich
Balogna .96
Mortadella 1.00
Liverwurst .96
Salami 1.16
Genoa Salami 1.66
Imported Swiss 1.26
Imported Ham 1.50
Capicola 1.70
Prosciutto 1.86
Turkey 1.80
Pastrami 1.50
Corned Beef 1.70
Roast Beef 1.75
Tuna 1.50
Alaskan King Crab 1.99

Most Copy Order Completed
While You Have Lunch
CLEAN, CONCISE, CORRECT COPIES
on IBM COPIERS, it looks like your original.
ETC. COPY CORP.
Amherst Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Ma. 01002
549-0566
Call 549-0566 to insure copying up to 12:00 (midnight) Mon.-Sun
Copy Hours: M-F 9:00-6:00, Sat. 9:00-5:00
Special Hours: Sunday & After Posted Hours

Fashionable Imported Clothing for Women
SAVE 30% to 70%
Dresses
Pants
Skirts
Blouses
SPECIAL PURCHASE
Slightly Irregular
Women's Clothing at
Ridiculously Low Prices
Faces of Earth
Next to Amherst Post Office. Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

THE HUNGRY-U
PIZZAS & SUBS
"We Deliver"
103 N. Pleasant St.
CALL 256-0473
FREE
SMALL TOMATO & CHEESE PIZZA WITH PURCHASE OF TWO LARGE PIZZAS
WED 4/6 to SUN 4/10
FREE
CHEESE CAKE OR SODA WITH PURCHASE OF SMALL COMBINATION PIZZA
WED 4/6 TO SUN 4/10
DELIVERIES ONLY

Poloists A team gain tourney win

By BOB CORB
Collegian Staff

In it's debut performance of the spring AAU season, the UMass men's water polo "A" team won two games to sweep a four-team tournament held Sunday in Stamford, Conn.

The "B" team started the day playing host Stamford "Y", and lost a close, well-played game, 5-4. Ex-swimmer Joe Hebert scored two goals, and Tom McGinn and Steve Ladder added one each.

In the "A" team's first game, it came up against a more physical and experienced team in Saint Francis Prep of Brooklyn, N.Y. UMass led most of the game, but the score was tied at the end of regulation time, 8-8. In the overtime, UMass took complete control and won going away, 13-11.

Henry MaClean, a returning alumnus, led all scorers with four goals, Duncan Lomas and Russ Yarworth added three, and Bob Corb with two, helped spread the scoring around. Another returning alumnus, Ron Boucher, rounded out the scoring with one.

In the "B" team's second game, a 14-9 loss to Saint Francis, Ron Boucher led the way with six goals, and Tom McGinn had three. In the final game of the day, the UMass "A" team completely dominated Stamford "Y", 11-2. Yarworth had five, Lomas three, Corb two, and MaClean had one.

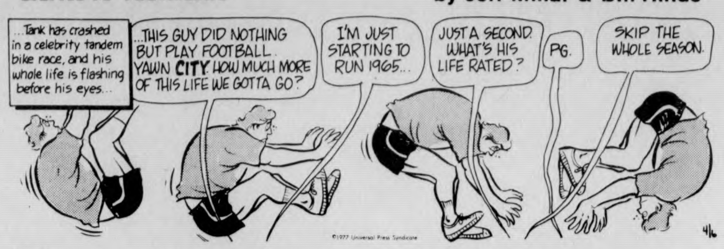
The tournament offered the water polo team an excellent opportunity to experiment and tune-up for the upcoming spring tournament schedule. UMass is sponsoring a two-day, six-team polo tournament, April 9-10, and then in succeeding weekends will travel to Brown twice and MIT once.

The women will be at home against MIT and BU the 9th and 10th, and then travel to Penn., MIT, and Brown in succeeding weekends. All three teams are looking forward to highly successful spring seasons.

Notice

POLYGLOTS SOCCER — Anyone interested in playing a good brand of informal soccer this spring is invited to come on down and give it a try. We play every Saturday and Sunday mornings on the field next to Boyden at 10:00 a.m.

TANK McNAMARA by Jeff Millar & Bill Hinds



...Tank has crashed in a celebrity tandem bike race, and his whole life is flashing before his eyes...
...THIS GUY DID NOTHING BUT PLAY FOOTBALL. YAWN CITY. HOW MUCH MORE OF THIS LIFE WE GOTTA GO?
I'M JUST STARTING TO RUN 1965...
JUST A SECOND. WHAT'S HIS LIFE RATED?
PG.
SKIP THE WHOLE SEASON.
©1977 Universal Press Syndicate
4/6

Tracksters invade Crusader stronghold

By MIKE BERGER
Collegian Staff

Hopefully, by 2 p.m. today, the rains would have stopped, the wind would have stopped howling, and the field dried up in time for the trackmen's encounter with the Holy Cross Crusaders at Holy Cross.

Coach Ken O'Brien's band of 45 will attempt to go over the .500 mark for the first time this season, as his indoor squad only has one victory in dual meet action. The men's record presently stands with at 1-1, losing to Northeastern (89-63) but beating Boston University (63-32) in last weekend's dual meet action.

For the Crusaders, today's meet marks their first dual meet action this season. Last year at this time, UMass handily beat Holy Cross 96-55 and O'Brien does not anticipate any severe problems with the Crusaders this afternoon.

"Holy Cross has some outstanding individuals in the hurdles, high jump, triple jump, dash, and in the distances. They have some good depth, but not as deep as we are. Even though we will be experimenting in the middle distances, we won't sacrifice anything in the point total," said O'Brien.

The Crusaders are led by sophomore Mark Schroeder who is the leading scorer on the team with fine performances in the hurdles and the high jump.

In last year's meet, Schroeder was good for third place in the high jump and placed second in the triple jump. He has hit 6'7 in the high jump and vaulted for over 45 feet in the triple jump.

Aiding Schroeder in the jumping events will be Tom Mazzerolli, a finalist in the New England Indoor Championships, and Tom Keilley in the high jump. Mazzerolli's personal best in the triple jump is 46'2 while Keilley has also reached the level of 6'7 in the high jump.

Competition in these events will be keen, as UMass high jumpers Joe Martens and Bob Fitzgerald are consistently at the 6'7 level while Brady Mayer and Bruce Parsons have jumped over the 45 foot mark.

Surburban Boston talent from Framingham, Randolph, and Wellesley will provide good competition for the trackmen. Sprinter Onye Amaech, timed at 5.4 in the 50 and 9.8 in the 100 is a 1976 New England outdoor finalist. Mark Murray, Wellesley, and Mike Mahoney (Randolph) were two of Massachusetts' finest high school distance men in 1974.

Murray will run the two mile and Mahoney, a 1:55 half miler, will either run the half mile or the mile.

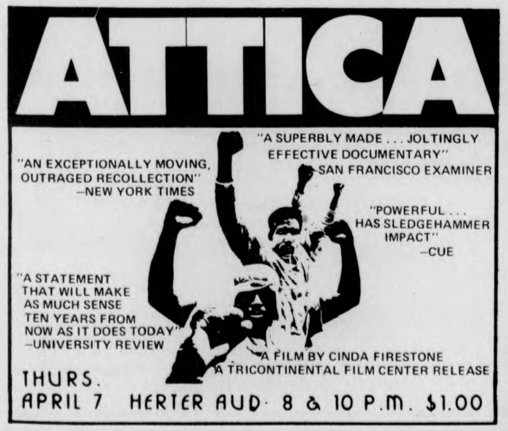
In the weight events, Brian Keefe, Bernard Poppe and Lou Kopza are expected to dominate the field events, with Kopza and Poppe competing in the shot put and discus, while Keefe is a consistent first place winner in the hammer throw.

For UMass, Saturday's competition with Northeastern and B.U. was held in horrendous weather conditions. The cold, wet weather didn't provide record setting conditions but there were bright performances from several people in the six mile, triple jump, javelin, 440, and 440 Intermediate hurdles.

ALL LEVIS
Denim and Courduroy JEANS
Specially priced at $11.95
THOMPSON'S
13 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

Bell's Pizza House
"A taste not matched by any pizza anywhere."
Bell's Pizza.
Free delivery on Campus Sun.-Thurs.
253-9051 or 549-1311
65 University Drive

Collegian
sports



ATTICA
"AN EXCEPTIONALLY MOVING, OUTRAGED RECOLLECTION" —NEW YORK TIMES
"A SUPERBLY MADE . . . JOLTINGLY EFFECTIVE DOCUMENTARY" —SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER
"POWERFUL . . . HAS SLEDGEHAMMER IMPACT" —CUE
"A STATEMENT THAT WILL MAKE AS MUCH SENSE TEN YEARS FROM NOW AS IT DOES TODAY" —UNIVERSITY REVIEW
A FILM BY CINDA FIRESTONE
A TRICONTINENTAL FILM CENTER RELEASE
THURS. APRIL 7 HERTER AUD. 8 & 10 P.M. $1.00

The Generals Place
Army-Navy Store
Spring Camping Sale
10% to 20% off on:
CAMP TRAILS BACKPACKERS
SLEEPING BAGS
DUNHAM HIKING BOOTS
2-PERSON TENTS
35 E. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-6166
(Next to Minuteman Cleaners)

Gorillas seek seasons first win

By TOM CROWLEY
Collegian Staff

Maybe the sun will shine on the UMass lacrosse team as it faces the UConn Huskies today at 3 p.m. behind boyden. Garber's Gorillas could use some sunshine and UConn could be the team to give it to them.

The 0-2 stickmen are coming off a 17-9 loss to national champion Cornell and need a win to prevent the team from getting down on itself.

"We need this game as a restoration of confidence," coach Dick Garber said, "but it's not as bad as some people would project."

In other years, UConn would be the perfect team to play to get out of a slump. In 12 attempts or the entire series, the Huskies have never beaten the Gorillas.

The scores in the last four years have been 11-10 (1973 — the closest game), 16-3 (1974 and 1975), and 26-9 (last year).

UConn is improved this year, though. "It's the best offensive group they've ever had," said Garbert. "They're better than I've ever seen them. They're a good New England lacrosse team but certainly they're no Cornell or Hofstra."

The 2-1 Huskies are rated tenth in the region while Massachusetts is tabbed as number one.

The Huskies have beaten Vermont, 11-10, in overtime, lost to Yale, 13-12, in overtime, then shelled Holy Cross, 20-4 Monday.

"They're scoring a lot of points. Their attack and midfield looked impressive, but Holy Cross is a weak team," Garber said. "They went to overtime with a pretty good Yale team."

The midfields are led by All-New Englander Rex Hong. The Huskies use four midfields who run good offensive plays and are pretty quick. The visitors also use four balanced lines which is a departure from former years when UConn only had the strong first line and the quality fell off after that.

The midfielders are not afraid to take the long, hard shots from outside instead of running a play.

On defense, UConn uses a tight man-to-man.

"We should capitalize on their face-guarding because they have no back-up help," Garber said. "Offensively, they can be a problem, but it looks like we'll score our points."

If it's a decent day, it could be an exciting shoot-out, Garber says, "But (today) could be a tough day on the field if it's wet. A great equalizer would be wet going."

Garber admitted that his team usually goes into the game with UConn a little overconfident.

"That's what we've been doing for the last few seasons. We should be favored in the game."

UMass goalie Don 'Duck' Goldstein chases after one of Cornell's high scoring attackmen. Goldstein will be in net today when the Gorillas face UConn at home. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

The Gorillas plan to run and to keep the pressure on the Huskies all the time. "Our biggest mistake is to play conservatively," Garber said. "We look for our midfield to dominate the game and for the attack to score goals. We're used to getting into double figures." The lacrosse team has yet to do that this season.

Mike Lettera and Toby Rice, both starting midfielders, will miss the game due to injuries and that could make it a little more difficult to dominate the Huskies.

Today though, coach Garber is looking for a few simple things: "A change in the weather, and a chance to play a good game. No dramatic shake-up or anything like that."

Netmen debut vs. Williams

By MIKE SMOLENS
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's tennis team will skip the frying pan and jump directly into the fire today as the netmen open their spring season with an away match against a very tough Williams squad at 3:00 p.m.

"It will be our toughest match of the season," said UMass coach Bill Brown. "Williams is very, very strong."

Williams is also in top form, having spent spring intersession in Florida competing with southern schools and compiling a 2-1 vacation record.

The Minutemen may be far from top form. Although they swept past Amherst College 7-2 in a scrimmage last Friday, some of the players showed they were not ready to swing into regular season competition.

Second singles player Alan Green won a three set match at Amherst, but showed signs of fatigue as a result of his bout with bronchitis over a month ago.

Green and partner Adam Rosen dropped the first doubles match against Amherst Coach Brown explained that the two had not been able to practice together because of Green's health. "They were playing like two individuals instead of a team," said Brown.

Newcomer Alan Stable, a transfer from Oberlin College, has impressed Brown so much that he has replaced Steve Heyl at sixth singles. However, Stable had a tough time Friday narrowly defeating an Amherst soft-baller, 2-6, 7-6, 7-5.

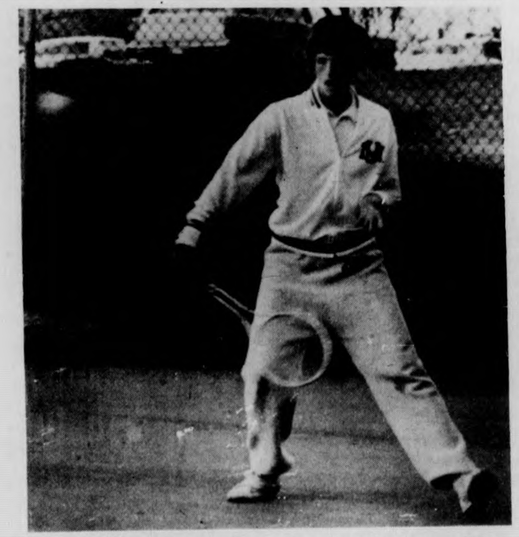
"He's just not match-ready yet," Brown said.

The first singles match tomorrow will be an early showdown of two top New England players. Rosen will face Williams' Martin Goldberg. Both players defeated some of the top players in the region last fall, and should be ranked highly in the New England Championships in May.

Singles matches two through six will be played by Green, Barnaby Kalan, Rickey Sharton, Jimmy Barnhart and Stable, respectively.

Brown has been impressed by the preseason play of his doubles teams, despite Rosen and Green's weak performance against Amherst. However, the players have had little time to practice together, according to Brown.

Second doubles will be played by Stable and Kalan, while Barnhart and Heyl will be in the third spot.



The UMass men's tennis team swings into action today when they face a tough William's College team. The Minutemen will be looking for more consistency from their doubles teams this spring. (Staff photo by Andy Bernstein)

Knicks top Celts

NEW YORK [UPI] — The out-of-the-playoffs New York Knicks last night beat the Boston Celtics, who had removed the Knicks from playoff possibilities last Sunday, 121-113, on the strength of Bob McAdoo's 31 points and Walt Frazier's 24.

With 81 seconds remaining to play and New York leading 114-113, rookie Lonnie Shelton, who scored 20 points, scored a basket from the lane and the Knicks followed with five consecutive points. Needing 22 points to reach a career total of 25,000, John Havlicek registered eight of them in less than four minutes of the first quarter.

Rich Eckel

Consumers penalized again

You open your sports page early, (or late, whatever the case may be) on a Sunday morning and browse through the assorted stories. Somewhere on your sports page you will turn to a box that lists the days sports on television. And if you've nothing planned for the day, don't worry. You do now.

Every Sunday the 'tube' offers sports fans hours of viewing time for sports at no cost to the consumer — or seemingly no cost. Football, golf, baseball, basketball, cricket, tennis, Superstars, Wide World of Sports, Battle of the Sexes, and on into infinity go the programs, broadcast coast-to-coast.

Yes, there's something for everybody, and every week the marriage between sports and television grows stronger and richer.

Last year, over 1,000 hours of network sports programming were produced and consumed by millions of fans. The networks paid over $200 million in fees to the respected leagues for the rights to telecast, and they received a profitable return on their investment. Did you forget that one minute of advertising for this year's Super Bowl was sold to advertisers for $200,000?

The leagues which collected the money divided the dividends equally among the league ownerships — a sum that saves many of today's modern franchises.

So what's the big deal, right? Like any solid marriage, both partners have compromised to appease the other. In this case, television must pay enormous sums of money for the right to telecast and sports must put up with the inconveniences, like TV time outs and stoppage in play. So what if it disrupts the flow of the game, you've got to learn to live with a few of your partners faults, right?

Absolutely! But two disturbing occurances took place last week which may not cause a problem just yet, but could cause a strain in the relationship between television and sports in future years.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced last week that the NFL was expanding its season and revamping the playoff structure to include more games. These facts are not disturbing, but Rozelle's reasons for the changes are.

It seems all three networks must renegotiate their rights to telecast with the NFL next year and Rozelle wants to cash in. More regular season games (16) and an increased number of playoff games (more wildcard teams) does not mean greater competition within the league to Rozelle, but rather, more money!

The more meaningful the games — the more the NFL can command when it renegotiates its contract with the networks.

Another story which received little coverage in the newsapers concerned ABC and college football. It seems ABC is looking for a blockbuster contest to begin its coverage next year, but the schedule maker couldn't provide the appropriate game.

So ABC took it upon itself to contrive the game, and to hell with the teams. So, fans, it will be Notre Dame vs. Pittsburgh to open the college football season on television. Hey, that's great, right?

Maybe not so great when you consider there's a third party involved. Unfortunately, Colorado, and not the fighting Irish, was supposed to be playing Pitt on that date. But that didn't matter, all ABC had to promise Colorado was extra money when the Buffaloes are televised later in the season, and the deal was made.

Now, however, Colorado's coach is upset because he'd rather face the Panthers early in the season and get a shot at them before they peak.

Here is where the problem between television and sports has reached a critical point. Television has such great control over sports that it can now dictate what its partner must do. Something similar to an overbearing husband who demands that dinner be on the table at 5:00, or the grocery money won't be given to his wife for the week. And, of course, the one's who suffer the most from this type of relationship are the third parties. The children who don't get to eat, and in sports the consumer who will inevitably have to pay more.

Since the networks must pay a higher stipend to the leagues, they will in turn charge higher prices for advertising minutes. And who pays for that higher rate of advertising? Now you've got it — we, the consumers, do. Farrah Fawcett can cream me any day, but I'll be damned if she'll do it for a higher price!

Thus the situation has inflated and no solution is in sight. The marriage between supposedly free-commercial television and sports has reached the crucial stage.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 117 THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1977

Collegian

Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA. 01003 (413) 545-3500

Trustees OK policy review

Pinky Batiste, Trustee Stephen Breyer, Jay Martus and President Robert Wood finalize wording of their vote against apartheid at the trustee's meeting yesterday. (Staff photo by Greg Virgilio)

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

WORCESTER — The UMass Board of Trustees yesterday agreed to review University investment policies to make certain they are not furthering apartheid in South Africa and to conduct a more general review of investment policy to ensure it is being carried out in a "socially responsible way."

In a motion proposed by Student Trustee Pinky Batiste, the board agreed unanimously to investigate their investment holdings through the Committee on Budget and Finance.

A presentation given by former Student Government Association President Jay A. Martus explaining Board policy in light of current policies in South Africa was greeted favorably by the trustees.

Bruce R. Carlson, chairperson of Budget and Finance agreed to immediately contact companies and express the trustees concern on the issue of apartheid and ask what the companies are doing about it.

A specific policy on investments in corporations who have holdings in countries which deny human rights will begin to be developed at the next Budget and Finance Committee.

The trustee action came after a march by 175 students Tuesday, protesting University holdings in 20 corporations now in South Africa. The UMass investments now total about $672,000, according to Martus. These companies include: General Motors, Johnson & Johnson, General Electric, Motorola, Inc., Nabisco, Lily, Fli & Co., B. Pfizer, Inc., Smithkline, FMC, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, Newmont Mining Corp., Honeywell Inc., International Business Machines, Exxon Corp., Eastman Kodak Co., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Amax and Zerox.

Martus said the trustee decision "is only the first step" in ending the complicity with the apartheid practices of the South African government.

He said the argument for divestiture of the stock was not given enough consideration, although it should be brought up more fully at the budget and finance meeting April 20.

Batiste said she was pleased the vote included both the investments tied to South Africa, and also other investments in companies with locations in nations denying human rights."

Sec. of Education Paul Parks said the South African situation "is like looking at Mississippi all over again." There is no question that the companies are part and parcel to apartheid's existence, he said.

Martus told the board meeting at Worcester Medical School, that if they took action against companies with holdings in South Africa, they would not be taking an isolated action.

Chop two studies proposes Puryear

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

The elimination of the Asian Studies and Slavic Languages departments within the next five years has been proposed by Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs Paul L. Puryear as part of a 30-page memo sent to academic deans and directors March 24.

The memo was based on a report by the Academic Program Review Task Force, a group of administrators and Faculty Senate representatives proposing a reallocation of resources within the University based on student demand, enrollment trends and faculty-student ratios.

Beginning tomorrow the Collegian will examine the provost's five-year plan and its affect on major University departments.

Puryear has asked the deans and directors to respond to the memo by April 15, three weeks after it was sent out.

In a telephone interview last night, Puryear said the memo represents the first stage in a two-step process which will involve faculty suggestions on the department level.

Puryear said in developing the proposal, the group also took into consideration the "cost-effectiveness" of the programs and also what occupational opportunities were available to students upon graduation.

A chart attached to the memo showing faculty allocations for the School of Humanities and Fine arts gives Asian Studies and Slavic Languages no faculty by 1982, and shows a decline in faculty in the departments of English and Journalism, French and Italian, German, History and Philosophy.

Twenty-eight faculty positions will be vacated in all, according to the chart.

Puryear said it would be "very possible" to retain Slavic Languages in some form, possibly as a five-college department and that talks have already begun with the five-college coordinator.

Puryear, who said decisions to add or eliminate faculty were based on a combination of factors, said the Classics Dept. is a good example of a program with high student demand which would probably not be eliminated.

"We don't want students to find out that their major field of study is not salable," he said.

The major reason of conducting a long-range plan is to move resources to a central source so they can be adjusted as necessary, he said.

Puryear said the University is trying to achieve as much flexibility in planning as possible. As a result, the University would probably not grant tenure to as many faculty as in the past, he said.

Fac union pursues recognition

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

WORCESTER — Representatives of the recently-elected faculty union yesterday decided to continue pursuing political avenues in an effort to reverse the UMass Board of Trustees' March vote to ignore them, after Chairperson Joseph P. Healy declined to reconsider the vote during a full board meeting.

Healy turned down the request made by Francis McNulty, a Northampton selectwoman, on the grounds that collective bargaining discussions must be conducted only during closed-door sessions of the board.

Any further action by the board will be reviewed by the trustee subcommittee on collective bargaining, headed by Robert D. Gordon.

The trustees voted to ignore the union in March because they felt the unit was too complex to successfully complete negotiations.

Acting Vice-President in charge of formulating faculty collective bargaining policy Randolph W. Bromery, yesterday said "the union has to take the next move."

The union must sue the University for unfair labor practice charges in refusing to bargain, since this is the only way the administration can get into court to challenge the unit composition hearing.

Larry S. Roberts, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, said he was "encouraged" that at least some of the trustees were willing to reconsider their vote.

The administration is objecting to the inclusion of department chairpersons, some part-time faculty, visiting faculty and faculty being paid out of certain non-state funded sources in the unit.

Gov. Michael Dukakis speaking at a town meeting last night in Northampton. For details, see page two. (Staff photo by Colleen King)

inside

Undergraduate Student Senate outgoing co-presidents gave a few choice remarks at last night's meeting. See Brad Goverman's story Page 2.

President Sadat of Egypt has rejected a Carter Middle-east peace plan. See Page 7.

The government has urged that DNA research continue under new safety guidelines. More on Page 6.

State representatives gave themselves an $850 pay raise yesterday. More on Page 10.

weather

The Sox will play, but wear your thermals.

Duke levels level-funding

By KEVIN J. CLAFFEY
and JOE QUINLAN
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis called his level-funding program "a blunt, not very effective way to deal with the higher education budget" at a "town meeting" here yesterday.

The governor, speaking at his 49th open forum in 26 months, fielded questions from an audience of 250 people ranging from the recently outlawed veteran's preference system for civil service examinations to a controversial proposal to build a nuclear power plant in Montague.

"There will be 30 per cent fewer kids coming out of high school in ten years and we have to re-assign the responsibilities and make better use of the funds," said Dukakis.

He called for a 15-member Board of Overseers who would "make a commitment to public education, not be advocates for their piece of the system."

Dukakis is expected to file legislation this week calling for the abolition of the present Board of Higher Education and asking that a 15-member Board of Overseers be instituted to assist in the policy making decisions for the entire Massachusetts higher education system.

This is the second time in two years that the governor will attempt to change the board's make-up.

Fourteen of the overseers in his proposal will be private citizens appointed by Dukakis. The fifteenth member will be the state Secretary of Educational Affairs Paul Parks, a gubernatorial appointee.

"I will not be appointing people to do my bidding, but to make good educational judgements sensitive to the state's fiscal limitations," insisted Dukakis.

Dukakis emphasized that "every dollar must be squeezed" by cutting out duplicated college programs found in the Massachusetts system.

He noted the three nursing programs now offered at each of the three state schools in Worcester.

"We can't tolerate it any longer," declared Dukakis.

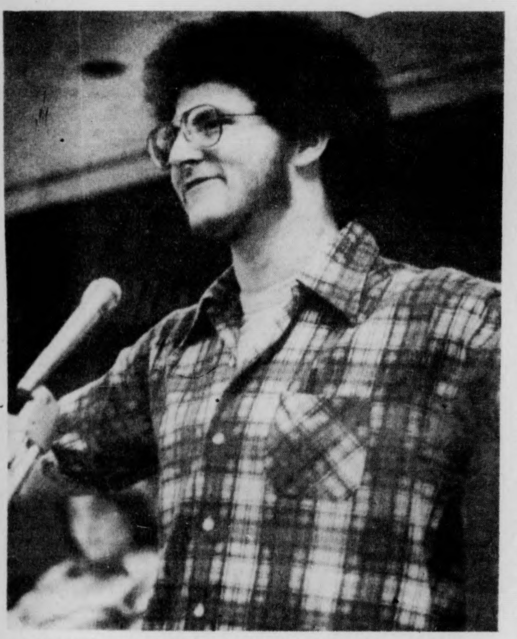
After a walking tour of the revitalized downtown Northampton, Dukakis suggested he might ask town government members in Chelsea and Haverhill to take a similar tour.

"We've found that the way to rebuild a city is not to tear down the old and start fresh, but to revitalize the old sections. We can't continue to recreate suburban shopping centers in downtown. It's just not the way," he said.

The governor applauded the recent federal decision to keep Ford Devens in Ayer open. "We're getting the kind of response we've been asking for. We've needed a different approach to federal spending in urban, industrial states such as Massachusetts."

Calling the state's system of absolute veteran's preference "discriminatory," Dukakis added that a bonus points system for veteran's disabilities should be instituted. "Under the old system women were completely shut out."

Dukakis attacked the present system of state aid to cities and towns in the Commonwealth calling the present system "cock-eyed." He said a revamping of the system has to wait because it would take between "$80 and $100 million to carry it out."



Dave Kantor, Spring Concert Director, presents possibilities for the concert's structure at last night's Senate meeting. (Staff photo by Dale Griswold)

Ex-prexys bow out

By BRAD GOVERNMAN
Collegian Staff

In his closing statement before the Undergraduate Student Senate former co-President Jay Martus, delivered several editorial quips commenting on mismanagement witnessed in his term in office.

Martus informed the Senate the Board of Trustees recognized the South African government and its apartheid policies as morally repugnant, by a unanimous vote Wednesday. The Board voted unanimously to refer the issue to the budget and finance committee (for more details see related story page 1).

Martus pointed out the sexist nature in which Athletic Dept. monies were allocated. It was disclosed that of the $30 every student pays to comprise the fee, men's sports receive $245,000 while women's sports receive $45,000. Of the scholarship money given out Martus revealed that while men receive $190,000 women receive $22,000.

Martus commented on the blatant failure of the Valley Health Plan which Director of Health Services Barry Averell said was supposed to lower health fees or at least have impact on fee negotiations. Martus pointed out this was not so, because an increase in the fees is projected by the Health Services Department.

Continuing in his barrage of "editorial comments" Martus complained Alan Light director of the Fine Arts Center was not acting on behalf of student interests by instituting the $200 fee charge for student groups who scheduled events in the center.

Martus noted students were the largest contributors to the center and said he was disappointed that the decision was made with no student input.

"I warned them that we wanted input but they ignored us," Martus said.

Former Co-President Paul Cronin stressed senators should become involved in committees. "It is the only way to be effective because issues have to be beat on campus. If the issue goes to the Trustees, then its already decided," he said.

In other business the senate voted unanimously on a motion to oppose the elimination of the Asian Studies Department at the University (For more details see related story page 1).

Concert planners dwindle

By NIKKI ARONSON
Collegian Staff

Spring Concert Committee co-chairperson Bruce Wingate walked out of the Undergraduate Student Senate Council Chambers last night during a debate on a new allocation of $25,000 for production of a free concert.

"I resign because of the incompetent manner in which work to date has been done, namely, lacking all semblence of professionalism," Wingate said.

David Kantor, Executive Chairperson of Spring Concert Committee, explained that "we have met with many unforeseen problems.

Kantor listed choices as: "a low quality free concert, a hi-quality Spring Concert, a free concert for students and all other spectators paying a ticket price, and no concert."

Kantor made no distinction between a "high quality free concert or a low quality free concert."

Kantor detailed setbacks as "artists not being available for concert dates" or having unreasonable prices.

Kantor said he did not want to use the $67,000 because "I just want the allocated money I know they won't get back."

Kantor also said there was a problem of "time and security." He gave his appearance on the Senate floor as being "to inform the Senate that no big major talent has been booked and we need to re-evaluate the show."

Voices were raised in the ensuing debate, as the senate voted to give Kantor and Undergraduate Student Senate Treasurer Thomas Kerrins executive privilege in deciding the booking of artists in the remaining four weeks until the May 7 concert date.

Former Student Senate President Paul Cronin condemned the allocation of the $25,000 saying, "if agents are unwilling to talk with us with $67,000 what's going to be the difference when we come in with a lower budget of $25,000?"

A motion made by Kerrins asking Senators to "go back to your constituents" to see who students want for Spring Concert was voted down.

Wingate protested that the "total lack of communication and trust on the part of the Executive Chair position and co-workers might leave the concert without "anyone to work on it," was left unanswered when Wingate was ruled "out of order".

Wingate had been in charge of Production on the day of the concert, while former chairperson Dave Lombardi, who resigned Tuesday was in charge of Advertising and Promotion. Kantor heads the sub-committee concerned with the booking of groups and Senate relations.

When asked if there would be new appointments made for vacated positions, Kantor replied, "There will be reorganizational meeting as soon as possible."

Where there's props, there's fire

By JOE MAGLITTA
Collegian Staff

Three men decided to take a walk on a nice Saturday morning last month. They wanted to look at some doors. They returned five hours later burdened with prizes from the farthest corners of campus.

Flattened dustpans, snarls of rope and twine, 50 granite bricks, crushed beer cans, a ten-pound barbell, several dog-eared copies of a one-time best seller, a bent pocket comb, a back issue of Playboy, and 600 wooden wedges comprised only part of their treasures. The boss was sure to be pleased.

"What treasures have you brought me today?" asked Keith Hoyle (their boss).

The men told him. They liked to please their boss.

"Excellent," said Hoyle, "Quickly, pile them in my office. Why, there must be hundreds of them."

"Almost an even thousand, sir."

"With corresponding doors for each of them?"

The men nodded.

"Where did you get them all?" asked Hoyle.

"Mostly from Southwest. Some from the Grad Research towers. The high hazard areas."

Keith Hoyle, Director of Environmental Health and Safety, was not overly pleased, though.

"It's tough to make people understand just how important these things are. How many different ways are there to prop a door open? It's tough to make them understand."

His men nodded. They know how important the fire doors are.

"The problem is that 97 per cent of the people on campus have never been in a fire, so they don't realize what it's like. Sure, they can watch fires on TV shows and think they know how to deal with a fire, but when a fire really does break out and it gets intensely hot and they start choking. The only thing they can do is be afraid," Hoyle said.

He looked over at the treasure pile.

"I wish we could show people what a bad fire is like when they first come up here as freshman. Then they could see what it's really like," he said.

Hoyle gestured to the photos of fire-gutted dormitory rooms tacked to his bulletin board.

"You know, once people understand what the doors are for, they won't block them. A lot of people seem to think the doors were just put in by some wacko to bother them. They look at them as another obstacle on the way to an eight o'clock class."

The men nodded gravely. Fire doors were designed to compartmentalize fire, not to be obstacles. Fire doors in UMass dorms are designed to withstand smoke and fire for 45 minutes.

"No damage would have been done to the third floor in the Hasbrouck fire if the fire doors were closed. The fire started on the first floor and spread upwards. The firedoors were open and the stairwell acted as a chimney. Hot air from the fire rises from the bottom and spreads upwards. That poor women opened the door and walked out into a blast of heat. She didn't even know there was a fire. If people would only understand what the doors are for."

A few weeks later Hoyle parted with his collection. The coat hangers, wedges and the other bits of junk were heaved out. The 50 granite blocks, like those used in the walkways in Southwest, were mercifully handed over to the physical plant.

Hoyle said the department would finish its inspection of all buildings on campus by the end of the summer.

"By that time, all the doors we closed last month will be propped open again. I guess we'll just start over at the beginning again."

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor Noah Webster

Editorial Layout	Daniel Webster
Sports Layout	George Webster
Head Darkroom Tech	"Cob" Webster
Head Anachrid Tech	Spider Webster
Eraser Layout	Marvin Webster
Poor TV Trivia Layout	I'm Dickins, He's Webster
Little Known Person	Mel Webster
What You Do To Miss Lillian When She Drops Her Drawers In Public	A Webster For Indecent Exposure

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$9

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusettss, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery to start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst, Massachusetts 01003. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Brown granted probation

By MARY BETH ALLEN
Collegian Staff

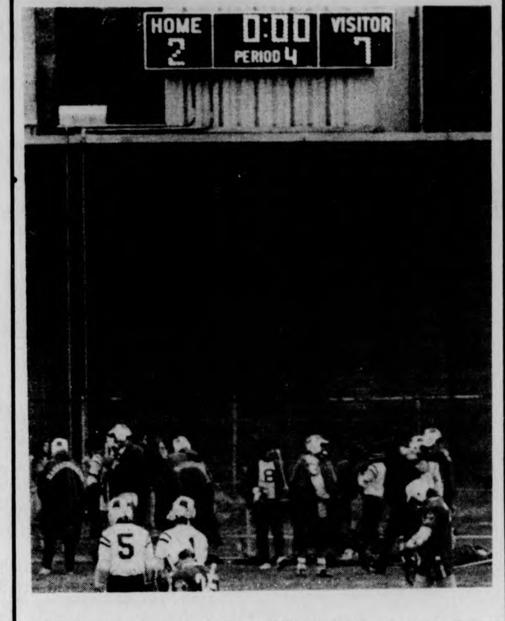
Robert Earl Brown was granted probation yesterday at a probation hearing held at the Northampton House of Corrections. He will be released from jail on April 19.

Brown is serving a three to five year sentence for armed robbery. He is currently engaged in efforts to secure a new trial.

Brown said that his probation officer will be someone based in Springfield. Yesterday's hearing began at noon and lasted about 15 minutes, according to Brown.

Brown is planning to reside in Amherst. "I'm going to rest," he said. He plans to spend more time in the UMass library law section doing research on his new trial motion.

"I'm going to be in the area for another year," said Brown. He would like to attend law school and business school.



The scoreboard doesn't tell the story, especially when it can't count past 19, as the Gorillas defeated UConn 22-7. (Staff photo by Jay Saret)

Bleak look for food dept. says Francis

By CHRIS BOURNE
Collegian Staff

Prof. Frederick Francis, head of the Food Science and Nutrition Dept., met with about 80 students yesterday to present a "bleak picture" of the nutrition program.

Francis said the program will be reduced from its present level of about 135 students to about 80.

The reduction will be carried out by accepting only ten new students into the program per year.

Francis said he expects the reduction to take about a year and at that point the program will be reassessed.

The nutrition program has five faculty members and Francis sees little hope of getting more in the near future.

"We didn't anticipate that we'd be in this situation, we thought that we'd be getting permission for new faculty."

About three years ago, Food Science and Technology merged with the Human Nutrition to form the present department.

At that time, the Nutrition program was promised they would get additional resources, mainly faculty, Francis said.

Because of those promises, the program was allowed to expand until it reached a high of about 180 students, Francis said.

However, the promises of support have never been fulfilled. "During the last three years, we've lost six faculty members in the department, but we've only been able to hire three new ones."

Of the three new faculty members hired, two went to the Food Science program and one to the Nutrition program.

Several students at the meeting felt all the vacant positions should have been filled by Nutrition program faculty. Francis said he didn't see any sense in weakening one program to strengthen another.

"The resources should come from the University not from the department," Francis said.

Dr. Peter Pellet nutrition professor, said "ever since he was hired" he has received promises from the administration that the Nutrition program would get more resources, but that they "never came."

Pellet added he felt the program should never have expanded, as it did, on the basis of those promises. "We should have put our foot down," he said.

Francis detailed other steps to be taken to reduce the size of the program to a manageable level.

Some steps include refusing all students wishing to transfer into the Nutrition program from another major, and closing all graduate admissions.

"We just arranged with the Dean of Admissions to declare a moratorium on graduate admissions until we can get the graduate program down to a reasonable level," Francis said.

Presently 26 graduate students are in the Nutrition program.

According to Nutrition professor Virginia Beal, the program hasn't accepted any new people from other majors since last May.

Francis said he feels under level funding, departments having small student pressures are losing money, but money is not going to departments with high student pressures such as Food Science and Nutrition, instead going to paying for increased costs due to inflation.

"We have 103 students in the program but we've already accepted 39 freshmen for next year." Francis said commenting on the poor outlook for the Food Science program.

Beal said "We're watching a program disintergrate."

Food Science professor Ernest Buck said "the students have got to put pressure" on the administration.

Sally Conklin, a Nutrition major, said she does not think "the department head is willing to speak out for the Nutrition program the way it needs to be spoken for. Maybe after this meeting the students will get together."

GSS minorities a minority

By D. PETERSON
Collegian Staff

The advertisement "was meant to be controversial. I almost intended it to be rabble rousing," stated Timothy Austin, vice president of the Graduate Student Senate (GSS), when asked about the ad concerning the April 20 GSS elections appearing in yesterday's Collegian.

The advertisement drew attention to the fact that minorities should be officers in the GSS.

"Actually the senate has had a lousy affirmative action record," said Austin. "I've never seen many women senators, we've never had a handicapped senator, and only a few foreign students."

Austin said, "With the affirmative action proposals that are going to come through the senate, we would be obliged to do a lot more advertising. I would like to do it anyway, because it seems to be a hot issue on campus."

"It's a good way to draw attention to the elections," said Austin.

When asked how many people were candidates for the GSS elections, Austin replied, "You don't have to file papers, like the undergraduates. Nominations are mostly on the night of the election. People nominate themselves or are nominated by others."

"We don't have a real way of telling how many people are showing interest," said Austin. "So far we've only had one actual nomination. We know of a possible slate of president and vice president," he added.

"It's really up to us in the next three weeks to drum up some opposition. Last years election was uncontested," Austin pointed out.

The four positions open in the election are president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. The presidential salary is $4,000 for the year. The other officers receive $2,400 a year. There are provisions for summer salaries for the positions.

"We have a system that I call drop balloting. The nominations are kept open during balloting. First we vote for the president. If you fail for your bid as president, you can nominate yourself for vice president," he explained.

"What you are running for is not always clearly defined," Austin stated. "The officers tend to divide the duties up between themselves. So what you are actually running for is a slot, and then sort out the duties afterwards."

"The biggest difference", said Austin, "is the extra money that the president receives, and the extra amount of time that he is required to put in."

Austin stated that he averaged 20 hours a week in filling his duties as vice president of the GSS.

He added the president is restricted to no more than 10 hours a week on other employment.

The GSS elections will be held during an open meeting April 20.

"We've never done this before," said Austin. "There has never been a general meeting since I've been here. We are in the dark about how much interest there is."

Austin stated that the executive committee had planned to conduct several general meetings a while ago, but decided to wait for a big issue to come up.

"Now we find ourselves wanting to hold a general meeting, because of proposed constitutional changes, but we still don't have a real issue," Austin said. The elections may serve to draw graduate students to the general meeting.

A second general meeting will be held April 27 to vote on the proposed constitution changes and by-laws to be presented at the first general meeting.

"It isn't clear what the original constitution went through to be passed," said Austin.

Among the proposed constitutional changes would be a shift in the scheduling of future elections, having three offices open in April and one in December. Austin pointed out that this allows a carry over of ideas and issues between terms.

Austin said president Michael Federow proposed all elections be held at general meetings. This could be a change included in the constitution, Austin said.

"We are trying to increase the number of ways and the ease with which the senators could get things on the agenda, have items reconsidered, or call a general meeting," said Austin, giving reasons for the revisions of the GSS laws.

Additives are essential

By PIA TALABACH
and DORIS DOHERTY

What is an additive? It is anything that becomes part of a food material, intentionally, as an ingredient, or unintentionally, as a contaminant. That's right, anything that is added to a food, that changes it from its original state, is an additive.

To the surprise of many, the most widely used additive is a natural product, produced in abundance, and is a single chemical of high purity. It is one additive that the average American consumes about 102 pounds per year. Have you guessed yet? It is not ordinarily found in foods as it grows. It must be added, therefore an additive in every sense of the word. That's right, it's sucrose, ordinary cane or beet sugar. So next time you're shopping for a box of cereal or can of fruit packed in syrup, check the label, and you'll find that sugar is one of the major ingredients. It is used as a preservative, as well as a sweetner.

Most can guess what the second must widely used additive is. It is sodium chloride, table salt. The average consumption is about 15 pounds per year. You find salt in many canned vegetables, and snack foods such as peanuts or potato chips. Here again it serves as a preservative, as well as a flavor enhancer.

After salt comes corn syrup, about which eight pounds are added to our foods, and then dextrose, which about four pounds are added. Following these are about 33 different additives, which together account for about nine pounds a year. It is interesting to note that 18 of these 33 are used as either leavening agents or to adjust the acidity of foods. Of these, yeast, sodium bicarbonate, citric acid, black pepper, and mustard are among the most often used.

After these come about 1800 more additives that we add directly to our foods, of which we eat approximately a pound per year. These include chemical as well as natural additives.

How safe are these additives? This is of major concern to the consumer. The G.R.A.S. List (Generally Recognized As Safe) is a list of all additives contained in foods that after testing are regarded safe for the public. There is also a clause, called the Delany Clause, which states that any material that can cause cancer in any animal, in any concentration, administered in any way, cannot be added to foods. There are, then, people working to keep potentially harmful additives our of foods.

It is presently apparent that the only ones that have caused harm are those which arise from food contamination, or food spoilage, or poor food choices. This aspect is rarely considered, since the major focus seems to be on the chemical preservatives being added to foods.

There is really no such thing as an unqualified "safe" drug or "safe" food. An excess of any food or drug will cause undesirable effect, which also could prove very harmful. There are other hazards which also should be taken into consideration. These include microbiological hazards (contamination), environmental hazards (these aspects are still quite controversial), natural hazards (toxic substances contained within foods themselves), as well as pesticide hazards. All these areas also fit into the category of food additives.

Today with the popular interest in nutrition, it is not surprising that the substances added to food for technological improvement (those which enhance the nutritive value of food) are the next most numerous on the list, the first being the preservatives previously mentioned, namely sugar and salt. This appears for the most part to be good, especially today with such a change to convenience and prefabricated foods.

While the discussion of food additives has become popular only in recent years, additives have been used since the beginning of time. To avoid additives one would have to be content entirely with foods in season, grown locally, and eaten only when they are fresh. This also means no condiments, no salt, pepper or sugar

O'Connor pleased at election results

Vincent J. O'Connor, one of nearly one hundred so-called "progressive" candidates elected to 240 Amherst Town Meeting seats Tuesday, termed the election, "A step in the right direction for the town."

A long-time area activist and co-founder of the Amherst Tenants Association, O'Connor said at a press conference at the Town Hall yesterday, "There has to be representation for one half of the towns non-dormitory residents who are tenants."

"Despite the weather and a low turn-out, we've showed people that what we're trying to do is possible," O'Connor said in praising student and tenant involvement in the election.

Further Results

In election results not included in yesterday's paper, Casey Clark and Betty A. Brace were elected to three-year terms on the Amherst School Committee, defeating Ralmon Jon Black and Nancy M. Gordon. Clark received 1790 votes, Brace 1783, Gordon 1712 and Black 250.

The new elector under the Liver Smith Will will be Rosemary Sprague, who defeated Gordon F. Neylon, 1511 to 1221. H. Hills Skillings will be the town's new Jones Library trustee for three years as he beat Herta Paylsen, 2377 to 1717.

In the Housing Authority election, Margaret J. Zube defeated James P. Sullivan by a margin of 1785 to 877 for a five-year term. Willard T. Weeks defeated Stephen P. Puffer 1758 to 1304 in the race for a five-year term on the Amherst Redevelopment Authority, and the one-year term race for the same board went to Rick N. Fitzsimmons, who ran unopposed.

Town Meeting Seats

Following are the complete results of Tuesday's election for the 240 Amherst Town Meeting positions:

PRECINCT 1

Marcia C. Bates — 229, Pricilla A. Bernotas — 198, Cindy Brock — 194, Steven W. Brode — 188, Kathleen J. Carlson — 200, Allen C. Carpenter — 185, Harold W. Cary — 225, Barbara S. Chase — 187, Peter d'Errico — 216, Mary Efferen — 185, William F. Ford — 258, Nancy E. Gillis — 208, Marilyn A. Gonter — 295, William P. Gurski — 186, Marjorie E. Karlson — 206, Barbara A. Laurent — 192, Richard H. Minear — 307, Vincent Joseph O'Connor — 196, Benjamin H. Page — 220, Jonathan V. Post — 190, Stephen P. Puffer — 241, Martin Sevoian — 205, Brent W. Spears — 277, Alan G. Suprenant — 194, Diana Lizotta Souza — 209, Mary Szala — 230, Jill D. Wallach — 190, Ellen R. Wolf — 217, Eugene C. Worman — 263, Victor J. Zumbruski — 219.

PRECINCT 2

Eugene M. Battistoni — 176, Joyce A. Berkman — 202, Alfred W. Boicourt — 180, Frank J. Bukoski — 199, Robert C. Chisholm — 166, Pearl Claunch — 192, Barbara C. Ford — 176, Andrew K. French — 182, Karen A. French — 197, Kirby M. Hayes — 233, Flora B. Hosford — 227, Robert J. Joy — 195, Edward R. Kaynor — 176, David R. Knightly — 204, Sandra J. Knightly — 199, Elaine J. Mange — 177, Edward R. Market — 212, Clinton E. May — 177, Surinder K. Mehta — 188, Gerald T. O'Neil — 189, Mary Jane R. Pi-Sunyer — 185, Arthur R. Quinton — 185, Anne S. Ruder — 191, Daniel H. Schwartz — 166, Robert L. Shumway — 224, Otto O. Stein — 246, Benjamin J. Sumer — 199, Robert W. Wagner — 192, Thomas O. Wilkinson — 208, Karol S. Wisnieski — 208, Jack S. Wolf — 212.

PRECINCT 3

Laura Mae Alpert — 153, Adam Auster — 151, Sonya Bergquist — 142, Robert S. Bond — 101, Shirley S. Brown — 123, Donald W. Coole — 147, Richard A. Damon — 139, Brian K. DeLancey — 138, Eric C. Forsgard — 138, Jean M. Fox — 102, Lawrence D. Gerzog — 153, Susan J. Hoffman — 147, Steven M. Leibowitz — 150, Donald R. Marion — 98, Rosemary McCarthy — 145, Robert M. Melia — 149, Glen Thomas Munroe — 153, Richard J. Murphy, Jr. — 145, Katherine Anne Ozer — 157, Beverly J. Pacheco — 110, David J. Pacheco — 111, Armando Parces-Enriquez — 146, William N. Rice — 149, Leo T. Richard — 144, Richard S. Scire — 154, Gary Shuster — 151, Leverne J. Thelen — 156, Thomas P. Tooley — 146, Scott A. Wieler — 147, Albert L. Wrisley — 129.

PRECINCT 4

Bonnie Acker — 76, Mary E. Andrews — 124, Elisa K. Campbell — 93, Franklin A. Dorman — 79, Edwina L. Fish — 142, Dorothy D. Fraser — 141, Constantine J. Gilgut — 106, Donald E. Hastings — 171, Wayne A. Howard — 106, Chong W. Lee — 150, Lewis C. Mainzer — 155, Peter B. Manning — 110, John C. Marchant — 136, Francis X. Mazzei — 101, Norma L. McCartney — 134, Robert M. McClung — 169, Barbara M. McGarrah — 157, Bernard R. Moreau — 170, Julius Muskus — 128, Christina Platt — 117, Robert H. Plattner — 130, Harriett S. Shapiro — 138, Jim H. Starr — 94, Mary K. Steinway — 124, Mary Sidney Treyz — 138, Joseph L. Tudryn — 130, Elma K. Varley — 154, H. Leland Varley — 169, Beverly J. Weeks — 150, Willard T. Weeks — 158.

PRECINCT 5

Elizabeth E. Allen — 177, George M. Andrews — 145, Anne K. Bain — 184, George W. Bain — 195, Mildred A. Beales — 257, Charles Chase — 183, Elizabeth A. Chickering — 201, Helen O. Collery — 229, Pauline R. deSherbinin — 200, Clover M. Drinkwater — 172, Violet S. Durgin — 173, Norman M. Enman — 191, Patricia T. Fischer — 190, Robert F. Fischer — 183, John P. Gedmin — 164, Robert F. Grose — 237, Alfred F. Havighurst — 200, Nora A. Hertzfeld — 202, Nancy W. Hirsch — 185, Herbert T. Homme — 143, Paul C. Jones — 167, Judith A. Kopec — 152, Kenneth R. Mosakowski — 235, Marion M. Newell — 161, Norman D. Newell — 177, Eleanor D. Quint — 171, Charles A. Rogers — 149, David J. Russell — 148, Janice A. Shumway — 191, Richard L. Shumway — 209.

PRECINCT 6

Kenneth D. Cuddeback — 259, Ethel Eaton Colt — 186, Ralph Daniels — 176, Evangeline R. Darity — 215, Judith D. Eckhouse — 289, Rosanna Falabella — 174, Frederick A. Filios — 168, Paul G. Filios — 167, Harold B. Gatslick — 207, Paul T. Gilmore — 171, James M. Harrigan — 178, James B. Harrington, Jr. — 192, Richard A. Heath — 172, Stephen E. Keedy — 214, Raymond P. Kucinski — 170, Joan Ross Logan — 226, Susan C. Lowance — 186, Arthur J. Lyman — 206, George R. McDowell — 236, Judith F. Owen — 259, Arthur B. Pickering — 185, W. Clark Roof — 244, Carol A. Scheurer — 213, George B. Scheurer — 218, Kathleen E. Sczerzenie — 167, Michael P. Sullivan, Jr. — 233, Thomas D. Swain, 170, Donald E. Thayer — 199, Henry J. Walas — 169, Fred A. Wentworth — 176.

PRECINCT 7

Jake E. Bishop — 192, Isabele M. Callahan — 147, Charles F. Cole — 170, Emma-Jean Cole — 152, George E. Como — 202, Elizabeth B. Cramer — 158, Robert H. Davis — 147, Stephen M. Dimock — 209, Stevenson W. Fletcher — 167, Louise R. Hamman — 134, John P. Hewitt — 176, Myrna L. Hewitt — 145, Elsa D. Hornfischer — 140, Irving Howards — 165, Deborah G. Jacque — 175, Mitchell A. Jacque — 195, Raymond A. Jacque — 186, Roger C. Jacque — 212, Ronald A. Jacque — 172, Gordon A. Jones — 142, Mona S. Keedy — 194, William A. Lambert — 186, Phyllis Lehrer — 160, Judith D. Mawson — 172, Anton M. Mushovic — 152, Gary S. Paul — 185, John E. Ritter, Jr. — 180, James F. Walker, Jr. — 145, Arthur A. Wentworth — 133.

PRECINCT 8

Jean C. Barker — 228, Mary Elizabeth B. Bernhard — 239, Albert G. Brace — 274, Norman D. Brown — 213, Linwood G. Buczala — 212, Homer W. Cowles — 344, Robert B. Cowles — 285, J. Timothy Curran — 194, Ruth E. Curtis — 206, Alice H. Epstein — 267, Claire M. Fortier — 255, Bradlee E. Gage — 335, Gerald J. Grady — 273, Harold W. Gould — 199, Philip T. Ives — 352, Stanley W. Kielbasa — 237, Robert L. Klein — 192, Louis R. Mannheim — 264, Alfred H. Mathieson — 295, George B. May — 221, J. Tracy Mehr — 219, Alan F. Rainford — 235, Dorothy S. Robinson — 205, Charles L. Scherpa — 193, Allen T. Torrey — 340, Richard S. Warner — 227, Gregory W. Webb — 302, Robert R. Wellman — 217, Howard Wiarda — 207, Tie between Michael A. Cann and Robert L. Rivers — 190.

One of the many readings that took place at the "Freedom Seder" in the Student Union Ballroom last night. (Staff photo by Terrell Evans).

Freedom Seder observed by DVP

By TERRELL EVANS
Collegian Staff

The Distinguished Visitors Program (DVP) presented a "Freedom Seder" as part of the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Lecture Series. The Seder, conducted by Hillel Organization was held in the Student Union Ballroom last night as part of Jewish passover beginning Saturday, April 2.

The Seder, usually held on the first two nights of Passover, was delayed to coincide with the DVP's honoring of King.

Five New Africa House Choir members performed the songs "Let My People Go," "Go Tell It On The Mountain," and "I Wish I Knew How It Would Feel To Be Free."

About 125 people showed up for the traditional meal. The Seder begins with a reading describing the Jews' plight and their journey from Egypt.

Various foods eaten during the meal symbolize the hardships enjured and the new times to look forward to. A bitter herb is eaten to remind them of their enslavement in the land of Egypt. Salted water is drank reminds Jews of the tears they shed.

An egg is eaten symbolizing fertility, as many of the first born were slaughtered by Egyptian oppressors. To symbolize spring and the good times to come parsley is eaten.

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
only area showing
NOW, ends Tuesday!
at 7:00 & 9:00
a film by
françois truffaut
small change
AT THE GATES
OF SMITH COLLEGE

ROCK'S at its BEST:
...when accompanied with
COMFORT®
Have your own rocks concert: just pour Southern Comfort over ice and turn on the music. Neat! Super with cola, 7UP, tonic, orange juice or milk!
There's nothing more delicious than Southern Comfort® on-the-rocks!
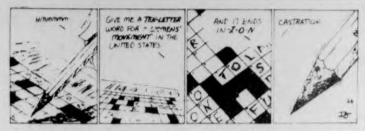
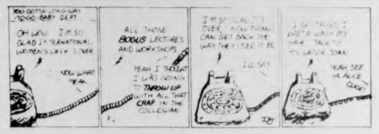
Send for a Free Recipe Guide: SOUTHERN COMFORT CORP., 100 PROOF LIQUEUR, ST. LOUIS, MO. 63132

Elegant cruise ship or luxurious car ferry...
...Karageorgis does it with style
No other cruise line offers more ancient sites, more modern excitement and unsurpassed luxury — and Karageorgis does it with style—aboard the superb 23,000 ton Navarino, formerly the Gripsholm.
Experience the ancient splendor of Greece—Olympia, Mycenae, Epidaurus, Delos, Delphi, Mt. Athos—plus four of the world's most exotic cities: Athens, Dubrovnik, Istanbul and Venice. Aboard the beautifully refurbished Navarino. From Venice alternate Saturdays or Piraeus alternate Tuesdays. 14 ports in 14 days, and Karageorgis does it with style.
Relax aboard the 16,000 ton Mediterranean Sea or Mediterranean Sky. The convenient, luxurious way to take a car to Greece.
Sailing from Ancona, the nearest port to the center of Europe year round. Sailing to Patras—the ideal gateway to Greece in 34 hours direct, or 35 hours via Corfu.
Four convenient sailings per week through the Summer. Two a week in Winter. From either end. Luxury cruise liner standards of accomodations, cuisine and service, with the convenience of your car on board. And there's a bonus 30% reduction for students.
KARAGEORGIS LINES
See an expert — your travel agent — or for more information contact: Karageorgis Lines, 1350 Avenue of the Americas New York, N.Y. 10019 Telephone: (212) 582-3007
All vessels are of Greek Registry.

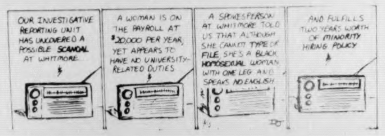
Responsibility and satire



HMMMMM
GIVE ME A TEN-LETTER WORD FOR A 'WOMENS' MOVEMENT' IN THE UNITED STATES
AND IT ENDS IN I-O-N
CASTRATION



YOU-GOTTA-LONG-WAY-TO-GO-BABY DEPT
OH WOW I'M SO GLAD INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S WEEK IS OVER
ALL THOSE BOGUS LECTURES AND WORKSHOPS
YEAH I THOUGHT I WAS GOING TO THROW UP WITH ALL THAT CRAP IN THE COLLEGIAN
I'LL SAY
YEAH SEE YA ALICE



OUR INVESTIGATIVE REPORTING UNIT HAS UNCOVERED A POSSIBLE SCANDAL AT WHITMORE
A WOMAN IS ON THE PAYROLL AT $20,000 PER YEAR, YET APPEARS TO HAVE NO UNIVERSITY-RELATED DUTIES
A SPOKESPERSON AT WHITMORE TOLD US THAT ALTHOUGH SHE CANNOT TYPE OR FILE, SHE'S A BLACK HOMOSEXUAL WOMAN WITH ONE LEG AND SPEAKS NO ENGLISH AND FULFILLS TWO YEARS WORTH OF MINORITY HIRING POLICY

SEXIST WEEK
MY GIRL IS REALLY INTO SPORTS... SHE CAN'T WRESTLE, BUT YOU SHOULD SEE HER BOX
MY GIRLFRIEND DOESN'T HAVE MUCH OF A FACE, BUT YOU SHOULD SEE HER NECK
DID YOU SEE THAT GIRL IN THE D.C.?
YEAH WHAT A BODY. I HAD A GODDAMN HARD ATTACK
YOU KNOW, IT'S ALL A MATTER OF SEMANTICS
NO, YOU MEAN SEMPERSONTICS

We, the Heads of Residence of Orchard Hill-Central, voice our public offense at the cartoons of Collegian cartoonist Dick Janssen published during International Women's Week. We find Janssen's cartoons distasteful and misleading, and question the Collegian editors' discretion and judgement in allowing them to appear.

Although Janssen proports to characterize only "a" women's movement in his cartoon of March 9, the implication seems quite clear that castration is the inevitable result of women coming together to fight the sexual oppression of a male-dominated culture. Otherwise, the speaker in the cartoon would not equate castration with any women's movement. The choice of the word "a" is a weak defense, a journalistic conceit which fails to obscure the speaker's biased misunderstanding of the efforts at raising the sexual consciousness level of men and women.

Far from rendering men impotent and sexless, the women's movement seeks to heighten the sexual awareness and sexuality of both men and women by educating and encouraging them to share their natural but often frustrated sexual and emotional needs, of providing support for those who will honestly resist the stereotypical notions of performance and expectation. Too many men fear that this process excludes them.

And while it is true that the effort of women to acknowledge and resist traditionally sexist treatment often confuses and offends men, they invite and actively seek to involve men in that process of resisting culturally-induced habits and expectations. We find Mr. Janssen's cartoon and example of misguided and paranoid fear.

We suppose his cartoon of March 14 means to tell us that women unveil their deeprooted disgust only under the auspices of events like International Women's Week, and then file away their brochures and feelings, take out their support bras and panty hose and finally wash their hair to get ready for a "heavy" date. Janssen seems to feel that the events of that week were punitive, rather than celebratory of the special attitudes among and communication between women; and further, that education, sharing and support are confined to specific time periods.

Under the conditions of satire, which Janssen elects by subtitling his cartoon "you've-gotta-long-way-to-go-baby dept.," we are supposed to assume that the women depicted are representative of all the women who either participated in the week's activities or are engaged in developing and sharing their heightened consciousness with others. Perhaps he assumes that responsibility for one's actions and attitudes is transitory, that the commitment to a heightened awareness of oneself, regardless of sex, is something to be brought out only at seemingly appropriate moments and then stored away in order to carry on with business 'as usual.'

COMMENTARY

This assumption belittles and patronizes the efforts of women and men who commit themselves to dignity and self-respect. We further worry that Janssen assumes his responsibility ends when he initials his cartoon and submits it to an editor. We suggest, rather, that it begins there.

Janssen's strip of March 15 is the most misguided and arrogant of the lot. We suppose he intended it as a satire of Affirmative Action. Yet his cartoon lacks the fundamental ingredient of satire — the truth. Satire exists only when the truth of a situation or moment is discovered, and then is extended or exaggerated.

Janssen clearly lacks any understanding of the principles or application of Affirmative Action, and hopes instead that a cheaply-invoked Watergate-Elizabeth Ray-conspiracy scenario will cover his tracks. We suggest that it uncovers a basic ignorance and fear of Affirmative Action, and perpetuates the racial and sexual bias and misunderstanding that fear breeds.

We need only to take the antithesis of the object of his cartoon to discover the dominant stereotype which this culture has too-long perpetuated as the only hireable: a white, heterosexual man, with two good legs, an attractive, unimpaired body, who speaks perfect English. A glance even at current film suggests that this type no longer accommodates the "stuff" of heroes or models. All around us are cultural signs that heretofore acceptable and encouraged modes of being and perception have washed out in the years following the tragedies of Vietnam and Watergate — do we need to remind Janssen of the characteristics of "the best and the brightest?" — and Affirmative Action is an expression of a long-overdue recognition of this sober fact.

We insist that Janssen's cartoon strip lacks the stuff of responsible satire and perpetuates instead ignorance and misunderstanding. Even a casual examination of minority hiring policy on this campus suggests that the University has a long way to go. Affirmative Action officers and Title IX investigators are working with existing structures to remedy that situation, and we resent Janssen's assumption that Affirmative Action is a minority hiring policy which places heretofore unrepresented parts of this culture anywhere — regardless of qualifications — in order to fill quotas. Attitudes such as those reflected in his cartoon only make the job harder, and reflect the racism and sexism which currently exists.

Janssen's March 16 cartoon is an equally inept attempt at satire, and is poorly conceived as well. In order to make the punch line of "sempersontics" work, Janssen would have had to include sexist comments about men by women. He doesn't, which assumes that the possession of sexist comments exists solely in the domain of men. If the speakers in his strip demand sole possession of sexist attitudes, then they should not be so offended that only women are increasingly resisting them.

Perhaps Janssen, on the other hand, does not feel his self-respect attacked when women make sexist comments and reflect sexist attitudes about men. Perhaps he is content with stereotypical notions of expectation and performance. Perhaps he does not appreciate that it is guilt which produces embarrassment when those expectations cannot be reached, that such guilt is false and based on biased assumptions handed down from past generations.

We suggest to him that if he has ever felt this way, he might find support in the women around him who are fighting the same cultural assumptions about roles and expectations which oppress men as well as women. He might further find that the same men and women who find offense in his cartoons now would welcome his efforts of resistance.

A campus newspaper like the Daily Collegian serves to give experience to young journalists and writers and should afford them the opportunity to be wrong, and to make mistakes of judgement. We can accept an argument that Janssen's cartoons of International Women's Week were attempts at satire, and do not begrudge him the opportunity to fail to make them work. Yet the strips themselves suggest such insensitivity and misunderstanding that such a case seems hard pressed to make.

Regardless, we question the editorial practices of any publication which would permit such false information to be printed under their banner. The role of an editor is to determine whether the work of writers and artists on their staff meets standards of responsibility and taste. These cartoons suggest that Collegian standards are low. The dissemination of false information, ignorance and bigotry which underlies Janssen's cartoons reflects badly on the editors of the Collegian responsible for such matters.

We believe either disregard or irresponsibility caused those strips to appear. The responsibility for their appearance is shared by Collegian editors who should have seen that they reflected misinformation and ignorance and lacked the stuff of satire, and thus not allowed them to appear.

—Orchard Hill and Central Area Heads of Residence

Secession not self-serving says rep.

EDGARTOWN, Mass. [UPI] — Rep. Terrance P. McCarthy, D-Edgartown, says there's nothing self-serving in the secession movement mounted by residents of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket islands.

McCarthy and his colleague in the legislature Rep. John S. Conway, R-Nantucket, are in the forefront of the islands' movement to secede from the commonwealth.

Many islanders voted in favor of secession during town meeting this week. Nantucketers voted 1,725 to 404 in favor. Residents of Chilmark, on Martha's Vineyard, supported the move, 132-31, and the residents of the Elizabeth Island chain voted 63-2 to secede.

Five other Martha's Vineyard communities are left to vote, with the last balloting set for May 18.

The threat to withdraw from the state was sparked by the islands' loss of representation under a redistricting of the legislature which will cut the membership of the House from 240 to 160 members and place the islands into a district with the Cape Cod mainland.

Two of those cuts, approved by the legislature in 1974, involve the seats now held by McCarthy and Conway.

PHOTO CONTEST
DEADLINE: April 26
No smaller than 5'x7' or larger than 8'x10'
Mounting unnecessary
1st Prize $25
2nd Prize $15
3rd Prize $10
2 honorable mention $5 each
Include your name, address, telephone, how the picture was shot, (film type, shutter speed, special effects, etc...) with your photo.
Winners will have their photos printed in the May 2nd Collegian Photo Special

Appearing
Thurs.-Sun.
fat
Friday Only
fat and zonkaraz
At
The
rusty
nail
Inn
Rte 47 Sunderland
665 4937

Submits Senate redistricting plan

Olver intends no shake-up

BOSTON [AP] — A new set of 40 Massachusetts Senate districts was unveiled yesterday for 1978 by an architect who conceded he protected all incumbents.

Sen. John W. Olver, D-Amherst, said he worked to "maintain the thread of past representation" — meaning he expects no major shake-up in current Senate membership.

No two incumbents would compete with each other for a new term.

The Senate plan contrasts with a pending House redistricting proposal which will cut membership from 240 to 160 by lumping many incumbents in the same districts.

The Senate districting plan was required by the same amendment that mandated the 1978 House cut and is based on the latest state census.

In the past five years Massachusetts population has increased by about 250,000 and the proposed Senate districts were based on that new head count. The new districts will have about 145,000 persons.

Olver at one time considered creating a new district, without an incumbent, in suburbs west of Boston. He backed off, however, because it would have put two incumbent Boston senators in the same district.

Instead, the district of one senator, Arthur J. Lewis, D-Boston, was pushed deeper into the western suburbs.

Districts in southeastern Massachusetts were made smaller and those north of Boston were made larger, based on population shifts.

All of Berkshire County in Western Massachusetts was placed in one senatorial district for the first time. Five of the 40 districts were left unchanged.

The district of expelled Sen. Joseph J.C. DiCarlo, D-Revere, was left basically unchanged. Some changes were made in the district of former Sen. Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington, who quit last week.

Both DiCarlo and MacKenzie face prison terms for extortion convictions.

The Senate was made up of 33 Democrats and seven Republicans — before Mackenzie quit and DiCarlo was ousted. Olver said he did not seek to alter that political lineup.

"I tried to make minimal changes in the representation pattern," he said at a news conference.

At present, eight Massachusetts communities — other than Boston, Springfield and Worcester — are divided into two Senate districts. The divided communities are Danvers, Andover, Belmont, Waltham, Lexington, Medford, Cambridge and Westfield.

Government urges more DNA tests

Senator Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) chats with Mass. Governor Michael Dukakis before a hearing on research with recombinant DNA before the Senate Human Resources Committee yesterday.

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The Carter administration today urged that, despite potential dangers, recombinant DNA research be allowed to go forward under interim safety guidelines while stricter government regulations are drawn.

DNA is the genetic material that carries the characteristics of life, and recombinant research involves transplanting the such material from one microorganism to another.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano outlined the proposed administration bill on DNA research before the Senate Health and Scientific Research subcommittee.

Califano said recombinant DNA is a "scientific tool of extraordinary potential" but one which poses risks "of uncertain magnitude." Recombinant DNA could alter a microorganism in an unpredictable and possible undesirable way.

Should the altered substance escape, he said, "it might cause disease or modify the environment."

Although some scientists have proposed a total ban on DNA research until the safety questions can be answered, Califano said the administration wants the research to continue under safety guidelines drafted last year by the National Institute of Health.

Government intervention into the controversial subject, is unusual, Califano said, but added that legislation is needed not only to safeguard the public but also to assure "that basic research in this potentially fruitful area is allowed to continue."

Until more information on the nature of the risks is available, Califano said, the administration believes "the best course if to allow recombinant DNA research to go forward — but only under strict conditions to insure safety."

DOW JONES AVERAGE
30 Industrials
Closed at 916.14 Apr. 5 1977

UP
0.58

N.Y.S.E.
Volume Profile

UP	UNCHANGED	DOWN
484	488	887

ISSUES TRADED: 1859
INDEX: 53.30 off 0.15
VOLUME: 21,882,700 SHARES
S.&P. COMPOSITE 98.01 off 0.22

6
NOW SERVING
MEXICAN FOOD!
VILLAGE INN
OPENING SPECIAL
TAMALE DINNER, 2.75
Mexican drinks are doubles (with dinner).
DRAKE
Tel. 253-2548

EASTER
FLOWERS AND PLANTS
FLOWERS SENT NATIONWIDE
ORDER EARLY
GREEN VALLEY FLOWER SHOP
233 N.Pleasant St. Amherst
549-4883

BIG A AUTO PARTS

We've got auto parts for foreign cars.

WORLDPARTS

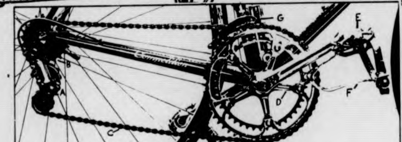
Auto parts for foreign cars – quality-made replacement parts for the most popular foreign cars in town. Worldparts are made by world famous manufacturers such as Maremont ... Bosch ... Lange ... Boge ... and more than 60 others.

When your foreign car needs repairs, have your garage or service station man call us for Worldparts. Or we can give you the name and address of a foreign car expert near you.

AMERICAN PARTS
Allied Motor Parts
319 Main Street, Amherst
256-8341

SHOP SERVICE AVAILABLE
Hours: 8-5:30 M-F, 8-5 Sat.

Paloton



A. Derailleur (Rear)
B. Freewheel
C. Chain
D. Crankset
E. Pedal
F. Toe Clip
G. Derailleur (Front)

1.) Bicycle Rejuvination Series
Drive Trains
April 11 thru April 30

2.) Chains	Reg.	SALE
3 spd. or 1 spd.	2.40	.99
10 spd. standard	3.00	1.99
Regina	6.00	3.50
Sedis Gold	8.00	6.00
Regina Gold	11.00	8.50
Everest Gold	11.00	5.50
3.) Free Wheels
Suntour Perfect	10.00	7.75
Pro Comp	11.00	8.40
Regina 5 spd.	11.00	6.00
Maillard 700 kit.	29.00	21.95
Suntour Winner	29.00	23.50
4.) Cranksets
All Stell (cottered)	12.00	8.00
Cotterless (Sugino Maxy style)	28.00	13.00
Shimano Tourney	39.00	29.95
Sugino Mighty	77.00	49.95
Campagnolo (No bottom bracket)	120.00	90.00
5.) Pedals
Vista Metal	4.50	.99
Rubber	4.00	2.75
Platform Atom	12.00	7.00
KKT Top Run	13.00	9.95
Campagnolo SL	49.00	35.00
6.) Misc.
Toe Clips	5.00	3.59
Oil	.85	.49
Grease (Litium Base)	1.30	.79
All Drive Train Tools (Chain removers etc.)	25 per cent off reg.

1 E. Pleasant St,
AMHERST
549-6904

15 State St.,
NORTHAMPTON
584-1016

Open 10-6, Fri. 10-9; Open Sat.

Paloton
Paloton

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500

Sadat rejects Carter plan

Egyptian President Sadat greets old friend Kissinger yesterday.

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Egypt's President Anwar Sadat Wednesday rejected President Carter's concept of stationing Israeli border defense forces on Arab soil as part of a Middle East peace settlement.

"We have discussed it," Sadat told a news conference on the final day of his Washington visit. "But sovereignty is indivisible, and we can't have two borders. Sovereignty always means one border."

He indicated the Arabs might accept demilitarized border zones.

Floods rip Southeast

[UPI] — Record-high floods surged down Appalachian Mountain valleys today, creating the worst emergencies in decades in many communities. At least 15 persons were dead and more than 23,000 persons out of their homes in a six southeastern states.

The death toll attributed to violent weather mounted to 107 for a three-day period. The toll included those drowned in the floods, 69 killed in the crash of a hail-pounded Southern Airlines jetliner, 22 who died in tornadoes and 1 storm-related traffic fatality.

The floods, fed by torrential rains of more than eight inches, caught lowland residents and motorists by surprise and rose to near 100-year heights in some parts of Appalachia.

Authorities in some states said it was still too early to set a firm death toll, but Kentucky and West Virginia each counted 4 flood deaths, Tennessee 3, and Virginia and Alabama 2 each.

News in Brief

Lebanon fighting resumes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The fiercest fighting since last fall engulfed the villages and rocky hills of Lebanon's southern border region Wednesday on the third day of a Palestinian counteroffensive against Israeli-backed Christians.

U.S. Ambassador Richard Parker, pressing a diplomatic initiative to head off escalation of the clashes, met with Lebanon's defense minister and new army commander and with a right-wing Christian leader.

Fitz out say dissidents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamster dissidents yesterday demanded the ouster of President Frank Fitzsimmons, but the determined labor leader told a meeting of 2,000 local union supporters he would not be forced out by charges of corruption.

Union leaders indicated they would dismiss an internal complaint filed against Fitzsimmons by three dissident members, who demanded his ouster on grounds of nepotism, squandering funds and dealing with organized crime figures.

Public works deadlock unbroken

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House-Senate negotiators tried but failed Wednesday to break a deadlock delaying the $4 billion public works jobs bill, a key part of President Carter's economic recovery program.

They tentatively planned to try again Thursday morning.

The talks broke down after 90 minutes largely because Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, a key participant, declined to attend and refused to agree to separating two complex issues which have become entwined — jobs and water pollution.

New immunization program announced

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The government today announced a massive, upgraded immunization program to counteract what it called a "shocking" apathy that has left 20 million youngsters unprotected from such perils as polio, tetanus and whooping cough.

"Too many parents are unaware of the risks of inadequate immunization against childhood diseases," said HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

PAUL J LANDRY

LANDRY'S MARKET

GOOD THRU APRIL 12

Miller Beer 12 oz. cans	$5.99 case	$1.65 6 pak
Imported Portugese Vinya Rose		$1.89 fifth
N.Y. State Taylor Wines		$3.79 ½ gal.
REGULAR HAMBURG (59c lb. on Sundays only)		79c lb.
TOP ROUND STEAK		$1.59 lb.
SLAB BACON		$1.29

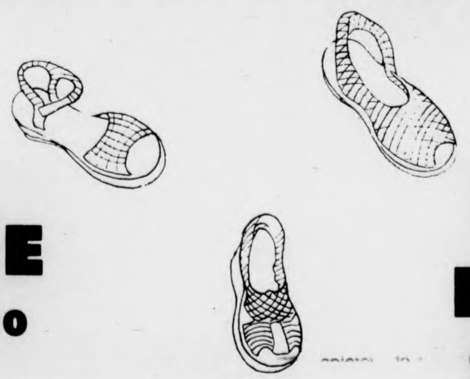
Check Out Our Other Meat And Grocery Specials!!

WARE FACTORY
SHOE OUTLET

East Street Ware, Mass Phone 967-3683

25% To 50% OFF

HURRACHI WEDGE



VALUE $20.00

OUR PRICE $14.97

WIDE VARIETY OF STYLES AND COLORS

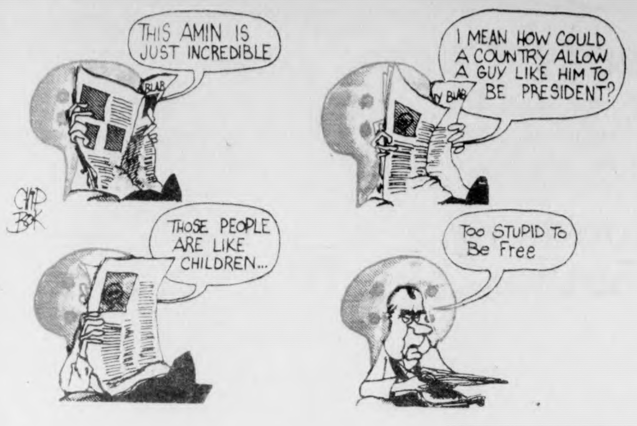
Come shop at Ware Factory Shoe Outlet & Save!

We have EVERY SIZE COLOR LENGTH and GENDER

Levi's
Levi's
LEVI'S JEANS

10% OFF NEXT PURCHASE! WITH THIS AD*
OFFER EXPIRES: 4/16/77
*EXCLUDES SALE ITEMS

the jeans store
WEAR-HOUSE
201 n. pleasant st. amherst
Fairfield Mall chicopee



THIS AMIN IS JUST INCREDIBLE
BLAB
I MEAN HOW COULD A COUNTRY ALLOW A GUY LIKE HIM TO BE PRESIDENT?
BLAB
THOSE PEOPLE ARE LIKE CHILDREN...
TOO STUPID TO Be Free
CHIP BOK

letters

Fight level funding for your own sake

To the Editor:

A student task force on Budget Cuts meets this afternoon at 4:00 in room 804 in the Campus Center. While everyone is invited, we are urging those people who are determined to expose the facts and the factors behind this systematic institutional genocide to attend. You are out there, aren't you? Collegian editorials daily express the needs, the importance and the utility of student action to counteract the proposed measures for continuating the current fiscal policy. A concensus of opinion simply states that action must be taken, it must happen soon, and students must be the major instigators, facilitators and doers. The extent to which we believe in the above and our willingness to act on these beliefs demands our immediate attention.

The relative effects of level funding on the quality of our education require no debate. Increases in pupil-teacher ratios, scarcity of soft-ware ranging from lab materials to books and periodicals in the library, and the annihilation of academic departments as well as special programs and support services suggest only the tip of the iceberg. The Titanic of 1977 is Amherst but it is only one of a fleet; the fleet of Massachusetts Public Higher Educational Institutions.

The agenda of today's meeting will address specific plans for a University wide teach-in slated for later this month. Those people, employees, faculty and students, representing special interest groups, academic departments, and student programs are urged to attend. Your energy, ideas and perspectives are of paramount importance. There can be no dialogue without you, no action without you and no change without you. Your sisters and brothers are counting on you.

Concerned Students Task Force Against Level Funding

Noise and smoke spoil concert

To the Editor:

I went to the Orchestra Luna concert last Friday night. Perhaps more correctly, I tried to. After about 15 minutes I surrendered and walked out. The odds were incredible. I left with three distinct reactions.

First, the person on audio doesn't understand his function. This group has much more to offer than loudness that envelopes and assaults the audience. I trust he's fired and replaced by a professional before this group hits New York City. They won't buy it down there. The second reaction: this group has a real potential. They're doing some very interesting and innovative things in drama and story telling within the context of rock. Who needs sheer loudness here? Part of their problem is going to be to learn to translate the subleties of the pantomime and facial expressions to the larger concert stage. It just may be that they'll continue to work best in the more intimate atmosphere of the nightclub. I hope they find television, where their subtleties can best be projected.

I also have the feeling they'd benefit from the addition of another musician or two for more depth. How about a flute? In all this I wish them the best. They can make it.

My final reaction had nothing to do with the performance. It was related to the pot smoking going on in the concert hall. I wish that the zombies who smoke pot would recognize this is a public hall and there's no smoking. This is not a judgment on pot smoking as such. It's simply a statement that the practice of smoking pot doesn't, for some mysterious reason, give you special privileges. Also, just don't feel you can dump your garbage on me, Mac.

Having spent four bucks for what I anticipated would be an interesting and exciting experience my mood became much like that which generally prevails among the faculty at this delightful University right now — of feeling painfully let down.

Richard D. Harper
Communications Studies

Janssen: Amusing, provocative

To the Editor:

During the last few weeks, a lot of things have been said about Dick Janssen and his What Next? cartoons. It is unfortunate that many of these comments were unsubstantiated and negative. Humor, simply stated, is the faculty or saying or perceiving what excites amusement. I would like to say that I was, for one, amused by the cartoons when I first read them. Also, I have been amused by all the emotionalism which has cropped up after the cartoons. It has become one of the most amusing and certainly unique issues that the Collegian has ever carried on a regular basis. I am not alone in this opinion. Many of us have been following What Next? closely, including yourselves. Dick's cartoons were provocative, amusing, lasting and above all, humorous. Thanks, Dick for having the guts to give us all a taste of humor that lasts. Thanks, Dick for giving us an amusing time.

Loyd Searle

Amherst Town Election coverage

To the Editor:

Our sincerest thanks to your editors and staff for your coverage of the Amherst Town Election. Your support of the 'progressive' candidates was most helpful in our various precinct campaigns. We hope to see your support continue for all 'progressive' issues. Seabrook, N.H. April 30.

Kathleen Carlson
Alan Suprenant

commentary

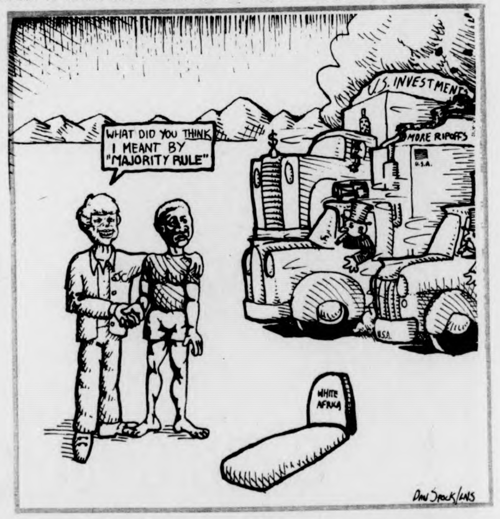
Soviet influence in Africa

By FRED CURTIS

At a time when the University community, as well as the national media, is focussing on issues related to southern Africa, the question of Soviet and Cuban influence in Africa is being raised ever more frequently. Recent articles in Times and Newsweek and a full-page paid advertisement in the New York Times have all discussed the "growing Soviet penetration of East, Central and southern Africa." Podgorny of the Soviet Union and Castro of Cuba, have both just completed visits to Africa. A large Cuban presence remains in Angola. President Mobutu of Zaire claims that Cuban and Soviet troops are leading the "insurgent rebels" in Zaire. But what do these facts and reports mean?

The usual interpretation of the visits and the aid rendered by Cuba and the Soviet Union is that the Soviets are making Africa the new battleground of the superpowers. (This interpretation was also presented in recent publicity about southern Africa put out by the Revolutionary Student Brigade on campus.) This interpretation is false. While the countries named, as well as Western nations, are interested in extending their influence in Africa, the independent governments of Tanzania, Angola, Zambia, Mozambique and other Black African nations are refusing to be dominated by the so-called "great powers." They are rejecting neocolonialism, be it Western or Eastern. It is in the context of this independent stance that they accept military and economic aid from Cuba and the Soviet Union, as well as from Western nations.

How, then, are the supplies of arms and the presence of advisors, especially the large Cuban contingent in Angola, to be explained? Very simply: they are in support of national struggles of liberation, and self-determination, struggles initiated and led by the oppressed peoples of Angola, Namibia, Zimbabwe and Zaire. The presence of Cuban troops and Soviet arms in Angola came in response to the U.S.-supported invasion of Angola by South African troops (Operation Cobra) and the continued threat of future such invasions. Further, the magnitude of Cuban and Soviet support, be it aid or advisors, is greatly exaggerated by the U.S. media, keeping all the cold war "red menace" juices flowing.



The reactionary governments of Zaire, Rhodesia and South Africa know well how to play on U.S.-Soviet rivalry. They feed Washington's paranoia. There is no evidence, other than Mobutu's claims, that the Katangan gendarmes are led by Soviet or Cuban troops. In South Africa and Rhodesia, the communist spectre has continually been raised over the years — but who is defined as a communist? Under the Suppression of Communism Act in South Africa, a "communist" is legally defined as anyone who seeks social, political or economic change!"

If these claims of Soviet influence and the communist menace are so farfetched, why are they effective in influencing U.S. foreign policy? This question is crucial. To answer it is also to answer the question of why the U.S. does not support the liberation groups. U.S. economic and strategic interests, to paraphrase a State Department official, are not served by violent change and revolution in southern Africa. The U.S. supports "peaceful" change in the region, the "peaceful" transition to majority rule in Namibia and Zimbabwe. The New York Times goes further than this. In an editorial printed this week, it calls for a gradual, step-by-step approach to majority rule to South Africa, so as not to frighten the white minority! The stated conclusion from this was that the U.S. should not now support majority rule in South Africa.

Such a policy of "peaceful" change is not peaceful at all; it aids and abets the continued exploitation, starvation and murder of Black Africans in minority-rule southern Africa. To work for "peaceful" change is to work for the installation of reformist Black governments who will protect the interests of U.S. multinational corporations. U.S. foreign policy is in fundamental contradiction in southern Africa. By raising the false issue of Soviet penetration, it supports the denial of all rights — human, legal, political and economic — of the Black majority. It seems that human rights are an issue to be used to badger our ideological opponents and not the basis of a humane, progressive foreign policy.

---

jan van tol

Bad craziness

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe:
All mimsy were the borogroves and the mome raths outgrabe."

—Lewis Carroll

It's been one of those weeks in which, to reactionary advanced paranoiacs like ourselves, all the invisible and ignored threads connecting such things as hypocrisy, the SATF increase, Dick Janssen's cartoons, and Stevie Wonder are seemingly coming together like some monstrous web of conspiracy threatening to overwhelm us all!!!

Actually the previous paragraph was unfortunately not generated by consciousness-expanding drugs, but rather was a consequence of the extreme resentment caused by blowing an otherwise brilliantly played pinball game (on Wild Life) at the last second. Just at the moment that one last superb shot would have rung up the few points needed for a free game, our attention was fatally distracted by four student government types declaiming loudly about the importance of "student governance" while defiling the second machine down from us. (Pinball is a mystical experience; discoursing on insipid matters like the SGA while playing is rank sacrilege).

But during the agony of defeat, certain insights shoot across the mind's stage with staggering clarity. While our reeling mind was vainly trying to synthesize the concepts of "student input in decision making" and "losing a free hit of pinball", one thought came through with such force that it could only have emanated from Ultimate Reality: WHO CARES?? Who cares about student government? For that matter, who really cares about most of the tawdry, mealy-mouthed "Student Issues" that incessantly run through Collegian's editorial pages like a river of swill?

So much for "Soft Background" and "Creative Description".

In a somewhat more serious vein, this past week was notable only for the extreme paucity of interesting thought, and for the high level of professed piety for all the Sacred Cows this campus so fervently worships. And occasionally this sad state of affairs is too much for intellectual nihilists like ourselves to handle.

So we rebel. Examples.

During the last two weeks, Dick Janssen has come under a lot of fire for some of his "unenlightened" comics. Those and Schlitz's ridiculous "Dean of Beer" ads have prompted a number of folks to respond with some pretty funny letters. Tuesday's letter from the esteemed Heads of Residence of Orchard Hill and Central is a good example: "While none of us wishes to see Dick Janssen's cartoon strip censored,...". Right. Censorship is one of those tricky things that nobody wants to be publicly associated with, but you can bet that despite the pious disclaimers, the above progressive HR's and many other Right-Thinkers would love to slit Janssen's journalistic throat simply because he is not perceived as saying "Good Things". (Which reminds us; "Upstairs, Downstairs" is one of OUR Sacred Cows. Critics be warned!)

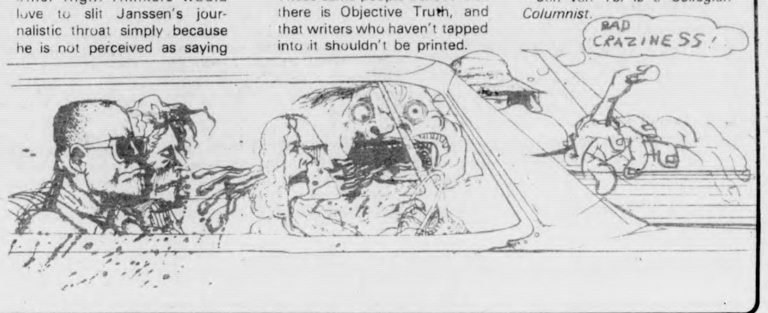
Another funny letter was written by Mr. Rob Thayer. He warned Janssen to be more serious about his humor. "Start thinking about "interpreting" things in a way which can control what the "individual" will read into your cartoons". That is Dick, there are ecertain things which your readers must not be allowed to think.

We've received similar criticism behind the scenes. It seems that some people think that writers have a responsibility to say only right things, and furthermore, if they're dealing with "heavy" subjects, they should be serious about it. These same people believe that there is Objective Truth, and that writers who haven't tapped into it shouldn't be printed.

A few readers might remember a rather peculiar item in our "Women's Week" column. Incredibly there was a disclaimer, i.e., a guide to the Proper Reality for those readers too stupid to find it for themselves. While we don't blame the Exec. Editor nor the Women's Coordinator for requesting it, we think it's regrettable that the level of humor perception is so low on campus as to require it. "Warning: This column may be harmful to proper perception of Womandom".

There is already so little joy in this Mudville. Must we always be so solemn?? Certain writers may say incredibly stupid things, but an absence of humor is itself Bad Craziness. A little Lewis Carroll anyone?

Jan van Tol is a Collegian Columnist.



BAD CRAZINESS!

martha newcomb

You can't go...

The theme has been of many a greater piece than mine, but today, as in millenium past, it holds true — "You Can't Go Back Home." Of course, it is figurative to some extent; you can go to the place where you were born or grew up, but it is, regretfully, impossible to recapture any of the events that have occured.

I lived in Quincy, Mass. until I was eleven. I remembered my street as a big hill with two big maple trees out front of the house. Behind our street was the old granite quarries.

My best friend Kathy and I used to hide behind some rocks at the quarries and watch the teenaged "Quarry Boys" swim naked and do spectacular dives off the cliffs. On a day that we weren't there, one of the boys dove off and hit his head and drowned.

We heard about it, the way kids always do, and hid and watched while they dredged for the body. The men stood around and talked a lot and we thought that this must have been what they did every day for a job. We called them "Dead Body Guys", and swore that we'd never let our husbands do that for a job. The body was only in our view for a second after they finally got it out because they wrapped it in a grey blanket and took it away. We were hoping that they'd bury him there so we could sneak up and put flowers on his grave.

Pretty soon after that, Kathy's mother died. Kathy was ten years old when she held her mother in her arms and watched her slip away. She didn't even cry; I remember being real proud of her. The only thing she told me about it was that seeing her mother was much crummier than seeing the drowned guy.

My family moved away soon after that and made me go with them, so I never saw Kathy again. About ten years later, I was near Quincy, so I decided to go to my old street and see if Kathy still lived there.

It was an astounding experience. The "big" hill that I had lived on and had taken many years before I would dare to roller-skate down, was merely a small grade. The maple trees had been cut down. The new owners of "my" house had cut off the wonderful porch and painted the once white house a crummy brown.

Kathy has long since moved and the people in "her" house didn't know where to. I walked up to the quarries and found "our" cave. I couldn't even fit into it and it had seemed so enormous when we were small.

There were some kids playing around there. I wanted to play pretend again, but at the same time I wanted to tell them what it was like to come back. I felt like Socrates coming back to a modern Greece.

For a second, my entire childhood seemed no more than a mirage, my life no more than a series of dreamy memories that had no consistency or relativity to time and space. It didn't last too long though. I had to go some place, to make new memories.

I've been wondering lately if maybe my future is stored inside me the same way that my past is; in cloudy pictures of events. I think it is, I just can't remember it.

If you decide to ride the sojourn to your past, don't be too disappointed if it's not the way you remember it. It hasn't really disappeared, it's just changed.

Martha Newcomb is a Collegian columnist.

commentary

Freedom twice removed

By PAUL LOGUE, JR.

The Voice of Freedom is calling, hear it ring, let it sing...

The people of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket have approved secession from the State of Massachusetts in Tuesday's referendum. Here are some excerpts from their Proclamation of Independence, which was approved by the Selectmen of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket:

"... The authority of the government is not absolute, but is predicted upon its capacity to comprehend and respond to the needs of the people. When the government fails to meet its obligations to the people, they have the right and the Duty to alter or abolish it..."

These opening lines coin the essence of the problem facing the residents of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. The State representative seat is being re-districted to the mainland, leaving the people without an immediate voice at the State House.

Why should this raise such a fuss? The news of this event carried in a story by the International Herald-Tribune, a Paris publication, which reaches all the main population centers on Earth. It is of interest to a lot of people because the basic tool of Freedom, representation and freedom of expression is being undermined.

The voice of the people on the islands will be twice removed. Once, through an intermediary, in the form of a representative and twice, to the mainland to meet with the representative. It is truly a burden for Islanders to journey to the State House to voice their opinion on subjects of debate; the ferry costs $16.00 round trip and only runs until 8:00 p.m. (Spring schedule and rates) This trip is simply out of the question for most islanders.

The economics of the situation make it imperative to have a contact person who is familiar with the particular problems of an island to speak up on issues pertinent to the environment and its inhabitants. One such issue is oils spills and the clean-up necessary in one occurs. This point is crucial to the life of the islands and its people and was brought very close to home this past winter when the Argo Merchant ran aground off Nantucket Shoals and broke up, leaving its cargo of 7 million gallons of oils shrouding the water with its blackness.

People are rebelling against authority because there are some distinct freedoms that were fought for by our ancestors and they feel the need to preserve them. If the islands cannot have some direct contact with the government, then they will form their own.

It is basic to our country's policy to help establish democracy wherever people seek it. But when the matter arises within the cradle of liberty itself, it casts an eerie glow upon the workings of the government and poses the question, "Who is governing whom?"

What can two tiny islands do to protect their freedom from the opposing government? How has liberty won out in the past? A few examples may clear the air: The Whiskey rebellion, The Civil War, Chicago 1968, Kent State, Seabrook. In the past, rebellion has been put down and the people forced to shut up. But the grumblings are becoming louder and more discontent. What will the governor do to put an end to this radicalism? There is a rumor that the 'Duke' is training a 'Nuke' from the Pilgram Power Plant directly at Oak Bluffs and will push the button if those disidents make one false move.

Better keep a look-out, there may be two more, "NO MANS' LAND."

Paul Logue, Jr. is a Collegian Commentator.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA [illegible]

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Dorothy A. Clark, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

AROUND NEW ENGLAND

Unions denied minimum manpower

BOSTON (UPI) — In a ruling which could have significant impact on a number of pending disputes, the state Labor Relations Commission ruled Wednesday public employe unions do not have the right to bargain for minimum manpower levels.

The ruling, which stems from a longstanding dispute in the town of Danvers, concludes the employes do not have the right to demand minimum manpower levels since it would give the employes an unfair advantage over other citizens in setting policy.

House lawyers may work full time

BOSTON (UPI) — Its political consciousness raised by the corruption convictions of two legislators, the House today was to consider a compromise order from its Rules Committee requiring lawyers in the House counsel's office to work full time.

The order, proposed and debated in a stronger form Tuesday by Minority Whip William Robinson, R-Melrose, was adopted by the committee after a day-long vote. The Republicans had argued for a tougher measure requiring the lawyers to give up all ties to their private practices as well as working full time.

House gives itself pay raise

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts House Wednesday initially approved a bill granting themselves and other nonunion state employes an $850 pay raise.

The measure, which also gives instate employes — excluding legislators — a one-time 1.5 per cent, or $150 bonus, was approved after an amendment to eliminate state legislators from the proposed hike was defeated 158-60.

Fishing limit may be undermined

[AP] — Congressmen and fisheries experts are concerned that the value of 200-mile fishing zone may be undermined by recent Washington decisions forbidding seizure of Soviet fishing vessels that violated the new boundary limit.

In the last 10 days, agents from the National Marine Fisheries Service and the Coast Guard have requested permission to seize three Soviet vessels.

Although more than 110 foreign vessels have been boarded since March 1, when the new law went into effect, the three Soviet ships were the first cases in which investigators felt the violations were serious enough to warrant seizure.

To consider
the destruction
of human life
through abortion
Vigil-Fast
HOLY WEEK
170 University Drive
April 4-8, 9am-5pm

Next year you could be on a scholarship.

An Air Force ROTC two-year scholarship pays your tuition and gives you $100 a month allowance. And it picks up the tab for books and lab fees, as well.

After college, you'll receive a commission in the Air Force . . . go on to additional, specialized training . . . as you get your start as an Air Force officer. There'll be good pay and responsibility, and lots of other benefits . . . and a great opportunity to serve your country.

It all starts right here — in college — in the Air Force ROTC.

Call at 545-2437
Major Richardson
Air Force ROTC

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

Classifieds

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line
Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line
ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

23 ch. C.B. & new ant. $49. 549-4789.

Baritone Sax — Buescher. Ex. cond. $425 or will trade for camera & money. 586-1556.

Automatic radio, 8 track auto. tape deck — FM radio. $60 or best offer. Call Mike 253-5366.

Panasonic stereo system receiver with 8 track play-record, Garrard turntable, walnut cabinet, speakers. $300 or best offer. Call Mike 253-5366.

Waterbed - raised frame, heater. $125. 584-5614, nights.

10 speed Schwinn. $65. John, 549-3812.

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

1969 Ford Falcon, blue, 46,000 miles, good running condition. Asking $600.00. 19" Atela 10 speed bicycle - $95.00. 253-7249.

Gibson SG std. guitar w-case. Fairly new, in very good cond. $245 or best offer. Call Bob 6-9432.

2 14 in. radials. Ex. cond. John, 253-5741.

Semi-pro bike. All alloy components. Fiammi, Sugino, etc. Superb cond. 6-6909.

Soprano sax — great cond. 2 Pentax lenses. 256-0223. Mel.

18' Hang Glider. $395. 253-2825.

Green antiqued bureau & matching mirror. $25. Call Joyce at 525-0936.

2 23 channel pace CB radios, complete w-antenna and mike. Call 584-8324.

AUTO FOR SALE

1969 Triumph Spitfire. 549-6834.

'73 Firebird, AM-FM stereo, cassette, 3 spd. $2595. Good cond. Call 256-8682.

Saab 99, '69, rebuilt engine, body very good. $750 or offer. Matt, 546-6158.

1973 white Dodge Colt, 4 speed, good condition. $1050. Call Lucinda at 247-5725.

1974 Chev. Impala. $1650. firm. 246-0642.

'65 Spitfire, complete. $100. 203-745-6764, evenings.

'73 Toyota Corolla, gd. cond., AM-FM radio, auto. trans. Call 665-3686 after 4:30.

'66 VW Bug. Good engine, crummy body. First $100. Charlie 209 Draper, days.

Triumph Spitfire 1964 - nice condition, many new parts, needs clutch. Best offer. Mark, 665-3670.

1969 VW Squareback, fuel injection, good condition, extras. $599. 549-5070.

'71 Ford Van. Runs well. AM-FM, 8 trak stereo, new tires, mattress, curtns. 253-3012.

AUTO FOR SALE

1969 Econ 300 Van. $1200. 665-7050.

'68 Buick Skylark. Good condition and good body. $450.00. Linda, 256-0548.

'74 Pinto Wgn. 50,000. Ex. cond., 4 spd., std., 4 radials and snws. AM-FM, 8 tr., 2 spkr. $1450. Call eve. 665-3237.

BMW, 1967. Exc. cond. $1200. 256-6459.

'70 Toyota Corona. Ex. cond. Must be seen. $900. Have to sell. 665-3255.

'74 Vega GT. AM-FM, lo miles, exc. cond. and best offer. Call Ken 253-2909.

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0610 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

Strong cable lock, $35 new, want $20. '72 Honda 350CB, pft. cond. $650 — B. O. $150 of extras included. Dave 549-1374.

1970 Kawasaki 500, runs well, very fast. $600. Call 549-1259 or 549-1316.

2 helmets, lock and chain, saddle bags, shields. Call Jeff. rm. 418. 545-0790—91.

'73 Honda 450 CL. 7500 mi. 2 helmets, plus men's and women's brown Harley leathers. All in good cond. $800 or B.O. 549-0179.

AUDIO

Quality components over 130 lines. Reasonable prices. Call Peter, 665-2920.

HELP WANTED

Summer jobs — Forest Service, 140 Nat'l Forests. How, where, when to apply. Complete info. $3.: Mission Mountain Co., Box 727, Polson, Montana 59860.

Summer work available. Call for an interview — 253-2598.

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

Sales person with car and camera. Call between 9-3. 586-0824.

WANTED

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

Looking for used quality scuba gear (Lrg.). Call evenings - 253-5410.

LOST

HP-25 calculator. Reward. Call 6-4355.

FOR RENT

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 plus sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

Boston: Ex-large Apt.; 2 bedrm., living, dining, sun porch, front-rear balcony, etc. $260 b.o. June-August—617-426-0871 (days) 782-8015 (nights) Write: Att.:Rob, 147 South St., Boston.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

2 rms. in 2 bdrm. apt. 1 sublet, 1 lease. Puf. Vil. June 1. 549-0589.

1 rm. in 2 bdrm. apt. Sund. $100. incl. util. Call 549-1391.

Apartment: May 23-Aug. 31. Call: 10-2. M-F. Ask for Mike. Leave Mess. 545-0189.

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

Grad student to share 2 bedroom apt. with same. $110— mo. incl. util. 256-6712.

Roommate wanted. Own bdrm. in 2 bdrm. Colonial Vill. Apt. F pref. on bus, laundry, furnished. $75—mo. incl. util. May 20 - Aug. 31. Call Sue 256-6169.

TO SUBLET

A top-notch 2 bedroom apartment for summer lease in Brandywine. Furnished! AC, pool, bus route. Call for a deal — 549-0691.

4 bdrm. townhouse on bus rte., furnished, air cond., pool. June to Sept. 256-0337.

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths and terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

3 bedrms., $95 ea. for 3 people, including utilities, 2 baths, free cable TV, pool, tennis, garden plot, dishwasher, bus rt. Start 6-1. 549-1845.

Apt. avail. May 1st. 1 bdrm., util. included. A.C., pool, tennis, bus rt. 549-0607.

3 bdrm. Twnhse apt. On bus rte. 2 baths. Rent $280 (maybe). Semi-furn. 665-3484.

2 bdrm. twnhse apt. On bus rt. AC, pool, ex. view. 6-1—8-31. Sund. Call 665-3439.

One bedroom apt. June 1 to Aug. 31. 10 min. from campus. On bus rt. Rent is very neg. 665-3986. Call Bob or Doug.

Puffton. 3 bedrm. apt. to sub. June 1 - Aug. 30. Call 549-0585.

3 bdrm. air-cond. & furnished apt. in Puffton. Tennis cts. & pool. 549-0936. Price negotiable.

Jun 1 - Aug. 31; $220—mo; all utils. incl. 2 br.; good for plants. Call 253-2874; aft. 6.

TO SUBLET

3 bdrm. Twnhse. apt. on bus rt. Semi-furn., air cond., pool. 6-1—8-31. Rent neg. 549-6919.

2 bdr. Brandywine, furn. 5-22 to 9-31 with optn. to renew lease. Rent neg. Call 549-0915.

2 bdrm. in twnhse. 6-1—opt. to rnw. 665-4230. $185.

2 bdrm. Twnhse. on bus rte. Avail. 6-1—8-31 with option for leasing 9-77. Air cond., pool. Call 253-7410.

4 bdrm. apt. Rol. Green. June-Aug. 6-7161.

2 bdrm. apt., avail. 6-1. Opt. renew. Good loc. Call 253-2841.

Two bedroom apt. at Cliffside in Sunderland, on bus route. Swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low rent. Call 665-4729 and keep trying.

Sublet—2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220-mon., A.C., pool, on bus rt! Call 665-3619.

Boston Summer Sublet — 2 bdrm. apt., lvng rm., kitch. Furn., air cond., reasonable rent. Parking avail. 2 min. from Mass. Transit. Call 546-9709.

3 bedr. apt. Puf. Vlg. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus route. Aprox. grad.-Aug. 31. Pool. Rent neg. Call 256-6051 eve.

Summer Sublet: 2 bdrm. sunny apt., Northampton Cntr. 15 min. walk to bus. Reasonable. 586-4422.

3 bdrm. Townhouse Apts. June-Aug. $270 or B.O. Call 549-1211 morn., eves.

Summer Sublet: Option to renew. 2 bdrm. Pres. Apt. Walk to campus. 549-5898.

Gorgeous 3 bedrm. apt. 63 Graves St., So. Deerfield, on bus rt. Apt. is very unique, must be seen, call 665-7193.

1 br. in 3 br. Puffton Vill. Apt. Furn., pool, tennis courts. 549-0611. May 31 thru August 31.

2 br. apt. w-huge yard-garden. On bus rt. June 1-Sept. 1. 253-2819. Keep trying.

2 bdrm. apt. Brandywine 6-1—8-31. Bus route, pool, pets. Rent neg. 549-1517 aft. 5.

June 1-Aug. 31. Colonial Village. Bus rt. 2 bdrms., semi-furnished. Call 253-3684.

2 bdrm. apt., Squire Vill., bus rt., 1½ baths, LR, DR, kitch., avail. now. Call 665-2203 or 665-3985. Anytime.

Shutesbury — 2 bdrm. apt. Sublease Fall option. $225, heat incl. Call 256-0575.

2 br. apt., furn., pool, pets. June 1 - Aug. 31. ½ of May free. $150—mo. Squ. Vil. 665-2904.

3 bdrm. townhouse. 3-4 m to campus. Jun-Sept. 1. 2 bus rtes. Call 549-4855.

PERSONALS

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

Lizzy F - (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie, D.L.

Luxury two bedroom apt. in Sunderland for summer sublet. On UMass bus route, swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low, low rent. Call 665-4729 anytime.

PERSONALS

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

To the girl with the great lips, if they say the first year is only the beginning, then the best is yet to come. —Scoop—

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot: you're alright too. AJF.

Denise and Pam: The pleasure was all yours, we hated it. Next time you pay us. Steve & Ken.

Buns Up and Happy Birthday, Andy! Have a nice one!

TRAVEL

Free tuition for 1 or 2 yrs. at any one of 140 univ., tech. schools and Yeshivas in Israel. Fully accredited programs for Jr. year and Grad study. Enrollment — min. 2 yrs. in advance, benefits from 1979-1989. Please contact: The Gift of Education, Dept. MA, Suite 710, 10 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020: 212-541-7568.

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075.

Disco Inferno, Fri., April 8, 9 p.m. - 1 a.m. 10th fl. Campus Center. Adm. $1.

SERVICES

Tune-up and main all AM makes. John 253-5664.

Expert typing. Call Melanie 256-6174.

Is your stereo not working? The Audio Servicenter can fix your amplifier, receiver, turntable, tape deck, speakers. Over three years of fast service and low rates. 274 North Pleasant St. Call 256-0524 for estimate. Tues. - Sat., 10-5:30.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

TAG SALE

Antiques, furniture, clothes, plants & lots of collectibles. 120 Amnity St. 549-5470. Sat. 4-9, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. Everything must go! We're going west.

FOUND

Found nr. Thoreau. Tell me what it was. 546-7503.

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears. cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

CALCULATORS

New Prices! College Calculators services all T.I.'s for entire warranty! SR-52, $189; SR-56, $82; SR-51, $58; SR-40, $33; Commodore 1800 Scientific, $34.95. All HP's avail! Call and check our prices and service. Call Bob or Linda anytime 549-1316.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

NOTICES

ATTENTION BOLTWOOD BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

A workshop concerning "normalization" and how it relates to human service delivery is offered to Boltwood volunteers, Thurs., April 7 at 7 p.m. in CC 903. Other interested persons welcome.

BICYCLE CLUB

General meeting tonight. There will be pictures of a past trip and a demonstration on how to repack bearings. Come to CC 175 tonight if interested.

BROWN BAG THEOLOGY

You are welcome to bring your lunch to 422 SU for an open and theological rap each Friday from noon to 1 p.m. Each week's discussion focuses around the concerns and questions of those present. Facilitated by Pete Sabey for the ecumenical UCF Team Ministry.

COIN CLUB

No meeting tonight. Future meetings will be held on the first and third Thursdays of every month.

COLLEGE DEMOCRATS MEETING

A very important meeting of the College Democrats will be held tonight at 6 p.m. in CC 915. Constitution revisions will be discussed.

GET HIGH IN THE SKY!

The UMass Parachute Club is teaching a first jump course tonight at 7 p.m. in CC 162. For $50 you are provided with certified training and equipment to make your first jump and a one year membership in the club.

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL SERVICE

All those interested in helping to plan this creative service please meet at 7:30 Thurs. night, April 7 at Student Union 302.

INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL

Important!! There will be a meeting tonight at 7 in Rm. 805-809 CC. All people involved are urged to attend. New participants are welcome.

LOST

Gold signet ring with initials J.R. Please phone 665-7006. Reward.

LOST

Blue nylon windbreaker with my name inside. Reward. Please leave at Basics or call 6-7096. Thank you. Sam Atwater.

LOST

Pair of glasses lost in LTD station wagon, which picked me up thumbing on Rte 9, Friday, April 4, 3 p.m. Please call Paul, 546-1184.

LOST

Organic chem. notebook; contains my essential lab reports. Call Robin Goldman 253-2410. Small reward.

LOST

Urgent — lost clipboard with important papers on the 9:00 Peter Pan bus from Boston to Amherst. Matter of life or death. If found contact Ellen, 253-5711 after 4.

NAIADS

Dress rehearsal tonight 5 p.m. Be there on time and the show will go on.

SOLAR GREENHOUSE MEETING

There will be a general meeting for anyone interested in planning and constructing a solar greenhouse on UMass land, Thurs. at 6:30 p.m. in the SCER office in the SU.

SONGS FOR EASTER

From France and Canada can be heard on Thurs. April 7 at 6:30 p.m. on WFCR's French radio program "Tout en Francais" which is on the air on Tues. and Thurs. at 6:30 p.m. on WFCR 88.5 FM.

STAR TREK LIVES!

Next meeting Wed. April 13 at 7 p.m. in CC 801.

TITLE IX MEETING

The Title IX Self-evaluation committee will hold a Title IX sex discrimination meeting on Thurs. April 7 in 118 Marston Hall from 11 to 1 p.m. All members of the department and staff are encouraged to attend.

UMASS HANG GLIDING CLUB

Meeting tonight at 8:30 in CC 173. Ground school for new members after meeting.

ATTICA

"AN EXCEPTIONALLY MOVING, OUTRAGED RECOLLECTION" —NEW YORK TIMES

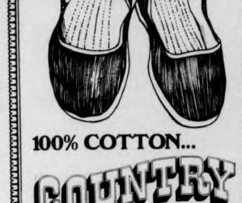
"A SUPERBLY MADE . . . JOLTINGLY EFFECTIVE DOCUMENTARY" —SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER

"POWERFUL . . . HAS SLEDGEHAMMER IMPACT" —CUE

"A STATEMENT THAT WILL MAKE AS MUCH SENSE TEN YEARS FROM NOW AS IT DOES TODAY" —UNIVERSITY REVIEW

A FILM BY CINDA FIRESTONE
A TRICONTINENTAL FILM CENTER RELEASE

THURS.
APRIL 7 HERTER AUD 8 & 10 P.M. $1.00



from around the world... Global Goods

Peoples' Shoes from China...

100% COTTON...

COUNTRY COMFORT

HOURS: MON.-SAT.: 10 to 5:30 THURSDAY: till 9 P.M.

153 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Anti-budget cuts meeting today in CC

The Student Taskforce Against Budget Cuts is holding a meeting today at 4:00 p.m. in Campus Center 804. The meeting's purpose is to plan for a Teach-in on the ramifications of level funding for UMass. The taskforce is asking representatives of campus groups, departments and unions to attend. Any other interested persons are also welcome to help complete plans for the teach-in tentatively scheduled for April 20.

Bicycle Collective will teach you how...

The Bicycle Repair Collective, which is going on its fourth year as a non-hierarchical collective business, reopened again Monday.

This year there are four experienced mechanics at work — two women and two men. All four mechanics receive a living wage and no one makes a profit. Any excess money we make goes back into improving shop services for the community.

The Bicycle Repair Collective can provide you with parts, accessories, and quality repair work at fair prices. If your bicycle needs major or minor repairs, the Collective will do it or teach you how.

The Collective is now offering free, one session classes every Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

The Bicycle Repair Collective is at 51 S. Prospect St. in Amherst, behind Kentfield's. The hours are Noon until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The phone number is 256-6852.

Upward Bound to hire summer staff

The Upward Bound Project will be hiring staff members for its summer program.

We are looking for counselors (work study eligibility); teachers (minimum of B.A. or B.S.); and head of residence (minimum of B.A. or B.S.). Applications can be picked up in the Upward Bound Office, New Africa House 205.

Applications and resumes are due by April 20. We are an equal opportunity employer.

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO

EVERYTHING 30% OFF

ONE DAY ONLY!

WED. APRIL 13th

26 S. PROSPECT St.

BEHIND HASTINGS 253-2529

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

at the BLUEWALL

Limerick Road Band

THURS. thru SAT.
APRIL 7 thru 9

No Cover

at the Hatch

FRI. and SAT.
APRIL 8 and 9

$1.50 COVER

Barbara Ann Teer, director of National Black Theatre.

One nite performance by Black Theatre

The National Black Theatre, under the direction of Barbara Ann Teer, will be seen in a single performance of "Soljourney into Truth," Saturday at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall.

"Soljourney into Truth" features a cast of 25 brothers and sisters who bill themselves as liberators-communicators.

The performing company comes alive through a spiritual family of musicians, technicians and celebrators of life. They 'git' down with the feeling in a soul-stirring, hand-clapping experience called a ritualistic revival. In this powerful artistic form they can stretch out on music, movement, dancing, singing and poetry to create strengthening positive images. In this form they eliminate the distance between stage and audience to create one exalted congregation.

Tickets for this performance are now on sale at the Fine Arts Council Box Office and at all Ticketron outlets and are priced at $3, $4 and $5, for the general public, one-half price for UMass students, $1.00 off the regular price for other students and senior citizens. The Fine Arts Center Box Office is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, Monday through Friday, 545-2511.

Self-Development workshop tonight

A workshop on "Normalization: how it relates to Human Service Delivery", will be held today at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 903.

Mike Hogan, assistant superintendent in charge of planning and development at Belchertown State School, will present the workshop.

Under the concept of "normalization" all individuals have unlimited potential for growth and development and should be granted life's experiences as a member of our society. Developmentally disabled individuals should not be excluded from services providing those experiences.

For further information contact Cindy Rogers, Boltwood coordinator, 323-6311 ext. 296.

Violence and women symposium, 11 - 14

"Violence Against Women" is the title of a four-part symposium scheduled for April 11 through 14 at Hampshire College.

The four sections of the symposium will be: "Violence: An Historical Reality," "Rape: Anywhere-Anytime," "Wife Beating: The Privilege of Patriarchy," and "Violence: Toward A Feminist Analysis."

Monday and Tuesday workshops will be held in the Googie Withers Room, 3rd floor library. Wednesday and Thursday workshops will be held in the Merrill House Living Room. The workshops start at 7:30 p.m. All women welcome.

Continuing Ed to offer summer courses

Continuing Education enrollments for its credit-free workshops have doubled this year and there are over 600 participants in the program this semester, according to Merilee Neunder, director of the program. Catalogs are now available for the summer program.

The Credit-Free Workshop Program makes it possible for adults to learn in an informal and non-competitive environment where interest in learning is the only consideration. Grades are not given, transcripts are not required, credit is not offered and there are no competitive examinations. Registration is open to all, regardless of educational background. "The only requirement is individual initiative," said Ms. Neunder.

For more information or a catalog contact Merilee Neunder or Mary Woodford, Credit-Free Workshop Program, Hills House North, 545-3410.

Graduate Senate to discuss constitution

The Graduate Student Senate will discuss the proposed amendments to its consitution and bylaws today at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 919. All senators and interested graduate students are urged to come and discuss the proposals. Copies of proposals are available in the Graduate Senate Office.

Last chance for Sr. pictures, 18th - 22nd

Seniors: April 18-22 is the final week during which you can make an appointment for your senior picture. Morning, afternoon, and evening times are available. Call 545-2874 or come to the ninth floor Campus Center between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. This will be your last chance to be a part of your yearbook.

Career conference Sat., Mt. Holyoke

A Five College International Career Conference will be held Saturday at Gamble Auditorium, Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley. The conference is a job fact-finding session for college students.

Representatives from a diverse group of organizations — the State Department, the United Nations, foundations, banks, business firms, educational and service programs — will provide students with a comprehensive view of international career opportunities. The panelists will also suggest how the students may best prepare for such opportunities.

Blassingame speaks on Black culture

John W. Blassingame, a scholar of Afro-American culture at Yale University, will speak on "Africa, Slavery and Contemporary Black Culture," today at 4 p.m. in Herter Hall 227. His publications include "The Slave Community" (1972) and his recently published "Slave Testimonies: Two Centuries of Letters, Speeches, Interviews and Autobiographies" (1977).

The Collegian inadvertently printed the wrong date in yesterday's What's Happening.

Tickets available for 'Belle of Amherst'

Tickets for tonight's performance of "The Belle of Amherst" are still available at the Fine Arts Center. Julie Harris gives a solo performance in this William Luce production of America's foremost poetess — Emily Dickinson. The Fine Arts Center Box Office is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

DC Menu

TODAY

LUNCH — Macaroni and Cheese, Cold Cut Grinder; Basics: Vegetable Sukiyaki, Macaroni and Cheese

DINNER — Special dinner: Super Scooper Sundaes, Barbeque Chicken, Grilled Reuben Sandwich; Basics: Barbeque Chicken, Soybean Croquettes.

TOMORROW

LUNCH — Fish Burger, Turkey Divan; Basics: Mixed Bean Casserole, Fish Burger

DINNER — Cube Steak, Fried Shrimp with Hot Sauce, Sausage Beef Casserole; Basics: Fried Shrimp with Hot Sauce, Lentil Patties

Poetry.
cloth and paperbound

DANGERS
HEATHER McHUGH

A great selection including a growing selection of science fiction.
At 'the bookstore'

the University Store
campus center

When do you say Budweiser®?

☐ When I think about pizza. ☐ When my wallet says I can't afford pizza.

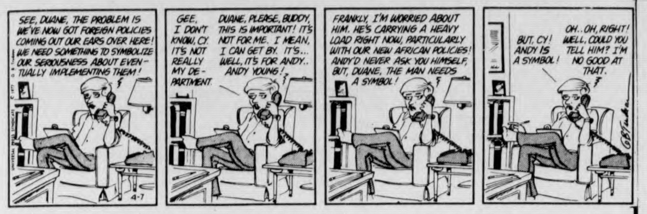
☐ When the delivery guy leaves three large pizzas (with everything) at my door by mistake.

Actually, anytime's the right time to say Budweiser. And when you do, you've really said it all!

KING OF BEERS® • ANHEUSER-BUSCH INC. • ST. LOUIS

DOONESBURY by Gary Trudeau

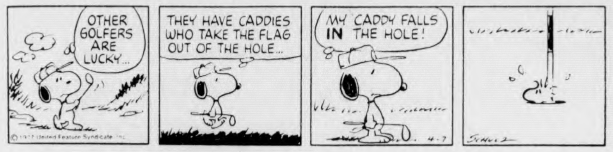
29 S. Pleasant St
call 256-6736
M-F 10-6 S 10-2



SEE, DUANE, THE PROBLEM IS WE'VE NOW GOT FOREIGN POLICIES COMING OUT OUR EARS OVER HERE! WE NEED SOMETHING TO SYMBOLIZE OUR SERIOUSNESS ABOUT EVENTUALLY IMPLEMENTING THEM!
4-7
GEE, I DON'T KNOW, CY. IT'S NOT REALLY MY DEPARTMENT.
DUANE, PLEASE, BUDDY, THIS IS IMPORTANT! IT'S NOT FOR ME. I MEAN, I CAN GET BY. IT'S... WELL, IT'S FOR ANDY.. ANDY YOUNG!
FRANKLY, I'M WORRIED ABOUT HIM. HE'S CARRYING A HEAVY LOAD RIGHT NOW, PARTICULARLY WITH OUR NEW AFRICAN POLICIES! ANDY'D NEVER ASK YOU HIMSELF, BUT, DUANE, THE MAN NEEDS A SYMBOL!
BUT, CY! ANDY IS A SYMBOL!
OH..OH, RIGHT! WELL, COULD YOU TELL HIM? I'M NO GOOD AT THAT.
GBTrudeau

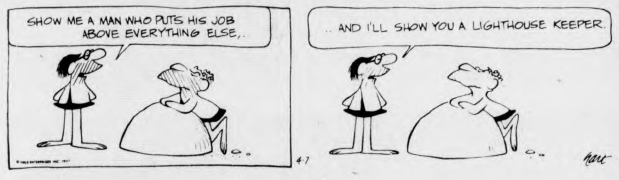
PEANUTS by Charles Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



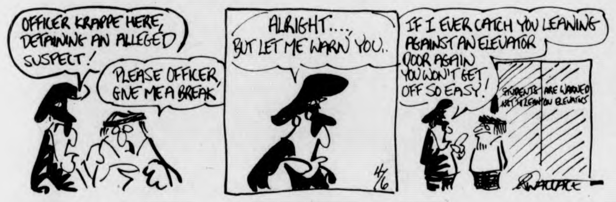
OTHER GOLFERS ARE LUCKY...
THEY HAVE CADDIES WHO TAKE THE FLAG OUT OF THE HOLE...
MY CADDY FALLS IN THE HOLE!
4-7
SCHULZ

B.C. by Johnny Hart



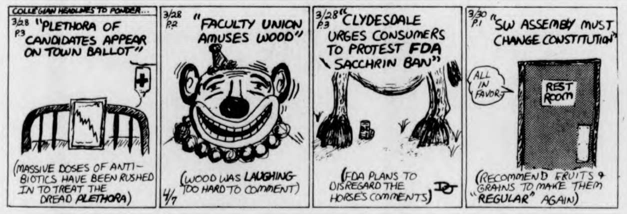
SHOW ME A MAN WHO PUTS HIS JOB ABOVE EVERYTHING ELSE,..
..AND I'LL SHOW YOU A LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER.
4-7
hart

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



OFFICER KRAPPE HERE, DETAINING AN ALLEGED SUSPECT!
PLEASE OFFICER, GIVE ME A BREAK
ALRIGHT...., BUT LET ME WARN YOU..
4/6
IF I EVER CATCH YOU LEANING AGAINST AN ELEVATOR DOOR AGAIN YOU WON'T GET OFF SO EASY!
STUDENTS ARE WARNED NOT TO LEAN ON ELEVATORS
PWALLACE

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



COLLEGIAN HEADLINES TO PONDER...
3/28 P.3 "PLETHORA OF CANDIDATES APPEAR ON TOWN BALLOT"
(MASSIVE DOSES OF ANTIBIOTICS HAVE BEEN RUSHED IN TO TREAT THE DREAD PLETHORA)
3/28 P.2 "FACULTY UNION AMUSES WOOD"
(WOOD WAS LAUGHING TOO HARD TO COMMENT)
4/7
3/28 P.3 "CLYDESDALE URGES CONSUMERS TO PROTEST FDA SACCHRIN BAN" (FDA PLANS TO DISREGARD THE HORSE'S COMMENTS)
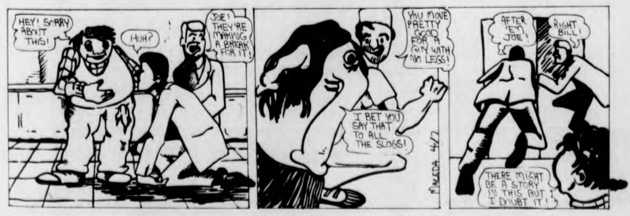
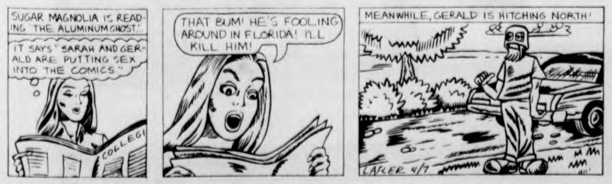
DJ
3/30 P.1 "SW ASSEMBLY MUST CHANGE CONSTITUTION"
ALL IN FAVOR?
REST ROOM
(RECOMMEND FRUITS & GRAINS TO MAKE THEM "REGULAR" AGAIN)

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



HEY! SORRY ABOUT THIS!
HUH?
JOE! THEY'RE MAKING A BREAK FOR IT!
YOU MOVE PRETTY GOOD FOR A GUY WITH NO LEGS!
I BET YOU SAY THAT TO ALL THE SLOGS!
MACEDA 4/7
AFTER 'EM JOE!
RIGHT BILL!
THERE MIGHT BE A STORY IN THIS BUT I DOUBT IT!

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



SUGAR MAGNOLIA IS READING THE ALUMINUM GHOST...
IT SAYS "SARAH AND GERALD ARE PUTTING SEX INTO THE COMICS."
COLLEGI
THAT BUM! HE'S FOOLING AROUND IN FLORIDA! I'LL KILL HIM!
MEANWHILE, GERALD IS HITCHING NORTH!
LAFLER 4/7

Local Television

6:30 18 SPORTS ONLY
24 CLASS THEATRE PREVIEW
27 SUPERMAN "The Big Forget"
38 ADAM – 12
57 ONCE UPON A CLASSIC
6:55 40 NEWS
7:00 3 22 40 NEWS
8 CONCENTRATION
18 FESTIVAL OF FAITH
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
27 THE FBI "The Bomb That Walked Like A Man"
30 THE CROSS-WITS
38 THE ODD COUPLE
56 THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY
57 IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS
7:30 3 DOUBLE PLAY
8 THE MUPPET SHOW
22 HOLYWOOD SQUARES
24 CONNECTICUT
30 CHANNEL 30 SPECIAL EDITION
38 DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
40 THAT GIRL "That Cake"
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 THE BUGS BUNNY EASTER SHOW
8 40 FUTURE COP "The Girl On The Ledge"
22 30 THE FANTASTIC JOURNEY "Turnabout"
24 IS YOUR DRINKING WATER SAFE?
57 MASTERPIECE THEATRE
9:00 3 PEOPLE'S COMMAND PERFORMANCES: 1977
8 40 BARNEY MILLER "Non-Involvement"
22 30 NBC'S BEST SELLER: CAPTAINS AND KINGS
24 57 CLASSIC THEATRE "The Wild Duck"
9:30 8 40 THREE'S COMPANY "No Children, No Dog"
10:00 8 40 WESTSIDE MEDICAL "King Solomon's Kid"
10:30 27 THE ELDER AMERICAN
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
27 MOVIE "One Step To Hell"
56 BEST OF GROUCHO
57 MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN
11:30 3 CBS LATE MOVIE "Kojak: Slay Ride"
8 40 THURSDAY NIGHT SPECIAL "Geraldo Rivera: Goodnight America"
18 LIVING FAITH
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
38 THE BOLD ONES "Hall of Justice"
56 NIGHT GALLERY
57 ONE WHO KNOWS? NATIONAL THEATER OF THE DEAF CELEBRATES THE PASSOVER SEDER
12:30 3 MOVIE "Cry Panic"
1:00 8 40 NEWS
22 30 TOMORROW
1:30 3 NEWS, WEATHER
2:00 22 30 NEWS

Your Birthday by Stella Wilder

Thursday, April 7— Born today, you take your greatest pleasure from your family relationships and activities. You have an excellent self-image and because of that, you don't feel that you have to prove yourself continuously to other people. This, of course, allows you to be easy, relaxed and completely free of anxiety in your associations, for you have absolutely no fear of losing out to anyone either where your career or your personal endeavors are concerned. You have your full share of determination, intelligence, humor, integrity, courage and enthusiasm. Indeed, you have more than your share, for you are quite able to give much of those things away to others and still maintain your own position as an independent, successful individual.

Because you have learned from experience the need for balance where work and play are concerned, you are careful to keep from overdoing things in either respect. Whether work or play, you intersperse the activity with periods of rest; you take time to stand back and enjoy the results of your endeavor; you treat yourself to praise if the results are good, and to some solace -- even if self-expressed -- should they not be quite what you had hoped they might be. You believe that fun has a definite place in your daily life; you make an effort to see that it is included every day.

Because you are so certain of your own abilities, so sure of your own success, you do not recoil before obstacles placed in your path, no matter how insurmountable they may seem. You make a habit of studying the situation calmly, deciding on feasible action confidently, and then going about the business of removing the obstacle in as speedy and at the same time as practical a manner as possible. More often than not, your approach to the problem yields quick and positive results.

Friday, April 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Apply humor to the situation at hand and you should find everyone involved softening. Solutions come with ease at evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Reflect on the consequences of your action before deciding definitely upon it. You may wish to change directions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Though it may go against your grain, you would serve yourself well by playing up to those in authority. Advancement is on the horizon.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Shoulder your responsibilities without the rancor others are demonstrating at this time. You can impress another with your willingness -- and gain.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You may have to put things off from morning until afternoon or from afternoon until evening -- but don't put anything off until tomorrow!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — The least said, the better --if you wish your words to be heeded. Youngsters may be more resistant than usual to your ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Protect a friend from the false image of himself he is producing. A little frank conversation might do the trick.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — It is one thing to appear clever -- and often quite another to appear good. Yo would do well to opt for the latter impression.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — This is a good day for getting new projects past those who must acquiesce to your plans. Speak clearly -- and persuasively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) — If you have laid plans well in advance, this should be a good day for getting them off the ground. Allow an expert his say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Allow reason to guide your actions in the long run -- but don't fail to take into account your innermost feelings. Otherwise, you court failure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Laughter can be your best weapon today when it comes to dissuading another from a given course of action. Remember that laughter is not derision.

Copyright, 1977, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate · Wednesday's Puzzle Solved:

```
SALT#TERM#SPLAT
TRIO#AJAX#CLOSE
RUNT#RENI#RANEE
ABE#ARCTICOCEAN
PARAPET##ALEE##
###BED#BAIL#ACT
RAKED#LEND#OGLE
OMIT#SEATS#FLAT
MONS#LORE#STEWS
ERG#BIND#DOE###
##SALE##SINNERS
CONFERENCES#VAT
ORATE#RIOT#WAGE
CAKED#ACRE#IDEA
ONERS#LEER#GERM
```

ACROSS
1 Group of aborigines
6 Musical composition
10 Party for the groom
14 Wore: 2 words
15 Reverse
16 Eddo
17 Stand on one's head
18 Very uncomfortable
20 Heedless of 21 Perched
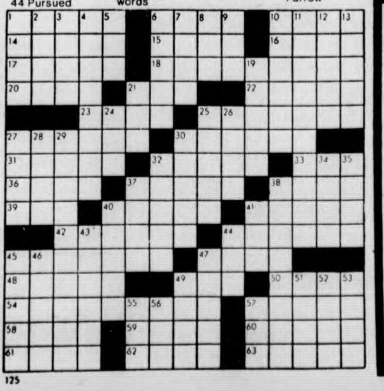
22 More competent
23 Importers: Abbr.
25 Having no victories
27 Fish-eating hawk
30 Club
31 Fill with joy
32 Orch. leader Frankie -----
33 Professional group: Abbr.
36 Makes lace
37 Perceive
38 Hazy atmosphere
39 Tropical cuckoo
40 Dogma
41 "He's the ----- of my eye"
42 Regions
44 Pursued
45 Regulates
47 ---- shark
48 Part of a pie
49 --- and abet
50 Steel girder
54 Dot-dash
57 Feminine name
58 Drunken cry
59 Asian kingdom
60 Mohammedan ruler's decree
61 Spanish artist
62 River barriers
63 Subjoined

DOWN
1 Kind of sound
2 "---- of Lucrece": Shakespeare poem
3 Thought
4 Picnic features
5 Football player
6 French author
7 Drug amount
8 Wynn and Sullivan
9 Part of a shoe
10 Racetrack building
11 Decorator's items: 2 words
12 French city
13 Active people
19 Extent of ability
21 Secret watcher
24 Sea: Prefix
25 Sausage
26 Run out of gear
27 Eight: Prefix
28 Tien ---- Asian mountains
29 Trial jury member: 2 words
30 Repairs chairs
32 Canada-U.S.A. coins
34 Give out sparingly
35 Full of years
37 Religious group
38 Native of Europe
40 Flavor
41 Triumphant exclamation
43 Moderate to strong brown
44 Fish
45 Summits
46 Herd of cattle
47 First mortgages, e.g.
49 Father of Abel
51 Fastener
52 ---- de-camp
53 Grass stalk
55 El ---: Spanish hero
56 Old Eng coin
57 Actress --- Farrow



125

Amherst Auto Parts
Used car parts
Junk Car?
We pay $10 and up.
Replace Glass
Buy and Sell Cars
Located ½ mile past the Rusty Scupper on Rt. 9, behind Amherst landfill.
Phone 256-6409

Friends, Romans, and Countrymen, lend me your palates. I come to eat Cousin Pierre, not to praise him. The evil that men do lives after them. The good is oft interred with their crust: so let it be with Cousin Pierre. The noble Brutus hath told you Cousin Pierre was delicious. As it is so, it is a grievous fault, and generously hath Cousin Pierre answered it. Oh Judgement, thou art fled to brutish beasts and men have lost their reason. Bear with me, if you do contest this judgement, sample it thyself at

COUSIN WILLIAM'S
14 Masonic St., Northampton
584-5957

Sports Calendar

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

VARSITY LACROSSE — UMass 22 UConn 7
VARSITY BASEBALL — UMass 9 Holy Cross 7
VARSITY TRACK — UMass 93 Holy Cross 59
VARSITY TENNIS — UMass 5 Williams 4

TODAY
None

TOMORROW
VARSITY BASEBALL — vs. AIC Home 3:00
VARSITY TENNIS — vs. Tufts Home 3:00

BC overpowers UM in water polo debut

By RIC NOTINI
Collegian Staff

The UMass women's water polo team lost its opening match of the season Tuesday night, as the Minutewomen were defeated by Boston College, 8-6, in a hard-fought game at the Boyden Pool.

The Eagles, who are the current New England Women's Water Polo Champion, provided the UMass women a stiff challenge, as the BC poloists came out aggressively from the beginning and pressed the Minutewomen offensively.

UMass' Debbie Schwartz, in her first water polo match, outswam and outmaneuvered the BC defenders to tally her first two career goals.

BC's aggressiveness in the early moments of the game paid off as the Eagles scored the first three goals of the match. But UMass refused to be intimidated and stuck to its game plan, and fought back with the help of superb goaltending from Eve Atkinson to tie the game 5-5 with two and a half minutes to go.

However, the Eagles countered the UMass blitz with three goals in a row, enabling them to preserve the victory.

Atkinson kept the Minutewomen in the game early in the contest with some sparkling saves, as she made a total of 15 saves in the match.

★ Diamondmen rally

CONT. FROM PAGE 16

Jeff Reardon, was, well, not on target.

The senior righty pitched the first five innings and surrendered nine hits and five runs. He ran into control trouble in the second, when he walked two and threw a wild pitch. In the fifth, he gave up back-to-back wind-aided homers to John Holiver and Jasinski.

"Reardon didn't have his good fastball," Bergquist said. "He wasn't as sharp as he was down south. Maybe warmer weather will help him out."

It sure couldn't get much colder than it was yesterday. Along with the gale-like winds, which alternately blew out to center and right fields adding to the base hit brigade, a mini snow storm cropped up in the second inning, which undoubtedly contributed to Reardon's troubles. At one point, in fact, the umpires were seriously considering calling the game.

The Minutemen's other pitcher and eventual winner, Tom Nigro, hurled two-run ball in his four inning stint. He struck out four and, most notably, walked none.

"Nigro did a good job for us," the coach added.

But the hitting was the story of this game. The offensive monsters in this one were, along with Abramowicz, Mike McEvilly, Cullen, Czerapowicz, and Lojek, who all had two hits.

Holy Cross' big guns were Peter Colombo, who went 3-3, and Doran, Jasinski, and Neil Solomon, who each banged out a pair.

All this aside, perhaps Bergquist summed up everyone's feelings when he shook his head after the game and said, "It was a very strange day. I don't ever remember playing in the snow."

Fiction
cloth and paperbound

The Sword of Shannara

A great selection including many UMass poets

At the 'bookstore

the University Store
campus center

LUNCH-N-COPY

AT THE AMHERST DELI
COMPLIMENTARY LUNCH

WITH COPY ORDERS PLACED AT ETC. COPY CORP
1. COPY ORDER OF ONLY $10.00 or more
2. Placed between 11:00 AM to 2:00 PM
3. ANY REGULAR SIZE SANDWICH ON THE MENU COMPLIMENTS OF ETC. COPY CORP.

Regular Size Sandwich
Balogna	.95
Mortadella	1.00
Liverwurst	.95
Salami	1.15
Genoa Salami	1.65
Imported Swiss	1.25
Imported Ham	1.50
Capicola	1.70
Prosciutto	1.85
Turkey	1.80
Pastrami	1.50
Corned Beef	1.70
Roast Beef	1.75
Tuna	1.50
Alaskan King Crab	1.99

Most Copy Order Completed
While You Have Lunch
CLEAN, CONCISE, CORRECT COPIES
on IBM COPIERS, it looks like your original.

ETC. COPY CORP.
Amherst Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Ma. 01002
549-0586

Call 549-0586 to insure copying up to 12:00 (midnight) Mon.-Sun.
Copy Hours: M-F 9:00-8:00, Sat. 9:00-5:00
Special Hours: Sunday & After Posted Hours

Yaz starts in right for Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — Carl Yastrzemski will play rightfield for the first time in his 17-year career and Jim Rice will open in left today when the Boston Red Sox begin their drive to regain the magic of 1975.

Dwight Evans, the regular rightfielder, will play centerfield and Bernie Carbo will serve as the designated hitter to complete the lineup change for the afternoon opener against the Cleveland Indians at Fenway Park.

The moves were necessitated by the spring training injury to centerfielder Fred Lynn, who learned Wednesday he will be in a leg cast for two more weeks as a result of a torn ligament suffered March 24.

Boston's revised opening day lineup will be: 1, Rick Burleson, shortstop; 2, Denny Doyle, second base; 3, Rice, leftfield; 4, Yastrzemski, rightfield; 5, George Scott, first base; 6, Carbo, designated hitter; 7, Evans, centerfield; 8, Carlton Fisk, catcher; 9, Butch Hobson, third base.

The lineup announcement followed a Wednesday morning meeting between Don Zimmer and his coaching staff. "I told them the guys I wanted to play and this is the lineup they came up with."

Lynn's injury, which will sideline him at least three weeks, helped Zimmer put off a spring-long problem involving Yastrzemski and Rice. Both have said they want to play leftfield and do not want to be the designated hitter. Rice hit eight homers during the spring, while Yastrzemski hit and fielded very well before going home to Boca Raton, Fla, with a back ailment last week.

Yastrzemski played his first game in rightfield Tuesday, in the final exhibition contest before the team headed north.

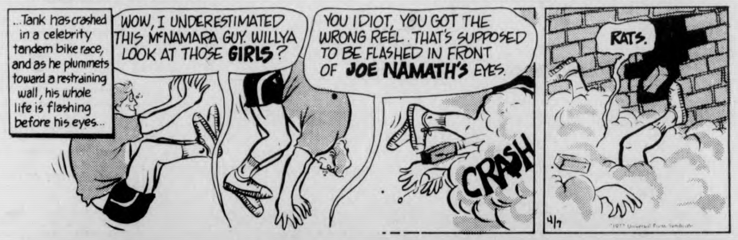
"I feel fine now and I plan to play opening day," said the 37-year-old Yastrzemski. "I haven't missed an opening day in 16 years and don't expect to this year.

"I haven't played right before but I don't expect any problems."

Zimmer, who cleared the move with Yastrzemski Wednesday morning, said he put the veteran in the new position because "I feel that when a guy is as good an outfielder as Yaz, he can play any of the outfield positions. Also, I think this is the strongest team we can field."

Ferguson Jenkins, coming off an Achilles tendon operation, will start for Boston. Jenkins, in his ninth opening day assignment, lost, 1-0, in last year's opener against the Baltimore Orioles.

TANK McNAMARA by Jeff Millar & Bill Hinds



...Tank has crashed in a celebrity tandem bike race, and as he plummets toward a restraining wall, his whole life is flashing before his eyes...
WOW, I UNDERESTIMATED THIS McNAMARA GUY. WILLYA LOOK AT THOSE GIRLS?
YOU IDIOT, YOU GOT THE WRONG REEL. THAT'S SUPPOSED TO BE FLASHED IN FRONT OF JOE NAMATH'S EYES.
CRASH
RATS.
4/7

Four Seasons
Package Store
Discount Liquers
RUSSELL ST. HADLEY
at the Mt. Farms Mall

Schlitz BEER
12 Oz. Cans
$5.35
Case

Carlo Rossi California Wines
Burgundy — Chablis — Pink Chablis — Rosé
$3.49
Gallon

Lancers Rose
$2.99
Fifth

Jim Beam Bourbon
$9.99
Magnum
($1.75 liter)

Thursday 4/7/77 to Wednesday 4/12/77.
We reserve the right to limit quantities.

Tracksters rip Crusaders; take first in eleven events

By MIKE BERGER
Collegian Staff

WORCESTER — It was only a matter of time before the UMass men's track team finally got everything together to completely destroy an opponent in a dual meet.

Coach Ken O'Brien's squad, before a sparse crowd at Holy Cross just "took it to the Crusaders" with a convincing 93-59 victory. The meet was held in 40 degree temperatures on a cold and windy day with off-and-on rain and snow showers.

The now 2-1 ovalteam will next face URI Wednesday at home. The victory yesterday also marks the first time O'Brien's squad has gone over the .500 mark this year in indoor or outdoor competition.

In its 34-point margin of victory, UMass recorded 11 firsts, eight seconds, and nine thirds, along with five sweeps. The victory also marked the first time in almost three years that the field event participants scored almost half the team's total points.

"We knew we had consistent talent in the jumping events, but our javelin throwers and shot putters are really coming through for us. It's the second meet in a row the javelin throwers have swept their event," O'Brien said.

In that sweep, senior Bob O'Neil recorded his second straight victory with a 188' throw. Rich Hastings was second at 173'11, and Mark Galusha completed the sweep with a 159'9 heave.

The leading scorer of the day was sophomore Ron Melkonian, who garnered 13 points between the hammer, discus, and shot put. The sophomore from Stoneham won the discus and the shot at 152'2 and 46'10 respectively while also placing second at 145'6 in the hammer. The discus and hammer performances represented personal bests.

Freshman Karl Nyholm also contributed heavily with a second place 143'4 throw in the discus while placing third in the shot with a 42'7½ performance.

Besides the javelin sweep, the 440, 880, two-mile, and long jump all recorded eight point totals. Captain Jim Hunt (52.0) Rich Thompson (52.7) and Fran O'Keefe (53.0) started UMass on its point spree as the Crusaders started out like gangbusters with a 16-3 opening lead after three events.

John Richards, Joe Martens, and freshman Mickey Baugh, accustomed to running the 440, were switched to running the half-mile as part of an O'Brien experiment. They responded favorably with a sweep to bring UMass back within seven points at 30-23 after five completed events.

Behind Mark Healy's first place victory in the 440 intermediate hurdles and a Jim McBrateny third (59.2), UMass closed the gap to one point at 30-29.

Senior Toney Pendleton, along with 11 other teammates, recorded first places in a 93-59 thrashing of Holy Cross yesterday. UMass will face URI next Wednesday at home. (Staff photo by Jay Saret)

Junior Cliff Staples winning his second straight two mile, led the sweep in that event. He was accompanied by Rick Walls and freshman Bob Morris to give UMass its commanding lead. UMass then outscored the Crusaders, 58-30, the rest of the way.

"The two-mile represented the first time Rich Walls came through in a big situation for us and the first time Morris competed after a severe ankle sprain in the fall while running cross country. We are very happy with both performances," said O'Brien.

Brady Mayer, scoring six points on the day, scored a first in the triple jump while placing third in the 120 high hurdles jump. Teammate Bruce Parsons placed second in the triple jump, and third in the long jump. Mayer won the triple jump at 44'6½ while Parsons was second at 43'11½.

The other UMass sweep belonged to its traditional strength — the long jump. Senior Toney Pendleton let loose with a 21'10 leap, while Bob Murphy was second at 21'3-3-4 and Bruce Parsons third at 20'4.

Other first places were contributed by Mark Dale in the 220 (21.7), Joe Martens in the high jump (6'4), and the mile relay of Mickey Baugh, Fran O'Keefe, Rich Thompson, and Jim Hunt, who completed the event in 3:32.7.

Netmen top Ephs

By MIKE SMOLENS
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's team yesterday defeated the highly touted Williams College netmen for the first time ever in a 5-4 match that surprised both the UMass players and their coach.

"We really didn't expect to win," said a jubilant Bill Brown, the UMass coach. "I'm told it's the first time UMass has ever beaten Williams. I'm very proud. It was an unbelievable match."

The match wasn't decided until the second UMass doubles pair of Barnaby Kalan and Alan Stable broke the 4-4 deadlock in the last match of the day with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 win over Williams' Martin Goldberg and Jim Friesen.

It was sweet revenge for Kalan and Stable. Both players had lost their singles matches earlier in the day. The UMass duo were the underdogs because Williams "stacked its doubles", according to Brown, by using the first doubles team in the second doubles competition.

UMass' Adam Rosen easily defeated Goldberg 6-2, 6-1 in the first singles match. Rosen expected a tougher match, according to Brown, because Goldberg is regarded as one of the premiere tennis players in New England.

"Adam was just awesome," Brown said. "Everything was on, his serve, volley, everything."

Second singles player Alan Green swept past Ephman Jim Parson 6-1 in the first set of his match, but narrowly escaped a three-set match by winning the second set 7-6 in a 5-2 tie-breaker.

Jimmy Barnhart, the only other UMass singles winner, took three sets to do away with Dean Gianakas 6-1, 1-6, 6-2.

UMass losers in the singles were Kalan, to Perry Nelson, 4-6, 2-6; Stable, to Tad Roach, 2-6, 4-6; and Rickey Sharton, to Evan Bash, 2-6, 6-4, 3-6.

UMass doubles winners were Kalan and Stable; and Rosen and Green, over Nelson and Gianakas, 6-4, 6-1.

Barnhart and Steve Heyl lost to Bash and Roach, 4-6, 3-6.

Spirit Haus
package store
253-5384
Open Nites 'till 11 p.m.
Spectacular Easter Wine Sale
10% off on all German Wines
(excellent to complement your Easter Dinner)

Mateus Rosé 3.29 fifth
Nectar Rosé 2.39 fifth
Blue Nun 3.99 fifth
Moselblumchen 1.99 fifth
Inglenook Gallons 5.99 gal.
Chablis, Burgundy, Rosé
Germe Pouilly Fuissé 4.49 fifth
(a crisp white wine)
Korbel Chenin Blanc 2.89 fifth
Almaden ½ gallons 3.49
Chablis, Rhine, Claret
Burgundy, Nectar Rosé
François Monopole Blanc de Blanc 4.79 fifth
- an amazing taste -

BUD
$6.49 a case
12oz. NR bottles

SCHAFFER
$5.59 a case
12oz. cans

FALSTAFF
$5.25 a case
12oz. cans

Imported Beer Specials

Coopers, Ale, Stout, Beer	3.29 6 pk
Fosters Jumbo Cans	99¢ ea.
Isenbeck	2.99 6 pk
Thor (Danish)	2.50 6 pk
Carlsberg - cans	2.99 6 pk

Don't Forget Soda

CASES OF SODA

Pepsi, qts.	4.39 ca.
Cott, Club,
Ginger & Tonic	4.39 ca.
7-Up - 28 oz.	4.39 ca.

We Specialize in Quality Wines
338 College St., Rte. 9 east, near Poor Richards, Amherst
We Wish You All A Happy Holiday

Rockets topple C's; Havlicek joins elite

BOSTON [UPI] — Mike Newlin scored 19 of his 21 points in the second half last night to lead the Houston Rockets to a 104-93 victory over the Boston Celtics to clinch first place in the NBA's Central Division.

It was Houston's first divisional title in its 10-year history.

After John Havlicek scored a layup to become the fourth man in NBA history to score more than 25,000 career points at 5:26 of the second quarter to give Boston a 40-35 lead, Houston took over.

The Rockets used six points by John Lucas and five by Rudy Tomjanovich in a 17-4 burst over a 4:18 span to take a 52-44 lead. Boston never regained the lead.

The Celtics closed to within three points early in the final quarter but Newlin sank three free throws to seal the game.

Tomjanovich led all scorers with 28 points, Lucas added 18 and Moses Malone 19. Havlicek topped Boston with 21 points, while Jo Jo White added 14 and Sidney Wicks 13.

Tired of Eating at the D.C.?

BONANZA RESTAURANT
is now offering a
10% DISCOUNT
On All Their Meals
JUST SHOW YOUR COLLEGE I.D.

Try Our
CATTLEMAN'S CHOICE
ONLY $2.89
Includes
- Choice of Potato or Vegetable
- All the Soup or Salad You Can Eat
- Free Refills on Coffee, Tea or Soda

Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, Mass.
Offer good Mon.-Fri.
(Does not include daily specials)
BONANZA
Open 7 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Gorillas roll over UConn

By TOM CROWLEY
Collegian Staff

It was cold on the hill, but UConn found it much colder on the field as the UMass lacrosse team froze the visitors, 22-7, yesterday behind Boyden to elevate its record to 1-2.

The Gorillas exploded in the first period, shooting out to a 9-0 lead. All the goals were scored in the last 10 minutes, as UConn played even with the Minutemen until Kevin Patterson scored the first of his six goals at 5:48 of the frame.

A weird snow storm affected the second period as UMass outscored the men in blue, 2-1, making the score 11-1.

In the third frame, the Minutemen widened their edge to 16-3 running by the Huskies, 5-2.

Using substitutes, the Minutemen created the final score notching six goals to UConn's four.

Besides outscoring the Huskies, the Gorillas outshot (42-22) and outscooped (53-30) UConn.

Coach Dick Garber credited the midfields with the day's fine performance. "Overall, the middies got the ball today," Garber said. "The midfields ran hard in the first quarter. They dug for ground balls and forced turnovers and got us firing out like we did."

Middies who scored yesterday were Chuck Smith, a goal and two assists; Vin LoBello, a goal and an assist; Billy Coke and Dave Lautman a goal each, and Mike Lettera, Steve Papas and Randy Krutzler, with assists.

While the middies won the game by forcing turnovers, the attack tallied the bulk of the points. Kevin Patterson had six goals, but Micky Menna was high scorer with seven points (one goal, six assists). Jeff Spooner tied Patterson with six points, five goals and one assist.

From the second attack, Norm Smith had three goals and two assists, Dave Martin a goal and two assists, and John Reardon one goal.

Defenseman Ken Michaud rounded out the scoring with a goal.

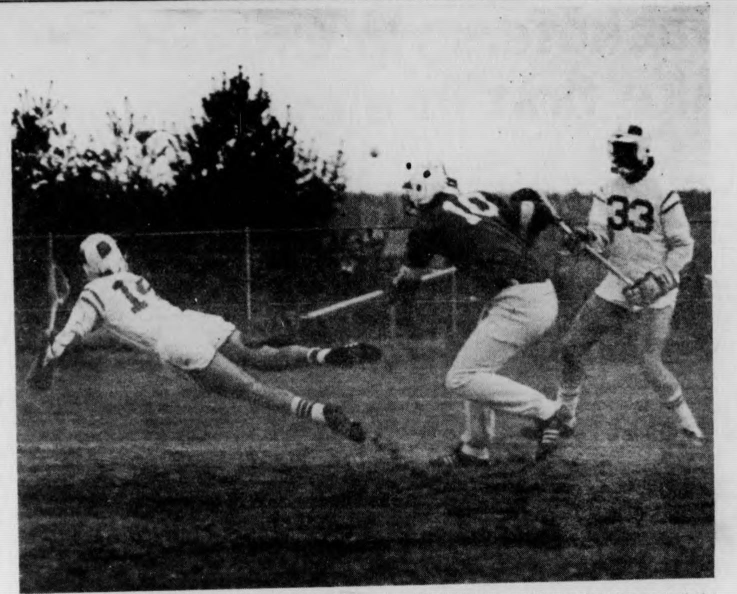
Goalie Don Goldstein played the entire first half, but had only five saves as he wasn't tested too often. Soon into the third frame, freshman Jeff Cohen replaced Goldstein. Eric Banhazl, a sophomore, finished out the game and the three netminders had five saves in the second half.

Two unusual scoring plays occurred during the game. Patterson "stuffed" a pass from a fast-breaking UConn goalie and went in alone for his, and the game's, second goal at 7:01 of the first period.

The other unusual marker was when Michaud took the ball the length of the field to fire a 10-foot bounce shot into the Connecticut net. It made the score 5-0 UMass at 9:36 of the initial frame.

The loss evened the Huskies record at 2-2. UConn's next game is Saturday against C.W. Post at Storrs.

Garber's Gorillas will travel to New York to take on Cortland State College Saturday at 2 p.m. Cortland State is the defending national Division II lacrosse champion.



DOUBLE FLIP — Micky Menna flips a pass to teammate Kevin Patterson while being tripped by a UConn defenseman in action from yesterday's game against the Huskies. (Staff photo by Dale Griswold)

Collegian Sports

Batsmen cross Crusaders backed by 15-hit barrage

By JUDY VAN HANDLE
Collegian Staff

It was the perfect way to end a bizarre day of baseball.

In a game which featured 25-30 mph winds, a snow squall, 27 hits, and five pitchers, the UMass baseball team rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to come-from-behind and defeat Holy Cross, 9-7, yesterday at Lorden Field.

The Minutemen trailed the Crusaders, 7-5, entering the eighth, before UMass teed off on Holy Cross relievers Ken Leblanc and Rick Jasinski to gain the victory.

Jim Cullen began the winning rally with a walk, and was tripled home by John Czerapowicz. After Charlie Ciccone struck out, a single off the bat of Leo Kalinowski tied the score. Neil Lojek's double put runners at second and third and brought Jasinski, reputed to be the Crusaders' best pitcher, in from the bullpen.

After Kalinowski was tagged out in a rundown between home and third when he tried to score on a Skribiski infield grounder, Paul Abramowicz (4-5 on the day) grounded a single to center which sent the go-ahead runs home.

The entire game was an uphill battle for UMass, now 8-7, as it trailed at various junctures. The Minutemen were behind by as much as four runs (5-1) before battling back to tie it at 5-5 on the strength of a three-run sixth and one-run seventh.

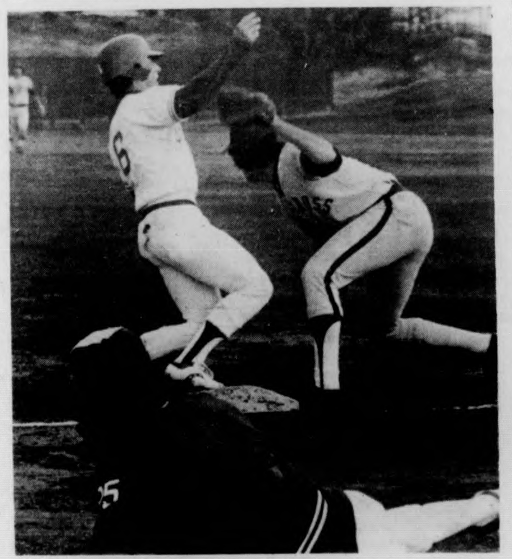
But Crusader first baseman Bill Duran ripped a ferocious homer over the 375-foot mark in left center field to give his team its short-lived two-run lead in the eighth. At the time, it appeared that the shot would be enough cushion for the Crusaders.

The Minutemen collected 15 hits in the game, as everyone except Bob Alves hit safely. And that fact pleased UMass coach Dick Bergquist.

"We attacked and were aggressive at the plate," he said. "I think it was a matter of getting a little more confidence up there. Against good pitching, we hit pretty well today."

But while the UMass bats were sizzling, the arm of starting pitcher

TURN TO PAGE 14



UMass assistant coach Jeff McKay decides to get a ground's-eye view of the action as he watches Ed Skribiski sneak into third. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Bill Edelstein

Willy Everwynn

Today marks the start of a new baseball season, so I guess I should have known that when I bumped into my old friend Willy Everwynn, he would have made another losing wager.

Willy had endeared himself to many a bookmaker by placing a bob or two on the 1964 Bruins, and on Bobby Riggs against Billie Jean King. Lately he had bet all his laundry money on the America's Cup yachting race. He picked the Argo Merchant to win.

"Hey, there!" called Willy from in front of the Campus Library. The voice was unmistakable. Frantically he waved his arms — either he wanted to speak with me or the wind was exceptionally strong. Opting for the former, I went over to him.

"Good to see ya, good ta see ya," Willy chortled. He was holding a book; 'How to Instill a Winning Attitude' by Mike Holovak. "Boy, have I got a sure thing this time! Some sucker took my bet on the Red Sox winning the World Series and he gave me 20-1 odds. I'm really gonna clean up."

Maybe it was his tone of voice of maybe it was the way he kept jumping up and down while he was talking, but I began to sense his enthusiasm and I wondered it, for the first time, Willy Everwynn might be onto something profitable.

"That Bozo," Willy smiled knowingly. "He didn't understand the first thing about baseball. "He still thinks 50 cents will buy a beer at Fenway.

"I'd like to see his face when Carl Yaz, still young as a colt, creams three home runs today. "Zip! Pow!! It's long gone and..."

"Uh, Willy?" I interrupted.

"Yeah?"

"Yastrzemski isn't playing today. He's got a sprained back. I think he's beginning to show his age."

"That's small pickings, Yaz'll be back. Meanwhile, Rico can lay the leather at the hot corner," Willy cliched.

"Rico is gone," I informed him.

Everwynn looked crestfallen. "Omigod." How'd they bread the news to his wife and children? I knew he shoulda worn those glasses in the field."

"Rico isn't dead," I said hurriedly, "he's just been cut, that's all."

Willy's eyes bugged out, his face flushed and a slow stream of saliva began dripping from his open mouth.

"Cut!" he finally managed to yelp. "I put 20 bucks down that said Rico would have to die before the Red Sox cut him. "It shoulda been an easy 20. Rotten luck! That's all it is is rotten luck."

"Tough break," I admitted.

"I'm beginning to feel snake-bit," said Willy, a tinge of frustration working its way into his voice.

"Lately, I've been going with the odds — only betting on the sure thing. Coupla weeks back I put a hundred clams on the Buffalo Sabers to win the Adams Division. In the summer of '75 I had Ruffian over Foolish Pleasure. I lost half-a-grand by just saying that a small plane would never crash in Memorial Stadium."

"Gosh, if that ever happened to me, I couldn't face myself every again," I said cheerily.

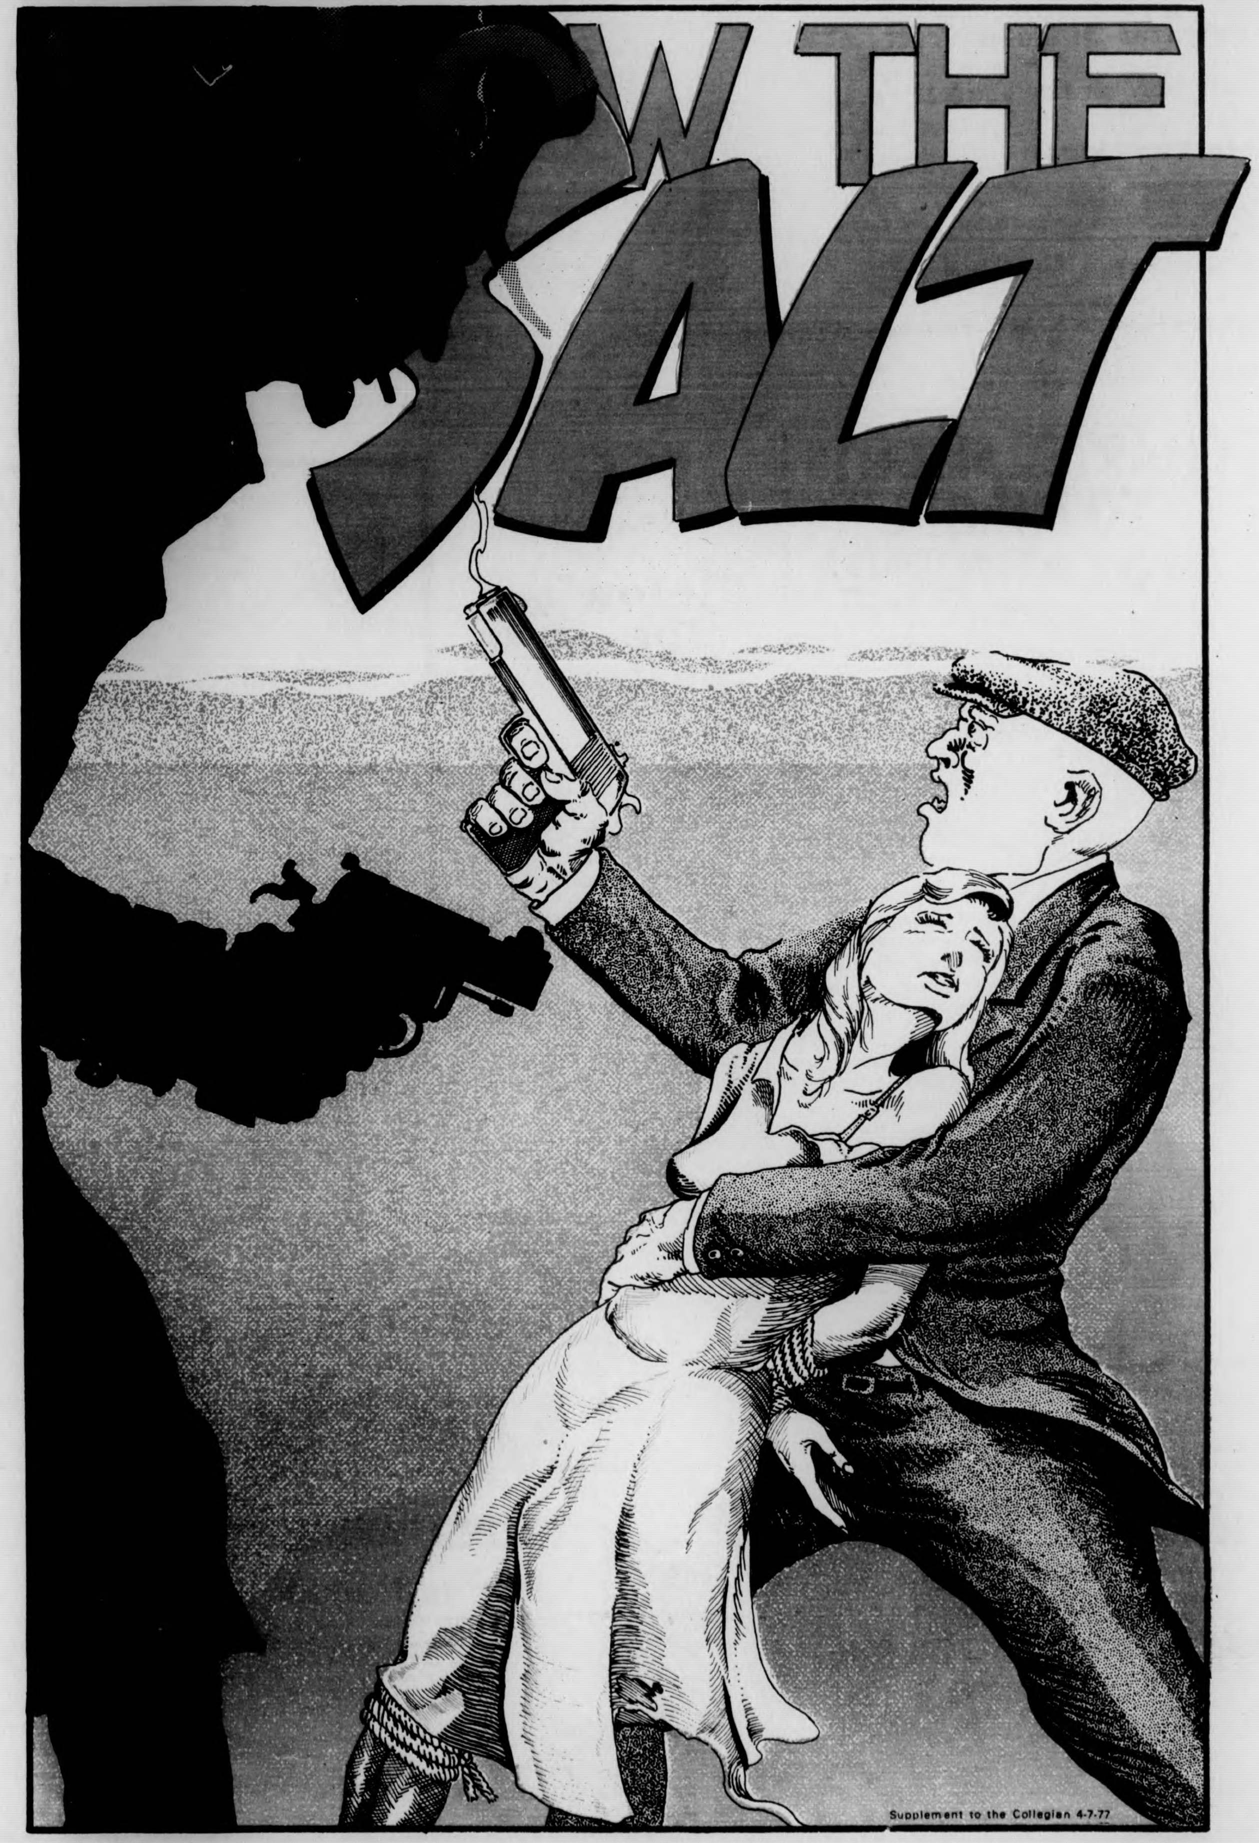
Instantly Everwynn brightened. "I got a winner now, though. Roger Moret and Rick Jones can handle all those lefties on the damn Yankees. They'll just throw their gloves down..." He had seen me shaking my head back and forth.

"Moret and Jones too?" he asked.

"Traded to Texas and Seattle. Moret may never pitch again." "Ah, the hell with it," Willy blurted out. "I quit." I'm going into an honest line or work — nine to five and a weekly salary." He turned and walked away.

I think Willy just may make it this time. He had a pretty determined look on his face. He may finally go straight.

But I wouldn't bet on it.



Supplement to the Collegian 4-7-77

Table of Contents

Patterns Of Eleven 3
Our Search For True Love 5
The Red Light 7
Poetry .... 8 & 9
The Powers That Be 11
Secrets Are What Friends Are For 12
Himmelfarb On Tour 15

Below The Salt
weekly fine arts magazine
Vol. V
Issue 10
COVER GRAPHIC BY M. MOYLE
EDITOR
Mark A. Leccese
ASSISTANT EDITOR
Debbie Schafer
ASSISTANT EDITOR
E. Patrick McQuaid
THE SALT MINDS:
THEATRE James F. Sawyer
POETRY John Zieman
DANCE Leila Bruno, Ann Murphy
FOOD Alice E. Horner
MOVIES John Matthew
MUSIC Jack Cahill, Ross Nerenberg, Craig Roche

CHARTER FLIGHTS TO EUROPE AND CALIFORNIA

- London
- Paris
- Amsterdam
- Frankfurt
- Vienna
- Zurich
- Poland
- Hungary
- Ireland
- Greece
- Rome
- Spain
- Geneva
- Hamburg
- Brussels

LOW FARES NO MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED
For Further Information Contact:
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
Campus Center 3rd level
Univ. of Mass. 545-0500

BOOKS
Next Week

CUSTOM CLASSICS quality,
hand crafted sandals, made to order.
tops & straps guaranteed for life
The Leather & Tack People
J. Delano Leathersmith & Co
11E. Pleasant Amherst 549-6049 next to Lafayette

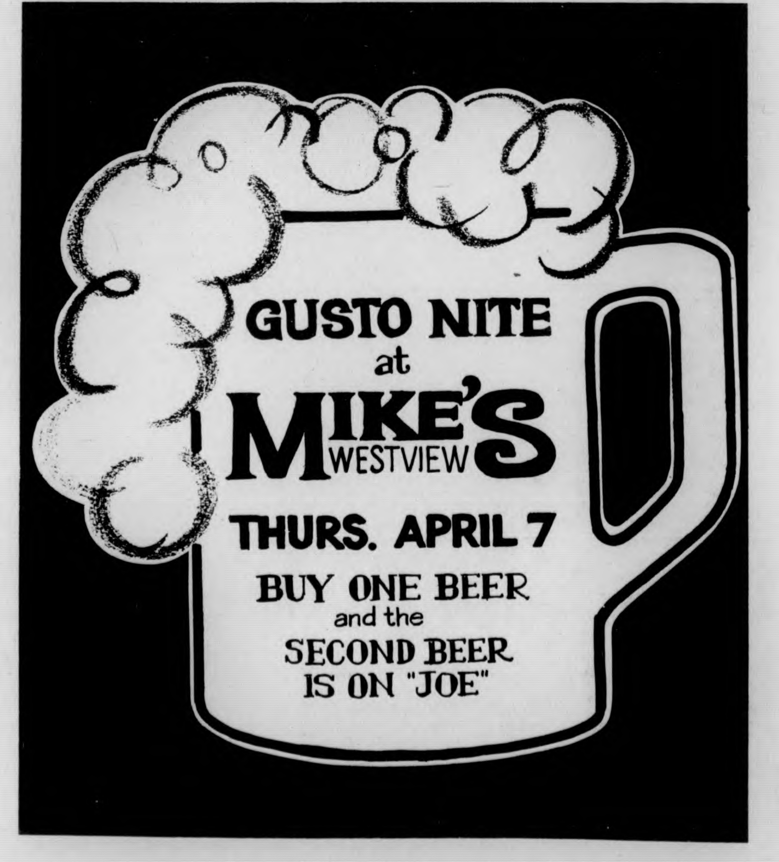
BUST OUT FOR THE WEEKEND

Peter Pan and Continental Trailways offer frequent service to Boston, New York and many other great, get-away-from-it-all places.

PETER PAN BUS LINES & CONTINENTAL TRAILWAYS

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

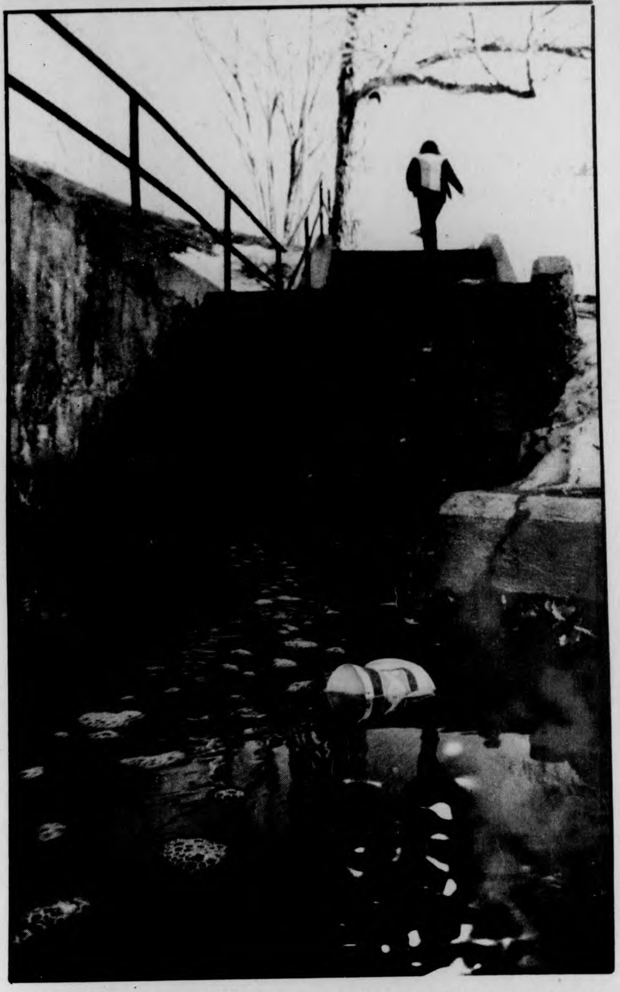
CONTINENTAL TRAILWAYS
For Information, Schedules and Prices,
Contact: Campus Center Bus Office
Tel. 545-2006 or 549-6000



GUSTO NITE at MIKE'S WESTVIEW
THURS. APRIL 7
BUY ONE BEER and the SECOND BEER IS ON "JOE"

Patterns of Eleven

By Rob Galvin



D. Olken photo

I sat at the counter, listlessly stirring my coffee counter-clockwise. There wasn't really enough cream in it, but I really didn't feel like bothering an already-too-busy waitress. I usually didn't eat breakfast at this restaurant, but my usual spot was being renovated on this particular weekend.

Glancing out the window, I saw the many people who like to peer into every window they pass on the sidewalk. The morning varied its shades of grey; the sun made several attempts at breaking through the cover. It was no use. Sunday mornings are meant to be grey in the winter. One of nature's little consistancies that make us all a little more secure. I was staring blankly out the window, as the waitress set the French toast and sausages in front of me. I looked at them for a second, rolling the sausages around the edge of my plate with my fork.

The man to my left was trying to gain the waitress' attention. She was too busy at the other end of the counter to see him. He had just sat down; there was nothing about him too striking, except his moustache. It was very neatly trimmed, as if he took time re-shaping it every day. He seemed out of place here—there aren't that many manicured moustaches in this college town.

It was different at Harvard. But that was long ago, and far away, when my only dream was a Harvard Law degree, to be followed by substantial wealth. One year of ivy was too many, though, so here I was at the University, majoring in English. My father would never understand it, but that's all right, I couldn't understand him either.

+

It was one of those days when I'd just be satisfied to pull away from it all. Maybe out into the grey that colored the window panes. Maybe not. Today I just wasn't thinking too strenuously about responsibility. My classes reflected it; my underachieving was producing good enough grades to get by, and, at times, that was enough to satisfy me. Not today. I knew I could do better, effort seemed to be lacking. But I was getting by, and my parents were none the wiser.

++

I was chewing one of the last bites of sausage, when this girl walked in, seemingly dragging herself to the seat on my right. In my daydreaming I had failed to notice that the restaurant had become quite full. People were eating breakfast as much by tradition as anything else. Most were dressed nicely; church services would start in a half-hour. I couldn't make out the features on any of them, except the girl on my right. She looked out the windows with the same indifference that I had. We were on the same level today, and we both sensed it. The girl ordered French toast and sausages; the man on my left wanted more cream in his coffee.

+++

"I can't see you any more," said Mary, "we're in two different worlds. You've changed so much in the last month. I don't want to hurt you, but I have to think of myself. I count too, y'know."

I sat there on my towel, not knowing exactly what to say. I could say that I understood, which I did; but I really didn't want to give her the satisfaction. I could make an impassioned plea for her not to leave me; but I couldn't honestly come up with enough reasons why I wanted her to stay. I could walk straight into the ocean like Frederic March, but there were too many people on the beach for the act to have any dramatic significance. Besides, there was no music to blare up in the background.

"If you say so," I said.

++++

I sat a long time after finishing breakfast. I was waiting for the girl to finish. The waitress was upset, but I kept having refills of coffee, so there was nothing she could do about it. The place started emptying as the church bells rang. The man on the left left, leaving a quarter under his plate. Both the girl and I noticed, and I kind of chuckled as she smiled. We started talking about the rain we'd been having. She thought it would stay grey today, I thought it would rain again.

We up and left, I gracefully stepping into a puddle outside the door, thinking to myself, "stupid puddle," but, of course, I stepped into it. It didn't run in front of my foot.

We walked the length of Main Street, in and out of countless shops, passing people hurrying along in the other direction. I don't hurry on Sundays; to me, it always defeats the purpose. We passed a bus station with a big display sign in the window: "SEE THE U.S.A. ...ONE MONTH OF TRAVEL FOR ONLY $156!"

"I've always wanted to go to the Grand Canyon," I said.

"Why haven't you?"

"Never had the money."

"How much can the Grand Canyon cost, when the U.S.A. only costs $156?"

She had a point there that I had no answer to.

+++++

"Hey, Ma," I yelled from the top of the stairs, "Ma!"

"What is it?" she answered.

"Are we going on a vacation this summer?"

"We can't afford vacations; we can't even afford living here."

"Oh, o.k.. Ma, you know what?"

"No, what?"

"Johnny's going to Disneyland this summer."

"Johnny's family has money."

Money. Everything costs money. Money always seemed so much larger, and unattainable, when you were seven or eight. My parents always told me that it costs a lot of money to live in the world. I couldn't understand what they meant; I was living.

++++++

We were back on campus now. Campus looks better with a blue sky. The girl was talking about how getting through the University was easier when you didn't worry about what comes later. I agreed; but I pointed out that that was rather difficult amongst twenty thousand people. She said that she had never really noticed that there were that many people here. I said that it depends if you look at them or not, and she agreed.

We talked about academics, and she said that she was an English major also. I said that it wasn't a very practical major, and she said that practicality wasn't important.

"Emerson," she said, "believed that a man was better off doing something that held his interest than something that made him money. Or something like that."

"I know. I've read some of his essays." Somehow I felt like I was bragging, so I spoke of him no further.

"All that really matters is fulfilling yourself." I said. "Monetary gain is helpful, but not essential."

"Where'd you say you went to school?"

I sat there, remembering all the big words I had just used.

"Sorry. I guess I just lost my head for a second."

The sun peeked out for a second, then snuck around the corner of still another cloud.

+++++++

"Is that all you can say?" Mary continued. "I just broke up with you, doesn't that mean anything?"

"I suppose so."

"What do you mean, 'I suppose so?' Listen, we...are...no longer....going out!"

"O.K."

"O.K.! Well, I guess that proves how much you love me!"

"Who broke up with whom?"

Mary just stared at me. I stared at the ocean. She said that she was sorry that she had yelled. I asked her whether she had ever noticed how repetitive the waves were.

"I want you to know that I don't hate you," she said.

"They seem to come in patterns of eleven."

"We've had a lot of good times together, and I don't want to lose that."

"Already have."

"I have my memories."

"I usually try to live in the present. It's much easier not to get emotional that way."

"See you later," she said.

Mary got up, and started to walk away. She turned and said goodbye one more time.

"I love you." I said to her.

I didn't mean it just then, but I thought if I said it, she would think her victory over me was complete. She just looked at me. I was still staring at the waves.

++++++++

It was past two o'clock when the girl and I went our separate ways. We both said that we'd see each other again, but we also both doubted it. There are so many transient people around.

+++++++++

I had trouble sleeping that night. My mind kept wanting to express itself. My body wanted to go to sleep, because I had three exams the next day. But, relenting, I got up and started to write in my journal. Males do not keep diaries, they keep journals. Females keep diaries. There is probably no difference in content.

Had an interesting conversation with someone today. Damn! I didn't even get her name. Anyway, she felt a lot of things that I've been thinking about for a long time. Why is it that it was so much easier for her to say them than for me? What am I so scared of? I hope that whoever should read everything I've written in here can answer the unanswered questions. Maybe even just one.

I wish I could.

Monday, with all its wonderful prospects, came. I sat through my first two exams, taking them with a relative ease. Far from underachieving, I was actually supplying minute details, guaranteed to get me brownie points. I hadn't felt this comfortable with an exam in front on me since high school. I went to the third exam full of confidence.

Too much confidence. I sat there, half-assing the first essay, and totally in awe of the second. I looked at the clock. I looked at my pen.

"Well, write!" I ordered.

The person sitting to the left of me just looked at me. I assume that his pen was given its orders in private, or at least in silence.

"It's hard of hearing," I half-chuckled to him.

He just looked at me.

++++++++++

The bell mercifully rang. The easier tests, I felt, were just the eye of the hurricane. It was grey again outside. I walked aimlessly around campus, hoping that maybe I would again cross paths with the mysterious girl of the day before. It was fruitless; I knew it would be. Meetings like that only happen when they're not planned. I

(con't. on pg. 13)

AN OPPORTUNITY TO FIND OUT MORE ABOUT THE NEW
FOOD ENGINEERING
B. S. PROGRAM
AT THE UNIVERSTIY OF
MASSACHUSETTS
ROOM 803 CAMPUS CENTER
7:30-9:30 PM THURSDAY APRIL 7
REFRESHMENTS

Whimsical Spring Arrivals
Victorian Dresses Silk Blouses Flowery Sundresses
Baggy Drawstring Pants/Shorts
Hair Combs/Barrettes
Spray Perfumes/Soaps/Bath Oils
Sachet Pillows
Espadrilles/Clogs
People Shoes from Main-land China
love at first sight
549-0700
Carriage Shops, Amherst

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
national black theatre
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

the copper lantern
549-5403
Good Food Drink
ATMOSPHERE YOULL ALL ENJOY
EASTER SUNDAY
HAPPY HOUR 12 NOON-7 PM
ROAST LAMB DINNER $3.50
BAKED HAM DINNER $3.50
DAILY LUNCHEON AND DINNER SPECIALS
HAPPY HOUR
4-7pm MON.- SUN.
1 Pray St
Amherst
Next to Hampshire Bank

Levi's
LEVI'S®
FOR GALS
Roll it. Tuck it. Love it!
The fashion fundamental. Good ole Levi's® for Gals. Snug in the hip, straight legged—in the sturdy 100% cotton indigo denim you love. You know they're Levi's®. Check out those copper rivets, that famous pocket tab. Zip your boots over them. Roll yourself a cuff! Or leave 'em slim and long. The fit's just for gals, and they're in 3 lengths—approximately 31, 33, 35.
WEAR-HOUSE
201 n. pleasant st. amherst
Fairfield Mall chicopee

dvp
presents:
Martin Luther King, Jr.
Memorial Week:
Tues., April 5:
Rev. Hosea Williams
Dr. Randolph Blackwell
Ms. Marion Williams, Vocalist
8 p.m. S.U.B.
Wed., April 6: A Freedom Seder
6 p.m. S.U.B.
"Let the Church
Say Amen," a film
8 p.m. S.U.B.
Thurs., April 7: Gospel Night
Mr. Vernard Johnson
Jessy Dixon & the
Jessy Dixon Singers
8 p.m. S.U.B.
All events are free and open to the university and community at large.

Our Search for True Love

By Norma Anne Sims

I knew as soon as the phone rang that it would be for me, and it felt so good to know I wouldn't be spending my twentieth birthday alone. I'd had a feeling that Becky would remember it and call and ask me to do something, and for once I was right.

Becky and I had gone to the same high school, but we didn't really get to know each other until we started working at the candle factory. We sat next to each other every day, sticking little wax leaves and pine cones and things on big candles, and finally one day my boredom overcame my shyness and I asked her, hadn't she been in my class, and she said, "Oh yeah, you're Sheila Lovell, aren't you, you used to hang around with Mary Ellen and all those kids." I told her Mary Ellen had gone to Boston College and I couldn't really say how she was doing because I hardly ever saw her any more, and it seemed like the same thing had happened to Becky's friends, they'd all left Cape Cod, and those of us that didn't go right to college didn't know anybody any more. Becky and I got to talking and fooling around, and we went for a beer after work a couple of times, then Becky got transferred to Dipping and I thought, well, that's the end of that, but then one miserable night I said what the hell, and called her up and asked if she'd like to go to the pub. She was really happy to have the invitation, and we went, and we fell into the habit of going there a lot, having a couple of drinks and talking about people from high school, and guys, and how there was nothing to do on the Cape in the winter.

Anyway, that night, on my birthday, Becky called me up, and sang Happy Birthday, and invited me to go to the pub. I put on a skirt, which was silly, because it was cold and I knew my knees would freeze, and a black blouse, and my new silver necklace, and I looked about as good as I ever hope to. I told my mother not to expect me home early, and drove over to Becky's house.

We took Becky's car to our pub. It was a quiet, cozy little place, it had a jukebox and a TV, but no dancing, nothing so loud you couldn't talk. Becky talked me into letting her buy me a birthday drink, I got a sombrero and she got a Southern Comfort sour, Becky looked good too, she had on a nice shirt and pants, and had her long hair curled, which she didn't usually bother to do.

Anyway, it being my birthday, we got talking about the past again, about high school, especially about people we didn't like. Becky recalled the boy I went out with for a little while during senior year. "Oh, that conceited brat," I said. I don't know why I ever went out with him. He was going out with so many other people behind my back, I got sick of it pretty fast."

"I was jealous, you know," said Becky. "I had a crush on him for quite a while."

"You can have him. You know who I had a crush on? Bruce Stern."

"Yeah, he was a nice kid. What happened to him?"

"I think he went to U. Mass., he was too dumb to get in anywhere else." The waitress came back, and Becky got me another drink in spite of my protests. I asked her, "What ever happened to that Dave kid you used to go out with?"

"Oh, he's around someplace. I never see him though." She took a long swig of her Comfort. "Don't you hate it?"

"What?"

"Not having any guys around, that's what!"

"Really," I said. "I know what you mean."

"I'm so sick of this. I haven't been out with anybody since I graduated. I have to admit, I'm getting kind of lonely." She leaned over confidentially. "And horny."

"Yeah!"

"Well, it's not just that, either. It would just be so nice to have somebody to talk to, to be with, just somebody to care about you."

"Wow, I know what you mean, absolutely!" I said. "But it's so hard. There's just no place to meet them."

"Just bars and stuff."

"But who wants to meet them in a bar? Guys that go to bars are only after one thing."

"You can't say that, Sheila, that's too much of a generalization. There could be some nice guy in the same situation as us, if he didn't know anyplace else to go to meet people, he might go to a bar. You never know."

"I suppose. I just wish I knew where they were all hiding, though."

"Hey, what time is it? Only nine? Hey, let's go over to the Poop Deck!"

"But it's so expensive, they charge a dollar to get in, and the drinks are a lot more than they are here, too."

"Oh, come on, Sheila. It's your birthday, I'll treat. We've been talking about this, now you've really got me in the mood."

I'd never been to the Poop Deck before, although it was the biggest and best-known bar on the Cape, and I was a little apprehensive about the idea, but I was starting to feel adventurous, and I knew I'd be missing something if I didn't go. "Well, all right. If you promise to let me buy you a drink when we get there."

We paid our bill and left. It was raining, and we ran across the parking lot to Becky's car. I asked Becky if she'd seen Monty Python and the Holy Grail, and she had, so I started doing imitations from it, and Becky threw back her head and did a horse-laugh, and did the appropriate responses from the movie. I was afraid she wasn't watching the road, but I was laughing too hard to really care. In about 15 minutes we were in town, and then in the parking lot of the Poop Deck.

A big bouncer took Becky's two dollars, but didn't ask for our ID's, which was flattering. I didn't know what to do after that. It was too loud in there to hear each other. Becky started toward the tables, and I followed her. She picked one near the dance floor, and yelled, "Is this OK?" I supposed being near the dance floor would increase our chances of being asked to dance, though it was harder on the ears, so I took off my coat and sat down. The waitress, in a long slinky black dress, was there instantly. We ordered the same drinks, I figured I better not take any chances mixing my drinks if I had a long night ahead of me, and besides, sombreros are easy on the old tum. The waitress brought them, then she stood there until I realized she wanted us to pay for them right away, and fished through my pocketbook and found the outrageous sum of $3.50. I said to Becky, "I guess they don't trust people around here."

There was no band playing when we came in, just a DJ, and only a few people were dancing. But pretty soon people started walking around on the stage, then the colored lights came on and the band introduced themselves and started playing the latest disco hits.

I felt good, the drinks were starting to take effect, to make me relax and lean back in my chair. I was starting to get over my nervousness and wish we could get down to business. I started checking out the scene. Every time a guy walked by our table my heart would jump and I'd wonder, would this one stop? But none of them did. They were all going up to the bar, or over to talk to another guy, or to the bathroom, none of them asked us to dance. How could they help noticing us? I felt so beautiful. I felt the flowing gracefulness of my skirt and my long legs, the soft little shapes rounding out my blouse, the sparkling silver enchantment of my necklace, the carefully poised hand holding a cigarette in what seemed to be a very sophisticated position. Becky looked beautiful, too. But no guys seemed to notice. I looked all around the room. All the handsomest guys were standing up at the bar, far away from the dance floor, they always seemed to do that. "They should make that illegal," I said to Becky. "Or at least charge them more, if they're going to just stand there." She laughed.

The band announced they were going to take a short break, they always say it's going to be a short break but it always seems to be a pretty long one. The DJ started right up, careful not to let a moment of silence slip in. Becky looked disappointed. "Well," she said, "that's the end of the first set."

"So? There's two more."

"Yeah, I suppose."

"I know what the problem is, Becky, we're too beautiful. They're afraid of us." In the state I was in, I almost believed it.

We got more drinks. The second set started, and still no luck. Becky seemed really disappointed now, and I felt sorry for her. I got up and went to the bathroom, thinking maybe if she was alone for a few minutes somebody might ask her. There was a long line of girls waiting to get into the stalls, it was disgusting, only three toilets for a place this size, and one of them plugged up already. I felt funny being in the light, with that crowd of girls. A lot of them were more beautiful than we were. When I got back, Becky was still sitting there.

I was starting to get impatient, but I was still feeling pretty high, and I figured something would turn up eventually. It was too far into this song to ask anyone to dance, I'd say to myself, or it just wasn't the right type of song, or they were still getting up their courage. I wished I was braver, I wished I had the guts to just go up to someone and start talking to them, like some girls did. I started looking guys in the eye, thinking I'd lure them over to our table with my seductive glance, but soon as they saw me, I'd chicken out and turn away.

Then the miracle happened. I'd been noticing these two guys a few tables away from us, one was quite handsome, he was tall and had on a respectable sweater and corduroy pants, and the other one was a little overweight and had on a flowery shirt and polyester pants and styled hair, he looked a little fruity to me but he wasn't as bad as some of them. But suddenly I felt a tap on my shoulder, and there was this same guy asking me to dance! I was flustered for a moment, but there was Becky saying yes to the handsome one, so I said yes too and followed him up to the dance floor.

I felt clumsy at first, but it didn't take me long to fall into the rhythm. I'd always been contemptuous of disco music, when it came on the radio, but I had to admit it had a hell of a catchy beat, and I was really enjoying moving my body to it. I avoided looking at the guy, he wasn't a very good dancer, well he wasn't hopeless, but I didn't feel we made a very impressive couple. But I felt pretty cool myself. Becky and the handsome guy were doing some really fine dancing. I knew how intently we'd watched the dancers when we were sitting down, so I knew everyone was watching me now, and I thought, hey, all you yet unchosen ladies, look who's up here now! Don't you wish it was you?

My partner said, "Want to bump?" I didn't really, it seemed like too much touching too soon, but I couldn't very well refuse. He had a fat squishy behind, and it felt like bumping with a pillow, so I tried to aim for his hipbone, which didn't feel as unpleasant, and in any case wasn't as gross a spectacle as some of the other parts of bodies being bumped on that dance floor. I was doing fancy dips and turns and having myself a pretty good time.

When the set was over, Becky said, "I'm exhausted!" and dragged her partner over to our table. I'd been considering saying thank you to mine and disappearing, but there was no way I could pull it off now. So we found extra chairs and the four of us sat down. The waitress came around again, and the guys bought us drinks. I didn't really want one, I figured if I was feeling so good now, another drink would change my level of feeling, and I didn't want it to change, and I also thought about what my mother told me about letting men buy you a drink. But I told myself, come on, Sheila, what's the matter with you, you can handle it.

Becky's guy's name was Brian, and mine's name was Jerry. They asked where we came from, and we told them we were natives and that we worked at the candle factory, and they said they were from some town near Boston and were going to the Community College here. They asked if we knew so-and-so, and we didn't, and they started talking about all these people they knew at the college, and left us pretty much out of it. Then I guess they caught the way Becky and I were looking blankly at each other and decided they'd better change their tactics, so they split up. Jerry admired my outfit, and asked me what people did around here in the winter anyway, and I told him "Nothing," and I don't know why, but there I was telling him all about what a drag it was here, just working every day and going to the pub with Becky and having no one else to talk to, and I didn't say "no guys" but I guess he got the picture, and his arm crept around my shoulders and he was all sympathy. I wasn't really that attracted to him, but I figured I should give him a chance, after all I didn't know for sure that he wasn't my type of person, though he sure didn't look like it. But when he seemed so understanding about how lonely I was, I almost started to like him.

The band started the last set, and the guys asked us to dance again. That drink hadn't done me any good, I was starting to feel really drunk, staggering a little, not just plain good any more. I was tired and wished I had the guts to ask Jerry if we could sit down. Then they played a slow dance, and he he put his arms around me and we started stepping around slowly. I really didn't want to be that close to him, but I was so drunk it was nice to have him holding me up. He started stroking my face and hair, and again, on one level I didn't like it, but it felt so good to be held and touched like that, so I let him do it, and I rubbed his shoulder a little, just so I wouldn't seem too cold.

After that dance was over, Jerry said, "Let's sit down," and signalled to Brian, who brought a giggling Becky along with him. Jerry wanted to get me another drink, but I strongly refused, I still had some of the last one left, and I

(con't. on pg. 13)

UNIVERSITY PIZZA
WE MADE YOU A PIZZA
YOU COULDN'T REFUSE!
NOBODY DID REFUSE
THE SPECIAL WENT SO WELL, WE WILL REPEAT IT
THIS WEEK ORDER OUR
NEW 16" PIZZA OR
2 OR MORE SUBS.
and get a free quart of Coke, Tab,
Root Beer or Sprite on us!
OFFER GOOD UNTIL APRIL 7
Call 549-5592
Across from Southwest Dorms.
HOME OF THE STEAK & CHEESE SUB!

WESTERN AUTO
YOUR SPORT STORE FOR THE SPRING
Running shoes
Puma · Tiger · Adidas
Tennis Shoes
Converse · Adidas
Bata · Puma
Tennis rackets New 77 models
Head · Wilson · Bancroft · Spalding
32 Main St. Northampton 584-3620

Woolco TIRE AND AUTOMOTIVE CENTERS
We want to be your favorite store
RED HOT TIRE SALE!
SAVE $8 TO $24 ON A SET OF FOUR
OUR FINEST 4 PLY POLYESTER CORD TIRES
THIS WEEK ONLY
$25 Size A78-13 F.E.T. $1.73; B78-13 1.82
$30 Size E78-14 F.E.T. $2.23; F78-14 2.37; Size G78-14 F.E.T. 2.53; G78-15 2.59
WHITEWALLS $3.00 MORE PER TIRE
All Sizes Plus F.E.T. Each & Old Tire
BIG CAR SIZES $38.00
Whitewall Sizes H78-14 F.E.T. & old tire $2.73; H78-15 2.79
Whitewall Sizes J78-15 F.E.T. & old tire $2.96; L78-15 3.09
FREE AUTO SAFETY CHECK
AN ALL AMERICAN TIRE
· Tough, Durable, Long Lasting Construction
· Designed For A Stable Ride & Long Mileage
· All American's Most Popular Tire Value
MOTOR OIL 57¢ Quart Limit 8 Havoline 10W40 or Quaker State & Pennzoil 10W30 motor oil
STP GAS TREATMENT 57¢ 8 oz. Limit 2 Helps clean dirty carburetors
HEAVY DUTY TUNE-UP KITS 1.88 6 or 8 Cyl. COMBI-KIT FOR GM CARS $2.98
CLEARANCE ON CB's AUDIOVOX Original Price $139.95 69.95 MCB-1000 For negative or positive grounded cars and trucks EXPERT INSTALLATION AVAILABLE
NYLON SEAT COVERS 4.97 #116 Assorted colors for 2 or 4 door cars or trucks
RAIN DANCE CAR WAX 2.97 Each Available in paste or liquid
FOXCRAFT CAR RAMPS 17.88 Pair 4,000 lb capacity
RUBBERMAID DELUXE LITTER BASKET 3.77 #2995 Your choice of assorted colors
ROAD CHALLENGER HEAVY DUTY SHOCK ABSORBERS Limited Warranty 2 FOR 17.88 Most U.S. Cars INSTALLED "If shocks fail while original purchaser owns car, free replacement including labor will be provided at original installation center"
LUBE, OIL & FILTER SPECIAL 7.88 Here's what we do
· INSTALL up to 5 quarts straight weight or 10W30 name brand oil
· INSTALL new ACE oil filter
· COMPLETE chassis lubrication (fittings extra)
· BRAKE fluid if needed
· GEAR lubrication if needed additional service extra
POWER 36 BATTERY ALL SIZES, ONE PRICE Groups 22F, 24, 24F, 42, 1, & 19L Installed 26.88 Exchange
· Heavy duty construction delivers up to 296 cold cranking AMPS
· Dry charged - activated at time of purchase for optimum power
BATTERY POST PROTECTORS #54195 87¢ EACH
SPRING CHANGE OVER ALL U.S. CARS Your choice of up to 5 quart name brand straight weight, 10W30 or 10W40 oil Chassis lubrication (fittings extra) Balance all 4 wheels Tire rotation or winter tire change-over WITH THIS COUPON $14..88

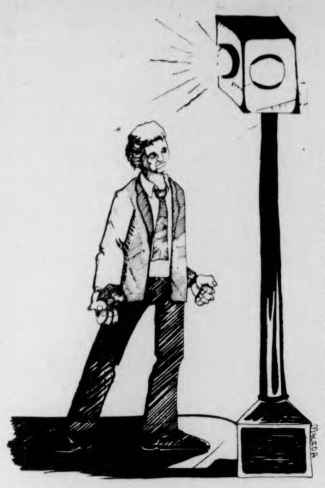
Poor Richard's
Thursday
White Lightning
All Gin, Rum, Vodka & Tequila 85¢

THE BARLEYCORN TAVERN
at THE GRIST MILL RESTAURANT
253-2843 Rt. 116, South Amherst
✱GREAT SANDWICHES✱
CRISP SALADS, FRESH SEAFOOD, HOME-MADE FRENCH FRIES & other favorites
frosted HEINEKEN drafts

JOLLY BULL
JOLLY BULL
ROUTE 9, HADLEY, MASS
TELEPHONE 584-2769
EASTER SUNDAY
·Roast Leg of Lamb $4.95
·Baked Ham $4.95
·Tenderloin Tips $5.95
We are also serving our regular menu all day Easter.

university of massachusetts arts council presents
TITO PUENTE ORCHESTRA
THURS., APRIL 14 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $6, 5, 4. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

The Red Light



By Mark Leccese

From the window of his dorm room, every night, Alex could see the red light flashing. It flashed, through the darkness, in an eternal repetition, like the ticking of a clock; red, black, red, black, red, black, red, black. Beginning at an undetermined time around dusk, Alex could watch the red light flash on endlessly, and for a little while every night, he did. It made him feel both the security of constancy and the plunging fright of eternity.

It seemed to be flashing a warning at the end of some long, slightly curving road, on which Alex could also watch headlights and tail-lights passing randomly, without the red light's repetition. He liked to imagine that the red light stood in the center of some small town scattered with stores, houses and people. It would protect, with its warning, these complacent, small-town folk with a sort of paternal benevolence.

In the Spring and the Fall, foliage would sometimes obscure his red light, and this gave him an odd, nervously uncomfortable feeling. Once, upon returning to school, he did not see the flash of the light for several weeks, and he assumed that it had either been replaced by a stop sign or broken. But then, one night, by what Alex was sure was the loving touch of some middle aged, small-town workman healing like a doctor, the light again began to flash red, black, red, black, red, black, seeming proud to be back on the job.

Alex and his University-selected roommate, John, had become fast friends. They had a lot in common, but were different enough to keep themselves interested in each other. They were both sophomores, and both considered very promising in their departments. John was a Political Science major looking forward, with an unsteady certainty, to a good law school and a political career. Alex was a Music major who lived, as all good musicians must, for his cello. His playing gave him, as political theories and ideas gave his roommate, a sense of comfort and calm, and, at its very best, a feeling of artistic and logical ecstacy.

John had never given a second thought to his roommate's hypnotic stares out the window until one night, when he was reading at his desk and Alex had been standing for a long time, looking out, Alex turned to him and said, "That red light, John, it speaks to me."

"What?" John got up and went to the window.

"That flashing red light there you,see it? It speaks to me."

"It speaks to you. What does it say?"

"You miss the point. It doesn't say anything. It just speaks to me."

"Oh. It speaks to me, too. It says, 'Come to a full stop and proceed with caution.' "

"You're hopeless." Alex grinned, and turned away.

+

Although Alex had played in what seemed to him to be a lifetime of concerts and performances, each new one excited him. Dressed in his black suit that felt a little stiff and a necktie that pinched his throat, he always felt sharp and professional. Walking to the concert hall, he always walked faster and held his head higher than usual, his heart beating fast, and pretended not to notice as the people watched him stride and whispered to each other.

Backstage and killing time before the performance, he always searched out a program and read his name. The program for this night's concert had his name listed directly under where it said Cello: Alexander M. Warren, then a comma, and, in italics, the word principal. Although he was only a sophomore, the conductor had chosen him to be the section leader.

Reading his name on a program, he saw himself from the outside, and it gave him a tangible sense of identity. He wondered what the strangers in the audience would make of this cellist. After his, the other cellists were listed alphabetically, so, since the principal sat on the outer edge of the section, nearest the conductor, he would be the only cellist the audience could match face to name.

Alex wondered what Nancy felt, sitting anonymously in the huge hall, reading his name on the program; he hoped it was pride. Maybe she just felt simple familiarity, or the strange contempt one can only feel for a person close to them. Would she talk about him to the stranger sitting next to her?

On stage, he peered through the bright light to find her, but the hall was too big and dark. Even into the music, she crowded at the corners of his concentration. The music was some of his favorite, the subtle, emotional, grand genius of Beethoven. The sections he loved best were the ones where the cellos would keep a fluid contrapuntal line of eighth notes beneath the melody, and then, with a strength and grace that only the cello has, rise up and state the melody themselves. The sound of the cello was his favorite of all the orchestra's instruments. At its best, the tone was strong and deep; hopeful and pleading; loving. Unlike the whine of the violin or the overconfidence of the brasses, the cello had a heavier and more comtemplative cry.

After the concert, as had been preappointed, he met Nancy outside the musicians' door. "Did you like the concert?" he asked.

"Yes, I love Beethoven. I don't like the conductor, through."

He's a nice guy."

"No, dummy, I mean his conducting."

"It is a little stiff." He paused. "You want to go get a drink?"

"Alright."

At the bar they had a drink and listened to a not very good rock-and-roll band. How incongrous, he thought, to come from playing the glorious music of Beethoven and listen to this.

They paid, left, and walked a way in silence. Then she spoke ominous words to him, simple words that scared him so much.

"Alex, we need to talk." Even though his heart pounded a single, jumping beat, sending his blood flying against his skin, he calmly agreed.

"Absolutely." Of course, he didn't want to talk. He wanted to go to bed with her. Not for sex; they hadn't even begun the prologues to sex, but just for the warm security, the contentment of sharing a night and sleep. He knew her roommate was away for the weekend, and they had slept together once before, clothed except for belts, shoes and socks. It had been, he knew, the most memorable night of his life, the first he had spent with a woman, and the morning after remained just as memorable. He had awoken early, which was not his custom, and left her to her day's business. He spent that morning walking and drinking coffee alone, seeing the world fresher than it had ever been. Alex had felt then, in the midst of that pleasant richness, something he had never felt before: that he would never die.

But now, for this talk, he needed space. They walked to the vast athletic fields, where a game of some intramural game was taking place under the lights. Far away from the game, in the darkness, they stood, sat, and paced on old wooden bleachers, only five tiers high, and talked. From here, across the fields, he could see his red light flashing clearly. Red, black, red, black, red, black, it listened to their conversation.

"I want to talk about us," she began.

"My favorite subject," he said, smirking. He was frightened and wary.

"I don't know if I'm ready for a serious relationship," she told him, looking down.

"Neither am I, I think. Am I forcing you?"

"No, no. I just don't know if I can handle it. I have a lot of studying."

"Well that's no reason.

"I guess not." They both watched the tiny figures in the game running and lurching. Their sounds and the voices of the spectators floated to the couple like a mist across the fields.

"Is it me?" he asked, after a long but strangely comfortable silence.

"No, it's not you. I like you very much. More than anybody else."

He felt flattered. From his own panicked hollowness of insecurities, he wanted to reach out and soothe hers. He dramatically touched her cheek, and then took his hand away. Her eyes were so sad! Softly, feeling a need for drama, he asked, "Are you afraid?"

"Yes."

"So am I. Don't be."

"But I am."

"Please. Don't be."

The action on the field had stopped. An ambulance sped down the hill to where the players were. On its roof, a red light rapidly flashed. The spectators were silent.

Fascinated, Alex tried to match the flash of his red light to this new one, to see if they ever flashed simultaneously. The lights were so different. His red light flashed with such certainty and dignity; when it flashed it was a perfect, tiny circle of red, and when it was off, he could see only darkness; red, black, red, black, red, black, red. The ambulance light flashed crazily fast, with urgency and alarm, sending split-second swords out in every direction each time it lit.

"Someone seems to be hurt over there," he said. They watched as the ambulance navigated the hill and sped away. He wondered who the person in the ambulance was. "How awful. I hope he's not hurt. Too badly, I mean."

"Alex, I need time to think. I want to go home."

He sighed; again dramatically. "Let's go," he said. Once they made it over the top of the hill, he put his arm around her. They walked back to her dorm, and, as they always did, stopped at the door to embrace.

"Do you want me to stay with you tonight," he asked, afraid. His mind stopped, waiting for her answer.

"No, Alex, not tonight." A burst of wild insecurity hit his stomach like a punch.

"Hey, we could sit up all night and listen to records."

"I'm tired, Alex, I want to sleep."

"We could sleep, then."

"Alex, I'm sorry. Not tonight."

"Nancy. I need you." he blurted. His heart was pushing into his throat, and the periphery of his vision was blurred and unknown. All he could see was the soft oval of her face.

"I need you, too," she said sadly.

"Then let's be together tonight. We can just sleep. Together. It'll be nice."

"Please, Alex. I don't think so. Not tonight."

"Then I should go."

"Yes," she said, looking at the ground. He squeezed her.

"Well, then," he said, gathering up some false composure, not wanting to break down and make a scene. "Good night, Nancy. Sleep well."

"Good night, Alex."

Although there was much more to be said, they parted. Alex turned, and with his mind buzzing with loneliness and terror, strode back towards the dark athletic fields. He stared into the darkness and saw his light flash. Red, black, red, black, what am I doing to myself, he thought. He walked faster, as if trying to walk out from under his tangled thoughts. He unconsciously fell in step with the flashing of the light.

Red I wish I had never black met her why can't red she help me I black want her so much red she calms me down black I wish I could red help her I wonder black if she needs me red like I need her black why can't we help red ourselves how will I black ever sleep tonight red.

His mind's whirring made him oblivious to any destination. He noticed that he appeared to be headed directly for the red light. It called to him; he set his mind, finally, to confront it.

++

Alex stepped over the steel restraining cables of the highway like a boxer entering a ring. Cars whizzed past him as he walked towards the red light, now straight ahead, that grew bigger with each step.

At the end of the highway, almost into the woods, the red light stood where the highway he had walked on ran perpendicular to another highway. He was surprised to find that the red light was flanked by two flashing yellow lights, on the same level of the red light, forming three sides of a box. The yellow lights were for the traffic that came down this road Alex had never seen; they also, in a cocky, military way, guarded the red light, one on each flank. Both highways were long and straight and dark. There were no houses, no streetlights, and, except for the flashing lights and the occasional cars, no life.

Alex went up and stood underneath the red light. It was a few feet taller than him, and he bent his neck back to look up at it. It flashed red, black, red, black enormously over his head, noticing and ignoring Alex at once, mocking him, like an arrogant father who has scolded a child and refuses to look at or speak to the child, even though it hugs his knees.

Without speaking to the red light, Alex began to move around in the brush behind it, until he found what he was looking for; a large, heavy, jagged, hand-sized rock. He walked back under the light. With a burst of energy, he leaped up at the flash, swinging his arm from his hips to its full extension, and without letting go of the rock, smashed the red safety glass.

Shards and splinters of red glass fell down into his hair, on his hands, on his shoulders. The rock still in his hand, he took a few steps back. The red glass was broken away, exposing a silver concave, and at the center, untouched, a small transparent light continued to flash brightly. The light was crippled but not dead. Alex looked at the rock in his hand. His hand was bleeding. With his other hand he tried to gently brush the glass out of his hair. The transparent light continued to flash brightly, gasping. Alex looked up at it, and gently pitched the rock at the center of the silver concave. It hit its target, and the tinkle of thousand tiny bits of glass falling to the ground was mixed with the one, dull thump of the rock striking the earth in front of the light pole.

Now there was no more flash. The two yellow lights continued to flash on each side, sorrowful and helpless; Secret Service men standing around a shot president. Alex began to walk back to his dorm,and with the cobwebs and tangles blown away, his thoughts began to come in great, sweeping arcs.

He turned the knob to his room gingerly, and noticed he was trembling a little. Inside, John was sitting alone, smoking and reading a magazine. Alex didn't try to hide his bloody hand, and said nothing until John exclaimed.

"You're bleeding!"

"Very good. You should be a doctor."

"What happened?"

"I went for a walk."

(con't. on pg. 13)

What Are Your Dreams Now?

Brother away
thousands of dusty miles from here — yet fastened in memories shared, in smells and tastes of each other over years under that red roof in those attic rooms with sloping eaves.

Hello, brother.
What are your dreams now?
How have they changed
with your new names and orange dress,
your hot days of mad music
and foods differently spiced?

I dream over and over
of climbing long stairs to a shop of worn things —
of finding piles of your letters, years of words to all the family.
I write you my dreams.

And you write back in wild colors and say I have found all those words
travelling in your thoughts — have found sweet paper for them.
Brother, my brother.

What are your dreams now?
How have they changed
with your new names and orange dress,
your hot days of mad music
and foods differently spiced?

What are your dreams?

— Janine Roberts

"Nice to see you" looking thinner and "How's your life?" a glassy smile,
You've polished sharp your fine features; yet focused on you
I almost missed a hanging shadow man in your background.
"It's late now" and your eyes are duller, they've gained the weight.

Starting gate, a pulse removed
Pressure breaks the fluid wait
A shudder nerve when pistol shrieks search for track to touch the feet will try to force the earth to spin and stay on top to show or place.
Now circles to the end of course is close to where the race began.

2

— John Zieman

Moon XZ71

As if in a dream,
I saw you strolling through concrete-asphalt park,
Past styrofoam shrubbery,
Past pigeon-memorial statue,
Barefoot, on artificial turf, with your cute pink Oxygen mask.

Beneath the pale green light of moon XZ71,
Perambulating toward each other (with arms switched open)
As if in slow motion; our knee joints creaking
And rusted.

Preparing for the docking,
The scent of your high-grade oil,
And your silicones pressed against me,
Your jaw opened like a camera shutter and I kissed you
As the policelaser pierced my skull,
And I started
Screaming.

— B. Sesnovich

Our brains ache, in the merciless iced east winds that knive us...
Wearied, we keep awake because the night is silent...
Low, drooping flares confuse our memory of the salient...
Worried by silence, sentries whisper, curious, nervous,
But nothing happens.

Watching, we hear the mad gusts tugging on the wire,
Like twitching agonies of men among its brambles.
Northward, incessantly, the flickering gunnery rumbles,
Far off, like a dull rumor of some other war.
What are we doing here?

—Elizabeth S. Kent

Turning from people implies turning towards something else —
as we turn —
what faces us?
ourselves?
we can seldom face this and continue turning until the tornado of turning faces distort the dangerous reality and we can safely focus on the blurred faces including our own

Steve Parrott

---

threaten the walls
demand compensation
they keep you in they keep you warm.

avoid the windows
let them cloud over make no target of your naked hide.

run the water
that never gets cold wave your arms
ignore the door.

curse the air
you've breathed before whisper to the drain that goes outside.

— John Zieman

Charge It

Hunger rides along bone shafts
in electric trains shocking corpusles
to frenzied jitterbugging.
You spent hours addicting, dealing heavy
power to an outlet
soon spent.
Feed me.

— Trish Mastendino

"salvationsin sex"

he:
i noah feemale
2love: shellove
meathinks blonde wit curely here
she:
blue eyesea male toolovein muscle wit' brown hair
he:
icy her wit
shellove meathinks
pompous offerrings
off wit — pleasuresin time...
she:
brain burns
2love: hellove
mindsoul salvationsin sex
2gether:
2hope2loveach heavenly momeants repose on blissfull beach off watersofthighs

— Dean Mosley

Rag Doll

Whirling on a current of air
Her swirling skirts brushed his skin
And he with wet palms tugged the cloth fell, softly draping across his body
Deeper and deeper
Until he tore at the damp, heavy layers
Tore, till all breathing ceased,
Only a limp rag doll
Kicked down the cobblestone stairs
His brain hung in a cobweb net
A sign stuck fast in a pore
Lettered clear and bold Closed.

— Katrina Leisse Zwicker

Defending the meadow a forced line of trees
each wears his uniform
a bit differently.

— John Zieman

Peristalsis

I sit entombed
Apeneck, lost in my meditations
Struggling, pushing, pump
Nothing but a pump
Cheap product of industrialism...

Out! Out! I cry...
Begone from my body I cry
Sigh...there now,

It is finished. Forgive them.

—Naismith Darlingeer

Photo Poems by
D. Schafer, D. Griswold and J. Zieman

Living In

Scowling more and more
I see the purpose
that gleams like a slick sewer before me.
Etherized with my companions
Pan, Orpheus,
there is nothing beyond
the dream.
Ascending cannot happen
to a trigger-happy bulbous
Everyman.
Unfurled long ago
I stand only to be blown around by that wind of mindlessness, illusion that inhabits the minds and times of every good intentioned pilgrim.
Where is my green world?
I can scream and be — understood — I can even be helped, but,
can I be spared?
Another morning I began again to overturn and wreck the lodgings of a friend
seeking for his most prized possessions only to be told later that he forgot where he put them.
To be believed... is like drowning in your own blood.
Who cares? Least of all the only one to know what you feel.
Perchance to dream...
Ask Ovid and his metallic array of sound and sweat the way to sleep.
He will point you to the nearest bus-stop and tell you never to get on.
Frozen to yourself
you chip away the crystal tears and see you're the only one left.
And what of it? The real willies are not having enough realmless sparks to keep you standing there.

Rich Pioli

Sister Mary

Father is an old boy now he's resting inside of his eyes my habit of smiling has withered beneath the shifting angles of a lost sun
Now church bells sever the time which falls useless as a doll into my arms

The rain is falling like links from a silver chain hitting the concrete with a bone-breaking sound it echoes throughout this city, who's bald with a thorny sky-scraper crown.

— Cathy Seigerman

Hungry Mud

Hungry mud has my shoe
and leg up to the knee.
Dinosaurs have been known to disappear in one gulp like cocktail frankfurts.
Just this morning, the nostrils of an appaloosa
were mistaken for snails.
Standing on one foot like a clam
I watched green crocus nipples break bubbles in the thick spring stew Hungry mud heaves a lotus for every swallowed lion.

— Christopher Brennan

Too much, too soon

God! It was sunny and whelmingly warm
There were white washed out needles
Old mushy pine bean sprouts
And a large Muscoid fly (bzzzzzz)
"It didn't take you long bud-boy, did it?" said I.
The bird who sings "burdee" sang.
I could hear truck tail's rattling, unseen short sleeved drivers.
I know, I know, I know,
all about sunlight and its
Ice cream gaiety.
I wish it were Grey now,
that shroud of sad color,
so that we'd pray to Spring,
As if it might not arrive.

—Kenneth Lowell Kornfield

moon pocked nose

the moon pocked nose nudges through my bars
to ask
"can I make you comfortable?"

"well, yes"
I bubble
from my pool
on the floor.
"I seem to have melted;

could you get a mop?"

— Charles Koltz

university of massachusetts arts council presents

THIS TIME FOR SURE!

PILOBOLUS DANCE THEATER

SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Sport Coat

100% cotton, made in Yugoslavia, available in white, light green, blue, and yellow.

$9.95 each

Faces of Earth

Next to the
Amherst Post Office
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

Showcase Cinemas
ROUTE 5
RIVERDALE RD.
West Springfield
733-5131

BARGAIN $2.50 til 2:30
MATINEES WED. SAT. SUN

ROCKY PG United Artists

MGM presents NETWORK R United Artists

AIRPORT '77 A UNIVERSAL PICTURE TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION® PG

REDFORD/HOFFMAN "ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN" 8 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS PG

LATE SHOW PG

A STAR IS BORN R

BLACK SUNDAY R

A RALPH BAKSHI FILM WIZARDS PG

PLEASE CALL THEATRE FOR SCREEN TIMES

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY MASS

1 They're having such a wonderful crime... it's a shame to call the police! WALT DISNEY NEVER A DULL MOMENT G SPECIAL ADDED TREAT The Three Caballeros STARTS FRIDAY

2 "'Cousin Cousine' is fetchingly loony and great fun." —Janet Maslin, Newsweek ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE! Cousin Cousine R Thursday: 6:00, 8:15, twi-liter 5:30-6:00

3 1 WINNER OF ACADEMY AWARDS! A STAR IS BORN R Wednesday: 5:30, 8:00, twi-liter 5:00-5:30

4 BONNIE AND CLYDE THEY AIN'T. GEORGE SEGAL JANE FONDA "FUN WITH DICK & JANE" PG Thursday: 5:45, 8:15, twi-liter 5:15-5:45

★ REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI-LITE SHOW TICKETS... LIMITED TO SEATING ★

Photo Lab 1
FIRST ANNIVERSARY SPECIALS!

Color Print Processing
-12 exposures $2.49
-20 exposures $3.49

Color Slides
-20 exposures $1.49

PASSPORTS $1.00 Off fast service offers expire April 20, 1977
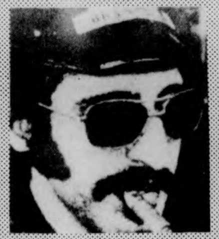
Mountain Farms Mall

OPEN 10am - 9pm

NOW AVAILABLE WHEREVER RECORDS ARE SOLD!!!!!!

'DOUBLE TIME' BY WARNER BROS. RECORDING ARTIST LEON REDBONE



'SMALL CHANGE' BY ELEKTRA RECORDING ARTIST TOM WAITS

Frontier Concerts Presents
Academy of Music
MAIN ST., NORTHAMPTON

TOM WAITS & LEON REDBONE

WEDNESDAY APRIL 13th

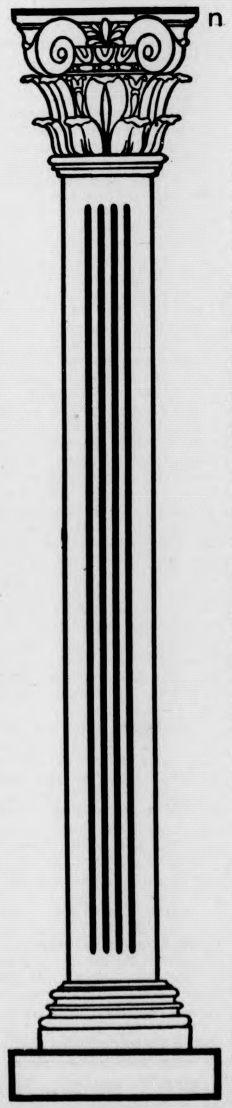
7:30 & 10:30

TICKET OUTLETS
FACES OF EARTH RECORD TOWN
SUN MUSIC THE BACKROOM
TECH HIFI MAIN MUSIC
GOODBODIES WAX 'N WANE

All the world's a stage signifying nothing said
Shakespeare among others at one time or another

The Powers That Be

By E. Patrick McQuaid



n the middle of the quiet in the middle of the day

Art Mac Cormac charged in to Casey's cafe and knocked the universe into a tilt. Five minutes to the middle hour when there would be but one hour remaining until the hour when he would come down from his station and the observers would drink to his health. Dismal day, day without end; king without kingdom nor horse nor men. Electric.

Up from the countertop grew Casey's boney, white arm, stiff and rigid like an ancient oak with roots well anchored. Thin blue columns traced up and down its smooth, shiny length. Atop this his mighty fingers formed a study buttress to hold his weary head. Spread before him was a tabloid; eyes fixed downward to where his right hand moved slowly across the page picking out word after word after word. His lips following in silence one syllable behind his finger.

On most days at this hour, Mac Cormac would step up to the counter, as lively as he was on this particular occassion, and slap down his hand on the countertop, relaying to Casey or one of his curates in great detail, exactly how he wanted his coffee...light, but not too light; a lit-tle bit lighter than regular...no sugar. Never did he ask for "the usual" but by this point in history both Casey and his company never lent an ear to Mac Cormac's unvaried homily. It was down to a science, like a theorum that is drilled into school children, straight from the pages of the green bound Baltimore.

"Cof...fee," intoned Art Mac Cormac. "Light, but" Casey straightened up attentively and followed Mac Cormac's index finger as it bobbed out each word. And to each word Casey replied with a short solemn nod. "...no sugar."

"Light...no sugar," said Casey softly to himself as he turned his back to his customer and faced the cauldron. He began humming an old tune filling in the words as he knew them while preparing the hallowed brew. "Psssss" lamented the machine when its glass vessel was removed from its station. The drips continued to drip down onto the heated plate and bubble and hiss as they struck until he had finished pouring a cup for his customer and one for himself and replaced the pot.

Mac Cormac suddenly turned and shot me a nod of recognition to which I replied by showing him my chin. He had already turned his attention to other parts of the room and did not catch my answer. "Zap!" I expect to hear everytime that little Harp does that. It's not annoying, I'm just used to it, like the "Blesshu!" that mechanically leaps from his lips whenever he hears a sneeze. You look up, recovering, wondering where in Heaven this voice has come from and all you see is his square back speeding away from you.

Mr. Matthew St. Thomas poked his flannel capped pate through the back door of Casey's admitting a thin stream of light that haloed his profile. "Comic" he grunted. Then looking down to a slip of paper that he held at waist level: "Arthur M'Comic! Ya here? Ya cheap sonnavabitch?"

"Who? Who ye lookin' far? bellowed out Art Mac Cormac before any of us had a chance to reply.

The door slid quietly shut as he scuffed his way to the counter. His luminous crown had disappeared revealing a craggy weathered face worn with the lines of age. He stood three feet away from Mac Cormac and twisting up what little there was left to twist of his wrinkled ching said slowly, "Ar-thur...Ma-Com-mac," and he raised one brow.

"Ohhhhhh," mused Mac Cormac placing a finger between his nose and his lip. "I thought you'd said 'Harrigan.' " Matty stepped back a pace and glanced down at his paper. "I haven't seen M'Comic all day," he concluded handing Casey a quarter.

"Cha-ching!" Casey rumbled through the change and slammed the register shut.

"You?" snapped Matty in my direction. "You know'm?"

"Can't say that I do."

"He comes in here of'en enough they say. Ifs he comes in through here you just tell'm that we're onta his ass and he ain't gettin' away with not payin' what he righteously owes." He turned and threw a glare in Casey's way and returned the same to me. "Day to ya" he said carrying himself across the floor and silently exiting through the front door.

"Day! G'day!" echoed the small crowd.

His absense was filled by one of his cronies who most of us knew only as Jack. He wandered in on a fairly routine basis and usually beggared a beer from one of us if not Casey himself. Today he appeared, entering through the rear door at the same time Matty made his departure through the front as though part of some stage directions carrying the dull action of the day along without intermission.

There's no end to it. No relief.

Under his arm was a box in which he carried his toys. They would differ from time to time, somedays being a chess set minus a pawn or two, othertimes a deck of cards more-or-less.

"Pahhhh-take-i'domminos...?" he sung out as he wandered from table to table searching for a worthy opponent. Several of the customers, used to his monotonous ramblings mumbled a response in unison but he apparently had no takers.

And Casey said to him, "Not now at this hour; later...around closing time, Jackee."

He set his game box down on the countertop and asked, "Is...is he, ah, still...up there?"

Casey turned to the bar clock. "'nutha hour almost, Jack... 'bout fo'ty minutes."

"Ahhnnnn," he sighed. "Can't be havin' one whiles he's still up now can we, now." He stared long and hard at the line of bottles that lined the mirror across the counter. Mac Cormac held the saucer under his chin and brought the steaming coffee to his lips on which rested a thin almost evil smile. He followed Jack's gaze to the bottles and then looking up over slender necks and into the mirror, beyond himself, beheld the image of Alaric Farrow.

I will remember, I won't ever forget Alaric Farrow. He goes through that building and he makes every editor tremble. They get up, they all get up when he comes in waving a story in front of them. They know it's good stuff. They all want to be the first to congratulate him on a great piece of work. They all know, he let's them never forget, that he is the favorite of Farrow; the heir to the empire.

Only his aging mother, in stately preservation, waits alone in his private lounge. She revels in his thunder. She removes his stainless white suit jacket and hangs it wrinkleless. She leads him to a seat and makes him sit. She brings him his Ear Gray Tea after this, his hard day at the office.

She is happy. She is proud of her son who takes great pleasure in his sharp and pungent words. He simmers under the tea and rests his fangs pondering his next assignment.

What I remember now is Mac Cormac and how he appeared in the company lounge when he won the billiard tournament. How he was like a young boy, an adolescent.

Mac Cormac spun around on his heels and strolled over to where Farrow was rising from his booth and unfolding his scarf.

"Got a minute, Farrow?" asked Mac Cormac.

Farrow tilted his head slightly holding his scarf about shoulder level ready to place it across the back of his neck. "Well...I was just leaving," he replied, the scarf remaining suspended in this position.

"Oh, only a min-nute. C'mon, Al, really."

Farrow took a deep breath and then letting the scarf rise over him and fall gently to its place he said, "All right, but not any longer."

He sat back down in the booth from which he had just risen and pushing back into the seat stretched his legs up across the rest of the bench. Mac Cormac moved into the booth adjoining him and sitting in much the same position addressed him across the tall backing that separated one booth from the other.

"It's been some six or seven months now..." I heard Mac Cormac begin then trail off. As he spoke, Farrow gestured to Casey, to which he nodded and prepared a cup of tea. Once finished he carried it across the room and placed it on Farrow's table. Mac Cormac paid him. The phone behind the counter rang and Casey hurried to answer.

"Mac Cormac!" shouted Casey. "Is Art Mac Cormac here?" He didn't even bother to look over to where Mac Cormac sat waving his hands, nodding his head, anxiety wrinkled across his brow. "No...I don't see him here...sorry...right, right, I'll do that."

"Deny thy name, 'Cormac?" said Farrow dipping and dunking his tea bag in and out of its porcelain grail. The steaming clear water turned a deep, leaden red.

"Render unto Caesar what is Caesar's, but render unto Caesar what is mine?"

"Render unto Caesar what he seizes," said Farrow reverently. He brought the cup to his lips and closing his eyes drank from it. Mac Cormac laughed.

All this I saw myself through the huge mirror before me. It lent itself like a stage of which I commanded an exceptional view. From my box I could study each performer with great scrutiny at my leisure also taking note of the backstage and the audience as well...stain hadn't noticed straightening my tie in the mirror leaving the apartment it's old though set in extra to clean I'm sure...hide

(con't. on pg. 13)

Secrets are what Friends are for

By Kevin Turcotte

Robby and me used to swim in our pond. We were the only ones who knew about it. It's a nice pond. Deep too. It's shaped like an "L." It's really pretty when the sun shines on it and the water reflects the light. But I don't go there anymore.

At the edge of the pond were a few burnt houses. I don't know how they were burned down I used to think that they were haunted. There isn't even a real road going back to the pond. The dirt road grew over a long time ago. Those houses sure looked funny, though. The foundations stuck out into the water and they were missing windows and things. Sometimes after we finished swimming we would get up the guts to go into a house. I'm not afraid of ghosts or anything. I just don't want to be left alone in there, that's all. Once Robby did that to me. He took off while I was in there. I got really scared and ran all the way home. I kept looking behind me but nothing followed me. Robby shouldn't have done that.

I didn't go back into the house until a month later. We both went in at the same time. I kept watching Robby to make sure he didn't do it again. We found a lot of weird stuff laying around. Old picture frames and bottles and stuff. Once we found a can of red paint. I was gonna paint a frog we found but Robby grabbed the can and spilled it all over me. Really made a mess. Robby shouldn't have done that. My mother really yelled at me for that one.

Whenever we wanted to go to the pond we had to sneak away. My mother told me I could only swim when a lifeguard was watching. That's pretty stupid. I can swim good. I don't have to worry about drowning. I never told her about the pond. Whenever I came home wet, I would tell her that I was at Robby's pool.

Robby didn't tell his parents about it either. He couldn't swim real good like me and his parents would worry even more than mine. He really did have a pool too. He liked the pond better though.

We both discovered it together at the beginning of the summer. I had never been in that part of the woods before. It was across a little swamp. Robby was the one who found the way to get across. He saw the tracks of the dirt road. Once we were on the road it was easy to follow. We walked kind of far. I was getting sort of scared but I didn't tell Robby that. We decided to take a shortcut on the way back. That's when we found the pond. We had to climb a little hill, and right on the other side was the pond. We were probably the first people to see it since the houses burnt down. It was real quiet down there — almost spooky. We could only hear the birds and the wind. Since nobody knew about the pond, we decided to keep it a secret. It was our pond.

At one end of the pond we put up a Tarzan swing. I had to steal the rope. Robby said stealing wasn't right, but it got us our Tarzan swing. Sometimes Robby can be real nice and other times he can act just like my father. Robby and I got along though.

Robby would climb up in the tree and beat his chest just like an ape, then he'd grab the rope and push off. He really looked funny, kicking the air, his hair blowing back in the wind. He even screamed like Tarzan did. He was a lot smaller than I was and he couldn't go as far out as I did.

Usually I didn't go on the rope. I had mask and flippers so I would play "Sea Hunt." I would swim around the cement walls that stuck out into the water. It's really neat with a mask. You can see all the fish and crap and parts of the houses that stick up from the bottom.

Robby and me were good friends. We used to do a lot of stuff together. I only remember once that Robby hit me. That was when I found that stray cat and dipped its tail in gasoline. I lit it with a match. Boy you should have seen that cat run. Never saw it again. Robby came over and saw me laughing at the cat, he belted me straight in the face. I wasn't even expecting that. Robby shouldn't have done that.

Robby had a sister too. She was always giving me goony looks and wanted to come along wherever we went. But she didn't know about the pond. Secrets are what friends are for.

She could be a real pain sometimes. Robby always wanted to let her play because we were the only other kids around here. Once she was on the swing behind my house and I pushed her real hard so she would fall off. Boy, she fell all right. She broke her arm. I didn't want her to tell. Robby got real worried and called up his mother. When they left he didn't even say goodbye to me. But I don't mind.

We used to take comic books out to the pond. Most of the time Robby wanted to read his Tarzan books though. He kept telling me how he was going to go to Africa someday. He was going to bring me too. I tried reading one of them once. It wasn't as good as my comic book. Too many words.

Robby brought some bread out to the pond once — he wanted to make friends with the squirrels or something dopey like that. I took some of it when he wasn't looking and set it out on a flat rock. I hid above it in a tree with another flat rock and when a squirrel came — squash! You should've seen the way their eyeballs puffed out of their heads.

Well Robby caught me and hid my comic books on me. He wouldn't tell me where they were until I stopped. Robby shouldn't have done that.

He can get me mad sometimes. This time I decided he had gone too far. I snuck up behind him when he was in the tree and pushed him real hard, just like I did to his sister. Robby held onto the rope until it almost stretched straight up, higher than I ever went. Then he fell off and I didn't think he was ever going to stop falling. He straightened out right before he hit the water. Hardly made a splash.

I kept waiting but he didn't come up. I figured he was playing a trick on me for pushing him. I waited some more. He still didn't come up. I slid down the rope and found my mask and flippers. I got them on and waded into the water. You have to walk backwards with flippers or you'll trip.

I swam around for a while and figured that Robby was hiding someplace. Then I saw him. He was holding onto one of the cement foundations, about 10 feet under water. So he was playing a trick on me.

I went over to him and saw that he wasn't holding on. One of those boards was sticking

(con't. on pg. 14)

HOUSING EXEMPTIONS

Fall 1977 Housing Exemption Applications are due no later than April 8, 1977.

Applications will not be accepted after this date.

Please submit all applications to the housing office, 235 whitmore. Thank you.

C & C LIQUORS
Next to Town Hall, Amherst

10% DISCOUNT on all Corked 5th's of California Wine

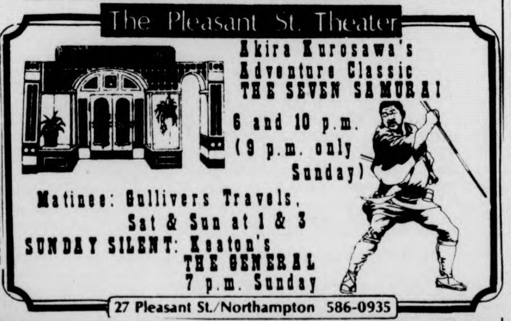
Donelli Lambrusco $1.79 fifth

Australian Fosters Lagar 99c 25 oz.

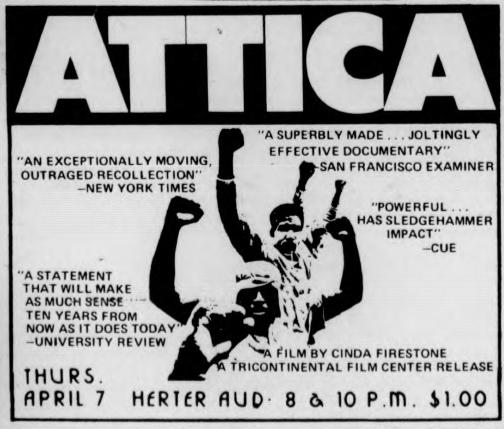
THURS. APRIL 7
MOUNTAIN LIFE
FRI & SAT ARIL 8 & 9
ANDY MAY AND THE TEXAS TABBY CRABBE BAND
SUN . APRIL 10
JONI CORBIN

RAHAR'S
FOOD DRINK LODGING

25c Drafts M-F 6-8 p.m.
OPEN 11-1 DAILY • 12-1 SUNDAYS
VISIT OUR GAME ROOM
7 Old South St. • Northampton
ACROSS FROM Peter Pan Bus Terminal



The Pleasant St. Theater
Akira Kurosawa's Adventure Classic
THE SEVEN SAMURAI
6 and 10 p.m.
(9 p.m. only Sunday)
Matinee: Gullivers Travels,
Sat & Sun at 1 & 3
SUNDAY SILENT: Keaton's
THE GENERAL
7 p.m. Sunday
27 Pleasant St./Northampton 586-0935



ATTICA
"AN EXCEPTIONALLY MOVING, OUTRAGED RECOLLECTION" —NEW YORK TIMES
"A SUPERBLY MADE . . . JOLTINGLY EFFECTIVE DOCUMENTARY" —SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER
"POWERFUL . . . HAS SLEDGEHAMMER IMPACT" —CUE
"A STATEMENT THAT WILL MAKE AS MUCH SENSE TEN YEARS FROM NOW AS IT DOES TODAY" —UNIVERSITY REVIEW
A FILM BY CINDA FIRESTONE
A TRICONTINENTAL FILM CENTER RELEASE
THURS. APRIL 7 HERTER AUD · 8 & 10 P.M. $1.00

Happy Birthday, Becky

(con't. from pg. 11)——The Powers That Be—

it...hide under my jacket this afternoon the office no one would or had maybe maybe and not said they won't say anything they'll think Ah! he can't even dress himself properly...he's obviously not getting along very well without her...Out with it then! I'll bring it up myself laugh it off...what's this seems I've spilt something on my shirt have to get it laundered then back to business.

Still, I shifted my lapel to cover its fetid presence.

Mac Cormac was speaking rapidly, too fast for me to understand. Apparently Farrow was catching it all, staring down at the floor and nodding slowly, rhymically. Just what Mac Cormac was confessing to him I couldn't be certain. I believe he was working on a piece of fiction and was outlining his story to Farrow hoping, perhaps that he would push it along through the channels and get it published.

I was able to catch short phrases, mostly cliches from Farrow. Not too creative that fellow. But he doesn't really have to be. Birthrights.

Farrow suddenly sat straight and laughed, "Now come on Art...tell me it all...the truth now..." Mac Cormac leaned into his side of the separator. His lips moved slowly.

A large red haired fellow, one of Mac Cormac's kind, walked up to the juke box and stared down into its glass face. He rubbed his chin. I looked back again at them through the mirror and heard change sliding down into the machine.

Three o'clock. The juke box blarring. That red haired tenor at the end of the bar. Competing. Winning. Triumphantly. I could no longer hear any of their conversation and gave up trying.

Light. Forcing its way into the room. Through the thick film of dirt on the window pane, through the dust covered curtain, through the smoke and the noise. You're loud, so loud. Louder than any noise in this room. You can be heard above this racket, this din. Fine streams. Biblical voices. I've never been able to think in such a noisy place before, like this. Concentrate. Meditate. So deep as this. In your company.

The Red Light

(con't. from pg. 7)

John fell silent. Alex went over to the window and stared out, looking for his light, and after a minute John came over and stood next to him. "Are you talking to that traffic signal again?" John asked, grinning. John looked out, and could not find the flashing. "It's gone!" he said. The grin faded from his face as he looked at Alex's hand, and at the darkness, and understood. "You crazy bastard," he said, "you crazy bastard. Come on, I'll take you to the Infirmary."

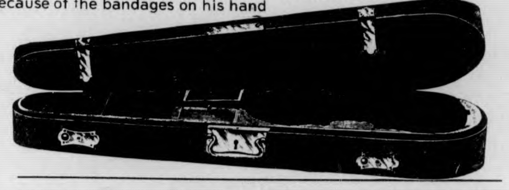
"No," Alex said. He didn't move. His eyes searched the black for the tiny, sudden circle of red. It didn't come, and the black remained a solid sheet.

+++

Because of the bandages on his hand Alex could not play the cello for a few weeks. He explained to people who asked that he had tripped and put his hand through a plate glass window trying to break his fall. Everyone believed him.

He spent those idle weeks in his room, listening to endless records, or in coffee shops, in a corner, alone, drinking coffee and reading. He was not sad and came to enjoy this vacation from daily practice.

Alex did not see Nancy very much after that night, and they never again slept together. Slowly his hand healed, he resumed his immersion in the cello and began to take a passionate interest in the music of Mozart.



—(con't. from pg. 3)——Patterns Of Eleven—think we have such things happen to us as signals. These fated occurrences are always carrying some sort of message with them. They happen periodically, and it's how many of the messages we pick up that make any difference in our lives.

I knew what this message was; I went to the bus station and shelled $156 from my checking account, leaving $23 for whoever might want it. I boarded the next bus through.

I showed the pass to the driver.

"Second one on the bus," he said to me. "Where you headed?"

"I thought I'd go to the Grand Canyon."

"After that?"

"After that, well, after that I guess I'll go to wherever I am at the end of a month."

"I wish I could go off like you younger kids," he said. "Different things were more important to me, when I was your age."

I felt like telling him that it wasn't too late, but he wouldn't believe me. I made my way towards the back of the bus.

As she stood up, showing me where she was sitting, she said,

"I've never been to the Grand Canyon, either."

"I'm not going to bother to ask how you knew. I don't even think I want to know. In fact I know I don't want to know."

"Oh, sit down and shut up."

++++++++++++

The bus pulled away from the curb. And, as it did, the sun came out for the first time in a long while.

—(con't. from pg. 5)——Our Search For True Love—knew there was no way I could handle drink number — five? six? There, if I couldn't even remember that, I certainly didn't need another one. Becky got another Comfort and polished it off. We talked for a while, Jerry told me about his ambition in life, which was to get his degree in retailing and open a chain of department stores in Florida, he said Florida was growing fast and there was a lot of opportunities there.

Then Brian said, "How would you girls like to come over to our house for a nightcap?" Becky said, "Sure!" and we all put on our coats and went out into the cold. Brian got into the driver's seat of Becky's car, and Jerry and I, with our arms around each other, walked toward his car. It seemed very quiet in the parking lot after the uproar of the bar. It was still raining out, actually it was more like sleet. I hoped Jerry was a good driver. He had a fancy sport car, and I guessed I was supposed to be impressed. Well, all right, I thought, I'll be impressed, I guess it won't kill me. So I told him I liked it, and he told me all about what kind of car it was and what was special about the engine, and I didn't understand a word of it, but I just kept saying "Oh" in the right places and he didn't seem to notice. I did a few lines of Monty Python and laughed hysterically, but he'd never heard of them, so I did the whole thing for him, and he laughed, but not as if he really appreciated it. He turned on the radio and put his arm around me, and we drove too fast down Route 28.

Well, Jerry, I thought, you old fat kid with the funny clothes, I guess you're going to have the rare privilege of going to bed with Sheila Lovell. I can't very well refuse you now, and even if I didn't want to go home with you, I couldn't desert Becky, and who knows, maybe if you like me enough to be taking me home like this, holding me close and singing softly to the radio, maybe I can learn to care for you.

The house was a duplex, the kind of rickety, badly heated place they rent to poor people and Community College kids in the winter, then kick them out in June and rent them to tourists for five times as much. Becky's car was parked out front. The bottom of the screen door had a hole in it, as if somebody had kicked it in. A big hairy guy was sitting on the couch with his feet on the coffee table, drinking beer and watching TV. Jerry introduced us, but I didn't pay much attention.

I asked where the bathroom was, I wanted to be alone, to think for a minute. I found it down a little hallway. It was filthy. I put the seat down and sat with my head in my hands. I heard the guy saying something to Jerry about "a couple of foxy ones," and Jerry agreeing. The bright light sobered me up quite a bit. Oh God, I thought, I don't want to do this! Why am I so scared? I've finally met a guy, and he likes me, he wants to make love to me, what's so bad about that? Isn't it just what I wanted? Lots of girls do it, Becky's probably doing it right this minute. I just wish it didn't have to be right now. But there didn't seem to be any way to back out.

I washed my hands, combed my hair a little, and went out. The couch had been pulled out into a bed. The big guy said, "Well, I guess I'll leve you two alone now, good night, Jerry." He burped, and went down the hall.

I walked slowly over to the bed and Jerry put his arms around me and kissed me. I said, "Do you always sleep here?"

"Yeah, this is my room. Brian and Joe have the other bedrooms."

"That must be awful, you must have no privacy."

"It really doesn't make that much difference." Then before I could think of anything else to say, he kissed me again.

It was so strange. I remembered all the nights I'd lain in bed alone and wished for something like this to happen, how I'd dreamed of having someone holding me, kissing me, gently unbuttoning my blouse, just as Jerry was doing now, and I knew how intense it felt in those dreams, but I didn't feel anything like that now. What was wrong with me? I kissed him back, trying not to let him know how cold I felt.

I heard unsteady footsteps in the hall, then the bathroom door slammed, and I heard someone throwing up.

"Hey, that's Becky, " I said. "I better go see if she's all right."

"Don't worry about it," whispered Jerry. "She probably just had too much to drink. She'll be OK." He held me down and started on my zipper.

The door opened, and Becky ran out, sweaty and wild-eyed, and said, "Sheila!" Then she put her hand over her mouth and ran back.

" 'Scuse me, Jerry. Just for a minute." I kissed him, forced myself up, and went to her.

She was positioned over the toilet again. "Oh God, Sheila. I'm so sick. Oh God."

"It's all right," I said. "You'll be OK. Just get all that Southern Comfort out of your system." I held her hair back so it wouldn't get dirty.

"Oh, Sheila, can we go home?"

"Sure, Becky. You just take it easy. I'll drive you."

I buttoned myself up, and went into Brian's room to find Becky's coat and pocketbook. Brian sat up. "Hey, what're you doing?"

"We have to go. She's sick."

"Oh, Christ!" He sank back with a disgusted snort.

I went back to Becky and got her cleaned up, and helped her put her coat on, and found her car keys, and we walked out into the living room. She held onto me for support.

"Jerry, I'm sorry, I have to go. I have to take her home."

"Okay, I'll see you in a little while, then." He looked absurd, with no shirt on, and his pants cutting into the fat stomach, and his waved hair all askew.

"Well, actually, I can't come back. It's pretty late."

"Oh. Well. OK. Well, maybe I'll see you next week, then."

"Yeah, probably. Well, thanks for everything."

"That's OK. Well, good night, Sarah."

The sleet was coming down ever harder. I'd only driven a standard shift a couple of times, but I figured I'd manage somehow. Becky lay against the seat with her head on her arm.

"I really appreciate this, Sheila. I'm sorry I made you leave."

"Don't worry about it. I kind of wanted to anyhow."

"You did too? I wanted to leave as soon as I got there, but I didn't want to drag you away. What a jerk! I mean, he was handsome and everything, but he was just too goddamn pushy, he had to get me right into bed. I mean, that's all right, but you like a little romance once in a while, you know?"

"Really."

She must have sensed the unasked question, because she said, "He didn't get what he was after, though."

"Good! Same here. I guess we were lucky you got sick."

"That goddamn bastard didn't even remember your name!"

"That's all right," I said. "At least he can't find it in the phone book."

I was driving carefully, wanting to go slow, and yet wanting to get Becky home as soon as I could. I was managing the shift all right, it's surprising how fast you can sober up when you have to.

We turned off the highway onto Becky's road. Suddenly she said, "You better stop, Sheila." I pulled over, and the car made a grinding noise, but it didn't seem to do it any harm. Becky jumped out and bent over. I got out too, and held back her hair, and rested my hand on her shoulder. "It's all right, Becky. You'll be OK tomorrow."

We got back in. The sleet had turned to snow, it looked pretty in the beams of the headlights. "It's snowing, Becky," I said. "Look." My drunkenness seemed to have worn off completely, and I felt good as we went coasting through the curtain of snowflakes.

It was only a couple more miles to Becky's house, and it didn't take long. I helped Becky out of the car and half-carried her into the house. I don't know how I managed to get her upstairs without waking her parents up, but I did it somehow.

"There, we're home now. Just go to sleep and you'll be OK tomorrow."

"Oh, thank you so much, Sheila!" She hugged me, and I was a little embarrassed, and staggering under her weight, but I hugged her back.

"That's all right, old buddy. I should be thanking you for all those birthday drinks, remember?"

"That's OK. Any time. Just don't let me have so many next time."

"Well, I better go before I wake your parents up. Think you'll be all right now? I'll call you tomorrow and see how you are." I sat her down on the bed, and turned out the light.

"OK. You better not make it too early, though."

"All right. Good night, Becky."

"Night, Sheila."

I snuck downstairs and went out to my car. The snow was falling even thicker now, and starting to pile up on the driveway. The clouds had broken off to one side, and the moon and stars were spilling light on the white world. I drove home slowly and carefully, singing my heart out to the radio.

(con't. from pg. 12)

into him. I thought that he might need my help so I grabbed him and tugged real hard. He finally got loose, after I had to get air twice. He wouldn't swim so I had to tow him towards shore. I tried to wake him up but I think he was dead. I had never seen a dead person except on TV. He looked dead. Robby shouldn't have done that.

I didn't want to be a criminal. I would have to run away. Thinking about that almost made me cry. But I didn't, I'm not a crybaby.

Robby's Tarzan book made me think of what to do.

I took off the title page and wrote a note to his parents on it. It said: "Dear Mom and Dad, I am running away to Africa. Goodbye. Love, Robby." His name was on the inside of the book so I forged his writing. Did a pretty good job too.

Robby sure was heavy for someone as small as he was. Finally I got him over to one of the houses. I dragged him down the stairs to the cellar. I sat him up in the corner. If anyone saw him they wouldn't think he was dead. He was getting real cold and stiff when I left him.

I went back and put his towel and book with him. And I even found where he hid my comic books. It wasn't as scary in there with Robby. I wasn't afraid all the way home. I didn't forget to put the page in his mailbox either.

That night, Robby's mother called and asked if I knew where he was. I said no. I don't like it when other people make you lie. She asked me if I knew about him wanting to run away to Africa. Yes, I said, he told me. When my father found out that I didn't tell anybody about Robby leaving, he beat me with his belt. I think that's better than being a criminal though.

After a while the police gave up looking for him. They never looked around the pond. You know why? Because it's a secret. Robby's and my secret.

BRANDYWINE
AT AMHERST
MOVING OFF CAMPUS???
● STARTING AT $240
GAS UTILITIES INCLUDED
50 MEADOW ST.
N. AMHERST
549-0600
● RENTAL OFFICE OPEN
WEEKDAYS 9-5
WEEKENDS 10-5
● ON UMASS BUS RT.
EVERY 10 MIN.

THE PUB
TONIGHT
DOUBLE TIME
8:30 til 11
(Most Drinks & Beer TWO for ONE)
Miller
ON TAP
2 FOR 1
8:30-11
T-Shirts Given Away EACH WEEK
AND
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
If you've got the time, we've got the beer.
TWO WAY STREET
EATING & DRINKING
AMHERST

Colgate MFP Reg. Price $1.10 SIZE 5 oz. NOW 73c ultra brite Reg. Price $1.10 SIZE 9 oz. NOW 65c
CURITY curad BONUS BOX SALE 60 - ¾ inch Plastic Bandages Reg. Price $1.29 NOW 54c
Curity Cotton Balls SIZE 300 NOW 89c
Colgate Instant Shave Reg. Price $1.18 SIZE 11 oz. 79c
Wilkinson 6 BONDED™ Blades Reg. Price $1.49 85c
Wilkinson SWORD MASTER Chromium 5 Blades Reg. Price $1.25 NOW 65c
College Drug Store
4 Main St., Amherst

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents
Minnesota Orchestra
Stanislaw Skrowaczewski
Music Director
TUES., APRIL 19 8 PM
Tickets now on sale! $7, 6, 5. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

CALVIN NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW... EVERY EVE AT 7:00 9:00
SISSY SPACEK
PIPER LAURIE
MONDAY and TUESDAY DOLLAR NITES!
"CARRIE"
If only they knew she had the power.
R

Brandeis Summer
June 6 - Aug. 12
1977
647-2172
Courses in the following fields:
Biology, Chemistry, Education, English, Fine Arts, German, Legal Studies, Physics, Politics, Pre-medical, Psychology, Spanish
The Summer Program offers selected courses generally given at Brandeis during the traditional academic year, and all are taught by fulltime Brandeis faculty members. Students have the advantage of studying at a suburban campus, without the cares of parking and other problems encountered in an urban setting. Summer students have full use of all Brandeis facilities, including tennis courts and indoor swimming. The University's apartments, offering two and three bedrooms with kitchen facilities, are also available. Registration opens May 2. For additional information, call 647-2172 or write to the Brandeis Summer Program, Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass. 02154.

E.S. Curtis
Between 1898 and 1928, Edward Sheriff Curtis accomplished what proved to be the most extensive photographic project ever undertaken by a single artist: The North American Indian. Faces of Earth offers 24 prints of Southwest, Plains, Plateau and Northwest Coast tribes, selected from among the 40,000 negatives taken by Curtis. These prints were made directly from an original set of photogravures, accurately recreating the feeling and quality of Curtis' work.
Faces of Earth
Next to the Amherst Post Office
Open Mon.-Sat. 9:30-5:30

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Asti Spumanti 10.5 per cent vol. $2.99 24 oz.
~~Liebfraumilch 10 per cent $1.79 23 oz.~~
Liebfraumilch 10 per cent vol. $1.49 23 oz.
ICE COLD KEG BEER $20.00 and up
Unlimited Quantities on all Sales Items No Extra for Delivery
Amherst's closest liquor store to UMass Campus
In Amherst Ctr., Across from the Village Green 253-5441

Himmelfarb On Tour

By Barbara Winder

The Party

Himmelfarb, the poet, was driven to my house after his reading. He entered the living room carrying a carton of his books, chatting over his shoulder with Ernestine Rogers, our eighteenth century specialist who managed to smile above her load of Himmelfarb's suitcase, briefcase, and coat. Most of the women looked up. Himmelfarb, as everyone at Cedarhurst knew, was a womanizer. It was always hunting season; the deer were mesmerized in the middle of Himmelfarb's field. I noted how deftly he had begun a conversation with Claudia, Marshall Long's fiancee. He liked intellectual women. Himmelfarb's late wife had been a Guggenheim Fellow. She had published her first volume of poems a week before she died. The reviews had been mixed.

"I've always said moselle goes with everything," he said, leaning toward me to refill his glass, but cleverly keeping his left arm behind Claudia so that she was compelled to stand very close to him. Then he frowned. Himmelfarb frowned frequently. Because of his beard, however, it was difficult to see his mouth, and one had to rely on his eyes and forehead to determine his expression. A small piece of cheese had fallen onto his beard and was moving up and down as he talked.

"I enjoyed your last book," I said, glancing at the cartonfull, mostly of his last not very well received book, which he had placed on the coffee table.

"Yes. That was practically effortless. Those poems just came to me like birds to a feeder. But now I'm involved in something really serious. My novel, you know." Everyone knew about his novel. It was the story of his life in Spain with his third wife, Belinda. Himmelfarb excused himself and escorted Claudia into the kitchen where several female graduate students were preparing plates of salami, pastrami, cheese, and whatever else they thought a Himmelfarb would find aesthetically and gustatorily inviting. A few people were leafing through copies of his book, but it looked as if no-one had deposited money in the box next to the carton. One young man was saying that the poems were "terse, personal, and symbolic." He was reading off the flyleaf.

"Would you call him a metaphysical poet?" Marshall Long asked. Long's fiancee had not yet returned from the kitchen and he looked a bit as one looks when he lends a car to a not-quite friend. Marshall was this year's editor of Sun Stream. "He does utilize some marvelous polarities," Marshall continued. From where I stood, I could see Himmelfarb's fingers prettily handling Claudia's ass as they chatted side-by-side in the pantry.

"Yes, he could very well be metaphysical." I refilled Marshall's glass.

"Did you know that he told his first wife to commit suicide - she threatened to do it and he told her to?"

"Poetic lincese," I said, glancing around to see whether it was time to open another half-gallon of wine.

"Can I talk to you alone?" asked Ernestine. She looked a bit pale. The laundry room was the only place where people weren't blowing smoke into each other's faces. "John simply won't have that man in our house. Be a dear and let him stay with you."

"So that's what the luggage was all about," I said, trying to maintain my smile.

"Look, we're friends, aren't we?" She had taken hold of my hand.

"Okay, okay," I said. We were office mates and I wanted everything to stay friendly.

When I returned from the laundry room, Himmelfarb had established operational headquarters on the seven foot sofa in front of the fireplace. A tall, rather fat man, it was not always an easy thing for him to do. I felt that my furniture was being used in a fashion that the salesman had not quite imagined. Claudia was sitting on one side of him, Ernestine just having joined him on the other. Himmelfarb had been quoting Donne, and the words came out very sweetly. Himmelfarb really always talked to himself; listeners were permitted usually at a price. He glanced at me as I made my way to the coffee table to empty ashtrays. A veiled look. His hand was on the small of Ernestine's back. Claudia began to speak in a high, rapid voice.

"It's time to go." Marshall loomed from behind the sofa, attempting rather awkwardly to form a wedge between the poet and his fiancee. Marshall, as one asks an auto Claudia, ignoring Marshall and placing a hand on Himmelfarb's knee.

Himmelfarb laughed and turned the professorial bulk of his chest upward toward Marshall. The Zia Indian amulet over his turtleneck shook as he laughed.

"Go on, Jules," said Claudia.

"Oh yes, Jules, do go on," said Marshall, as one asks an auto mechanic to find yet one more potentially fatal illness in his means of survival.

It was impossible to grasp what happened next because everything occurred in a photofinish of thuds and yells. Marshall jack-knifed over the back of the sofa and grabbed Himmelfarb around the neck on the way down, pulling our guest to the floor. Somehow during their descent, Marshall managed to give Himmelfarb a clout in the eye. Then he extricated himself from the moaning victim, grabbed Claudia by the hair, and dragged her outside.

"Oh God," Himmelfarb said, touching his eye with his fingertips. "How am I going to do a reading with one eye?" I ran upstairs to find an icebag. When I returned to fill it, Ernestine said, "too bad no one eats meat anymore."

The Reading

I couldn't help feeling slightly pleased that Himmelfarb would be staying at my place. He had decided not to attend the late afternoon student sponsored wine and cheese reception in his honor, saying that now he would have to rest and let someone "with a voice soft, gentle, and low, an excellent thing in a woman" take care of him. So we sat on the sofa after everyone had left and finished the cheese and pastrami and the one bottle of moselle I'd saved. Then I changed into my new black slacks and my Greek blouse with the full sleeves, and although Himmelfarb had the use of only one eye, it gleamed like a pond from a plane as he followed my hurried efforts to clean up the room.

After buckling his seat-belt carefully, he lit his pipe. "God! Two readings in one day — and I can't even see anything," he moaned, unbuckled the harness, turned to retrieve a paper bag from his briefcase on the back seat, rebuckled the straps, and produced a bottle of cheap sherry. I said I didn't drink and drive at the same time, but I took a small swig just to keep him company. He wanted to know whether I was married — had I ever been? What was my ex-husband like? But before I could finish telling him about myself, Himmelfarb was looking out of the window and humming. I slipped a tape into the slot under the dash, and we listened to a Mozart divertimento. Himmelfarb was taking more than an occasional swig. "Good stuff," he said as we turned up the ramp to the Interstate. I couldn't tell whether he meant the sherry or the music, but I had an opinion.

At the University library an adequate audience had gathered, composed mostly of young women. For the fifteen minutes that Himmelfarb and I sat in the front row waiting for him to begin, he signed the flyleaves of about twenty of his books while the blushing poetry lovers almost leaned into his lap. When he crossed his legs, I could see a hole in his sock right below the ankle. I supposed that almost every one of his admirers could have been pressed into sock-mending, and wondered why he hadn't seen to that. Finally, a young man appeared who was responsible for, but seldom effective in arranging for these programs. He stood at the lectern and the audience quieted. For an instant, Himmelfarb's eyes looked as if he were a non-swimmer facing the high-dive, but seconds later, on the podium, he was cutting through waves with powerful strokes. His voice was a kind of instrument — not quite Dylan Thomas's, but he played it well. I glanced behind me into the rows of expectant young faces. His voice went on — lifting, falling, caressing, sometimes rising to an image that had to be placed in front of the women and allowed to remain on the air like a cloud.

Now he was reading from his book, Perjuries. In a dramatic narrative explaining the courtroom proceedings during one of his divorces, he stepped out from behind the lectern, waving his arms. I couldn't believe my eyes — not only was Himmelfarb's fly open, but his penis was in plain view. I shut my eyes and opened them. Yes, it was still there, exposed to a hundred eyes. Something had to be done. I grabbed some papers that he had left on the seat and stood up, mumbling something about a missing section of the manuscript. I placed myself directly in front of the poet.

"Your fly is open," I stage-whispered. Himmelfarb moved to the right and continued to read. I made another attempt, stepping again in front of him. This time I managed to place the papers in his hand.

"For Christ's sake, leave me alone," he said, but he reached down and pushed his genitals back inside his pants.

By this time, the reading was almost over. Himmelfarb finished with a few translations from Indian poets. The applause lasted for several minutes, and when the women lined up to have a word with him, I saw that his pants were mysteriously closed. On the way home in the car he asked whether I had had particularly religious parents.

The Affair

We had to stop at a grocery store t buy the veal that I had decided t sautee in wine. Our second stop was th package store. Himmelfarb said he' take care of that, so I waited in the ca while he bought white wine, sherr and beer. I felt a bit giddy, but sensibl and bored at the same time — it was little like being invited to a best friend' third wedding.

Himmelfarb's table manners su prised me. They were good. He e plained that his southern upbringin had taught him to eat slowly. We dran some unnecessarily excellent Italia wine with the meal. Between mouthful of veal he explained that he wa publishing a long poem, "an odyssey c a man in a woman's world." Then h added, "where are your poems? You' have to show them to me."

"But I haven't said anything abou my poems," I said. I could tell that h was smiling.

"Everybody has poems, my dea girl. Everybody. After all, why am really here? Now you must show then to me after dinner." I felt frightene but pleased at this prospect.

After fruit, after cheese, and afte the ritual snifter of Benedictine Himmelfarb was back on my seven foo sofa, looking large and comfortable i his Irish sweater. He leafed throug my poems, and sucked alarmingl without rhythm on his pipestem. I ha made a fire and a sharp Novembe wind rattled my Chinese bambo shoots hanging from the porch ceiling After about twenty minutes. Him melfarb knocked out his pipe and laid i near an ashtray.

"Some pretty good stuff here, pretty damn good, woman. You'll hate me fo this, but you write like a man. Thes travel poems are good. More alive tha Elizabeth Bishop — a little in her styl — but active. Say I'll bet you fuck like a man, too. None of that shit about hertz, schmertz, lieb, and triebe. You're a businesslike poet, kid. Got any hash? I'd really like to relax tonight."

I said I didn't have any, but that he could make considerable dents in my liquor if he liked. I think we were listening to Mozart again. His large curly haired head was thrown back against the sofa as if he had moved in. The last thing he said was, "do you cry at opera? I do." Then he fell asleep. His hands — surprising in being both attractive and thick like a carpenter's — lay open on his thighs. He snored, but only slightly. When the concerto came to an end, he awoke.

"Bed?" I nodded. 'Well, come on lass, up wi'er."

"The guest room is the first door at the top of the stairs," I said, looking into his eyes that I sensed he would have liked to appear sharp and animal-like. They mostly reflected my good cooking, good wine, and good fire.

"You don't know what you're missing," he said. I don't know whether he ever went to bed that night. Occasionally I'd hear a noise downstairs. The next morning, the Benedictine, the sherry, and part of the Irish whiskey that I was saving for my brother, was gone. Himmelfarb had fallen asleep on my sofa. His pipe had burned a memorable hole in one of my pillows. The other day I showed it to Claudia and told her how the hole got there. Without too much effort, she persuaded me to give her the pillow. I was going to get rid of it anyway.

publish your way out of the red!

By E. Patrick McQuaid

After the third rejection slip from National Geographic for my story "I Have Never Been Born in Burma" arrived in the mail it occurred to me that perhaps my particular style of genius was not reaching the right marketplace. I was on Esquire's mailing list and received rejection notices about twice a week even though I had not submitted anything to them for over three years. When they turned down my subscription renewal, I knew that I needed professional consultation.

I wandered into the University Store and began browsing through the book section. Writer's Market '77 ... I picked up the bulky orange and yellow clothbound volume and began thumbing through it. $13.50 ... a substantial investment, I thought to myself, but then again that postage is killing me! 936 pages, 4,095 listings covered, 8,577 paying ... paying markets for novels, stories, fillers, plays, articles, gags, verse, and photos. I began reading a few of the listings. They noted, in great detail, the kind and length of writing that each publication would purchase, the average pay rates, names of who to write to, and estimated time it takes to hear yea or nay on the submission ... I couldn't afford not to own this book, I mused to myself, but what about those great Cape Cod photos I had to illustrate my Burma piece?

I needn't tax my brain any farther. Right beside Writer's Market '77 sat a copy of Artist's and Photographer's Market '77. I stared down at it; it stared back up at me. Twenty-four blue eyes and one red eye dared me to look inside. I slipped Writer's Market up under my arm and reached for it.

Hhhmmmm, $10.95, 720 pages with 54 illustrations ... 9,168 potential markets for all types of art and photography work. The listings included much more than mere periodicals. Galleries, manufacturers, public relations firms, and specialized markets dotted the pages. Not only that, but specific descriptions, in the art director's own words, of exactly what they were looking for under each listing. Some even gave an example by illustrating previously purchased material.

It occurred to me that between these two volumes I could ferret out a market for my upcoming interview with the Village Idiot in Sunderland ... just so long as I got what I was after. That clever bastard had a way of avoiding my probing questions ... wait a minute ... what's this? The Craft of Interviewing, another book by Writer's Digest? I didn't waste a precious second; the book was in my hands and open. This one was only $7.95 and by the editor of Writer's Digest, John Brady. The book is not a listing of markets but a handbook, a Bible for interviewers offering practical advice, suggestions, and helpful hints on tackling the most awesome aspect of journalism: the interview.

The Craft of Interviewing is filled with professional advice from the professionals; reporters, editors, and freelancers and yet it is surprisingly written in an extremely amusing, readable fashion and not like a stuffy expository writing textbook.

I headed for the cash register with my three new books. I figured my cash outlay would soon be replenished once I found a market for my undiscovered talents.

WRITING AND SELLING SCIENCE FICTION
by The Science Fiction Writers of America
Published by Writer's Digest $7.95

By James F.B. Sawyer

This book is a veritable cookbook for the beginning writer of sci-fi. From incessant reading in the genre to see what ideas are currently in circulation to actually sitting down at typewriter and rapping out a fresh gaggle of characters in a new and inspired plot, it takes the reader step by step through that mystery of mysteries, the creation of a science fiction story.

Eleven contemporary sci-fi authors have contributed a chapter a piece, each writing on one segment of assembling science fiction stories. Following the introduction by editor C.L. Grant, Thomas F. Monteleone discusses the two major outlets for beginning short stories; magazines and anthologies. He warns the reader that possibly, sending manuscripts to publishers can end up being nothing but frustrating to a writer who has yet to establish his name.

Monteleone recommends checking Writer's Market for publishers of science fiction and then writing to them, asking if they'd like to see a story which deals with such-and-such in such-and-such a way.

Subsequent chapters include: how to make your characters lifelike, how to make dialogue sound realistic, how to get "those crazy ideas", creating other words for other worlds, construction of sci-fi worlds, creating the future, political sci-fi, "recipes for believable aliens" and even how to save money once the story is sold.

The remaining contributors are Kate Wilhelm, Gene Snyder, James Gunn, Poul Anderson, Jerry Pournelle, Gardner Dozois, Tom Purdom, George R.R. Martin and andrew j. offutt, all members of the Science Fiction Writers of America, a group of professional, published science fiction authors.

With all the "helpful hints" between the covers, Writing and Selling Science Fiction is a must for beginning as well as already-published science fiction writers.

The Great Pretenders

THURSDAY NIGHT - APRIL 7 - $1 COVER
at the Hatch

Rabin quits party post

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin resigned yesterday as head of the ruling Labor party amid a scandal over his secret U.S. bank account and said he will not run in elections scheduled next month.

"I greatly regret that I am ending my service this way," Rabin said.

The move threw open Labor's choice for prime minister in the May 17 elections and Defense Minister Shimon Peres, a hardliner on surrendering occupied Arab territory, immediately became the front runner for the ruling party's nomination.

Rabin's decision, announced on nationwide radio and television, came after Attorney General Aharon Barak said he would seek legal proceedings against Rabin's wife, Leah. She is accused of lying by stating a joint account she held with her husband in the United States contained only $2,000 when $18,000 actually was on deposit.

"If she stands trial, I would stand trial with her and I would not claim immunity as a member of parliament," Rabin said.

Rabin admitted he and his wife held a joint account in Washington amounting to $18,000 though he said it has shrunk to $10,000. It is against the law in Israel to hold any money in a foreign bank.

Rabin, 55, made his decision at a time when Labor faces the toughest challenge to its leadership since the state of Israel was formed in 1948 from the opposition candidacy of archeologist Yigael Yadin, head of the Democratic Movement for Change.

"I am not prepared to assume responsibility, albeit for what I consider a minor mistake, for the damage that the Labor party could suffer in the forthcoming elections," Rabin said.

Rabin said he informed the Labor party secretary, Meir Zarmi, that "I am returning the mandate that I won from the Labor party convention to head the party's ticket in the Knesset parliament elections."

Yitzhak Rabin

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 118 FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 1977
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA. 01003/ (413) 545-3500

Joan Gero takes time out between innings for a quick cribbage game during yesterday's Red Sox game. See game story on page 19. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

SBA views reallocation plans

This is the first in a series of articles examining University programs that stand to be affected by a five-year plan such as the one the provost has presented to University deans.

By JOE QUINLAN
and BERNIE DAVIDOW
Collegian Staff

The recently released five-year plan to reallocate faculty positions within the University "indicates an increase in resources to the school of business," according to its author, Paul L. Puryear, provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs. However, this may not be enough to solve the problems that have been plaguing the school for the past three years.

"He's (Puryear) making verbal and written moves that purport to go in the right direction, said outgoing School of Business Administration (SBA) Dean George S. Odiorne yesterday. But the scheme is only "long-range planning" and not real decision making, a quality lacking in administrators here, he said.

"There is a paralyzing lack of will to manage over in Whitmore," Odiorne said, terming the new plan "an emotional spasm."

Puryear's "long-range plan" projects an increase of 15 SBA faculty positions, the largest allotted any University program. This is to meet the increasing "student academic demand" for professional schools, according to the plan.

Wendel R. Smith, dean of SBA from 1968 to 1974 and now a marketing professor, explained yesterday the current high demands for professional education, especially business schools. He said the rapid social changes of the 1960's were reflected in the high demand for social sciences. But with the recession of the 1970's, students are now more interested in coping with financial problems, hence the shift to more career-oriented disciplines, especially business.

From 1973 to 1975, entering enrollment in SBA jumped by 450 students. But the school has had a hard time meeting the demand.

"In the spring of '75 we realized we were in trouble," said Nelson E. Pion, SBA dean for undergraduate affairs.

SBA, Massachusetts' only accredited public school of business, could lose its accreditation from the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business because of the high student-faculty ratio.

There are now 2257 undergraduates and 69 faculty members in the school; a faculty-student ratio of 33:1. They need at least nine more faculty for accreditation. Because of a state-imposed hiring freeze on faculty, the school had been forced to decrease its enrollment if it hopes to remain accredited. From a high of 2500 students in 1975, SBA hopes to drop its enrollment to 1700 by 1979 via a quota system.

The school is now accepting only one out of every six students that apply, according to Pion. Last fall the school accepted only 250 freshmen. Last year SBA accepted only 75 out of 255 applicants for transfer from other departments within the University.

To add to its woes, SBA has been losing good faculty, said Jack S. Wolf, associate dean of SBA. "We've lost 11 faculty over the past two years.

"We're just trying to keep afloat with replacements," he said.

There is the fear that still more faculty will be lost. "I can pick 10 people who might not be here in the fall," Odiorne said.

Among those 10 he included two department chairpersons. Harold R. Hartzler, of the general business and finance dept., "has been looking like crazy," disclosed Odiorne, while Gordon W. Paul, of marketing, will be leaving for a visitation to a Florida school in September. Odiorne then remarked there has been a tendency in the past few years for SBA faculty who leave for a visitation not to return to UMass.

Kent B. Monroe, a marketing associate professor, and Max S. Wortman Jr., of management, will be joining the staff at Virginia Polytech and State University.

TURN TO PAGE 14

weather

It will be cold. It may snow. Play Frisbee anyway. Happy Easter.

Provost angers FacSen

By MARY ELLEN LOWNEY
Collegian Staff

In a heated discussion over Provost Paul L. Puryear's recent proposal to eliminate 28 faculty positions and drastically reduce the number of professors tenured over the next five years, Faculty Senate members expressed extreme disapproval last night over the Provost's method of introducing the proposal.

Professors from all departments were in agreement that they should have been represented or at least informed of the proposal during its planning stages.

Puryear's 30-page memo, which was sent to academic deans and directors March 24, outlines a five-year plan to cut back faculty, tenure, and calls for the elimination of some departments altogether, such as Asian Studies and Slavic languages.

When asked by one professor if he was aware that his actions are "in clear violation" of University governance policies, Puryear replied, "That's not my reading of the governance."

The governance stipulates that the faculty must be represented in matters related to academics. Puryear said he does not consider this an academic matter.

Larry S. Roberts, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors (CMSP), called for a meeting of the School of Humanities and Fine arts at noon today in order to "pursue remedies" of the memo and its effects on the faculty. The meeting will be held in the sixth floor lounge of Herter.

In other business, Roberts, referring to Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery's refusal to officially meet with the recently elected faculty union, commented that "The president and the trustees have not yet seen fit to obey the laws of the Commonwealth."

The meeting, originally scheduled for 9 a.m. last Tuesday in the chancellor's offices, was cancelled until the union representatives are willing to meet "informally as colleagues," said Bromery when he refused.

"Their refusal to bargain is not a question of recognition," said Roberts, "we are recognized by the Commonwealth as a legal group."

Bromery was not at the meeting to comment. Zdenek Salzmann, faculty delegate to the Board of Trustees, announced the board's approval of Bromery as the Vice-President of Labor Relations.

In his first appearance before the Faculty Senate, Jon Hite, Student Government Association (SGA) co-president, asked all University professors to "inform their classes about the University budget and encourage students to write to their representatives," expressing their opinions.

Level funding 'teach-in' scheduled

Susan Birmingham

By PETER C. PETERSON
and JOHN MORAN
Collegian Staff

A day-long "Teach-In" on the effects of level funding here at UMass was scheduled for Wednesday, April 27 by the Budgets Cuts Task Force at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Campus Center.

The teach-in is designed to educate students about the effects of Govenor Michael S. Dukakis' proposed level-funding budget. The teach-in will have a three part format beginning with an outdoor noon rally followed by workshops for the remainder of the afternoon and a meeting in the evening.

Plans for the teach-in will be completed at a follow-up meeting on Tuesday, April 12. Several speakers have tentatively been asked to appear representing both sides of the issue. Among the speakers may be Joan Pinck, Undersecretary of Educational Affairs, Representative James G. Collins (D-Amherst), and a representative from the Chancellor's Office."

The Task Force also outlined its strategy to convince legislators of the need for increased spending in the area of higher education. Action was specifically directed toward the House Ways and Means Committee's public hearing on the state higher education budget to be held next Thursday morning, April 14 at the State House.

A motion to send a small delegation of well informed people to attend the hearings and speak with representatives, was unanimously passed. It was also indicated during the meeting that several other state colleges will be sending students to the hearings.

"I'd say there will be at least five hundred students attending the hearing next Thursday," said Student Senator Jim Posgay.

Student Government Association (SGA) co-president and student trustee, Pinky Batiste, said a certain number of students and faculty will be allowed to testify before the committee.

"My impression is that there will be four students testifying, but I'm not sure whether it will be verbal or written. Jon (Hite), Jay (Martus), Paul (Cronin), and I have been putting together possible testimony for the last week," she said.

A meeting of all those interested in working on written testimony for the committee hearing will be held Monday, April 11 at 3:00 p.m. in the SGA President's Office in the Student Union.

Long-range plans to influence the entire legislature include a massive letter writing campaign to be conducted, in part, from a table in the Campus Center Concourse. Students will be urged to write letters to the editors of their hometown newspapers, as well.

Decisions were reached after lengthy debate among the 30 to 40 persons attending the meeting. Much of the debate dealt with the short and long-term goals and purposes of the Task Force, and the most efficient manners to go about educating the campus community of the budget crisis.

"I think the fact that there were 30 to 40 people here today shows the concern of students over the Governor's proposed budget," said Larry Magid, a representative of the Massachusetts Society of Professors (MSP) and the Student Center for Educational Research (SCER).

When does sign language resemble dance?

By DEBORAH EDWARDS
Collegian Staff

On April 14 and 15, a production of sign language, mime and dance called "Signs of Life," directed by Laurel A. Chiten, will be playing at the Southwest Residential Theater in Hampden student center.

"I've been entertaining the notion of a production in sign language for the past three years, ever since I started learning it," said Chiten.

"I was really impressed with the artistic qualities of sign language, and how close it is to dance. It's almost like visual music and it's really beautiful. I wanted to combine sign language and music, artistic sign is what it's called, and since this is my last semester here at UMass I decided I might as well get it together.

"What we're doing now is for my senior honors thesis," said Chiten. "We put together a show starting from scratch, working with poetry, mime and music, to tell the story of life from birth to death. It's very appropriately titled, 'Signs of Life'.

"I'm also doing work with sign language, looking at it as a grammer. I'm trying to find out the different components of speech because American Sign Language (ASL), is a language in itself, really nothing like English.

"Picture some kind of spectrum. On one end of the spectrum you have spoken English. On the other, you have what is called ASL, American Sign Language, or Amslam. It's the language that is spoken by most deaf people through their hands. In a sense, you are painting a picture because you are using the space in front of you. But it is a language because you are using grammer, not just signs and mime.

"The best way to understand is to look at what deafness is. The best working definition that I have found is, 'the inability to understand spoken language.' If you think about learning language, hearing people go through the language learning process by hearing it. But if people don't have ears to hear the language, then they're going to use their eyes to hear it.

"Those are the two ends of the spectrum. In the middle is what's called, Sign English, which is taking the syntax of spoken English, together with the signs of Amslam. Many times you can use the same syntax and your expression will tell whether it's negation or a question, or tell what kind of emotion you have, the same way the inflection in your voice would tell it. Often times you sign a question mark at the end of a sentence, or sign, 'Let me ask you a question....' There's also the element of timing and repetition that constitute part of the meaning. When you repeat something you are emphasizing the meaning.

"Everytime I meet a stranger who doesn't know that I'm deaf, I always mime, 'Can I have a piece of paper and a pencil please?' Often times they freak out a little bit. I remember one time I was asking a person in the store for some cigarettes. The man heard what I said, and he snikered. He started to make fun of me, and I just stared into his face. That's the only thing I don't like about hearing people, their making fun of others. They don't try to understand the situation. I don't have time to pay attention to their expressions, I just write it down and hand it to them. They sometimes ask me, 'Can you lip read?' and I say 'yes', and they feel comfortable.

"If I had my life to live over again, and I had my choice over which of my senses I had to lose, I would prefer to lose my hearing because I can drive, I can read and there are hearing aids but nothing to replace your eyesight. I can lip read but the blind cannot see, so I'd rather be deaf than blind because I can do anything but hear. A blind person can hear music, but with my hearing aid I can hear a little, so I don't miss anything. Often times when it's really noisy, hearing people wish they can turn their ears off. I can do that by turning off my hearing aid, and that's a good thing."

Six students resign from CC committee

Six student members of the Campus Center Board of Governors have resigned from active duty on the board's search committee for a new Campus Center director, according to board chairperson Janet St. Laurent.

The committee now consists of two students and five administrators who will make the decision.

The search committee has already narrowed down the applicants from 200 to only five persons.

According to St. Laurent, the board will speak to the chairperson of the search committee to obtain more in information on the remaining five candidates for the directors position.

St. Laurent said the board was not worried that the resulting imbalance will have a negative impact on the choice of the committee. She emphasized that the board will meet with each of the five candidates when they come to campus.

Greeks honor members at annual awards feast

By JO STEWART
Collegian Staff

Greek Man and Woman of the Year were awarded to Stephen A. Macaulay, Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and Deborah A. Miller, Alpha Chi Omega sorority last night at the fourth annual Greek Council Awards Banquet.

About 120 past and present Greek Area presidents and representatives along with administrators attended the banquet at Alpha Chi Omega sorority, 38 Nutting Ave.

Outstanding fraternity and sorority president awards were given to Dennis M. Aylward of Phi Mu Delta fraternity and Alison Berglund of Sigma Kappa sorority.

Delta Chi fraternity and Lambda Delta Phi sorority received scholarship awards for last year's highest cumulative averages.

Sigma Delta Tau sorority received the Most Improved Chapter Award.

Distinguished Service Awards were given to William Field, Dean of Students, for his support of the Greek Area; Paul Hamel, Assistant to the Vice Chancellor for working as financial advisor with RSO for the area; and Arthur Lahait of the University Public Affairs Office for working as an advisor to Arcon, the University Guide Service.

Appreciation Awards were received by Edward M. Bowe, Greek Area Director for his fourth year of service to the area; Joseph Sexton, Fraternity Manager Association Director, for his dedication to the Greek Area; and Joseph F. Barboza, Greek Council Advisor, for working closely with Greek Council and executive board.

Gamma Gamma Awards, the National Greek Honor Society award for seniors and juniors who have made significant contributions to the Greek Area, were received by 15 persons.

Those who received Gamma Gamma Awards are: Dennis M. Aylward, Phi Mu Delta fraternity; Alison Berglund, Sigma Kappa sorority; Mary Connelly, Lambda Delta Phi sorority; Barbara J. Dordick, Sigma Delta Tau sorority; Barbara A. Keras, Iota Gamma Upsilon sorority; Jeffrey Lunt, Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity; Randall McIntyre, Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity; Deborah A. MIller, Alpha Chi Omega sorority; Thomas E. Miller, Theta Chi fraternity; Kathleen D. Moore, Alpha Chi Omega sorority; Gale R. Naroian, Sigma Kappa soroity; Roy D. Ostrovitz, Theta Chi fraternity; Rober J. Russell, Beta Kappa Phi fraternity; Paul A. Silver, Delta Chi fraternity; and Patricia M. Sullivan, Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Kathy Moore presents the Greek Man of the Year to Stephen A. Macaulay; the Greek Woman of the Year Award is presented to Deborah A. Miller by Robert Russell. (Staff photo by Steve Hershberg)

Gov. Dukakis files reorganization bill

BOSTON — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis yesterday filed legislation which would replace the state's Board of Higher Education with a 15-member, gubernatorial - appointed commission of 14 private citizens and the state secretary of education affairs, Paul Parks.

This is the second reorganization bill Dukakis has filed in two years. Last year's proposal met vehement opposition from UMass President Robert C. Wood, as well as state college presidents and state legislators.

Dukakis charges the present board — composed of seven private citizens and five college trustees — is "a fragmented and unnecessarily competitive system of decision-making" within the system.

Critics allege the governor's board will be merely a rubber stamp for his policy decisions on public higher education.

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor	Philip Milberg
Assistant Issue Editor	A.P.E. Armelin
Day Layout	Debbie Walters
Editorial Layout	Elizabeth "Betsy" Harkins
Sports Layout	Mike Smolens
Head Darkroom Tech	C.B. Bourne
Photo Staff	Steve Hershberg, Steve Parrott
Head Graphics Tech	Vito Rasenas
Ad Layout	Ellyn Faber
Anyone Else	No
Wiseass Remark	It's not yesterday anymore

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off-campus	$9	$15
On-campus delivery	$5	$9

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusettss, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery to start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst, Massachusetts 01003. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

Non-union employes may be in for increase

By MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

Non-union University employes stand to receive $850 in cost-of-living increases within four weeks, depending on how fast a legislative bill authorizing the increases moves through the senate, State Rep. James G. Collins said yesterday.

The bill, which was debated on the floor of the house Wednesday, provides for all employes not covered by a negotiated increase he said.

The legislature's action is the result of Governor Michael S. Dukakis' unwillingness to release a $32 million fund to state agencies so the increase can be paid. The bill directs the department of Administration and Finance to release the monies.

Collins, in a telephone interview yesterday, said those personnel who are considered part of the faculty union have not as yet been included in the proposal, although classified employes who have completed contract negotiations with the Board of Trustees, through their unions, have been protected under the bill.

Because the University trustees have refused to recognize the faculty union while the legislators do recognize it, the faculty and related academic staff included in the bargaining unit are being left out of the bill, he said.

The trustee vote to ignore the unit on the grounds that it is "too complex" to negotiate a contract for, places the impetus on the faculty group to sue for unfair labor practices. The faculty union is trying to reverse the vote before filing suit.

The trustees reaffirmed their commitment to give all University employes an increase at their Wednesday meeting in Worcester.

UMass President Robert C. Wood has said because the administration does not consider the faculty to be unionized, the salary increases should also go to faculty.

Lobbyists for the state affiliate of the Amherst and Boston faculty locals, the Massachusetts Teacher's Association (MTA) have been asking the legislators to allow faculty pay increases before contract negotiations begin.

Faculty have been without salary increases for three and a half years.

Collins said he has been working all week to get University employees included in the legislatures bill. He said he was concerned that a rift is developing between faculty and administration at UMass.

The Wednesday vote of the trustees also includes a $150 bonus for all employees — or one and one half per cent of base salary, whichever is greater. The money will be taken from within University accounts.

An agreement was reached yesterday between the Dukakis administration and higher education officials and legislative leaders on a funding mechanism for $8 million in pay hikes due state college personnel.

The agreement was reached in a one-hour meeting called by House Ways and Means Chairman John J. Finnegan, D-Boston, to resolve the issue which higher education officials contend was threatening their fiscal autonomy.

Finnegan and his aides, however, won agreement for a restriction on the new money which will bar trustees of the colleges and universities for using the money for any other purpose.

Finnegan said despite the additional appropriations, he does not expect the total cost of all state employe contracts to exceed $32 million.

The task: Put on a blindfold and try to survive. Nancy Siska and Barbi Arnold did just that yesterday as an assignment for Psychology of the Exceptional Child. (Staff photo by Steve Parrott)

Title IX panel hears bias report

By CAROLE BRENNAN
Collegian Staff

A fifteen-page prepared statement on sex discrimination in the School of Engineering was presented yesterday to the school's Title IX Committee at their scheduled open hearing.

The statement, which represented problems that are "frustrating and demoralizing" to the clerical workers within the School of Engineering, was read to a crowded classroom by Ann E. Adams, a secretary in the Civil Engineering Department.

The fifteen-page list of grievances and recommendations was signed by nineteen women clerical workers in the school. The statement said Adams, was compiled by all nineteen women.

Of the fourteen sub topics mentioned in the statement the major concern was with problems stemming from "no real back-up" by the school when "a clerical feels that her position should be upgraded."

One of the nineteen women clerical workers explained that if a woman wants to work at the University in a non-professional position she is asked to take seven tests related to clerical work. If she is hired she is usually classified as a three or four, which are the lowest levels of pay in the government classification system.

She also explained that a man wishing to be employed in a non-professional job at the University would only have to take one or two tests and enter the pay system at a higher number, seven.

Nancy Eddy, chairperson of the School of Engineering's Title IX Committee, explained to the audience, "The history of efforts to reform the civil service system within the state is long and complicated."

Beyond the classification problem, the women explained, there is a basic attitude problem prevalent in the school. The statement reads, "As a group of working women from varying backgrounds and means, we are all tired of being made to feel inferior — of being treated subserviently."

Eddy explained to the group of women bringing their grievances to the committee that the statement would be looked over more carefully and, as requested, would be responded to in full.

Students, faculty evaluate Wood

By MICHAEL SIMONS
Collegian Staff

After eight years in office UMass President Robert C. Wood will be evaluated by a committee designed by the Faculty Senate.

Five hundred students and 20 per cent of the faculty were mailed a six part questionnaire last month to help the Wood Evaluation Committee inform the Board of Trustees what UMass Amherst thinks of its president, according to Arthur Quinton of the Physics Dept. and committee chairperson.

The committee, made up of Sidney Kaplan of the English Dept., Peter Lillya of Chemistry, Rosmarie Strother of the Provost's Office, P. Sullivan of Education, and Stephen Michael of SBA, randomly selected students by using all names on every fifth page of the Student Phone Directory for the evaluation, said Quinton.

"We didn't want to come out with a public document that made anonymous statements about President Wood, so it was decided that only the trustees would have access to the evaluation. In that way people filling out the questionnaire could be candid with their responses," Lilly said.

"The committee was established by the Faculty Senate but the administration has not given its official sanction. Wood said he does not recognize the committee as part of University policy but would not put roadblocks in our way," he said.

Quinton said the evaluation is closer to teacher evaluations by students than peer evaluation forms. "It's going to be very hard to by analytical and objective with this survey because of the difficult nature of the task."

The committee wants to get the results to the 24-member Board of Trustees before the end of the semester, and hopes the questionnaire will measure the perceptions of the people at the University as to how well they think Wood is doing his job.

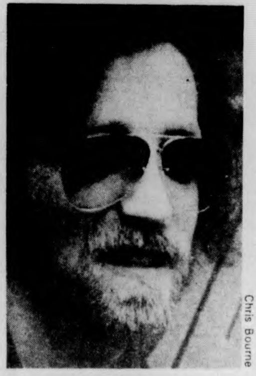
So far, 100 student and all faculty questionnaires have been returned to the committee.

Although both the Student Senate and the Graduate Student Senate were contacted about placing members on the committee, "We've never received any communication at all from either senate," Lillya said.

Questions on the survey include, "The President ... will be responsible for ... policy recommendations ... a master plan of the University ... the coordination and preparation of the annual budget request ... the allocation of the appropriated budget and other funds. Rate the performance of President Wood in providing leadership in such administrative matters. Comment: Very effective, fairly effective, not effective, no opinion."

Station elects new officers

WMUA directors won't go Top 40



Chris Bourne

Ken Irwin

By JOE MAGLITTA
Collegian Staff

In a market dominated by high-power commercialism and creeping homogenity, WMUA bravely trudges on.

One of the last strongholds of "progressive" radio in the nation, the 100-watt educational station located in Marston Hall intends to stay that way.

"We're trying to produce an alternative, to meet as many tastes as possible. The type of commercial radio pushed by many stations can be heard anywhere on either band. We're rare and pretty special. "We're needed," said newly-elected Station Manager Kenneth (Kid X) Irwin.

Irwin, 26, was elected Station Manager in the annual WMUA elections last month. He replaces Charles J. Pellet, who is leaving the station in April for a job at WHMP in Northampton. Irwin said the station will continue as "sort of free form" radio, tailored to the needs of the public.

"It's a difficult bill to fit. In this area there is a certain percentage of people who enjoy and appreciate what we do. Commercial stations look at profits and ratings. The rest is gravy. We don't want the gravy. We're not after the money and we will not go commercial," Irwin said.

Pellet said the disjointed quality of WMUA programming would be a handicap for a commercial station, but is an advantage for an educational station.

"It allows us to experiment and innovate. "Even if only ten people listened to our programming and they couldn't get it anywhere else, we are doing our job," Pellet said.

Steven (Freeport) Latorre, newly elected Program Director, said the station would strive for a format approach without being commercial.

"It is our duty to stay as free as possible while staying within the confines of a format approach", Latorre said. "All the other progressives have sold out. We don't have to compete."

He said the station was at "a low ebb", but hopes to increase the listening audience by scheduling more live music broadcasts and special one hour programs.

Latorre said a survey to determine what changes should be made in the station's programming is tentatively scheduled for the summer. He cited the need for a more "professional approach", without sacrificing any of the station's values. Irwin said listener response to the WMUA April Fool's Day was all favorable. The station's programming consisted of a spoof of "Top 40" radio.

Irwin said the amount of production work that went the April Fool's Day Programming "was tremendous". He said it would be impossible to produce needed tapes and commercial cartridges for "Top 40" radio on a daily basis.

"We're just students, you have to keep that in mind. The people here are not professionals who can go home and relax after a day's work. They go home and study. People just don't have the time," he said.

Chris Bourne

Charlie Pellett

Robert Levine, newly-elected News Director, said efforts will be made to reduce dependence on wire service news and place greater emphasis on community news.

"Right now we're the major producer of news in the valley. We are obligated to serve not only UMass, but the rest of the community as well," Levine said.

News format will be changed to a 30 minute "news magazine" beginning at 5:30 p.m. he said.

Other results from the March 17 election are: Co-News Director, Biff Price; Public Affairs Director, David J. Pacheco; Music Director, Andrew Reiter; Sports, Arthur J. Quitadamo; Business Manager, Michelle Plotkin; Chief Engineer, James Welch; Assistant Chief Engineer, Louie Cronin; Technical Trainers, John Clark, Glen Gardner.

VIEWPOINT

Viewpoint is a column designed for our readers to express their views on various subjects. In this manner, the staff of Black Affairs hopes to establish an open line of communication between our readers and us. Viewpoint does not necessarily represent the views of the staff of Black Affairs. All articles must be typed.

Response to,
The Culturally Confused Black student

As a new student at UMass, and a direct target of the article that ran in Black Affairs on March 30, 1977, I feel that I am obliged to get "involved".

Perhaps the real "culturally confused Black student" is the author, Consuelo Williams. What "culture" do you refer to, the American culture or the African culture? All Americans, regardless of color, have the same culture. It's simply the sum of all our attainments. Africans have a completely different culture. Perhaps you meant to use the word "heritage", because that's what you mean when you say "Black culture". But it's true that our African heritage has passed down part of its culture to us and it is important to remember this and to incorporate it into our lives and history books.

But what about our heritage? Are there any "Black" Americans who can claim pure blackness? Possibly a small few. The majority of us are mixtures of numerous types of people. Not only that, but most "White Americans can't even claim pure whiteness, although they aren't even aware of it, due to the absence of color barriers during the Roman Empire. So where does this leave us? I suggest that perhaps we aren't "Black" students or "White" students, but we are all "Brown" students.

And this could be where the problem lies concerning "apathy" and not becoming involved. You had a point when you said that those students "are the most educated". Yes, they're educated and sensible, and instead of using such terms as "oreo", these students are making an attempt to bridge the gap between "White" and "Black". They haven't forgotten that Dr. King died trying to end segregation, while here you are trying to resegregate. Let's get together as a student body without first looking to see what color a person is. Bigotry works in more than one way. We need programs and gatherings to discover each other in order to end the mystery and wondering. Regardless of which you believe, the story of Adam and Eve or the Theory of Evolution, we are all related and we are all brothers. There are no different races. We are all part of the human race, and we are nothing until we are all united.

Vincent Watson

Asian students unite!

To Be:
By LORNA MOORE

"To be Asian American — is to belong to the Mongoloid race, and then to have that term chosen as a label for congenital idiocy, because of an imagined resemblance....

To be Asian American — is to be told by your child's teacher that all Oriental kids are such nice students, and then to find out the teacher doesn't even know your child's name....

To be Asian American — is to be stereotyped as meek and passive and compliant, when you know that the first Asian immigrants to this country were feisty and strong and courageous and outspoken....

To be Asian American — is be called "Susie Wong" if you're young, and "Mama-San" if you're old....

To be Asian American — is to go to a movie and find portrayed on the screen a degrading Charlie Chan stereotype of all Asians, and then to come home and read that the movie is one of the best of the year....

To be Asian American — is to be called "little" when you're 5'8" tall....

To be Asian American — is to be told that advertisements reflect American society, and yet to see not one Asian face in a week of television commercials....

To be Asian American — is to have other insist that you all look alike and then to look in the mirror and know you bear no resemblance to S. I. Hayakawa, or Philip Ahn, or....

To be Asian American — is to buy foods like "Udon" and "Kimchee" at the supermarket and then have the clerk wrinkle up her nose and say, "What's that!"....

To be Asian American — is to be asked, "What country are you from?" when you were born in Chicago and raised in San Jose....

To be Asian American — is to be told that America welcomes all people as immigrants when you know that the Statue of Liberty is on the East Coast....

To be Asian American — is to see prominent persons reprimanded for their ethnic slurs against other minority groups but never to hear one protest against "Chinaman" and "Confucius Say" jokes....

To be Asian American — is to have Pearl Buck and Ruth Benedict interpret your heritage to millions of people when they could never have known as much as your great-grandfather.

To be Asian American — is to have one paragraph in a history textbook, a box marked "Other" on a form to be filled out, a Chinatown in every city, a mother who speaks no English, and a son who will never get to be President of the United States....

To be Asian American — is to be strong and free and proud and angry and determined, in spite of, and because of, all these things....

To be Asian American — is to never forget, and to keep on fighting."

Lorna Moon is a second-generation Korean American born in Maui, Hawaii. She currently teaches Honors English at Kearny High School and ESL classes for new citizens in San Diego, California. "TO BE" is used by permission.

Those were some examples of what it is to be Asian American. It was taken from the PAC MEMO, a newsletter published by the Pacific-Asian Coalition; an human services organization funded by the National Institute of Mental Health.

The time has come for Asians to break out of the stereotypes imposed on us. We are not docile, complacent, obedient, and self-sufficient. We are in the process of defining our identity. No longer can we stand witness to the oppression of the Asians in America. We must fight an struggle to achieve an equal part in the society.

Before we can fight oppression, we must be aware. Awareness can only come about through knowledge. The Asian American Student Association is holding a conference entitled, "Aspiring to Liberate", on April 8th and 9th.

TO SISTERS WHO HAVE FELT THE STRING OF SEXISM

TO THOSE WHO HAVE FELT THE RAGE FROM RACISM

AND TO ALL PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN OPPRESSED BY SOCIETY COME, JOIN US IN OUR STRUGGLE, ENRICH YOURSELVES AND US WITH YOUR PRESENCE

ATTEND THE CONFERENCE ASPIRE TO LIBERATE

—John S. Yong

British 'chicken' on racial issues says Young

NEW YORK (UPI) — Andrew Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, said Thursday British Ambassador Ivor Richard had given him a "good reprimand" for his statement in a British television interview that Britain was "a little chicken" on racial matters.

"I got a good reprimand from my colleague Ambassador Richard, which I willingly accepted because it was very unfair to single his country out that way, and while it was not my intention, that was what came out on the air," Young said.

"I think it would be in Britain's self-interest to have a little more backbone in facing up to race problems at home and abroad," the outspoken Young said in the BBC interview. He also said he sometimes almost thought that Britain had invented racism and, if it didn't, the British "institutionalized it certainly more than anyone else in the history of the earth."

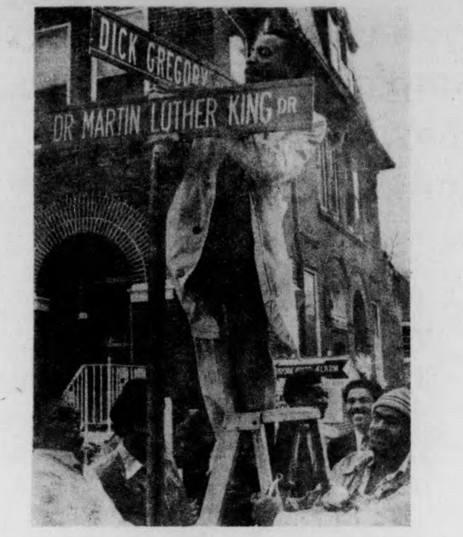
Richard issued a statement Thursday night through a spokesman:

"After I heard reports about Ambassador Young's BBC interview I spoke with him on the telephone," Richard said. "We had a frank but friendly exchange and he made clear that he had not intended what he said to come out the way it did.

"Since then I have received a letter of apology from Ambassador Young. I am happy to regard the matter as closed."

Asked about the report he had reprimanded Young, Richard said, "I would not have used the word 'reprimand'.

"I see a lot of Young and enjoy working with him. I would not dream of doing anything so majestorial as trying to reprimand him. We did have a frank discussion as between two close colleagues and friends."



DICK GREGORY
DR MARTIN LUTHER KING DR

ST. LOUIS: Dick Gregory helps rename a St. Louis street, Dick Gregory Place this past Monday. The comedian and activist said, "I've got 10 kids. It's the first thing named after me that doesn't eat." Gregory, who has fasted, jogged and been jailed on behalf of civil rights, said, "Who knew that one day the President of the United States would get in trouble because he espoused human rights." Gregory is a native St. Louisan who lived on Wagner Place which was renamed for him. (UPI Photo)

Asked about the reported remarks by Young, some of whose declared views of Africa have caused diplomatic stirs in recent months, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said that Ambassador Young "was clearly expressing his personal views."

"The comments came in the course of a very wide-ranging and extremely frank discussion on a man's personal view," Carter added.

Not all black students apathetic

By MARY E. CUSTARD
Black Affairs Staff

COMMENTARY

Much has been said and written about those brothers and sisters who do not participate in a certain march or show up at a rally.

Well I'm speaking up for those people, and for myself. I am my first priority, and between classes, working, and other commitments, it is sometimes impossible for me to take part in these very important activities, but that does not mean that I am apathetic or that I have forgotten the issues.

We all seem to quick to condemn those of us who are not seen in the crowd. There are many ways to show support, we do not always have to be that familiar face in the crowd.

I am not offering excuses for those of you who really do not care or are just too damn lazy to get up off of your behinds. I am just tired of being judged along with you, I am an individual (so we all are)!

I do want to let everyone know that there are those of us who are concerned, even though many times we are not seen.... our spirits shall be felt and our voices heard.

BLACK AFFAIRS
NEEDS
WRITERS AND POETS·
All interested students should contact
Nasser Ega
or Angela Thomas
at the Collegian
(545-3500)

THURS. APRIL 7
MOUNTAIN LIFE
FRI & SAT ARIL 8 & 9
ANDY MAY AND
THE TEXAS TABBY
CRABBE BAND
SUN . APRIL 10
JONI CORBIN
BAHAR'S
VISIT OUR GAME ROOM
7 Old South St. • Northampton
ACROSS FROM Peter Pan Bus Terminal

Black Affairs

The African Woman is coming!

During the week of April 19-25, the Third World Women's Center will be presenting a series of programs in honor of "The Afrikan Woman". They will begin Tuesday night with a poetry reading at the opening of an art show displaying works by Black women in the area. On Wednesday night, Dr. Frances Welsing, a Black psychiatrist, will speak on "The Conspiracy to Make Blacks Feel Inferior". Earlier in the afternoon, she will hold a workshop for Black men and women on campus on "Strengthening the Relationship Between Black Men and Women".

On Thursday, there will be a poetry reading held by local poets. Friday night, Melba Moore will entertain us with her singing. Moving on to Saturday, you will be fortunate to view an original play written by Diane Hale and performed by UMass sisters entitled, "Distant Voices". Don't miss it! But that isn't all! On Sunday, you will experience a completely unique fashion show entitled "360 degrees of Fashion". This will feature fashions sewn by local seamstresses in a context of Black history. Bet you've never seen anything like it! While watching this show, you will be eating from a buffet prepared by — none other than you and the rest of the community. Yes, there will be a real multi-cultural community pot-luck dinner held on this day. Last, but not least, Vinnie Burrows will give a presentation on Black history on Monday night.

Please plan to join in on the activities. Look for further details about times and locations of these events.

Malcolm-X Center Notices

Fall Course Proposals

The Malcolm-X Center is accepting 3-credit course proposals, for the fall semester. We are seeking courses that deal with art, history, law, science and education. Anyone interested in teaching a course, must submit a course proposal and resume to the center, as soon as possible. The center is located in the lower level of Berkshire Dining Commons. For more information, call 545-2819.

STAFF

Anyone interested in working for the Malcolm-X center in the fall, can pick up applications there.

Sylvan Cultural Society

The Sylvan Cultural Society opens its lounge in 01 Cashin for studying purposes. Study hours are Mon, Tue, Wed and Fri. from 7 to 11 p.m. Sat and Sun from 12 to 6 p.m.

The society also has an organization development workshop every Thursday night from 7-9 p.m.

We are open to the public — come on by and check us out.

Surviving defendant of 'Scottsboro Boys' to sue

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Clarence Norris, the only surviving defendant in the "Scottsboro Boys" rape trial of the 1930s, will sue the state of Alabama for damages, his lawyer said Thursday.

Donald Watkins said a law suit was the "only option" left to Norris, now a New York City warehouseman, after a legislative committee killed a bill giving him $10,000.

Norris was one of nine black youths who were taken off a train near Scottsboro in north Alabama in 1931 and charged with raping two white women. His death sentence was commuted and he served 15 years in prison before being paroled.

He jumped parole in 1946, and did not return to Alabama until last year, when he was pardoned. The state pardon and paroles board said he was innocent of the charges.

Watkins said no decisions had been made on the amount of damages to be sought.

Graduating seniors

Editor's Note — Black Affairs apologies for not continuing the series on Third World graduating students because of 'break-down' of communication between Black Affairs and the concerned students. We hope with the cooperation of the graduating students we will be able to continue this series.

When Dorothy Eileen Seymour, affectionately known as 'Dotti', graduates at the end of this semester, folks will miss that flashing smile that hypnotizes many-a-person and that warm nature that makes you feel you've always known her.

Dotti, from Hartford, Conn., came to UMass in the fall of 1973 where she enrolled in the School of Education. "I love children" she says and this is shown in the work she is and was involved in. In her senior year in high school she was a volunteer at Waverly Elementary School in Hartford for kindergarten and first grade kids. In Sept-Dec 1976, she taught second and third graders at Vine Street School, Hartford and in the summer of '76 she was a Unit Leader for girls aged 8-15 at Timbertrails Girl Scout Camp in Tolland, Mass.

At UMass, Dotti has done her share of activities. During her sophomore year she was a C.C.E.B.S. Board member, in the fall of 1974 she was a Resident Asst. at Moore House and a year later in the same capacity at Melville. To cap it all, Dotti made the Dean's List in 1974-75.

We, the staff of Black Affairs, wish her the best of luck in her future.

Jobs!

Upward Bound Project will be hiring for the summer program.

Counselors — work study eligible
Teachers — minimum of BA or BS

Applications can be picked up in the Upward Bound office, Room 205 New Africa House. Applications and resumes due by April 20, 1977. We are an equal opportunity employer.

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
only area showing
NOW, ends Tuesday!
at 7:00 & 9:00

a film by
françois truffaut
small change
AT THE GATES
OF SMITH COLLEGE

HOUSING EXEMPTIONS

Fall 1977 Housing Exemption Applications are due no later than April 8, 1977. Applications will not be accepted after this date. Please submit all applications to the housing office, 235 whitmore. Thank you.

FOR THE YOUNG AND CONTEMPORARY MAN
BEAU BRITCHES FASHION CLASSICS

SPECIAL PURCHASE
YOUNG MEN'S VESTED SPRING SUITS
$99.99 Reg. $130
This Season's Vested Suits with Updated Styling Carefully
Tailored in 100% Textured Polyester.
Regular and Long Sizes.
Black, Mint, Light Blue, Peach and Beige.
OTHER SUITS $110 to $180
Ask About Beau Britches
Clothes Club.
BEAU Britches
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley

Carter's energy policy

More home insulation is necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Up to two-thirds of all American homes may have to be insulated or have more insulation added under President Carter's energy conservation program, Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary indicated yesterday.

O'Leary told a Senate hearing that one-third of all existing U.S. homes have no insulation and another third are badly insulated.

He said the President's program would contain a "blend of incentives and disincentives" to make sure that all homes are energy-efficient. O'Leary said he is hopeful this can be accomplished within 10 years.

Asked later by a reporter whether this means that two-thirds of all homeowners would be required to add insulation, O'Leary said that was essentially correct. He said a crash nationwide program to get all homes and buildings properly insulated is needed "given the seriousness of the situation."

O'Leary's comments came as details of the administration's overall energy package began to unfold. President Carter announced the first section by saying he is deferring U.S. development of nuclear breeder reactors and plutonium reprocessing programs.

White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger reportedly was briefing key members of Congress that the remainder of the President's program, to be unveilled April 20, would include continued price controls on natural gas and probably a stiff tax on fuel-inefficient automobiles.

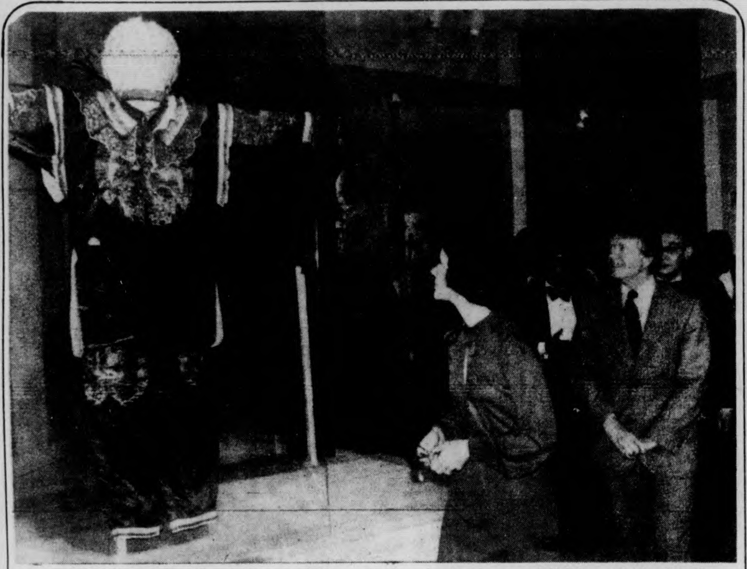
O'Leary declined to say how the administration planned to accomplish the mandatory home insulation program.

One possibility mentioned frequently is requiring utilities to install the insulation and then bill consumers — either directly or indirectly through surcharges to all customers.

There might also be tax credits proposed for homeowners willing to do the job themselves, some sources have suggested.

O'Leary also indicated that the April 20 program would include energy-efficiency standards for new homes. "Most houses in this country being built today are not energy-efficient," O'Leary told the Senate Select Committee on Aging.

O'Leary said an administration request for $465 million for fiscal 1978 would fund a program to winterize 460,000 homes occupied by low-income, elderly and handicapped people.



WASHINGTON: President and Mrs. Carter look at an exhibition of No theater costumes from the Japanese collection of Tokugawa family of Nagoya, Japan at the National Gallery of Art. The collection of robes, masks and accessories are on display for the first time in the U.S. No, the classical theater of Japan, combines the dance, mime, chant, music and costume. At right is Yoshinobu Tokugawa, lender of the exhibition. (UPI)

Carter appoints new ambassadors

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's first major ambassadorial appointments are going to the governor of Wisconsin, former Sen. Mike Mansfield, two educators, some career Foreign Service officers and two Georgians.

Carter announced yesterday that he had picked Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey to be the U.S. envoy to Mexico, Yale University President Kingman Brewster as the ambassador to the United Kingdom and former Princeton President Robert F. Goheen to be ambassador to India.

Mansfield, a former senator from Montana, was named ambassador to Japan.

The 10 nominees named yesterday were the first appointments based on the recommendations of Carter's new advisory board on ambassadorial appointments.

The others chosen were: Philip H. Alston Jr., an Atlanta lawyer, ambassador to Australia; Anne Cox Chambers, chairman of the Atlanta Newspapers, ambassador to Belgium; Wilbert J. LeMelle, a Ford Foundation executive, ambassador to Kenya and the Seychelles; Samuel W. Lewis, a former assistant secretary of state, ambassador to Israel; William H. Sullivan, now U.S. ambassador to the Philippines, ambassador to Iran, and George S. Vest, a State Department official, ambassador to Pakistan.

Mansfield, who was the Senate's Democratic leader from 1961 until he retired at the end of last year, was one of the Senate's Asian experts.

He has visited china and last month traveled to Vietnam with the commission seeking information about missing U.S. personnel there.

Mrs. Chambers, 57, is also director of Cox Broadcasting Corp. Her Atlanta home is across the street from the mansion where Carter lived when he was governor of Georgia.

Alston, 65, has been a lawyer in Atlanta since 1935.

Brewster, 57, has been president of Yale since 1963. Before that he was a law professor.

Goheen, 57, retired from Princeton in 1972. He was born in India of American parents and has been a consultant to the Ford Foundation on higher education matters in India since 1962. He is currently president of the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation in New York.

SATURDAY & SUNDAY ONLY Closed Friday
DEERFIELD DRIVE IN THEATER
Route 5&10
South Deerfield Mas
Tel 665 8746
April 9&10
3HOUSES OF HELL
LAST HOUSE ON THE LEFT
HOUSE THAT VANISHED
DON'T LOOK IN THE BASEMENT

Plutonium abandoned as U.S. energy source

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter abandoned plutonium as a U.S. energy source yesterday saying nuclear fuel benefits offered by the deadly material are far outweighed by the danger that it might cause the spread of atomic weapons.

Carter, reversing the decisions of previous presidents, suspended commercial development of the fast breeder nuclear reactor and said that the United States will not extract plutonium from spent nuclear fuel.

Both the breeder and fuel reprocessing were once considered vital by U.S. energy planners.

Carter said he found plutonium as a source of energy poses unacceptable risks because it can be easily turned into nuclear weapons.

He also urged other advanced nuclear nations to join the United States in halting export of plutonium production facilities to non-nuclear nations.

In return for the restraint he seeks, Carter said, the United States will try to become the enriched uranium fuel supplier for the world with safeguards to keep peaceful atomic energy from leading to nuclear weapons proliferation.

The President's decision cast serious doubts over the future of a $2 billion federal breeder reactor project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and a private atomic fuel recycling plant at Barnwell, S.C.

Environmentalists claimed it did not go far enough whiel the utility industry and the nuclear industry said Carter's plans would create energy problems in the future.

Plutonium is one of the deadliest poisons known to man. It is produced as a byproduct of the recycling of spent uranium fuel by the so-called "breeder" reactors. It is a fine nuclear reactor fuel and the nuclear power industry had called it vital to stretch uranium reactor fuel supplies.

Government experts say it also can be easily fashioned into bombs by non-nuclear nations or by terrorists who might obtain it through theft.

Carter said, "We have concluded that the serious consequences of proliferation and direct implications for peace and security — as well as strong scientific and economic evidence — require a major change in U.S. domestic nuclear energy policies and ... a concerted effort among all nations to find better answers to the problems and risks accompanying the increased use of nuclear power."

"The U.S. is deeply concerned about the consequences for all nations of a further spread of nuclear weapons or explosive capabilities," Carter said.

"We believe that these risks would be vastly increased by the further spread of sensitive technologies which entail direct access to plutonium, highly enriched uranium or other weapons-usable material."

The Edison Electric Institute and the Atomic Industrial Forum said failure to go ahead with reprocessing and commercial development of the breeder spell trouble for the future U.S. energy supply.

The Bagel Deli
"Everything on a bagel"
BAGELS & OTHER
BAKED GOODS BAKED
DAILY ON THE PREMISES
• N.Y. STYLE DELI
• SMOKED FISH
• CHEESE CAKE
• EGG CREAM
• DAIRY PRODUCTS
OPEN SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
HOURS 7 A.M. - 2 A.M. FRI. & SAT.
7 A.M. - 9 P.M. SUN. - THURS.
28 Pleasant St. Northampton

GREAT NEWS
FOR
COOKIE MONSTERS
AT MUNCHYS
CUT ALONG DOTTED LINE
10¢ 10¢ OFF 10¢
CHIPS AHOY
CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES
AT ALL MUNCHYS
10¢ APRIL 5-10 10¢

DiCarlo, MacKenzie trial

Jury members allowed access to newspapers, TV

BOSTON (UPI) — An alternate juror in the extortion trial of Sens. Joseph J.C. DiCarlo, D-Revere, and Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington, says members of the jury were allowed to read newspapers and watch television while sequestered during the trial.

In an interview with the Woburn Daily Times this week, Cathy McHardy, who sat through the entire trial and was excused only before the final deliberations, said members of the jury had free access to newspapers and television.

"I knew there were newspapers in the jury room. I'd come in the morning and there'd be newspapers there. I don't know if anyone was reading about the trial ... The papers weren't clipped or anything. I remember walking in and seeing people read them," she said.

Similar claims have been made by another alternate juror, Donald Tilton of Lynnfield.

"I'm pretty sure that everybody — all the jury — at least watched television news reports on the trial once in a while, if only to see the drawings of themselves," she said.

DiCarlo and MacKenzie last month were convicted of extorting $40,000 from a New York construction consulting firm which had a lucrative contract for work at the University of Massachusetts-Boston campus.

Both men were sentenced to one year in prison. MacKenzie resigned from the Senate and DiCarlo was expelled. Both men plan to appeal the verdicts and DiCarlo has vowed to seek reelection in a special election to fill the vacancy due to his expulsion.

"You know what Judge Skinner told us," she said, "NOT TO WATCH TV or read newspapers or talk about the case among ourselves or with friends or family. But we'd go upstairs to the jury room at every coffee break and talk about the trial. You can't sit there for five weeks and not say anything. We'd discuss what had gone on — our feelings about what had just happened," she said.

McHardy said she remembered one example when a juror expressed an opinion on the two senators' degree of involvement.

"At some point, somebody said that they thought MacKenzie was more into it than DiCarlo. I mean MacKenzie's name was brought out in the trial a lot more. Somebody said they thought DiCarlo was using MacKenzie," she said.

MacKenzie told the newspaper he was "elated" with Ms. McHardy's statements.

"I've been praying ever since we walked out of there after hearing the verdict that we would get a new trial," MacKenzie said.

Convictions hurt MBM's business

BOSTON (UPI) — McKee-Berger-Mansueto Inc. has lost a $13 million San Francisco contract because of a "cloud" hanging over the firm since its officials provided evidence leading to the extortion convictions of two Massachusetts lawmakers, MBM's president said yesterday.

"It's devastating. No, it's quite a blow," MBM President Gerald McKee Jr. said in a telephone interview from MBM's New York headquarters. "It would have been the biggest job this company ever had."

McKee said "on the basis of the cloud which the Boston case had placed over us we were asked to withdraw" last Friday by San Francisco's chief administrator Roger Boas as one of four firms in a joint venture to oversee construction of a $1.5 billion sewer construction project.

McKee was the government's leadoff and strongest witness in the five-week Boston trial that ended in late February with the convictions of Sens. Joseph J. C. DiCarlo, D-Revere, and Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington. Both were fined $5,000 and sentenced to a year in prison for extorting $40,000 from MBM in 1971 and 1972.

McKee said Thursday former MBM employe William Harding was "mistaken" when he testified he delivered hundreds of political payoffs around the country as one of his duties for the construction management firm.

"That is certainly untrue that he did that under my direction," he added.

McKee reiterated his trial testimony that the DiCarlo-MacKenzie shakedown and $20,000 in payoffs allegedly made to another nonelected public official in connection with its contract to oversee construction at the University of Massachusetts-Boston campus were the only ones of their kind ever made by MBM.

"Boas said we need not have paid and we should have resisted," McKee said. "He said he would not sign any contract that involved us."

KARLSRUHE, W. GERMANY: A uniformed policeman stands guard over the blanket-covered bodies of West German Federal Prosecutor General Siegfried Buback (background) and his driver-bodyguard Wolfgang Goebel, 29 (foreground). (UPI)

Machine-gun shooting

Assassins strike; kill prosecutor

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP) — Assassins riding a motorcycle pulled alongside a limousine carrying West Germany's chief prosecutor yesterday and sprayed it with machine gun fire, killing him and his driver and critically wounding another official.

The assassins then roared off into the morning traffic and vanished.

The prosecutor, Siegfried 57, had convicted various West German terrorists, including members of the Baader-Meinhof anarchist gang accused in two 1972 bombings that killed four American servicemen.

The motorcycle, carrying two people, pulled up to Buback's Mercedes-Benz at a stoplight. A passenger on the rear of the powerful bike fired at least 13 bullets into the car from a submachine gun.

Besides the two dead, a motor pool official in the back seat was critically wounded.

The West German news agency DPA said it received calls from a man claiming the shootings were the work of the Ulrike Meinhof Action Committee. He warned more violence would follow.

The West German government announced an $85,000 reward for the arrest of the assassins. One person was taken into custody about five hours after the 9:10 a.m. shooting, but officials said it was not known if the prisoner was a "genuine suspect." The motorcycle was later found abandoned.

Buback had warned repeatedly this year that his investigators expected a new round of terrorist attacks. He frequently took different routes to work and used different cars, officials said.

Buback was considered endangered and was entitled to a round-the-clock bodyguard and protection of his house, officials said. But he used the bodyguard only on special occasions and was without protection yesterday when killed on the way to work, they said.

Police and witnesses said the motorcyclists had waited at a service station near the shooting site for half an hour. The motorcycle pulled up from behind Buback's Mercedes when it stopped at a traffic light near the Constitutional Court. The person on the rear of the motorcycle opened fire from the right, where Buback was sitting, as the light turned green.

The driver of a car in the left lane told police the motorcycle passenger firing the shots might have been a woman.

Police found 13 cartridge casings at the site. The motorcycle, which had been stolen, was found several hours later near the Karlsruhe-Frankfurt autobahn, officials said.

Three surviving members of the Baader-Meinhof gang, once West Germany's largest leftist anarchist organization, are on trial in Stuttgart in connection with the 1972 bombings.

Buback was the official who drew up the 354-page document of charges for the 1975 trial of Andreas Baader, Ulrike Meinhof, Gudrun Ensslin, Holger Meins and Jan-Carl Raspe. Miss Meinhof was found hanged in her cell last May, and Meins died in a hunger strike before the trial.

Buback had held a news conference Monday to announce the issuing of warrants against two alleged terrorists extradited from Sweden to West Germany.

Fashionable Imported Clothing for Women
SAVE 30% to 70%
Dresses
Pants
Skirts
Blouses
SPECIAL PURCHASE
Slightly Irregular
Women's Clothing at
Ridiculously Low Prices
Faces of Earth
Next to Amherst Post Office. Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

the copper lantern
549-5403
Good Food
Drink
ATMOSPHERE YOU'LL ALL ENJOY
EASTER SUNDAY
HAPPY HOUR 12 NOON-7 PM
ROAST LAMB DINNER $3.50
BAKED HAM DINNER $3.50
DAILY LUNCHEON AND DINNER SPECIALS
HAPPY HOUR
4-7pm MON.-SUN.
1 Pray St
Amherst
Next to Hampshire Bank

Palestinians claim Christian stronghold

SIDON, London (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas claimed capture of a Christian stronghold near the Israeli border yesterday and said they were drawing fire from Israeli tanks and artillery across the border.

Israel also sent reconnaissance planes over the battle area, they said.

At the same time Lebanon's rightist Christian leaders sent an urgent appeal to Arab states to intervene against the advancing leftist Palestinian forces in southern Lebanon to prevent the battle there from rekindling the country's civil war.

They urged Arab peace-keepers to save the "life of a sisterly nation."

In Israel the military command declined to comment directly on reports of tank movements and overflights and would only say there was no unusual activity in the region. Israel is known to be worried that a victory in southern Lebanon by the Palestinians would once again allow them to conduct raids and harass the Israeli border area.

Lebanese officials did not confirm the report of increased fire support from Israel, but provincial government sources said at least 12 Israeli planes were seen making low altitude flights over southern Lebanon. The planes did not fire their guns, the sources said.

Palestinian commandos and their leftist Lebanese allies took over the town of Khiam, four miles north of the Israeli border, in an early morning attack, a Palestinian communique said. It added that dozens of rightist defenders were killed or wounded.

Heavy fighting was reported around the Christian town of Marjayoun following the announced capture of Khiam to the south.

Christian military spokesmen were silent on the latest Palestinian drive, but a public appeal from the four major Christian leaders clearly indicated they are worried about the gains of the Palestinian-led leftist alliance.

The Christian patriarchs asked Arab peacekeepers to curb the Palestinian presence in Lebanon and charged the guerrillas have violated the 1969 Cairo agreement regulating the armed Palestinian presence in Lebanon.

MOSCOW: Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev meets with Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasir Arafat. Arafat is believed to be probing Brezhnev's new Middle East peace proposal which calls for a staged Israeli withdrawal over a period of months from territories occupied in the 1967 war. (UPI)

Prisoners' voting rights argued

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts prison inmates ought to be allowed to vote in the towns where they are incarcerated, a prisoners' rights lawyer argued yesterday before the state Supreme Judicial Court.

Several citizens in Concord and Norfolk, where the state's three largest prisons — Concord, Norfolk and Walpole — are located, want the prisoners to vote by absentee ballot in their hometowns.

If the court upholds the prisoners' arguments, the decision could alter the political character of the two towns.

The voting rights question is the most serious test of Massachusetts election laws since the advent of the 18-year-old vote and court tests of the residency of college students. As a result of those court cases, communities were ordered not to exclude college students solely because their parents lived somewhere else.

"The ability to choose domicile is implicit and fundamental to the right to vote," said attorney Ann Hoffman, arguing the case for the National Prisoners Rights Association.

AMHERST COLLEGE COPELAND COLLOQUIUM
presents
THE CARAVAN THEATRE'S highly acclaimed production of FAMILY
Free to ticketholders
Tickets available in Johnson Chapel 18 on
Fri., Apr.8 12:30-2:30 p.m.
Tues.& Wed., Apr.12&13
9:30 to 11:30a.m.
April 17 8:30 p.m.
Kirby Theater

Appearing
Thurs.-Sun.
fat
Friday Only
fat and zonkaraz
At
The
rusty nail
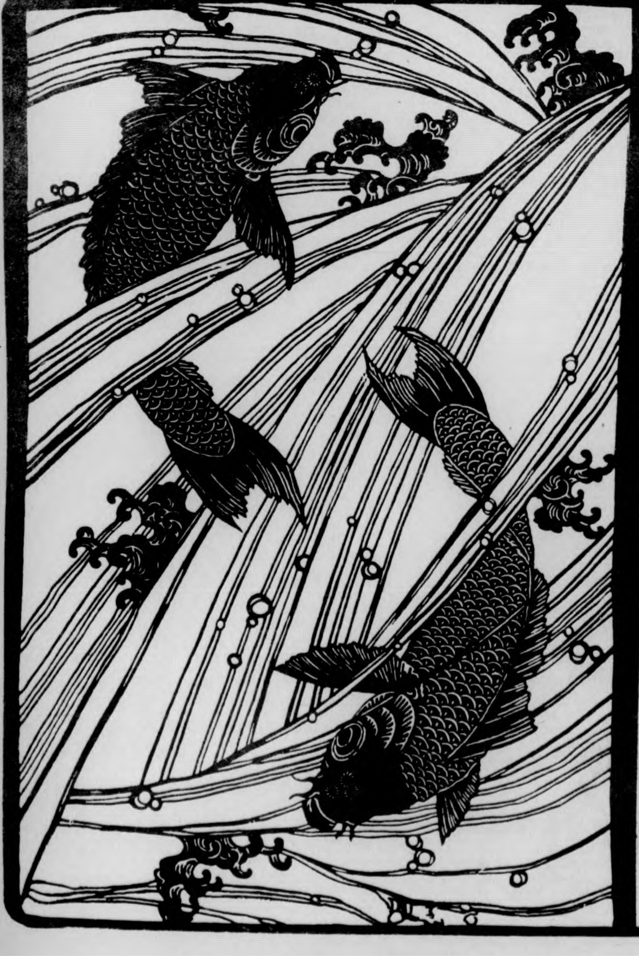
Inn
Rte 47, Sunderland
665 4937



"ASPIRING TO LIBERATE"
"The Engagement of
Personal Action to Collective Struggle"
An Asian American Conference
April 8 & 9 . 1977
Sponsored by the Asian American
Student Association at UMass

REGISTRATION: April 8, 1977, 4:00–6:00 p.m. Campus Center, (lower level) Arcon Desk.

Registration fee: Student-$1.00; with Brunch-$3.00 | Other-$2.00

CONFERENCE PROGRAM

Friday, April 8, 1977
4:00-6:00 p.m.	Registration
6:00-6:30 p.m.	Opening Remarks
6:30-7:30 p.m.	Speaker I - Prof. Bob Suzuki
7:30-9:30 p.m.	Film - "From Spikes to Spindles"
9:30-12:00 p.m.	Coffee House - "Warriors of the Rainbow" - Noboku (JoAnne) Miyamoto
Saturday, April 9, 1977
9:30- 11:00 a.m.	Brunch
11:00-12:00 p.m.	Speaker II - Warren Furutani
12:00- 1:30 p.m.	Workshop I
1:30- 2:30 p.m.	Film/Break "Pieces of A Dream"
2:30- 4:30 p.m.	Workshop II
4:30- 5:15 p.m.	Workshop Summary
5:15- 6:30 p.m.	Speaker III - Carmen Chow +Closing Remarks
9:00- 2:00 p.m.	Disco

Children's sleepwear banned; with cancer-causing substance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government yesterday halted production and sales of children's sleepwear treated with a chemical linked to cancer, but declined to recall millions of treated garments already sold.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission voted 5 to 0 to ban further production of children's garments treated with the flame-retardant Tris and to forbid sale of the 20 million Tris-treated garments in warehouses or on store shelves.

But by a 3-2 vote, the commission refused to recall the 120 million children's Tris-treated garments already sold. However, customers may return treated garments to the place of purchase for a refund if the clothing has never been washed. Washing reduces the level of Tris.

The two dissenters on the recall question said the decision would cause widespread confusion by parents.

Commissioner Thaddeus Garrett predicted the commission "will have to answer to the hysteria and emotion and confusion that will result from banning Tris without recalling of the garments."

Commission Chairman S. John Byington, who voted against the recall, said, "I don't believe that those garments presently in use that have already been washed present an unacceptable risk."

Manufacturers of children's polyester sleepwear have relied mainly on Tris to meet federal flamability standards. Tris is not used in cotton and nylon garments.

Another chemical, which apparently is not harmful, is available for meeting the standards. Officials say some fabrics need no treatment.

The commission acted after National Cancer Institute tests showed Tris to be a strong carcinogen, or cancer-causing agent, in test animals.

It is believed that Tris can be absorbed from the garments through the skin and that children may get additional amounts of the substance in their bodies by sucking their clothes.

"There is general agreement among scientists in the field that when a substance is a carcinogen in animals that it probably causes cancer in humans," Commissioner Barbara H. Franklin said.

But she, Byington and Lawrence M. Kushner opposed a recall because, they said, 95 per cent of the Tris is eliminated by three washings.

Garrett and R. David Pittle contended there is no accurate information on how much Tris can be washed out. "I would go to the very limit in extracting these garments from the public," Garrett said.

The commission was first warned about a possible cancer hazard in October 1975 but allowed large-scale production of Tris to continue with no warnings on packages while it assessed more test data.

Answering criticisms that the commission did not move fast enough, Byington said, "This commission must move on the basis of solid, public information that is sustainable" in the courts.

LEVI'S® Levi's® for feet

End it all

shoes-sandals sneaks-boots

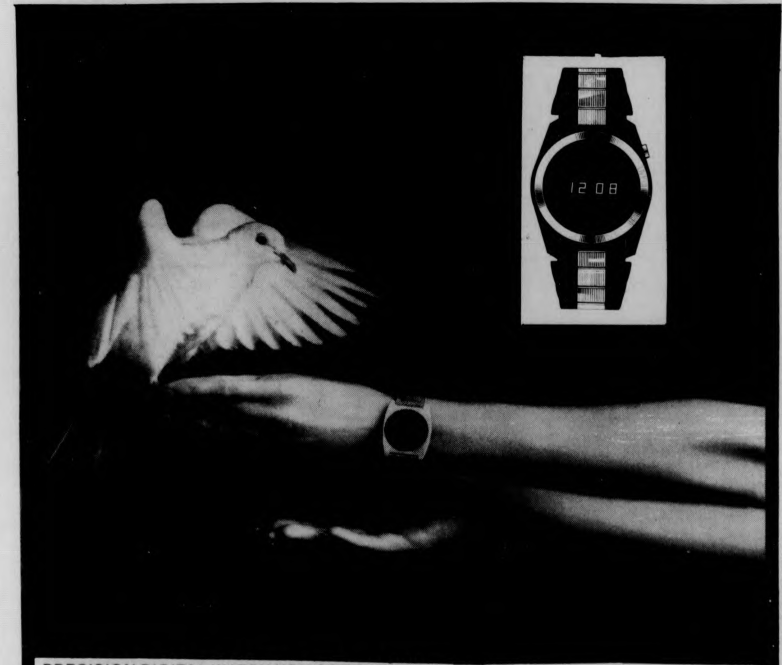
Bolles Shoes
NOW AT 8 MAIN ST·
AMHERST

We come now to the end of your jeans . . . and where Levi's for Feet begin. Like denim, Levi's waxhide leather goes soft with wear. The crepe sole cushions yours. Put on a pair. Levi's for Feet. The end.

EUROPE
less than 1/2 economy fare
Campus Travel Center
Campus Center, 3rd level
U. of Mass., 545-0500
60 day advance payment required



PRECISION DIGITAL WATCH YOU CAN AFFORD.

TI's fine microelectronic digital watches are built with the same technological knowhow and quality craftsmanship that helped make Texas Instruments America's Number One manufacturer of electronic calculators. You'll have superior electronics in a personal timepiece designed to provide years of dependable service and backed by the reputation of a company respected worldwide.

T.I. digital watches from $17.29
The University Store Campus Center UMass

NEWS IN BRIEF

Midwives able to deliver

BOSTON [AP] — A bill which would allow registered nurse midwives to deliver babies won initial approval in the Massachusetts Senate.

The state is one of only three in the nation which prohibits midwives from doing deliveries. Although a number of nurse midwives do practice in Massachusetts their services are limited to care before and after the birth of a child.

Conn. guards back to work

HARTFORD, Conn. [UPI] — Connecticut's prison guards returned to work yesterday and their leaders huddled with state officials under a judge's watchful eye in hopes of reaching a quick contract settlement.

The 1,250 corrections workers ended their three-day strike and state police were withdrawn from the prisons they had helped man.

Striking teachers arrested

[UPI] — Police arrested 128 striking teachers at four Kansas City, Mo., high schools yesterday for blocking driveways, shouting obscenities, throwing eggs and interfering with officers.

Some of the teachers returned in the afternoon and were arrested again.

In Milwaukee teachers struck the 110,000-pupil public school system one day before the today start of Easter vacation but no incidents were reported.

'Nudie' purchases down

GROTON, Conn. [UPI] — When it comes to nudie magazines, the Navy is discovering out of sight may not mean out of mind but it sure means fewer purchases.

Sales of adult magazines at the U.S. Naval Submarine Base declined 75 per cent in the past three weeks since the start of a new policy that keeps them off the display racks and behind the counters.

Tentative contract negotiated

BOSTON [UPI] — The Massachusetts State College Board of Trustees and faculty members at four state colleges yesterday reached tentative agreement on a new contract, averting a threatened strike, the Massachusetts Teachers Association said.

Agreement on the tentative, 18-month pact was reached after 26 hours of around-the-clock negotiations between the trustees and representatives MTA affiliate faculty unions at Framingham State, Fitchburg State, North Adams State and Salem State Colleges.

Oil company explodes

BEVERLY, Mass. [AP] — Explosions yesterday rocked an oil salvage company and forced the evacuation of nearby homes while firefighters battled a smoky, three-alarm blaze here, police said.

No casualties were reported. "There were explosions and a lot of smoke," reported Beverly police officer William Walsh. "We evacuated houses in the back of the area."

He said the fire appeared concentrated in the garage area of Chemical Applications Co.

Island reps to see Dukakis

BOSTON [AP] — Armed with an overwhelming vote favoring secession, Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard state representatives plan to meet Gov. Michael S. Dukakis Tuesday to find out what he is going to do to keep the resort islands in the commonwealth.

"He's the only one who has treated this like a joke," Terrence McCarthy, I-Martha's Vineyard, said Thursday, referring to overtures the islands have had from four other New England governors to join their states.

Woman denied posse membership

SPOKANE, Wash. [UPI] — An expert woman horseman has been denied membership in the all-male Spokane County Sheriff's Posse.

And Mrs. Mary Ruth Standberg says she's going to fight the action with action of her own.

"I believe this action represents a blatant act of discrimination on the basis of sex. I'm not going to take it. I've just begun to fight."

Mrs. Standberg said she's going to take the matter to the American Civil Liberties Union, the State Discrimination Board and the Spokane Chapter of the National Organization of Women.

The posse was formed in the 1950's largely as a ceremonial group, performing such functions as patroling during parades and attending funerals.

Mrs. Standberg's husband is a member of the posse.

THE COLLEGIAN ☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆
GRAPHICS
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆ DEPARTMENT

HAS 4 WORKSTUDY
POSITIONS AVAILABLE

☆☆ 2 NIGHT MANAGERS
☆ 1 TECHNICIAN
☆ 1 LIASON

STOP BY THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE
BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 9⁰⁰ A.M. AND 6⁰⁰ P.M.

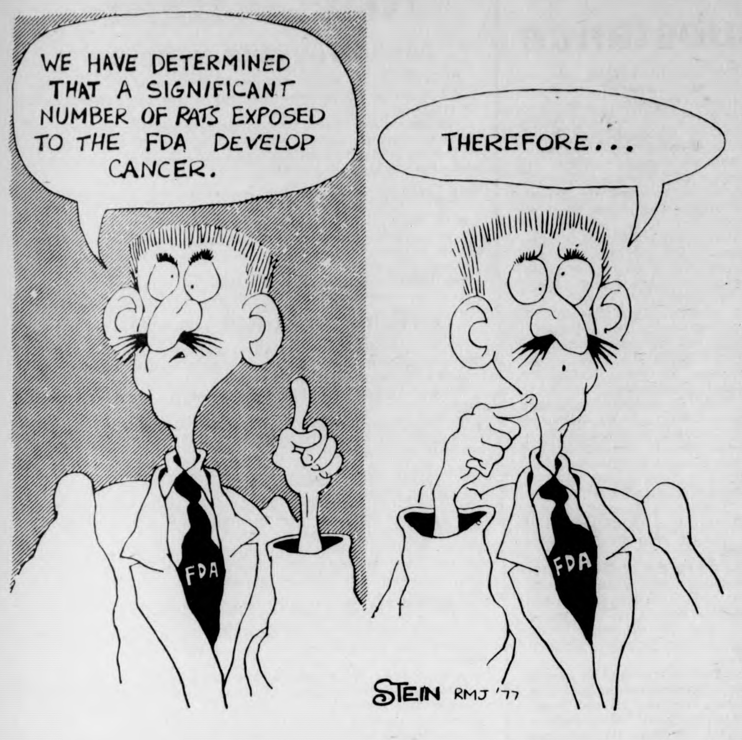
ASK FOR RANDY GLENN
OR CHARLES BERUBE



WE HAVE DETERMINED THAT A SIGNIFICANT NUMBER OF RATS EXPOSED TO THE FDA DEVELOP CANCER.
THEREFORE...
FDA
FDA
STEIN RMJ '77

letters

Erosion of liberal arts

To the Editor:

We, the undersigned, are outraged by Provost Paul L. Puryear's five-year plan which intends to eliminate by 1982 such an outstanding program as Asian Studies. This program serves as a foundation for Asian Studies courses in many disciplines taught at UMass and the Five-College area. Because of this broad focus, the federal government has seen fit to support a Five-College Center for East Asian Studies in the form of a grant from the Office of Education.

With the elimination of the Asian Studies Program at UMass, the Five-College Center for East Asian Studies will suffer a severe setback. At UMass there are 21 Asian experts outside the Asian Studies Program. Of these, 17 have tenure in their departments [history, political science, public health, sociology, anthropology, geography, comparative literature, and education]. The Asian Studies Program is crucial to their continued effectiveness.

The Asian Studies Program at UMass constitutes the only full-fledged set of Asian Studies course offerings at a public university in all of New England. It is similarly the only public university in New England to grant undergraduate degrees in Chinese and Japanese. In other words, unless able to afford $6000 to $8000 a year to attend such a university as Harvard or Yale, a student will be denied the opportunity for any contact with the field of Asian Studies.

Of the six Asian Studies Program faculty, two are up for tenure this year. The personnel actions at the program and college levels were unanimous in favor of granting tenure to these two professors. Jeremiah M. Allen, the Dean of Humanities and Fine Arts, supported the two as well. Now, the Provost has invoked his "tentative" five-year plan as grounds for reversing those positive recommendations. What this means to the students is that the Asian Studies Program will cease to exist not in 1982, but in 1978.

We cannot stress enough the importance of the Asian Studies Program to our education at UMass. The elimination of the Asian Studies and Slavic Languages Program, as well as the overall reduction in the number of faculty in the School of Humanities and Fine Arts, heralds the erosion of liberal arts education at UMass.

We urge all concerned students to forward letters on this matter to: Asian Studies Office, 26 Thompson Hall, phone 5-0886.

Julie Upton
Sheryl McCormick
Sean McEnroe
Don White
Karen Kullgren
Steve Brown

Town elections: Do you care?

To the Editor:

I want to take this opportunity to reflect on the recent town elections. We did the impossible — all 22 student and progressive candidates on our slate won seats on the Town Meeting. First and foremost, I want to thank all of the students from Precinct 3 who came out to vote for us on election day. Because you supported us with your vote, we will have the chance to represent students' interests in the Town Meeting this spring. We will be faced with many issues that affect each and every one of us. To the Collegian staff, especially Bill Sundstrom, Bernie Davidow, and Teresa Hanafin, your coversage of the election was phenomenal. Thanx a lot. Jim Gagne, SGA Director of Communications, did a superb job of getting the election ad together. And last, but not least, to the other members of the slate: congratulations! Most of you worked long and hard. Without your energy and commitment 22 conservatives would have been elected to the Town Meeting instead.

But, for me, victory was bitter indeed. The fact that we won was not an occasion to celebrate, as far as I'm concerned. Just look at the figures: Out of approximately 1300 students registered to vote in Precinct 3, only 160 voted. 160 out of 1300 is not what I call a good turnout. All this says to me is that students on this campus just don't give a shit about controlling their own lives. The progressive slates in the other precincts could've easily been elected to Town Meeting of students in those precincts had turned out to vote. But students weren't perceptive enough to realize that this was a golden opportunity to flood the town government with progessive people. Ken Mosakowski lost the Selectman's race by less than 400 votes. He was counting on the student vote, which never materialized.

What does it take to motivate students on this campus? What does it take to make students aware of what's going on around them? Some students didn't even know there was an election on Tuesday. Others said they didn't have the time to vote, or couldn't be bothered, or didn't think the election was important enough to take 15 minutes to vote. But it's not just the election I'm talking about. Take any issue on campus — budget cuts; tuition and fee increases; the administration making decisions that affect our lives without any student input — and what do most students do about them? Not a damn thing.

So when you ask why Amherst doesn't have rent control, think back to whether you even voted in the town election. Meanwhile, I'll be wondering if all the time and effort we put into this election was worth while; or if students on this campus are even worth representing in the Town Meeting. After all, if you don't care, why should I?

Gary Shuster

from our perspective

Censorship

Freedom of expression, be it spoken or written, has long been a keystone of political liberty in our society. The First Amendment, however, has often given way to complex and sometimes controversial exceptions. We at the Collegian have been in the midst of such a controversy.

In this University community, the Collegian feels it is necessary to have methods which make the system of freedom of expression a positive, constructive, and deliberate function of the social process. Since our social process has as its hallmark the notion of equality, the Collegian, working in the given society, strives to create positive gains in the direction of erasing existent traits of racism and sexism on campus.

The Collegian has often used censorship as its weapon to combat racist and sexist material. We have always felt justified in adhering to such a policy.

Now the Collegian has been thrown a curve ball, so to speak, and frankly, we have had problems handling it. We are speaking of advertisements. The Collegian has recently received an onslaught of ads, mainly from beer companies, which we agree are sexist. Our first inclination was to censor these ads, which we did with some. At the same time, though, certain ads that were run received considerable feedback from the community accusing the Collegian of being insensitive to the needs of women and minorities on campus.

We at the Collegian do not consider ourselves to be insensitive or irresponsible. We have deliberated the issue of whether to run or censor these sexist ads for weeks. We devised a screening committee consisting of the editor-in-chief, executive editor, assistant black affairs editor, women's coordinator, advertising manager, national advertising manager, and the assistant business manager. We asked ourselves, "Does a group of seven people have the right to determine for a campus of 20,000 people what promotes good or bad, justice or injustice, equality or inequality?"

To a certain extent, we say "yes". The Collegian feels that by its refusal to print stories or photos that promote racism or sexism, we can aid in the battle to end these isms. By censoring a staff member's material, we are reaching the source. We can speak with the individual and help he-she understand the causes we are working for.

We feel differently with ads. The Collegian is one of 400 college newspapers in the country that receives these ads. Only this newspaper and the University of Minnesota censored any. We are proud that we took a stand against sexism, but we now feel we went about it the wrong way.

We have decided to run the ads in question, and with good reason. Few minority causes have been advanced through censorship. By censoring these advertisements, we end an effective forum of exchange and criticism on the editorial pages. Rather than having a small group of editors decide whether or not material was racist or sexist, we are asking our readers to decide.

The effect of seven people telling a national agency its ad is sexist would be minimal. Twenty thousand voices can speak much louder than seven. So we encourage your responses, and we assure you, they will be heard not only by the Collegian, but by the nation as well.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA [illegible]

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Dorothy A. Clark, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press and subscribes to United Press International. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian is a member of Columbia Scholastic Press Association, The College Press Service, The Pacific News Service and the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertisers.

jack cahill

My hero

"I used to do things like introducing the strongest man in the world. I'd have four gray horses on the stage, two at each end of a rope. The strong man would be in the middle, wearing a leopard skin and holding the ropes. Then I'd have a man with a whip and I'd say "Whip the horses". The camera focused on me, you'd hear hoofs pounding, then you'd hear a horrible ripping sound and I'd turn my head so I wouldn't have to watch."

Ernie Kovacs is very high on my list of heroes as I guess any wild Hungarian wrestling announcer turned millionaire comedian with an 18 cigar-a-day habit would be.

He was probably the last true iconoclast in the vast wasteland of network television to rear his head and do more than just make his presence known. Kovacs profoundly changed television in the brief time when it was possible to do so by dint of his own very personal madness. Rowan and Martin's "Laugh In" was not a new concept; neither is "Saturday Night Live". Both shows are the progeny of the radically different comic directions that Kovacs pioneered in the late fifties and early sixties.

The brilliant Kovacs specials (he never had a regular show, regular network or regular sponsor) are still considered the peak of television comedy, but have never been re-telecast until now. PBS aka Channel 57 has put together all the available Kovacs material and is showing them in 10 half hour segments starting this Tuesday, April 12 at 9:30. And in some sort of planned coincidence, Columbia has released a collection of bits called The Ernie Kovacs Album.

The record is not especially funny, but there are reasons why. I suspect that most of the routines — from J. Walter Puppybreath to "Strangely Believe Its" — are from Kovacs early days on Philadelphia's WPTX-TV where he would improvise live comedy bits for sometimes 13 hours a week. Ernie's finest work was done when the networks gave him a chance (and a budget). More importantly, Ernie's comedy was audio and visual. While Uncle Milty Berle threw cream pies at Billy deWolfe in drag, Kovacs used the electronic properties of TV to full comic potential.

In the course of his many specials and fill in spots for Steve Allen, Kovacs would stage short bits in which he would shoot a hole in his head and proceed to blow smoke rings thru it. Or spend $10,000 to build an entire set on an 18 degree angle and then compensate with the cameras so that everything seemed normal until a bottle of milk poured down sideways. Or synchronize the 1812 Overture with someone slicing vegetables. Or simply do the first five minutes of a show off the top of his head, one time using Patti Page's little finger to explore his nose. In pantomine of course.

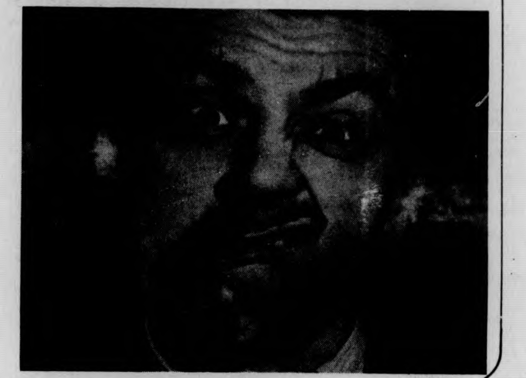
Because of his incredible popularity, the networks were enslaved by this free thinking madman and his ridiculous expenses. Kovacs' thoughts and actions were consistently random. "I get these ideas in bed or when I'm driving. But I'm too lazy to get up and you can't write them with a cigarette lighter, so I think up 2 or 3 others at the same time and from them into a word to remember them. For instance, BIB is for Betsy Ross, Indians, and Big speech from King Lear." When was the last time we were lucky enough to have such a bizarre mind at the controls?

The Kovacs private life was easily as manic as his professional career. He was married to actress Edie Adams and between TV specials and all nite poker games, he filled their huge New York apartment with paintings, suits of armor, antique guns. He owned five pianos, but never knew how to play. For leisure, Ernie wrote the novel "Zoomar" in 13 days. His commitment to cigars was well known; "I average 18 of these $2.00 cigars a day. It works out to be around $36,000 a year."

In my knowledge, there has never been any individual so spontaneous, so charged, so true to himself and so influential because of his personality and talent as Ernie Kovacs. His TV shows, though meticulously rehearsed in the studio, were conceived in minutes off the top of his head and are influential even today. The Kovacs motto was GO, Spend, Live and he did so until his premature death in a 1962 auto accident. He left his widow with a truckload of debts and television with a loss it has never recovered from.

The inscription on Ernie Kovacs tombstone reads "Nothing In Moderation". He is the stuff legends are made of and an inscription to cigar smokers. It behooves you to watch his televised legacy.

Jack Cahill is a Collegian Columnist.



commentary

Rights of every individual

By DREW CRANE

If there is even the smallest amount of truth in the socialist propaganda which you read constantly on these pages it is that parts of the capitalist system have been distorted, but the false conclusion drawn is that the whole system is flawed and should be replaced.

It would take many more columns to elaborate on the multitude of socialist fallacies, but I can begin with our political system.

The Declaration of Independence and The Constitution established the first moral social system in history. The recognition of the unalienable rights of every individual to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness were the basis of our new society. A constitutionally limited form of government, deriving its power from the consent of the citizens, was instituted to insure these individual rights. The government became the servant of the people and the nebulous concept of "society" or "the state" was obliterated. The function of the government was to act as a policeman using force only in retaliation and only against those who initiated its use. The government protected individuals from criminals while the Constitution and Bill of Rights protected the individual from the government.

This is the essence of American political philosophy, but there were flaws in the Constitution and in America's social ethics. The two most glaring contradictions of individual rights were the compromise condoning Negro slavery and the issue of involuntary conscription.

The Constitutional flaws have been corrected, but America remains internally corrupted by the altruistic-collectivist ethics which are a remnant of the European cultures. As a consequence our government has become the ruler — not the servant — of its people. The Statue of Liberty has mutated into a grotesque bureaucratic cross between Hydra, with its multiple heads, and an octupus; its tentacles constricting our life and liberty. The state has been insidiously embracing totalitarian doctrines since before Roosevelt's New Deal. Don't be fooled by the few good things that President Carter seems to have so far accomplished. They are overshadowed by the same statist policies implicit in past administrations.

The blame must rest on the citizens of this country. There are many who take an active part in the political process and truly believe their elected officials work for their best interest, but the predominant group is the so called "silent majority" who would rather let someone else guide their life and are content to drift with the current of society. But this mass political blank-out continues to cause this country to regress to the barbarism of a socialist-totalitarian state.

This problem will continue until such time as the "silent majority" realizes that each individual must concern himself with the functions of government. Only when the government reverts to being a legally limited servant of its citizens will the rights of every individual be safeguarded.

Drew Crane is a Collegian Commentator.

letters

Myths at the university

To the Editors:

For sometime, I have found myself mulling over the relationship between University policy and student needs. Thursday's Collegian provided the clincher to one aspect of this situation.

In the sixties, the University experienced an unexpected [re] turn on the part of students to the liberal arts, a change which the rigid academic machine was not prepared to deal with. On the whole, however, due to the expansion of public higher education, the University did find itself able to respond, though not without some resistence and delay. Finally, having acknowledged the new demands, and having decided, out of necessity, to accommodate, the academic community chose to rationalize its forced choice with a new celebration of their student's interest in the ideals of a liberal education.

Here we are in the seventies and we fickle cynical students are now observed to have abandoned the liberal ideal for the more pragmatic concerns of vocational and professional education. And again, the University is surprised and outraged and is agonizing over the changes which it must, but can only with great difficulty, effect. And again, with its back to the wall, the University, this time in the person of Provost Paul Puryear, rationalizes:
We don't want students to find that their major field of study is not salable.

My point is that the University has and will continue to experience major fluctuations in student interests. Consider the history of such fields as engineering, education, nursing and the arts. The University does not, itself, establish the philosophy and nature of undergraduate education: it responds to changing student needs and ideals — tardily, clumsily and with much post facto pontification about what education should, in its esteemed judgement, be.

This is the essential point: students' perceptions of their needs and wants will continue to change, and are a product of such complex and various social and economic forces that there is none who has, or appears ready, to make accurate predictions. It is a reality that the University is subject to, not, as it chooses to believe, an arbiter of these choices. It is also a reality that the present structure of the University, along with its commitment to the myths it engenders, renders it incapable of responding to change, at least without substantial lag and trauma to its own vested interests.

The myths, then, are not only a disservice to students, but to the interests of the University, in whose name they are perpetrated.

Barbara Stach

commentary

Hit me now

By FRANK DENTON

I have a cross. It's a simple cross: silver, plain, a bit bigger than most, but it does the job. I thought about this the other morning as I hung it about my neck in a statement of faith and prepared to meet the rest of the sinners in the dining room.

My first confrontation was not long in coming. Alicia floated by, supporting her roommate as he struggled to maintain his balance. He launched into a bawdy Irish monologue on God as a crutch. God bless Eamon.

Mike floundered in. Taking a long drag on his unfiltered blend of rolled oats and sheep manure, he peered blearily at the glint of metal adorning my chest.

"Oh, Gawd, a Jesus freak," he grunted and slipped back into his comatose delirium. Bless Mike, Lord.

The next order of business was Ralph. As he stumbled into the dining room, he almost tripped over his hangover. He lowered his brows contemptuously and a beery cloud descended. He had decided. Listerine and Schlitz don't mix. A suspicious glance was directed at my pendant.

"You religious or something?" Ralph snorted. His jaundiced eye reviewed the breakfast assortment and after a neolithic drool, he settled on two Bufferins and wandered away. How long, oh Lord?

Alicia smiled at me through half-closed eyes. She and Eamon hadn't slept much the night before. Leaning heavily on her, Eamon droned on about my inability to face reality. Alicia wondered briefly why I was the only one awake enough to do so.

"GOD, FRANK, DON'T YOU HAVE ANY VICES?" Hit me now, Lord, hit me now.

Frank Denton is a Collegian Commentator.

Getting equal time

To the Editor:

Walking into the Campus Center Coffee Shop the other day, I spotted a man that I knew last summer. When I greeted him and joined him at his table, he commenced to fill me in on everything that he has done up to the present time. Sporadically, he'd allow me to get a word in edgewise or he'd ask me what I've been up to without even leaving me any time to answer. In short, he totally dominated the conversation. Unfortunately this isn't the first time I've noticed this behavior pattern in a man. Some men, besides suffering from various and sundry incorrect assumptions about the services they think that women are supposed to provide, seem to think that we also provide a free counseling service. I, and countless other women, have been tolerating this self-centered conduct for too long.

I'm not saying that I don't notice egotistical behavior in women too, and certainly all men don't do this all the time, but I'm referring to a specific situation. It's one in which a woman, who has been socialized to listen to and-or console men at any given time, gets stuck listening to a man who has no other means of relating to women. He doesn't seem to realize that she might have something of interest to say or something that she has the need to talk about. I used to find myself listening to a man talk about all his involvements and worries for hours, thinking that when he would finally finish, I'd get my chance to express myself. But my chance never seemed to come. I'd sit wide-eyed listening with such sincere concern, asking questions that showed that I really did care, only to find that it was not to be returned.

My purpose in writing this letter is to make the men and women who experience these monologue types of "conversations" aware of the fact that there is a way to put an end to this blatant insensitivity. If the men involved could only stop themselves the next time they start with another seemingly endless soliloquy and realize that conversations are meant to be two-way exchanges of ideas and thoughts. As for the women who still put up with this and are as fed up with it as I am, it's time to speak our minds and start getting equal time!

Nancy Lieberman

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Grad employe union conference planned

A day-long conference on Graduate Student Employe Unionization will be held Saturday, in the Campus Center. Sponsored by the Political Science Graduate Student Association, the conference will involve both a morning symposium and smaller afternoon workshops. Graduate student union representatives from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, and SUNY-Buffalo will participate. Among the issues to be discussed are departmental grievances over employment, the current UMass budget crisis and its effect on graduate education, and the current attempts by graduate students to form a recognized labor union. All graduate students of the UMass community are urged to attend.

Upward Bound has summer openings

The Upward Bound Project will be hiring staff members for its summer program. We are looking for counselors (work study eligibility); teachers (minimum of B.A. or B.S.); and head of residence (minimum of B.A. or B.S.). Applications can be picked up in the Upward Bound Office, New Africa House 205. Applications and resumes are due by April 20. We are an equal opportunity employer.

Housing in Amherst topic of discussion

The League of Women Voters will hold units on low and moderate income housing in Amherst. In addition, there will be a discussion of rent control. The meetings, which are open to the public are: Tuesday, April 12, 9:15 a.m., Eva Cashdon, 4 Evergreen Lane; Wednesday, April 13, 7:30 p.m., Nora Hertzfeld, 74 College Street; Thursday, April 14, 12:00 .a.m., Jones Library (bring lunch).

The members of the committee are: Ruth Curtis, Marilyn Gonter, Phyllis Lehrer, Ann Mallek, Ruth Samit and Deedee Minear, chairman. For information or transportation, call 253-7776.

Environmental group plans for Earth Day

The Coalition for Environmental Quality, a UMass. undergraduate student environmental action group, is having an organizational meeting for Earth Day, April 11 at 7:30 p.m. The purpose is to pool ideas, knowledge and energy for educational and recreational events of an environmental nature for Earth Day, April 27. Interested persons are invited to the meeting at Campus Center 803. Anyone unable to attend the meeting should stop by the CEQ office, Student Union 306 or call Carol Entin at 545-0618.

Discussion group on diabetes meeting

The Diabetes Learning and Discussion Group will have a very informative meeting on eye and vascular complications from diabetes. Dr. Fred Bloom and Dr. George Nemeth from the University Health Services (UHS) will be the speakers. The meeting is Tuesday at 7 in Clinic 1, UHS. This meeting should be of interest to families of diabetes and people who have a risk of becoming diabetic.

Tentative dates are being set for other topics. The week of April 19 — "Insulin and Different Types of Management;" the week of April 25 — information for non-diabetics, such as genetics and risk factors, emergencies, prevention; and the week of May 2 — contraception, pregnancy, and family planning. Watch for notices in the Collegian for specific dates. For questions, call 549-2671, Health Education.

Newman Club plans April 14 auction

The UMass Newman Club is holding an auction April 14 at 7 p.m. in the Newman Center. The members of the class will perform odd jobs and special services for the highest bidders. Refreshments will be served. All funds raised at the auction will go to the Newman Center.

If you would like to offer a service but cannot visit the center call 549-0300 or write to the Newman Center, Newman Center, North Pleasant St., Amherst.

Anthro department newsletter available

The second edition of the anthropology department's undergraduate newsletter is now available. All on-campus anthropology students will receive their copies in the mail. Off-campus anthropology students and other interested persons can pick up the newsletter in class or at the anthropology office in Machmer Hall 215. Read it and find out what your department is doing!

Spring horse show at Smith stables

A spring horse show, including equitation, hunter, and dressage classes, will be held at the Smith College stables, West Street, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The horse show, which will be open free to the public, will be held rain or shine.

Open hearing on sex discrimination

All members of the University community are invited to attend an open hearing to discuss issues relevant to sex discrimination in the Division of Continuing Education. The hearing will be in the Campus Center 162-175, Wednesday, April 13, from 12:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. If you are unable to attend, you may submit written comments concerning sex discrimination up to three days prior to the hearing to: Neal McBride, Division of Continuing Education, Hills North, UMass, Amherst.

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

TITO PUENTE ORCHESTRA

THURS., APRIL 14 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets now on sale! $6, 5, 4. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

EXPERT SERVICE, USED BIKES, BATAVUS & CIMATTI MOPEDS

SPRING AND SUMMER
TRANSPORTATION
SPECIAL

1976
KAWASAKI
KZ 400S

ONLY $895
DELIVERED

55 MPG.
AND ROOM FOR TWO

VALLEY
MOTOR SPORTS
348 King St. Northampton
584-7303

MTWF:9-6 TH:9-9 SAT:10-4

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

at the BLUEWALL

Limerick Road Band

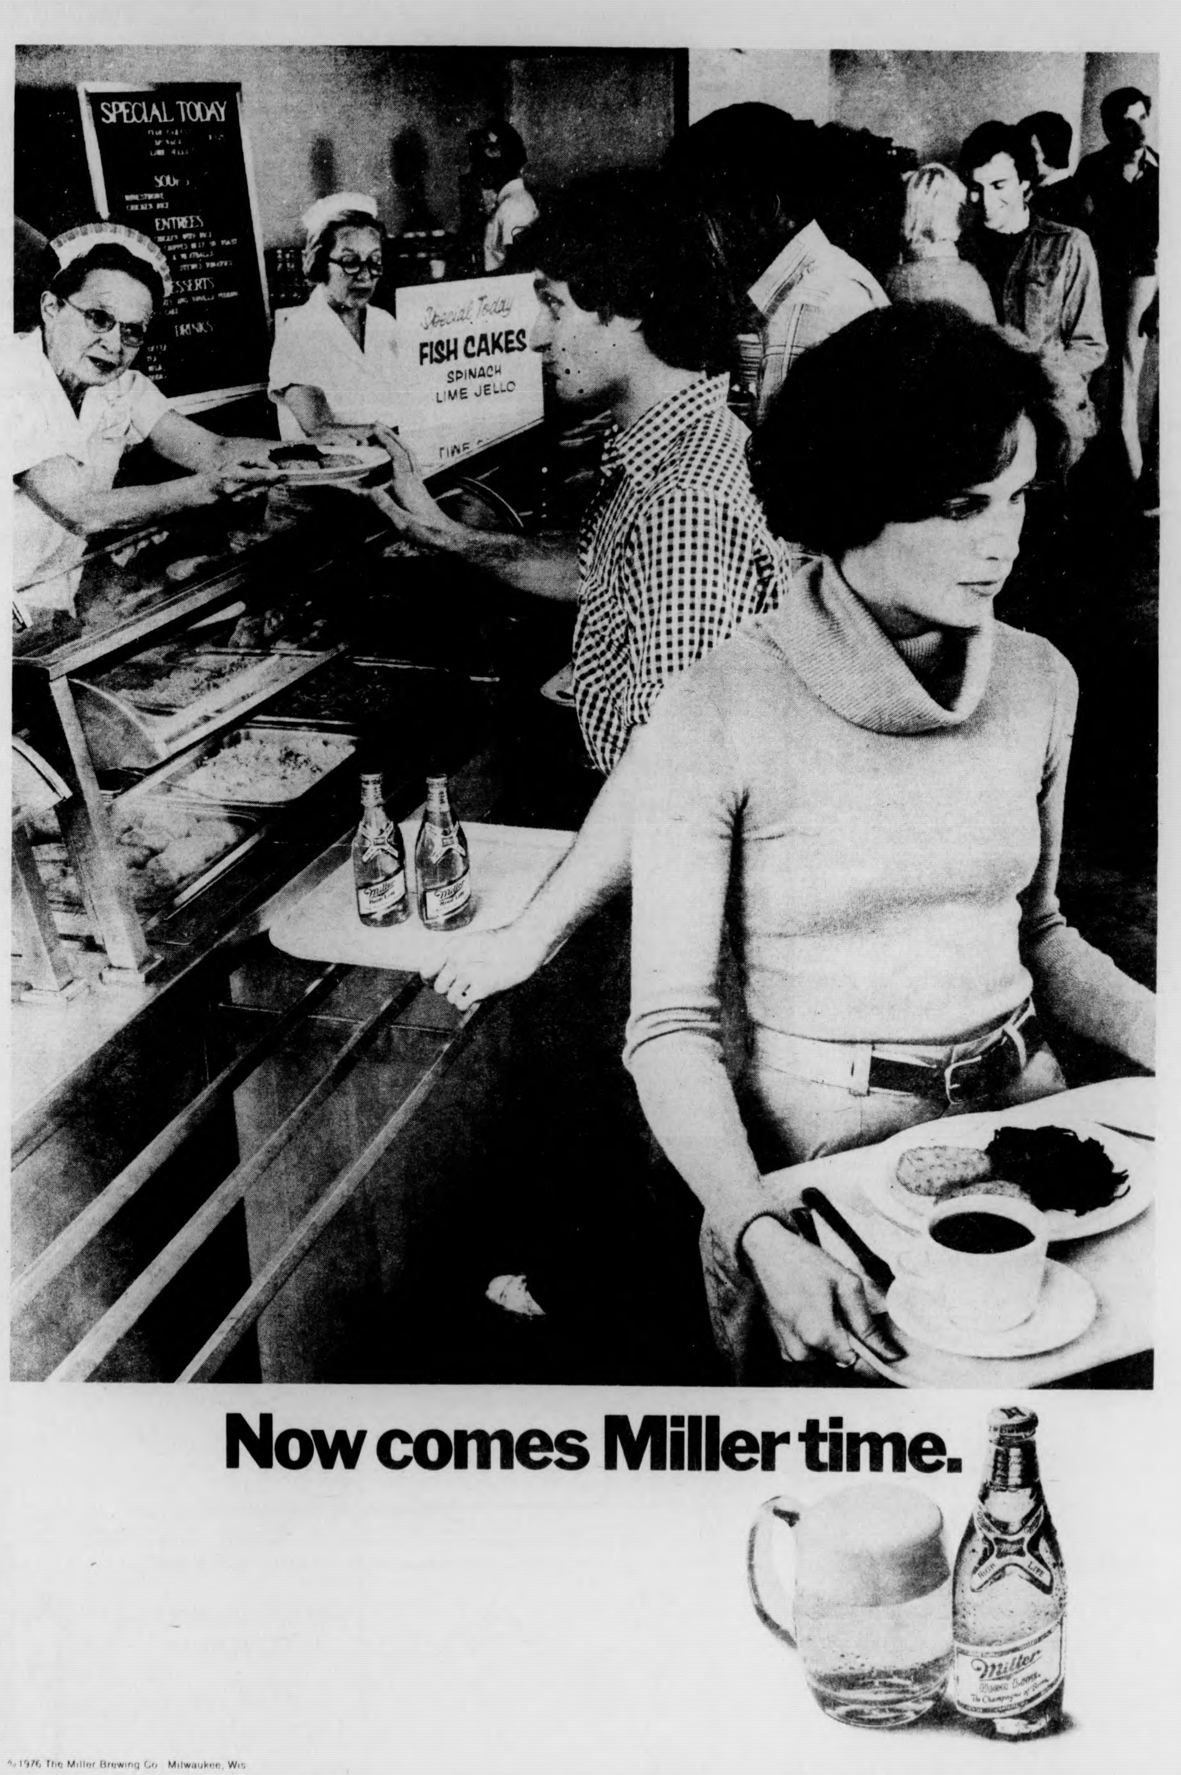
THURS. thru SAT.
APRIL 7 thru 9

No Cover

at the Hatch

FRI. and SAT.
APRIL 8 and 9

$1.50 COVER



©1976 The Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

★ SBA views reallocation plans

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Monroe, who was up full professorship, said the University administration has not given SBA faculty the resources to do an effective teaching job.

"Professionally I could no longer function," he said, citing the over-enrollment in the school and lack of staff resources and supplies to deal with it. For example, travel services in SBA decreased from $18,000 to $7,000 last year.

He now has neither the resources nor the time, he said. "I want to do an excellent research job," he said, but can't. He, like Odiorne, said there is a lack of University decision making, and said UMass must "make that division to divest funds" if it is to be competitive with other universities to attract "people with track records."

"We've been able to recruit some youth by showing them the good reputation of our faculty with whom they could work and develop," reflected Paul. "But if we fail to keep our good faculty, we'll lose even that edge in competitiveness."

Ula K. Motekat, an associate professor in accounting, pointed out any SBA associate professor hired in the last three years would receive a higher salary today if (s)he started all over again. This paradox, she explained, is caused by the state-imposed pay freeze, now in its fourth year. While SBA today pays the going market rate for an associate-professor, $19,00, it cannot grant pay raises to those hired three years ago at $16,000.

In addition, there have been no merit increases for the faculty in recent years.

Because of this lack of funding by the state legislature, faculty are being enticed to other institutions.

DC Menu

TODAY

LUNCH — Fish Burger, Turkey Divan; Basics: Mixed Bean Casserole, Fish Burger

DINNER — Cube Steak, Fried Shrimp with Hot Sauce, Sausage Beef Casserole; Basics: Fried Shrimp with Hot Sauce, Lentil Patties

TOMORROW

BRUNCH — Scrambled Eggs, Bacon, Chili con Carne, Deli Ham Sandwich on Rye Bread

DINNER — Rotini with Meat Sauce. Fried Fish with Tartar Sauce

SUNDAY

BRUNCH — Scrambled Eggs, Sausages, Corned Beef, Stuffed Peppers, Cold Roast Beef Sandwich

DINNER — Special Easter Sunday: Baked Stuffed Chicken with Cranberry Sauce and Gravy, Baked Ham with Orange Sauce

University of massachusetts arts council presents
THIS TIME FOR SURE!
PILOBOLUS DANCE THEATER
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

Showcase Cinemas
ROUTE 5
RIVERDALE RD.
West Springfield
733-5131
BARGAIN $2.50 til 2:30 MATINEES WED. SAT. SUN
ROCKY PG United Artists
MGM presents NETWORK R United Artists
AIRPORT '77 A UNIVERSAL PICTURE TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION® PG
REDFORD/HOFFMAN "ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN" 8 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS PG
LATE SHOW PG
A STAR IS BORN R
BLACK SUNDAY R
A RALPH BAKSHI FILM WIZARDS PG
PLEASE CALL THEATRE FOR SCREEN TIMES

University of massachusetts arts council presents

Minnesota Orchestra
Stanislaw Skrowaczewski
Music Director
TUES., APRIL 19 8 PM
Tickets now on sale! $7, 6, 5. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

University Ensemble Theater PRESENTS
Lorraine Hansberry's
Warm and poignant drama
THE SIGN IN SIDNEY BRUSTEIN'S WINDOW
April ~~8, 9,~~ 10, 11, 12, 13, ~~14, 15~~, ~~16~~
all curtains at 8:00 PM
Curtain Theater, Fine Arts Center, University of Massachusetts
BOX OFFICE
545-3511
PLEASE NOTE ALL DATES WITH AN "X" THROUGH THEM ARE SOLD OUT

University of massachusetts arts council presents

national black theatre
SAT., APRIL 9 8 PM
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets now on sale! $5, 4, 3. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.
F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY MASS
1 They're having such a wonderful crime... it's a shame to call the police! WALT DISNEY NEVER A DULL MOMENT G SPECIAL ADDED TREAT The Three Caballeros
Friday Saturday Sunday 2:00 4:30 7:00 9:30 twiliter 4:00-4:30
2 "'Cousin Cousine' is fetchingly loony and great fun." —Janet Maslin, Newsweek ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE! Cousin Cousine R
Friday Saturday Sunday 2:15 5:00 7:15 9:45 twiliter 4:30-5:00
3 WINNER OF ACADEMY AWARDS! A STAR IS BORN R
Friday Saturday Sunday 2:00 4:30 7:00 9:30 twiliter 4:00-4:30
4 BONNIE AND CLYDE THEY AIN'T. GEORGE SEGAL JANE FONDA "FUN WITH DICK & JANE" PG
Friday Saturday Sunday 2:15 4:45 7:15 9:45 twiliter 4:15-4:45
REDUCED ADULT & STUDENT PRICES FOR TWI-LITE SHOW TICKETS...LIMITED TO SEATING

Notices

ATTENTION POLO PEOPLE!

Sat. April 9 and Sun. April 10 the UMass waterpolo team is sponsoring a 6 team waterpolo tourney. Check the Collegian sports pages for times and come on down.

BDIC

Mid-term report with sponsor signature is due no later than April 29. Forms are available in 416 Goodell.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

The bus to the state school will leave tomorrow at 12:30 from Whitmore (Haigis Mall). All students are invited to join in our recreational and educational programs. There are only five weeks left! Questions, call Bill 546-6792 or Mary Jane, 545-2302, Rm. 316.

CHILD CARE WORKER WANTED

Over 18? Interested in helping children in crisis? Emergency services need you for overnight child care workers. Training and some financial compensation available. Call 586-2602 for more info.

CONCRETE CANOE TEAM

Help support the Concrete Canoe Team finance this year's project. Purchase raffle tickets and T-shirts from team members on the Concourse Friday and Monday. First prize two cases of imported beer. Help us win again this year.

EARTH DAY PLANNING SESSION

Are you concerned about the environment and want to help spread that concern? Earth Day, April 27, is the perfect opportunity to become involved in an educational or recreational event. Come to an organizational meeting on April 11, 7:30, in CC 803. Bring your friends, ideas and energy.

ENVI SCI UNDERGRADS

Meeting Wed., April 13, 7:30 p.m., Marshall, concerning budget, renovation work, job and grad school committees, next year's officers and this month's Dept. party.

FRISBEE GAME TODAY

UMass will play Amherst College today at 3:30 next to the pond in an exciting game of Ultimate Frisbee. Come down and watch.

FRISBEE TOURNAMENT

There will be a six event individual tournament for club members tomorrow beginning near Southwest. Bring food — the barbecue will be going. Refreshments provided. Bring a disc.

LOST

University of Hawaii ID of sentimental value. Please call 546-5106.

FOUND

Notes that blew out of woman's hands outside of Melville Dorm. Ed. psych in blue U.M. folder. Please C-11 Jackie, 230 Melville, 546-7354.

MUSIC THEATER GUILD

There will be a general meeting of the UMass Music Theater Guild, Thurs., April 14 in CC 164 at 5:30 p.m. to discuss future show and election of officers. Members and all interested persons please attend.

NORTHEAST-SYLVAN WOMEN'S CENTER

The N.E.-Sylvan Women's Center is open to all women. There's a library and study for your convenience and counseling is available. Open hours: Mon. 1-4 and 6-11; Tues., 2:30 - 4:30 and 6 - 11; Wed., 12-2 and 6-8; Thurs. 12-2; Fri. 1-4.

PRE-MED MEMBERS

There will be a general Pre-Med meeting Thurs., April 14 at 7 p.m. in CC 903. The news letter and other info will be discussed. Anybody interested in joining is also welcome.

SCHLITZ-A-RAMA

It's coming. April 30 at Phi Sigma Kappa.

SHAB

Student Health Advisory Board meeting next Tues., April 12 at 5:30 in CC 805-809.

TOY LENDING LIBRARY

Located in N. Village, next to the laundry facilities. Hours are MTW 5:30 - 8:30, S 10:30 - 1:30 (closed April 19). New members always welcome and membership is free. Also campus toy library is located in Berkshire House. Open 9 - 4:30, Mon. - Fri.

UMASS FIRE & FIRST AID UNIT

Recruitment meeting! We are especially interested in those people aquiring or having their advanced Red Cross or EMT certification, however all are welcome. Come by Tues., April 12, Rm. CC 902 from 7 - 9 p.m. and find out what we are all about.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

To place a classified ad, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. The deadline is 3:45 p.m. two days before your ad is to appear. Ask clerk for MDC Classified form.

Classifieds

The rates are: Daily - $.40 per line Weekly - $.35 per line Monthly - $.25 per line ADS CAN BE MAILED. SEE OUR SPEEDY CLASSIFIED AD FORM APPEARING IN EACH MONDAY'S COLLEGIAN.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

FOR SALE

Baritone Sax — Buescher. Ex. cond. $425 or will trade for camera & money. 586-1556.

Automatic radio, 8 track auto. tape deck — FM radio. $60 or best offer. Call Mike 253-5366.

Panasonic stereo system receiver with 8 track play-record, Garrard turntable, walnut cabinet, speakers. $300 or best offer. Call Mike 253-5366.

Tag Sale Today — 543 Puffton Village apt.

Gift idea: Have your portrait drawn. Call Dennis Delap, 256-8732.

1 pr. 8 in. Bozak bookshelf spkrs. Very mellow sound, great for classical or vocals. Only 1 yr. old. $125. Steve. 546-9653.

Gibson SG std. guitar w-case. Fairly new, in very good cond. $245 or best offer. Call Bob 6-9432.

2 14 in. radials. Ex. cond. John, 253-5741.

Semi-pro bike. All alloy components. Fiammi, Sugino, etc. Superb cond. 6-6909.

Soprano sax — great cond. 2 Pentax lenses. 256-0223. Mel.

18' Hang Glider. $395. 253-2825.

Green antiqued bureau & matching mirror. $25. Call Joyce at 525-0936.

2 23 channel pace CB radios, complete w-antenna and mike. Call 584-8324.

Olds F85, 1966, runs well but needs some work. $125. Steve. 549-2856.

Pentax Spotmatic, w-50mm f—1.4 lens & case. Best offer. Call 546-1090, 9 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE

Parts for Triumph TR4A. Call 256-6233.

'71 VW Bug. Excellent cond. Many new parts. Must sell to meet expenses. $1300. 546-8994.

1969 Triumph Spitfire. 549-6834.

'73 Firebird, AM-FM stereo, cassette, 3 spd. $2595. Good cond. Call 256-8682.

Saab 99, '69, rebuilt engine, body very good. $750 or offer. Matt, 546-6158.

1973 white Dodge Colt, 4 speed, good condition. $1050. Call Lucinda at 247-5725.

1974 Chev. Impala. $1650. firm. 256-0642.

'65 Spitfire, complete. $100. 203-745-6764, evenings.

'73 Toyota Corolla, gd. cond., AM-FM radio, auto. trans. Call 665-3686 after 4:30.

Triumph Spitfire 1964 - nice condition, many new parts, needs clutch. Best offer. Mark, 665-3670.

1969 VW Squareback, fuel injection, good condition, extras. $599. 549-5070.

'71 Ford Van. Runs well. AM-FM, 8 trak stereo, new tires, mattress, curtns. 253-3012.

1969 Econ 300 Van. $1200. 665-7050.

'68 Buick Skylark. Good condition and good body. $450.00. Linda, 256-0548.

'74 Monte Carlo Landau for sale. Black on black, ac, am-fm, all power, loaded with extras. Excellent condition. Asking $3750. Call 10 to 9:30, 584-8324.

'71 SAAB 99. New eng., brakes. Exc. cond. Must sell. 253-2828 eves. Keep trying — first reasonable offer!

AUTO FOR SALE

1971 280SE Mercedes-Benz for sale. Mint condition, Michelius, ac, ps, pb, pw, best offer. Call 549-0610 or 584-8324.

'67 VW Bus, runs well. Call 253-3592.

'74 Pinto Wgn. 50,000. Ex. cond., 4 spd., std., 4 radials and snws. AM-FM, 8 tr., 2 spkr. $1450. Call eve. 665-3237.

BMW, 1967. Exc. cond. $1200. 256-6459.

'70 Toyota Corona. Ex. cond. Must be seen. $900. Have to sell. 665-3255.

'74 Vega GT. AM-FM, lo miles, exc. cond. and best offer. Call Ken 253-2909.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

Suzuki, 1971. Savage. Great shape, good price. Call 367-9597.

'72 Honda 175, excellent cond. Only 3500 mi. Best offer.

2 helmets, lock and chain, saddle bags, shields. Call Jeff. rm. 418. 545-0790—91.

'73 Honda 450 CL. 7500 mi. 2 helmets, plus men's and women's brown Harley leathers. All in good cond. $800 or B.O. 549-0179.

AUDIO

Quality components over 130 lines. Reasonable prices. Call Peter, 665-2920.

HELP WANTED

Summer jobs. Must have car. Earn $1,000 - $4,000. Jobs in many locations. Call for interview, 253-2597.

Summer jobs — Forest Service, 140 Nat'l Forests. How, where, when to apply. Complete info. $3.: Mission Mountain Co., Box 727, Polson, Montana 59860.

Summer work available. Call for an interview — 253-2598.

Alan Goldberg Tennis Pro needs assistant pro for part time summer employment. Teaching exp. required. Call nites 253-3683.

Sales person with car and camera. Call between 9-3. 586-0824.

WANTED

I need a 16mm silent projector, name your price. Call Steve 546-9653.

LOST

HP-25 calculator. Reward. Call 6-4355.

You've lost your mind if you ignore this offer! A deluxe, two bedroom townhouse for sublet this summer. On a bus route and numerous other benefits! Call 549-1817.

FOUND

Found — white female cat with black streak btwn ears. cataract in right eye, near Brittany Manor. Call 253-7125.

TRAVEL

Free tuition for 1 or 2 yrs. at any one of 140 univ., tech. schools and Yeshivas in Israel. Fully accredited programs for Jr. year and Grad study. Enrollment — min. 2 yrs. in advance, benefits from 1979-1989. Please contact: The Gift of Education, Dept. MA, Suite 710, 10 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020: 212-541-7568.

FOR RENT

1 bdrm. in 3 rm. apt. $82 plus sec. dep., inc. utils. Handy to bus, laundry. Call Dave 586-5477. NHampt. 6-8 only.

I own a very private ski chalet with a breathtaking view of Echo Lake in Tyson, Vermont. Lake front privileges, canoe, fireplace, loft. Interested in renting it to a faculty member or responsible grad student. 203-875-6306 after 5 p.m.

2 rms. in 2 bdrm. apt. 1 sublet, 1 lease. Puf. Vil. June 1. 549-0589.

1 rm. in 2 bdrm. apt. Sund. $100. incl. util. Call 549-1391.

University Women: Close to campus sorority is taking boarders. Great food. Call Liz or Dawn at 253-9215.

1 BDRM. APT. $160.00 MO.

In Amh., utilities incl. On bus rt. For summer (Fall opt.). Call eve's 253-7344.

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bdrm. in 2 bdrm. apt. for lease. $125—mo., utilities inc. Call 665-4235. Sunderland (female).

Grad student to share 2 bedroom apt. with same. $110— mo. incl. util. 256-6712.

Roommate wanted. Own bdrm. in 2 bdrm. Colonial Vill. Apt. F pref. on bus, laundry, furnished. $75—mo. incl. util. May 20 - Aug. 31. Call Sue 256-6169.

TO SUBLET

A top-notch 2 bedroom apartment for summer lease in Brandywine. Furnished! AC, pool, bus route. Call for a deal — 549-0691.

4 bdrm. townhouse on bus rte., furnished, air cond., pool. June to Sept. 256-0337.

Sublet — 2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220—mon. A.C., pool, on bus rt. Call 665-3619.

Jun.-Aug. or part. Manhattan, 90's West Hi-Rise, furn., 3 bdrms., 2 baths and terr. $400—mo., incl. util. Ref. req. 212-866-5063.

3 bedrms., $95 ea. for 3 people, including utilities, 2 baths, free cable TV, pool, tennis, garden plot, dishwasher, bus rt. Start 6-1. 549-1845.

Apt. avail. May 1st. or thereafter 1 bdrm., util. included. A.C., pool, tennis, bus rt. 549-0607.

3 bdrm. Twnhse apt. On bus rte. 2 baths. Rent $280 (maybe). Semi-furn. 665-3484.

2 bdrm. twnhse apt. On bus rt. AC, pool, ex. view. 6-1—8-31. Sund. Call 665-3439.

One bedroom apt. June 1 to Aug. 31. 10 min. from campus. On bus rt. Rent is very neg. 665-3986. Call Bob or Doug.

Puffton. 3 bedrm. apt. to sub. June 1 - Aug. 30. Call 549-0585.

3 bdrm. air-cond. & furnished apt. in Puffton. Tennis cts. & pool. 549-0936. Price negotiable.

Jun 1 - Aug. 31; $220—mo; all utils. incl. 2 br.; good for plants. Call 253-2874; aft. 6.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus rte. $185—mo. 6-1—8-31. Furnished, pool, AC. Call 253-3446.

FREE! Free! Well almost. We would like to sublet our two bedroom townhouse this summer. We'll talk price and you'll love it. Call 549-1817 and keep trying.

TO SUBLET

3 bdrm. Twnhse. apt. on bus rt. Semi-furn., air cond., pool. 6-1—8-31. Rent neg. 549-6919.

2 bdr. Brandywine, furn. 5-22 to 9-31 with optn. to renew lease. Rent neg. Call 549-0915.

2 bdrm. in twnhse. 6-1—opt. to rnw. 665-4230. $185.

2 bdrm. Twnhse. on bus rte. Avail. 6-1—8-31 with option for leasing 9-77. Air cond., pool. Call 253-7410.

4 bdrm. apt. Rol. Green. June-Aug. 6-7161.

2 bdrm. apt., avail. 6-1. Opt. renew. Good loc. Call 253-2841.

Two bedroom apt. at Cliffside in Sunderland, on bus route. Swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low rent. Call 665-4729 and keep trying.

Sublet—2 bed. apt. Beaut. Squire Vlg., Sund. 7 min. from campus. 6-1—8-31 w-opt. for fall. $220-mon., A.C., pool, on bus rt! Call 665-3619.

Boston Summer Sublet — 2 bdrm. apt., lvng rm., kitch. Furn., air cond., reasonable rent. Parking avail. 2 min. from Mass. Transit. Call 546-9709.

3 bedr. apt. Puf. Vlg. June 1 to Aug. 31. Air cond., pool. Rent neg. Call 549-6624.

2 bdrm. apt. on bus route. Aprox. grad.-Aug. 31. Pool. Rent neg. Call 256-6051 eve.

Summer Sublet: 2 bdrm. sunny apt., Northampton Cntr. 15 min. walk to bus. Reasonable. 586-4422.

3 bdrm. Townhouse Apts. June-Aug. $270 or B.O. Call 549-1211 morn., eves.

Summer Sublet: Option to renew. 2 bdrm. Pres. Apt. Walk to campus. 549-5898.

Gorgeous 3 bedrm. apt. 63 Graves St., So. Deerfield, on bus rt. Apt. is very unique, must be seen, call 665-7193.

1 br. in 3 br. Puffton Vill. Apt. Furn., pool, tennis courts. 549-0611. May 31 thru August 31.

2 br. apt. w-huge yard-garden. On bus rt. June 1-Sept. 1. 253-2819. Keep trying.

2 bdrm. apt. Brandywine 6-1—8-31. Bus route, pool, pets. Rent neg. 549-1517 aft. 5.

June 1-Aug. 31. Colonial Village. Bus rt. 2 bdrms., semi-furnished. Call 253-3684.

2 bdrm. apt., Squire Vill., bus rt., 1½ baths, LR, DR, kitch., avail. now. Call 665-2203 or 665-3985. Anytime.

4 bdrm. townhouse on bus route. Furn., air cond., pool. June - Sept. 256-0337.

Sublet — June 1 - Aug. 31. 3 bdrm. apt. in So. Amherst on bus route, pool, air cond., veg. garden, large yard, quiet atmos. $220—mo. 253-5136 anytime.

Shutesbury — 2 bdrm. apt. Sublease Fall option. $225, heat incl. Call 256-0575.

2 br. apt., furn., pool, pets. June 1 - Aug. 31. ½ of May free. $150—mo. Squ. Vil. 665-2904.

3 bdrm. townhouse. 3-4 m to campus. Jun-Sept. 1. 2 bus rtes. Call 549-4855.

PERSONALS

Lizzy F - (Amazon woman) How does it feel to be 19? Love Little Pigmie, D.L.

Happy Birthday, Sarah Harper. Love, Ron.

To the person who stole my radio at Britt. Manor, Sun. a.m. I have witnesses — I don't want any trouble just my radio back. Call Dave at 256-6111 or drop it off at CC Lost and Found. No questions.

PERSONALS

LDP — Unity without the loss of individuality, sisterhood, and a lifetimes supply of memories. Thank you.

To CBS: My sore saddle, my godhood and me think you're the nicest! With much love, pretty eyes.

LN, Six months have been the best. Forever starts today. I love you, Effo.

Janice X — I've been thinking of you ever since I saw you in that Florida tan. Would love to see more of it. P.K.

Congratulations to the mother of us all — Sue, now you can play mother legite.

To the Lady I have the most to learn from: Happy Birthday! More than ¼ century old, but less than one-third of your life, here is to the rest (best) two-thirds! Love, T.

To the girl with the great lips, if they say the first year is only the beginning, then the best is yet to come. —Scoop—

LJD, thanks for SUPERBEAR. I like him a lot: you're alright too. AJF.

My dearest prince - one only understands the things one tames. Happy 3rd. Love you always, Rosalita.

Luxury two bedroom apt. in Sunderland for summer sublet. On UMass bus route, swimming pool and tennis courts. All utilities included in low, low rent. Call 665-4729 anytime.

Louise with the hot-cross buns — I am intrigued by your way with words. Can we get together some time? You know who!

SERVICES

Tune-up and main all AM makes. John 253-5664.

Expert typing. Call Melanie 256-6174.

Is your stereo not working? The Audio Servicenter can fix your amplifier, receiver, turntable, tape deck, speakers. Over three years of fast service and low rates. 274 North Pleasant St. Call 256-0524 for estimate. Tues. - Sat., 10-5:30.

Men and trucks for hire. You bot it, we'll haul it. John, 549-6878; Gil, 253-3370.

Passport and application photos done. Quick professional service. Also pics for CPA-GRE. CONTACT: Steven at 546-9653.

MISCELLANEOUS

Write for films and TV. Experienced professionals with valuable industry. Contacts offer editorial and marketing aid. Do not send manuscripts. Write: Screen Writers Service, 2064 APS, Santa Barbara, CA. 93103.

TAG SALE

Antiques, furniture, clothes, plants & lots of collectibles. 120 Amnity St. 549-5470. Sat. 4-9, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. Everything must go! We're going west.

ENTERTAINMENT

Oldies to disco Bob the DJ has all limited booking avl. Call Bob 536-6075.

Disco inferno, Fri., April 8, 9 p.m. - 1 a.m. 10th fl. Campus Center. Adm. $1.

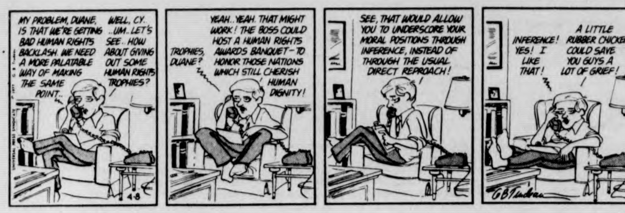
CALCULATORS

New Prices! College Calculators services all T.I.'s for entire warranty! SR-52, $189; SR-56, $82; SR-51, $58; SR-40, $33; Commodore 1800 Scientific, $34.95. All HP's avail! Call and check our prices and service. Call Bob or Linda anytime 549-1316.

REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! REACH 25,000 READERS DAILY!!!! Little Ads Get BIG RESULTS!!!!

DOONESBURY by Gary Trudeau

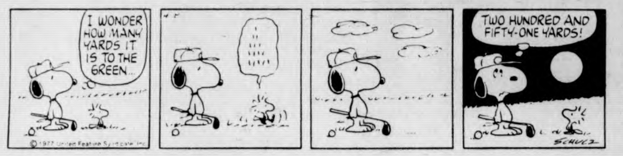
Valley
29 S. Pleasant St.
call 256-6736
M-F 10-6 S 10-2



MY PROBLEM, DUANE, IS THAT WE'RE GETTING BAD HUMAN RIGHTS BACKLASH. WE NEED A MORE PALATABLE WAY OF MAKING THE SAME POINT..
WELL, CY.. ..UM.. LET'S SEE.. HOW ABOUT GIVING OUT SOME HUMAN RIGHTS TROPHIES?
TROPHIES, DUANE?
YEAH.. YEAH. THAT MIGHT WORK! THE BOSS COULD HOST A HUMAN RIGHTS AWARDS BANQUET – TO HONOR THOSE NATIONS WHICH STILL CHERISH HUMAN DIGNITY!
SEE, THAT WOULD ALLOW YOU TO UNDERSCORE YOUR MORAL POSITIONS THROUGH INFERENCE, INSTEAD OF THROUGH THE USUAL DIRECT REPROACH!
INFERENCE! YES! I LIKE THAT!
A LITTLE RUBBER CHICKEN COULD SAVE YOU GUYS A LOT OF GRIEF!
4-8
GBTrudeau

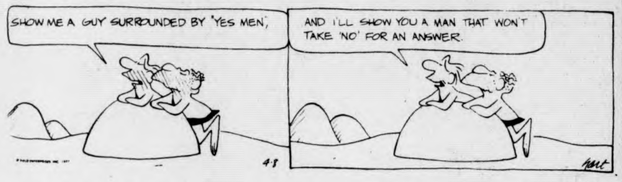
PEANUTS by Charles Schulz

STYLES BY DEBORAH
PERSONAL STYLE CUT $5.00
TELE 549 5610



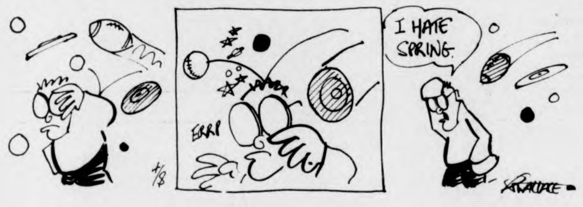
I WONDER HOW MANY YARDS IT IS TO THE GREEN...
TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY-ONE YARDS!
© 1977 United Feature Syndicate, Inc.
SCHULZ

B.C. by Johnny Hart



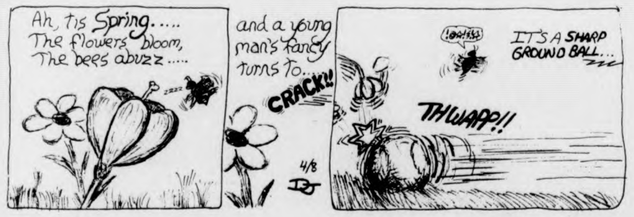
SHOW ME A GUY SURROUNDED BY 'YES MEN',
AND I'LL SHOW YOU A MAN THAT WON'T TAKE 'NO' FOR AN ANSWER.
4-8
hart

HARRY FIG by Peter Wallace



ERRP
I HATE SPRING.
4/8
WALLACE

WHAT NEXT? by Dick Janssen



Ah, tis Spring..... The flowers bloom, The bees abuzz..... zzzz
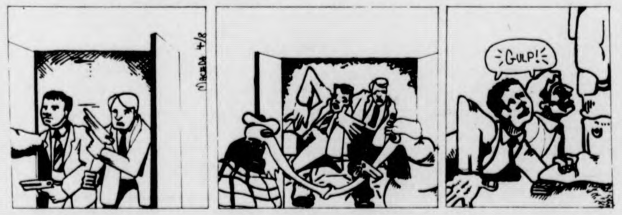
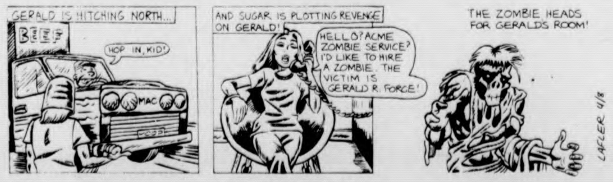
and a young man's fancy turns to....
CRACK!!
THWAPP!!
IT'S A SHARP GROUND BALL...
4/8
DJ

U.MUTATIONS by Marty Maceda



MACEDA 4/8
GULP!

ALUMINUM GHOST by Steve Lafler



GERALD IS HITCHING NORTH...
BEEF
HOP IN, KID!
MAC
AND SUGAR IS PLOTTING REVENGE ON GERALD!
HELLO? ACME ZOMBIE SERVICE? I'D LIKE TO HIRE A ZOMBIE. THE VICTIM IS GERALD R. FORCE!
THE ZOMBIE HEADS FOR GERALD'S ROOM!
LAFLER 4/8

Local Television

7:00 3 22 40 NEWS
8 CONCENTRATION
18 FESTIVAL OF FAITH
24 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
27 THE FBI "The Chameleon"
30 CROSS-WITS
38 THE ODD COUPLE
56 STAR TREK
57 THE WAY IT WAS
7:30 3 MATCH GAME
8 ACTION NEWSMAKERS
22 ETCETERA
24 CONNECTICUT
30 THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES
38 DICK VAN DYKE SHOW
40 THE MUPPET SHOW
56 FAMILY AFFAIR
57 THE MACNEIL-LEHRER REPORT
8:00 3 HERE COMES PETER COTTON TAIL
8 40 THE DONNY AND MARIE OSMOND SHOW
22 30 SANFORD AND SON "I Dream Of Choo Choo Rabinowitz"
24 57 WASHINGTON WEEK IN REVIEW
8:30 22 30 CHICO AND THE MAN "Uncle Sonny"
24 57 WALL STREET WEEK
38 WILDLIFE THEATER
9:00 3 NASHVILLE 99
8 40 ABC FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE "Bang The Drum Slowly"
22 30 THE ROCKFORD FILES "The Oracle Wore A Cashmere Suit"
24 AGRONSKY AT LARGE
56 NATIONAL GEORGRAPHIC SPECIAL
57 57 REPORTS: MASSACHUSETTS
9:30 18 THE PTL CLUB
24 AMERICANA
57 AGRONSKY AT LARGE
10:00 3 HUNTER
22 30 POLICE WOMAN "Trial By Prejudice"
24 57 DOCUMENTARY SHOWCASE
27 NEWS
56 LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE
10:30 27 CHAMPIONSHIP BOXING
11:00 3 8 22 30 40 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS
56 BEST OF GROUCHO
57 MARY HARTMAN, MARY HARTMAN
11:30 3 MASTER'S GOLF HI-LITES
8 GREAT EIGHT, LATE NIGHT, FRIGHT FLICK "Frankenstein Meets The Wolfman"
18 DR. SCOTT ON HEBREW
22 30 THE JOHNNY CARSON SHOW
38 MOVIE "The Floating Dutchman"
40 S.W.A.T. "Murder By Fire"
11:40 3 FRIDAY SPECTACULAR MOVIE "Tobruk"
12:00 27 MOVIE "Calamity Jones"
12:37 40 DRAGNET
1:00 8 40 NEWS
18 THE 700 CLUB
22 30 THE MIDNIGHT SPECIAL
1:40 3 NEWS, WEATHER

Your Birthday

by Stella Wilder

Friday, April 8— Born today, you are one of those persons who feels from his earliest years that he has a mission in life. Never have you been one to move from endeavor to endeavor, project to project, searching for something to take your time and mind at the same time that it brings you profit of a spiritual as well as a material kind. You will quite early in life hit upon the one thing that interests you most, the one thing at which you can be happily engaged throughout your days. It may not be the sort of thing that will bring you riches -- but it will bring you a livelihood. It may not be the sort of thing that will bring you to the attention of those who influence fame in your favor -- but it will bring you satisfaction.

You are a determined individual when embarking upon any enterprise that engages your mind. You refuse to allow any obstacle placed in your way to have the final say on whether or not you will succeed or fail in your undertaking. On the other hand, you are wise enough not to attempt to do battle with barriers you cannot surmount or remove; rather, you take the psychological approach and attempt to persuade those who set the barriers up in the first place to change their minds. Thus it is that you often get your way at the same time that you convert a would-be enemy into a friend and co-worker.

Yours is an analytical mind, which, when combined with intellectual curiosity, enables you to confront your problems head-on -- and solve them in the same way.

* * *

Saturday, April 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Do your part today and you will not have yourself to blame should things take a turn for the worse at evening. Deliberate before making a decision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Make an effort to analyze your situation before you make an irrevocable decision concerning it. Take time to reconsider.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Others are quick to lose confidence in one who does not live up to promises. Stick to those activities you know you can perform.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Misunderstanding causes a breach that may be difficult to heal if left overlong. Make a special effort to contact a loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Home and employment scene matters merge into a single cause for renewed effort. Success at evening brings fresh gain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Speak hastily today and you will surely regret it. Think over carefully the several options open to you now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — A fondness for expensive things may bring you to the brink of disaster today. Keep one eye on the budget, especiallly early in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — You can proud of your accomplishments -- but you must also be modest in speaking of them. Accept praise from the elderly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Spend whatever time is necessary to come to terms with yourself regarding involvement in a new society. Don't be "pushy."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Don't carry your fight into the enemy's camp. You would do well to hold your tongue and bide your time.

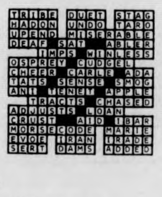
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Rewards for achievement are less than you had been led to believe they would be. Don't be disappointed; strive for better things.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Persistence is essential if you are to make the kind of gains available to you today. Menial tasks take on a certain splendor in the afternoon.

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate

Thursday's Puzzle Solved:



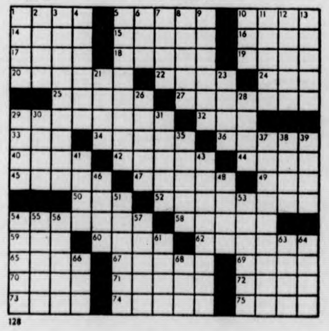
TRIBE DUET STAG
HADON UNDO TARO
UPEND MISERABLE
DEAF SAT ABLER
IMPS WINLESS
OSPREY CUDGEL
CHEER CARLE ADA
TATS SENSE SMOG
ANI TENET APPLE
TRACTS CHASED
ADJUSTS LOAN
CRUST AID IBAR
MORSECODE MARIE
EVOE TRAN TRADE
SERT DAMS ADDED

ACROSS

1 Wild animal's track
5 Baby grand
10 Soda fountain creation
14 Hawaiian winsstorm
15 Playwright ----- Rice
16 Felipe, Mateo or Jesus ----: Baseballer
17 Big time: Slang: 2 words
18 Type style
19 Black: Poet.
20 Throws
22 College exam
24 Partake of
25 General sense
27 Ocean vessel
29 Trolley tracks: 2 words
32 Aural sensitivity
33 Clay, today
34 Papas
36 Copenhagen citizens
40 Hourglass material
42 Illuminated: 2 words
44 Machete
45 Provoke
47 Deceives
49 Strike gently
50 Feel pain
52 Birds
54 Gas station giveaway: 2 words
58 Memento from the past
59 The greatest possible
60 Stay during a trip
62 Very bad
65 Foible
67 Voluptuous woman
69 Lie at anchor
70 Evangelical: Abbr.
71 Actress Vera -----
72 Currier's colleague
73 Make loans
74 Eurasian sandpiper
75 Penny

DOWN

1 Card game
2 Graphic emblem
3 "Like a puppet -- - ------"
4 Drapery ornament
5 Done in person
6 Labor org.
7 Ammunition: Informal
8 Approaches
9 Flowery
10 Miss West
11 Group of records
12 Unfettered
13 Piano ----: Instrument mechanic
21 Patient wife
23 Soft metal
26 Performed again
28 Bedouin
29 Toronto's ---- Loma
30 ---- Shepard: Astronaut
31 --- -- and took notice
35 ----- cargo
37 Inert: 2 words
38 Flair
39 Soaks in liquid
41 ---- reckoning
43 Woman's cape
46 Brinks
48 Sunken missile shelter
51 Light foam
53 Kind of acid
54 Tangle
55 Martini ingredient
56 N. American highway
57 Eng. Channel port
61 Whine
63 Former British Prime Minister
64 Insect colony
66 Result
68 Clergyman's title: Abbr.



128

Hey, Boo-Boo! Happy Birthday, MarciaBrooks!

AIR FORCE ROTC
The facts of the matter.

With something as important as your future being discussed, it's very urgent that you get and understand all the facts. Air Force ROTC can be an important part of your future, and we'd like to take this opportunity to outline some of the main facts of that matter and invite you to look further into the subject.

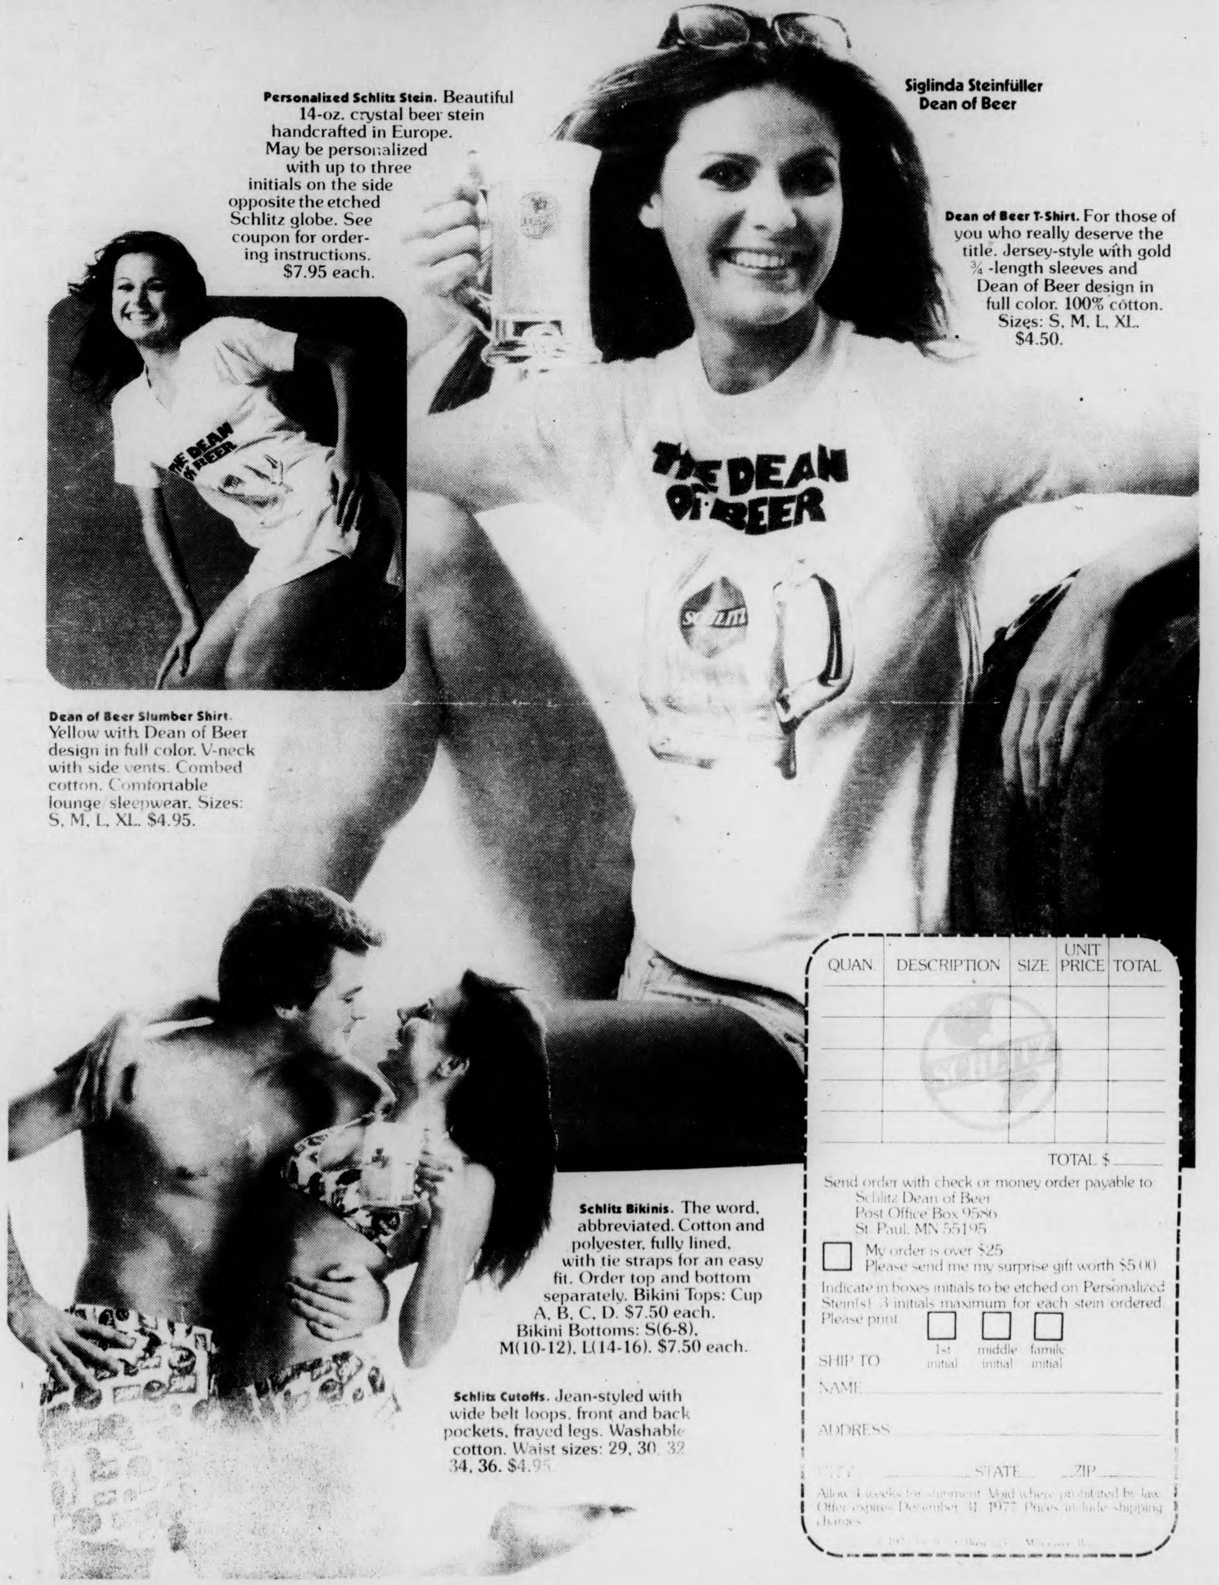
The U.S. Air Force needs highly qualified dedicated officers. Both men and women, and we need people in all kinds of educational disciplines. Air Force ROTC offers 4-year, 3-year and 2-year scholarships with $100 monthly tax-free allowance, and contrary to what some people think, there is no military obligation during the first two years of the Air Force ROTC.

Upon college graduation you'll receive a commission in the U.S. Air Force and the opportunity to compete for a challenging job with advanced educational opportunities.

Let's get together and discuss Air Force ROTC further. We'll give you all the facts and clear up the fictions. It could be one of the most important talks you've ever had with anyone.

Call Major Richardson
at 545-2437
Air Force ROTC

THE DEAN OF BEER HAS AUTHORIZED THE FOLLOWING WAYS OF GETTING THE WORD.



THE DEAN OF BEER
SCHLITZ

Siglinda Steinfüller
Dean of Beer

Personalized Schlitz Stein. Beautiful 14-oz. crystal beer stein handcrafted in Europe. May be personalized with up to three initials on the side opposite the etched Schlitz globe. See coupon for ordering instructions. $7.95 each.

Dean of Beer T-Shirt. For those of you who really deserve the title. Jersey-style with gold ¾-length sleeves and Dean of Beer design in full color. 100% cotton. Sizes: S, M, L, XL. $4.50.

Dean of Beer Slumber Shirt. Yellow with Dean of Beer design in full color. V-neck with side vents. Combed cotton. Comfortable lounge/sleepwear. Sizes: S, M, L, XL. $4.95.

Schlitz Bikinis. The word, abbreviated. Cotton and polyester, fully lined, with tie straps for an easy fit. Order top and bottom separately. Bikini Tops: Cup A, B, C, D. $7.50 each. Bikini Bottoms: S(6-8), M(10-12), L(14-16). $7.50 each.

Schlitz Cutoffs. Jean-styled with wide belt loops, front and back pockets, frayed legs. Washable cotton. Waist sizes: 29, 30, 32, 34, 36. $4.95.

QUAN.	DESCRIPTION	SIZE	UNIT PRICE	TOTAL

TOTAL $ ______

Send order with check or money order payable to:
Schlitz Dean of Beer
Post Office Box 9586
St. Paul, MN 55195

☐ My order is over $25
Please send me my surprise gift worth $5.00

Indicate in boxes initials to be etched on Personalized Stein(s). 3 initials maximum for each stein ordered. Please print ☐ 1st initial ☐ middle initial ☐ family initial

SHIP TO
NAME ______
ADDRESS ______
CITY ______ STATE ______ ZIP ______

Allow 4 weeks for shipment. Void where prohibited by law. Offer expires December 31, 1977. Prices include shipping charges.

Green grabs Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. [UPI] — A victory in the Masters Golf Tournament would end Hubert Green's identity crisis, and Green took a big step in that direction yesterday when he grabbed a two-shot first round lead with a 5-under-par 67.

Green is not exactly one of the faceless legions on the PGA tour with 11 tournament victories in six years, but then again, he's not what you would call a household name, either.

That's because most of his victories have occurred in non-televised tournaments in which Jack Nicklaus — who was five shots behind him Thursday — did not play, and which hardly anybody saw. Green grabbed the headlines briefly last year when he managed to win three successive tournaments, but the streak ended when he took a week off and he has not won since.

Thursday, Green played nearly flawless golf, hitting 16 greens, using only 30 putts and, in general, hitting the ball "just about where I wanted it on every hole."

"The Masters is a very important part of our tour and of my life," said Green, who finished ninth here in 1974 and eighth in 1975.

"I've geared my game for the Masters. I've geared myself to win a major championship. I've won 11 tournaments on the tour, but I need to win the Majors. That's where Jack and the rest of the top players stand out.

"Winning one major wouldn't make me a great player, but it would get me on the doorstep toward it."

Don January, the 47-year-old hero of the geriatric set, shared second place at 69, three under par, with 24-year-old Bill Kratzert, who earned his invitation as a member of the winning team in the national team championship. January earned his share of second despite continuing problems with his aching back that forced him to stand all through a post-round interview "because if I sit down, I'll get stiff, and then I won't be able to practice."

January was the first player to tee off and Kratzert the last on a mild, sunny and breezy day at the Augusta National Golf Club Course in this, the first of the year's four major tests of greatness that comprise golf's grand slam.

Five players were a stroke further back at 70 — leading money winner Tom Watson, U.S. Open Champion Jerry Pate, Hale Irwin, Tom Kite and Rik Massengale.

Ray Floyd, the defending champion, and Ben Crenshaw, runnerup a year ago, shot 71 S.

Perry proves he's human but still a superb athlete

By JUDY VAN HANDLE
Collegian Staff

The phenom was in town Wednesday.

You know the type. The all-around athlete. The guy who can play any sport with equal skill and excel in all. The guy who has the penchant for winning games with extraordinary efforts.

But not only is he an athlete. He receives top grades in the classroom. He is polite to one and all. He is popular and personable. He is the All-American boy.

By this time you must also know his name. Ronnie Perry.

But Wednesday wasn't the phenom's day to shine. His team lost after leading for most of the game. He went 1-4, and struck out once. And the winning hit grounded into center field past his outstretched glove.

Ronnie Perry did not leap tall buildings in a single bound. He did not win the game with a two-out, three-run homer. He did not grab the headlines. For once, the phenom was mortal.

He was human.

But Perry's exploits during basketball season for Holy Cross were just downright incredible. The highest-scoring freshman in the nation, Perry averaged 24 points a game to rank 16th among Division I scorers. He also was 11th in free thrown percentage. He led his team to the NCAA playoffs. Ironically, he was forced to sit out the Crusaders opening-round loss to Michigan with a severely sprained ankle.

But baseball is a little different story. Although reputed to be an excellent shortstop, he plays for a mediocre team. Perry is 1-8 at the plate so far this year, as he is just now starting to come around after the basketball injury.

And what of the ankle?

"It's coming along pretty well," Perry said after Holy Cross' 7-5 loss to UMass. "It still isn't perfect. It tends to stiffen up but then when I run on it and work out, it loosens up."

Perry thought back to basketball season and the NCAA tournament.

"It was a real thrill just to be there. Even though I was injured and couldn't play, it was still great going to the tourney."

But what of jumping from hoop right into the diamond sport?

"It wasn't a letdown, even though we lost. For four years (high school) I jumped right into basketball after baseball. I'm used to going from one into the other."

It also helps to have a basketball coach who doesn't object to his star athlete risking himself in another sport. "There's no problem there," Perry said.

In the fall, Perry plays baseball for a couple of weeks and then goes back to basketball practices.

And guess what Perry did in his first at-bat for the Crusaders last fall?

He hit a two-run homer.

Ron Perry, the Holy Cross freshman sensation, laces a pitch in Wednesday's game. Spring is his time to play baseball. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

No, it isn't baseball in December. But it is baseball in April at Lorden Field, as Minuteman catcher Charlie Ciccone and the 'man in blue' will vouch to. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Yanks take opener

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter, baseball's highest paid pitcher, earned his paycheck with seven innings of three-hit pitching and "bargain purchase" Jim Wynn homered in his first AL at bat yesterday to lead the New York Yankees to a 3-0 season opening victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Hunter, coming off a mediocre 17-15 season during which he suffered from tendonitis in his right shoulder, was in mid-season form as he struck out five and retired 13 of the last 14 batters he faced before leaving in favor of Sparky Lyle after seven innings.

Wynn, purchased from Atlanta during the winter, for $110,000 — a relatively low sum compared to what the Yankees shelled out for free agents — hit a 440-foot homer over the center field fence in the second inning to give the American League defending champions a 1-0 lead. It was the 291st career homer for Wynn, who spent the previous 14 seasons in the National League.

CAMP TRAILS • KELTY • JAN SPORT • ALPINE DESIGNS • SIGG • JASQUE • WHITE STAG • MIRRO • WOOLRICH • PETER STORM • PALCO • COLEMAN • NORTH FACE • EUREKA • OPTIMUS

Annual Spring
SALE
And Early Buy Promotion
April 1st thru April 16, 1977
Weekdays 9 to 5:30
Thursday and Friday Nights to 9 p.m.
Saturday 9 to 5

HIKING and BACKPACKING EQUIPMENT

Our annual SPRING SALE and EARLY BUY TENT PROMOTION will be held April 1st thru the 16th. Selected items throughout the store will be at special low sale prices and a Early Buy on all our tents will be offered. This might be the best time to come in and browse thru the largest selection of quality camping and backpacking equipment. Free 96 page catalog with a copy of this ad.

Don Gleason's
CAMPERS SUPPLY, INC.
Pearl Street, Northampton, Mass.
Exit 18 I-91
Master Charge Accepted

PETE'S
PACKAGE STORE
144 SUMMER ST., N. AMHERST
Why fight traffic? - Easy Parking
TELEPHONE – 256-6828

Rt. 116
Townhouse Brandywine
Post Office
PETE'S
Puffer's Pond
Summer Street
Sand Hill Rd.
Pine St.
Puffton Vil. Pres. Apts.
Crestview
N. Pleasant St.
E. Pleasant
U. Mass
U. Mass
N
U. Mass
First Right After Post Office

Budweiser $1.75 6/pk $5.69 case 12oz. N.R.
Schlitz $1.75 6/pk $5.69 case 12 oz. cans
Ballentine Ale $1.45 6/pk &dp $5.50 case &dp 16 oz. ret.
Tuborg Gold $1.55 6/pk $5.69 case 12 oz. N.R.
PROMPT — FREE DELIVERY
Not Responsible for Typographical Errors.
Open 84 hrs./wk. to serve you!
Monday thru Saturday 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Seek second straight win

Netmen in 'tough' home opener

By MIKE SMOLENS
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's tennis team, coming off an astonishing upset over Williams on Wednesday, face Tufts University this afternoon in the netmen's first home match at 3:00 p.m. on the Boyden upper courts.

"Tufts is going to be every bit as strong as Williams," said UMass coach Bill Brown yesterday in a typically cautious pre-game mood. "But," he allowed, "if we're at our best we'll take 'em."

Whether or not the Minutemen will be at their best for each match is the best question for Brown this spring. He knows he has a team loaded with talent which could be highly successful (undefeated?) this season. "But anyone can have an off day," worries Brown.

"Tufts will be tough," Brown said. Last spring the netmen lost to Tufts 6-3 in Medford. However, road games plagued the tennis team last spring as it lost every away match. The netmen took their first road test of the season last Wednesday and passed with flying colors.

Barring inconsistency and overconfidence, UMass should be 2-0 when today's match is over.

"Our biggest mistake would be to underestimate Tufts," Brown said.

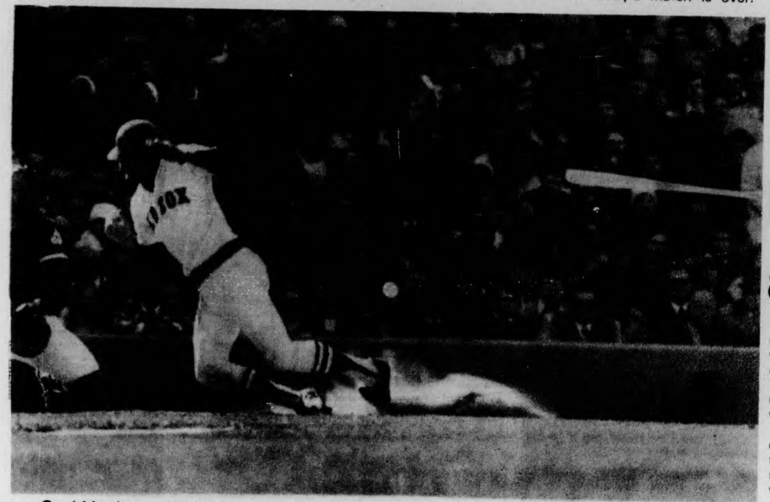
Tufts is the second best team on the UMass schedule, according to Brown, with Williams at the top of the list. MIT, which also beat the Minutemen last spring, comes to town next week to provide yet another difficult hurdle for the netmen early in the season. Some skeptics figured UMass would trip on the first one.

"Sally Ogilvie (ex-women's tennis coach at UMass) said to me, 'I hope you get at least a few points' before we left for Williams," said Brown.

Brown was also somewhat skeptical before the Williams match. Understandably, he was overjoyed at the results. "Everybody did their best. They all gave one hundred and fifty per cent."

Consistency is still Brown's biggest worry. With the exception of Holy Cross and Springfield College, every team the Minutemen face should give them a run for their money. Although the Minutemen have the talent to take any match on the schedule, they'll have to be on top of their game throughout the season to do it.

LET SERVES — Jimmy Barnhart is comfortable at his new position, fifth singles. Last fall he played in the fourth slot. ... Ever wonder why Bjorn Borg never wears down? His heart beat per minute rate is down around 30 ... Bill Brown ends his UMass coaching career this season. He'll be moving to Colorado sometime after spring semester.



Carl Yastrzemski hits the dirt after being hit on the hand by a Dennis Eckersley pitch in yesterday's opener at Fenway Park. Yastrzemski may miss several games with a deep bruise. (UPI photo)

Bosox blow lead and lose in debut

BOSTON (UPI) — Frank Duffy dashed home from third with the winning run on Duane Kuiper's one-out slow bouncer to first in the 11th inning yesterday to give the Cleveland Indians a 5-4 opening day victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Indians, who tied the game on Buddy Bell's two-run homer in the ninth off Boston's million dollar reliever Bill Campbell, set up the winning run when Duffy walked with one out in the 11th and advanced to third on Rick Manning's hit-and-run single. Campbell was the losing pitcher, while Cleveland reliever Dave LaRoche got the win.

The Red Sox took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Jim Rice singled, stole second and scored on Carl Yastrzemski's single to right. They increased it to 3-0 when Bernie Carbo and Dwight Evans hit back-to-back homers in the second. The last Boston run came in the eighth on a single by Rick Miller, a stolen base and a double by Carlton Fisk.

Bill Melton scored the first Cleveland run in the seventh by singling and advancing to second on Jim Rice's error in left field. He scored on Bell's single to left when Rice threw the relay to second base. The Indians' second run came on Manning's double and Rico Carty's single that knocked Ferguson Jenkins from the game in the eighth.

Yastrzemski left the game in the third inning after being hit on the left wrist by loser Dennis Eckersley. X-rays proved negative and Yastrzemski was expected to miss no more than one game.

Ruggers to get stiff test against Portland opponent

By RICHARD MOORE
Collegian Staff

The UMass rugby football club, coming off a 99-6 season-opening crushing of Norwich University, will get an idea of how good they really are Saturday against a tough Portland club at Portland, Maine.

Portland, a club that beat the Minutemen 22-8 last spring, scored a big upset win two weeks ago over a Providence club that was considered tops in New England.

UMass coach 'Doc' Laurence said, "Portland is perhaps the strongest club we will see until we get into tournament play."

"If we go there and win we know we've got something," Laurence added.

Portland is physically a much larger club than UMass, including two 6'6" forwards, and Laurence hopes to involve the Maine club in the kind of wide-open running game that UMass thrives on.

"We have to out-run them, "Laurence said. "If there are a lot of scrimmages and stops of play they'll wear us down."

The Minutemen are taking four sides to Portland, so at least 60 UMass rugby players will see action.

"Our D side will be very inexperienced," Laurence said, "but the key to the third and fourth sides is drills and fitness."

"Portland is not a college club, "Laurence added, "and their players have families and jobs, so I don't expect them to be as fit as our college kids."

Although the Minutemen won their first game 99-6 they had kicking problems (15 out of 20 missed conversions) and dedicated practice time to footwork.

"Hugh Chester-Jones and Andy Middleton (A and B kickers) kicked enough in practice to get tired legs," Laurence said, "and against Portland kicking points could make the difference."

"The Portland A side has a fly half with a good foot," Laurence added, "and they like to use him to kick their opponents into bad field position, but with Henry Brown and Brian Coolbaugh we've got the wing forwards to pressure him."

John Mulray, B side winger who played well against Norwich, will move up to the A side and replace injured captain Rick Lopes (fractured cheekbone) at wing. Tom Callahan, who Laurence described as "perhaps our best rucker," will replace Dave Whaley (home for Easter) on the A side forward line.

Rich Hendricks, B side captain (also going home), will be replaced at prop by Glen Conway and Alistar Lamond will move up from the C side to fill Mulray's spot.

Scrum Scraps — Rugby club was 21-12-1 last year...A side was undefeated against college sides (12-5-1 over all)...Mark Van Doren, C side fullback, is out with gashed knee and bruises...At last report there was still three inches of snow in Portland...Larry "Too Tall" Tebo anticipates pleasant reunion with Portland A side scrum half...Laurence won't make Portland trip.

Sports Calendar

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS
None
TODAY
VARSITY BASEBALL — vs. AIC Home 3:00
VARSITY TENNIS — vs. Tufts Home 3:00
TOMORROW
VARSITY MEN'S LACROSSE — vs. Cortland Away 2:00
VARSITY BASEBALL — vs. Northeastern (2) Home 1:00
VARSITY SOFTBALL — vs. Central Connecticut (2) Home 1:00
MEN'S CREW — vs. Marist Away
MEN'S WATER POLO — vs. BU, MIT Home 10:00
RUGBY — vs. Portland RFC Away 12:00

Oarsmen face rival in season opener

By BILL CARRINGTON
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's crew travels to Poughkeepsie, New York tomorrow afternoon with every intention of starting its season off on the right foot with a win over Marist College.

Marist is one of the traditional rivals of UMass, since they race each other in regular season each year before they meet again at the Dad Vail championships in Philadelphia.

UMass will be sending a varsity eight, junior varsity eight, and two freshman eights to the meet. The freshman "B" boat will race in a three-boat race with the "A" boat, as a limited freshman program at Marist limits it to only one freshman boat.

Coming off [illegible] in a scrimmage last Saturday, the varsity is expected to make a good showing. The junior varsity and freshman boats are hoping to smooth out the rough spots for this race, as they were defeated by MIT.

Although Marist is a small school, it places a great emphasis on crew. It is one of the few schools that actively recruit students who have had rowing experience in high school.

Saturday's race should prove to be intense, since the UMass varsity lost to Marist last year on the Connecticut River by only two seconds in an upset [illegible] years. UMass [illegible] fairly [illegible] Marist [illegible]

MIKE'S WESTVIEW
This Saturday April 9 country style music
SOUTHBOUND
no cover
no admission

Batsmen host two foes

By MIKE BERGER
Collegian Staff

The streaking UMass baseball team, now 8-7, (5-1 in northern play) and winners of five of its last six games, will be seeking three more victories this weekend as AIC and Northeastern will be the opposition. Gametime is slated for 3:00 today against AIC and 1:00 Saturday for the twinbill with Northeastern.

The games will all be played at Earl Lorden field with the weather predicted to be cloudy and temperatures in the 40's.

The surprisingly cold weather of the last week could be a definite factor in the outcomes of these games. Jerry Erb will be picked by coach Dick Bergquist to pitch today's game with either Jeff Reardon and junior Tom Nigro pitching one game of the doubleheader and relief pitchers Dave Tewhill and Christ Kirby splitting the second game.

Nigro, now 3-1 on the season, and Reardon pitched in Wednesday's 9-7 come-from-behind win against Holy Cross. According to Bergquist both were not their best and attributed it to the cold weather.

"I didn't think either Tom or Jeff could really loosen up enough because of the cold weather. They seemed like they were too tight. Even though they have had two days of rest, if both of their arms feel tight I won't risk pushing them," said Bergquist.

AIC, coached by Rich Bedard, younger brother of assistant UMass coach Jim Bedard, is a young but hustling team according to Bergquist's scouting reports.

"Even though AIC is in Division II, they are a good team. They have rebuilt their team, emphasizing pitching, speed, and defense and are a good team," said Bergquist.

Pitching against UMass today will be Ken Bourque last week's player of the week against in Division II. Against Hartford College, Bourque pitched a four-hitter and struck out 16 in a 2-0 win.

"Bourque is a lefthander and throws very hard. He is the finest pitcher AIC has ever produced," Bergquist said.

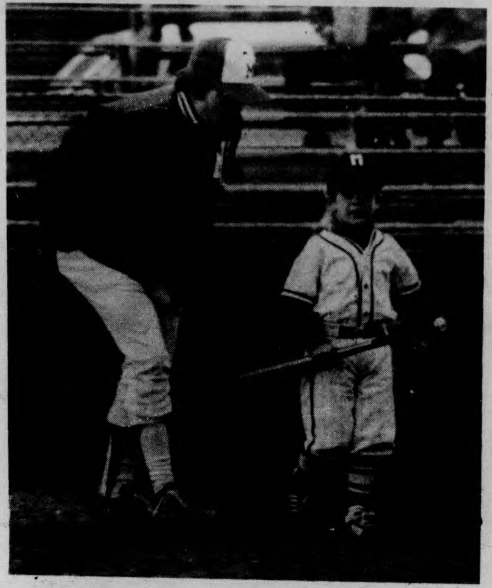
Northeastern, 2-3 on the season, was an earlier victim to UMass, 8-0. In that game, Nigro pitched a four-hitter and pitcher Paul Bilaqua was pounded by UMass batting. Either Belaqua, Bob Bird (from Needham), or Mike Brunor (from Milford) will pitch in the games on Saturday.

"Northeastern didn't look that impressive against us. They had average college pitching but their bats were silent. In order for Northeastern to beat us, they have to hit and on paper, they have the people to do it, said Bergquist.

Joe Annesi, an All-New England third baseman, batted .335 with four home runs and 26 RBI's last year. Infielder Mark McHugh and Dave Columbo (son of Brockton High School football coach Peter Columbo) have hit against UMass in the past.

While pitching has been winning the games lately for UMass, the hitting, according to Bergquist, is developing faster than the expected and he certainly isn't complaining.

Paul Abramowicz (4-5 in Wednesday's game) is right around the .300 batting mark to give the team two .300 hitters. Mike McEvilly is the team's hitter at .333 while freshman shortstop Jim Cullen is currently at .295. Abramowicz, McEvilly, Cullen, John Czerapowicz, and Neil Lojek each had two hits in the Minutemen's 15-hit attack against the Crusaders.



"So you want to be a Minuteman? Well, kid, it's like this..." Manager John Hendry and batboy Tim Bishko exchange pleasantries. (Staff photo by Chris Bourne)

Softballers host twinbill

By MEL WEBSTER
Collegian Staff

The UMass softball team will try to open its season again tomorrow afternoon at 1:00 when it takes on Central Connecticut in a doubleheader at NOPE Field.

The first game against Lowell University was rained out on Tuesday.

Coach Dianne Thompson will have co-captain Gail Matthews as one starter, with Gail Carter starting the other game. Sue Peters will handle the relief duty for both games.

The starting lineup will be the same as Thompson was going to use against Lowell, with Chris Verdini a definite at third base.

Joan Carew, back with the team after being out with nononucleosis for six weeks, is expected to see some action at shortstop in the second game. Elaine Howle will see some action at third in the second game, with Beth Collins working behind the plate.

Thompson said she expects almost everyone to see action in the doubleheader.

The Minutewomen lost to Central last year, 6-5, in eight innings, and Thompson expects the Blue Devils to be tough again this year.

"Central's pitching will be very strong," Thompson said. She added that Brenda Reilly, who works with Central's pitchers, coaches the Connecticut Falcons, the pro champions in 1976. Reilly is a retired pro pitcher.

Thompson said that her team's hitting has improved in the last few practices. "We have been stressing the aggressiveness it takes to be a good hitter, and this is going to be important against Central's pitchers," she said.

Co-captains Matthews and Heidi Dickson were very optimistic about the team's chances against Central.

"We're a very young team, and we really need a game to put all the talent we have together," Dickson said.

Matthews said that the team would be "aggressive on the bases." We're going to be dazzling," she said.

Collegian Sports

Gorillas travel to Cortland St. to settle neighborly grudge

By TOM CROWLEY
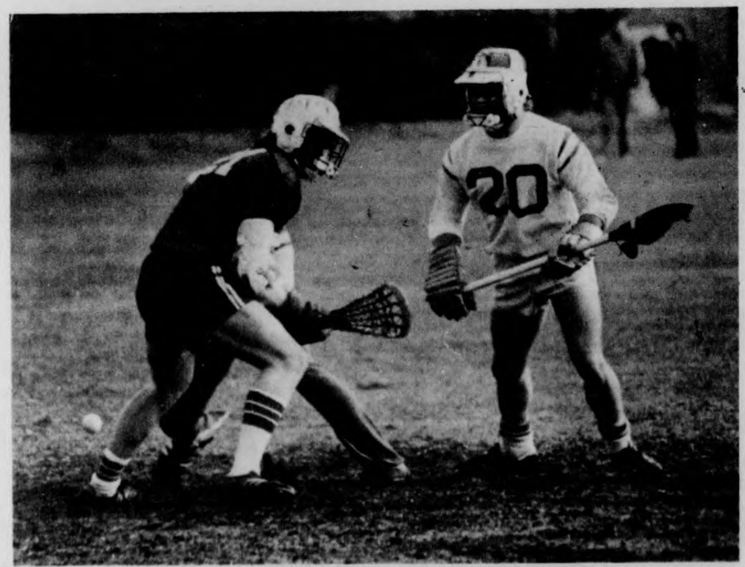
Collegian Staff



UMass midfielder Vinnie LoBello and a UConn counterpart follow the bouncing ball during action from Wednesday's game. Garber's Gorillas travel to New York tomorrow to take on Cortland State. (Staff photo by Jay Saret)

The UMass lacrosse team will make a trip to upper New York State to play Cortland State Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. starts a week of games against tough opponents.

After Cortland, the Gorillas face Dartmouth Wednesday and Rutgers Saturday, both games being at home. Dartmouth is improved and Rutgers was ranked seventh in the nation in the latest poll by the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

UMass cannot take the game with Cortland too lightly. "Heavens, no, we can't afford to be overconfident," coach Dick Garber said.

"They are reputed to have the best team they've had in three or four years. It's possible for either team to win."

The Red Dragons, second last year in Division II and ranked fourth nationally in that league, has given UMass strong tests in the past. Three years ago, Cortland beat UMass in a five-overtime game, 10-9, here. Since then, UMass has won all the meetings, but not by much. UMass prevailed in 1975, 11-10, and last year, 12-10.

The Red Dragons were 1-1 earlier this week, but they played games with North Carolina State Tuesday and Duke last night. No scores are available on those games.

The one sure loss was to a very good Virginia team, 9-8.

The win came over Roanoke College at a doubleheader at Hofstra. Down 6-2 at halftime, Cortland came back to win, 8-6, in overtime.

"Their attack is reputed to be strong, but after hearing about the Roanoke game when they shut them out for the second half and the overtime, the defense looks strong," Garber said.

The Cortland State lacrosse program is very strong. It is the college's biggest sport and it is located in the hot bed of lacrosse, western New York. Both Cornell and Ithaca are located near there.

The hot bed also creates some importance for the game. "Our players know the Cortland State players personally, either by playing on the same team or against each other. A lot of the UMass team is from New York state and it gets to be a real battle. It's for the bragging rights during the summer," the head Gorilla said.

UMass will be fairly healthy for the game. Mike Lettera will run at full strength, but Toby Rice might sit this one out.

Kevin Patterson will attempt to continue his offensive rampage as he has scored 12 goals in the last two games.

"He's had his best start ever, but he's playing like we anticipated and expected. He's playing with more enthusiasm and determination on his own part," Garber said.

The Gorillas will need a lot of their own determination to down the tough Red Dragons of Cortland State this Saturday. Hopefully, it won't take a magic sword to slay the dragon.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
VOLUME CVI, ISSUE 119
MONDAY, APRIL 11, 1977
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA. 01003 (413) 545-3500

Debbie Lee sings before an estimated 250 persons who attended a conference held in the Campus Center over the weekend entitled "Aspiring to Liberate".

Activist urges Asian-Americans to raise voices

By PAUL G. BLUMBERH
Collegian Staff

Asian-Americans must begin to express their opinions and raise their voices collectively if they are to continue their struggle as a minority in the United States.

Warren Furutani, an activist in national Asian-American affairs, gave this critique to more than 250 people from schools throughout the Northeast at a two-day conference held in the Campus Center over the weekend.

"We must take personal experience and share it with each other," he said Saturday. "We must seize our task and define our goals for the future."

Furutani was one of three speakers at the conference who equated the Asian American struggle with the struggle for freedom from oppression for all human beings.

Paul Wong, a coordinator of the conference entitled "Aspiring to Liberate," said it was designed to emphasize personal action through collective struggle. He said the Asian-American struggle was not in isolation but part of the "struggle of all working class people as well as all Third World people."

Wong said the speakers emphasized. it was important for minorities "not to struggle in each section and then bring them together, but to struggle within the context of the working class people."

Wong is a member of the Asian-American Student Association on campus; sponsor of the conference.

Carmen Chow, Asian-American activist and feminist from the West Coast, criticized the nation's education system as having "long denied equal rights to minorities."

She cited the Bakke case in which a white student claimed reverse discrimination when denied admission to a California college. "If this decision made by the California court is upheld, it will provide legal fuel to end all Third World special programs," she said.

Chow also called for Asian-Americans to bind together and fight for adequate housing, equal opportunity, and freedom from racism, as other minority peoples have been doing.

"Struggles in South Africa and other countries have helped to stimulate work in the Asian American movement," she said.

Asians have been an oppressed minority since their arrival in this country, explained Robert Suzuki, who gave a historical account on the Asian-American experience in the United States.

Suzuki, an associate professor of education at UMass who teaches in Asian studies, said racism has plagued the minority since its arrival in this country and cited the intense anti-Asian campaigns of the 19th and 20th centuries.

He mentioned a recent thesis which calls the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor "Roosevelt's Watergate." The thesis maintains the United States government might have known about the attack earlier than it claims it did.

Suzuki concluded his presentation with a discussion of current Asian-American groups that are trying to secure "greater upward social mobility, better housing, and equal opportunity under the law for all Asian-Americans." The groups, he advised, "need more effective law strategies for change."

The program Friday night culminated in a coffeehouse which explored aspects of Oriental life in this country. "Warriors of the Rainbow," a Los Angeles musical group, played stirring songs for liberty, unity and pride for all Asians.

Poets Marylyn Chin and Faye Chiang read selections from their works. In addition, there were presentations of various short dramatic scenes focusing on the damage of Asian stereotypes. These skits sought to shatter the misconceptions that all Asian-Americans are "passive, exotic and shallow people," according to coffeehouse participants.

The conference included a series of workshops dealing with Third World relations, community and University organizing, male-female interactions, and counseling support groups. The groups were designed to broaden Asian-American awareness of self-identity and the possibilities for collective political and social actions, major issues of the conference according to Wong.

The conference here followed a smaller one held at Yale University a week ago, Wong said. More than 40 New England schools were invited to the regional conference here.

College of Arts and Sciences reacts to reallocation plans

This is the second in a series of articles examining University programs and majors that stand to be effected by the provost's five-year plan. The provost sent his plan to deans and directors on March 24 and has asked them to respond by April 24.

By JOE QUINLAN
and MARY BROWN
Collegian Staff

Response to Provost Paul L. Puryear's five-year plan to reallocate University resources among the department heads in the College of Arts and Sciences, was polled by the Collegian over the weekend.

The College stands to lose 36 faculty if the plan is carried out as it now reads. Puryear has asked all University departments to respond to his plan by Friday.

Associate Director of the Office of Budgeting George Beatty said in a telephone interview Friday that budgets for the various departments and programs would not be drawn up until the provost's plan is fertilized.

Student Government Association President Jon Hite said he is concerned about the loss of faculties in liberal arts.

Hite said he thought it was "ridiculous" that the plan advocated a change to career-oriented disciplines. The programs the provost is cutting off, such as Asian Studies and Slavic Languages, prepare students for graduate work, which then offers a high degree of employability, he said.

According to the memo, a decline in traditional undergraduates will force the University to recruit older students, thus requiring a shift in academic emphasis.

Student demand and faculty-student ratios were also listed on the memo as factors in decision making.

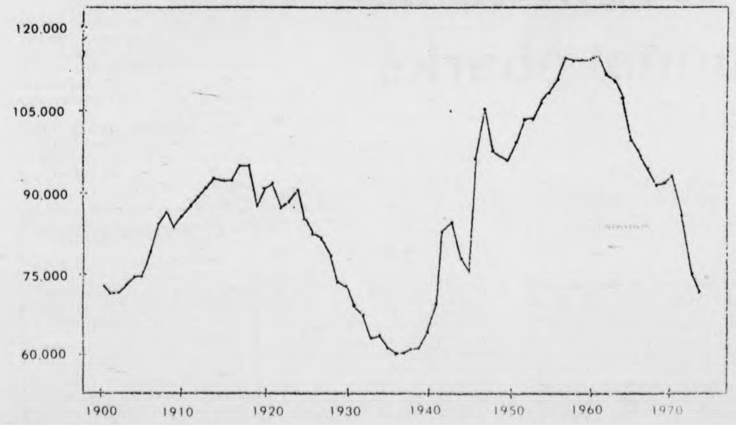
An emergency meeting of faculty in the humanities, called by the Massachusetts Society of Professors for Friday, drew about 50 professors to air complaints about the provost's plan, according to society President Larry S. Roberts.

Roberts, in a telephone interview last night, said the faculty "seem to be" ready to work through the union for a resolution of their problems.

The faculty union has not yet been recognized by the administration. Administrators are objecting to the unit's composition.

TURN TO PAGE 3

Live births in Massachusetts, 1900-1973



Graph Provost Puryear used to show declining birthrate will lower future enrollments at UMass.

inside

The UMass placement service aids students in their transition from a campus to a working environment. See page 2.

A University study reported that saccharin is not linked to bladder cancer in humans. See story Page 8.

Sen. Russell Long predicts President's Carter's $50 tax rebate plan is headed for Senate trouble. See story Page 9.

weather

Get high in the 60's

Attorney General plans action

Price hikes to spur suits

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts officials are about to unleash a barrage of antitrust suits, alleging collusion on price hikes for consumer goods and services.

Some of Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti's apparent targets include wholesalers of heating oil, gasoline and natural gas.

Within a year, Bellotti's antitrust lawyer Stephen Greenfogel predicts, the state will have 15 to 20 price-fixing suits filed and will add that many more annually.

The attorney general's new antitrust division is manned only by the lawyer — who started March 1 — and an investigator. But Bellotti is awaiting $250,000 to $300,000 in federal money which would permit the hiring of agents to probe new cases.

The money also would be used for computers to systematically detect price fixing. "It's so easy to accomplish and very hard to detect," Greenfogel said.

Most consumers barely notice a penny increase in the price of a supermarket item — but the small hike may be caused by collusion, he said.

"Food is a common type of price fixing violation," Greenfogel said.

In recent weeks, Massachusetts have filed two antitrust suits, alleging price fixing by chicken producers and sugar refiners. These suits will be incorporated in actions already under way in other states.

Meanwhile, the attorney general's office is seeking legislative approval of a bill that would strengthen the state's antitrust law, which has not been amended since 1915.

Massachusetts was one of the first to have such a statute, and though a handful of states still do not have laws permitting antitrust actions, most similar state laws now are more stringent than the one on the commonwealth's books.

The Massachusetts law permits fines of only $500 to $5,000 and does not allow the state to seek and recover damages.

Greenfogel said the penalties are so mild that the state law poses no threat to antitrust violators.

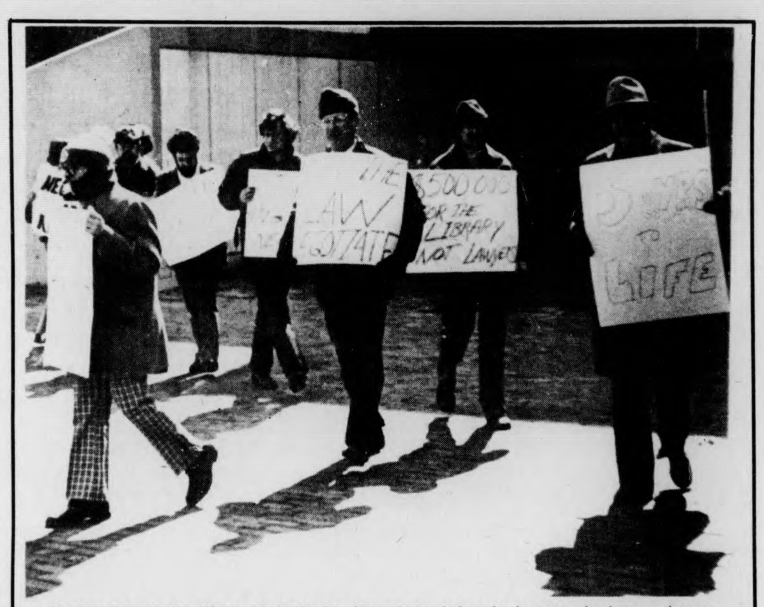
The pending measure would allow fines of $100,000 for an individual and up to $1 million for a corporation convicted of price fixing.

Under a federal law, if individuals or companies are convicted of antitrust violations that took place since October, state governments can demand damages for individual consumers.

In Arizona, where bread firms were convicted of price fixing, each family was given $10 by redeeming a coupon enclosed with each loaf of bread.

Greenfogel said that it is proper for states, rather than the federal government, to go after price fixers. Federal officials are too busy with a few major cases to handle the myriad of violations that can be uncovered at the state level, he said.

"States are reasserting their traditional role," he said.



THE LAW OF THE STATE
$500,000 FOR THE LIBRARY NOT LAWYERS

Professors make their protests to departmental cuts known during a demonstration Friday afternoon in front of Whitmore. (Staff photo by Patrick Dobbs)

OHAG restores Women's Center's purchase power

By LAWRENCE HIRSHBERG
Collegian Staff

The Orchard Hill Women's Center's purchasing power was reinstated last night after a heated debate. The reinstatement came only with a stipulation that the Center give a weekly report of their spending to OHAG treasurer Jeff Cohen, and report to the entire OHAG body at each meeting.

Debate on the issue centered around representative Charles Holmes' assertion that to give signature purchasing power to the Women's Center would set a precedent for other Orchard Hill centers to also receive signature power. Holmes claimed this could lead to misspent and irresponsible use of OHAG funds. Holmes' was the only vote against reinstatement.

ORCHARD HILL

Investigation into the spending of $17,000 on the Orchard Hill Snack Bar was continued last week by a committee chaired by OHAG vice-president Mark Hergenrother. Hergenrother says that the equipment and work done in the snack bar to date are worth only about $5,000. "Somebody's making a little extra money," Hergenrother said in his report to OHAG, last night.

In other action, OHAG passed a motion disapproving of Provost Paul L. Puryear's intended cuts in UMass' Slavic language and Asian Studies programs.

The OH Third World Center announced plans for a Mother's Day celebration on the Hill on May 8. The families of all Orchard Hill third world members will be invited to UMass for the celebration.

The OH Women's Center is presenting the play "A Raisin in The Sun", on Wednesday in Webster main lounge at 10 p.m.

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor Peter B. Wallace

Day Staff	Hilary Sallet
Photo Phunkies	Pat Dobbs
Head Darkroom Tech	Pat Buben
Ad Layout	Brian Campbell

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
At first you don't succeed, get an agent

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

	Semester	Year
Off campus	$9	$15
On campus delivery	$5	$9

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusettss, the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee. Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow two weeks for delivery to start.

The office of The Daily Collegian is in Room 113 of the Campus Center on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. Telephone 545-3500.

Second class postage is paid in Amherst, Massachusetts 01003. The Daily Collegian publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods, and holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879, as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

UMass placement aids careers

By D.A. CLARK
Collegian Staff

Whether you plan to go to work after graduation or have other interests, the University Placement Service may be of help to you in your efforts to solidify your future plans.

The Placement Service, located in Hampshire House next to Parking Lot No. 71 at Whitmore, functions as a support service which offers various resources and programs to aid in the transition from the campus to a working situation.

"It's a good idea for everyone to use it," said Mary Ellen, receptionist. "We help people to help themselves find jobs."

The Placement Service offers a credential service, where students may register and file credentials for present and future use when considering jobs, graduate school, or any other cause that requires recommendations and reference material; on-campus employer interviews when companies visit the University to find and recruit potential employes for their organizations; and the Career News, a weekly newsletter containing information about employment recruiters, career literature, special graduate programs, workshops, and special placement meetings.

Also offered by the Placement Service is the Placement Career Library, which contains notices of job openings, directories, corporation literature and other aids in making a job search; career advisors, who give information on the job market, as well as tips on job hunting techniques, employer interest, salary information and types of jobs available; and some 3-credit courses and workshops dealing with employment and career pursuits.

The Placement Service offers help to any major, Allen said, but success in the job search depends on how much work the individual is willing to put into it.

Student to sell model sharks

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The alarm clock goes off at 5:00 a.m. The young man rises from his bed, goes to his desk and begins work on his model shark.

Model shark? This is part of the daily routine of UMass junior Christian D. Behning. A marketing major, Behning is creating a line of model sharks to sell to UMass students sometime in December 1977. He is timing their release to coincide with the opening of the motion picture, Jaws 2.

"I was disappointed that I missed out on big sales when Jaws 1 was released," he said. "But I think this time around, there will be an even bigger market."

the 21-year-old "sharker" is planning two models (the "Mako" and the "Great White Shark") from the outset of the film's release. He will expand his operation if the UMass public accepts his product.

The sharks are made of a secret material that Behning himself has devised. He would not divulge the information for fear of imitators.

He estimates that the Mako will sell for "around $6", while the Great White will "go for around $10."

"I first became interested in making these replicas after I created one for one of my sister's high school class projects. The overwhelming response to my model has prompted me to undertake this venture," he said.

The Weymouth, Ma. native plans to test-market the product in the Campus Center sometime next fall.

Corrections

The woman in the front page photograph in the April 8th edition of the Collegian was incorrectly identified as Joan Gero. She is actually Regina Meindl.

The Collegian failed to identify one of the people in its April 8, Page 2 'When does sign language resemble dance?' The person quoted was Linda Harris.

★ Reallocation

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Asian Studies

Asian Studies Program head Ching-Mao Cheng Friday said although the provost's plan would phase out the program by 1982, "we will actually cease to exist by 1978."

Cheng explained that out of the six current faculty, one is on a temporary basis, and two of the five will not receive tenure if the plan is enacted, which will leave three faculty for the program.

There are 28 professors which the Asian Studies Program draws upon from other major areas of study, Cheng said.

Once the language has been cut off from the program, he said, the "core of the whole interdisciplinary offerings within the campus and fine arts will be lost."

Cheng said Puryear seems to be singling out Asian Studies for "prejudicial treatment". He said the provost's report "is contrary to the spirit and the letter of the Academic Program Task Force Report," from which the Puryear report derived.

The current student faculty ratio is 12.9 to 1, Cheng said, and there are currently 32 majors.

Cheng said Asian languages are becoming "the languages to know" because of economic growth in the Far East.

Slavic Languages

According to the report, "the student-faculty ratio of 7.4 to 1 is too low to make the program viable from a fiscal standpoint" and the program has been slated for abolishment by 1982.

Slavic Languages Chairperson Laszlo M. Tikos could not be reached for comment over the weekend.

History

History Department Chairperson Gerald W. McFarland defended his department, saying "liberal arts degrees are still marketable, even though history is not a vocationally-oriented department."

McFarland also defended graduate work being done in the department, saying only five per cent of the budget goes for doctoral candidates.

The provost's report pointed to the department's doctoral program as an area which might be cut.

McFarland said there are 3200 students enrolled in the department's courses, and about 370 majors.

"The report did not look closely enough at problematic situations," he said, such as courses the history department offers for other departments and programs. These could be cut if the Puryear report is enacted as it now stands, he said.

Nine professors are scheduled to be cut under the provost's plan. McFarland said 36 out of 44 are tenured.

German

The German Department is scheduled to lose four faculty by 1982, according to the report from the 17 they now have.

Department head Sigrid Baushinger said although the current student-faculty ratio is a low 7.7 to 1, the department plans to increase it through selective attrition and by recruiting new students.

Baushinger said that if a faculty member teaching a specialty retires or leaves the University, the department will be forced to replace him or her.

There are 300 undergraduates enrolled in German courses this semester, and 45 majors.

Philosophy

While the Philosophy Dept. will lost three out of their 15 faculty, department chairperson Robert Sleigh said he objects to the way provost's report derived enrollment figures.

Sleigh explained that the 24 per cent drop in enrollment used by the provost as an argument for faculty reduction results from the over subscribed courses the philosophy department scheduled in 1975 to accommodate students scrambling for credits.

Instead of dropping in enrollment last fall, Sleigh said his department just returned to normal student loads.

"Up to now, I've had great respect for the administration," said Sleigh. "Unlike others, I've always felt they've done a number one job when dealing with academic matters. But this report absolutely astounds me."

Comparative Literature

Comparative literature chairperson Sarah Lawall said that her department does not seem to be in "numerical" danger. However, the international scope of the department's curricular will be endangered if the Asian Studies and the Slavics departments are eliminated, as the provost report suggests.

She pointed out several comparative literature courses which utilize professors in these two foreign language departments. Yet, she alleges, the numbers game in

TURN TO PAGE 12

The psaltists are singing as part of the Greek Orthodox Easter liturgy. The candles they are holding were lit on midnight the night before Jesus' resurrection. (Staff photo by John P. Sideropoulos)

Easter comes again

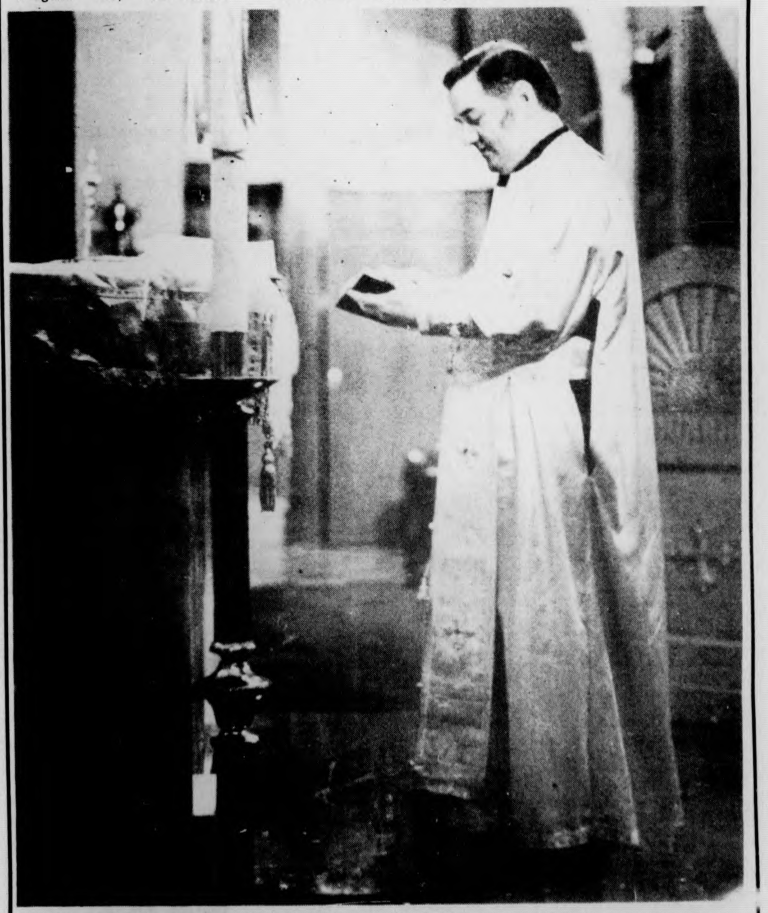
By JON WALTERS
Collegian Staff

Christmas, of course, never had a chance. Macy's owned it before Rudolph was even out of the starting gate. I thought Easter alone would survive the ravages of commercialism.

My assumption held until I watched "The Easter Bunny is Coming to Town" last week, instead of doing PoliSci homework. Television had done it again. "They" have turned Easter into jelly beans, chocolate eggs and explained the day away with a plot by rabbits to spoil kids. But Easter is more than a plot to spoil kids, otherwise the Blue Wall would have been open last night.

I am not even mildly religious and I knew as a kid that Easter was more than an excuse for cavities. It was getting warmer out and the daffodils were starting to open up. Almost everyone in the neighborhood was spending their one Sunday a year in church. And it was quiet. In our back and front yards Mother Nature busied herself with sprouting and the buzzing of bees.

I saw a huge Easter Bunny strolling around campus Friday which I thought was fairly funny, but he was pink, which missed the point. Being "extra-natural" he really had no business being around during Easter time.



This Greek Orthodox priest is preparing the bible reading for the Saturday night liturgy celebrating Easter. (Staff photo by John P. Sideropoulos)

Dancers present free performance

By LEILA BRUNO
Collegian Staff

Tonight at 7:30 p.m. the "Third World Image" dance company will present a free performance at Buckley Auditorium, located at Amherst College. (near Valentine gymnasium.) The group is comprised of eleven five-college students under the direction of Ms. Diana Ramos, who is a Black Theatre-Dance instructor at the Department of Afro-American studies at UMass. Included in the program will be two works choreographed by Ms. Ramos in addition to a piece collectively created by the dancers.

There is no definitive technical style of the program according to Ms. Ramos, who informed the Collegian that "I work with both the traditional and contemporary including some of my thoughts from improvisations." Her extensive study of dance includes modern, Haitian, jazz, ballet, and Afro-Cuban from such noted artists as Donald McKayle, Martha Graham, and the Hamphrey-Wideman techniques in addition to her professional performance background.

In designing her images Ms. Ramos stated that "I always have a good idea about the kinds of things that I want to do. I have a strong image and feeling of what should happen onstage." Indeed, the levels of intensity and emotion conveyed at a rehearsal are incredible to view! Telling a story to her dancers during each piece Ramos evokes a powerful spiritual feeling from them that's readily transmitted in performance.

Also included in the program is a free presentation of "Chinese Martial Arts" led under the direction of Robbie Ong — who is also a company member. This particular performance will be in the first half of the program.

Both the "Third World Image" and the Martial Arts should provide an entertaining and thought-provoking evening along with being a good way to see the collaborative efforts of students artistically portrayed in different artistic mediums.

Black Affairs

National Black Theatre

By CHARISSE WILLIAMS

The National Black Theatre performed at Bowker Auditorium this past Saturday, April 9.

By no means a play, but rather a energy lifting ritualistic revival designed to set your spirit free. The audience was tuned into the inspirational station of their minds. The performance had no set script or stage, for the audience was all of this and more.

When the performance first opened the audience was given name tags. Naturally many felt uncomfortable with their names pinned on their chest for all to see. The general feeling on the part of the audience was that they came to check the Theatre out, and not for others to be checking them out. Yet by the end of the night, everyone was hugging and kissing, as if people had known each other all their lives.

These responses were obtained by the cast seating and talking with the audience. Everyone was asked to shake their neighbors hands and to look into their eyes. Songs were sung and verses recited by the audience. From this interaction between people, the Sunship was ready to boarded. The Sunship was designed to take the audience away from their mundance lives, to a more etheral level of understanding. While on board the audience was told to experience themselves by closing their eyes and thinking about a positive image of themselves.

The National Black Theatre feels that too often people get caught up in the negative images of life and need to be involved in positive experiences and images. They stressed the notion to love one's self, because no one else will if you do not. Everyone was asked to kiss themselves in a declaration of their love to one another.

I am perfect and living Love, I am God." The purpose of this was to make people aware that within everyone of us, lies God. God is not a nebulous form that lies somewhere between heaven and hell. God lies within each and everyone of us.

At the end of the joyous Sunship, the entire audience was lifted to their feet by the powerful energy created by the chants, songs, hand claps, and the tapping of feet. The audience formed a love chain strung together by the holding of hands on the stage. The Sunship once again landed and brought the audience back to Amherst. While all of this was taking place sang;

"There ain't nothing that can happen to me
Unless it first passes through me
So nothing can happen to me
Unless it passes thru my mind.
You're the only one who can make yourself happy
You're the only one who can fill your life with joy
You're the only one who can make yourself happy
Cause nothing can happen to you
Unless it passes thru your mind."

I would like to take the time to thank Barbara Ann Tear, and the National Black Theatre for giving us the words of wisdom and helping us to feel the feeling of liberating our minds.

See related picture on Page 5

THEATRE REVIEW

Mack-Rock Disco & Co's

'A Special Night Affair'

By ANGELA THOMAS
Asst. Black Affairs Editor

"Say Hey," was the word Saturday night, April 9, as participating models in, "A Special Night Affair," displayed some of the latest fashions in clothes.

Beginning at 9 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, the show opened with, "Be Yourself." Being one's self meant wearing clothes that one feels comfortable in, while still looking chic, smart, and fashionably together.

To the accompaniment of the latest sounds in music provided by Mack-Rock Disco and Co., female models wore dresses, gaucho suits, pantsuits, and bathing suits. Male models wore leisure suits and sporting suits, as well as nicely coordinated slacks and tops.

After a lengthy intermission, the second half of the show, "After Five," was presented. To put folks in the mood for after "fiving," models strutted, danced, moved, and grooved. Females were dressed in clinging after five dresses and pantsuits that ranged in colors from elegant black, to sensuous red, and baby innocent pink. Males were dressed in three piece suits with matching brim hats.

Those who may enjoy a more intimate after five affair were not forgotten. As the show drew to a close, loving couples strolled arm in arm, across the stage. Whispering, and smiling at each other, the females wore gowns, while the men's three piece suits were colored coordinated to their respective "Lady."

Clothes were provided by Beau Britches, On Stage, Wearhouse, and The Weathervane.

UMass students Priscilla Kelly (left), Micheal Hughes (center), and Julie Hall, model the latest fashions in clothes, as part of "A Special Night Affair", presented in the Student Union Ballroom this past Saturday. (Staff photo by Kenneth Robinson)

Third World Alliance - The Growth of Unity

By RENEE MOBLEY
Black Affairs Staff

A collective body is rising to voice the cries of oppressed students everywhere, only because three years ago a few ambitious black students got together and formulated the idea of a Third World organization, encompassing all universities and colleges in the Massachusetts area. The prupose being to create a political bond of unity among Third World students throughout New England. Such a bond would allow students to meet in an organized and constructive manner to discuss common problems and possible solutions. Thus a handful of young people envisioned an organization that would ultimately assist in finding and funding educations for oppressed people of color; one which would be the voice and instrument of the student.

It was not until 1976 that this vision really began to materialize. Since that time the Massachusetts Third World Alliance of Institutions of Higher Education has held 8 conferences. The Alliance has drafted and ratified a tentative constitution. Standing committees have been set up as task groups to handle such things as interviewing officers and planning for future conferences and activities.

Conferences are usually held every 2 weeks. Each member school alternates in hosting the event. Each school is allowed 2 voting delegates to represent them. Parliamentary Procedure is used to keep the debate and discussion orderly.

The most recent conference took place on April 2nd at Westfield State College. Delegates were present from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Boston State College, Salem State College South Eastern Massachusetts University, Worcester State College and Bridgewater State College.

The delegates broke up into task groups consisting of the Nominating Committee, Budget and Finance Committees, the Legislative Committee and the Programs Committee. Resumes for officers candidates were accepted by the Nominating Committee. Interviews were also conducted at this time.

A tentative membership fee of $35 per school was recommended by the Budget and Finance Committee. They also discussed the need for an organizational bank account, a post office box and a committee for legal services. Proposals for future activities including fashion shows, cruises, films and dance marathons were submitted by the Programs Committee.

The Legislative Committee proposed a number of amendments to the Constitution, one of which was to designate the Massachusetts Third World Alliance of Institute of Higher Education as the full and final name of the organization.

The committees then reconvened into a general assembly. A discussion of the procedure for the election of officers assistants was the topic that dominated most of the debate. Several motions were put on the floor but the final decision for the procedure was tabled until the next conference, scheduled for April 16th at Bridgewater State College.

It seems as though the Alliance is off to a good start but it is still a long way off from meeting its final goals. Andrew Johnson, President of the Westfield State College sector says that he would like to see the organization encompass many states and be used as a focal point for student input.

The resources and basic structures are there to make this possible. All that is needed is a unified effort for this organization to grow and stand fast.

THE AFRO. AM. SOCIETY AND THE MALCOLM X CENTER PRESENT
MELBA MOORE
FRI. APRIL 22
FINE ARTS CENTER
TICKETS $2.00 U. OF M. STUDENTS
$2.50 GEN. PUBLIC
FURTHER INFO. CALL
545-2511

The Program of the Year isn't on TV. It's in the Air Force ROTC.

Find out about the two and four-year Air Force ROTC programs today. They both get you an Air Force commission, an excellent starting salary, challenging work, responsibility, promotions, and a secure future with a modern service.

Air Force ROTC also prepares you for leadership positions ahead. Positions such as aircrew member ... missile launch officers ... mathematicians ... engineers ... and research and development scientists.

Find out today about the benefits of the Air Force ROTC program. It's a great way to serve your country and to help pay for your college education.

Call Major Richardson at 545-2437

Air Force ROTC

Black Affairs

The unseen helpers

Third World Caucus

By RENEE MOBLEY
Black Affairs Staff

Whenever you listen to a Third World show on WMUA or read Nummo News and Black Affairs papers; whenever you attend cultural events or black concerts at UMass, you are reaping the fruits of their labor.

Your organizations are kept alive and funded by them. Your interests and needs are voiced by them but you probably don't hear about them very often because they work behind the scenes within the political system of the university. I refer to the Third World caucus of the Student Senate.

This group of sixteen Asian and Black American students attend Student Senate meetings every Wednesday evening to make sure that the minority populations on campus have a political representation.

Their presence on the body of the Student Senate is vital for the simple reason that the Senate and its committees, control and allocate approximately 1.1 million dollars of student activities funds. These funds are distributed to various groups and programs on campus.

There has never been a better representation of minority students on the Senate in any previous year. Because of this, the Third World caucus has proven itself to be a strong force within the political sphere of student power. It can sway an important Senate election or it can be the decisive factor in the acceptance or rejection of a major motion. The authority that the caucus carries is only possible because it is a unified body. Its members meet to discuss and decide on collective policies and actions.

Other senate members, realizing the weight of the Third World vote, vie for the support of the caucus in many crucial situations.

The caucus brings issues upon the floor of the Senate which serve to make your concerns known. It seeks to obtain Senate support for such matters as the defense of Craeman Gethers and the liberation struggles in South Afrika.

Many of the caucus members not only attend Senate meetings but are also active on budget, finance, steering and other standing committees. Those who have gone before such committees for program funding, realize the necessity of Third World representation.

The beaurocratic procedures of a school of this size are slow and tedious. The work that these people do is often frustrating. The reward is little or nothing. Still sixteen Asian and Black American students continue the struggle to make sure that your voice is heard.

B.M.C.P.

The Black Mass Communications Project is sponsoring seminars geared towards helping minority students obtain 3rd class radio operators licenses with broadcast endorsement.

The media is a useful and viable tool in the dissemination of information vital to the interest of Third World students and the Third World community at large, but in order to make it work for you, we need support from you. We urge all interested students to take advantage of these seminars. We are looking for people to go on the air for next year. The seminars will be conducted by Jose Tolson, a licensed broadcaster from WMUA, and will be held on Monday's from 2:30-3:45 p.m. at Lewis Dorm, Northeast, in the Resource Room.

Gayle Anderson
Black Mass Comm. Project
(B.M.C.P.)

Melba Moore is coming!

By ANGELA THOMAS
Asst. Black Affairs Editor

The sensuous, sweet, soul stirring, voice of Melba Moore will grace the Fine Arts Center, April 22, as part of "The African Women" week activities, April 19-24.

"The African Women" is a week long schedule of events, sponsored by the Third World Women's Center, that will deal with the cultural aspects of the Black woman in America.

Events to be included are workshops, featuring Francis Welsing, a black child psychiatrist, a fashion show entitled, "360 degrees of fashion," and Melba, Moore in concert.

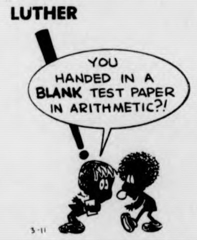
Moore won a Tony Award for the Broadway show "Purlie", in 1970. She has also appeared on Broadway in "Hair".

One of Moore's most successful albums, "This Is It," contains the hit single, "Lean On Me," as well as the title tune. "Melba" the succeeding album to "This Is It," was created through the combined talents of Moore and record producer Van McCoy.

One of the highlights of Moore's career occured in 1976, when she became the first Black artist to be featured in a one-woman concert at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York's Lincoln Center. Also in 1976, she received a Grammy Award nomination for Best Rhythm and Blues Female Vocal Performance, for her single, "Lean On Me."

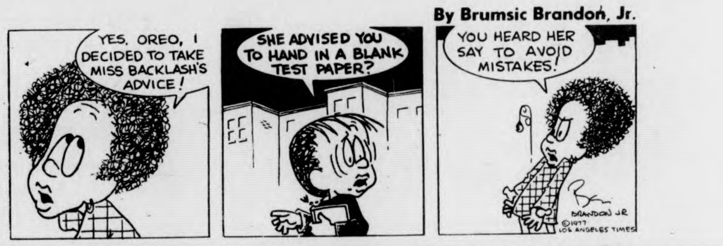
Other well known tunes of Moore's include "I'm His Lady," "Summertime," "I Got Love," "My Soul Is Satisfied" and "Didn't it Rain."

Tony Award winner, Melba Moore, will be coming to UMass on April 22nd. She will perform at the Fine Arts Center.



LUTHER
YOU HANDED IN A BLANK TEST PAPER IN ARITHMETIC?!
3-11

By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.



YES, OREO, I DECIDED TO TAKE MISS BACKLASH'S ADVICE!
SHE ADVISED YOU TO HAND IN A BLANK TEST PAPER?
YOU HEARD HER SAY TO AVOID MISTAKES!
BRANDON JR
©1977 LOS ANGELES TIMES

BEAT THE HOUSE
5 PM-10PM
GOOD FOOD AND DRINK
THE COPPER LANTERN
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
WEEK OF 4/11
MON. CHOPPED BEEF STEAK W/CHOICE OF POTATO, VEG ROLL AND BUTTER 1.85
TUES. BAKED STUFFED CLAMS FRENCH FRIES COLE SLAW, ROLL AND BUTTER 1.75
WENS. QUARTER POUND HAMBERG, MAYO, LETTUCE TOMATO, FRIES AND COLE SLAW BUY I GET I FREE! 1.75
THUR RIB EYE STEAK W/CHOICE OF POTATO VEG, ROLL AND BUTTER 2.85
FRI. FRIED SHRIMP W/CHOICE OF BAKED FRIES, COLESLAW ROLL AND BUTTER 3.75
SAT. PORK CHOP DINNER W/CHOICE OF POTATO, VEG, ROLL AND BUTTER 2.85
SUN. FAMILY NITE SPAGHETTI AND VEAL ROLL AND BUTTER 1.75 CHILDREN 1.25
1 PRAY STREET AMHERST
549-5403
HAPPY HOUR: MON-SUN 4-7 PM

Definition of a sister - Isn't it time you knew

Hey Brothers!

Have you ever tried to define what a sister is or what she means to you?

A Sister is a F-I-N-E Black Woman.

She is a mother, the strongest in the world.

As well as the mother of our civilization.

She is hope of our new nation, for she will produce our future warriors and queens.

This Black woman has struggled with you and for you.

She cried and felt for you when the white man tried to emasculate you.

She stood strong as the head of the Black family until you were free to do so;

And she loves you even though the 'fad' is to have a white-skinned, blue-eyes, bleached blond, (or reasonable facsimile thereof) on your arm. She has had to be strong in order to have waited for the Black man to come and take her beside him as his queen, his woman.

Be free Brothers, your Black Sisters are waiting for you.

You can be "free" with the love of a Black woman, to help set you free.

A Sister is:
S-trong
I-ndispensable
S-ensitive
T-ogether
E-ssential
R-eady

A Sister is your strength, Brothers, for she lives in you and you live in her. Unite, be one, for she is you!

Members of the National Black Dance Theatre performing at the Bowker Auditorium this past Saturday. (Photo by Edward Cohen)

Peres nominated for Israeli post

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Shimon Peres yesterday won the ruling Labor party's nomination to lead his party in the May 17 elections and said he would make "no substantial change" in Israel's foreign policy.

The party's 815-member central committee formally nominated Peres to replace Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin as party standard bearer.

Rabin, who announced Thursday he would resign because of a financial scandal, remains nominal prime minister until his cabinet decides who should carry on until the election. Peres said he did not consider this "an important question" since elections are only 37 days away.

Peres said he would not object to the Geneva peace conference being convened this year and added it would be "a good idea" for him to visit the United States in 1977 if he is elected.

But 53-year-old Peres faces an uphill battle to keep the Labor movement united and win the election against an opposition cashing in on a series of scandals surrounding the party that has ruled Israel since its creation in 1948.

Peres said in a news conference that elections were too close for him to visit President Carter before the voting. But afterward, he said in answer to a question, "it would be a good idea."

Rabin visited Washington only last month.

Peres won the vote by an overwhelming show of hands, although the members gave most of their applause to Rabin, who has won sympathy for the dignified way he handled disclosures that he and his wife kept an illegal bank account in the United States.

Shimon Peres (AP)

Peres sought to shake off his image as a hawk, which has led to threats of defection by labor's Marxist ally, the Mapam party. "I don't think I'm a hawk. My political training is such that I have learned to form opinions relevant to the situation," Peres said.

France flies aid to Zaire; Egypt sends mission

PARIS (UPI) — France announced yesterday its military transport planes are rushing Moroccan war equipment into Zaire to help government soldiers and an expeditionary force of Moroccan troops fight a rebel invasion.

An Elysee presidential palace statement said France agreed to provide the military transport to Zaire and Morocco at their request.

"The Zaire government, a victim of armed subversive activities on its territory, coming from abroad, has appealed to the solidarity of all member countries of the Organization of African Unity," the communique said.

"The Moroccan government has announced that it planned to respond to this appeal with effective military aid. Because the two governments are not able to insure its rapid transportation, the French authorities have replied positively to their appeal."

In a separate development, Egypt sent a mission to Zaire to explore the possilbility of Egypt's providing military assistance to Zaire, sources said yesterday.

The sources said it is unlikely Egypt would send troops to bolster Zairean President Mobutu Sese Seko's forces but that Egypt probably would send weapons and military equipment.

Mobutu has appealed for aid to the Organization of African Unity, of which Egypt is a member. Morocco, also a member, reacted to the appeal by sending 1,500 troops to Zaire. Egypt gave its blessing to the Moroccan move.

President Anwar Sadat said in Washington last week he was wary of rising Soviet and Cuban influences in Africa, especially after Katangan rebels invaded Zaire from Angola, where Cuba has some 14,000 troops stationed.

"I don't want to wake up in the morning one day and see what has happened from Angola against Zaire has happened from Ethiopia against Sudan," Sadat said.

REG PRICE $3.12
SIZE 7 OZ NOW $1.59

REG PRICE $1.12
ROLL-ON NOW .49

PERSONAL SIZE .25

4 BARS PERSONAL .55
4 BARS BATH .63

COLLEGE DRUG STORE
4 MAIN STREET AMHERST

THE COLLEGIAN ☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆
GRAPHICS
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆ DEPARTMENT

HAS 4 WORKSTUDY
POSITIONS AVAILABLE

☆☆ 2 NIGHT MANAGERS
☆ 1 TECHNICIAN
☆ 1 LIASON

STOP BY THE COLLEGIAN OFFICE
BETWEEN THE HOURS OF
9:00 A.M. AND 6:00 P.M.

ASK FOR RANDY GLENN
OR CHARLES BERUBE

Tired of Eating at the D.C.?

BONANZA RESTAURANT
is now offering a
10% DISCOUNT
On All Their Meals
JUST SHOW YOUR COLLEGE I.D.

Try Our
CATTLEMAN'S CHOICE
ONLY $2.89
Includes
- Choice of Potato or Vegetable
- All the Soup or Salad You Can Eat
- Free Refills on Coffee, Tea or Soda

Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, Mass.
Offer good Mon.-Fri.
(Does not include daily specials)
BONANZA
Open 7 a.m. - 9 p.m.

©1977 JOS. SCHLITZ BREWING CO. MILWAUKEE, WIS.

THE DEAN OF BEER'S QUICKIE QUIZ.

Q: Chill-Lagering is:
a) A popular German country and western singer.
b) A Scandinavian winter sport played without clothes.
c) A new ethnic TV comedy about the owner of an ice cube factory.
d) The right way to age beer.

A: (d) Sorry. Chill-Lagering is not Olga and Svend running around in a snowstorm in their birthday suits. Chill-Lagering is the way Schlitz ages beer.
They age it cold. Very cold. Down to 29.5 degrees. The result is a beer with sparkling clarity. A beer that's crisp, clean and bright.
I suggest you look into one right now.

THERE'S JUST ONE WORD FOR BEER.
SCHLITZ
AND YOU KNOW IT.
THE DEAN OF BEER
SCHLITZ

Siglinda Steinfüller
Dean of Beer

SHIRTS
$5.00

Famous Name
Factory Returns
and Irregulars
Originally $14-$20.
NOW $5.00
Excellent Condition
Faces of Earth
Next to the Amherst Post Office
Open 9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.

U.S. interests in Africa termed 'oppressive'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Leaders of two Lutheran churches who just returned from a trip to South Africa said yesterday U.S. companies should not invest more money in that racially troubled country.

"I don't want to go so far as to say that economic sanctions are the way to avoid civil war," said the Rev. Dr. Robert Marshall, president of the Lutheran Church in America.

"But any addition to investments at this point only strengthens the current system, which is so clearly oppressive to the black population."

The Rev. Dr. David Preus of the American Lutheran Church said U.S. churches should "continue to impress upon our international corporations the need to push as hard as they can to encourage the South African government to widen the span of legal actions by which justice can be done to the nonwhite population."

The two Lutheran churches have a combined membership of 5.5 million.

Both church leaders returned Thursday from a two-week visit to southern Africa.

Marshall said the South African government is trying to appease its 21 million disenfranchised nonwhites by building new hospitals and schools in the reservation like "homelands" scattered throughout the country.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Hartford ranks high in taxes

HARTFORD, Conn. [UPI] — A study of 12 cities around the country shows Harford ranks second highest in business taxes.

The survey conducted by the Rhode Island Public Expenditure Council placed Burlington, Vt., on top of the corporate levy list and Houston, Tex., at the bottom.

Army equipment is 'missing'

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Nearly $1.5 million of Army equipment "disappeared" at Ft. Hood, Tex., over 15 months recently, andthere are similar unexplained losses at other installations, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday.

Aspin, a frequent critic of defense spending and operations, asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the situation.

'Sinner' shoots self, dog

BILOXI, Miss. [UPI] — A man leading a dog on a leash, screaming he had sinned, walked into the packed First Baptist Church in the Gulf Coast city of Biloxi during Easter services yesterday and shot himself.

The unidentified man also shot the dog and fired one shot into the air before the stunned worshippers.

Bombing suspect arrested

TORONTO [UPI] — Dwight Allan Armstrong, wanted in the United states for the fatal 1970 bombing at the University of Wisconsin, was quietly arrested in his Toronto apartment and faces extradiction later this week, police said yesterday.

Armstrong, 25, has been a fugitive for seven years on murder and arson charges stemming from the bombing Aug. 24, 1970, of the Army Mathematics Research facility on the UW campus in Madison.

Canoeists injured in mishap

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. [UPI] — One oF six canoeists who tumbled into the Sudbury River when their craft capsized on a three-foot waterfall remained in poor condition yesterday at Framingham Union Hospital.

Moira MacDonald, 22, of Framingham, was believed to have been pinned underwater in debris for several seconds after the Saturday mishap. The other five persons were treated at the hospital and released.

Communists celebrate

MADRID, Spain [UPI] — Communists opened scores of party offices around Spain yesterday and celebrated the end of 38 years of illegality and repression with horn-honking, flag-waving motorcades and neighborhood fiestas.

Party leaders issued a statement recalling the sacrifices of thousands of members since the party was outlawed by the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco, and thanking other polticial groups for supporting its legalization.

Two slain in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland [UPI] — Gunmen yesterday killed the uncle of a 13-year-old boy who died in a bomb explosion earlier in the day during an Irish Republican Army march commemorating the 1916 Easter uprising.

John Short, 55, and two other men were walking up a road to see relatives of Kevin McMenamie, killed in the bomb explosion, police said.

Arabs assassinated in London

LONDON [UPI] — A gunman of "Middle Eastern appearance" yesterday assassinated the deputy chief of the Yemen Arab Republic's supreme court, his wife and a Yemeni diplomat in an automobile outside a luxury hotel overlooking Hyde Park.

Scotland Yard said Quadi Abdulla Ahmed Aejri, 65, his 40-year-old wife Fatimah and Abdulla Ali Hammani, 45, minister and plenipotentiary of the Yemen Arab Republic Embassy were dead on arrival at a hospital.

ANNUAL SPRING SALE

TENT

	SUGGESTED RETAIL	SALE PRICE
EMS Kaskawalsh Tent	115.00	94.50
EMS Alcove Tent	135.00	117.50
Jan Sport Wedge Tent (seconds)	140.00	99.50
Alpine Designs Eco I	150.00	89.50

CLOTHING

EMS Bugaboo with Hood	56.50	45.50
EMS Patagonia with Hood	61.50	49.50
EMS North Slope with Hood	85.00	67.50
Woolrich Alaskan Shirt	20.00	15.50
Woolrich Shorts (seconds)	14.00	8.50
EMS Corduroy Knickers men's and women's	28.50	22.50
Lee Rider Straight Denim Pants	14.00	11.50
Irish-Tai Rugby Shirts	18.95	14.95
EMS 60-40 Parka	44.50	39.50
Peter Storm Wind Jacket	12.00	8.95
EMS Super Rain Parka	39.50	31.50
EMS Super Rain Pants	27.50	24.50
EMS Watertite Rain Parka	15.50	13.50
EMS Watertite Rain Pants	12.50	10.50
EMS Standard Poncho	16.00	13.50
EMS Packboard Poncho	24.50	21.50

ALL WINTER RENTAL EQUIPMENT
30-70 PER CENT OFF.

BOOTS AND RUNNING SHOES

Sorel Premium Pac	32.50	25.95
Sorel Artic Pac	23.50	19.95
Sorel Wigwam	25.00	14.95
Tiger Jay Hawk	23.95	19.95

PACKS

	SUGGESTED RETAIL	SALE PRICE
EMS Divided Packer with Frame	54.50	43.50
EMS Undivided Backpacker with Frame	51.50	41.50
Kelty B-40 Open Pack with Frame (1976 model)	68.00	48.00
EMS Adjustable Packbag with Frame	29.50	26.50
EMS Toursak	54.50	49.50
EMS Day Pack	12.00	9.95
EMS Cargo Bag
Medium	12.50	10.50
Large	14.00	12.00
Extra Large	16.00	13.50

SLEEPING BAGS

EMS Mt. Robson (Down Fill)
fill: 37 oz.	Regular	104.50	94.50
fill: 40 oz.	Large	109.50	99.50
EMS Sebago (Down Fill)
fill: 31 oz.	Regular	99.50	84.50
fill: 33 oz.	Large	104.50	89.50
North Face Superlight (1976 model)
fill: 20 oz.	Regular	105.00	79.50
fill: 22 oz.	Large	110.00	87.50
EMS Estes (Down Fill)
fill: 28 oz.		92.50	84.50
EMS Sandpiper (Down Fill)
fill: 20 oz.		65.00	58.50
New EMS Berkshire (PolarGuard fill) fill: 32 oz.	Small	57.50	47.50
fill: 42 oz.	Regular	61.50	51.50
fill: 48 oz.	Large	65.50	54.50
New EMS Franconia (PolarGuard fill)
fill: 52 oz.	Regular	69.50	57.50
fill: 60 oz.	Large	74.50	61.50

DOORS OPEN 10:00AM
MONDAY SALE ENDS
SAT APRIL 16
Rte. 9,
Amherst/Hadley town line
253-9504
Mon-Fri 9:30-9 pm Sat 9:30-5:30

EASTERN MOUNTAIN SPORTS processing film darkroom paper supplies

GAF 500 with processing $4.04
Vericolor 20 exp. $1.67
Kodachrome 64 20 exp.
SX-70 2 pack $10.08
Type 1082 2 pack $9.07
Room 321 SUB
M W F 10:00-4:30
Tu Th 11:00-4:30

Study reports saccharin not harmful

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A study released by Johns Hopkins University says the consumption of saccharin has no "significant effect" on the development of bladder cancer.

Dr. Irving I. Kessler, director of the research group investigating the effects of saccharin, said that on the basis of a study of 1,803 persons who used varying amounts of the artificial sweetener, no evidence of a direct relationship between saccharin consumption and bladder cancer could be found.

"After reviewing their exposures, we have concluded that the eating of saccharin does not have any significant effect on the development of cancer of the bladder in humans," said Kessler.

He said some persons who were examined had bladder cancer and some did not. But he said he and his colleagues could find no relationship between the amount of saccharin used and the incidence of cancer.

"If saccharin had an effect, then people with cancer should have reported a much higher usage of saccharin, and they didn't," he said.

The artificial sweetner has been a center of attention in recent weeks because of an announcement by the federal Food and Drug Administration of its intention to ban the chemical's use.

The decision was based on a Canadian study which showed a steady diet of the product could lead to development of bladder cancer in rats.

"There is no absolute, black or white, sine qua non test for substances suspected of producing cancer in man," he said.

Pediatrician claims TV violence linked to aggression

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) -- An Ohio pediatrician says television violence can produce aggressive behavior in children and it may lead to "antisocial acts, including serious crime."

"At the risk of sounding violent myself," said Dr. Elizabeth Aplin, "I want all of us who provide medical care to children to do everything we can to stop the murder, mayhem and torture placed before younger people via the television tube."

The Worthington resident and chairman of the Ohio Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics said the national group is pressuring the networks to reduce the amount of violence on TV and the Ohio chapter plans to talk to affiliates throughout the state.

She is leading a drive among Ohio pediatricians to improve television programming.

"We realize that if we are going to get the changes that are needed, we must talk not only to the national TV people," she said, "but also to those who provide local programming."

She said Nielson Index statistics show that the average American child, by the time he has been graduated from high school, has viewed 15,000 hours of television.

In that time, he has seen 18,000 murders and countless crimes, she said.

"Several studies involving children in adolescents from various backgrounds have shown that viewing violence on television can produce increased aggressive behavior in the young," she said. "Thus, in our own living rooms, we may be allowing our youngsters to learn antisocial acts, including serious crimes.

"And it's not just the so-called 'cop shows'," she said. "Many of the shows on Saturday mornings are violent. We want to see more educational programs, or at least shows that supplement classroom education. Sesame Street has shown that it can be done."

THE WUJS INSTITUTE

Here's a way for college graduates to experience Israel in a comprehensive one-year study/work programme. You spend your first 5 months in Arad, a dynamic new town, together with other graduates from all over the world. There you will study Hebrew, Judaica and Israeli society, combined with tours and a kibbutz period. For the following 7 months or more, you can either work in your profession, volunteer in a kibbutz or development town, re-train professionally or continue studying. The World Union of Jewish Students Institute in Arad could be the beginning of your love affair with Israel.

Israel Aliyah Center, 515 Park Avenue,
New York, New York 10022, (212) 752-0600

W-36

For information, please send to the above address.

Name ________ Age ____
Address ________
City ________ State ________ Zip ____
University ________

(USD)

SOFTBALLS
and BATS
AT A J HASTINGS
NEWSDEALER AND STATIONER
45 S PLEASANT ST

Bell's Pizza House

No doubt there are easier ways to make pizza, but there will never be any other way to make

Bell's Pizza.

Free Delivery on Campus Sun.-Thurs.

256-8811 253-9051 65 Univ. Drive

NON STOP WACKY 102FM ROCK
NON STOP WACKY 102FM ROCK
NON STOP WACKY 102FM ROCK
NON STOP WACKY 102FM ROCK
NON STOP WACKY 102FM ROCK
NON STOP WACKY 102FM ROCK

ALBUM STASH

WIN THE ALBUM OF YOUR CHOICE

Listen to the all new WAQY 102 FM Stereo easy feelin' form

As*terisks by Levi's

Slip 'em on. Sense that perfect fit. Smooth and slim. Turn around. See that seamed back. Heart shaped and huggable. Now to the front. Sharp stitched seams for a long stretch of leg. Love 'em? Surprise! They're Asterisks by Levi's. In-seam sized for length that's right for you. In a spectrum of rich rainbow colors. Created for compliments.

LEVI'S ★★★ As*terisks THE FIT TO BE TRIED
Levi's

WEAR-HOUSE
201 n. pleasant st. amherst
Fairfield Mall chicopee

Seized Soviet trawler taken as example

BOSTON (UPI) — A Soviet fishing trawler, which President Jimmy Carter said he had ordered seized "to draw the line" on overfishing, is scheduled to arrive in Boston today to be placed under the custody of the U.S. Attorney.

The seizure was the first under the new 200-limit Fishery Management and Conservation Act of 1976, which took effect March 1. The law bans foreign vessels from fishing for certain species unless they have permits.

The 275-foot Russian stern trawler Taras Shevchenko was said to have caught more than 1.5 metric tons of river herring in excess of its authorization and was seized by the Coast Guard late Saturday about 240 miles southeast of Boston.

Carter yesterday told reporters outside the First Baptist Church in Calhoun, Ga., that he had ordered the vessel seized because "we had to draw the line somewhere" on violations of the new 200-mile limit.

"We have released several of them. We informed the Soviet embassy that we could no longer continue to release them, that we just had to enforce the law," Carter said.

The seizure followed recent criticism from many Northeast fisherman and politicians who said the law would be useless unless harsh measures were taken against foreign violators.

By midday yesterday, the 18-year-old trawler was about 100 miles southeast of Cape Cod and was being escorted by the Decisive to the Coast Guard support center at Boston Harbor.

"Once it ties up, the ship and cargo go under the custody of the U.S. Attorney's office, and immigration and customs officials will become involved," Coast Guard spokesman John Bablitch said.

The U.S. Attorney's office was not available for comment.

The trawler, based at the Russian port of Kaliningrad, was seized several hours after the vessel was boarded by Coast Guard officials and officials from the National Marine Fisheries Service.

"The Coast Guard will provide surveillance of the ship as long as the case is under litigation," he said. Bablitch said the crew members would be confined to the ship. He said there have been a number of seizures in the past four years, and that legal action in some cases has stretched to two or three months.

PORTLAND, Ore.: Former Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver, 41, walks into Memorial Coliseum where he was featured speaker at 17th annual Easter sunrise service. Cleaver, who was converted to christianity in 1975 was in Portland as guest of Portland Christian Laymen. He faces trial in Oakland, Calif. on three counts of assault with intent to kill and three counts of assault on Oakland police. (UPI)

Carter's rebate plan headed for hard times

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's plan to give every taxpayer a $50 rebate is in trouble in the Senate and would not pass if it were voted on today, Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long said yesterday.

But Long, in an interview on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press", said he believed Democrats can pick up the six to eight votes needed to get the measure passed. The Louisiana Democrat also denied he was withholding personal support from the rebate because of Carter's cutbacks in $275 million worth of water projects, some of which are in his home state.

"I'm helping the President with that bill," he said. "Without my help it wouldn't have come out of committee. I believe we have a good chance of keeping the $50 rebate there."

But right now, he said, "the rebate is in trouble in the Senate. If we voted today I don't think it would pass."

Long was asked if Carter, in his energy message to Congress expected on April 20, would propose a big increase in the gasoline tax to discourage consumption. "That's not what they're going to recommend in my judgment," he replied, predicting there would be a "balanced program" involving such things as, encouraging home insulation."

But he said there may be major tax on the producers of gasoline and some increases in the price," with the net effect that both production and conservation will be encouraged.

Asked if he would support a $500 tax on automobiles which use a lot of gasoline, Long said: "If the President finds the courage to recommend it, I will find the courage to support it."

Told that Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns had said the economy is healing itself and the $50 rebate was unnecessary and probably inflationary, Long said it was Burns' policies which got the country into a "very deep recession" in the first place. He said the nation still has not recovered from the recession.

We give you credit.

The last thing a college senior needs is another pat on the back.

As a college senior, credit-card offers, promises and congratulations come pouring in. Enjoy it while you can. Because it won't last. Out in the world, you'll have to work things out for yourself. And one of those things is life insurance.

Fidelity Union Life has a plan designed for you: the CollegeMaster®, the insurance plan chosen by more college seniors than any other.

Call the CollegeMaster Field Associate in your area.

Fidelity Union Life

RONALD J. NATHAN AGENCY
717 Main St., Amherst

THE HUNGRY-U
PIZZAS & SUBS
"We Deliver"
103 N. Pleasant St.
CALL 256-0473

FREE
SMALL TOMATO & CHEESE PIZZA WITH PURCHASE OF TWO LARGE PIZZAS
MON 4/11 TO SUN 4/17

FREE
CHEESE CAKE OR SODA WITH PURCHASE OF SMALL COMBINATION PIZZA
MON 4/11 TO SUN 4/17

DELIVERIES ONLY

university of massachusetts
arts council
presents

TITO PUENTE ORCHESTRA

THURS., APRIL 14 8 PM
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Tickets now on sale! $6, 5, 4. UM/A students - half price, senior citizens and other students $1 discount.

F.A.C. BOX OFFICE 545-2511
& Ticketron Locations

letters

Pre-packaged education

To the Editor:

The proposed departmental cuts announced Thursday represent a lack of any coherent educational philosophy at this university. By reducing the funding for such basic departments as History, Philosophy, and foreign languages, the administration is turning the College of Arts and Sciences into an empty shell — a mixture of fad courses, special-interest course, and semi-vocational courses — in short an instant, pre-packaged, disposable education. The purpose of any institution of higher learning should be not to cater to the passing whims and fancies of fickle and changing student bodies, but to provide a solid foundation in the liberal arts — in History, Philosophy, English, and the foreign languages.

If Provost Puryear is truly concerned with the "saleability" of education, he should beware. Cutbacks of this kind will so severely harm the quality of education in CAS, that bachelor of arts degrees from UMass will be worth nothing-and employers will pay for them accordingly.

Ellen Tierney

Paying for quality education

To the Editor:

It is interesting to contemplate the probable quality of education at UMass after faculty members cease to do research. This apparently is one of several changes advocated by Greg Tarpinian in his column, "Bargaining Rights for Students." Mr. Tarpinian seems to feel that instructors are short-changing students by emphasizing research as an appropriate scholarly activity. He obvioulsy places more importance in the quality of time spent behind a lectern than on academic excellence.

I would like to suggest that to be an effective instructor, constant review, refinement and updating of one's material is imperative. Few, if any, bodies of knowledge can be considered static. Constant change in and additions to any academic subject demand systematic, conscientious research on the part of informed persons whether they be students or instructors.

In addition to questioning the necessity of research, Mr. Tarpinian raises the issue of faculty salaries. I respect the fact that a number of students at UMass would be placed under considerable financial pressure by a tuition increase. However, I also recognize that University faculty members, some with more complex financial responsibilities than those that many students must presently face, are under considerable pressure also. It would appear that an increase in tuition for the purpose of raising faculty salaries is in the students' best interest, as it would encourage a high degree of professionalism and academic excellence in all areas.

I urge Mr. Tarpinian and others who may share his views to carefully consider the academic value of lectures, labs, and discussions given or conducted without benefit of scholarly research. Those protesting a tuition increase ought to envision the possible exodus from the University of those highly qualified instructors who will be lured elsewhere to positions providing more adequate salaries.

Judith Freeman Hawkins

Reynold's conceptions challenged

To the Editor:

In response to Mr. Peter R. Reynold's letter of Apri 5 entitled "Democracy in Representative Government," I feel compelled to correct a few misconceptions.

Firstly, my letter to the Editor was written and printed before the March 15 and 16th elections, not two weeks ago, as reported.

According to Mr. Reynolds, "the recurring theme of the letter was my own lack of information." Apparently the message of my letter was grossly misinterpreted. By saying that I didn't want to be taken for granted, I meant only that as a student, I had a right to and expected to be kept abreast of vital information that leads to intelligent and responsible voting. As a member of the Rents and Fees committee, I myself was not uninformed, but it was fairly obvious to advocates both for and against the SATF increase that the students who were provided with the necessary data to make an intelligent decision responded with more than a casual interest.

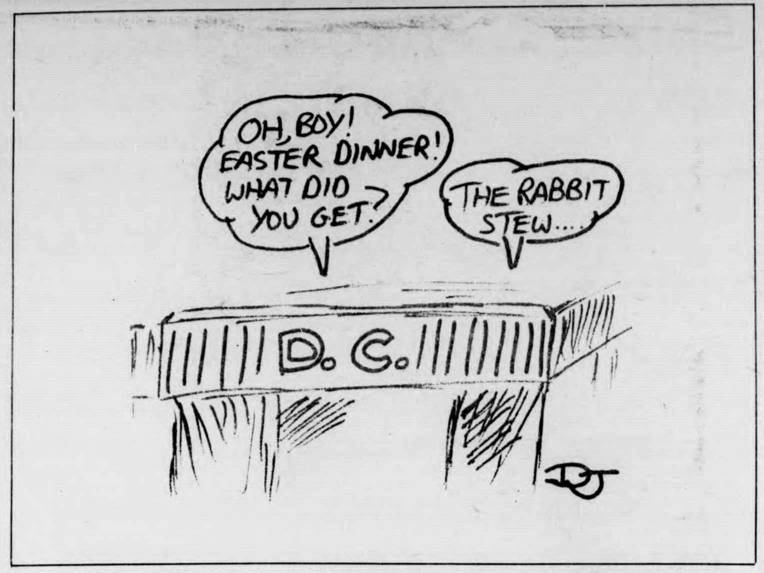
To say, as Mr. Reynolds does, that "people are taken for granted when they do not have the initiative to get informed on their concerns" merely serves to reinforce my statement that the majority of people need to be presented with facts before their governmental processes have any integrity, meaning or impact. Sure, Mr. Reynolds, as you so aptly put it, student representation's job is "to find information, think clearly and represent the best interests of their constituency." You offer a very good textbook definition of democracy, and yes, you were right. It can work, but not when the information found is kept to the few "assiduous workers."

Mr. Reynolds, are you aware of the number of student senators who filled their dorms' vacancies in the last few days before the election, many of whom ran unopposed? These acts altogether make it difficult to understand why you call a letter calling for intelligent representation with no secrets "egocentric....just so they will not be taken for granted."

Lastly, Mr. Reynolds, if these views indicate to you a "subtle pervasive and harmful form of apathy" then perhaps you should re-evaluate the situation, because ideally, we're all striving for the same thing.

Marcia Brooks

Editor's note: an oversight on our part allowed Mr. Reynolds' letter, which was submitted some weeks ago, to be published without correcting the time reference.



OH, BOY! EASTER DINNER! WHAT DID YOU GET?
THE RABBIT STEW....
D. C.
DJ

commentary

Thoughts for a discontented college student; 'practicality'

By JOHN MATTHEW

The other day I was riding the bus to campus, chatting with a rather friendly female, MBA student, when the subject turned to terrorism, the 60's, corporate power, human manipulation....far too involved for a short bus ride. Still, I tried to make my point of view but I'm sure she believes me to be an insane-leftover-radical-terrorist of the 60's.

The 70's have been characterized by an apparent return to the basics — finding a job, budgeting tight money; just trying to survive, leaving little time to look at the world around us.

Supposedly being the most advanced intellectual entity in history, we young people realize that we don't want to just 'survive', we want more. We want money, luxuries, beautiful cars, bigger television sets; total comfortable living. But at what price?

So off we go to college. Like sheep, the job market dictates to the majority what fields to enter. Off we go, into the crowded classrooms of empty thought, searching not for "ideas" or "knowledge", but for a job. A return to the "Dark Ages".

Where is the human individuality? What's happening in the 70's? Man is giving up his creativity, his own touch with his identity, in favor of filling corporate "gaps".

Imagine Plato considering a management position at the sword factory or Lennon and McCartney giving up music because the odds of success were against them.

Practicality has importance but also has its limits. People seem to believe, or have been programmed to believe, that money buys respect. For twenty years, television has thrown this at us. "If you make enough money, you'll be able to buy our brand of cars, our brand of televisions, our brand of beer. It will make you somebody."

Doesn't anyone care that America, the country with the proud heritage, is being bought off. Just once why don't you think about what you really want to do? Think about the one field in which you'd like to be a "success". Then think about what you're doing now. Do you respect your work or what you are becoming? If so, you're either on your way or hopelessly lost.

It's your life. You'll be around for the next fifty years. If people continue to believe that a job and a high income will put them above all the discontented and wasted lives that are stirring beneath them, it will catch them in the end. People are getting mad. They will get so mad that all the "Charley's Angels" and "Starsky and Hutches" will not be able to pacify the "working class", to pull them off to some absurd level of reality. Do all women look like Farrah? Do people like Starksy and Hutch really exist? Escapism is fine; but five hours a day, seven days a week? It seems no one cares to think anymore.

People are getting mad. They may even start reading newspapers and books trying to see what's happening out there, see reality for what it is. They even might start talking to each other again.

So don't you "sell out" for the sake of a job. You're selling more than your services; you're selling your individuality. You'll become what your job is, if you do it long enough. And what rewards are there being a "hatchet man" for a corporation?

All the potential writers, creators, scientists, thinkers and artists may still exist in the many colleges in this country, but many more, perhaps the greatest of them all are "miscast" in business schools for the sake of practicality.

Americans used to fear being a "man without a country". Now, we fear being a "man without a corporation".

Chaefsky has the right idea, so did Chekhov.

Corrections about Freedom Seder

To the Editor:

I would like to offer some corrections on the article written about the Freedom Seder which took place on April 6. The Seder was sponsored not only by the Hillel Organization but by other groups as well. Those sponsoring the Seder were, in addition to Hillel, the United Christian Foundation, The Newman Center, The Ark, and the Southwest Women's Center. Other working participants were The Martin Luther King Committee, MacKimmie Humanity House, Southwest Men's Center, and The People's Gay Alliance.

The Freedom Seder, inspired by Art Waskow's Freedom Seder, retells the old story as told in the Haggadah, but also brings us up to date on the modern political and cultural oppressions that exist today. The Freedom Seder was held on April 6th in order to coincide with Passover, Holy Week and Martin Luther King Week, and was not a delay of the Seder usually held on the first two nights of Passover. This was a separate event from the traditional Seder. For the first time that we know of on this campus, many different religious and cultural groups got together to celebrate a united effort in the fight against oppression.

Elise Goldman,
Hillel liason member of the ECUM Freedom Seder Committee

bill sundstrom

No confidence?

In an age of rising cynicism and declining trust in our leaders, SBA Dean George S. Odiorne has offered us cause for renewed faith in the integrity of bureaucrats. While the students were away on vacation, Odiorne put himself up for a vote of no confidence among his faculty. In return for this display of personal virtue the business faculty voted against him, and Odiorne resigned.

No doubt this move will be followed by a rash of similar votes, with putting oneself up for popular disapproval becoming the rage for hip administrators. But there seems no reason to stop at the simple "vote of no confidence". Why not an entire spectrum of votes on various subjects relevant to the modern institution? Here are my humble suggestions:

For collectively timid groups, the vote of marginal confidence would make it possible for voting members to make a more tactful statement than they could with the straight "no confidence". Rather than resign, the "victim" of this vote might go on a long vacation instead.

The vote of no competence, specially designed for UMass administrators, would ultimately result in no action, but would officially state what was already widely known.

The vote of no consequence would also decide absolutely nothing but would confirm all participants' faith in the democratic process. Similar is the vote of no conclusion; it, however, would require a two-thirds majority.

Advancing the rhyme scheme is the vote of no confusion, which would (democratically) aid disoriented members of the organization. Countless inane squabbles would be avoided using this simple action. And in case a highly debated point came to fisticuffs, members might want to avoid injury by passing the vote of no contusion.

The UMass faculty will surely register a vote of no condolence should Dukakis fail to be reelected.

The vote of no conference is for members who need a respite from coffee, doughnuts, and workshops. Meetings plagued by a lack of agreement on major issues could be thus recognized with a vote of no congruence, or the similar vote of no consensus.

Of course, there are always times when an organization wants to deny any relationship with an individual or group — time for the vote of no connection.

ZPG interests would doubtless lobby heavily against a vote of no contraception, which could, among other things, lead to an unprecedented overpopulation problem in Whitmore.

A vote of no conscience would allow crooked members of the School of Education, as well as of other departments, to rip off the University without bad feelings. And for those administrators who seem to operate on a lower level of consciousness than the rest, the infamous vote of no cognizance could be used. A vote of no convalescence would deny those unbalanced souls proper time to return to mental health.

Last but not least is the vote for bureaucrats who simply give in to the rat-race — the vote of no continuance.

These new democratic tools should easily accommodate those troubled organizations which find themselves at a loss for something to vote on....

Bill Sundstrom is Executive Editor of the Collegian.

commentary

Who's afraid of the SOP?

By BOB MELIA

If Governor Dukakis knew what the Student Organizing Project (SOP) was doing, he'd probably die laughing.

The SOP is attempting to unionize students and force the administration, faculty, and public officials to respect student interests, and it has failed dismally. But failure is not sufficient reason to criticize the SOP. The road to a student union is long and rocky, and mistakes and initial failure are to be expected.

However it is also to be expected that the SOP should learn and profit from its mistakes, and this it has failed to do. Not only does the SOP make mistakes, but it repeats them ad infinitum, and as a result it alienates students more than it unites them.

In their eagerness to organize students, the SOP people have neglected to consider the interests and aspirations of those whom they seek to organize — namely us. Why did less than one per cent of the student body attend an SOP-backed Town Meeting which discussed budget cuts, faculty unionization, and student unionization? Probably because students realized that the SOP strategy is inherently unworkable.

It's unworkable because it fails to incorporate student interests and aspirations into its strategy. Consequently the SOP confronts when it should cooperate, and cries ineffectually when it should confront.

In a letter to the Collegian SOP member Michael King stated that there is "fundamental conflict" between students and faculty, and he ridiculed a suggestion that students and faculty should cooperate in an attempt to pressure publice officials into increasing the university budget.

But is a student union is used to confront rather than cooperate with faculty, nothing positive will result, becasue students (unfortunately) have no tools with which to confront faculty. A boycott of classes would only give faculty more time to do research and make their reputations. Also, there is virtually no support for a boycott or any other type of disruptive activity because students don't see such activity as relevant to their interests. Who will engage in such activity when the pressure is on to attend class, study and make good grades so as to maximize chances of finding a job or getting into a good grad school?

The SOP will not begin to succeed until it drops its emotional confrontationist rhetoric, changes its focus, and addresses itself to student needs vis-a-vis the current political-economic situation.

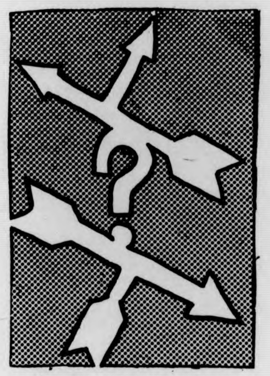
A union is not a bad idea. It's potentially an excellent idea, but the focus of the union must be relevant to student needs. What the SOP should be doing right now is contacting every state-supported school in Massachusetts and organizing students, staff and faculty in an attempt to form an effective lobby which could obtain proper funding for state schools.

Hard to do? Sure. But it's the only way to get more faculty and better student services. By hysterically screaming the faculty unionization will result in "exacerbating an already existing conflict" between faculty and students (which implies that a student union is needed primarily to fight against the faculty union), the SOP will only continue to alienate students in droves.

Unlike the SOP, the vast majority of students don't perceive faculty as enemies, and don't regard faculty unionization as the prime impetus to student unionization. If there is to be any impetus to unionization, it must be Governor Dukakis and his meat cleaver.

Only when the SOP perceives this fact, and changes its focus from anti-faculty to anti-Governor, can it begin to succeed in mobilizing students. If the SOP fails to alter its strategy, it will experience only continued failure and frustration.

Bob Melia is a Collegian Commentator.



Editorial Staff meeting

There will be a meeting of all editorial staff members this Thursday evening at 7:30 in rooms 805-809 of the Campus Center. All columnists, commentators, cartoonists, graphics and layout people are urged to attend. All other interested folks are welcome.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
Student Newspaper of the University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 (413) 545-3500

BOARD OF EDITORS — RONALD J. ARENA, Editor-in-Chief; ROBERT J. HIGGINS, Managing Editor; ANTHONY P. ARMELIN, Business Manager; BERNARD T. DAVIDOW, News Editor; WILLIAM A. SUNDSTROM, Executive Editor; NASSER H. EGA, Black Affairs Editor; JUDITH M. VAN HANDLE, Sports Editor; JAY A. SARET, Photo Editor; MARK A. LECCESE, Fine Arts Editor.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS — Christopher J. Bourne, Teresa M. Hanafin, Night Managers; Paula Strollo, Wire Editor; Judy Kritzman, Assistant Executive Editor; Dorothy A. Clark, Kevin C. Turcotte, Stephanie H. Aronson, Ann C. Treneman, Assistant News Editors; Angela P. Thomas, Assistant Black Affairs Editor; Michael A. Berger, Richard W. Eckel, Assistant Sports Editors; E. Patrick McQuaid, Deborah S. Schafer, Assistant Fine Arts Editors; Melanie J. Johnson, Women's Coordinator; Heidi S. Berenson Feature Coordinator.

BUSINESS — Steve N. Lesser, Advertising Manager; Leslie Nearman, Finance Manager; Laurie Wood, Assistant Business Manager; Heath C. Wheeler, Jr., Linda Crowell, Assistant Advertising Managers; Randy Glenn, Graphics Manager; Ann Emanuelli, Doug Surette, Assistant Graphics Managers; Steve Polansky, Circulation Manager; Linda S. Vene, National Advertising Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal view of the authors.

